All perfect he art, you can't go wrong,
Go—anywhere he can deft,
And—no where else he may pay,
So fair one ladies do wend your way,
And at the Shoe Store (Boston and pay)
Then you will find, moreover, you will see,
The Hub of Fashion will shine on you,
Boots and Shoes of all kinds made to order in first-class style. Repairing of all kinds neatly done. T. R.—Give the Artist one trial, and you will find yourself fitted fashion in any shape or form. Note the address: 1107 Market St. bet. Seventh and Eighth, opposite new City Hall, San Francisco, M. J. Fleming, Proprietor.

—Ladies who desire to keep up with the fashion in cloaks and suits and be the economical should patronize Mrs. Midwy 30 Ellith street, Parisian patterns cut to order. A fine line of corsets and ladies underwear, also all kinds of infant wear.

—Dr. Warburton, graduate of London and Edinburgh, removed to 908 Market street. Office Hours, 1:30 to 3 P. M., 7:30 to 8:30 P. M.

THE CATHOLIC
Mutual Beneficial ASSOCIATION
Archdiocese of San Francisco.
President - - Rev. J. B. McNally.
THIS ASSOCIATION HAS NOW BEEN IN EXIST-ence for three years and has already merited special books fully TWELVE HUNDRED MEMBERS.
It has $6,000 in its treasury, and so economical has been its working that during the past year its members have had total space its mission in order to open its benefits to a larger number of persons than ever before. Let it try to bind their Sober and Cheapest Association in which Catholics seven a sum sufficient to enable to secure in their families or relatives a competent support after their decease.
The association insures the lives of all Catholics between the ages of 18 and 50 inclusive, and the members of the Association are bound to assist one another in the sanctuary, in sickness, and in the cemetery. Catholics who are fond of a good time, and who desire to enjoy life by social every enjoyment in this Association as well as in many other sections of the world.
Temperance societies, Catholic Ladies' Benevolent Association, Catholic Ladies' Benevolent Association, Catholic Ladies' Benevolent Association

Godless Schools in Italy.

THE DESTRUCTION OF RELIGION UNDER THE RULE OF THE ROBBER-KING.

Sacrilegious Aims of the Secret Societies.

HOW ITALIAN CHILDREN ARE COERCED INTO INFIDELITY.

DANGER SIGNALS FOR AMERICAN CATHOLICS.

A Reflex of the Irreligious Future of this Republic.

[FROM OUR REGULAR ROME CORRESPONDENT.]

The following letter, from our Rome correspondent, comes to us like the warning signals which we sometimes see in the atmosphere are a severe storm breaks upon the world. The result of infidel teaching in Italy may be lamented over by Catholic priests and people in America, but while we weep over the loss to the faith in other lands, let us ask ourselves what we are doing to avert the same ruin in America!

As soon as the sunshine falls upon the seed it begins to fructify into flower or fungus, with odorous beauty or repulsive weeds, and so it is with education, the light of which will make of the youth of America a nation of God's noblest work or a nation of Dalcidas and desperadoes whose glory will be to read in twain the seamless garment of Christ.

It is useless for us to say that what is taking place in Italy can never happen in this Republic, because "like causes produce like results," and we have at our very threshold, rising up about us a generation of youth, who have not God, who fear not God, who are looking for Hereafter, not Providence or of pareons, and this very element may yet arise in his infernal infidelity and pull down the very churches which their forefathers helped to erect. The Sacred Scriptures assure us that we cannot "gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles," and the same Divine Word tells us that "an evil tree bringeth forth evil fruit," hence it is impossible to expect that Catholic children will remain true to God when they are educated by teachers who either openly or by implication, and surrounded by companions who are unfavorable to their faith. A miracle of God, through the prayers of priests and pious parents, may save some, but the majority will be lost. This is the sad experience of Italy, the cradle of Catholicity; it is the fate of France, once known as "the proud side of "the oldest daughter of the Church," and it will be the fate of Catholic children in America unless we take warning by the dearly-bought experience of European nations and surround our churches by a cordon of schools wherein to shield the faith and to save the morals of our children.]

We hope, therefore, that the accompanying letter of our correspondent will not fail to arouse those who are responsible to God for the salvation of the souls of the innocent to the imperative duty that devolves upon them are the recording angel enters upon the pages of the Book of Life, opposite to the name of those who will in time of the Church on the day set aside for Christian education: "Too late, too late, ye cannot enter now."

ROME Italy, February 15, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR:

Dear Sir—

The educational question is one of paramount importance in our age. The answer to: How are we to bring up the rising generation? is fraught with momentous issues for the future outlook of society, and many are the responses which are being given of the heads of our time—or those that should be wise. Of the two great systems of education now at work—the secular and the Christian—the former, under the auspices of many a government, has spread rapidly over the world, and, according to its admirers, has the higher claims upon our choice. The great promoter and defender of Christian education in every land is now, as it always was, the Catholic Church. The "secularization" of the schools is one of the many

SERIOUS OUTGROWTHS OF THE REVOLUTION,

And is in full accord with the well-known plans of the secret societies: the destruction of religion and human society. From such a poisoned source but little good can flow. An examination of the effects of this system will suffice to show us that, like the fabled apples of the Dead Sea, though it may present a fair exterior, yet it is all rotten within. Indeed, the most peculiar feature in its ghastly failure to accomplish one of its professed aims: to produce good and moral citizens. The Church has long known this system's truth, and warned her children to beam their guard. The correctness and wisdom of her position in this matter is every day more apparent, and, let her where more triumphantly than in Italy, the home and center of her power, where every education has been for years at work with no results to surprise us man of reason.

Since the revolution united all Italy under the dynasty of Savoy, a handful of unscrupulous politicians have successfully held the reins of power, and, while resting loudly about the blessings of liberty, have invariably put in practice a tyranny of the most cruel and oppressive character. They took the education of the country under their pernicious government, and, true to their evil-known principles, overthrew the traditional systems that had contributed so powerfully to the pride and glory of Italy. On its ruins they built up the new-fangled State method of instruction, which, in little more than twenty years, has brought about a change in the face of the nation that has startled the very founders. They began by subsidizing the schools so as to have complete monopoly of public instruction, secretly and direct it after the best of their ears whims and prejudices. The yet theory of our day was set to work, although its promoters were solemnly pledged to maintain and defend the Catholic religion as the religion of the State.

UNDER THE PERFECT OF LIBERTY OF CONSCIENCE

They forced parents and children to accept a system which was in general abominated, and which took away the most precious part of human freedom. This spirit was faithfully portrayed by a so-called pedagogic congress: "Instruction is reading, writing, and casting up accounts comprises the whole task of the elementary schools." No word about religion, "the basis of human society," as Edmund Burke styles it; it was no longer to be a factor in the work of the State schools; the development and direction of the heart and will were declared to be of no account in the battle of life. Stress was principally laid on the necessity of getting on in the world, as if money were the summum bonum, the only object worth struggling for. "There is a calamity," said Victor Hugo (January 15, 1860), aimed twice in our age; it is the tendency to place all in this life." Thus the most important part of education was set aside by the Italian legislators, and the other part, instruction, was carried out, as we shall presently see, in a manner at the same time inefficient and highly injurious to the future prosperity of the learners.

Instruction was, by act of Parliament, rendered compulsory and fatiguing by the recording of heterogeneous subjects into the yearly State examinations, in all of which it is necessary to display some proficiency before being privileged to pass on to a higher grade of the literary or professional curriculum. The aspirant to the medical career, for instance, is ordered to withdraw if he fails to make a good "stand" in literature and mathematics; the future law student does not present himself for examination if he be not "steady" on natural history; no one may get up the diploma of a lawyer till he has waded for days through Latin, Greek, literature, and a hundred less useful studies that have not the remotest bearing on his future profession. At the same time, in the middle and higher schools, subjects of the highest importance, natural theology, natural and moral philosophy, are utterly discarded. This crowding of subjects is so notable in the Lyceums and Gymnasiums that no resource is left the student but "examining" and "grinding," which open the mind on the oyster-shell system, and impart only a superficial varnish of even merely human knowledge. Quite recently the most promising youths of the country, who had taken diplomas of honor in the Lyceal courses, were presented by Minister Bonelli as competitors for a gold medal.

THE EXAMINATION WAS AFTERWARD

To examine their papers. In their reports we read that "the competition has but too clearly proved that studies in the Lyceums have not yet produced that full maturity of fruit which is required for an instruction so essential," and then follows an intermediate list of glaring defects, etc. It is no wonder that under this irrational system Italy is no longer capable of furnishing its former quota of highly cultured men; and there is a constant lowering in the intellectual role which it formerly had. Infidelity consists of worthless news sheets, political scurrilities, perverse sensational works, obscenities, bloody epigrams, and writings of every kind that offend modesty, calumniate the past, corrupt the present, compromise the future (Gioberti, Ulcen Trent' Anni). To keep pace with the new ideas on secular education new text-books were placed in the hands of the pupils, which contained not only was the cause of God expunged, but doctrines were severely taught whose aim was to upset their religious convictions. It became an outrage on liberty of conscience to teach the Catechism, the book which Victor Hugo said should be disseminated in every village and read in every hovel. Studies were degraded to a merely human occupation, and sciences taught without any reference to the Divine Fountain of all knowledge. Be it observed, however, that all this was not brought about at one fell stroke. The innovators were insinuating, and the minds of the coming wisdom: some marks of respect were at first shown to the old educational system, the religious instruction was merely tolerated, afterwards forbidden, and finally, with the tacit consent of the Government, began the positive teaching of irreligious free thought. The youth of Italy was soon drugged, fascinated, into infidelity.

As the nomination of directors and teachers is in the hands of the Government, it takes particular care that they should be, as far as possible, man after its own heart. A few weeks ago Professor Fabbretti,

A TEMPERATE FREEMASON OF TURIN,

Was called to occupy a life post on the Council of Public Instruction. About the same time the Bishop of St. Vincent de Paul, at Florence, protested against an objectionable lay person being appointed director of studies in their educational establishment, but Bonelli promptly ordered the Prefect of the province to "yet her in possession by armed force." Last year a Modena Superior, aged seventy-five years, was imprisoned for refusing to allow atheist teachers to poison the souls of the little people confided to her care. In the appointment of teachers we see an unfair and decided preference given to spectacles, atheists, Jews, and the authorities have gone so far as to seek on men of this stamp in other nations. At Rovigo the education of over a thousand Catholic children is under the complete control of the Jews, who have forbidden their children to attend the lessons of the Christian teacher. In the twenty-one universities of Italy there are professors of atheists and Freemasons. Even when the teachers are men of a thoroughly sound and upright principles, their influence for good is partly crippled by the nature of the regulations with which they are hampered. They cannot instruct the heart with regard to its moral obligations without endangering their position. Such teaching would be too frequently denounced as an infringement on the people liberty of conscience, in which case Bonelli, or the wickedness of a prefecture, would be the punishment of their zealous temerity. The promoters of these State schools boast that their instruction teach pure, unadulterated truth in a manner perfectly acceptable to every liberal-minded person. But we can easily imagine the position the teacher will find himself when the regulations of these schools are extended over the whole nation of educational subjects. How can he, under such circumstances, be faithful to the principles of history? Neither national or general history can be taught, with any conformity to truth, by a teacher bound to utter no statements offensive to the convictions of any of his hearers. One class of facts he must withhold altogether, another class he must forcibly adumbrate in the wrong way, with a merely secular interpretation, and exciting altogether the action of a Divine Providence in the world.

THE NATURE OF THE TEXT-BOOKS

Of history used in the public schools excludes the possibility of its being impartially taught. They revile Churchmen, hold up for admiration the worst political hacks, and justify of course, the long series of iniquitous acts which brought Italy under the dominion of the House of Savoy. Add to this, that positive atheistic teaching is openly carried out in the universities, and in a vast number of elementary and intermediate schools. It is often a title to promotion and fat stipends, whatever may be the teachers' incapacity in other respects. This monstrous scandal has been legalized and encouraged by the example of Baccelli himself, the Minister of Public Instruction. In a letter which he made but year through the provinces, he called at a female school near Milan, where he showed his practical love of true liberty of conscience by indulging, as usual, in a fierce tirade against the very fundamental principles of revealed religion. The schoolmistress, a well-educated young girl yet in her "teens," fearlessly defended the truth with a vigor of logic that dumbfounded the redoubtable atheist, and made him retire crestfallen from the conflict. A few days later the brave young girl was dismissed from her situation, but received a more than ample recompense in the praise and sympathy of her admiring Catholic countrymen. A professor of the Roman University boasted to his class that "within a short time the human soul, like the body, will fall under the dissecting knife." In June a Government inspector removed the pictures of the King and Queen from a school room in Lombardy (the crucifixes were thrown out long ago), substituted that of Garibaldi, and obliged the teachers and scholars, under severe penalties, to carry out a demonstration in honor of that stately old agent of the Revolution. And yet this highhanded outrage was carried out in the name of liberty of conscience! These Satanic scenes of Christianity find willing, if not powerful allies, in the Protestants, whose aims, however, is quite hopeless in this country, they having dwindled down from over 70,000, in 1871, to less than 50,000, in 1881. At Venice, especially, they have been the cause of very serious disturbances, assaulting the larger clergy, breaking images, etc. "The flame is fanned by the apostles of Protestantism, who, under the name of Evangelicans, Waldens, or Anglicans, . . . preach the downfall of Catholic idolatry and the Evangelical regeneration; and not so much for the purpose of teaching new doctrines, as of destroying the old, they open chapels and schools, diffusing heretical works freely mingled with those that are immoral and obscene." (Cento op. cit.) M. Probet, himself a minister, and President of the Waldso Evangelizing Committee, exclaimed before a full meeting: "Alas! Italy has not been spared the plague of Protestantism." (Revista evaluana, p. 778.) The vast resources which they spend in the "evangelization" of this country do no good, and but very much permanent evil; much more terrible are the effects produced by the thousands of false teachers whom the State has extended to its own image and sent to spread their errors "from mountain to the field of truth."

SERVICE IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

There are no reliable principles of morality, but a chaotic confusion of the ideas of just and unjust, right and wrong, true and false, good and bad. The moral pedagogy given free thought, thus sedulously propagated, pervades every stratum of society, till it reaches its climax in the universities. The youth of Italy was made an Exegetical Pope Leo XIII. said in an Encyclical: "The fruitful source of all the evils that affect us, and of those that are impending, lies in the wicked doctrine about divine and human things, that issued from the schools of philosophy, and insinuated themselves into all orders of society." Man, as being a creature endowed with intellect, is acting naturally follows wisdom as his guide; so, if the intellect errs in any point, the will is also easily led astray. This is that erroneous opinions, which have their seat in the intellect, sway man's actions and pervert them.

As a matter of fact, from Lucifer down to Mazzini (if I may be pardoned the comparison), this has constantly been verified. Lucifer let his intellect fall into error, communicated into his companions' minds wicked doctrines about divine and angelic things, the outcome of which was a rebellion against divine and human laws. Hence the youth brought up in the pestiferous atmosphere of the Italian public schools quickly utilize the doctrines they have learned against secular and constitutional authority, against the clergy, parents, teachers, and government. No education of the heart and will has ever taught them to bridle in the scourge of youthful passions, and they begin their course in life "young men," as Father Tom Burke eloquently describes them, plunged into every extravagance, luxury, and sin, without remorse, without heed, without affection, . . . every recollection of early faith, every lingering influence of youthful piety, effaced from their minds; nothing left but the scoffing tongue, the polluted heart, the blank, weary mind of the voluptuary and the infidel." Even in the lower schools the children's minds are no longer imbued with the love of faith and morality, and with their young hearts then early modeled, it is almost incredible into what unhappy scenes more boys will fall. I know from the police registers that they have frequently abandoned themselves to the brutal disgustings that form the disgrace of mature years. I hold that an amount of home teaching in religious duties is sufficient to stamp a child's soul against the poisonous atmosphere of the public schools. He will fall either by example or by impulse, or will be dragged to wickedness by the thousand arts with which school boys know how to persecute a companion into shunning a principle. He cannot frequent these schools of Satan without being contaminated, sooner or later. The use of obscene and revolvers has, of late years, become very common among the students of the lower and intermediate State schools—those of the universities indulge in the additional murderous luxury of

DYNAMITE AND GRENAT BOMBS.

Last year a young boy coolly murdered his father, in this city, without any provocation; three weeks ago a little lad drove a knife to the heart of a play fellow; on the 10th of January six school boys were condemned at Turin for Socialistic demonstrations. The celebrated hospice of St. Michael, in this city, is an evil day fall under secular control, and quickly become a Pandemonium, the youthful inmates are declared Freemasons, Socialists, etc., use the knife freely, and at times can such dastardness that they have to be suppressed by the armed hand of the law. The secular administration of the Municipal Female Orphanage caused such shocking public scandals that it had to be altogether abolished. The criminal records of the country show a large and yearly increasing number of "young offenders," a large portion of whom issue from the public schools fully fledged for crime.

The higher we ascend the educational scale the more manifest becomes its utter incapacity of position anything but scourges of society. The universities are justly held to be the greatest plague of the nation. Here it is that godless doctrines hide undivided sway. Well, the result is that they are the most powerful sustainers of every secret organization that aims at the destruction of religion and society. The Levites youth that frequent these dens of iniquity fills the ranks of the Freemasons, the Socialists, the Internationalists, and of ultra-radical brotherhoods of every type. They form the "executive committees," and carry out the desperate enterprises, the brutal assassinations ordered from time to time by their unknown superiors. They boast that even "the police fear them," and by their rowdy spirit have won for themselves the unenviable distinction of being the greatest ruffians in Italy. We can never take up the daily papers without reading of some of the wild outbursts in which they indulge. At one time they are making noisy demonstrations in honor of Mazzini, Garibaldi, or "heroes" of a similar type; at another they are fitting revolutionary banners, heading local insurrections; now, they are shooting priests, attempting to blow up churches, or sending some obnoxious "brother" to the next world; again, they are hooting, or firing on the very professors that have brought them to such an advanced state of "enlightenment." At times they have created

A STATE IN STATE OF BEING.

On July 12, 1881, the students of the Roman University took a leading part in the savage and cowardly insults offered to the remains of the sainted Pope Pius IX. On June 24, of last year, they wrecked the offices of two Catholic papers. Wm. Oberdant left the class halls of the Roman University in September last to take the life of the Emperor of Austria and his uncle. In every part of Italy the university students have been arrested by hundreds, at a time, for complicity in the Socialistic demonstrations so dear to that young "martyr" who had been tried and condemned as he deserved. It is a notable fact that the worst crimes that have of late been committed in this country are committed by "educated" persons of from fifteen to thirty years of age.

With these good dispositions destroyed then early in life, it is hard to expect that mature years will bring about a radical change in their sentiments and actions. The enormous increase of crime in the country destroys the foundations of such a hope. At best, the people of the public schools cannot turn out better citizens than the misnomered "Liberals," who are nothing less than revolutionists thin'y disguised. In their code of morality party spirit, individual interests and passions, are the instable guides that have usurped the place of those immutable laws which God ordained for the regulation of human thoughts and actions. They use the hypocritical figure of euphemism to palliate crimes that were formerly characterized by more blunt and forcible terms. Political assassination is "devoted patriotism," bloody tumults are merely "demonstrations," suicide is "heroism," robbery is simply "association."

THE PRETENSION OF THE PUBLIC GOVERNMENT

To be the supreme judge of the laws, but even taught by the scandalous examples of those in whose hands are the destinies of the nation. On November 27, 1872, the Prime Minister, Lanza, declared in Parliament that the new Italy and Germany have the same aims, the Pope and the Catholic Church the public enemies. Ministry and Parliament, who make ourselves accomplices of the thousands of crimes for which our penal statistics collect no, or very little, our face in shame. "Our prisons are more and more crowded every day. We are subsequently, "but the cause of this national calamity is the total ignorance of the laws by the heads of the State."

I remain, dear sir, yours very truly,

SCHOLASTIC.

DOMESTIC PRODUCE MARKET.

In consequence of the quotations for all kinds of produce not varying much from last week's quotations, we omit the Market Report from this issue.

STIPTICS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Pain in the right side, under edge of ribs, increasing on pressure; sometimes the pain is on the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side, because the pain is felt under the shoulder and is sometimes taken for heart disease; bowels generally costive; affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternating with hurry; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which should have been done. A slight dry cough sometimes attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility, he is easily startled; his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low, and, although he is actually cheerful, yet he cannot be induced to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it.

If you have any of the above symptoms you can certainly be cured by the use of the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS. When you buy McLANE'S PILLS, insist on having Dr. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

If you want the best, get the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS. Most an. 82 cents 37 each, and we will send them to you.

FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

FINE CARRIAGES AND BUGGIES
STUDEBAKER BROS MFG. CO. REPOSITORY
201-207 MARKET ST.
SAN FRANCISCO CAL.

BADGER'S PARK.

Badger's Park is now open for Engagements.

OFFICE: North Beat or. Market and Kearny streets.

☞ OFFICE HOURS, 9 to 1 daily.

INFORMATION WANTED.

INFORMATION WANTED OF PATRICK or MICHAEL J. DOWDEY, aged respectively 20 and 18 years, sons of the late Patrick Dowdey, who left Ballinasloe, County Galway, Ireland, about 1865. Any information will be thankfully received by their brother, WILLIAM DOWDEY, Ballinasloe. William Dowdey, care of James Coyle, Trinity Center, Trinity county, Cal.

Carolina Tolu Tonic!

A preparation of BALSAM of TOLU, BONE, TASSIN, MAGNESIA and other medicines, the base being the

PUREST RICE

— AND —

RYE WHISKIES.

DESIRED BEING

A Sure Cure for Malaria and for Dyspepsia in Every Form,

AND IN THE

VINENT BEVERAGE KNOWN.

An antidote for Malarial Fever, and a Preventative of Debility.

HENRY BISCHOFF & CO., New York and Charleston, S. C., Sole Manufacturers and Proprietors. For sale by all Grocers and Druggists.

JOHN T. CUTTING & CO.,

407 Front St., S. F., Cal.

Sole Agents Pacific Coast.

ROYAL

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., New York.

EMIL FRESE'S

HAMBURG

'That safe, good old German Family Medicine for all complaints of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels; Carminative, Alterative and gently Cathartic.

Family Medicine for all complaints of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels; Carminative, Alterative and gently Cathartic.

REDINGTON & CO., San Francisco, U. S. A.

KNABE PIANOFORTES.

ESTABLISHED 1837.

Tone, Touch, Workmanship and Durability.

Nos. 204 and 206 West Baltimore Street, Baltimore. No. 112 Fifth Avenue, N. Y.

HARROWER AND RAMSAY

We Beg to Call Your Attention to the GREAT BARGAINS — IN — SPRING DRESS GOODS!

Which we are now prepared to offer at the following prices:

Newport Suitings	10c
Oxford Plaid "	10c
Clan Plaid "	12½c
Reversible "	15c
Bunting "	15c
Jersey Stripe "	20c
All Wool Serge "	25c
Invisible Plaid "	25c

407 & 409 HAYES ST., NEAR GROVE.

The Butterick Publishing Co.'s CELEBRATED PAPER PATTERNS

For Ladies', Misses', Boys' and Children's Garments. Send stamp for Catalogue of Spring Styles. Sold locally by

H. A. DEMING,

124 Post Street, San Francisco.

A BOOK FOR THE HOUR!

IRELAND OF TO-DAY.

The causes and aims of Irish agitation. By M. F. Sullivan. Will be respectfully and fairly treated. Price 50 cents. Sent free of postage. Address, A. L. BANCROFT & CO., San Francisco.

BEATTY'S ORGANS 12 stops $155. Pianos $97.50 Factory running day and night. Catalogue free. Address Beatty, Factory, Washington, N.J.

SPRING, 1883.

— OPENING OF —

FRENCH SATEENS, GINGHAMS, SPRING DRESS GOODS AND CRENAM

We are now making our Spring Display of the above goods have just arrived and comprise a very large and choice assortment.

PARASOLS.

Just Received from New York. 5 cases of choice Parasols. As this shipment comprises the assortment to vary large and the styles are the newest made, Ladies should call early before the stock is broken.

NECKWEAR.

We will offer on Monday and following days, a very choice line of Fancy Silk Neckwear, Collars and Sets, Fichus, Ties, etc., which arrived from New York Saturday, and comprise the Latest Novelties of the season.

☞ Country orders promptly filled, and samples sent on application.

DOANE & HENSHELWOOD

132 Kearny street, corner Sutter.

DIPHTHERIA

CROUP, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, NEURALGIA. Johnson's Anodyne Liniment internally relieves these distressing diseases. Sold everywhere. Every moment. Prevention is better than cure. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

McCormick Brothers,

BOOK AND JOB

PRINTERS

HAVE REMOVED TO

636 Clay Street,

(In same building as the Monitor Office.)

San Francisco - - - California.

We Possess every Facility for the Execution of

JOB PRINTING

— IN THE —

Cheapest, Neatest & Quickest Manner.

GIVE US A TRIAL

And be Convinced that our Prices are Lower than any other office in San Francisco.

☞ Orders from the Country Promptly Executed, and work sent by Mail or Express.

A SPLENDID SUCCESS!

NEW CATHOLIC

Sunday-School Paper,

For the Pacific Coast.

The Catholic Child

HAS NOW BEEN PUBLISHED FOR FIVE months and has met with a success which far exceeded every thing before by Sunday-School children with great satisfaction to all who see it.

THE PICTURES ARE FRESH,

THE READING INTERESTING,

In a word, it is pronounced by both Clergy and Laity the Best and Cheapest Catholic Sunday School Weekly published in America.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

100 Copies, Weekly, per Month	$10 00
50 " " "	5 00
25 " " "	2 50
10 " " "	1 00
5 " " "	0 50
1 " " "	0 10

Larger Copies, and over, at the rate of one Cent per copy.

Single Subscription, per year, $1.

MCCORMICK BROTHERS,

Publishers and Printers,

636 Clay St., San Francisco.

Sample Copies Sent Free to any Address on application.

PURE ALTAR WINES.

Having Purchased all the Altar Wines made in the vineyards of his Grace Archbishop Alemany for the last three years, we are prepared to supply the clergy and others desiring an absolutely PURE Wine, made with special care, and guarantee them to be of the vintages represented.

ARPAD HARANZTHY & CO.,

530 Washington St., S. F., Cal.

PIANOS

SOLD FOR $10 IN INSTALLMENTS.

Kohler & Chase, Post street, near Dupont.

BOOTS AND SHOES

MOORE & MURPHY

Importers, Manufacturers and Jobbers in

Ladies' and Gents'

BOOTS AND SHOES

☞ Full Line of the Best Eastern Manufactures. Workingmen's Boots and Shoes a specialty.

Remember the Number:

138 SIXTH STREET,

Bet. Jessie and Howard

CARROLL & TILTON

Respectfully announce that they have opened

THE LARGE STORE

873 Market Street,

WITH A LINE OF

GENT'S AND BOYS'

CLOTHING

Furnishing Goods

HATS, CAPS, ETC.

Having been in this business for many years, we can promise all our goods will be as represented.

We buy for Cash and sell as low as any house.

CARROLL & TILTON,

873 Market Street, Opp. Grand Opera House.

And later with JOHN & CO.

WHISPER IT AROUND

We are selling our immense stock of Men's, Boys' Youths' Children's Suits, Overcoats, Ulsters, Pants, Caps, Neckties, etc., 10 PER CENT OFF

Regular Prices, in order to make room for the Spring Stock.

HEIMAN BROS.

Popular One-Price Clothiers,

1026 to 1030 Market St.

☞ All goods marked with Selling Price in Figures. Scrutiny Invited.

DIPHTHERIA

REMEMBER THAT

Mr. Cone on Press Panel where Ireland's Dyspheria Remedy is to be found.

☞ I HAVE BEEN APPOINTED AGENT FOR THE SALE OF THE ABOVE REMEDY, for the entire Pacific Coast. Ireland's Dyspheria Remedy is a certain cure for Diphtheria, Croup, Sore Throat, Quinsy, Tonsilitis, Scarlet Fever, Sore Throat, and all diseases of the throat. Price, 50 cents per bottle. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Address, P. CONE, Box 1, Post Office, San Francisco, Cal.

ALT & WIBOURG

— MANUFACTURERS —

Printing INKS Lithographic and VARNISHES.

W. H. CAMPBELL, JR., AGENT,

805 MISSISSIPPI ST., Bet. Tennessee & Illinois, San Francisco, Cal.

☞ The Monitor is printed with our Inks.

HALL TO LET.

HAVING LEASED THE PREMISES, 111 Ellis street, for a term of years, I am desirous of letting the upper stories, viz., the Hall, Parlors, etc., for a term to suit. Apply on the premises, or at 1 Montgomery Avenue, Saloon.

Tenders sealed, 111 Ellis street.

INFORMATION WANTED.

INFORMATION WANTED OF PATRICK and MARY ANN MCGUIRE, natives of Ballinasloe, County Roscommon, Ireland. They will hear of something to their advantage by addressing PATRICK MCGUIRE, Eureka, Humboldt county, California. (New Orleans papers please copy.)

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

THE MONITOR,

A CATHOLIC FAMILY JOURNAL.

DEVOTED TO THE PROPAGATION OF CATHOLIC PRINCIPLES.

Published by THE MONITOR PUBLISHING CO. Office: 636 Clay street, San Francisco, California.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

Per Year by Mail (IN AND IN ADVANCE)	$5 00
Per Year by Mail (if not paid in advance)	6 00
Six Months (if paid in advance)	3 00
Six Months (if not paid in advance)	3 50
Three Months (if not paid in advance)	2 00
To Ireland or any of the British Provinces (in advance)	$4 00; (not in advance) $ 5

☞ Address all communications, remittances, checks and postal orders to

J. J. McCARTHY, Editorial Manager.

Monitor Office, Box 2252 P. O., San Francisco, Cal. Entered at the San Francisco Post Office as Second-Class Matter.

THE MONITOR

The Monitor.

THE MONITOR

is now in the twenty-sixth year of publication, and its well-established reputation as a staunch and reliable Religious Newspaper, has gained for it a wide circulation and an influence which makes THE MONITOR a valuable medium for advertisers.

Advertisements inserted at reasonable rates.

TO CORRESPONDENTS

Communications, to secure insertion, should be handed in not later than Tuesday of each week.

No communications will be inserted unless accompanied by the author's real name. This is required as a private guarantee of good faith.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions or statements of our correspondents.

All communications and remittances, whether on business or otherwise are to be addressed to the Manager.

For the Scriptures not ashamed to say the Truth. — Strive for Justice for thy Soul; and even unto Death fight for Justice, and God will overthrow thy enemies for Thee. (Sirach, iv. 28.)

VOL. XXVI. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1883. NO. 24.

MISCELLANEOUS.

California Fig Syrup

A POSITIVE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

TRY IT. DRUGGISTS SELL IT.

Made By

H. B. SLAVEN,

The Baldwin Building.

PLATING.

NICKEL PLATING,

GOLD PLATING,

SILVER PLATING,

Elegant and Durable.

ALL KINDS OF WORK PLATED. WORK CALLED for and delivered. Lowest estimates given on Plating. Satisfaction guaranteed in every instance. Prices the very lowest. Silver Plated Ware polished and lacquered like new. Jewelry and Jewelry Repairing a specialty. Jobbing promptly attended to. Orders from the country solicited. The most extensive

PLATING ESTABLISHMENT

On the Pacific Coast.

San Francisco Gold, Silver and Nickel Plating Works,

605 and 607 Mission Street, bet. New Montgomery and Third Sts., San Francisco, Cal.

R. G. DENNISTON, Proprietor.

Special First Premium silver bar at the Mechanics' Institute for the last twelve years.

JOB STATE. CEO. LAUMAN

STACK & LACOMBE,

Practical Hatters,

639 MARKET STREET

Gold Medal Awarded

STATHAM PIANOS

At Mechanics' Fair, 1882.

FACTORY, 745 MISSION STREET.

W. H. CHRISTMAN, JR. THOS. A. ROBINSON.

PACIFIC Business College, 320 POST ST.

LIFE SCHOLARSHIPS, - $70.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

J. L. CAHILL,

PAINTER,

Whitener and Decorator.

936 Clay St., San Francisco.

Special Rates for Retain Lodgings by the year. 308 POST STREET, bet. Hyde Street and Powell.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT

Wm. C. Badger, 13 Sansome St.,

IS THE SOLE AND EXCLUSIVE AGENT FOR THE SALE of the Celebrated Ale, known as the above Wines, viz.: Rudel, Davis & Co. (Bass, Ale.)

MICHAEL SHEA,

— DEALER IN —

BOOKS, STATIONERY, NEWSPAPERS, &c.

805 MARKET STREET,

Just above Fourth Street. SAN FRANCISCO

HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM

PRICE 50 CTS.

AN IMMEDIATE AND PERMANENT CURE for COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, INFLUENZA, CATARRH, LOSS OF VOICE, Incipient Consumption, and all Diseases of the Throat and Lungs. Ask for the California Pulmonary Balsam, and take no other.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

J. P. GATES & CO., Proprietors, 417 Sansome Street, S. F.

St. Patrick Preaching at Tara.

The life and labors of the glorious Apostle of Ireland has been so often preached upon by the priesthood of the Catholic church in every land that the subject is familiar to most of our readers. It is not necessary, therefore, to go into any details now of his birth, early life, and labors, for the enthusiasm usually displayed by the orator in his eulogy of the saint, which is represented in the accompanying engraving we extract from the excellent lecture of the learned and eloquent Abbé Mastrofranco, the Professor of Eloquence of the Roman College, and which we copy from the Catholic Review.

A STATE IN MAZON OF BEING.

"St. Patrick landed in Dublin, before the Christian era, and his footfalls instantly sounded in the little ship in case of Lamona, his nephew, who had come over with him to wait for him forty days, during which he would preach the word of life in the territory of the Country. He landed on the Saturday before the festival of Easter in the plains of Magh-Breagh, where the Ard Ri, the annual residence of the kings, was located. The Ard Ri was at the head of the assembly, which was to be held that year in honor of the gods, and of the princes, druids, and pagan priests; and the Ard Ri, who was a pagan, also he might produce at court, and, in the midst of the assembly with his wives, he tried of a territory in which he was a stranger, in spite of his hospitality, he entered the assembly, and, in the midst of the Ard Ri and Druids, and all his family. The lord had a seat, and, in the midst of the assembly, he saw a Druid by the side of the Ard Ri, and, in the midst

Poetry.

A LITTLE GIFT FROM IRELAND.

"Here, grandma, here's a present, it has some a distance, too,
To a little pot of shamrocks, and it comes all dressed in you!
Yes, all the way from Ireland, and the card here mentions some
They were gathered at your birthplace on the banks of Avonmore."

"From Ireland! do you tell me? O darling, is it Annie,
Annie, let me feel them—and you say 'twas there they grew?
Why, I am sorrow believe it; is it really what you say?
From my birthplace in old Ireland! poor Irelanded Erin!"

"I'm old and stiff and feeble, sad in darkness, God is present,
Yet, Kitty, how it cheers me, how my poor old heart is raised,
To feel in hour so sore as, the call that gave me birth,
The very clay of Ireland, let me kiss the holy earth.

"These blessed little shamrocks! I can't see them, they bring me back the sparkight of the happy and smiling days
And the darkness comes the pitiness that I very
The dear green fields of Ireland and the sunny sky above,
"I can go once I saw them, when a girl like you I stood
Amid the lilies and heather—there's the chapel, hill and wood,
There's the abbey shell with ivy, and the river's whisper where,
And the little chapel still playing on the banks of Avonmore.

"God bless the little shamrocks, then, for calling back the scene,
The hawthorn, the meadows, the brightness of the green;
They long, long years to see it, and to see it all so plain,
Ah! only the years you smiling, but I'm feeling you again.

"And though I'm truly thankful for the blessed Have brought around me, Kitty, in this great sea of a world,
I can't help but sighs and bows, 'midst the comforts of the age
My heart is ever turning buried where these Irish shamrocks grew."

THE CROSS AND THE SHAMROCK WREATH.

"Not unshamed yet, oh, mother, dear!
And Pete has been a-by,
At the lodge wall, to pick shamrocks green,
For you to wear, St. Patrick's Day."
And the maiden opened her apron wide,
Where from between the leaves
She had gathered, all fresh and dew kissed,
At the wall of Saint Winifred.

"They are greener there, by the water's side,"
And then in the long, soft grass!
And holier, too, where, without a prayer,
My Children had passed."
And the listener, mother, I'm going to trine
In a wreath for thine and wife,
To place round the blessed crucifix
Then kissed many an eve before.

"Did ever a mother's smiling eyes
On a fairer daughter fall,
As she hung the wreath of shamrocks fresh
Upon the cross on the whitewashed wall
And well was the hair girl's tearful gaze
Fixed on the pierced feet!
And full of faith was the innocent heart
Of the Catholic girl, my mother.

"He held Thy story, dear Lord," she said,
"Thy cross, Thy crown of thorns,
And Oh not unmeet Thy sacred feet
In the path of Thy faith should be."

THE WREATH.

"Not yet, my child, not yet, my child, Thy dear love,
And, loving, let him have thee
By Saint Winifred's well shall meet,
When Patrick's day shall come
Thy lord for sound is breath,
Thy lord for sound is breath,
The Cross and the Shamrock wreath."

THE CROSS AND THE SHAMROCK WREATH.

Mr. Davis, in a recent speech in London, said: "Wherever I go, I find the Irish Catholic clergy, the Irish Catholic, the man who is entirely devoted to his country, and devoted to religion. I do not mean to say that there is not a Protestant clergyman who is devoted to his country, and devoted to religion, but I mean to say that the Irish Catholic is a devoted Irishman, and a devoted Catholic. Wherever I go, I find the Irish Catholic ready to sacrifice his life for his country, and his religion, and I say that the Irish Catholic is a devoted Irishman and a devoted Catholic."

Literary Miscellany.

From Poverty to Paradise.

AN IRISH STORY BY MONA MULHOLLAND.

Poor old Sally was slowly wending her way into Dublin from the neighboring country, one bright morning in the poor-house. The climax of all her many troubles in that troublesome world had come, the sorrowful ending of her life's chequered story was at hand; she was on her way to the last cold cradling from whichhoe poor turn away with such loathing. Sally had had her good days and her bad days on earth, but the worst day of all had dawned for her now, when she was about to pass without the hope of return through the "Union" gate. Dragging on half dead foot after the other, and leaning on a stick, she looked a picture of helplessness, dejection, utter failure and bankruptcy in life; yet there was no bitter despair in her face. Her thoughts if turned into language, might have run thus:—"The worst has come, and the Lord's will be done. I have accepted this heavy humiliation for my sins. The pride of poverty is broken, and the decency I cherished in in the dust. I am the child of honest parents, and the mother of industrious children. All have gone from me; the husband that loved me and worked for me, the big strong boy, and the smiling little girls, even the poor orphan in taken into other hands, and there is no more room in the world for Sally my mother, and I am glad I have lived to see it staying around the streets. I am going to know at the gate that I always behave, and rest my weary limbs on a pauper's bed. Then I will turn my face to the wall, and wait for the Lord to take me home.

Sally was hungry; it was many hours since she had tasted food. She was turned in the shop windows as she crept along, but it was so far from her reach as if it were bread she defended it from her withered hands. She did not wish for it strongly; but she longed for a cup of tea. "Ah, I thought Sally, "I am going to a place where there is no more cups of tea."

At this moment the old woman became suddenly faint, and sat down upon a kerbstone. The stroke (it was in the Liberties) was growing dark for a few minutes everything was dark to Sally. Strange sensations to consciousness, she was unique the dump from her face, when a sensible boy stopped to see her. His feet and legs were bare, his clothes through holes in which he had once been somebody else's knickerbockers, his face was pale and pinched, but the eyes of his little sone and the tips of his little ears were red from the nipping air.

"Is a sthing the matter with you, mimes," asked the boy.

"Mister enough," murmured Sally, "I'm no matter to anybody. I'm no my way to the poor-house, boy, and I can't drag my feet there. It's the heartof me that's awake; sitting one it is, and sending me to heaven, I think, sometimes."

"Our house is just round the corner," said the boy, "and if you can get there, I'm sure my mother will be glad to see you."

"God bless you, child, but the mother of the like of you has plenty to fill her house, I'll swear."

"It's not a house exactly; it's a room. And there's only me and my mother and my sister Mary to fill it, for the poor, poor, poor,

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1883.

Holy Week and its Observance.

We are now in the midst of that penitential time known in the calendar of the Church as Holy Week, a period which was known to the Greeks and Latins of past ages as "The Great Week," the "Paschal Week," the "Week of Sorrows," and the "Week of the Cross." "We call it the Great Week," says St. Chrysostom, "on account of the great things which God hath wrought in it." But three days of that Great Week now remain, and it should be the solemn duty of every Catholic to devote every spare hour thereof in meditating upon the sorrows and sufferings of our Divine Redeemer. On Holy Thursday we should participate in the august and solemn ceremonies of the Church commemorative of "The Last Supper." On Good Friday we should be present at the Cross in order to contemplate the Divine agony of our Blessed Lord as He gives up His life in order to save the sinners of the world. On Holy Saturday we should contemplate the entombment of our adorable Saviour, and remain with the Church over the bier of her Divine Spouse.

Thus, having followed the long suffering and the painful death of our Lord, we will be able to rise with Him to a glorious resurrection in the grand festival of Easter, when the Church commemorates the triumph of God over death and of man over sin.

Reflections for Good Friday.

Several reasons are assigned by the Fathers of the Church as to why our Saviour chose the Friday of the Great Week for the day of days of death from Christians. Many do not fear death in general, yet many have a secret dread of a sudden death, by the invisible shaft of God's paralyzing blade of death. Now as the death of the Cross was the most painful and humiliating that could be borne, our Lord did not hesitate to adopt it as an example of most noble humility. Ist. To show the peculiar type of sin. Adam violated the direct command of God in eating the fruit of the forbidden tree. In atonement for disobedience, and for all the sins of the world, he behold the sacred Lamb, the blessed Fruit of the immaculate Virgin, a type of the man and complete humility on the tree of shame. 2d. To signify the entire and consummation found in Protestant arsenals, because we find, in a recent number of the American Library Churchman, an article from the editor, Rev. Wm. Kirkus, D. D., in which occurs the following passage, which we give even at the risk of paralyzing the poor Protestant readers at whom their religionist sets this rock:

"Before Christ people set about the unsacrificial task of reforming the day observance of Sunday by the aid of the policeman, it might perhaps be well for them to make some slight effort to mend their own manners. 'Sabbath breaking' is generally supposed to consist, in practical purposes, in attending church, when the weather is fine, on about three Sundays out of five. Nearly every clergyman in the Church of England knows that he cannot get an ear, and the time—but 11 o'clock—never is a convenient one for the man who has to be up and doing on Monday morning and who does not want to be lazy on Sunday morning. Sabbath breaking! Why, it is a mere trifle compared with the sins of omission and commission of which we are all guilty in our ordinary Christian life."

How Bishop McQuaid Poked up the Preachers!

It is only a short time since everything was in a state of peace and plenty in the Protestant camp, when all at once a regular "Bostonian" Bishop in Rochester threw a bombshell into the cozy camp, and ever since the preachers and screechers have been running round like roosters in a barnyard when Young America throws stones at them! It is not only the roosters of the Reformation breed that are agitated, but even the pulpit hens and the pretty pullets are in a fearful state of trepidation for fear the world might discover that their Protestant eggs were all addled and all hope of hatching out new broods of Bible birds entirely hopeless! Poor Protestantism! What a barn-yard fowl it was after all! And now that it has heard the clarion crow of the Catholic chanticleer, and it scents defeat and death in the air, it lowers its comb, comes in over, and scoots off to hide itself in the debris of its own dung-hill!

Little did Bishop McQuaid (God bless him!) dream what dismay and disaster he would spread among the ranting roosters, the hallelujah hens, and the Presbyterian pullets when he revealed to the world the dying state of Protestantism.

The roosters they've come mad,
The chicking hens refuse to lay,
The pullets are just so bad,
And so the chanticleer is gay!

The poor things have been fussing and figuring ever since Bishop McQuaid's thunder clap, cleaking around trying to find out "who threw that jubilee!" at their barnyard hoop. Yet rainly have they tried to persuade themselves that Protestantism, "with fewer and fewer adherents, is yet the best representative of Christianity!" Yet vainly have they tried to persuade themselves that Protestantism, "still lives," and that Popery is as dead as a cooked duck! But they cannot be comforted, and so now they have taken "a new departure;" they have set out to show Bishop McQuaid, to cackle at the Church, and to peck visionary at the Mooroon. "Revenge is sweet," it is said, and where this spirit inspires a clerical hen or a rooster fowl or a barn-yard bird of the Reformation, rooster species, the sentiment is the same, and while we smile at the strut and cackle of the Reformation brood, we must remind it that it was from Protestant sources all the sanitation was derived which done all the damage to the barn-yard brood when roost has been knocked down by Bishop McQuaid. But the good Bishop did not by any means exhaust the supply of sananitation found in Protestant arsenals, because we find, in a recent number of the American Library Churchman, an article from the editor, Rev. Wm. Kirkus, D. D., in which occurs the following passage, which we give even at the risk of paralyzing the poor Protestant roosters at whom their religionist sets this rock:

"Before Christ people set about the unsacrificial task of reforming the day observance of Sunday by the aid of the policeman, it might perhaps be well for them to make some slight effort to mend their own manners. 'Sabbath breaking' is generally supposed to consist, in practical purposes, in attending church, when the weather is fine, on about three Sunday out of five. Nearly every clergyman in the Church of England knows that he cannot get an ear, and the time—but 11 o'clock—never is a convenient one for the man who has to be up and doing on Monday morning and who does not want to be lazy on Sunday morning. Sabbath breaking! Why, it is a mere trifle compared with the sins of omission and commission of which we are all guilty in our ordinary Christian life."

Supreme Excellence of the Rosary.

FOURTH ARTICLE.

Father Gaetan Marie, of Bergamo, a Capuchin, and a most renowned writer, expresses himself in the following manner on the Rosary: "Many are the devotions which have been introduced in the Church, in a most holy manner, by the servants of the Mother of God! I have the greatest reverence for all those that are approved of by the Church of God, not forgetting to praise those which true and solid piety practices privately; but I am thoroughly convinced that the Rosary is in itself the most noble of all devotions, the one that is most dear to Mary, and the one that is the most useful and beneficial to ourselves! It may be well said of Rosary, that they are the children of good hope! And when I consider the good that Mary has done for them, what she is now doing for them, and what she is disposed to do for their well-being, both in this world and in the next, these words of the Holy Ghost come to my mind (Wisdom 12. 18-19), "For thy power is at hand when thou will. . . And thou has made thy children to be of a good hope." Who can explain how much the sacred Virgin is honored by the holy Rosary? . . . If Mary, this Mother of mercy, frequently intercedes in her goodness even for those who do not at all petition her favors, as was the case at the marriage feast of Cana, what will she not do for those who, through her Rosary, invoke her aid not simply once, but one hundred and fifty times, in the recitation of the Hail Mary (which is so pleasing to her), and who, besides, present her with a beautiful crown formed from the prayers and the different mysteries of her own selection! Let us make the supposition that Mary has nothing more for her devout clients of the Rosary than to present before the throne of God the Our Father which is recited by them in this devotion: that is quite enough.

. . . For when Mary supplicates God, she is always heard; she obtains what she asks. . . But in the Our Father are contained seven petitions for all the necessities of the body and of the soul, both for time and for eternity. Nourishes will therefore be, through the intercession of the Blessed Virgin, heard for all their necessities. O consoling argument! . . . am no longer astonished at what the Blessed Alan, who was instructed on this matter by the holy Mother of God herself, has written, viz., that he who has devotion for the Rosary, has one of the most brilliant signs of his predestination to glory—Habentibus hanc devotionem signum et pernoscum praedestinationis ad gloriam" (Ap. Pacecius, Ad. Angel. cap 5. n. 10).

If you, dear Catholic reader, are innocent, resite in a devout manner the Rosary, that you may continue to be innocent; if you are a penitent, recite the Rosary with devotion that you may persevere in the works of repentance; and if you are a sinner, resite with devotion the Rosary in order that you may obtain the grace of true conversion. Never doubt for a moment that Mary will assist sinners in all the dangers of your state of life!

Significant.

Our readers will remember that, after Cavendish and Burke were murdered in Dublin, the Irish press generally charged it upon the Castle officials. They were the only ones who could have been benefited by the deed. Now comes a Protestant with this theory, if we can believe the telegraphic abstract of Forster's speech, and he is for the murder, too. The Dublin Freeman's Journal publishes an article, which spoke of the desirability of a thorough change of officials at the castle which was an Aroosan stalks. The telegraph informs us that Carey, being re-examined by Mr. Murphy, crown counsel, said the "letter the publication of an article in the Freeman's Journal, stating that all the officials were to be removed from the castle, the murder of Mr. Burke was decided upon. The murder then was done to prevent the removal of those officials, for Mr. Burke was to be removed (Carey states that only a few days before the killing of Cavendish was not contemplated) why should he be killed? This confirms the suspicions of the Irish people that the assassinations were instigated by the Castle, and that for "Number One," let them look through the Castle.

—The reported creation of two new dioceses, those of Poughkeepsie and Syracuse, is the ecclesiastical Province of New York will give that Province one Archiepiscopal and eight Episcopal Sees, making a larger number than the Province of any other part of Boston, was recently received into the Catholic Church. He was baptized in New York city and is in Rome at present.

—It is stated that Maude Gary, daughter of Judge Gary, of the Supreme court of Chicago, is about to receive the vail of novice of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart. Miss Gary is a convert to Catholicity.

—A dispatch from the Germania from Rome says: "Cardinal Jacobini has much points out that there is only one alternative, either Prussia must consent to a thorough revision of the May laws or she will deprive the Catholic Church in Germany of the very conditions of existence.

—At present Australia counts 16 bishops, 400 priests, 800 churches, 1040 religious orders, 1500 religious of both sexes, and 900,000 Catholics. Twenty years ago there was but the growth of 40 years, for when Queen Victoria ascended the throne, the Catholics in Australia could be almost counted on our fingers.

—On Sunday, the 21st ult., the Bishop of Portsmouth administered the Sacrament of Confirmation at St. Saviour's, Fresh water, Isle of Wight. The event was noteworthy, as being the first Confirmation in Freshwater since the Reformation. The Saviour's church was built by the late Dr. Ward, some twelve years ago, at which date there were but two Catholic inhabitants of the Freshwater district.

—Mother Baptista, Superiorss of St. John's Catholic Orphan Asylum, Brooklyn, N. Y., died last month, aged 66, from a disease caused by near work and exposure in the discharge of her duties. Her loss is a serious one to the Catholic community, and especially to the orphans, for whom she had a tender regard amounting almost to that of a mother. Hundreds of young men, who today are fighting the battle of life, feel that they have lost a friend, whose equal they will never again find.

Why Protestants send their Children to Convent Schools.

In the Illustrated Christian Weekly, we find this notice of a volume purporting to be a record of one year in a convent school. This book "shows the full folly of Protestant parents in trusting the education of their children to Roman Catholic hands. While given in the form of a story, the book is a connected narrative. The story exposes the sophistries and blandishments and artifices which are used to beguile the unwary into what is superficially called the only right path. It shows, more over, the real value, or lack of value, which a conventual education possesses. Such warning as this book contains ought to be pass unheeded." And the Illustrated Christian Weekly would like every Protestant father to read it. The name of the author of this precious book does not appear. It is probably Julia McNair Wright, possibly the Rev. Justin Fulton, or one of the hack writers who do Rapers' dirty work.

The Illustrated Christian Weekly knows why Protestant parents send their children to convent schools, and it dares not tell the truth. Protestant fathers and mothers send their daughters to convent schools that they may be kept pure—that they may not be contaminated by the atmosphere which blights young minds from their infancy. Many of these fathers and mothers would prefer Protestant schools if they could trust their children to them; but they can not. It is well known that Protestant mothers who have themselves been educated in convents put their daughters in the care of the Sisters, wishing that they may return the risk of conversion to the Faith rather than lose the bloom of innocence. Protestant fathers will do almost certain to do in schools under less strict supervision than the convent schools, would prefer Protestant schools if they could trust their children to them; but they can not. It is well known that Protestant mothers who have themselves been educated in convents put their daughters in the care of the Sisters, wishing that they may return the risk of conversion to the Faith rather than lose the bloom of innocence. Protestant fathers will do almost certain to do in schools under less strict supervision than the convent schools. As to "sophistries and blandishments," none are used, in order to beguile Protestant gentlewomen who have lived in convent schools will testify. The daughter of non-Catholic parents is never, never, never to be contorted by the grace of God and the example of Christian purity of life around her; but no influence, except these influences, is brought to bear upon her. A non-Catholic parent ought to understand that the chances are greatly in favor of his daughter's conversion to the Faith when she enters a good convent school. If he takes the chance, he can not reasonably find fault when she asks him for permission to follow the dictates of faith and reason. If Protestants object to purity of mind and excellence of moral training, which are taught and taught in "Papistical schools," they put themselves in a most absurd and fanatical position. It is a fact, which astounds Protestants take the risk of their children becoming Catholics, but they may be kept pure.

If the Illustrated Christian Weekly were honest, it would translate the meaning of its false and bigoted book-notice into these words, "Protestant parents send their children to schools rather than permit their daughters to be preserved innocent, uncontaminated in Catholic schools." There may be some Protestant fanatics who will see no such sort of reasoning. They are happy few. The reputation of "the Sisters" at Lowell, of the innocence of their young wards is so firmly fixed among non-Catholics, that no intelligent book or calumnious news paper can overthrow it.

Convent schools do not send out emissaries, "seeking whom they may devour," as the book-notice of lying books represents them as doing. They do not cover up the crucifix and the statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints, in order to deceive non-Catholics. They are frankly and openly Catholic. The non-Catholic parents knows of example, that she must be surrounded by a Catholic atmosphere. The non-Catholic knows, moreover, that the greater hope may her parents have that she will return to them pure, manfully, unscathed by the temptations of the world, as age is which "independence" and the emancipation of evil are considered the superiors of truth.—N. Y. Freeman's Journal.

Catholic News Notes.

—In 1862, 181 Jews in Vienna, it is reported, became Roman Catholics.

—Cardinal Melchby, for the latest advices, continued to improve, but is not yet considered out of danger.

—It is currently reported that Pope Leo XIII. contemplates soon sending a Papal ambassador to Washington, D. C.

—It is said that the Jesuit Fathers of Canada, Africa, are laboring for the conversion of King Mtesa, with good prospects of success.

—It is proposed by the Catholic clergy and laity of Brooklyn to build a new cathedral in honor of the Rt. Rev. John Loughlin, D. D., Bishop of the diocese.

—Rev. A. Kuhls, of Kansas, says that out of 450 mixed marriages in Leavenworth, Kansas, 400 have fallen away from the faith, and of the other fifty only twenty strive to raise their children Catholics.

—The Rev. Arthur Clark, formerly a member of the Presbyterian church of the city of Boston, was recently received into the Catholic Church. He was baptized in New York city and is in Rome at present.

—It is stated that Maude Gary, daughter of Judge Gary, of the Supreme court of Chicago, is about to receive the vail of novice of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart. Miss Gary is a convert to Catholicity.

—A dispatch from the Germania from Rome says: "Cardinal Jacobini has much points out that there is only one alternative. Either Prussia must consent to a thorough revision of the May laws or she will deprive the Catholic Church in Germany of the very conditions of existence.

—At present Australia counts 16 bishops, 400 priests, 800 churches, 1040 religious orders, 1500 religious of both sexes, and 900,000 Catholics. Twenty years ago there was but the growth of 40 years, for when Queen Victoria ascended the throne, the Catholics in Australia could be almost counted on our fingers.

—On Sunday, the 21st ult., the Bishop of Portsmouth administered the Sacrament of Confirmation at St. Saviour's, Fresh water, Isle of Wight. The event was noteworthy, as being the first Confirmation in Freshwater since the Reformation. The Saviour's church was built by the late Dr. Ward, some twelve years ago, at which date there were but two Catholic inhabitants of the Freshwater district.

—Mother Baptista, Superiorss of St. John's Catholic Orphan Asylum, Brooklyn, N. Y., died last month, aged 66, from a disease caused by near work and exposure in the discharge of her duties. Her loss is a serious one to the Catholic community, and especially to the orphans, for whom she had a tender regard amounting almost to that of a mother. Hundreds of young men, who today are fighting the battle of life, feel that they have lost a friend, whose equal they will never again find.

THE SITUATION IN IRELAND.

Mr. O'Connor's Letter—English Hostility to the Irish People.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Anybody acquainted with the English character will know that the English people are subject to spasms of what I must call blood frenzy. The first does be very long, and it is succeeded by a violent reaction. But while it lasts it is blind, tigerish, relentless. There was such a fit during the Indian mutiny, and it lies in terrible fruit in the hideous massacres of which English officers, as well as Sepoys and others, were guilty. There were one or two similar fits during the regime of the late Lord Beaconsfield, and there is a peculiarly severe spasm at the present moment. I need scarcely say that the origin of this commotion is the evidence of with regard to which you have heard a great deal in American within the past few weeks. The attitude in the London newspapers with fairly be described as bloodthirsty; the speeches of most politicians up to few days ago were all directed to influence the popular frenzy, and the burden of all their cries was Parnell and Ireland.

THE INFORMER CASEY,

It may reasonably be inferred that the Dublin authorities, when they accepted the evidence of Carey, counted upon this result. I was assured by Dublin Castle men, and I believe, that the danger at allowing a ringleader to escape, while he adopted every device to suffer the severest penalty of the law, was strong in Conservative as in Liberal circles. The Government, too, hoodwinked, as they are, from all sides, to feed fat, and, in the Liberal ranks, fearfully distracted long and anxiously consulted. Mr. Forster, who was hated by the Castle and by the Dublin Privy Council had no less than three meetings before he could resolve on allowing Carey to escape. These things should be remembered in order to appreciate the fact, that the Government must have imagined Carey had a big return to offer as the price of his pardon. The return was not his evidence against his colleagues in the murder of Cavendish and Burke, but the man, Kavanagh, and of other witnesses had, in the Government's opinion, sufficient power for their conviction.

The price for which the Government stipulated was such evidence as would

IMPLICATE THE LAND LEAGUE

and the Land League leaders in the doings of the "Invincibles." In Ireland, it should also be said that the Government may have hoped that the guilt of the betrayal of the spiney by its chief leader might serve as the moralizer and exemplary warning against such modes of political action in the future. For a while, and even still to a certain extent, it looks as if the guilt of the Dublin assassinations were to be attended with complete success. Some of the leaders have fled to America and wild howl to which I have already made allusion. But, outside some hard hitting, strange sort of historical irony, the Government has suffered much from what they thought a master stroke, and the strength which they had gained by their apparent success in the Dublin assassinations has been almost destroyed by dexterous allusions to what is conservative circles is styled the Kilmainham treaty. This unexpected outcome of the assassinations is not only talked about by the action of the Conservative Mr. Gorst in the good, sharp, astute lawyer of the little body of Conservative Helpers that make up the group known as the Fourth Party, but has been outstripped by the Dublin revelation to bring in an amendment to the Queen's address which would have put the statement of having conceded legislation to the Irish people in a most unpleasant form. The Queen's speech was clever, adroit, and unexceptionable, but Conservatives, Liberals, and Irish Members were equally determined to have this time done.

Gorst drew an elaborate comparison between the organization of the conspiracy and that of the Land League, and, in a most insincere circle; such had its "Number One" and while the object of one was to physical assassinations, that of the other was to peaceably destroy Mr. Forster. The meaning of all this was that the Government, representing the Radical sections of the Cabinet, had intercepted Lord Spencer, who was driven him from official life. Then there were allusions to a famous memorandum of Mr. Forster's who, if he be a lover of notoriety, would be gratified to see his name in the newspapers as the most talked-of man in England, and the Government were roundly accused of having conspired against themselves and their political allies. In modest the speechwards followed from the Conservative benches, this was the burden of attack, and it was very amusing to see the contrast between the irapulsive and voluble and nervous Conservatives and the Government were thus compelled to display, and the contrast between the resolute and reticent Liberals, who were so determined to be silent, and who were so determined to be silent, and who were so determined to be silent, and Married Life.

REFERRED TO MR. SHERIDAN,

That marriage, as fixed by nature to secure happiness on mankind, often turns out a lamentable failure—a huge mistake—needs scarcely be stated; but marriage in itself contains all the elements to the securing of that point of happiness allotted to mortals here below.

Hasty marriages are generally predicted failures, and though they need not necessarily turn out so, yet, if unhappiness follows such acts, where so much is left to chance, it need hardly surprise anyone. But many marriages which are not hasty—where courtship has extended over years—they do not confer on those so united that happiness which was fondly hoped for; nay, often fail to bring even contentment, but are rather a heavy yoke, which is at all times irksome, and often almost unbearable. Failing to have discovered the true disposition of each other in one case why there are so many unhappy unions.

The first class of marriages may be dismissed with what has been said, but nearly the second there must be errors of conduct, the remote or nearer cause of which would lead to greater happiness than in many more prevails. In a well assorted union, the first year of married life is generally the most trying.

Either party may start by expecting too much of the other, forgetting that life is a real and earnest business, and that time ought to be more profitably employed than in always making tender speeches or indulging in a gushing fondness.

There is, and may rationally enough be, such a greater freedom of manners between husband and wife than between lovers; but it is unquestionably there carried too far, in the absence of respect for each other's feelings, opinions, or even scruples, where such may exist. The husband should show his respect for his wife's judgment and sympathy, by explaining to her, at least in outline, his business affairs or professional prospects.

The wife, on her part, should feel interest and sympathy in the discussion, and never affect an air of indifference. Life cannot be expected to be free from care, or every day affairs to flow any smoothly.

Surprisingly once broken, unbearable qualities are not their in developing themselves. Cynicism is too often affected, and unworthy indulged in, to hide the aching of the heart; and thus become apparently such prominent traits of character that belief in better qualities is well-nigh impossible; for, as it is much easier to believe in appearances than to arrive at a knowledge of the true motives of the actions of others, if we are judged at our own showing we have little reason to complain.

It is well for a young man to remember that after marriage he cannot retain the freedom of a bachelor with the hundreds of a settled home. He has serious and responsible duties to perform; but to secure the comfort and well-being of the woman who has confided her happiness to his care, to cash her sympathies and confidence, to avoid neglect, or the seeming to prefer, much more the preferring the company of others to hers; to contribute her intellectual culture, to ease her burdens, and in all things to be her guide and counsellor. He must bear in mind that the society of those who years his senior can in youth and early manhood must now be enjoyed at his own house, and that the hunting for pleasure in the former haunts will leave a death-chill in his own fireside.

During professional or business gatherings will call him away often enough, but if these obnoxious or real evils will complain, remember that home is home, and that it will, sooner or later, unmistakably to him. In all cases, home is home, and home should be his resource, of his hopes, and of his fears.

Music at Home.

Every family that can possibly obtain a musical instrument seems to think their home establishment incomplete without one, yet how few Americans can show any very much real music out of it when they have had, and still favor one but instrument, which has endeared every one with for making melody at home. The German children almost so early sing, and usually find time and or training, yet it is within the reach of almost all to obtain to at least mediocre performance in the simple forms of music, ballads, national airs, or the playing and singing of hymns; and nothing tends more to keeping the children good tempered and sweet natured, than to have plenty of music in the family. It is a cadjoun which ought to receive due attention from every father and mother, and in the land. In after years how many instances will recall the tuneful strains heard in childhood, soothing the wearied spirit into quietude and peace, or cheering the conscience to fresh impulses of right action, stifled and silenced at first by reason of friction with the world, needful even under the inspiration to quicken it into newness of life. Yet, how often does the mad delirium of the fevered brain yield to the plaintive melody heard in childhood days. Let the song then flow freely from the gentle lullaby and cradle song, to the exquisitely rendered song with or without words, and if in the steps upward the child reaches dissonant or worse very serious strains, let it be borne with very patiently and encouraged to do the best, and not chidden for inharmonious screechings, when it is really trying to attain to the melody and harmony of the good within.

That the study of music in the common acceptation of the term is in some instances carried to a foolish, and considering the natural bent of the child, unwarranted extent, is undoubtedly true, yet in these instances the aim is too high, and not enough is made of the simple airs which the child could easily and readily acquire.

Catholic Organization.

Only one thing can save the world, and that one thing I am praying you to do. An organization of the Catholic spirit in Italy would sweep from its fair field the robbers who plunder and ravage it. Yet the world outside of the Catholic spirit in America would be sufficient to repel the Jewish mechanism of its bad press and the Protestant prejudices of secret societies. A Catholic organization in Germany, Spain and Belgium and France. A Catholic organization in Ireland will be able to keep our own, and simultaneous business in every country, and to sympathize with them in their sentiments and their suffering. A great Catholic organization could not fail both the rule of religion, and prevent the enlargely of poverty and war. The active and conscientious are, I again repeat, not the nations; and if the nations lose their sense and sense up the full standard of Christ, we shall hold the sacrificial of the Christian tendency.—Very Rev. Dean O'Brien, of Limerick.

A Life in Danger.

This is the fact concerning every man, woman and child, who has in the body the seeds of pleurisy, blotches, liver and urinary diseases, from which may spring Bright's Disease of the kidneys. Yet it is a fact, a prospect is scarcely terrible; and it is the duty of every man to be rid of the disease at once. To do this infallibly, use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great kidney and liver medicine.

THE CATHOLIC
Mutual Beneficial ASSOCIATION
Archdiocese of San Francisco.
President - - Rev. J. B. McNally.
THIS ASSOCIATION HAS NOW SEVEN HUNDRED MEMBERS.
It has $50,000 in treasury, and no assessment has been its working that during the past year no assessments have been levied upon its members in order to pay the policies held by 24 members who died during that period. This proves it to be the Safest and Cheapest Association
in which Catholics can invest a small amount in order to secure to their families or relatives an adequate support after their decease.
The Association meets on the first of all Catholics between the ages of 18 and 50 years, and it has received the approbation of his Grace Archbishop Alemany, D. D., and been commended to the consideration of Catholics by nearly every clergyman in this Archdiocese as well as in many dioceses of the coast.
The office of the Association is located at No. 110 Sutter street (over the Occidental Hotel where the Secretary will be in attendance every evening (except Sundays) from 7 to 9 o'clock, and where all information relative to the Association may be obtained.
Written communications should be addressed to EDWARD OLIGOS, Secretary,
1119 Jones Street.

PHILADELPHIA BREWERY.
JOHN WEHLAND - - PROPRIETOR
SECOND STREET, NEAR FOLSOM,
SAN FRANCISCO.
Amount of Beer sold in 1861, 20,182 barrels.

JUST ARRIVED.
RANGES
For either Coal or Wood.
THE BRISTOL, BERWICK, CLIFTON AND QUINCY.
The only first class Ranges in the market.
The Celebrated Rathbone Range AND COAL OIL STOVES.
MANUFACTURERS OF HYDRAULIC AND SPIRAL Steam and Water Gauges, Steam Whistles and Gong Bells, Patent Stamping Dies and Stamping Ranges with hot water boilers.
J. M. REAN, 130 Third Street.
Bet. Mission and Howard.

DR. PHELAN
(Graduate of the University of New York.)
Formerly Physician to Sacramento and St. Mary's Hospitals.
MEMBER OF CALIFORNIA PIONEERS.
Office and Residence: 920 Third Street Cor. Bryant.

INSURANCE.
COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY
OF CALIFORNIA
FIRE AND MARINE.
Capital fully paid $200,000 0
Assets January 1, 1861 ..... 277,437 1
Losses paid since organ. 80,000 0
409 CALIFORNIA Street, cor. Sansome St.
JOHN H. WISE, President.
CHAS. A. LAYOU Secretary.

HAS REMOVED THE HOME MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY
Now occupies premises
409 CALIFORNIA STREET,
CHAS. A. LAYOU Secretary.

19th ANNUAL EXHIBIT, JANUARY 1st, 1861.
Premiums received on applications $4,142,280 18
Premiums received on renewals 1,000,000 00
Premiums on Policies expired or discontinued 1,000,000 00
Premiums on Policies Renewed 1,000,000 00
Premiums on Policies Expired 1,000,000 00
Premiums on Policies Renewed 1,000,000 00
Premiums on Policies Expired 1,000,000 00
President ..... J. J. MCCOSTER
Vice-President ..... M. H. SHERWOOD
Secretary ..... CHAS. E. STORY
Assistant Secretary ..... CHAS. E. LAYOU
FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE
UNION INSURANCE COMPANY
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,
ESTABLISHED IN 1861.
Nos. 416 and 418 CALIFORNIA STREET.
CAPITAL ..... $750,000 GOLD
PAID SUBSCRIBED, PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES, GOLD ASSURED.
DIRECTORS:
SAN FRANCISCO.
B. Rosenberg, Richard Lockley,
R. S. Ward, John Parrott,
Jos. Seligman, James Mehrten,
M. G. Kittle, J. Boone,
M. J. O'Connor, Wm. D. Fenton,
I. Dunbar, Joseph Donohoe,
Daniel Meyers, Gustave Touchard,
Adam Grant, J. G. Kittle,
Anthony Ewer, Geo. C. Hubner,
Charles Kohler, J. H. Bolet,
Joseph Seligman, Joseph Lazard,
Bernhard Dwyer, W. H. Rosen,
I. Lagenauer Pool, William Toledo,
A. Wolf, John Conly,
F. D. Bacon, Jos. Lazard.
A. B. Phelps,
GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, President.
N. S. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BAILEY, Secretary.
GEO. V. BOHMS, Surveyor.

EDUCATIONAL.
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN 1851, is chartered by the State Legislature, with all the rights and privileges of similar College's institutions in the United States.
R. R.—In writing to advertisers, please state you saw this in THE SAN FRANCISCO MONITOR.
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME, Marysville, Cal.
$60 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. Address H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.
GOOD DOUGHNUTS AND SOLD BY A. BOUDOUN 1008 Montgomery st.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.
SANTA CLARA - - - - CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of Notre Dame, stands in opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a moral and intellectual education. One feature in particular that should recommend this Academy, is the influence exclusively from the pupils to views and habits of economy and to render them useful members of society in after years.
The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.
Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, payable in advance.
Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.
Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding, $50
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 7th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE
SANTA CLARA, ... CALIFORNIA
THE THIRTY-SECOND ANNUAL SESSION will commence Tuesday, August 6th. This institution was founded in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated with the privileges of a University. It occupies six large buildings, with extensive shady play-grounds, covered 17 acres. Its course of instruction embraces a complete Philosophical, Apostolic and Classical Education, Mineralogy and Geology, 12 languages, practical schools of Assaying, Surveying, Telegraphy, Photography and Commercial Business. For the latter a new building 180x40 has just been finished, that leaves nothing to be desired.
Diplomas are given in two departments—the Classical and Scientific—and Certificates in the Commercial Department.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-annually in advance.)
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once ..$15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition in all branches Washing and Mending of Linen, School Stationery, medical attendance and Medicine, Baths, etc., per session $250 00
For further particulars apply to the President
Santa Clara College, or to St. Ignatius Church, 214 Hayes street, San Francisco.
REV. J. PINASCO, S. J.
Pres. 6d3 President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Fifth and Jackson Sts. ..... OAKLAND, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School for boys up to the age of fifteen years. Its object is to combine the comforts and happiness of home with the attainments of a superior Christian education.
Terms and conditions, (uniform at sending their sons or wards to Saturday School, need only ten (this Amount), be in advance and the Institution property life a place wherein reunion is the religious system of Christian Brothers.
Boys remaining over a year should be entered for not for a shorter period than one term of five months.
TERMS:
(Payment to C. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance)
Board, Washing and Tuition, per term of 5 months, $125
Stationery, Bed and Bedding, each ..... $ 10
Entrance Fee (payable once) $10
BRO. CIANAN Director
1d1

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Open every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
A. M. Cullen, Professor of Mathematics and Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.
The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives particular attention. The daily exercises of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are carefully directed and corrected in the class-room.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR,
(Payable half-yearly in advance)
Board, Tuition and Washing $250 00
Physician's Fee and Medicine 15 00
Vocation at College 50 00
Day Scholars 40 00
Music and Drawing form extra charges.
For further particulars address
BRO. BETTELIN, President.
1d1

ST. CERTRUDE'S ACADEMY,
RIO VISTA, SOLANO CO., CAL.
THIS ACADEMY FOR YOUNG LADIES, UNDER the direction of the Sisters of Mercy, is beautifully situated on a plateau in the pleasant and healthy town of Rio Vista. The location is remarkably healthy, and the place is free from those evils which are too often to be found in cities, and attendant with the pleasure-grounds are extensive and well adapted for healthy amusement. Pupils of all persuasions will be cordially received. The course of instruction combines all the accomplishments of a lady.
Pupils received at any time during it term, and will be charged only from the date of entrance.
The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each, the first to commence January and ending in June.
Terms per Session, Payable in Advance.
BOARDING PUPILS.
2 and and Tuition, with use of bedding $115 00
Washing 20 00
Vocal Music (private) 15 00
Hoeing in class, Drawing, French, Paint and Ornamental Needlework do not form extra charges.
DAY ACADEMY.
Terms per month, in advance
Senior Class $2 00
Primary Class 1 50
Music, Piano 5 00
Music Guitar lessons, with use of instrument 4 00
Use of Piano for repeated 1 00
For further particulars address
M. M. CAMILLUS, Superiors

EDUCATIONAL.

Convent of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart,
OAKLAND, - - - CALIFORNIA.
CONDUCTED BY
The Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.
THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUATED between Webster street and Lake Merritt, unsurpassed for its healthfulness. The Convent is supplied with all the modern improvements—its spacious Parlors look upon a portion of the extensive Lake.
The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and ornamental education.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board and tuition (French and Spanish included), $200 00
Washing and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by Parents), each ..... $ 30
Music and Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY,
SACRAMENTO, ... CALIFORNIA.
Boarding and Day School for Girls.
Conducted by Sisters of Mercy.
SEPTEMBER 1857. ESTABLISHED 1978.
Pupils admitted any time during the year; terms moderate. For particulars apply to the SUPERIORESS

EDUCATIONAL.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE
Sisters of St. Dominic,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION, BEAUTIFULLY LOCATE in the Sunny Valley, near Mission, affords every facility for a refined and solid education.
The Academic year consists of 10 months divided into two sessions.
TERMS:
Board, Washing and English Tuition, per quarter $60 00
Entrance Fee 10 00
EXTRAS.
Language, (each) $10
French Lessons 10 00
Vocal Lessons in Class 5 00
Private Vocal Lessons 20 00
Drawing and Painting in Water Colors 10 00
Oil Paintings 10 00
Embroidery Fancy Work 10 00
No Extra Charge for Needlework.
Preparatory Class, per term $15 00
Intermediate 20 00
Higher 30 00
Use of Piano for Pupils 10 00
Each young lady is required to be provided with four dresses, six changes of underclothing, two pairs blankets, counterpane, sheets, four pillow slips, six towels, six napkins, six pairs stockings, four large and four small napkins, six knives, six forks, six spoons and napkin ring.
Simplicity of dress enjoined.
Pupils of any religious denomination will be received but the rules of convent will be required to be present at the exercises of Christian Doctrine.
Allowance for clothing and washing will be subject to the discretion of the Superiors.
For further particulars address
SISTER SUPERIOR

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME
THIS INSTITUTION POSSESSES THE ADVANTAGES of a Boarding School, Tuition in all branches
Washing and Mending of Linen, School Stationery, medical attendance and Medicine, Baths, etc., per session $250 00
For further particulars apply to the President
Santa Clara College, or to St. Ignatius Church, 214 Hayes street, San Francisco.
REV. J. PINASCO, S. J.
Pres. 6d3 President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Fifth and Jackson Sts. ..... OAKLAND, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School for boys up to the age of fifteen years. Its object is to combine the comforts and happiness of home with the attainments of a superior Christian education.
Terms and conditions, (uniform at sending their sons or wards to Saturday School, need only ten (this Amount), be in advance and the Institution property life a place wherein reunion is the religious system of Christian Brothers.
Boys remaining over a year should be entered for not for a shorter period than one term of five months.
TERMS:
(Payment in C. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance)
Board, Washing and Tuition, per term of 5 months, $125
Stationery, Bed and Bedding, each ..... $ 10
Entrance Fee (payable once) $10
BRO. CIANAN Director
1d1

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Open every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
A. M. Cullen, Professor of Mathematics and Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.
The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives particular attention. The daily exercises of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are carefully directed and corrected in the class-room.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR,
(Payable half-yearly in advance)
Board, Tuition and Washing $250 00
Physician's Fee and Medicine 15 00
Vocation at College 50 00
Day Scholars 40 00
Music and Drawing form extra charges.
For further particulars address
BRO. BETTELIN, President.

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE.
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
CHARTERED IN 1866, AND CONDUCTED by the priests of the Congregation of the Mission. Terms for scholastic year, $200 For further particulars apply to
REV. J. P. PRESIDENT.

Convent of the Immaculate Heart of Mary,
SAN LUIS OBISPO - - CALIFORNIA
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG Ladies, conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy Immaculate Heart of Mary.
This house is the Novitiate of the order.
SISTER MARGARET, Superior General, Princess.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
SAN JOSE ..... CALIFORNIA
THIS INSTITUTION, OFFERING PE-culiar advantages to young ladies wishing to receive a solid and refined education, was opened in 1851. In 1855, it was incorporated with the Legislature, and authorized to confer the usual honors of a University. It occupies six large buildings, with extensive shady play-grounds, covered 17 acres. Its course of instruction embraces a complete Philosophical, Apostolic and Classical Education, Mineralogy and Geology, 12 languages, practical schools of Assaying, Surveying, Telegraphy, Photography and Commercial Business. For the latter a new building 180x40 has just been finished, that leaves nothing to be desired.
Diplomas are given in two departments—the Classical and Scientific—and Certificates in the Commercial Department.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-annually in advance)
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once ..$15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition in all branches Washing and Mending of Linen, School Stationery, medical attendance and Medicine, Baths, etc., per session $250 00
For further particulars apply to the President
Santa Clara College, or to St. Ignatius Church, 214 Hayes street, San Francisco.
REV. J. PINASCO, S. J.
Pres. 6d3 President.

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
BENICIA ..... CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Charity, and situated in the healthy and accessible town of Benicia.
The scholastic year comprises ten months, opens on the 1st of August, and ends about the 1st of June.
TERMS:
(Payable half-yearly.)
Board and Tuition $225
Washing 40
Physic attending at the Academy during vacation will be charged $20.
Drawing, Painting and Music form extra charges.
Pupils Expenses on package sent to pupils must be prepaid.
Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the Superior.
SISTER SUPERIOR.

SACRAMENTO INSTITUTE.
Conducted by the Christian Brothers.
A Select Boarding and Day School,
K AND TWELFTH STS., SACRAMENTO.
EVERY FACILITY IS HERE AFFORDED TO ACquire a sound Education. The Commercial Department receives special attention. Students received at any time during the year. For particulars apply to BROTHER DIRECTOR.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ROOFS TIN! ASPHALTUM!!
New Roofs of Lowest Rates.
Old Roofs Repaired, Cleaned and Painted at reduced rates.
527 MARKET STREET
Opposite the Mansion House.
H. G. FISKE.

TELEPHONE Cab and Carriage COMPANY.
STABLES:
1324 and 1326 Market St.
PRINCIPAL STANDS: S. W. and Kearny
CENTRAL STAND, 5 Kearny St.
The Latest Styles of
CARRIAGES, CABS & COUPES
Always in attendance at the Stables and Stands.
Any overcharge, or neglect of duties, if reported to owner and manager, P. A. DOLAN, at the Stand or Stables, will be attended to, and satisfactorily adjusted.
RATES:
CABS AND COUPES.
Single Fare ..... $.50
Per Hour 1.00
Two Hours 1.50
Three Hours and Return 2.00
Fare 1.50
Funerals 5.00
HACKS AND CARRIAGES.
Per Hour $1.50
Per Hour (Hack and Return) 2.00
Fare 2.00
Funerals, etc. 5.00
Funerals 6.00
Hacks and Carriages, Fine Horses, Elegant Coaches, Carriages, etc.
Hacks,

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

Eternal bondage cannot be for thee!
Yet bable thou for such a lot,
For then wert made for naught but liberty,
And live alone that you for.

As lovely as believed! Then art so fair!
How can thy beauty ever fade?
Thy charms are never more with this compare,
A change to every feature! Thou art
Not can thy tears quench the colorful light
That beams upon thy sacred brow,
But like the stars upon the robe of night
Shine brightest in your darkest hour.

How dearly must we love thee perforce!
No one's or loved a mother more
Because to have thee leave to other course
Then love but thee with all our hearts.
Thy kiss that cover thy sorrows to soar,
Thy smile, thy gaze, thy tears
Thy kiss, thy smile, thy tears for all as dear,
What had each half or fair as thee.

And why so and the burden of thy song,
And forever as thine evening prayer
Are then so weary of thy bondage long?
Thou thou art come nigh to despair,
And feel you not the thrilling pressure near
Of the avenging angel evil?
No longer shall thy sad eyes not bitter tear
Compete to may thy lovely form.

O, rise with rapture to the distant dawn!
At last thy fervent prayer is heard!
Behold the glory of the coming morn,
The herald of liberty!
No longer shall the tyrant's iron hand
Rattle wind its cruel array,
For justice hath his sword of the land
And freedom's law is now supreme!

From hill to hill it rolls let one great one rise
And sound the knell of tyrants!
That will you shall be the crystal glass
Like mighty thunder's distant roar!
Hail, happy one! Hail, child of Liberty!
To thee immortal honor be!
Long live the spirit of Ireland, our country all with thee,
With thee alone for evermore!

The lyric poem from which which the poem was analyzed had adopted the "Minstrel Boy," was composed by Thomas Moore, well-known as a musician, and as one whose talents contributed much to the success of the Land League entertainments. At the conclusion of an encore song in the Rotunda, on Sunday, Mr. Stanley recited Thos. Davis' celebrated poem, entitled "Fontenoy," in splendid style which sound like a trumpet to call him out again.

Mr. M. D. Stanley's rendition of "Kathleen Mavourneen" showed that the singer had a good voice, and was well-adapted to the occasion. The vocal duet, and song "Erin My Country," were well rendered.

THE ORATION.

John P. Irish, of Oakland, was the orator. He said that when we meet to talk of that island on the Irish Sea, we meet to speak of a race whose freedom is all this suffering. I believe that the people of the Irish people in the world, for which England, being failed to govern Ireland, Christianity, and young is the hope of the day that day of justice to Ireland shall be done, the time shall come, and it is hoped in England, and the government to which one of the land have stolen shall be given back to the people of Ireland, to whom it is a sacred property.

Ireland has the most eloquent and eminent divines, the most learned and eloquent bar, the most numerous lawyers, and the most eloquent and learned of the Theatre to listen to the most eloquent and learned of the Theatre to listen to the most with the presence of Mr. O'Connell and many of the living, and of the most citizens of Marysville. The Celebration was given under the auspices of the local Land League, and the funds obtained thereby will be sent to the Land Leaguers in Ireland. The programme opened with "The Harp that once through Tara's Halls" arranged as a chorus, which was splendidly rendered by a number of ladies and gentlemen, viz: Misses Misses L. S. Swank, L. Carew, and Mrs. D. Condon performed an instrumental medley of Irish airs upon the piano in excellent manner. Mr. H. Kerchner, President of the Land League then introduced Mr. J. J. McCrossin, a young lawyer of Marysville, who spoke for over an hour and a half, and delivered a very eloquent address, which was welcomed to the past glories and the present and future of Ireland as the reform under English supremacy. In conclusion the speaker said:

Religion and patriotism are the brilliant and the highest duties which man owes to Heaven or to fellow-man, and on this occasion let us place at the corner of the Irish people the offer of the love doing so let me ask you to cast your vision over the entire world, from pole to pole, and then among the line of the equator, and as you discern the thousands of Catholic churches and churches of the poor and the remnant, the institutions, schools, hospitals, and orphan asylums, every land, therein you behold the Catholic organizations of Ireland, our people, Ireland's hope, and Irish charity. St. Patrick's sons can therefore say with pride:

Ere my fathers, to the sacred Trinity drew
We have sent with the Catholic Church
Around it we hold the Holy Ghost's eternal crown.
The venerable Saint St. Patrick loved the best.

Yes, the Cross and the Shamrock, the Cross and the Shamrock, the Cross and the Shamrock

Poetry.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

Sacred boughs cannot be for thee!
The noble then for such a birth!
For thou wert made for naught but liberty,
And live slave then you be in death.

As lively as bolevel! Then art as fair!
How can thy beauty any fade!
Eve is thy mirror none with thee compare,
Thou art the great Creation's angel bright
Nor my hate quench the celestial light
That beams upon thy sacred brow,
But like the stars upon the robe of night
Thou brightest in your darkest hour.

Here dearly must we love thee perfect
No one e'er loved a mother more
Proud to know their love was other courses
Thou fore but then with all of mankind
Thou hast been the light of heaven in near,
Smooth the joys of mortal life and so dear,
Thy name, O Ireland! thy name
What kind and dearest of life as then.

And I proud and big mother of thy sting
And forced as thine crossing prayer
Ah then so weary of thy heaven all long
Then thou art some night to depart
And you put the thinking of your name
Of the avenging angel swell
Thou hast been the glory and bitter tone
Compare to one thy lovely form.

O, turn with rapture to the distant shore!
Ah, why should thy glory be tossed!
Behold, the joy of thy heart!
Behold, the joy of liberty!
Behold, the joy of liberty!
Behold, the joy of liberty

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1883.

Another American Saint.

The cause of the beatification of the venerable Mary Guyart, first Superiress of the Ursuline Convent, Quebec, is at present attracting the attention of the Sacred Congregation of Rites in Rome, and in the course of a few months we may expect to see the name of this great Religious added to the calendar of Saints in the Church of God. The name of "Mother Mary of the Incarnation" is familiar to every Catholic who has read the history of the Church in Canada, whereof she was one of the shining lights. She was born on the 29th of October, 1599, in the city of Tours, France, and to her Catholic education she attributed all the graces she had received from God. "The good education which I received from my parents," wrote this eminent woman, "laid an excellent foundation in my soul; and I cannot but bless the Father of goodness for His gracious kindness to me in this connection. It is a happy step in the way of virtue, and a precious preparation for a high degree of piety to fall into hands which, perhaps, would the first years of our existence." What a lesson there would be for unbelieving Religious teachers in Catholic parents, upon the necessity of planting religion in the hearts of their children, and by nourishing for them an education that will not only expand their minds beyond the earthly things, but also elevate their souls to God.

Sister Mary of the Incarnation entered the Ursuline Order in 1633, being then a widow, with one son, who subsequently became a priest in the Benedictine Order. When Madam de la Peltrie was seeking for Sisters to open the Canadian mission, in 1639, Sister Mary was the first to volunteer for missionary work in the New World, where she subsequently labored for thirty-three years with a degree of fortitude and zeal which make her memory beloved even long after she had been called to her reward. Her great mission was the education of the Indians, then numerous in Canada, and along with her daily duties in the church and school room, she found time to prepare, for the use of her Sisters and pupils, a sacred history, catechism, dictionary, and a collection of prayers in the Algonquin language; a catechism and dictionary in Iroquois; a catechism in the Huron language, and also several works in French. She excelled in all kinds of needle work and embroidery, as well as in gilding and painting, exercising these talents by contributing the fruit of her labors towards constructing the missionary chapels created by the Jesuits and other missionaries in Canada and off to portions of the unsettled region then Pixley's Paltroonery on the Public School Question.

About a month ago an "open letter" appeared in the Argonaut of this city, inviting Father Wm. Gleeson to defend certain propositions he advanced regarding public schools, in a sermon he had preached on a previous Sunday. The editor of the Argonaut distinctly stated he desired to have the question fully and freely set forth in his columns, and that he would give his adversary full scope and fair play, reserving for himself the right to reply and to controvert the charges brought against the public schools by Father Gleeson.

In a subsequent issue of the Monitor we stated that the point in question would not really lie 'mind by giving Pixley's "open letter" a moment's consideration, and our opinion was based upon the fact that we have always looked upon Pixley as an incorrigible crank and an infamous infidel who had no regard whatever for his promises; one whom opinions were altogether the outcome of his prejudice or his passion, according as the Satanic spirit moved him.

Father Gleeson, however, having more of the mien of human kindness in his breast, and being impressed with the idea that "As long as the lamp holds out to burn The vilest sinner may return," concluded, in his great charity, that he would accept the invitation extended by Pixley to argue the Public School Question. Accordingly, he wrote a masterly communication, setting forth the claims of Catholic citizens on this question, and couched in language forcible and logical. The article appeared in the Argonaut of the 24 inst., but, instead of drawing from Pixley any suitable reply, it was received with a fusillade of falsehood, a re-hash of rancorous epithets, and the usual fundrumole of anti-Catholic bigotry for which the Pixley crank has earned an infamous reputation.

The reception given to Father Gleeson's communication both astonished and disgusted all late-minded people, who then discovered the dastardly character of Pixley, who prated about impartiality, yet practised the despicable tricks of a Jesuit-faced demagogue. They saw that Father Gleeson's fulgurants were unanswerable, and they also noted that his unworthy adversary had no intention of dealing fairly in the matter, but simply desired to revert to his usual trick of playing upon the prejudices of his anti-Catholic readers in order to cover up his defeat and to gloss over his cowardice. Father Gleeson, however, was determined not to be bluffed by any blasts from Pixley's trumpet of bigotry, so he wrote a second article and carried it to the Argonaut office, where he had a conversation with the crank fallen crank, in the course of which he was astonished to learn that "Pixley was an infidel who had no belief in God, the soul, or a future state. Determined, however, not to be bluffed, Father Gleeson left his manuscript for perusal, and, upon returning to the Argonaut office, he was told by the editor of the Argonaut, and as Father Gleeson certified that the scheming scribe had no intention whatever to permit his communication to appear in his columns, he printed it in the Post of the 17th inst.

Thus ended the controversy which Pixley invited Father Gleeson to enter into, and we allude to it now in order to show our readers how little reliance can be placed upon the expressions of such polticoon as Pixley when they pretend to profess an impartiality they are not possessed of. Such literary scrounges have no respect for the honorable power of their adversaries, their whole stock-in-trade consists in virulent vituperation of all that is Catholic and Christian. They see in the present system of education the great power which is to undermine the people, and as the Catholic Church is the only bulwark of religion in this land, their hellish hatred against her is manifested in every idea they manufacture. To argue with such people is merely to cast "pearls before swine," because such cranks care nothing for consistency; they are steeped to the lips in bigotry, and their weapons are blasphemy and benzoline.

It may be interesting to know that ten than five years ago the very same Pixley who now poses so glibly about the importance of "our public school system," was bitter in his denunciation of what he then called a worthless class. The youth educated under the public school discipline he styled "useless boys and ungraceful girls," and he declared that public school education deprived of his mind and the diabolism of his inconsistency. Again the mask is torn from Pixley's hideous face, he is placed in the public pillory by a priest, and the finger of scorn is pointed at him as a politicoon whose career has culminated in "the last ditch" of his disreputable dodge in order to raise a contract in which he could only real-

Vale! Pixley, played out cruel,
Wall went thou named Pharaoh! Prank!
Thy aim is prove the better worse,
Thy only gain is well filled purse;
For once be to thy instincts true,
And—dying—give the devil his due!

The Advocate on Irish Dynamite.

Alluding to the recent explosion of dynamite in London, the Advocate, of this city, charges the Irish people with the deed, and then it cognizes upon the matter by saying "Just how the destruction of property and murder of innocent people will produce conviction and a change of policy it is hard to see." But the Advocate should remember that "the destruction of property" is one of the very weapons which England has used very effectually in Ireland, as instancedin the case of the hundreds of Catholic churches, chapels, abbeys, monasteries, and religious houses of every description which she destroyed when the Reformation Impiety were let loose in Ireland. And as for "murdering innocent people," why, that is an old trick of the blood-thirsty British. Did the Advocate ever hear of Wexford and the three hundred women and children massacred by Cromwell's troops as they gathered around the cross in the market-place of that plundered city? These were all "innocent victims," yet this fact had no weight with England's warriors when they spilled poor, wailing infants on their swords! Does the Advocate know anything of the merciless massacre of Mullet's Island, where all the inhabitants—men, women, and children—were mercilessly murdered these were "innocent victims" of England's vengeance, not because they had done any wrong, but simply because they were Irish Catholics, and England wanted to root them off the face of the earth in order to plant Methodist McCrays in place of Catholic Murphys.

Our Methodist contemporary can have no knowledge of England's antecedents in Ireland, or else it would not have spoken in this vein about dynamite so long as the page of England's perfidy is red with the innocent blood of even unborn babes who have been slaughtered in the most savage manner by the English murderers of their helpless Irish mothers. And what does our Methodist neighbor think of such sins as these? Not a tear has to be shed over "innocent victims" that are Irish by birth, but he reserves all his evangelical sorrow so as to pour it out in regular Puritan fashion upon the English people! And this is called piety by some! Protestant persons whose hearts are as black as Satan's dinner pot, who cause nothing for consistency; they are steeped to the lips in bigotry, and their weapons are blasphemy and benzoline.

It may be interesting to know that less than five years ago the very same Pixley who now poses so glibly about the importance of "our public school system," was bitter in his denunciation of what he then called a worthless class. The youth educated under the public school discipline he styled "useless boys and ungraceful girls," and he declared that public school education deprived of his mind and the diabolism of his inconsistency. Again the mask is torn from Pixley's hideous face, he is placed in the public pillory by a priest, and the finger of scorn is pointed at him as a politicoon whose career has culminated in "the last ditch" of his disreputable dodge in order to raise a contract in which he could only real-

Mr. Egan's Movements.

By a letter from New York we learn that Mr. Egan, ex-treasurer of the Land League, intends to return to Ireland only to visit this coast, as he intends to return to Ireland early in May. He will visit several places in the Eastern States, after which he will come West on private matters connected with his business as grain and flour merchant. For this purpose he will stay for brief periods at Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Minneapolis, where he intends to make about shipments of flour and other products.

Concerning the mock trials at present going on in Dublin, our correspondent represents Mr. Egan as saying: "There is a widespread and growing sympathy in Dublin for the men on trial; but the repressive power of the Government is so great that it finds no public expression. Letters to the Freeman's Journal expressing sympathy and criticising the aims of the Government are not printed, nor reports of speeches and articles bearing ithe subject have all the intimations of indicating 'edited' out of them for fear the Government will prosecute the publishers. It believed that some of the accused men will be able to prove their innocence, but chances of the conviction it will be difficulfor the prisoners to obtain witnesses. Thanks who come forward to swear that he or one of them at any place at the time therefore was convinced that at once be tried by the prosecution as one of the gangs The people have no chance from a jury composed of the jurors of the accused, except from the published testimony submitted by the Crown."

From this vir of the state of affairs our readers can easil perceive that it is impossible for peoplelest of Ireland to form any opinion as to th guilt or innocence of persons on trial f say crimes in Dublin or elsewhere, as fee n a reign of terror in Ireland fully equal to that which existed when "the son of Cromwell" was felt throughout thesaid.

"Poery in England."

This is the title under which a certain Professor Alexander contributes anjartice to the Freeland of this city, in which lotesbood predominates, and from which facts are rigidly excluded with the usual unction of satarica spleen unqualified by any talent for sillog like Mr. Pixley.

The Professor starts out by asserting that in England "Popery has relatively declined," and then he goes into statistics, which he commences with the year 1850 to make even the very figures lie so as to accommodate themselves to his own crooked assertion.

The Professor who—in the face of the evidence already published regarding the growth of the Catholic Church inEngland—still continues to cheek about "the declining of Popery" in that country, must be either a conceited Cockney or a California crank, as any sane man can see from the figures printed by one of the most conservative papers in England, the London Tablet, that Catholicity is gaining in that country. This is proved not only by the numerous conversions made almost every day, but it is also demonstrated by the fact that forty years ago there were only 320 Catholic churches in England and Scotland, against 1,461 at present. Who built the 941 additional churches, and why build them to accommodate a religion that "has relatively declined"? Hahaw, Professor, you must indeed be an optist if you think you can deceive anybody, save yourself, by your assertion.

In 1840 there were but 31 Catholic schools and colleges in England and Scotland, now there are 514! In 1840 there were but 674 priests in England and Scotland, now there are 2,262! In 1840 there were but 105 nuns there half a million Catholics in Protestantism and a half! Does this look like decay? Do these verified statistics, published in the heart of London, look as if "Popery has relatively declined?" It is safe to conclude, therefore, that the perplexed state of mentalshine the Professor was thrown when he read the Monitor, and that those statistics were given, has continued ever since, until, at length, it is developing into lunacy! Something similar happened, and we shall not be surprised if the insane asylum does not catch him even before Catholicity dies out in England.

But aside from the proofs of the growth of the Church in England, there is another feature to which we wish to direct the attention of the perplexed Professor, and that is the very interesting one that the Catholic Church is pursuing in permitting her Religious Orders to build abbeys, monasteries, convents, and schools, in a land where "Popery has relatively declined," and which, according to the poor, perplexed Professor's predictions, must go to "the Antichrist Scarlet Woman" by and by.

Forty years ago there were not over fifty institutions under the charge of Religious in all England and Scotland. Now these have established into the world, and are representing all the leading Orders in the Church! Does this look like decay? Does it not rather confound the Professor when he reflects what a noodle he has made of himself when he set out to tell about "Popery in England," a subject about which he knows just as much as a new born babe knows Sunday?

Here is an extract from a recent English paper, which we donate as an Easter egg to the poor, perplexed Professor, who is probably requested to act as instructor and see how many chickens of comfort he can hatch out of it for his future imbecile efforts in the way of predicting the downfall of Popery in England. Nefy, Professor, read these facts and ponder:

"A curious fact in the ecclesiastical history of Europe is, that while every Catholic country is torn by repulsing the Religious and persecuting the Church, Great Britain seems to be covered with monasteries and convents. At the time of the Reformation there were, in the six twenth century, there were in England some 800 religious houses, and the Church was left to buy with its 100 monks, to the humble house with two or three Religious. Of these houses, the longest to the various branches of the great Benedictine Order.

"At present there are some 500 Religious houses in England, and, as we might have anticipated, the Sons of St. Benedict are not waiting. There are 14 houses of the Benedictines, 5 Cistercian, 3 Premonstratensian, 3 Trappists, 2 Carmelites, 2 Oratorians, an Augustinian, 2 Dominicans, 1 Franciscan, 1 Capuchin, 1 Jesuit, 1 Redemptorist, 1 Passionist, 1 Sacred Heart, 1 Marist, 1 Salesian, 1 Christian Brothers, 1 Marist Brothers, 1 Brothers of Charity, which translated with Irish Christian Brothers, 1 Brothers of the Sacred Heart, 1 Brothers of Mercy, 1 Brothers of the Cross, 1 Brothers of Christian Doctrine, 1 Brothers of Mercy, 1 Brothers of Charity

MISCELLANEOUS.

TIN! ASPHALTUM!!

ROOFS Old Roofs Repaired. Old Roofs Repaired. and GUARANTEED when so contracted by

NO 1 HARRY STREET. Bet. Fourth and Fifth. Office of the Mutual Roofs. H. G. FISKE.

TELEPHONE Cab and Carriage COMPANY.

STANDS:
1324 and 1326 Market St.
PRINCIPAL STANDS: S. W. cor. Kearny & Market sts. CENTRAL STAND, 6 Kearny St.

The Latest Styles of
CARRIAGES, CABS & COUPES
Always in attendance at the Stables and Stands.

Any overcharge, or neglect or delay, if reported to owner and driver, will be punished, or the driver or finder, will be rewarded, by and order of the Company.

RATES OF FARE.
CABS AND COUPES.

Single Fare	$ 1.00
One Hour	1.50
Large, 3 pas., each ext.	1.00
Carry Round and Return	2.00
Take	2.00
Transfers	1.00
Postcard	4.00

Weight of passenger allowed, 2 hundred from the Depot, 1 hundred in the carriage, in the coupe.

P. A. DOLAN, Telephone Nos. 1324 and 1326.

MURPHY, GRANT & CO.,
IMPORTERS OF DRY GOODS,
And Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast
... OF THE ...
Veuve Xavier Jouvin Kid Gloves
Stock and Resources Ess., San Francisco. cal12

P. GALLAGHER & SON,
— GRAND H. —
POULTRY AND GAME.
STALLS 1 and 2,
QUEEN CITY MARKET,
1158 Market Street,
Opposite Sixth.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

E. A. & G. E. LAWRENCE,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Nos. 526 California St., San Francisco.
Will practice in the Supreme and Circuit Courts of California, and the Circuit Court of the United States. Will give prompt attention to business in the Probate Court, Mining Claims, Patents, Land Claims, Collections, and Real Estate Business generally. E. A. Lawrence has practiced in the Probate Court since 1862. G. E. Lawrence has practiced in New York City 7 years.

M. C. COONEY,
Attorney and Counselor at Law.
Rooms 1 and 2,
207 Montgomery street, cor. Sacramento
San Francisco.

JOHN H. BURNETT,
Attorney and Counselor at Law.
Rooms 1 and 2,
207 Montgomery street, cor. Sacramento
San Francisco.

M. C. HASSETT,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
ROOM REMOVED FROM OFFICE TO FHELAN'S BUILDING,
Rooms 210 and 212. Take Elevator.

LAW OFFICE
— OF —
H. H. HYPPERT,
230 Montgomery Street,
Rooms 36 and 37. San Francisco.

WM. W. BISHOP,
Attorney at Law,
234 FIFTH STREET,
ROOMS 1, 2, AND 3. Dividend Building.

Piano, Singing, Guitar, Violin, Accordeon and Banjo THOROUGH ART INSTRUCTION FURNISHED BY MRS. H. BENNETT,
146 Fourth St., near Howard.

A. H. LUMMIS,
Law Office,
N. W. Cor. Sacramento and Montgomery Streets.

CHARLES F. HANLON HAS REMOVED HIS LAW OFFICE TO FHELAN'S BUILDING,
Market Street.
Rooms 16 and 64, second story. San Francisco.

BANKING HOUSES.

Jas. A. Tapscott, San Francisco. | Sumner Kingsbury, Portland, Oregon.
TAPSCOTT, KELLY & CO.
SAN FRANCISCO.
EUGENE, KELLY & CO.
NEW YORK.
BANKERS.
EXCHANGES ON
NEW YORK, LONDON, AND BANK IRELAND (Dublin).
Payable at all the Branches
Also in Every Country Town in Ireland.

THE CATHOLIC
Mutual Beneficial
ASSOCIATION
... OF THE ...
Archdiocese of San Francisco.

President - - Rev. J. B. McNally.

THIS ASSOCIATION HAS NOW BEEN IN EXISTENCE for three years and has already enrolled upon its books full

TWELVE HUNDRED MEMBERS.

It has $16,000 in its treasury, and as an institution has been in working that during the past year no assessments have been levied upon its members in order to pay the policies held by five members who died during that period. This proves it to be the

Safest and Cheapest Association

in which Catholics can invest a small amount in order to secure to their families or relatives an adequate support after their decease.

Persons between the ages of 18 and 50 years, and in the exercise of the Catholic Archbishop Alemany, O. P., and been recommended to the consideration of Catholics by nearly every clergyman in this Archdiocese as well as in many other sections of the coast.

The office of the Association is located at No. 116 Montgomery street, near the Occidental Hotel, where the Secretary will be in attendance every evening (except Sundays) from 7 to 10 o'clock, and where all information relative to the Association may be obtained. Written communications should be addressed to

EDWARD GILSON, Secretary,
8112 Jones Street.

PHILADELPHIA
BREWERY.
JOHN WIELAND - - - PROPRIETOR
SECOND STREET, NEAR FOLSOM,
SAN FRANCISCO.
Amount of Beer sold in 1861, 39,162 barrels. mr13

JUST ARRIVED.
RANGES
For other Coal or Wood.
THE BRISTOL, BERWICK, CLIFTON AND QUINCY.
The only first class Range in the market.
The Celebrated Rathbone Range AND COAL OIL STOVES.
MANUFACTURE OF STEAMER AND ARTESIAN WELL PIPE. Metal Roofing, Plastering and Gas-fitting. Particular attention paid to repairing Ranges which not equal before.
J. M. E. RYAN,
130 Third Street.
Bet. Mission and Howard ..... San Francisco

DR. PHELAN
(Graduate of the University of New York.)
Formerly Physician to Sacramento and St. Mary's Hospitals.
MEMBER OF CALIFORNIA PIONEERS.
Office and Residence 202 Third Street
Cor. Bryant.

INSURANCE.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY
OF CALIFORNIA.
FIRE AND MARINE.
Capital fully paid $200,000 0
Assets January 1, 1862 ..... 377,487 8
Losses paid since organization 169,000
406 California Street, S. F.
CHAS. A. LATOY Secretary. JOHN H. WISE, President.

HAS REMOVED
THE
HOME MUTUAL
INSURANCE COMPANY
Now occupies premises
NO. 216 SANSOME STREET.
19TH ANNUAL EXHIBIT.
JANUARY 1st, 1862.

Premium notes outstanding	$4,125,899 19
Losses unpaid	1,325,000 00
Losses in process of adjustment	111,000 00
Losses in Policy Holders	179,000 00
Net Cash Assets	1,000,000 00
Net Surplus over everything	397,000 00

President ..... J. F. HOUGHTON
Secretary ..... A. H. RUNDLETT
Assistant Secretary ..... A. J. LEGGE
Cashier ..... W. H. LAGLE
FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE

UNION
INSURANCE COMPANY
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,
ESTABLISHED IN 1861.
Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.
CA. H CAPITAL ..... $750,000 GOLD.
PAID BATES, PRIVATE GOVERNMENT OF LLOYDS, GOLD SURETIES.
DIRECTORS:
SAN FRANCISCO.
R. Bennett, William Lansing,
S. S. Fogg, John Parrott,
Moses Taylor, John Middle,
W. C. Ralston, J. Boone,
M. D. Sperry, M. D. Sherman,
J. Hopkins, Joseph Brown,
Donald Kaye, Donald Macdonald,
Adam Grant, J. C. Kelly,
Andrew Leslie, Jas. Lick,
Charles Lefler, J. H. Dwinelle,
Joseph Seligman, Jas. Phelan,
Herbert Dow, Wm. Sharon,
Jas. Anderson, Wm. Neilson,
A. Wolf, John Conly,
Jas. Allen, Jas. Mills.
ALEX. FORBES, President.
GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, Vice-President.
H. A. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BALLY, Secretary.
GEO. T. BOREE, Surveyor.

EDUCATIONAL.

COLLEGE
OF NOTRE DAME
MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN 1856, is chartered by the State Legislature, and endowed with all the rights and privileges of similar Collegiate Institutions in the United States.
Reference required. For terms and particulars address,
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
Marysville, Cal.
$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address E. ROBERTS & CO., Portland, Me.
BOOKS BOUGHT AND SOLD BY A. BOURGOIN 536 Montgomery street.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.
... OF THE ...
SANTA CLARA . . . . CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a moral and intellectual education. One feature in particular that should recommend this Academy, is the influence exercised to form the pupils to views and habits of economy and to render them useful members in society in after years.
The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.
Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, payable in advance.
Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.
Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding, $50
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 7th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE
SANTA CLARA, ... CALIFORNIA
THE THIRTY-SECOND ANNUAL SESSION of this Institution will commence on Monday, August 5th, 1861. This College was founded in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated with the privileges of a University. It consists of large buildings, fully extensive, thoroughly appointed, covered gravel walks, 2 miles from the Pacific Railroad, with collections of Mineralogy and Geology. It has also, practical schools of Assaying, Surveying, Telegraphy, Photography and Commercial Business. For the latter a new building 100x40 has just been finished, that leaves nothing to be desired.
Diplomas are given in two departments—the Classical and Scientific—and Certificates in the Commercial Course.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-annually in advance)
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once..$ 15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, in all branches
Washing and Mending of Linen, School Stationery, medical attendance and Medicine, Bible, etc., per session of ten months 250 00
For further particulars apply to the President of Santa Clara College, or to Rt. Ignatius Loiera, 214 Hayes street, San Francisco.
REV. J. PINASCO, S. J.,
1s3 President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Fifth and Jackson Sts., OAKLAND, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School for boys up to the age of fifteen years. Its object is to combine the comforts and endearments of home with the advantages of a superior Christian education.
Parents and guardians, desirous of sending their sons or wards to Boarding School, need only visit this Academy to be convinced that the Institution properly fills a place hitherto unfilled in the collegiate system of California.
Students are received at any time during the year, but not for a shorter period than one term of five months.
(Payment in U. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance)
Board and Tuition (French and Spanish included), $250 00
Washing 40 00
Bed and bedding, without course (if supplied by the institution) 20 00
Piano, Harp, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For further particulars apply to BROTHER SUPERIOR.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY,
SACRAMENTO, ... CALIFORNIA.
Boarding and Day School for Girls.
Conducted by Sisters of Mercy.
ESTABLISHED 1857. INCORPORATED 1861.
Pupils admitted any time during the year, on terms moderate. For particulars apply to the PRINCIPAL.

EDUCATIONAL.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE
Sisters of St. Dominic,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION, BEAUTIFULLY LOCATED on Tyler Street, near Hyde, stands every facility for the acquisition of a refined and solid education. The Academic year consists of 10 terms of 3 months each.
TERMS:
Board, Washing and Mending Linen (entire) $6 50
Entrance Fee 10 00
EXTRAS:
Languages, (each) $10
Piano 15 0
Vocal Lessons (a Class) 1 0
Use of Piano 1 0
Drawing and Painting in Water Colors 1 50
Oil Painting, per lesson 1 50
Embroidery 1 50
No Extra Charge for Needlework.
DAY PUPILS.
Preparatory Class, per term $10 0
Grammar 15 0
Higher 20 00
Use of Piano for Practice 1 00
Each young lady is required to be furnished with four pocket handkerchiefs, two towels, two napkins, one silver fork, one silver spoon, two sheets, two pillow cases, one pillow, two blankets, one mattress, two pillows, four bonds for table napkins, one knife, one plate, tub, spoon and napkin ring.
Regularity of dress enforced by rule.
Strict attention to morals and deportment will be required but for cause of conformity all are expected to be present at the religious exercises of the institution.
All correspondence of the young lady will be subject to the inspection of the Superiors.
For further particulars address
SISTER SUPERIOR

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME.
THIS INSTITUTION, FOUNDED IN 1851, and incorporated by the Legislature of the State of California, and empowered to confer Collegiate Honors, is situated in the most healthy portion of the Mission Church.
The course of Instruction embraces all the branches necessary to the acquisition of a solid and refined education.
TERMS:
Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per session $250 00
EXTRA CHARGES
Piano, without instrument or attention $40 00
Vocal Music, Class Lessons 20 00
Vocal Music, Private Lessons 40 00
Drawing, per session 20 00
Painting in Water Colors, per session 30 00
Painting in Oil, per Lesson 1 00
Washing of the College 30 00
Graduating Fee 10 00
Physician's Fees in case of sickness.
Bills are presented and are payable at the beginning of each half session, in advance.
SELECT DAY SCHOOL.
Terms per month (paid in advance.)
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes..$6 00
Tuition in the 3rd and 4th College Classes.. 8 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes 10 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes.. 8 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Intermediate Classes 7 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes.. 5 00
Music (Vocal and Instrumental), Drawing, Painting and Private Boarding Schools, but one charge, as in the Boarding Schools are given lessons in French and Spanish are given gratuitously; as also in Plain and Fancy Needlework.
N. B.—A private conveyance is furnished, at moderate rates, for the convenience of pupils residing in distant parts of the city.
1s3

School of the Holy Cross.
A Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies, CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF CHARITY
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE,
VISITATION VALLEY, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
CHARTERED IN 1858, AND CONDUCTED by the priests of the Congregation of the Mission, offers the following terms, viz:
For further particulars apply to
REV. A. PRESIDENT.

Convent of the Immaculate Heart of Mary,
SAN LUIS OBISPO . . . CALIFORNIA
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES, conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.
This house is the Novitiate of the order.
SISTER RAYMONDA BERENDES, Princess.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
SAN JOSE, ... CALIFORNIA
THIS INSTITUTION, OFFERING PE CULIAR advantages to young ladies wishing to receive a solid and fashionable education, was founded in 1851. In 1855, it was incorporated by the State Legislature, and empowered to confer Collegiate Honors; and the original Charter as to order all the rights and privileges of Collegiate Institutions.
It occupies large premises, with extensive playgrounds, and possesses every thing to make pleasant, healthy and agreeable. The course of education is thorough, in all the Departments. Every facility will be afforded to students who may wish to devote their whole attention to the study of the language.
The next session will commence on the first Monday in August, and continue about the first week in June.
Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
(Payable quarterly in advance.)
Boarding, Tuition in English, French, and Ancient Spanish, German, and Latin, washing and use of bedding $72
Drawing (one quarter) 5 00
Use of Piano for Practice 2 00
Painting in Oil, per lesson 1 00
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
For further particulars address,
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME, San Jose

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES,
BENICIA, ... CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the healthy and accessible town of Benicia.
The scholastic year comprises ten months, opens on the 1st of August, and ends about the 1st of June.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly).
Board and Tuition $125
Entrance Fee 10
Washing 40
Music (Vocal and Instrumental), Drawing, Painting and Needlework are extra charges.
The Expenses on packages sent to pupils must be prepaid.
Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the SISTER SUPERIOR.
6ly1

SACRAMENTO INSTITUTE.
Conducted by the Christian Brothers.
A Select Boarding and Day School,
K AND TWELFTH STS., SACRAMENTO
EVERY FACILITY IS HERE AFFORDED TO ACQUIRE a sound Education. The Commercial Department receives special attention. Students received at any time during the year.
BROTHER DIRECTOR

CINCHONA RUBRA—Red Peruvian Bark—and California Grape Brandy. A most Delightful Tonic, and Effective Remedy for Dipsomania (the alcohol habit,) all forms of Malarial Diseases, Dyspepsia and Insomnia (sleeplessness.)

No Greater Success has been recorded, and nothing ever introduced giving such universal satisfaction. Try it Once, and be convinced. For sale by Druggists and Wine Merchants.
WILMERDING & CO., San Francisco, Cal.
Agents for the Pacific Coast.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Marble Works.
Monuments & Head-stones — IN — Marble and Scotch Granite.
MANTLES & GRATES.
Marble and Encaustic Tiles.
Designs sent on application for them
W. H. McCORMICK,
257 MARKET ST. - bet. Fourth and Fifth

MRS. JEROME DEASY,
CENTRAL
Floral Depot,
736 Market St.
San Francisco Cal.
Bouquets, Crosses and Cut Flowers constantly on hand.
Funeral and Wedding Decorations Made to Order

On and after Sunday, October 22, 1861, Boats and Trains will leave San Francisco as follows:
10.30 A. M. Daily (Sundays excepted), via San Rafael, from Market street wharf, for Petaluma, Healdsburg, Ukiah, and way stations.
2.30 P. M. Daily (Sundays excepted), via Junction from Washington street wharf, and 4.45 P. M. Daily (Sundays excepted), via Junction from Market street wharf, for Petaluma, Cloverdale, and way stations.
10.15 A. M. (Sundays only), from the San Rafael ferry, for San Rafael, Fairfax, Olema, Point Reyes, Tomales, Cloverdale and way points. Round trip tickets to Mount Tam or Bolinas, $1; to Fairfax, $1 50; to Olema, $2; to Point Reyes, $3; to Tomales, $3; to Cloverdale, $5.
Returning, will arrive in San Francisco from Petaluma at 9 A. M. (except Monday) and 3 P. M. daily, and from San Rafael (except Monday morning) at 8 A. M.
PETER J. MCGLYNN,
Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt.
ARTHUR HUGHES,
Gen. Ticket Agent.

SONOMA VALLEY RAILROAD.
On and after Sunday, January 14, 1862, Boats and Trains will leave San Francisco as follows:
2.30 P. M. Daily (Sundays excepted) from Washington street wharf, for Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Glen Ellen and Way Stations. Fare to Petaluma, $1 50; Santa Rosa, $2; Glen Ellen, $2 50.
PETER J. MCGLYNN,
General Manager. Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.
JERRY LOWNEY & SON
HAVE REMOVED THEIR CARRIAGE FACTORY from corner of Howard and Fifth streets to 626 Ninth street. All kinds of carriages and wagons on manual made to order, and repairing promptly attended to.

THE GREAT CONVENIENCE of the NEW YORK CATHOLIC AGENCY is due to its setting up and keeping on hand a large assortment of every thing appertaining to a complete Church, so that you may HAVE IT PROMPTLY WANTED, and never pay more (generally less) than when ordering more time. It also has facilities for transmitting any private or public business connected with the Catholic Church with attention. The advertisers if offers in acting as your agent are more valuable than any. Address
THOMAS D. EGAN,
New York Catholic Agency, 33 Barclay street, near St. Park Place.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

BOOTS AND SHOES.
JOHN SULLIVAN,
NORTHEAST COR. OF RATTERY AND JACKSON sts., offers in sales to order the best French and English Calfskins, at California Leather Store $6 50
Peach Calf Ordered Boots 6 50
California $5 5
Boys' and Children's Boots and Shoes made to order. Persons in the country ordering Boots and Shoes to the amount of Twelve Dollars or more, will be allowed expenses of their journey, so as to make the extra charge light. I sell Boots and Shoes of MY OWN MANUFACTURE ONLY. Boots and Shoes sent C. O. D. Positively one price.

COLUMBIA BICYCLE.
The Bicycle has proved itself to be a very useful and pleasant mode of locomotion. It is adapted to all ages. It is healthy and invigorating. It is simple and durable. It is not liable to get out of order. It is not liable to accidents. It is not liable to be stolen. It is not liable to be injured by being left out in the rain. It is not liable to be injured by being left out in the rain. It is not liable to be injured by being left out in the rain

The Spanish Inquisition.

A TEMPORAL POWER AND NOT A RELIGIOUS WEAPON.

THE CHURCH NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR ITS CRUELTIES.

How Protestants Perished Through Protestant Persecution.

A Valuable Historical Construction by Archbishop Gibbons.

There is no historical question more misunderstood by the general public than the Spanish Inquisition. The example of the Church here has been so completely identified with the Church connecting the Church with the question practiced by the civil arm of Spain, that the general impression prevails with many Protestant falsehoods pass for sterling truth. We are glad, therefore, to hand our readers of Archbishop Gibbons' Catechism of Religion, a lucid exposition of the facts of the Spanish Inquisition, and a vindication of the Church from the charge of being the author of the cruelties

The Spanish Inquisition.

A TEMPORAL POWER AND NOT A RELIGIOUS WEAPON.

THE CHURCH NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR ITS CRUELTIES.

New Protestants Perished Through Protestant Persecution.

A Valuable Historical Contribution by Archbishop Ireland.

There is no historical question more misunderstood by the general public than the Spanish Inquisition. The enemies of the Church have been so constant in circulating calumnies connecting the Church with the cruelties inflicted by the civil arm of Spanish power during the Inquisition, and have been so persistent in the repetition of these falsehoods, that the mass of the people have at last come to believe them to be true. We are glad, therefore, to find so distinguished a divine as Archbishop Gibbons of Baltimore, ready to take up the cudgels in the defense of the Church in refutation of all the slanders which have been circulated concerning this question, and we feel great pleasure in laying before our readers the following able contribution to church history from the pen of one of the most zealous Pro-lates in America.

Did not the Spanish Inquisition exercise enormous cruelties against heretics and Jews? I am not the apologist of the Spanish Inquisition, and I have no desire to palliate or extenuate its enormities. Some of its victims may at times have fallen. From my heart I abhor and detestmany cruelties of violence, and instances of which the Spanish Inquisition may have been guilty. And in raising my voice against cruelties for conscience's sake, I am expressing not only my own sentiments, but those of my Catholic priest and bishop, who will be my judges.

Catholic ancestors, for the last three hundred years, have suffered so much for the Inquisition, that they would not be arrayed against us were we to be advocates and defenders of religious persecution. We would be a disgrace were we to trample on the principles of which they had taken their blood.

In I desire to call attention of the reader to a fact not sufficiently dwelt from the beginning in her footprints. Wherever the Cross go part of the blood of martyrs, because many crimes were committed, and a tether accountable for the sins of his shoulders and children.

We should also bear in mind that the Inquisitors were not the only people who lapsed from the faith of their ancestors. If we calmly study the history of the times, we shall see that the Church will comfortably relate, and we shall have to answer for her neighbors a portion of our indignation. No impartial student of history will deny that the leaders of the Reformed religion were guilty of great cruelty, amounting, unrelieved violence toward those who differed from them in faith. In saying this not by way of recrimination, nor I believe together the principles of the Church Government; for one offence is not justified by another. My object is merely to show that those who live in glass houses should not throw stones," and that it is not proper in such prosecutions and judgments, to lay alone on her shoulders the odium of religious persecution.

It should not be forgotten that at the stake for heresy; and the archdiocese of Geneva, erected but a few years, had bled in his writings, and established in Geneva the Inquisition for the punishment of heretics. Protestant.

JOHN CALVIN BURNED MICHAEL SERVETUS

It should also be remembered that Luther advocated the Inquisition against Jews! I am not the apologist of the Spanish Inquisition, and I have no desire to palliate or extenuate its enormities. Some of its victims may at times have fallen. From my heart I abhor and detestmany cruelties of violence, and instances of which the Spanish Inquisition may have been guilty. And in raising my voice against cruelties for conscience's sake, I am expressing not only my own sentiments, but those of my Catholic priest and bishop, who will be my judges.

Catholic ancestors, for the last three hundred years, have suffered so much for the Inquisition, that they would not be arrayed against us were we to be advocates and defenders of religious persecution. We would be a disgrace were we to trample on the principles of which they had taken their blood.

I desire to call attention of the reader to a fact not sufficiently dwelt from the beginning in her footprints. Wherever the Cross go part of the blood of martyrs, because many crimes were committed, and a tether accountable for the sins of his shoulders and children.

We should also bear in mind that the Inquisitors were not the only people who lapsed from the faith of their ancestors. If we calmly study the history of the times, we shall see that the Church will comfortably relate, and we shall have to answer for her neighbors a portion of our indignation. No impartial student of history will deny that the leaders of the Reformed religion were guilty of great cruelty, amounting, unrelieved violence toward those who differed from them in faith. In saying this not by way of recrimination, nor I believe together the principles of the Church Government; for one offence is not justified by another. My object is merely to show that those who live in glass houses should not throw stones," and that it is not proper in such prosecutions and judgments, to lay alone on her shoulders the odium of religious persecution.

It should not be forgotten that at the stake for heresy; and the archdiocese of Geneva, erected but a few years, had bled in his writings, and established in Geneva the Inquisition for the punishment of heretics. Protestant.

JOHN CALVIN BURNED MICHAEL SERVETUS

It should also be remembered that Luther advocated the Inquisition against Jews!

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

MAID OF ERIN.

Maid of Erin, Maid of God,
The land horne has iron rent,
Thou hast stood where nations died,
Some spoke though unedified;
Faithful at your post you stood,
Before the Lord to chaste your head.
Lead that hath Calvaries in every glen,
Thou wrong might be made right by men.

Maid of Erin, Maid of God,
Blood rivlets from thine Emerald sod,
Blood trickles down thy lovely cheek,
And nations for off see and speak.
Patrick Maid, shout with thy soul
When teacher's pray the "Judas" role,
When assassin strike thee in the side,
And crowned with thorns thou art dedad.

Proud Maid of Erin, God is just,
Thou should be raised from out the dust,
Thou shall be crowned by all of earth,
Immortal Maid of Gentle birth,
Thou shall be set in the light place,
Thou Gentle of an angelic face,
Who hobbs that man shall not endure,
That the Lord hath risen from the grave,
That man might know that they are free
To wonder the air of liberty.

Maid of Erin, Maid of God,
Tears are down beneath thy rod;
But O, my Darling, count thou on
Our hearts are burning for thee!
We love with love unto the death,
And and I will, God willing, breath
Our love, O Love, spoken more strong,
Thy honor, our country, to our song.

P. I.

San Francisco, April, 1882.

THE COY OF THE IRISH MOTHER.

Have pity on me, ye Irish Secretary, was long holding out standing in the midst of a crowd of people, and I was in the front row, pitied. His mother, who followed the Queen personally in her drive, was the orphanage of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and I was in the company of the poor for some reason. One day a woman came to the office and begged the society to take her away from the poor house. Given to understand that she was a Protestant and an Irishman, "Poland," replied the Protestant, "I am a Protestant, but I am an Irishman." Poland, "I am a Protestant, but I am an Irishman." Poland, "I am a Protestant, but I am an Irishman." Poland

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 18, 1883.

Pixley's False Statements Regarding the Syllabus.

It is an old and often resorted to custom among the enemies of the Church to interpolate into public documents of an ecclesiastical or historical nature such phrases as may suit their side of the question, and thus "make Rome howl" by means of a species of deception at once disreputable to themselves and degrading to Christianity as interpreted by non-Catholic and anti-Catholic writers. We have said this is an old habit, and in proof thereof we need only point to the Protestant version of the Bible, that undoubtedly edition of which were grossly corrupted in order to enable the manufacturers of the man-made religion to disprove Catholic doctrine. Such tests as the familiar one, which reads in the Sacred Scriptures, "Thou art Peter, and upon this Rock I will build My Church," was corrupted in the Protestant Bible, printed during the sixteenth century, so as to read: "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock will I build my congregation." This was done purposely to shock down the idea that there could be only one true Church, and in order to pave the way for the nameless "congregations" of heretics by whom the world has been harassed and bamboozled ever since. In like manner, the word "priests," in the true Bible, was printed "elders" in the bogus Bible, so as to give official recognition and ecclesiastical standing to all the swarming, ranting preachers who then "got religion," and who have been getting in new sins in the shape of fat salaries and religious rackets, in which their constant gospel cry seems to be:

"Dimes and dollars! Dollars and dimes!
An empty belly's the root of crime!"

The anathema of God Himself is proclaimed against any man who shall add to or take from the Sacred Word which He has left us, yet the false guides of Protestantism—under pretense of being the emissaries of God to reform the Church He established—had the diabolical audacity to corrupt the text of the Word of God in hundreds of instances, thereby making falsehood the foundation and blasphemy the try-stone of the arch of Protestantism.

The example set by the men called in mockery "Reformers," has been extensively emulated by men in every line of religious and profane literature ever since. The works of D'Alembert, Voltaire, Freeda, Draper, Gladstone, and the whole group of men whose writings glisten with errors regarding the Church, in doctrine and discipline, are sufficient evidence that falsehood and foul corruption of sacred and profane writings are not among "the lost arts" of Protestant authors.

In view of these facts, therefore, it is only natural to suppose that Protestants, even like Pixley should ape the crimes of their predecessors and corrupt an important Papal document so as to distort its meaning, and thus place the Catholic Church in a false light before their readers. No respectable opponent would be guilty of such a disreputable fraud, but corrupters need scarcely be told that Pixley is neither reasonable nor respectable, as he belongs to the category of unscrupulous men photographed by the Protestant Bishop Lichfield, in a reference he recently made to the "Reformers," whose conception of the Word of God we have alluded to. Of them non "Bishop Lichfield says:

"I greatly assert it to be absolutely impossible for any just, educated and religious man, who has read the history of the time by the ordinary sources, to hold two opinions about the Reformers. They were such utterly unscrupulous villains for the most part, that the only parallel I know of is the way in which half-educated people speak of them among us is the appearance of Jackson Pikes among the Saints in the Abyssinian Exhibition."

The reader cannot rise above its source, nor can an evil tree bring forth good fruit; hence those who follow the Reformers in their disreputable tricks of corrupting truth may well be and does be "utterly unprincipled villains," when falsehood and deception are the natural outcome of their inborn mental depravity.

In his remarks "of big blast" against the Catholic Church Pixley poses as a veritable "Reformer" when he essays to copy from what he calls "The Syllabus" certain propositions condemned by the Church. In the first place, he never copied them from "The Encyclical," because the phrase itself is absent, there having been thousands of Encyclicals issued by the Popes, but in his ignorance of Catholic custom he actually does not know the meaning of an "Encyclical," as distinguished from a Syllabus, which means a Catalogue of Propositions condemned by the See of Rome. Hence Pixley's propositions were not taken from "The Encyclical," but are supposed to be embodied in the Syllabus promulgated by Pope Pius IX., of happy memory, on December 8th, 1864.

Having set the California crank right upon this point, let us see how much corruption has crept into Pixley's rendering of this important document, and in doing so our readers will be astonished to find how very consistent our local crank is with those "utterly unprincipled villains" who corrupted the Word of God and Protestantism first posed before the people as a factor of Reform in the religious world.

Pretending to quote from an official Papal document in order to prove his assertion that "the Roman Church claims for itself and power the exercise of civil authority in America," Pixley then prints the proposition in question:

"XIX.—The Roman Church has the right to exercise its authority without having any limit set to it by the civil power."

In quoting from authentic documents, honest and respectable advocates invariably give the language of the document itself, and therefore to the intelligence of their readers the task of deducing therefrom their own conclusions. But this would not suit this California crank, as he corrupts the document before him, distorts its meaning, and then has the mendacity to tell his readers that he quotes from "The Encyclical." Very different, indeed, from Pixley's language and inference is the condemned proposition in the Syllabus of Pope Pius IX., where, under the fifth section, we read these lines:

"The Church is not a true and perfect society, entirely free; nor is she endowed with proper and perpetual rights of her own, conferred now her by her Divine Founder; but it appertains to the civil power to define what are the rights of the Church, and the limits within which she has at her disposal to exercise those rights."

This proposition was condemned by an Allocution December 9th, 1854, and any intelligent and impartial reader will at once adjudge the justice of the condemnation. It is evident that the Church has certain God-given rights which no civil law can abrogate; that she is supreme in her own domain, and that her heavenly-rested authority is here by divine right.

It is an admitted truth by all Christians that God is greater than Cæsar, that the supernatural is above the natural order, and, as a consequence, it follows very clearly that the civil power cannot abrogate to itself an excess of authority which would set Cæsar above God or relegate religion to the circumscribed limits authorized by civil jurisdiction. The Puritans tried that years ago when they formulated the Blue Laws, but even that crazy democracy have learned to laugh at the folly of their forefathers, and have wisely contented themselves to keep the civil power within its own defined province, while permitting liberty of conscience the largest latitude in its own legitimate domain.

No man can gainsay these facts when we reflect that even theocracies and inquisitorial system of religious error known as Mormonism is tolerated in this land, that it is free in its own domain of demoralization, even, and that the civil authority has not the power to prescribe its limits regarding the plurality of wives, which is the corner-stone of its iniquitous doctrines. If this be true of modern Mormonism, how much more forcibly does not the same argument affect the position of the One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church of God, which was from the beginning, and is to-day, the only authorized teaching Christian authority throughout the whole world! Then we knock the underpinning from Pixley's first prop in the edifice of error which he has erected, and pass on to the next in order.

"XXIV.—The Roman Church has a right to acquire temporal property, and to use the temporal power for that purpose."

The correct reading of this sentence in the Syllabus is:

"The Church has not the power of using force, nor has she any temporal power, direct or indirect."

Every American who is not blinded by hatred, and who is not a willful perverter of truth, and who is not a willful perverter of truth, and who is not a willful perverter of truth

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY—OUR MOTHER.

DEAR ARTHUR.

Jesus Christ ascends mercy through His merits and Mother, to distribute her mercy; for as is the Mother of mercy, filled with mercy, so is Jesus, she is constantly employed in pouring out the treasures of her mercy in favor of the work of her prayers and merits on the infidels, in order that they may receive grace and salvation, in order that they may be adopted children of God, and be participants in the eternal blessings, and be coheirs of the kingdom of Heaven. We find in the Holy Scriptures a most fruitful and telling illustration of the love of Jesus for Mary, and of Mary's unbounded influence with her divine Son. We cannot see Jesus or Mary in his presence, to ask for with importunate. What is thy petition that it may be granted thee? and what wilt thou have Jesus? Although then ask the half of my kingdom, there shall have it. Then the answered: If I have found favor in thy sight, O King, and if it please thee, give me my life for my petition, and my people for which I request. (Esther 7, 3, 4). Jesus, Mary, Assuerus based his petition he revoked the sentence of death pronounced against the Jews. But if King Assuerus through love of Esther granted her the life of her people, how well God who has an infinite love for Mary refuse to hear her justice in favor of the sinners for whom she has taken under her protection? My King and my God, does she say, I have never found favor in your sight (will not she know that she is the blessed, the favored one, that she is the only creature that has found the grace lost by my first father, that she is perfect in her sanctity, that she is full of grace, and is superior to all the Angels and Saints), my Lord, if you please, give me my life, and my people for which I request my population you.

St. Lignori says that Mary is omnipotent, Mary, Mary, omnipotent, omnipotent, certainly the omnipotent (Glories of our Mother) and upon we have the power of Mary, we have the power of God, the power of leading out our enemies, and of giving friends and protection to them, and then to defend to earth for the purpose of bringing to heaven, and to make them to be a bringing to present God her first our petitions. St. Germanus of Antioch calls her the Mediatrix of the Heaven (Fulfiers du paradis); the Dad St. then from, seeing the Mediatrix, Mary, the night till morning she is occupied in bringing mercy for us; she the presence the power of mercy, and she obtains for all without distinction, all the graces they have need. The Lord, says the Holy Prophet, has His eye on the just (Psalm 33, 15) on his Holy Tabernacle, and Jesus Mother is ever, has her eyes both on the just and on the sinners. The Lord has his eyes on the just, we are those of a Mother, and a tender Mother is not satisfied when we she gives our hope of her prevent him from falling, she has taken care to let him up after he has fallen. The Lord has eyes love the blessed Mother next to God; and their love of her itself more important to their love of her Son. Who is there in the world, ambition, St. Bonaventure, (Speculi lect. 3) who does not love this most clement Queen? She is more lovable than she is, more great than honor; she is an inexhaustible treasure of goodness, of mercy, of charity, of love, of sweetness, of all virtues that great, brilliant, in the sense, immortal, and in a word, of all that is most lovable. Who can deny that God is the Lord? You are the very soul of my life, and the very life of my heart! Pardon me, if I am so angry and I love you! But Mother, if I am altogether angry, I love you! But Mother, if I am altogether angry, I love you, you

THE WEEK'S NEWS —FROM— IRELAND.

THE DYNAMITE PARTY.

What the Government Expects to Prove—The Prisoners Remanded.

LONDON, April 12.—Nowlan, Gallagher, Dillon, Wilson, Curtin and Ansbrogh were taken to the Bow street Police Court this morning in a prison van. They were driven at a rapid pace, and were accompanied by a body of armed police and mounted constables. A large crowd followed the prisoners to the courthouse. The place where was lined with policemen, and every precaution to prevent a rescue was taken. The prisoners appeared perfectly calm.

The prisoners were arraigned before Judge Hughes. Smyth, Gould and Vernon appeared for the defense. Mr. Vernon, on behalf of the prosecution, declared that there was no charge against the whole of the prisoners at the conspiracy, that there was a conspiracy to blow up the Houses of Parliament and the destruction of Westminster Hall, that the conspiracy was carried out by the explosives was dynamite; that some of the prisoners had been actually arrested for the purpose of putting their schemes into execution; that they had furnished money and men to establish the recently discovered dynamite manufactory in Birmingham, and that Gallagher, Wilson and Norman visited the manufactory at Birmingham; that Gallagher was in connection with the purpose of sending to London a supply of explosives. In this connection there was evidence that in the chain of evidence. Norman on the 22nd of March went to Birmingham and Gallagher, Wilson and Norman were in Birmingham on the 24 of March, and on the 25 of March Gallagher, Wilson and Norman visited Birmingham, saying he was going to get his luggage. He did not return at the appointed time; he was without luggage when he did return. He remained fourteen days, and on the 24 of April went to

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

ALL FOR JESUS.

All for Jesus, all for Jesus,
Sinless hours and sinless days;
All for Jesus, all for Jesus,
Adoration—prayer—praise.

All for Jesus, all for Jesus,
Morning with its golden light;
All for Jesus, all for Jesus,
Day shadows—darkness—night.

All for Jesus, all for Jesus,
Burning heart, and soul, and brain;
All for Jesus, all for Jesus,
Gladness—peace—and true and pain.

All for Jesus, Jesus Dearest—
Jesus young, and Jesus old;
All for Jesus on our altars,
All for Jesus on His Throne.

TERACY.

OLD IRELAND—GOD BLESS HER!

There is a land, by the isle—its name need not be spoken,
For one, well known everywhere may know it by this token;
It is the land that whenever we wand'ring sons address her,
Brings back the bottom of their hearts this fond appeal—God bless her!

It's where the stately Shannon flows beside a lovely valley,
Where first I saw the light of day and one of Erin's daughters,
And by the spot my mother sleeps—the dear, fondest, kindest, and best—
Would, O, I could, be her symbol of the blessed Three in heaven!

It's there the Kerry hills hang o'er the waters of Lough Leane,
And on them rolls against the sky reflected in the mirror,
When, looking into Kathleen's eyes when we were young, I was proud to pant,
I was myself transfigured in the heaven of her heart!

It's there the beauteous Cove of Cork expands into the ocean,
Where, perhaps, with thy Shamed Isle, I wept with wild emotion;
My trembling lips kissed every pale or ruddy cheek—poor land!
That they should give the moral and my last, my farewell kiss!

It's there the fairest scene of earth my fancy ever had pictured,
The land I love beatified, the Island of the Blest!
May heaven's lightning blast the arm of him
May heaven's earthquake shake the heart of him that would sever us!

BRIGHT ADVENTURE.

In consequence of the difficulty existing between Rev. Father Foley, pastor of the Church of St. Michael, and Mr. Michael J. Dwyer, president of the church, who attempted a masquerade ball on the night of Washington's birthday, fifteen of the 105 communicants were expelled yesterday morning, and shortly after Father Foley denounced the ball, and suspended the president of the church, who attended it until they had been absolved by the Bishop. Among those expelled were members of the church for forty years the two sisters of the pastor.—Catholic Citizen.

CANADIANS RETURNING HOME.

Since 1880 there have been 20,097 Canadians who left Canada for the country returned, either because they could not find employment, or because there were large numbers not to be found (though) in the United States. The amount brought back amounts to a few hundred dollars, but the "loss of experience" they have had, is at least also not represented old Miss Dillingham here for having left them unfulfilled. And Thereon Curtis, who has been in the habit of advertisements, and failing to please, it occurred to her that when they met in heaven (if, indeed, they should meet there, which is not well thought of, yet) Thereon, "and I should feel bad just to have it appear on the books of the Lord, that I had left her." And yet the deed troubled her.

At last Thereon found a situation as nursery governess. There were five children to wash, dress, and walk out with. They had been used to a cherry-cheeked, light-hearted, well-fed, well-clothed, well-behaved young woman all day long. Still she bore it, for "she was strong and healthy, and fond of discipline, and once more she went in search of an employer.

Then I read an old lady who wanted a companion, but, alas! some one unlike good Miss Dillingham, and Thereon Curtis, who desired to have her hair dressed in the latest style, and to have her lap dog carried and coddled; who wanted a baby presumably to sharpen her grandaughters, and refused to leave the early morning exercising to find her "companion" wide awake. Dressing, embroidery, and time-marking were required; reading until any hour of the night when the old lady by chance relished any. And all ended in ignorance in proof and dismissal.

After this a school received Miss Thereon in its bosom.

She endeavored to teach the English branches, and received no salary. Finally a sheriff appeared on the scene, and the poor lady had to leave her school in tears; and so from year to year ill luck pursued her, until in the end, it occurred to her to "go out somewhere."

Having a kind heart and a light step she thought, why, she might learn to give an "egg-sy." Why, I could ask her what she say, "Take it, Thereon. I can hear her sweet, cold voice. She'll have that too for the lawyer said, 'If no will was found, her last of his wealth have everything." I do, she," said Miss Thereon Curtis wiping her tears away, "I mean to have that cabinet. I get it, I'll take it home to my room and my trunks. Miss Dillingham would say I was right, and I'll do it."

Miss Curtis having said this, crept and crept softly down into the drawing-room and tiptoed over to the cabinet. It was so still and terrible. She took the cabinet from one shelf, and crept up stairs and hid it in her trunk, with a feeling that some one might be at her heels ready to call "stop thief." To be sure, she knew well enough that old Miss Dillingham would gladly have given her the cabinet; that Miss Thereon was not a thrivine, that the old lady would have preferred that she should take all she possessed to giving it to the person of whom she always spoke distastefully as "that Sally Ann." But all the same, that same lady crying over the stairs, past the door where the mother and daughter were sitting, and when she laid the cabinet in her trunk and covered it with dirty garments, gave Miss Curtis a sense of having been a thief. She never forgot the action, or ceased to feel ashamed of it.

Time stalked away using his scythe as he goal. He passed over Thereon's head, he made for the will. Mrs. Spear was declared heiress to all, and Miss Curtis who still compiled the lawyer's letter, had to inquire into her troubled conscience.

The delirium had passed, and she was very fond of her, but she remained to old Miss Dillingham, who was forty-five, and she lived with Mrs. Dillingham for fifteen years. She began as companion had allowed her an annuitant a few hundred dollars, but she "lost" "experience." Thereon was dead, but she never reproached old Miss Dillingham for having left them unfulfilled. And Thereon's cabinet, with its strange adventurous, and failing to please, it occurred to her that when they met in heaven (if, indeed, they should meet there, which is not well thought of, yet) Thereon, "and I should feel just to have it appear on the books of the Lord, that I had left her." And yet the deed troubled her.

At last Thereon found a situation as nursery governess. There were five children to wash, dress, and walk out with. They had been used to a cherry-cheeked, light-hearted, well-fed, well-clothed, well-behaved young woman all day long. Still she bore it, for "she was strong and healthy, and fond of discipline, and once more she went in search of an employer.

Then I read an old lady who wanted a companion, but, alas! some one unlike good Miss Dillingham, and Thereon Curtis, who desired to have her hair dressed in the latest style, and to have her lap dog carried and coddled; who wanted a baby presumably to sharpen her grandaughters, and refused to leave the early morning exercising to find her "companion" wide awake. Dressing, embroidery, and time-marking were required; reading until any hour of the night when the old lady by chance relished any. And all ended in ignorance in proof and dismissal.

After this a school received Miss Thereon in its bosom.

She endeavored to teach the English branches, and received no salary. Finally a sheriff appeared on the scene, and the poor lady had to leave her school in tears; and so from year to year ill luck pursued her, until in the end, it occurred to her to "go out somewhere."

Having a kind heart and a light step she thought, why, she might learn to give an "egg-sy." Why, I could ask her what she say, "Take it, Thereon. I can hear her sweet, cold voice. She'll have that too for the lawyer said, 'If no will was found, her last of his wealth have everything." I do, she," said Miss Thereon Curtis wiping her tears away, "I mean to have that cabinet. I get it, I'll take it home to my room and my trunks. Miss Dillingham would say I was right, and I'll do it."

Miss Curtis having said this, crept and crept softly down into the drawing-room and tiptoed over to the cabinet. It was so still and terrible. She took the cabinet from one shelf, and crept up stairs and hid it in her trunk, with a feeling that some one might be at her heels ready to call "stop thief." To be sure, she knew well enough that old Miss Dillingham would gladly have given her the cabinet; that Miss Thereon was not a thrivine, that the old lady would have preferred that she should take all she possessed to giving it to the person of whom she always spoke distastefully as "that Sally Ann." But all the same, that same lady crying over the stairs, past the door where the mother and daughter were sitting, and when she laid the cabinet in her trunk and covered it with dirty garments, gave Miss Curtis a sense of having been a thief. She never forgot the action, or ceased to feel ashamed of it.

Time stalked away using his scythe as he goal. He passed over Thereon's head, he made for the will. Mrs. Spear was declared heiress to all, and Miss Curtis who still compiled the lawyer's letter, had to inquire into her troubled conscience.

The delirium had passed, and she was very fond of her, but she remained to old Miss Dillingham, who was forty-five, and she lived with Mrs. Dillingham for fifteen years. She began as companion had allowed her an annuitant a few hundred dollars, but she "lost" "experience." Thereon was dead, but she never reproached old Miss Dillingham for having left them unfulfilled. And Thereon's cabinet, with its strange adventures

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28, 1883.

The "Hail Mary," Its Meaning and Its Power.

The learned and pious Abbe Barbier thus discourses on the Hail Mary: The Angelic Salutation holds the first place as to merit after the Lord's Prayer. Its very name points out its excellence (Hortus Tactor. lib. 2. tract 4 de beatae angel). It is called the Angelic Salutation, because man as an angel was its author, but because its first part was divinited by God, and pronounced by the mouth, not of man, but of an angel. The three august Persons of the most adorable Trinity formulated this Salutation, and commissioned an angel to carry it to Mary. She had been chosen from all eternity to be the Mother of the only Son of God, and when the fulness of time had arrived, as Bossuet, fully instructed by the most Holy Trinity, was sent to her in order that she might be informed of the ineffable mystery of the incarnation of the Word, and that through her consent and cooperation the divine marriage, that is, the union of the divine and the human nature might be effected. The heavenly messenger salited her in a new and unusual manner, "Hail, full of grace; the Lord is with thee; blessed art thou amongst women" (Luke 1. 28). . . . Three verbums most pleasing to the Blessed Virgin, Bossuet and Rosier, published in Paris in Mysaine and Rosier, published in Paris, in 1833. Glancing through its pages we come across some very interesting evidences of the state of the Church in Great Britain at that period, and which will serve to show how vast have been the strides made by the Church in its progressive march through a period of a little more than a generation was generally supposed to be safely consonced in an impenetrable fortress protected by the laws of England and presided over by Majesty itself.

From the fifty-year old book before us we learn that in 1833 there were in all England, Scotland, and Wales just 6 Bishops, while at present, in the same region, there are 2 Cardinals and 18 Bishops In 1833 there were 25 places of public worship for Catholics in London and its environs, while the register for 1883 shows that number to be increased to nearly a hundred. In Liverpool there were 5 Catholic churches in 1833, at present there are 26. In Manchester, in 1833, there were 4 Catholic churches, while at present it takes 21 churches to accommodate the Catholic community. And this might go through the principal cities throughout Great Britain and show the wonderful increase of Catholic churches. In order, however, to save space, we have tabulated from the above book works before us, the statistics which show the number of churches in every county in England in the period designated, as well as at present, and from the figures presented lent the Church has grown in Great Britain:

CATHOLIC CHURCHES AND CHAPELS IN ENGLAND.
COUNTIES	1833	1883
Middlesex	34	70
Essex	4	10
Hertfordshire	1	3
Worcestershire	12	17
Shropshire	1	4
Staffordshire	25	19
Gloucestershire	2	8
Oxfordshire	3	17
Berkshire	1	7
Wiltshire	2	12
Hampshire	9	27
Sussex	3	12
Kent	3	17
Surrey	3	17
Cumberland	1	6
Durham	1	5
Westmoreland	1	3
Yorkshire	31	61
Lancashire	26	85
Northumberland	1	7
Bedfordshire	1	1
Buckinghamshire	1	1
Cambridgeshire	1	1
Huntingdonshire	1	1
Norfolk	5	11
Suffolk	1	6
Nottinghamshire	2	10
Derbyshire	1	6
Leicestershire	4	12
Lincolnshire	2	11
Northampton	1	3
Rutland	1	1
Cheshire	2	9
Devonshire	1	28
Cornwall	1	10
Dorset	1	8
Somerset	1	15
Hereford	1	1
Monmouth	1	4
Isle of Wight	1	3
Isle of Jersey	1	1
Total	214	606

The foregoing table shows that while in 1833 there were only 205 places of Catholic worship in England, Wales, and the Channel Islands combined, there are at present 1,070 churches and chapels in the same region—an increase of 705 in fifty years. In Scotland, in 1833, there were 3 Bishops, where at present there are 7. The churches, etc., at the former date, numbered only 49, while at present they have increased to the extraordinary number of 246, attended by upwards of 200 priests!

These figures, in connection with facts already published in these columns, are sufficient evidence to prove to the minds of all impartial readers that in every portion of England Catholic faith is making great inroads into the ranks of all the Protestant sects, and we hope the day is not far distant when the light of faith will illumine the majority of the people in that land which once bore the proud distinction of being designated as "Mary's Dower."

— In the current number of the Family Defender Hon. Zach Montgomery takes the Catholic World to task for its un-Catholic teaching regarding Christian education, and in his usual trenchant and logical style the editor of the Defender governs the Church can make no compromise with error even though her children might thereby enjoy the educational privileges which the State extends to children through its public school system. The right to educate children in the doctrines of Christianity is of Divine origin; and being such it pertains to the province of Christianity, and not to civil government, to decide the character of such education.

— On April 8 Father Walsh of Waterbury, Ct., received 137 to Irish Catholicity, making a total of 313,822 sent since St. Patrick's Day.

Is Governor Stoneman a Know-nothing?

The conviction has at last settled upon the minds of Democratic Irish-Americans in this State that the most prominent plank in Governor Stoneman's platform of political principles is inscribed—"No Irish need apply." Already in these columns we have exposed the Know-nothing bigotry of Governor Stoneman in this respect, and again he has furnished us with material whereby to expose the same line of being a bitter hater of all things Irish and Catholic. His refusal to appoint Irish-American candidate to any position of prominence has exposed the cloven foot of his incarnate hatred of our race, and on two recent occasions he has permitted his prejudices to go so far as to publicly express his supreme contempt for "those Irish," as he styled men and women who are his superiors in moral worth, and to whose influence he owes the position he to-day fills.

The Board of Health was first organized through the influence and exertions of medical gentlemen of foreign birth, some of whom are to this day accounted among the ablest men in their profession. From its foundation, therefore, the Board of Health has heretofore comprised among its members one or more representatives of the Irish-American race. But Governor Stoneman's gall against us was too bitter to permit him to follow in the land of his predecessors, so he passed over all the Irish-American physicians whose names were presented by their Democratic friends, and he appointed—according to his established precedent—representatives of the Southern chivalry whose influence in the State is not worth much to any of the Irish-American hosts in the Democratic party.

In the same way the appointments in the Board of Harbor Commissioners were given to men who would be the reverse to all appeals that could sway they had no Irish blood in their veins, and in one notable instance a capable candidate was openly rejected—although his claim for political preferment was backed by men of great prominence—on the sole ground that he was an Irish-American. This gentleman had labored long, earnestly, and effectively for the success of his principles, he was an influential member of his party, and it was through his vote of the delegation of which he was chairman that Governor Stoneman was placed in nomination at San Jose. Yet, notwithstanding these facts were presented to a Governor elected by Democratic votes, his Puritanical prejudice turned up when he read the Christian cognomen of "Michael" before the applicant's family name, and he vowed, deep down in his soul, that no "Mick" should ever receive any position of honor or profit from him so long as he was Governor of California.

The indignation which every Irish-American feels at such base ingratitude, and such political recurrency on the part of Governor Stoneman, will be intensified in the ranks of a party that owe its success to the votes of that very race against whose representatives the only feeling in the breast of

THE MONITOR.
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28, 1883.

FOUR THROUGH THE SOUTHERN COUNTIES.

Mr. M. J. Kinsella will visit—during the next few weeks—the following places in the interest of the Monitor, and we commend him to the favorable of all parties for the laudable object he has in view—the extension of our circulation in the several localities in question:

Los Alamos, Belmont, Redwood City, Menlo, Mayfield, Santa Clara, San Jose, Gilroy, Hollister, Salinas and intermediate settlements.

RELIEF FUNDS ACKNOWLEDGED.

Another Affecting Appeal From Father Logue of Donegal.

Just as our paper went to press last week we received the following affecting letter from Father Logue, P. P., of Kilraghts, County Donegal:

KILRAGH, CO. DONEGAL, IRELAND, March 29, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—I am in the receipt of your large, generous donation of £2 19s. 7d, from the charitable Celtic ladies for the distressed poor of my parish who are at the present moment in an awful condition from different causes—storms, cold, hailstones, want of fuel occasioned by inclemency every weather, and great mortality among old and young. A very affecting case occurred to-day in the matter of a poor man lying dying, stretched on his bed of sickness, and at home without anything in the world but straw and also his wife and children lying beside them. This is not the only case, hundreds of similar cases I could point out. I have to-day several services of three of my parishioners on the sick roll. Such is a faint outline of the state of my parish. Your generous donation will be of heart could realize our pitiable situation, but I feel it is in the power of God alone to do it, and I should be able to keep them from the workhouse, but I am sure God will reward the generous donors for their charity. I have to keep them from actual starvation, and I am able to do so by the money you and they shall have—not an ounce—but a comfortable share of it—and perhaps not more than but those of my poor people who are entitled to it, and I shall be able to keep them from the workhouse. Yours sincerely,

Your very grateful servant,
PATRICK LOGUE, P. P.

Acknowledgments from Bishop Logue.

Letterkenny, Ireland, April 5, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—I have received your kind letter inclosing a draft for £19 5s. 4d. forwarded to me by the members of the Young Men's Irish National Land League of Colusa. I beg, therefore, to return through you, my thanks to the generous donors for this munificent contribution. I will bring relief to many of my poor people who are daily feeling more keenly the pangs of want. At present relief is being made to supply them with seed, the want of which is also felt universally among the small farmers. All the funds we have on hands must be for this purpose, as it would entail greater misery in the future to leave the land unsowed. We are so poor in the Parish that immediately upon when all our resources have been exhausted we shall be compelled to ask for a grant from the Relief Committee, and in the meantime we have to rely on the charity of our kind friends. Yours sincerely,

P. MACHAY, Bishop of Raphoe.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—Will you do me the kindness of publishing the following acknowledgment of the receipt of a remittance of £7 10s. 9d. from the Young Men's Irish National Land League of Colusa, for the relief of distress in this parish. I beg to return through you, my thanks to the generous donors for this munificent contribution. I will bring relief to many of my poor people who are daily feeling more keenly the pangs of want. At present relief is being made to supply them with seed, the want of which is also felt universally among the small farmers. All the funds we have on hands must be for this purpose, as it would entail greater misery in the future to leave the land unsowed. We are so poor in the Parish that immediately upon when all our resources have been exhausted we shall be compelled to ask for a grant from the Relief Committee, and in the meantime we have to rely on the charity of our kind friends. Yours sincerely,

P. MACHAY, Bishop of Raphoe.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—Will you do me the kindness of publishing the following acknowledgment of the receipt of a remittance of £7 10s. 9d. from the Young Men's Irish National Land League of Colusa, for the relief of distress in this parish. I beg to return through you, my thanks to the generous donors for this munificent contribution. I will bring relief to many of my poor people who are daily feeling more keenly the pangs of want. At present relief is being made to supply them with seed, the want of which is also felt universally among the small farmers. All the funds we have on hands must be for this purpose, as it would entail greater misery in the future to leave the land unsowed. We are so poor in the Parish that immediately upon when all our resources have been exhausted we shall be compelled to ask for a grant from the Relief Committee, and in the meantime we have to rely on the charity of our kind friends. Yours sincerely,

PATRICK LOGUE.

Another Letter from Father Logue.

Kilraghs, County Donegal, April 3, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—I beg to thank you for your draft for £19, forwarded to me for our sufferings poor people, and I request you, through your columns to express to the Young Men's Irish National Land League of Colusa, my sincere and grateful thanks for their generous donation to our poor people. At the time we received the news of the Land League of Colusa, the poor people were in a state of great distress, and in a certain sense, kept his word, by handing over the money. I very affectionately intend so to teach the boy always to keep peace in the world, and to be a good Christian and a good citizen. Bishop Marty, who speaks the Irish language perfectly, was the bearer of the money to Rome, but exceedingly difficult to express the feelings of our people. Indeed, in Donegal, they have implicit faith in Sitting Bull's judgment and have asked Father Logue to tell the Church will in time unquestionably be followed by a Pope of Irish descent. The Bishop thinks from the satisfactory results already achieved in Ireland, and the encouraging signs of the times, that the Irish Catholics of the Northern Province will be emancipated from the Protestant Ascendancy, and that the Church will be enabled to keep them from actual starvation. Indeed, the Bishop thinks that the Church will be able to do so, and all those who help us for their charity, and we shall never forget the Ladies, and they shall have—not an ounce—but a comfortable share of it—and perhaps not more than but those of my poor people who are entitled to it, and I shall be able to keep them from the workhouse. Yours sincerely,

PATRICK LOGUE, P. P.

MISCELLANEOUS DISPATCHES.

Marriage of a Girl who Was Once Pronounced Dead and Prepared for Burial.

Philadelphia, April 19.—Last evening the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in this city, was thronged with people, the occasion being the nuptials of Miss Mary Griffith, daughter of the late Judge Griffith, formerly of this city, to Mr. Thomas Mullen, of Mr. Vernon Street, the bride's intended husband. The bride was led to the altar on the arm of her father, and for the past two months has been a constant sufferer from a fever. John A. Mulleny performed the marriage.

Miss Mary Griffith was Miss Griffith when living in this city, and was a fight of fairly good looking young lady, who was considered quite a belle in her day. The lady was prepared for burial, and for the days in question, the day appointed for the funeral, when the carriages and hearse were at the door, just as the coffin was being closed, it was noticed that the lifeless appearance of the supposed corpse became more pronounced, and there were slight signs of returning vitality. The coffin was raised, and after an hour or so Miss Griffith recovered her senses, and in a few days was turned into one of joy. The girl recovered, and has since been in better health than ever before.

The Horrors of Tewksbury.

Boston, April 19.—At the Tewksbury examination, a former inmate gave some startling and thoroughly unknown or concealed treatment of the inmates.

At the close of the examination to-day, Butler said this investigation would interest the entire country, and he would be present at it on Tuesday. Already it had aroused examinations in other institutions, and it would be a great blessing to the public, if it, but the expose would be made the committee down as another Tewksbury. The chairman said that the company's report would be made public, and the witnesses would be called. The Governor is right in every case where the public interest is involved, and he will follow his lead and do the same thing.

Ireland's Faithful Representatives.

Washington, April 19.—The democratic organs of the English workingmen, which counts its members by the hundred, have paid a compliment to the Irish National members in parliament. The Labor Tribune, (Knights of Labor) says: "Ireland's representatives in the battle for their country's rights against odds so great that it would be a miracle if they did not, it is a struggle with which the British workingmen have had little sympathy, and which the men who have been accused himself for many a generation, and the generous sympathy and helpful aid that it has been accorded to many a generation of Irish men and women who have come to this country of Ireland.

Peter Cooper's Generous Gifts.

The will of the late Peter Cooper disposes of his estate valued at $1,800,000. He gives $100,000 to the Cooper Institute and conveys legacies to his household servants. He provides for them, Hannah Maria Cooper, $100,000; Edward Mitchell, $5000, Bridget Donnelly, $5000, Mary Ann Hewitt, $5000. He gives to his son, the usual sum of $75 so long as he shall live, and the balance of his estate is bequeathed to his grandchildren, and to his family $1,000. All the rest and residue of his estate, he gives in equal proportion to his two children, Edward Cooper and Sarah Cooper Hewitt.

Sobriety of the Irish People.

Mrs. Flower Lodge in the Dublin Freeman writes from Ballina, County Mayo, that in many sad sights, she says, while travelling through the country, she was encouraging to their mother's arms, no food save seaweed and potatoes, and the children were pinched and thin faintly daily from exhaustion before the eyes. For the most part, the people are sober. The people are sober, self-reliant, and industrious. Even the poorest of them, the Irish people without meeting a single drunken person.

The Augustinian Society.

A petition to the Legislature, dated at Salem, April 7, by the Augustinian Society of Lawrence, through Thomas F. McGovern, of Lowell, Accompanying the petition was a statement of the property of the society, signed by Rev. J. K. Davis, treasurer. The secured creditors are: rent, $1,000; Bishop Fenwick, $1,000; Institution for Savings, $20,000. There are 740 creditors all told.

The Irish Convention.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Over 150 delegates from all parts of the country will assemble at the convention in Philadelphia next Thursday, and it is the opinion of the committee that there will be this will not fall short of 1000. It has not yet been determined if the call for the Convention to order, Alexander Sullivan of Chicago is expected to be the temporary chairman, Father Ryan of Francisco, asking him to represent that city in the Convention.

World Peace Attack Germany!

Berlin, April 19.—The Berlin Kreuzzeitung, answering comments of the French press on the recent visit of the Prince Imperial to Paris, remarks that the French press is probably sent an attack by France, which would be a great mistake. Under certain circumstances the restored monarchy would probably be inclined to declare war on Germany without waiting.

THE THIRD REGIMENT.

Mustering of the Old Regiment into the Third Regiment.

In the presence of a large gathering of invited guests the Third Regiment was mustered in the Second brigade of the State Militia last Wednesday evening at Pioneer Hall, corner of Montgomery and Howard streets. The manner in which the Third Regiment was formed in the 1st Lieut. Jas. Cullen, adjutant general. The following is the roster of officers: Colonel, Shields Guard eighty men, the Wolf Tone Guard sixty four men, the Emmet Guard seventy men, Company D sixty-one men, and the Hancock Guard sixty-two men. Company A, the first company subsequently elected officers as follows: Montgomery Guard, captain, F. O'Connor; Company D, captain M. J. Tolgey; first lieutenant, O. E. Dunbar; second lieutenant P. Boland; Shields Guard, captain, H. F. Fitzgerald; first lieutenant, L. Shanahan; second lieutenant, Chas. McCluney; Wolf Tone Guard, captain, O. E. Dunbar; first lieutenant, Jas. Ryan; second lieutenant J. R. Thomas; Hancock Rifles, captain, Henry Levy; first lieutenant, Martin Ryan, and second lieutenant, James White.

RELIEF FUNDS FOR GALWAY.

We gratefully acknowledge the receipt of $10 donation from Miss Catherine Duffy of this city, for the relief of the poor of county Galway, Ireland. Father Cunningham of Galway, writes us that the amount has been forwarded.

SITTING BULL CONVERTED.

The Great Sioux Chief to embrace the Catholic Faith.

Bishop Marty of Dakota, while spending a few days in Milwaukee, Wis., as the guest of Archbishop Heiss, imparted the information to a correspondent of the Sun that he had succeeded in converting the great Sioux Chieftain, Sitting Bull, to the Catholic faith, and will receive the rite of baptism at the hands of the Bishop, with about 100 of his followers, late in the Spring. The leader of the Sioux, Mr. Mitchell Bliss, mileage between Yankton and Fort Randall, intends to be the first to join the Catholic tribe, the Dacapaque, conformed, and fine Sioux Indian, Sitting Bull has accepted the Bishop's invitation to visit Milwaukee, where two hundred Indian families will benefit both their attendance and pecuniary pursuits the present season. There are two Catholic chapels on the reservation, and two more will be erected this summer. The other was Dr. Cecia, the present Archbishop of Cashel. These are changed since the days of St. Patrick, and the Church has yet to be made upon him it made no longer; but we are greatly mistaken, the Bishop of Dakota, he would not be to day as ready as he has ever been to lay down his life for his country, however great the risk.—Dublin Nation.

A TRIBUTE TO THE JESUITS.

The Evening Express, published in Kilkenny, of late paid a just tribute to the Jesuits for their services in assuming the Catholic faith. The Express is a pronounced Protestant organ. The following is therefore of the more valuable, which attention to the memorial a few months ago of Father Gerard Kenny from the Jesuits of Ireland, Government to form part of the republic of the United States. Recently Father Stephen Perry, the Jesuit Superior of Ireland, wrote to Mr. Gladstone, Chief Secretary, and Lord Cowper, Lord Lieutenant, to the passage of Mr. Gladstone's Bill, which has been so much abused, received, Father James Kenny, a Scotch Jesuit, has under the direction of the government made many valuable researches. He lately published a work on the Jesuits in Ireland, which is said to be unexceeded in making in the territory, and he has spent the last year named a member of an important Parliamentary committee. The Express adds that the Rev. Father M. Sweeney, another Jesuit, is still more important lately engaged in science that will shed brilliant light on the ecclesiastical history of Scotland.

BLAIN ON RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.

The Pittsburg Dispatch publishes a letter, written by James G. Blaine, seven years ago, to the late Dr. James King, of Pittsburg, of which the following is an extract: "I agree with you that the charge of my being a Catholic is very misleading, considering the motives that impelled, and very exasperating when we see it quoted as a reproach. I am not a Catholic, and yet the Offertory piece was an Ave Verum, sho by Miss Bettie. James's Mass in E flat was rendered by the following ladies and gentlemen: Mrs. Hoyt, Mrs. Blaine, Miss Bettie, Miss Repsane; Miss Kangas, Miss Bettie, Miss Gal Salem, also; Thomas Bree, tenor; John Kelly, bass; C. E. Packard, organist.

ST. JOSEPH'S UNION.

We are glad to learn that St. Joseph's Union has already a large fund of members, but the Sisters are always open for additional names. All Catholics can become members and participate in all the spiritual benefits by asking their pastor to procure them a ticket of membership, and you will know, a cheerful Catholic. I would not for a thousand presidencies speak a disrespectful word my mother's religion, and no pressure will draw me into any avowal of hostility or antagonism to Catholics. Should I have never received, nor do I expect any political support from them."

REGENT CONVERSIONS.

The following conversions are reported from Rome: On Holy Thursday, F. Armellini, S. J., delivered a sermon in the Church of Gesu, which was attended by a large number of Protestants, among the Protestants, among the Protestants, among the

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY—THE REFUGE OF SINNERS.

FIRST ARTICLE.

The decree against of Mary, St. Bernard, thus addresses her (Ad. B. Virg. Serm.): No, no, Mary, by from him, you can do, you do not, O Mary, by from him, you can do, you do him, I'm be forgotten you you will be entirely back, and decisively make you, you will be entirely mental head you from the cry of the pitiful of despair, you frequent to him the precious minutes of hope, you refuse to hear the prayer do not leave him until you have reconciled (in the terrible Judge) O holy Mary, Stations St. Amelia, Street, St. ad Sacra, Virg. Martyr), must to God, compassionate Mary, Mother of admirable virginity, Virgin most fecund, who brought forth the fat of the Eternal Hight, who gave the Savior to the reprobated world; O Generous, brilliant from great sanctity, exalted by so far comparable dignity, without with power equal to your resistance; O Mother of life and salvation, O temple of piety and mercy, my miserable soul supplicating from the pinnacle of vices, bowed by the wind wounds of iniquities and rotten from the stews of sin, now struggles to present itself before you; yes, my merciful God is making an effort to extract you to deign to cure me by your most powerful merits and efficacious prayers. Hear confused my pitiful soul (sub in the presence of your most resplendent sanctity) for I have chosen I am to be your slave, and to delight in the presence of such brilliant purity. O Virgin, I beseech you, by your sanctity, which pleases the Angels in purity and the Saints in piety, my shut soul entirely you, but it is ashamed to appear in your august presence. I ask you, O Mother, to have pity on me, to cure the deep wounds of my sins. I feel more before you on account of the fear of the Judge, and of my misfortunes. I tremble before you on account of my sins, I am ashamed to appear before you. O penitent, O confusion, O deplorable condition—life is sad. Our Jesus says to His Blessed Mother: None of your petitions, O my Mother, will ever be rejected by me. And the wicked Mary, and the shame they cause me confounded me.

O Mary, powerful in your piety, and merciful in your compassion, I am a sinner, I am full of misery, I implore you on you look at my misery you and look at my misery. Have pity on me, I implore you, Queen of mercy, I implore you on my behalf, I implore you, Queen of mercy, I implore you, Queen of mercy, I implore you, Queen of mercy

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM—
IRELAND.

ABSENCE OF CRIME IN THE WEST OF IRELAND.

As the English press is full of outrages in Ireland, the following authentic report from the Galway Vindicator of the 31st of March will be read with surprise. Until receipt of the Vindicator we imagined that Connaught was one of the most disorganized parts of Ireland.

Connaught Gaol Gateway Scene.

Mr. James Berry, addressing the Grand Jury said: Mine, Gentlemen Jurymen and Gentlemen of the Grand Jury of the County Galway! I am very happy indeed to have the opportunity I am able to congratulate you, as I have done in the neighboring counties I have attended on the preliminary condition of the several districts comprised in your county. Gentlemen your labors will be very light indeed, and the cases to go before you are of a trifling character, and, with one exception, are of that ordinary character which we meet as good and bad from year to year. Generally speaking, and too often indeed the number of cases going before the Grand Jury do not form sufficient evidence of the condition of the several districts, and we cannot look elsewhere for the true state of things. The police report then must be looked upon for further information, and there at the present moment Amnesty appears to me to furnish still greater evidence of the peaceable state of the present county. The decrease in crime generally is the greatest of your County is very remarkable indeed.

County of the Town.

The Right Honorable Mr. Justice Johnston in charge to the Grand Jury said—Mr. Sheriff, Gentlemen, and gentlemen of the Grand Jury for the county of the town of Galway. I am happy to congratulate you on the state of your county. I am satisfied from the reports of the City of Galway, containing a population of over nineteen thousand souls, that there is a decided improvement in the condition of the population, decreasing the number of cases brought before the magistrates, and leaving the business upon me when it was formerly in the hands of the grand jury. I congratulate you, gentlemen, on the state of the City of Galway, which we present, with other populous and extensive districts, while from the rest of the United Kingdom of your country High Sheriff to present me with a page of crime upon which will offer no small guidance to receive on my first visit to your city and district and county.

Before the Grand Jury retired the High Sheriff presented the Judge to them, and they in return thanked him very politely.

Cork Convent and Sentiment.

DUBLIN, April 19.—In the Corby trial this morning the following witnesses were sworn:

Attorney-General Porter on behalf of the prosecution, gave the evidence in support of an alibi (on workhouse and complicating. Although the prisoner Corby is said to have been in Corby's company four hours covering the time the assassination took place, and claimed during this time that he met various persons, the defense proved that Corby was in a saloon at the time when that Corby was in a saloon at the time when that Corby was in a saloon at the time when that Corby was in another place.

The Judge then delivered his charge to the jury. He spoke strongly against the reliability of the evidence in proof of an alibi, and pointed out those could not be the slightest doubt that the prisoner was present at the assassination of the unarmed constable, with which the prisoner complained at half past two and the jury retired at half past two and the jury retired at half past two and the jury retired the courtroom, finding Corby guilty as charged in the indictment.

The prisoner was asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced. He said he had not expected any mercy from the Government, and he had not any. He was a man of his word, and he was a man of his word, and he was a member of the Catholic, and he was a member of the Catholic, and he was a member of the Catholic

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

THE SWARM OF BEES.

The wild rose vine up from the heather,
A fondlet they float now on high;
Then, and float all together,
They poise in the light of the sky!
They pass the lake,
And I utilize brake,
They pass the shining stream,
They wing their way
Our meadows gay,
And wash like a dream.

But far away, a mile, or two,
Their hurry hum is heard again;
They've found at last a hunting place—
They dog and toil like laboring men;
Pass one to one
They quickly go
And quickly die, for overtoone is;
From grape to grape
They make, and pay
And some work their way
The sweet, the sweet
Of the honey-dew.

And pass down the lake and stream;
They swing their way
Our meadows gay,
And wash like a dream.

—TRAUT.

Literary Miscellany.

How Mercy Was Rewarded.

BY MONTE BALTIMORE.

Scenes in the Spring of February.

Beneath the footsteps of the hurrying passers-by the pavements of Boston are much metal, and the glittering shards of jewelry displayed in the shop-windows were bought over with the icy touch of the Arctic at noon.

And Mabel Ireland, standing behind her lonely, sighed softly to herself, and thought that the hands of the old clock had never wrinkled around the dial so slowly.

For Mabel had a letter to write to her lover that night, and she was to leave the shop at nine, and Miss Fetherbee, the owner, was to take her place.

Mabel Ireland was a rosy, round-faced girl, with Grecian features, and looking in a little less severe her forehead large, soft, brown eyes, with a listless-like sparkle in their depth, and a pout in her rosy lips that seemed to the least provocation.

"One of my best young women," Mr. Ireland was wont to say.

Jane Finch was the best starred creature who had stolen the lief of broad in the Superfine's hackney-coach that very night.

Jane, poor thing, looked at Mabel with terrified eyes of sympathy.

"Mabel, dear, cheer up! Mr. Mac-Alister will come back to you, I know, if you only wait a little, and—"

"And he has deserted her," said Mac-Alister, "to my mother were she from Perthshire, and left her with two little children, and she is starving here in London, too proud, poor dear, to appeal to any of her family for help. But I've found her at last. Will you go with me, Mabel, my dear?" he added.

"She is crutchedly poor, but it may do her good to look into the sympathizing face of a woman like herself."

"Of course I will go," said Mabel jumping up; and together they hurried through the bitter cold and half-lighted darkness of the streets—under the gloomy dome of a rickety old house, and up a stairway which was as dark as Egypt, and a good deal more dangerous to travel.

"I'm ashamed to bring you here, pet," said Donald, pounding the girl's arm down to his breast, "but things will be very different one day, I have found page Jane, shall take her home. Put boarded at a farm where they can smell roses and sweet hay when the spring-time comes, and drink milk that is something more than chalk and water. Have we come?"

And he knocked on a squalid room, carpetless and uncurtained, with a roof that seemed so nearly to touch their heads.

A lamp burned on the table, and crouching over the recently-kindled fire, sat a little child nestling close up to her, and another sleeping in a wretched wooden box with old blankets for a bed, and a pale face, the face figure of a woman.

"Two people," said Mac-Alister to you, Jennie," said MacAlister. "Nay, never droop your head so, lass; it's only fitting that your sister and the orphans of Heaven is to be my wife, should be friends. Mabel, this is Mrs. Finch."

Mrs. Finch looked up and tried to falter out a word of welcome.

But as she raised her eyes the two women recognized one another instantly.

Jane Finch was the bad starved creature who had stolen the loaf of bread in Mr. Superfine's hackney-coach that very night.

Jane, poor thing, looked at Mabel with terrified eyes of sympathy.

"Mabel, dear, cheer up! Mr. Mac-Alister will come back to you, I know, if you only wait a little, and—"

"And he has deserted her," said Mac-Alister, "to my mother were she from Perthshire, and left her with two little children, and she is starving here in London, too proud, poor dear, to appeal to any of her family for help. But I've found her at last. Will you go with me, Mabel, my dear?" he added.

"She is crutchedly poor, but it may do her good to look into the sympathizing face of a woman like herself."

"Of course I will go," said Mabel jumping up; and together they hurried through the bitter cold and half-lighted darkness of the streets—under the gloomy dome of a rickety old house, and up a stairway which was as dark as Egypt, and a good deal more dangerous to travel.

"I'm ashamed to bring you here, pet," said Donald, pounding the girl's arm down to his breast, "but things will be very different one day. I have found page Jane.

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1882.

How to Spend May with Pleasure and Profit.

Devotion to the Blessed Virgin is a sign of election, and—as we have already reiterated—no man, woman, or child who is thoroughly and constantly devoted to the Mother of God will never be lost. She is our Mother, given to us by the Son of God, through St. John, as our Saviour spoke from the Cross these words: "Behold thy Mother." And now that the beautiful month of May is here, let every reader of this Monitor determine to perform daily, nightly, or weekly even, some pious act of prayer or good works for the sake of showing greater devotion to the Mother of God during Mary's month. No prayer that we say to the Blessed Virgin will go unrewarded; no petition that we present to her will be unanswered, if it is for the good of our souls that such petition should be needed to by Almighty God. Hence we can appeal, with confidence, to our Queen and Mother in all things, trials, temptations, and feel that she will aid us in the help—will Every Catholic family can spend the month of May profitably by having a simple shrine in every household, wherein should be placed a statue of the Blessed Virgin decorated with flowers. Around this let the children of the family assemble every night and there say a few simple prayers from the heart, because a single "Our Father" and a "Hail Mary," said with true devotion, is far better for the soul than a whole book of prayers read parrot-fashion from a book. It is not long prayers, but strong prayers, that reach and touch the Heart. The "Our Father" is the most sublime prayer in the world, because it was formulated by our Blessed Redeemer, yet this sublime prayer is brief, and in its beautiful, as expressive as it is simple, and it contains within a few sentences the principal doctrines of Christian Faith. The "Hail Mary," in like manner, is simple, and of divine origin, and it, too, is brief, yet powerful, short but sweet as the incense sent from Heaven to feed the Israelites.

Let Catholic parents, then, during this lovely month of May, instruct their children to behold the shrine of MARY with nature's flowers in profusion, and let them offer to the "Mystical Rose" the flowers of piety which adorn their young souls. "Where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them," said the omnipotent Saviour of Holy Scripture. "I am in the midst of them," and by this sanctifying presence of Almighty God Catholics should feel happy in the knowledge that we have family prayers in their homes every morning and night. But it sure this is not possible in the morning, let it be said at least in the evening.

Let Catholic parents see to it that their children are constantly together in all virtuous Catholic haunts there is a deep implied duty upon the Christian father. All the angelic hosts in Heaven love the, all the saints that ever worked on earth love the, and the family circle in which they live, and in which they pray, and where they have—as we have—upon the highest and holiest authority—an never be lost. May devotions have the sanction of the Church of God, through St. John, in our open every day and evening during this month in order that the faithful may be afforded an opportunity of demonstrating their love for the Blessed Virgin by reciting her praises and singing hymns in her honor. And where it is not possible for Catholics to visit a church they can join in spirit with those who do, and thus make the evening prayer in their homes surrounded by their children.

There is no more touching sight in the year of ours, nor any more beautiful sight in the eye of the Angelic Host, than to see a Christian family united in devotion. Such scenes are those that may have the satisfaction of knowing that their names are properly recorded as sitting in one of the most useful and necessary works of charity that can call forth the grateful gifts of a people who have much to thank God for in the past and there may not be a single prayer from the heart, because a single "Our Father" and a "Hail Mary," said with true devotion, is far better for the soul than a whole book of prayers read parrot-fashion from a book. It is not long prayers, but strong prayers, that reach and touch the Heart. The "Our Father" is the most sublime prayer in the world, because it was formulated by our Blessed Redeemer, yet this sublime prayer is brief, and in its beautiful, as expressive as it is simple, and it contains within a few sentences the principal doctrines of Christian Faith. The "Hail Mary," in like manner, is simple, and of divine origin, and it, too, is brief, yet powerful, short but sweet as the incense sent from Heaven to feed the Israelites.

Let Catholic parents, then, during this lovely month of May, instruct their children to behold the shrine of MARY with nature's flowers in profusion, and let them offer to the "Mystical Rose" the flowers of piety which adorn their young souls. "Where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them," said the omnipotent Saviour of Holy Scripture. "I am in the midst of them," and by this sanctifying presence of Almighty God Catholics should feel happy in the knowledge that we have family prayers in their homes every morning and night. But in case this is not possible in the morning, let it be said at least in the evening.

Let Catholic parents see to it that their children are constantly together in all virtuous Catholic haunts there is a deep implied duty upon the Christian father. All the angelic hosts in Heaven love the, all the saints that ever worked on earth love the, and the family circle in which they live, and in which they pray, and where they have—as we have—upon the highest and holiest authority—an never be lost. May devotions have the sanction of the Church of God, through St. John, as

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY—THE REFUGE OF SINNERS.

SECOND ARTICLE.

O merciful Virgin, exclaims St. Ildephonsus [Preig. in Coron B. Virg. Marias, Cap. 16], her many robbers have you not made penitent! How many prostitutes have you not rendered chaste and continent! How many wrathful men have you not transformed into the most charitable beings! How many drunkards have you not converted and made sober! How many gluttons have you not converted into modest and abstemious! How many lapers and filthy creatures have you not made chaste and clean! How many passionate creatures have you not rendered as meek as lambs! Let then the sinner no longer say with the unfortunate Julian, Quisam, [i] respexit Pabrae [i.e. Pabrae in Hist. Chap. 13.] that God has banished him from His presence, that the Eternal Father wishes he is too him any more, and that his eyes indeed, but not those of the Blessed Virgin, are turned upon him, and that God has given him an amused Refuge in the mercy of Mary, since this tender Mother embraces him with open arms, and since she is determined to save him unless he wanters by your to his own damnation! For if sin is a crime of high treason against the divine Majesty, the Mother of God is an sovereign sublime. If sin is the debauchery and confusion of the soul, from which it takes away all courage, and which it renders unfit to appear before her Creator, the Mother of God is the Mediatrix who carries the word of reconciliation. If sin is a gap which the enemies of our salvation have made for the purpose of putting possession of the soul and of making it their slave, the Mother of God is the conservator, Mary is the Refuge of sinners, and the more frankly he accepted that will prevent them from advancing, who neglects to run to the Asylum that God has prepared for all! I say, I pity him more than I pity demons. I pity him, and I say he blessed when he shall be consumed to ashes, that is consumed by fire of hell, and that God and to return welcome to him, that the soul of the sinner becomes hell who the Lord of Sabaoth, the Mother of the Prince of Peace [Id. 17.] Be convinced, Mother of God, you shall and that God is not lover of the Ungodly Herod and power to save you, and it is either sufficiently to do so. How difficult to prophesy that Mary is a City of refuge, a Mediatrix who will infallibly procure for you reconciliation [Id. 18.] In fact given to you His most holy Mother who will ever offer all these qualities to your behalf.

The Holy Virgin is the water that Heaven has furnished us in order that we may be able to extinguish the terrible fire of the just vengeance of God. Is it true that God, whose delight is the Queen of Heaven is the haven to which we should at once go, cursed on the plank of the certain hope of obtaining pardon through her intercession. The Mother of God wishes, it blesses the sodal and relieves the moment she delegate to look upon it. Mary is the sweet and tender Mother who attends the hearts of even [illegible] them up and re-establishes them in the friendship of God! The holy Pope Innocent III. explains in a wonderful manner the words of the Canticles (6, 9), in which the Spouse is problemed as agreeable as the moon, fair as the Sun and bright as the sun. The moon, says he [Serm. 2. de Assumpt.] grew on earth during the night, and the sun shines during the day and the night, and the sun shines during the day. Mary is the moon, and Christ is the sun, the day of the resurrection, and the night of the grave. Let him who has lost the light of the sun look at the moon, let the sinner who has lost his soul to longer say with the unfortunate Julian, Quisam, [i] respexit Pabrae [i.e. Pabrae in Hist. Chap. 13.] that God has banished him from His presence, that the Eternal Father wishes he is too him any more, and that his eyes indeed, but not those of the Blessed Virgin, are turned upon him, and that God has given him an amused Refuge in the mercy of Mary, since this tender Mother embraces him with open arms, and since she is determined to save him unless he wanters by your to his own damnation! For if sin is a crime of high treason against the divine Majesty, the Mother of God is an sovereign sublime. If sin is the debauchery and confusion of the soul, from which it takes away all courage, and which it renders unfit to appear before her Creator, the Mother of God is the Mediatrix who carries the word of reconciliation. If sin is a gap which the enemies of our salvation have made for the purpose of putting possession of the soul and of making it their slave, the Mother of God is the conservator, Mary is the Refuge of sinners, and the more frankly he accepted that will prevent them from advancing, he neglects to run to the Asylum that God has prepared for all! I say, I pity him more than I pity demons. I pity him, and I say he blessed when he shall be consumed to ashes, that is consumed by fire of hell, and that God and to return welcome to him, that the soul of the sinner becomes hell who the Lord of Sabaoth, the Mother of the Prince of Peace [Id. 17.] Be convinced, Mother of God, you shall and that God is not lover of the Ungodly Herod and power to save you, and it is either sufficiently to do so. How difficult to prophesy that Mary is a City of refuge, a Mediatrix who will infallibly procure for you reconciliation [Id. 18.] In fact given to you His most holy Mother who will ever offer all these qualities to your behalf.

The Holy Virgin is the water that Heaven has furnished us in order that we may be able to extinguish the terrible fire of the just vengeance of God. Is it true that God, whose delight is the Queen of Heaven is the haven to which we should at once go, cursed on the plank of the certain hope of obtaining pardon through her intercession. The Mother of God wishes, it blesses the sodal and relieves the moment she delegate to look upon it. Mary is the sweet and tender Mother who attends the hearts of even [illegible] them up and re-establishes them in the friendship of God! The holy Pope Innocent III. explains in a wonderful manner the words of the Canticles (6, 9), in which the Spouse is problemed as agreeable as the moon, fair as the Sun and bright as the sun. The moon, says he [Serm. 2. de Assumpt.] grew on earth during the night, and the sun shines during the day and the night, and the sun shines during the day. Mary is the moon, and Christ is the sun, the day of the resurrection, and the night of the grave. Let him who has lost the light of the sun look at the moon, let the sinner who has lost his soul to longer say with the unfortunate Julian, Mary to order that she may cast one ray of holy consolation on the sinner, or hear; the sinner without her during the night wishes to being heard! Mary is the moon that shines in the night, and the sun that shines in the day. Mary is the moon that shines in the night, and the sun that shines in the day. Mary is the moon that shines in the night, and the sun that shines in the day.

Let the sinner, then, be consoled, and let the Mary in order that she may cast one ray of holy consolation on the sinner, or hear; the sinner without her during the night wishes to being heard!

The Two Conventions.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETINGS OF UNITED IRISHMEN.

A Solid Platform and Strong Resolutions.

REIN'S SONS A SOLID PHALANX.

One More Effort for Ireland's Sake

THE LAND LEAGUE CONVENTION.

Full Report of the Proceedings.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—The presence of congressmen, lawyers, physicians, journalists and representatives of the Irish National Land League Convention in Horticultural Hall today was unprecedented in the history of the Irish party. The convention was called to order at 10 o'clock by President Healy. It was the determination to have one "Irish convention that would be held in Philadelphia, and one which should be heard in every Irishman, in every Irish home, in every Irish heart." (Cries of "Repeat it." "Hear, hear." "Hurrah.")

Father Walsh then read his report and also made a comprehensive speech in which he referred to the kindness of Welsh, or Irish sympathy, one of whose ancestors had been hanged and the others sent to penal servitude for life. He said every Irishman felt the keen sympathy. What is more, while the noble mother knew them to be innocent, and even knew the guilty parties, she was too patriotic to turn informer, as some Irish villains would do, and. He was sure, if with Parnell about the mother, and resolved to let death follow.

Having read as part of his report a letter from Michael Davitt, expressing his devotion, Ireland's policy of turning aside Irish land into tenpenny land or "farms" and a letter from Parnell, he read the rest of his report, which was referred to the resolutions committee.

The report shows a balance on hand January 1, 1883, of $11,000; received from branches from January 8th to April 9th, $898; balance on hand April 9th, $9,000; remitted to Ireland for Land League purposes to date, $99,792; for the Irish Parliamentary fund, $65,000; balance on hand, $8,703.

Resolutions were adopted that one delegate from each Parliamentary division be entitled to a seat in the convention, and that the convention should be held in Philadelphia, or some other place, at the option of the National Leagues the following Tuesday, to be held in Philadelphia, or some other place, at the option of the National Leagues the following Tuesday, to be held in the hall and on the stairs, and through about the box office, where seats of admission were given. The sidewalk in front of the hall was packed by a crowd of Irish all the forenoon, anxious there until the convention was called to order. Many adventurers of the Sympathy kind by tears to the crowd and fraternized with the Irish. Among the delegates were Senator Jones, with Judge McCoy, and John Dwyer present, along with Messrs. J. A. Lanigan, Wylie Ker, Father Cronin, General O'Neill, James Redpath and the venerable Stephen J. Meaney were in the midst of a circle of listeners. O'Rourke was standing himself opposite to Rev. N. Boylan of Ireland, Rev. Hugh O'Reilly was kept busy shaking hands with friends. Philadelphia's Michael Mooney was the center of an admiring crowd. Nine-tenths of the delegates were middle aged men; many were fine-looking, and all of respectable appearance. The original Irish were conspicuous about the room, and thirteen delegates from women's branches of the Land League, sat in a crowd until the session began, and they were escorted upon the stage. When Parnell, Mooney and the operative address, it was enthusiastically received by all except O'Donnell's friends, over whom a quiet melancholy seemed to have settled, and he listened to the address, and the president having admonished the audience to be quiet, and to hear the address, M. M. Kennedy, of Cork, after some opposition was heard. Under a message from Parnell, the president read a letter from Parnell, in which he stated that he was not in favor of the proposition of the Irish National Land League, and that he was not in favor of the proposition of the Irish National Land League, and that he was not in favor of the proposition of the Irish National Land League, and

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

A LEPER'S LAY.

We trust from thy native dell,
Why loiter in the city?
What tide hath wafted you archly hither
To mete, you rogue, my pity!
A ballad based on the idea of blue,
The wrinkled brambles peering through,
Charmed thy soul in some of its
A well remembered ditty.

II.

Sire freely, little stranger! idea
The cypress trees and yonder tree,
The sunset golden memories bring,
(If the allusion thee—the flower)
Thy lay to mortal the sailing heart,
Yet hid in thick of woe dissent,
To rob it of the pointed dart,
Then with thy master shrest.

III.

Sweet singer! thy tithing piping tells
Of lonely ones thy lonely dell,
Of wailing ones thy bright and humble,
Of valley grief and sorrow dale,
Of joy and hope and sunshine fair,
Of vesper chime that call to prayer,
Of rustic pies and gambols.

IV.

Of hearts wracked by my cruelty Sinfu,
Where silver bilbous swelling
Robe Brightness with sunshine gay,
The emerald gem swelling;
Where unknown to the world I lay
In Abbey wall or sanctuary
Thy lay of sympathy grave
And sounds of fresh earth swelling.

V.

From out the green turf in the glen,
Where I quietly sojourned years,
Old velvet steal and chain mail,
Lichens and moss and mildew,
Like whispers hand amid the leaves
Of some old hall long deserted,
Or lovers and lost than widely grieve
My heart with fond emotion.

VI.

Pale world I have you has given
Thy lay a more intense bright
Before me, for I am a leper
Of my heart's hopes and joys;
But thy gay music has sent me through,
Thy tender and the day,
Thy melancholy and sweet to the
Yet mingled pain and joy.

J. H. GAVIN.

SAVE OUR PEOPLE.

"Mother, you said God would send us food,
If we'd bid us so every day,
It isn't he, indeed, that He is good
Or loves us so much as you say.

"For if He power can raise the dead,
As Mr. Wendell Phillips says,
Can He not see we're starving for bread,
And send us bread when we die?

"Ah! if He loved us, mother, he would,
If He loved us as much as you,
For well I see when that we but food,
You took but a morsel or two.

"Then, if God's power, mother, you would not ask,
But said that your hunger was gone,
Could He not see that we poor folk Yet He lets us still hunger on?"

"God's love, my child, for us every one
Is more than I can tell the boundless on,
No mother's love for an only one
Compares with God's love one be.

"He can all we suffer from day to day,
He knows every pang we bear,
And though we may think He is far away,
He guards us with love and care.

"He could send the angels down, his true,
And in instant, we'd get plenty to eat,
But His mighty wisdom this work must do
Not in a day, but in time.

"The work of Christ, let you look yonder,
Not moments, you remember!
Of all that they suffered for us!
Yet, mother, child, he had to share
How every penny was spent,
Yet God's pay as you depend
They have only by God been to rest
For God will care for us.

SAWDS.

THE CONGRESS TO POLAND.

The negotiations between the Vatican and St. Petersburg have at last led to a tangible consummation. The Pope has sent the Russian government twelve bishops for Poland. The nominations are made by the Russian Czar, and are a century of persecution. The Empire is honeycombed with Polish Jesuits, who have never been Russian except in name, but of all lovely ones, the Czar, in his wisdom, sends Nihilist destroyers, and the time has come when it is a patriot policy for the Pole to crouch down in fealty to the Cathedral of Poland, to make friends of all of a nation, and to provide against disloyal outbreak, and to provide against disloyal outbreak in the event of a war, which the Czar is already great against the universal danger. If the Jesuit religion had been allowed to remain since the partition of Poland, we cannot say that the concession is a reasonable figure, which excited the sympathy of all who looked upon it. The Russians have not been taught; he has valuable property reposed on that condition on his dreadfully liable. Matrons copy and men declared of shameless. Miss Clinker's own father reproached her; but she had been of age for twenty years, and was her own mistress.

Finally, every mortal in town who could get out crowded into the court-room and hailed she appearance of the prisoner with cries of encouragement, which nothing could repress.

Finally order was restored, and the judge requested to know "the charge against this person."

The policeman stepped forward—but at that moment a loud howling was heard. It was Butterfly, who had followed his young mistress who not beside her father.

Everybody knew him. He was silvery white. He reached the side of the prisoner, leaped up and fawned him. He recognized all his acquaintance, and knowing nothing of her cruelty to his master, even put his paws upon Miss Clinker's knee, and licked out his tongue to lick her face. As he did so the lady entered a wild shriek, and seized his paws.

"Priscilla, the dog won't hurt you," said her father.

"My dog at least is not a robber," said Mr. Briggs.

"Come away from the wretch, Butterfly, dear," sighed Tilly.

But Miss Clinker still shrieked, and a policeman stepped forward to take Butterfly into custody.

Then, another her screams, the spinster performed a pantomime that had the spectators wondering who was the prisoner, the policeman showed signs of amazement.

He arose to his full height, holding the dog by the collar, with his face towards the judge.

"Your honor," he said, "excuse me, but I make a charge against this dog. He's got the diamonds on her ears."

And turning the creature about, everyone saw two glowing, flashing objects clinging to the entry hair under his chin.

Miss Clinker cheered. She left her earrings on the occasion as peacefully as though she had been in her own room, though they were cluster diamonds. Mr. Briggs was so appreciative in her behalf that he made a speech.

And so Miss Clinker's hair secured a reputation for the skillful handling of the hair-dresser, and, greatly pleased with the result, she walked into the dressing-room to resume her earrings and looked and lance.

The lace was there; so was the locket; but the ear-rings were gone.

Nobody had been in the dressing-room but the hairdresser himself, who was to drive Butterfly into the shop, since even he was not permitted to enter the sanctum of the hairdresser. The outer door had been shut on him. Customers had been in the store, but not behind the counter.

Polite inquiry and careful search changed into suspicion and angry, and as the earrings—worth two thousand dollars—were not found, all North Jefferson was astonished, and a warrant issued for the arrest of Mr. La Fayette Briggs, "against whom Miss Clinker had made the sworn charge of larceny."

Mr. Briggs refused bail and insisted on being locked up in jail, and marched through the streets with a dignified appearance of the sympathy of all who looked upon it.

Mr. Briggs's friends were legion. He had valuable property reposed on that condition on his dreadfully liable. Matrons copy and men declared of shameless. Miss Clinker's own father reproached her; but she had been of age for twenty years, and was her own mistress.

Finally, every mortal in town who could get out crowded into the court-room and hailed she appearance of the prisoner with cries of encouragement, which nothing could repress.

Finally order was restored, and the judge requested to know "the charge against this person."

The policeman stepped forward—but at that moment a loud howling was heard. It was Butterfly, who had followed his young mistress who not beside her father.

Everybody knew him. He was silvery white. He reached the side of the prisoner, leaped up and fawned him. He recognized all his acquaintance, and knowing nothing of her cruelty to his master, even put his paws upon Miss Clinker's knee, and licked out his tongue to lick her face. As he did so the lady entered a wild shriek, and seized his paws.

"Priscilla, the dog won't hurt you," said her father.

"My dog at least is not a robber," said Mr. Briggs.

"Come away from the wretch, Butterfly, dear," sighed Tilly.

But Miss Clinker still shrieked, and a policeman stepped forward to take Butterfly into custody.

Then, another her screams, the spinster performed a pantomime that had the spectators wondering who was the prisoner, the policeman showed signs of amazement.

He arose to his full height, holding the dog by the collar, with his face towards the judge.

"Your honor," he said, "excuse me, but I make a charge against this dog. He's got the diamonds on her ears."

And turning the creature about, everyone saw two glowing, flashing objects clinging to the entry hair under his chin.

Miss Clinker cheered. She left her earrings on the occasion as peacefully as though she had been in her own room, though they were cluster diamonds. Mr. Briggs was so appreciative in her behalf that he made a speech.

And so Miss Clinker's hair secured a reputation for the skillful handling of the hair-dresser, and, greatly pleased with the result, she walked into the dressing-room to resume her earrings and looked and lance.

The lace was there; so was the locket; but the ear-rings were gone.

Nobody had been in the dressing-room but the hairdresser himself, who was to drive Butterfly into the shop, since even he was not permitted to enter the sanctum of the hairdresser. The outer door had been shut on him. Customers had been in the store, but not behind the counter.

Polite inquiry and careful search changed into suspicion and angry, and as the earrings—worth two thousand dollars—were not found, all North Jefferson was astonished, and a warrant issued for the arrest of Mr. La Fayette Briggs, "against whom Miss Clinker had made the sworn charge of larceny."

Mr. Briggs refused bail and insisted on being locked up in jail, and marched through the streets with a dignified appearance of the sympathy of all who looked upon it.

Mr. Briggs's friends were legion. He had valuable property reposed on that condition on his dreadfully liable. Matrons copy and men declared of shameless. Miss Clinker's own father reproached her; but she had been of age for twenty years, and was her own mistress.

Finally, everyone

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1883.

The "Pacific" on the Philadelphia Convention.

Our "pure, pious, and peaceable" neighbor, the Pacific, is dreadfully worried over the doings of the Philadelphia Convention, inasmuch as the delegates did not denounce dynamite and give expression to their abhorrence of murder. But our neighbor should remember that "the world moves." The "condemning process"—so much in her phrase—is "played out." The Pope, the Irish Bishops and priests, the Irish press, and the Irish people all over the world have been "condemning" for a century past that "He who commits a crime gives strength to the enemy," but the enemy, in the meantime, has been tightening the manacles upon his poor Irish slaves, torturing them in body and soul through a system of coercion and cruelty repugnant to every principle of Christianity. The more "denunciations" the Irish people passed, the more "red-coats" England quartered upon her impoverished people, and the more Coercion and Confiscation were launched at the heads of the half-famished peasantry. No public man ever led more millions of moral people through peaceable agitation than Daniel O'Connell, yet he was imprisoned through a corrupt judge and a packed jury, and died of a broken heart when he saw that the more peaceable the Irish people were, the more heavy the penalties they had to pay for their law and order policy. In recent years the Land League leaders have kept the Irish agitation within the lines of constitutional discussion, yet English tyranny has sent

Davitt, Dillon, and Parnell

To languish in the prison cell.

It is safe to say that fully a thousand peace-loving and inoffensive men were incarcerated in Irish jails during the past few years because they dared to advise the Irish people to persevere in asserting their rights through agitation and peaceable agitation. During this period freedom of speech in Ireland has been silenced, the liberty of the press has been banned and its editors imprisoned. Yet, during all this destruction of life, liberty, and happiness, the natives of Ireland all over the world have been preaching "patience and good-will" to the English Government. They have denounced dynamite and the physical force policy until they are sick of repeating the old old story so familiar to the world in the last half century, and now they have almost become convinced that "all is fair in war," and if England does not like the dynamite method, she reducing Irish wrongs all she has to do is to "denounce" it, but until she changes her policy towards her Celtic slaves she must expect some dynamite within her borders.

England has refused the olive branch of constitutional agitation presented to her by Parnell, the Irish priests, and the people of Ireland every year for a century past, and by her persecuting policy she has forced a desperate and inefficient one upon them. We do not expect peace within her borders

England has refused the olive branch of constitutional agitation presented to her by the Parnell, the Irish priests, and the people of Ireland every year for a century past, and by her persecuting policy she has forced a desperate and inefficient one upon them. We do not expect peace within her borders.

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY—THE REFUGE OF SINNERS.

THIRD ARTICLE.

O Mary, exclaims with admiration St. Bonaventure (Speculi. Beat. V.), you open your maternal arms to the sinner that is abandoned by the whole world! In fact, the sinner is an object of disgust to the entire universe. Fire, air, earth, and all the elements would wish to take up arms against him and thus avenge the insult he offered to his Creator. Mary alone is his refuge: she received him to her bosom and never rests until she has reconciled the criminal to his Judge. Ah! most certainly God cannot condemn the sinner who has recourse to Mary. And since the infinitely merciful God has given His own Mother to be the Mother of sinners, He intends that she should fulfill to perfection her sublime office; and she does it with so much goodness, fidelity and charity that neither man nor angel, nor both together, can ever find words to express what we owe to her! Mary, again cries out the same Doctor, (Sermol. Inst. 5) brings back sinners from their evil ways; her merciful power saves and converts them, and makes them humble and obedient children of the Church. The moment she looks at our misery she runs to us to succor us with her mercy. O Mary, declares St. Bernard (In Deprecat. et Laude Virg. Mariae), you embrace with your white maternal affection sinners that are despised by everybody else; you change them, and you do them good even until you have fully reconciled them to their Judge. The human race, says the venerable Venerable (Homil. 10 in Pent. Evangel.) is weighed down by a great number of spiritual infirmities; but Mary is the most efficacious remedies for all these different diseases; she alone is the perfectly sure all diseased souls. Even though the sinner is in despair, even though he has died the death of mortal sin, the moment Mary places her hands filled with mercy on him, he becomes entirely restored and cured.

St. Andrew of Crete (Serm. de Laud. Virg.) adds Mary alone guarantees to the sinner the pledge of pardon—Fidelissimo divinarum reconciliationum, quae hic pignora fit. For sinners who have recourse to her, says St. Ligouri (et supra) have a certainty of their pardon, and the Lord gives them a pledge which is no other than Mary herself whose intervention Son has rendered omnipotent. Poor souls, of what are you thinking when you withdraw yourselves from this powerful Refuge, when you abandon devotion to Mary, when you neglect to invoke her in this perils and mortal conditions of sin in which you have placed yourselves! As soon as a soul loses confidence in Mary, abandoned and as completely envelopes such a soul, that thick veil of which the Holy Ghost speaks, and which is so favorable to the passage of the wild beasts of the forest (the very thing the devils wish in order that they may enter in, and take full possession of the soul). Hence, says St Mary Peter, (Serm. de Annunciatione (c. 31), "If Her hands are a healthful healing." What are these hands, St. Lawrence of Brindisi (De B. Virg. Serm.) but the chains by which she keeps that one free from shameful bondage of the Blasphemous? Oh! if all men loved this amiable Queen, they would be preserved from all sin in their conduct, never would one of them fall into sin or suffer disgrace. Blessed are those who shall have placed in Mary their confidence

THE WEEK'S NEWS —FROM— IRELAND.

PARNELL ON CAREY AND NO. 1.

The Leptinian Chronicle publishes a long conversation, brought to the editor, M. Connolly, not the member for Cork. After declaring that he and his friends were opposed to any kind of violence, Mr. Parnell went on to say: "But the report which linked Lord Frederick Cavendish was publicly billed the Land League as a conspiracy against the life of a man who was a public benefactor, we were aware, when normal data, and we admitted its importance. Ireland, the conversation, it came to be kept in the dark and set up free. We said, 'Yes, we are subject such and such measures.' The resolutions of the Act of 1881 must not be hampered by the land courts, which are supposed with the task of giving them effect." We were in some degree the authors of the Arcadian, when four days later Lord Frederick Cavendish was assassinated. All the ground we had gained was then lost."

Asked what he considered to be the true remedy for Irish grievances, Mr. Parnell replied, "There is only one—Home Rule. We want to enjoy the rights which belong to us as much as the Irish subjects of the United Kingdom. We have had enough to be treated as pariahs. On my part I will be satisfied to be convinced that we shall finally gain our points, and that at no distant day. The member for Cork proceeded to explain that of the 103 Irish representatives in the House of Commons, twenty belonged to the landlords' party and were Conservatives, forty-three belonged to the Land League, and the rest to the "Home Children, "we to any other that would vote against

Poetry.

[For THE MONITOR.]

THE WALL OF THE RIVOTED.

We are going, we are going
Yeah yeah yeah, we are going land,
As I our hearts are breaking, breaking,
As we hand upon the shore
For our feet will never, never
Press our soil, never our spirits,
And our sinking tears are falling
Falling like the sinking rain.

We are going, we are going /
Yeah yeah yeah, where we were born,
Where we fondled all memoriam,
In our childhood's happy days,
From the cabin on the hillside,
From the home where we played plan
And the song of thrush and linnet,
We shall see home again.

We are going, we are going
Yeah yeah yeah, we are going
To a land we know not, land
That's known it seems to be Thy land, thy land, God bless them
Kept convention from our love,
Kept our hearts from breaking, breaking,
As we leave our native shore.

We are going, we are going
For never more, never more
From the mitred mit of Trident,
From our sainted kind forefathers graves,
From the hyperbolic tomb
Of the Wesleys, we shall see
From the field of Aquinas and Author
We are going, we are going.

We are going, we are going
Yeah yeah yeah, we are going
We are called from our birthplace
We are driven, and he is gone
Or the refuge have denied us
Or we have left the home
There to hop, oh, God of pity,
Pity, the children of a grave.

KATE E. QUIRLAN.

[For THE MONITOR.]

TO THE ARCHANGEL GABRIEL

Wa finally had then, Spirit bright,
Who hailed the Virgin "full of grace,"
Announced the Mother of our Lord
Announced the Saviour of our race!
Thy voice, Gabriel, was sweet
Thy tidings, Gabriel, was glad
Thy tidings, Gabriel, was glad
Thy tidings, Gabriel, was glad

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1883.

Money for Masses for the Dead.

During the past two weeks Finley has devoted a large portion of his sermons and speeches to criticisms upon the assertion that in the Catholic Church money is required in order to procure Masses for the dead. The case which gave rise to this outburst of a tempest upon the fact that an Eastern priest, whose dying, left a certain legacy to be expended upon Masses for the repose of his soul, and his estate falling into the hands of the Public Administrator gratuitous payment of the specified sum was denied, and suit had to be brought for the recovery of the amount thus specifically set apart by the deceased priest for this purpose. There are innumerable cases on record in nearly every Court calendar throughout the Eastern States where such cases have come up for adjudication, and they have been invariably decided in favor of the payment of the stipulated amount, for the reason that the fulfillment of the devisee's intention is a religious duty based upon one of the doctrines of the Catholic faith.

These decisions have appeared frequently in our columns, and, as a similar case was decided last week in Chicago, we may as well insert it here in order to enlighten Finley a little regarding the law of the land upon a subject regarding which he seems to entertain the most ignorant malice than manly intelligence:

"CHICAGO, May 7.—An interesting question in the legality of a devise by a testator of money to be used in masses for his soul, has been delivered by Judge Blodgett in the case of Richard T. Ryan against Michael Kennedy et al. The case was a bill to compel the Administrator of the Court to be complainant's duty as trustee in reference to certain funds remaining in his possession. John W. Ryan, a few weeks before his death, made a deed to Irish people in Ireland for personal property, on oral directions that the funds should be devoted to procuring Masses for the repose of the soul of Thomas F. Kehoe, and for the benefit of the grantor. The complainant, in his willingness to carry out the wishes of the testator but the defendants, the heirs of the deceased man, objected, claiming the trust was void and contrary to the laws of Illinois, and also because the funds were given for a superstitious or a purpose. The statutes of Illinois was relied on to sustain the first objection, but as that statute was not enacted until long after the death of Kehoe, the Court held that the trust was not void. Judge Blodgett, in his decision, said that, as the Illinois statutes had adopted the common law and statutes of England prior to the fourth year of James I., all trusts created for charitable purposes, superstitious and frivolous, with the decisions of the Court of Chancery in the reign of Queen Anne VI., holding that gifts or devises for procuring masses for the repose of the soul of a deceased person, would be followed by the Courts of this country. The question of the right of a Court of last resort had passed on the question.

"Judge Tuley expressed the decision of the Court of Appeals, that such dispositions were objectionable, but the decision was rendered by the Judge, because he was bound by the decisions of the Court of Appeals, and he could not be satisfied upon principle. The question was first decided in the case of Richard T. Ryan against Michael Kennedy et al. Father Kehoe against Michael Kennedy et al. Father Kehoe, Early to Pay, the Rev. Dr. Crolan, Archbishop of Cashel, leaves London on Thursday morning for Rome on a mission from the Holy Father to confer with his Holiness about Irish affairs. Rumors as to a Cardinal's hat are in the air. The compliment would be unquestionably greatest to Irish feeling, but it is a tribute to the greatest of Irish Bishops and as a triumphant refutation of the stupid slander that Irish Bishops can be bean the bearers of tribute to Rome."

This is the view taken of the great Prelate's visit to Rome in a nation where the priesthood elevated by the subjugated population and elevated by the Government have no rival whatever in their composition.

A Remarkably Stupid Slander.

In a recent number of the Reno Gazette the following allusion was made to the discussion then recently decided in favor of Mr. J. G. Fair:

"Mrs. Fair, née Hinn Rennay, has obtained a dispensation from the Pope, and it was not a good close of her attorney. She, being a pious Catholic, would not violate the canon prohibiting divorces, and it costs money to set aside the laws of the Church."

The Platymanias who perpetrated the above remarkably stupid slander against the Catholic Church is an ignorant and vicious vagabond whose falsehood is so palpable that it needs only to be read in order to meet the immediate condemnation of every intelligent person. What the Church refused to do for kings like Henry VIII. she will not do for anybody, nor could all the money in the Fair family procure the dissolution of the Church for either party to marry again as long as the other lives. The Church of God does not sell her Sacraments for gold. She blesses the matrimonial union of peasants and princes with the same nuptial blessing, and the binding obligation of marriage is a bond that cannot be broken even by human kings, no matter how many times they may crave on the Consecrated. It was necessary for Mrs. Fair to take legal steps to secure for herself and her children the legitimate share of the deceased's wealth, and this she could do without asking Pope or priest about it, but to say that "she got a dispensation to be divorced" is the acme of a double-dyed detractor prompted by the devil.

Death of Father Quigley.

There are many persons in this State who were acquainted with Father Hugh Quigley, author of "The Irish Man in California," and who will learn with regret that he died on April 30th, in Troy, New York. The deceased priest was born in county Clare, Ireland, in 1818. He was educated in the Catholic schools of Ireland and at the Irish College in Rome, and was ordained to the priesthood in that city. Upon coming to America, in 1847, he was placed in a large parish in Troy, and after ten years service he was called to Chicago as President of the University of St. Mary of the Lake, where he remained four years. The university had then arrived at a period of decay, and Dr. Quigley, despairing of building it up, went to Springfield, Ill., where he erected a church costing $90,000 and greatly advanced the interests of the Church in Central Illinois. He also secured the erection of churches at Jacksonville and other places. He next went among the Chippewa Indians on the banks of Lake Superior and remained for two years, learning their language and customs, and laboring to convert them to the Faith. Dr. Quigley next came to this State, where he labored in parishes at Colusa, Eureka, and this city, but the warm climate of the Pacific coast overcame him and he found himself attacked by diabetic and kidney complaints and was obliged to return East. He was the author of a number of Irish Catholic stories, among them the "Cross and the Shamrock," and the "Prophet of the Ruined Abbey."—R. I. P.

The New Catholic Temperance Movement.

The impetus given to the temperance movement by the influential co-operation of Bishop Ireland of Minnesota, has developed into the adoption in this country of the system pursued so successfully in England by Cardinal Manning, and generally known as "The League of the Cross." Chicago—which in many respects has earned the infamous renown of being the wickedest city in the world—was the first place wherein the new system of enlisting the unfortunate victims of King Alcohol under the ever-blessed banner of the Cross, was put into operation, and the success which the movement has met with there is something marvelous. Already over 7,000 Catholic men have enrolled themselves in the new League, which has been placed under the direction of Rev. Jas. M. Hayes, S. J., one of the Professors of St. Ignatius' College in that city, where—as a Chicago paper remarks—there are fully 72,000 drunkards.

In order that our readers may fully appreciate the extent of immorality which exists in Chicago, we append a few statistics from the Inter-Ocean, which says there are "Not more than 300 churches in the city of Chicago against 5,242 liquor licenses; more than 2,000 saloons and less than 400 clergymen, evangelists, and lay teachers; 1,000 school teachers, 500 policemen, and over 3,000 prostitutes; only 10 art galleries and 300 variety theatres; about 20 missions, but 120 fare banks and 1,000 houses of ill-fame; 12,870 places of intermediaries for the corruption of morals; or, to put the facts differently, of 100,000 buildings, 8,000 serve for immoral purposes; 11,500,000 are spent upon schools, $15,000,000 for liquor, $600,000 for our police, possibly $1,000,000 for religious worship and charity; $4,000,000 for that which destroys both body and soul.

We thought San Francisco presented a large field for the newspaper as any place above Hades, but from the foregoing figures we are now fully convinced that in the manufacture of criminals Chicago carries off the championship. And right here the question arises: Cannot the Catholic priests and people of San Francisco inaugurate a movement similar to that we have noted above? The States Prison, the Police Courts, the City Prison, and the House of Correction will contain scores of inmates who would never have known what crime was were' not for the curse of alcohol. Our Catholic men and women, boys and girls, in the daily police records, are arrested for crimes of drunkenness and disorder, yet one no action taken to shield and to save such victims of a raging thirst that foreshadows ignominious shame and eternal infamy.

There is no power on earth that can rescue a Catholic from drunkenness save the sacraments of the Church. All the civil remedies and Protestant plans may work well enough for those who are outside the pale of the Church, but the "League of the Cross" of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society are the sole support of the Catholic who wishes to lead a sober life but whose will requires to be strengthened by the invisible grace of God as it is permeates through the Catholic soul.

It is, therefore, in the name of those poor unfortunate souls that are now on the downward road to perdition that we ask Cannot something be done to save both the Church and society from the suffering and sorrowing entailed on both by means of this terrible, hell-born vice of intemperance? On this point, a short time since, Rt. Rev. Dr. Ryan, of St. Louis, in a letter on temperance delivered at Bay View, Wisconsin, and amongst other things: "Statistics show that over three-fourths of the crimes reported in our courts are due, directly or indirectly, to intemperance. Consequently three-fourths of the expense entailed by police forces, goals, reformatories, and such institutions are attributable to alcohol. A large part of the misfortunes of the Heroes of Labor in Boston undertook to find out accurately the full part which alcohol bears in producing crime. All the crimes in Suffolk county were traced to this origin, and it was found by twelve months that 86 per cent were due to alcoholic influence. The great misfortune is that we are so accustomed to it that we are not alarmed. Temperance tells the same tale. The people who belong to this class are the victims of alcohol, or their natural protectors are such. If the Irish people are no homes in America it is because of alcohol; even is not for that they would be among the most wealthy classes of the country. I know that 90 per cent of their vices are attributable to intemperance; so good are they when sober, so bad when intoxicated."

The evil is growing greater every hour, and the longer it is let to run its course the more difficult will be its suppression, but all good is possible with God, and we sincerely hope that He will inspire some enthusiastic soul to enter upon this mission of mercy, and thus earn for itself the eternal gratitude of the good and the everlasting blessing of Heaven.

—Recently at Saint Genie Lavai, near Lyons, France, died Very Rev. Brother Nectaire, Superior-General of the Christian Brothers. Early in the year the Rev Brother had left Lyons for the purpose of making a visit to the Holy See, to present his Holiness the Pope with a gold chalice, a gift from the Grand Lodge of Lyons, and to pay

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY—THE REFUGE OF SINNERS.

FOURTH ARTICLE.

The glorious St. Anselm thus discourses on our hopes of salvation: "The Mother of the God of Goodness, Mother and she who alone saves, of the God whom alone we fear; and in whom alone we hope, is our Mother. Our Judge adopt our Savior for our Brother! How then can we ever fail into despair since our salvation, as well as our reputation, depends on the will of our good Brother and of our good Mother? Will our good Brother who has redeemed us permit us to be eternally punished, and will our good Mother suffer her children whom Redeemer she has brought forth, to be damned? Impossible! remember how frater punit fratrem non quo redemit! Sum Mater damnari filius non, quorum ipse Redemptor genuit! Our great Mother will pray to her tender Son—our Brother for us. The merciful Son will readily hear the Mother for His own and her children whom He has redeemed! (Lib. de Excellent. B. Virgin Mariæ, Cap. 8). The most glorious Virgin Mary, the Mother of God, being most exalted than all the Saints, obtains more efficaciously than they whatever she publishes her for, for, says St. Bernardine of Siena (De Origine veritatis, sue divini amoris, serm. 1 art. 2. cap 2). Thus in the Canticles, addressed to her Mother have their full meaning only when understood to be addressed to the Solomon, Christ to His sacred Mother (S. Kings 2. 20). "My mother ask; for I must not turn away the face." My Mother ask whatever you wish, it is not proper for me to refuse you anything! Let us, then, with Mother presents herself to the Throne of her Son to ask for us poor mortals (we who are undeserving of anything but hell, she can always see over the Throne of her merciful Son, the wounds of Jesus, and does she know her power, and will does she know that with her heaven and hell are bound to be established sooner than that her adored Son would refuse her anything she would ask for!

Hence St. Bernardin of Siena remarks that we may be truth, if it is certain, as St. Bernard maintains (Homil. Super Missus est) that the Blessed Virgin has the supreme power of mediatrix, and that she is the mediatrix of all graces, as Pope Vincent Continuator, O. P. (Lib. 10. Dessert. 4. sup. 2. speculo. 2) the Word Lord, Who shall be given Himself to us and His was born for us; but the Mother of the Word is the Mother of all the love of Who is all owing to turn to us her merciful eyes. Yes, Mary is all ours, and although she is the Mother of God, she does not disdain to be called our Mother! Why should we not, continues St. John Damascene, please all our hope in you, O Mary, as in the course another? Why should we not love you, since we are the objects of your love? Why should we not venerate you since you are the Mother of God? Why should we not invoke you since we are so? Why should we not hope in you since you are the powerful protector? It is but right that we should be inflamed with zeal for her honor, and that our zeal should be strong, inseparable and constant; it is highly proper that it should be moved to perform great things, to undertake even the most difficult tasks, and to bear with the most trying annoyances for her honor. Our zeal for her should shield from no danger, obstacle should not check it, and it should constantly increase; it should not be terrified by opposition, nor become extinguished by persecutions, but it should under every kind of trials burn the stronger and become the more intense. Let us then cast ourselves in most earnest supplication at her feet, and let us cling to her and not let her go until we are blessed by her, for under her protection we are quite safe! She cannot reject her defenceless children, nor can she not meet with a refusal from her Son. Let us then have constant recourse to her for everything that concerns us, in our prayers, our business transactions, in our successes, in our adversities, dangers and trials. Never is our salvation so certain as when we are fully convinced that our salvation is in our hands, and in all that.

True devotion to Mary works wonders; it leads to a life of perfection, charity, purity, continency and penance; it makes us fly from sin, cease to to practice good works, and in fine, procures for us the gift of perseverance. Solid devotion to Mary is grave and stern; it never imparts to sinners a dangerous and false security; it does not violate the discipline of the Gospel; it gives no encouragement to the slothful or to the obstinate sinner; it is not satisfied with barely exterior compunction or rites (these are good, beautiful, praiseworthy when ordained by authority, and in a sense as they confuse to, or excite interior devotion), but it goes to the very marrow of all religious exercises, it makes us cling to Christ by a most orderly and religious life, and it enables us then to adore God in spirit and in truth. Sincere devotion to the Blessed Mother teaches us to fulfil as perfectly as possible for us, all duties to the Creator and the interior; it stands perfectly to the latter and by we means neglects the former. It makes us love Mary not only in words and by our lips, but in works and in truth. Our Mother's whole object is to produce servants who will realize the image of her Son, because true His image is in say one, the more she loves that servant. It proves true servants are so that they may fight valiantly she strengthens such combatants so that they may be victorious, and she gives to the most conquerors so that they may be crowned. It is impossible for a true servant of Mary to be lost eternally say St. Liguori, Antonino and Anselm; the same doctrine is taught under other forms of expression by many other theologians.

Hence, says Andrew of Crete, is the common mediatrix, the supplier of life, the life of the living and the hope of the living, says Vincent Continuator, O. P. (Lib. 10. Dessert. 4. sup. 2. speculo. 2) the Word Lord, Who shall be given Himself to us and His was born for us; but the Mother of the Word is the Mother of all the love of Who is all owing to turn to us her merciful eyes. Yes, Mary is all ours, and although she is the Mother of God, she does not disdain to be called our Mother! Why should we not, continues St. John Damascene, please all our hope in you, O Mary, as in the course another? Why should we not love you, since we are the objects of your love? Why should we not venerate you since you are the Mother of God? Why should we not invoke you since we are so? Why should we not hope in you since you are the powerful protector? It is but right that we should be inflamed with zeal for her honor, and that our zeal should be strong, inseparable and constant; it is highly proper that it should be moved to perform great things, to undertake even the most difficult tasks, and to bear with the most trying annoyances for her honor. Our zeal for her should shield from no danger, obstacle should not check it, and it should constantly increase; it should not be terrified by opposition, nor become extinguished by persecutions, but it should under every kind of trials burn the stronger and become the more intense. Let us then cast ourselves in most earnest supplication at her feet, and let us cling to her and not let her go until we are blessed by her, for under her protection we are quite safe! She cannot reject her defenceless children, nor can she not meet with a refusal from her Son. Let us then have constant recourse to her for everything that concerns us, in our prayers, our business transactions, in our successes, in our adversities, dangers and trials. Never is our salvation so certain as when we are fully convinced that our salvation is in our hands, and in all that.

True devotion to Mary works wonders; it leads to a life of perfection, charity, purity, continency and penance; it makes us fly from sin, cease to to practice good works, and in fine, procures for us the gift of perseverance. Solid devotion to Mary is grave and stern; it never imparts to sinners a dangerous and false security; it does not violate the discipline of the Gospel; it gives no encouragement to the slothful or to the obstinate sinner; it is not satisfied with barely exterior compunction or rites (these are good, beautiful, praiseworthy when ordained by authority, and in a sense as they confuse to, or excite interior devotion), but it goes to the very marrow of all religious exercises, it makes us cling to Christ by a most orderly and religious life, and it enables us then to adore God in spirit and in truth. Sincere devotion to the Blessed Mother teaches us to fulfil as perfectly as possible for us, all duties to the Creator and the interior; it stands perfectly to the latter and by we means neglects the former. It makes us love Mary not only in words and by our lips, but in works and in truth. Our Mother's whole object is to produce servants who will realize the image of her Son, because true His image is in say one, the more she loves that servant. It proves true servants are so that they may fight valiantly she strengthens such combatants so that they may be victorious, and she gives to the most conquerors so that they may be crowned. It is impossible for a true servant of Mary to be lost eternally say St. Liguori, Antonino and Anselm; the same doctrine is taught under other forms of expression by many other theologians.

Hence, says Andrew of Crete, is the common mediatrix, the supplier of life, the life of the living and the hope of the living, says Vincent Continuator, O. P. (Lib. 10. Dessert. 4. sup. 2. speculo. 2) the Word Lord, Who shall be given Himself to us and His was born for us; but the Mother of the Word is the Mother of all the love of Who is all owing to turn to us her merciful eyes. Yes, Mary is all ours, and although she is the Mother of God, she does not disdain to be called our Mother! Why should we not, continues St. John Damascene, please all our hope in you, O Mary, as in the course another? Why should we not love you, since we are the objects of your love? Why should we not venerate you since you are the Mother of God? Why should we not invoke you since we are so? Why should we not hope in you since you are the powerful protector? It is but right that we should be inflamed with zeal for her honor, and that our zeal should be strong, inseparable and constant; it is highly proper that it should be moved to perform great things, to undertake even the most difficult tasks, and to bear with the most trying annoyances for her honor. Our zeal for her should shield from no danger, obstacle should not check it, and it should constant-

MISCELLANEOUS.

TIN! ASPHALTUM!!

ROOFS Five Rounds at Lower Rates. Old Roofs Repaired. And GUARANTEED when as mentioned for MY MARKET STREET ROOF CANNOT LEAK.

H. G. FISKE.

THE CATHOLIC

Mutual Beneficial ASSOCIATION

OF THE

Archdiocese of San Francisco.

President - - Rev. J. B. McNally.

THIS ASSOCIATION HAS NOW BEEN IN EXISTENCE for three years and has already enrolled upon its books fully

TWELVE HUNDRED MEMBERS.

It has $16,000 in its treasury, and no assessment has been levied during that time. The rapidity with which it has increased and the good it has done, have been unexampled by any other society. Its success is due to the fact that it is to which Catholics can invest a small amount in order to insure to their families, or relatives an adequate amount after their decease.

Subject and Obedient Association

The association insures the lives of all Catholics, between the ages of 18 and 50 years, and it has received the approbation of his Grace Archbishop Alemany, O. P. who has recommended the association of Catholics by nearly every pastor of the city and suburbs, and is nearly every other diocese of the coast.

The office of the association is located at No. 418 Montgomery street (under the Continental Hotel) where the Secretary will be in attendance every evening (except Sunday) from 7 to 9 o'clock, to receive applications, issue certificates, and give all needed information. Written communications should be addressed to EDWARD OLIVER, SECRETARY, 1710 Jones Street.

INSURANCE.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA.

FIRE AND MARINE.

Capital fully paid $200,000 00
Assets January 1, 1881 ..... 776,275 76
Losses paid since organ. 967,856 70

PRINCIPAL OFFICE,

405 California Street, S. F.

JOHN H. WISE, President.
CHAS. A. LATON Secretary.

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE.

UNION INSURANCE COMPANY OF SAN FRANCISCO, THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS, ESTABLISHED IN 1861.

Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.

CAPITAL ..... $750,000 GOLD

PAID BATH.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES.

DIRECTORS:

R. S. Brewster, S. P. Taylor, James Moffit, D. O. Kinne, M. J. O'Connor, J. Mehrten, Daniel Meyer, Alfred Cowgill, Charles Keith, Andrew Scott, Robert Ross, Sherman Day, Rodolph Dean, J. Lawrence Pool, W. H. Chapman, N. S. Bloss, Nicholas Luning, John Parrott, James Moffit, D. O. Kinne, M. D'Ancona, Joseph Brandenstein, Gustave Touchard, J. G. Kittle, Jas. Phelan, J. H. Dillon, Charles Duan, J. M. Hale, William Scholle, John Conly, J. O. Eldridge.

A. P. HALLINAN, GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, President.
Vice-President.

N. S. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BAILEY, Secretary.
GEO. T. BODIEN, Surveyor.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

M. C. HASSETT, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, PHELAN'S BUILDING, Rooms 119 and 121. Take Elevator.

CLARA S. FOLTZ, Attorney-at-Law, 321 Montgomery Street, Stephenson Block, San Francisco. HOURS 10 & 17.

JNO. F. NAUGHTON, Attorney at Law, 14 DUPONT ST., Central Block. Room 47.

E. A. & G. E. LAWRENCE, Attorneys and Counsellors at Law, 916 California St., San Francisco.

General law practice in the country and city; first class opinions; year on titles; assist in trying cases; prepare briefs; collections promptly made. Mr. E. A. Lawrence has practiced in New York City 7 years.

M. COONEY, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, 466 Kearny street, cor. Pine. Rooms 3 and 4. ..... San Francisco.

JOHN M. BURNETT, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, Rooms 1 and 2, 507 Montgomery street, cor. Sacramento San Francisco.

LAW OFFICE OF HENRY PERRY 320 Montgomery Street, Rooms 12 and 13. San Francisco.

WM. W. BISHOP, Attorney at Law, 324 PINE STREET, ROOMS 1, 2, AND 3. Dividend Building.

A. H. LOUGHBOROUGH, Law Office, N. W. Cor. Sacramento and Montgomery Streets.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.

SANTA CLARA - - - - CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a second and finishing education. One feature in particular that should recommend this Academy, is its influence exclusively from the pupils to views and habits of economy and to render them useful members of society in after years.

The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.

Pupils are received at any period of the year.

TERMS:

Per quarter, payable in advance.

Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.

Bonpl, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding...$40
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.

French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 7th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE

SANTA CLARA, ... CALIFORNIA

THE THIRTY-SECOND ANNUAL SESSION will commence Tuesday, August 8th. This institution was founded in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated with the privileges of a University. It occupies an elevated and healthy situation, and combines the advantages of City life with those of a country residence. The course of instruction is thorough, in all the Departments. Every facility will be afforded to students who may but it desirable to devote their whole time to one study or any of the branches.

The scholastic year begins on the first Monday in August and closes about the first week in June. Pupils are received at any period of the year.

TERMS:

Per quarter, (payable in advance.)

Boarding, Tuition in English, French, and Latin, Washing and Mending of Linen, Bedding and Bed Linen, per session $150

Music, Piano lessons, with use of instrument 20
Music, Guitar lessons, with use of instrument 10
Drawing, Painting in Water Colors, per session 20
Painting in Oil, per session 20
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.

For further particulars address the President of Santa Clara College, Santa Clara Co., Cal.

REV. J. VINCENTI, S. J., President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.

Conducted by the Christian Bros.

Fifth and Jackson Sts. OAKLAND, CAL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING and Day School, up to the Academic Course, and is adapted to supply the comfort and adequate attention to the physical and moral education of the pupils.

Parents and guardians, desirous of sending their sons to a Boarding school, should not, with this object, to be convinced that the Institution properly fills the place of a well-regulated system of family life.

Students are received at any time during the year, but not for a shorter period than one term of the scholastic year.

TERMS:

(Payment in U. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance)

Board, Washing and Tuition, per term of 5 months, $125
Bed and bedding, each 10
Entrance Fee (payable but once) 10

REV. CLAVAN, Director

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Conducted by the Christian Bros.,

Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

THOSE WHO COMPLETE THE CLASSICAL Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in a short time or at small cost.

While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The Rhetorical Course has been built up; in fine, it is through this that the Young Man of life is given to so many unfortunate creatures who had deserved damnation, but who, for a time, by some certain guarantee that devotion to the Mother of God will procure for us Paradise! We pray the Holy Mother of God to intercede for the faithful who honor her, and who are called to her special service to propagate devotion to her: hear then the concluding words of our Mother: "He that harkeneth to me, shall not be confounded; and they that work by me, shall not sin. They that explain me shall have life everlasting." (Ecclesiastes xxiv. 30—31).

Happy then those who will have the friendship of Mary, exclaims St. Bonaventure (Speculi); the blessed in Heaven even now regard them as their companions, and whoever carries the livery of Mary will have his name written in the Book of Life. Why should we allow our minds to be disquieted by the vain dispute that are agitated in the schools? What difference does it make to know whether Predestination precedes or follows the foreknowledge of merits, and whether we are inscribed or not on the Book of Life? Let us be servants of Mary and we shall be infallibly of the number of the elect. Let us listen to the prudent counsel of our Lord Himself made in the Apocalypse to us (3. 12): "He that shall overcome, I will make him a pillar in the temple of my God; and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the City of my God." This City of God of which so many wonderful things are said, is no other, according to St. Gregory, than the most pure Mary. We can well say with St. Paul that those who have been called, are those predestined by God as his own. The servants of Mary will be not only the most privileged on earth, but they will also be the most exalted in glory, and, according to Father Nicrembergh, they will use distinctive marks which will cause them to be recognized as servants of the Queen and as belonging to her saint.

St. Magdalen de Pazzi saw in the midst of the sun a back that served as a refuge for all the servants of Mary, and she also beheld the Queen of Heaven setting as piles of stones, and guiding them without accident to the harbor (in ejus vita.) By this vision the Saint was given to understand that those who live under the protection of the Mother of God, have not to fear the double shipwreck of sin and eternal damnation! It is no sure to enter this blessed bark of deliverance but the Queen of Heaven is ever to remain there as in a place of security, since the Church herself thus addresses the Holy Virgin: "All those who will have their habitation in you, O Holy Mother of God, shall be in you—their inexhaustible dominion habitation in, Sancta Dei Genetrix."

—It seems almost useless to say anything in the way of recommendation to our readers in order to induce them to purchase their groceries from the old established and popular House of Shannon & Co., 531 Washington street, as the merits of the house are well known, and people they give, and the low price they sell at—should induce everybody to deal with them even if from no other motive than that of economy, as money can be saved every week by patronizing Shannon & Co.

Cut This Out

If you want to buy your groceries at lower figures than elsewhere just send for our price list, and you will find it to your advantage. Shannon & Hanley, 1236 Market street near 9th. S. F.

EDUCATIONAL.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE Sisters of St. Dominic,

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS INSTITUTION, HEALTHFULLY LOCATED in the Mission District, affords every facility for the acquisition of a refined and solid education.

The Academic year consists of two terms of 5 months each.

TERMS:

Boarding, Tuition and English Tuition, per quarter $60 00
Bed and Bedding 10 00
Washing 10 00

EXTRAS:

Lithographs, (each) $10
Use of Piano 15 00
Vocal Lessons in Class 10 00
Drawing and Painting in Water Color 5 00
Drawing and Painting in Oil 5 00
Vocal Lessons 10 00

DAY PUPILS:

Preparatory Class, per month $1 00
Junior 1 50
Senior 2 00
Use of Piano for Practice 1 00

Each young lady is required to be provided with two dresses, one of mourning, the other of a lighter color, a dressing gown, four sheets, four pillow slips, six towels, six napkins, one mattress, two pillows, four blankets, four table napkins, one bath, silver goblet, fork, spoon, and napkin ring.

Simplicity of dress enforced by rule.

Pupils of any religious denomination will be received. Care and attention will be given to the preservation of the religious sentiments of the institution.

The Catechism of Christian Doctrine will be subject to the instruction of the Superintendent.

For further particulars address

SISTER SUPERIOR

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME

OF SAN FRANCISCO,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME

THIS INSTITUTION, FOUNDED IN 1851, and incorporated in 1855 by Act of the Legislature of the State of California, and empowered to confer Academic Honors, is situated on Hayes street, opposite the Old Mission Church.

The course of instruction embraces all the branches necessary to the acquisition of a solid and refined education.

TERMS:

Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per annum $250 00

EXTRA CHARGES.

Piano, with use of instrument per annum $60 00
Vocal Music, Private Lessons 50 00
Vocal Music, Class 10 00
Painting in Water Colors, per annum 50 00
Painting in Oil, per annum 50 00
Vocation spent at the Village 50 00
Graduating Fee 10 00

Physician's Fee (in case of sickness).

Pupils may enter at any time and are payable at the beginning of each half session, in advance.

SELECT DAY SCHOOL.

Terms per month (in advance.)

Tuition in the 1st and 2d College Classes $6 00
Tuition in the 3d and 4th College Classes 8 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes 4 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes 3 00
Tuition in the 3d and 4th Intermediate Classes 2 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes 1 50
Music (Vocal and Instrumental) Drawing, Painting and French Elocution lessons form extra charges, as in Boarding Schools, but lessons in French and Spanish are given gratis throughout; as also in Plain and Fancy Needlework.

N. B.—A private conveyance is furnished, at reasonable rates, for the accommodation of pupils residing in distant parts of the city.

SCHOOL OF THE HOLY CROSS.

A Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies,

CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF CHARITY of Santa Cruz, Santa Cruz Co., Cal.

For further particulars address the Superintendent.

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE,

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

CHARTERED IN 1869, AND CONDUCTED by the Fathers of the Congregation of the Mission. Terms for scholastic year, $200. For further particulars address

THE PRESIDENT.

Convent of the Immaculate Heart of Mary,

SAN LUIS OBISPO - - CALIFORNIA

BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG Ladies, conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

This house is the Novitiate of the order.

SISTER RAYMONDE CREMADELL, Princess

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME

SAN JOSE ..... CALIFORNIA

THIS INSTITUTION, OFFERING THE similar advantages to young ladies wishing to receive a solid and refined education, was founded in 1851. In 1855, it was incorporated by the Legislature of the State of California, and empowered to confer academic honors, and to grant diplomas and certificates of merit, and to exercise all the rights and privileges of Collegiate Institutions.

It occupies large buildings, with extensive playgrounds, and possesses every thing to make a home healthy and attractive. The course of instruction is thorough, in all the Departments. Every facility will be afforded to students who may but it desirable to devote their whole time to one study or any of the branches.

The scholastic year begins on the first Monday in August and closes about the first week in June. Pupils are received at any period of the year.

TERMS:

Per quarter, (payable in advance.)

Boarding, Tuition in English, French, and Latin, Washing and Mending of Linen, Bedding and Bed Linen $150 00

Music, Piano lessons, with use of instrument 20 00
Music, Guitar lessons, with use of instrument 10 00
Drawing, Painting in Water Colors 20 00
Painting in Oil, per lesson 1 00
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.

For further particulars address

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME, San Jose

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES,

BENICIA ..... CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Charity. It is pleasantly situated in the healthy and accessible town of Benicia. The next scholastic year commences on monday, August 1st, and ends about the 1st of June.

TERMS:

(Payable half yearly).

Board and Tuition $225
Entrance Fee 10
Washing 45
Music, Drawing, Painting and Use of Piano form extra charges.

Office hours, 10 to 12 and 2 to 4.

THE GREAT CONVENIENCE OF THE NEW YORK CATHOLIC AGENCY is now in the selling of any ticket, making any reservation, buying one second, selling one second class ticket, or any other business pertaining to railroad or steamship lines (generally less than when selecting direct from agents), and receiving the same at reasonable rates, or public business connecting personal and general business, and the business of this agency is equal to any agency in the city.

PETER J. MOLLOY, Gen. Agent, 128 Chambers st., New York.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TRUMAN, ISHAM & CO.

Price's San Leandro Village Cabinet Dederick Hay Presses!

Randolph Hoodless

FARM AND FREIGHT WAGONS!

Write for prices before you buy.

TRUMAN, ISHAM & CO.

569 Market Street, San Francisco.

LA GRANDE LAUNDRY

PRINCIPAL OFFICE,

648 MARKET STREET

BRANCHES,

1132 Market and 212 Dupont Sts.

LAUNDRY,

13th St., bet. Folsom and Howard, S. F.

MRS. JEROME DEASY,

CENTRAL

Floral Depot

736 Market St.

Bouquets, Crosses and Cut Flowers constantly on hand.

Choice and Wedding Decorations Made to Order.

SAN FRANCISCO AND NORTH PACIFIC RAILROAD.

Boats and Trains will leave San Quentin as follows:

7.05 A. M. Daily (Sundays excepted), via Tomales and Duncans Mills, for Cazadero and intermediate points.

2.45 P. M. Daily (Sundays excepted), for Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Healdsburg, Cloverdale, Ukiah, Willits, Sherwoods, and all intermediate points.

4.50 P. M. Daily, Sundays excepted, via San Rafael, for Novato, Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Healdsburg, Lytton, Geyserville, Cloverdale, Ukiah, Willits, Sherwoods, and all intermediate points.

5.20 A. M. (Sundays only), via Tomales and Duncans Mills, for Cazadero and intermediate points.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONS.

8.20 A. M. (Sundays only), via Tomales and Duncans Mills, for Cazadero and intermediate points. Returning, will arrive at San Rafael at 6.50 P. M.

PETER J. MOLLOY, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt.

ARTHUR HUGHES, Gen. Manager.

WITH

FIVE DOLLARS

YOU CAN BUY A WHOLE INTERNAL REVENUE

100 FLORINS GOVERNMENT BOND

Which bonds are issued and secured by the Government and are redeemable in gold.

FOUR TIMES ANNUALLY

Until such and every bond is drawn, with a chance of a premium, every bond must gain or lose.

THE THREE HIGHEST PRIZES AMOUNT TO

200,000 FLORINS,
100,000 FLORINS,
50,000 FLORINS.

And bonds not drawing one of the above prizes are given a Premium which will be drawn THIRTY

200 Florins.

The next drawing takes place on the

1ST OF JUNE, 1882

Every bond which does not win a prize in the above premium drawing must gain a premium. Every bond never gives a loser. Every bond must win.

Agents wanted everywhere. Large profits will be made by the purchasers of these bonds. For further information address

INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO.

307 Broadway, cor. Pulitzer St., New York City.

Established in 1874.

N. B.—In ordering, state whether you want 100 or 50 Florin Bonds.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DR. WOOD'S Liver Regulator,

AND

Universal Vegetable Panacea

OF CONCENTRATED EXTRACTS.

Selected and compounded from among the many Herbs and Plants of NATURE'S GREAT BOTANIC GARDEN!

For the Speedy Cure of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Costiveness, Piles, Fever and Ague, Dropsyia, Jaundice, Chills and Fever, Disordered Digestion, Flatulency and Acidity, Sour Stomach, Sick Headache, Nervous Headache, Gas from the Stomach, Sick Headache, Female complaints, Jaundice and General Debility.

Sold by druggists everywhere, in 50 cent and $1 bottles.

MERRELL & CO., WEST POINT, N. Y.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Manufactured by the Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co. (Formerly Vanduzen & Tift.) Cincinnati, O.

BLYMYER MFG CO BELLS.

Schools, Churches, Factories, Farms, Plantations, Fire Alarms, Chimes, Chimes, Tolls, Etc. Catalogue sent free. Cincinnati, O.

Solo Agents, WEED & KINGWELL, 125 First Street, S. F.

WEED & KINGWELL, CALIFORNIA BRASS WORKS

125 First Street, S. F.

BRASS SHIP WORK, SPIKES, SHEATHING NAILS, BUTTONS, BRACKETS, Etc.

Brass, Composition, Zinc and Babbit Metal Castings, Steamboat and CHURCH BELLS.

Agents for Roberts Eureka Lubricator.

MONITOR MENTION.

Centuries ago the city of Rome was saved the cackling of geese, and now a Baltimore lady has emulated their example. Two men broke into that city with the object of robbing citizens, when the master, seeing what was afoot, crowed so lustily that the owner got to the rescue and had the two men arrested for charge of larceny.

Best Pictures taken at the Imperial, 724 Market street.

The best Teas and Coffees are sold at the Store, 147 Third st., bet. Howard and Folsom.

Carpet-beating and whitening, 333 Tyler, bet. Hayes and Fulton and Telegraph avenue, near Gough.

Teeth extracted—painlessly without pain. Freeman, 1001 Market st., cor. Sixth.

New silverware, granite toilets, John F. Myers, 10 Market street.

Ammen—Ammen's Cough Syrup.

Ammen's Cough Syrup.

Ammen's Cough Syrup.

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM—
IRELAND.

ANOTHER VICTIM FOR THE GALLOWS

Kelly Convicted and Sentenced.

DUBLIN, May 8.—The third trial of Timothy Kelly, charged with participation in the murder of Cavendish and Burke was concluded to-day. The jury found a verdict of guilty against the prisoner, and he was sentenced to be hanged. The jury deliberated an hour. Kelly will be hanged on June 9th. Kelly, on being sentenced, exclaimed, "I am innocent; I think my jury lies." He thanked his counsel for their exertions on his behalf, and hoped they might live long to defend the innocent.

Brady's Doom Discussed.

NEW YORK, May 12.—A special cablegram from Dublin states that the authorities are alarmed at the approaching anniversary of Brady, the foe of the Phœnix Park; so guards are to suffer the penalty of death.

Every effort on the part of the press to secure admission to the execution has proved unavailing, as the Irish Executive steadily refuses to allow any except official witnesses at the hanging. Several journals have applied to Sir Wm. Harcourt, but the Home Secretary supports the refusal on ground of public expediency. It is understood that the government hopes by having the ceremony as secret as possible, to make Brady's death at inconsiderable as possible, and to prevent his case from one of martyrdom. The Wicklow Sentinel has been ordered suppressed for three months, and while no evidence has been given that any subscribers will be made, the proprietors are hopefully informed that no subscribers will be made. There is a general feeling of contempt for the action of the Dublin Castle of late, both in Ireland and in England, and it is said that Cheap and not Brady seems to be the object of the hangman's wrath on Monday morning. The members of Parliament who have signed a protest to the government will this morning when to bore the ordeal of hearing breathed.

Sentiment in English Revolt.

DUBLIN, May 14.—Lord Bandon has resigned his seat in the House of Lords, and a number of Parliament for Waterford City, at a meeting held in the Irish National League in Dublin, on Monday, Wednesday, 4,000 persons being present, passed resolutions to the effect that the Parliament which brought into the Union to withdraw the prime from politics. Mr. Sigerson, Erinnach, in a rousing second speech.

Fenian Sympathy in England.

LONDON, May 14.—Lord Brougham has been privately acquainted with every English movement in the Irish Nation, the result of which certain clauses of the Irish clergy for taking a retainer for the Fenian Brotherhood, and recommend the order prohibiting the elevation to the episcopate of any priest who indulges in political affairs. Lord Brougham at one time very violently opposed to part relative to Irish Government's bill forbidding the Irish clergy to interfere in any way by politics.

MULLET'S FATE DECIDED.

Sentenced to Transportation for Life.

DUBLIN, May 16.—In the trial of Mullet for the murder of Arthur Power, on the night of May, Porter read extracts from the diary kept by Mullet. One of the entries was, "Arrived at home, met the house of Arthur Power, and shot him." Mullet, who was a boy, by the prisoner, said, "I meant, which was a boy, by the prisoner." Mullet, who was a boy, by the prisoner, said, "I meant, which was a boy, by the prisoner." Mullet, who was a boy, by the prisoner." Mullet, who was a boy, by the prisoner." Mullet, who

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM—
IRELAND.

ANOTHER VICTIM FOR THE GALLOWS

Kelly Convicted and Sentenced.

DUBLIN, May 9.—The third trial of Timothy Kelly, charged with participation in the murder of Cavendish and Burke was concluded to-day. The jury found a verdict of guilty against the prisoner, and he was sentenced to be hanged. The jury deliberated an hour. Kelly will be hanged on June 9th. Kelly, on being sentenced, exclaimed, "I am innocent; I shall suffer my last." He thanked his counsel for their exertions on his behalf, and hoped they might live long to defend the innocent.

Brady's Doom Threatened.

NEW YORK, May 13.—A special cablegram from Dublin states that the old Lamey, the member of the Parliament for Waterford City, at a meeting held in that place, National League in Dungarvan, Tuesday Wednesday, 4,000 persons being present, denounced Brady, the assassin, who had sought to induce the Fenians to withdraw the notice from publication. He stigmatized Brady as a cowardly scoundrel, and said he was not worth a cowardly scoundrel, and said he was not worth a cowardly scoundrel popularity.

It is generally believed in Dublin that he has relatively considerable with every English movement in the Irish Potens, the result of the conflict of certain classes of the Irish clergy for influence and popularity, and the Parnellite party, which has secured the order prohibiting the elevation to the episcopacy of any priest who takes part in political affairs. Lord Hartington at one time very seriously considered the question of the Irish Government's bill holding, when to have the ordeal of another Brady.

BULLETS FATE DECIDED.

Sentenced to Transportation for Life.

DUBLIN, May 12.—The trial of Mallon for Lacy, Porter and others from the diary kept by Carey, Mallon, Fitzgerald and others, in behalf of prisoner, and he was sentenced to be hanged. The jury deliberated an hour. Kelly will be hanged on June 9th. Kelly, on being sentenced, exclaimed, "I am innocent; I shall suffer my last." He thanked his counsel for their exertions on his behalf, and hoped they might live long to defend the innocent.

Brady's Doom Threatened.

NEW YORK, May 13.—A special cablegram from Dublin states that the old Lamey, the member of the Parliament for Waterford City, at a meeting held in that place, National League in Dungarvan, Tuesday Wednesday, 4,000 persons being present, denounced Brady, the assassin, who had sought to induce the Fenians to withdraw the notice from publication. He stigmatized Brady as a cowardly scoundrel popularity.

It is generally believed in Dublin that he has relatively considerable with every English movement in the Irish Potens, the result of the conflict of certain classes of the Irish clergy for influence and popularity, and the Parnellite party, which has secured the order prohibiting the elevation to the episcopacy of any priest who takes part in political affairs. Lord Hartington at one time very seriously considered the question of the Irish Government's bill holding, when to have the ordeal of another Brady.

A Warning to Jurors.

Nearly all the tenantmen of Dublin have received a circular from the Land League, with special notice on sixteen trials under the Crimes Act. Along with the circular was a slip containing these words: "Woe to you if you have anything to do with these juries! Woe to you! Miseries they will have the blood and sufferings of innocent men on their hands. The day was signed by Brady or Crook." A committee has been appointed by the Land League on the part of the friends of Irish prisoners.

— An ancient life of St. Patrick, in Latin, has recently been brought to light in a manuscript in the Royal Library, Brussels, which formerly belonged to an Irish monastery at Wurzburg. It is stated that it supplies the lost 12 part of the life of St. Patrick which has long been missing from the Book of Armagh.

Unfortunate Italy.

ITALIANS FLEEING FROM THEIR FAMINE-STRICKEN LAND.

Starvation Beneath Sunny Skies.

WHAT THE RUBBER KING HAS ACCOMPLISHED.

Rain and Desolation in a Land of Plenty.

The following article translated from the Popolo Italiano of Turin, fully bears out the misery in Italy so graphically sketched by the MONITOR'S Roman correspondent a few months ahead:

Misery, such as in Italy was never before heard of, makes those who suffer from it sigh for times gone by and cause that liberty which has alone known how to bring them greater sorrow, after having helped them with a desire to live better, instead of which they are dying of hunger. It is a saying shame to the supporters of United Italy to permit for one moment an appeal to the past. What!are the detested, the execrated Bourbons preferable to the House of Savoy! How is it that which we have in common government it was unknown what democracy, equality, and fraternity were to be enjoyed at the banquet, while the torch of liberty inspires so many noble words, and has danced up with the most splendid propositions, when the cry is heard from pole to pole "We are all brothers," and there cannot but be reconciliation between capital and labor, between rich and poor, nothing but harmony among all ranks of society, between governments and the governed—at this very time we see misery, misery, misery, and the chronicles of the most desolating character. If the nothing claims in the great cities can life tolerably well, outside of them, in the country, it is a hell, the horrors of which are warning. Everywhere we find the struggle for life, which is not short by the pallages, want of food and of wholesome dwellings. When co-operative and other societies could in part relieve this distress by procuring better food, unadulterated, not falsified, even this beneficent concession is contested by persons who can dream of nothing but lucre and money, who would want more from the pockets of those who already contribute so much.

LET US LISTEN, THEN, TO THE CRY OF MISERY OR DESPAIR.

Cogio (Calabria).—"In the plains of Palmi, on account of the failure of the crops, want knocks at the doors of those who until lately found themselves in good circumstances. No hope at present have that unfortunate population of being able to obtain wherewith to keep them alive. Seven or more thousand workmen are out of employment; and the local proprietors are without funds and cannot assist them."

Modigliana.—"Our little town is in a state of siege, and the cause is easily known. It is in the usual agrarian agitation, but the agitators are not what people imagine, they make them out—journals forever bringing up the spectre of Socialism and its inevitable consequences. But there is nothing of the sort here in a bad sense, as these people have understood the word. There is want of work, and in consequence want of bread, and of this even the communicator sent by the Minister of the Interior might have convinced himself; and, even if work were not so deficient, the pressure given for it is so small that the situation would still remain much the same. Thus a little, how can a family live on wages which vary from 60 to 70 centesimi (6d to 7d) the day! The cambiatore, the soldiers, the police may suppress the agitation, prevent it from coming to a head; but, alas! suppression in Trieste, Cascade Wet. Ind.

October 30, 1881.

MESSRS. PLEMING BROS.:
Gents—Your Bitters are right, and I can say they are a good medicine to me. Dr. Lane's prescriptions have failed to do me any good. Your Bitters have done me more than any thanks to another, and I can say I am now in good health and able to sell. Out of my neighbors got three pills. He is a cripple with the rheumatism and could not work for him. So experience, I will do all I can to introduce Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills and Hectored by Fleming Brothers. You will find my name on the enclosed circular. Send me 1 doz. I wish you success. Inclose me a number of your Pamphlets. Yours, with respect,
WM. H. DEGAN.

Please send more.

West Smithfield, N. Y.
October 27, 1881.

Fleming Brothers:

Dear Sirs—Enclosed you will find one dollar for which you will please send one more of your Liver Pills. I have sold a few boxes of them and they are the best I have ever sold. I have tried better one than I have for two years past. Send them soon. Many buyers.

Yours, Respectfully,
REV. T. J. SCANTS,
West Smithfield, N. Y.

FRATINGER & CO.,
CLOAK and SUIT HOUSE.

Tailor-made Jackets in Cloth.
Tailor-made Jackets in Velvet.
Tailor-made Jackets in Ottoman Silk.
Tailor-made Jackets in Diagonal Silk.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Garnet.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Grey.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Cardinal.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Garnet.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Claret.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Dark Pink.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Pale Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Forest Green.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Cardinal Red.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Crushed Strawberry.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Green Cloth.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Shrimp Pink.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in the New Tan Color
Ladies' Satin Walking Skirts in Black.
Ladies' Satin Walking Skirts in all Colors.
Ladies' Persian Dolmans.
Ladies' Colored Dolmans.
Ladies' Seal Plush Jersey Ulsters.
Children's Kate Greenaway Ulsters.

Ladies' Woolen Suits ..... $ 5 00
Ladies' Woolen Suits 7 00
Ladies' Flannel Suits 7 00
Ladies' Black Cashmere Suits 12 00
Ladies' Black Silk Suits 15 00
Ladies' Black Satin Suits 18 00
Ladies' Cloth Jackets, Spring Style 2 00
Ladies' Cloth Jackets, Spring Style 3 00
Ladies' Cloth Ulsters, Spring Style 4 00
Ladies' Cloth Ulsters, Spring Style 5 00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed 6 00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed 7 50
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed 10 00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Chenille Fringe 12 50
Ladies' Black Mantle, Chenille Fringe 15 00
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 7 50
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 10 00
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 12 50
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 17 50
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 20 00
Ladies' Brocade Pelisses, Lace Trimmed 25 00
Ladies' Brocade Pelisses, Lace Trimmed 30 00
Ladies' Satin Pelisses, Lace Trimmed 30 00
Ladies' Satin Pelisses, Lace Trimmed 35 00
Ladies' Linen Ulsters from 1 00
Ladies' Mohair Ulsters 4 50

FRATINGER & CO.,
THE LEADING CLOAK AND SUIT HOUSE,
105 KEARNY ST.

Hard Times Scared to Death.

WHERE TO BUY CLOTHING.

200 PAIRS MEN'S ALL-WOOL HEAVY PANTS for all $2.50. 100 dark-color working Pants, $1.75. 500 working Pants at $1. 100 German Cassimere Pants at $2.50. 1000 pairs Dress Pants from 50 upwards, latest styles and colors. Men's working Suits for $6.50. 16-spread Extra for $10. All-wool Cassimere Suits, $10. Business Suits, $12, $15, $17, $18 and $20. Dress Suits from $22 up. Boys' Suits, 4 to 15 years, from $5 up. Boys' Suits, 3 to 15 years, from $3 up. Boys' Suits, 11 to 19 years, from $6 up. Youths' Suits from $6.50 to $12. 500 pairs Boys' Short Pants from $1 up, with patches for mending. Boys' Long Pants from $1.50 up.

Everything for Boys' and Men's wear can be bought cheaper of

HEIMAN BROS.,
Popular One-Price Clothiers,
1026 to 1030 Market St.

THE LARGE STORE, 873 Market Street
— WITH A LINE OF —
GENT'S "N" BOY'S CLOTHING, Furnishing Goods, HATS, CAPS, ETC.

Having been in this business many years, we can promise the all our goods will be as represented.

We buy for Cash and sell as low as possible.

CARROLL & TILTON,
873 Market Street, Opp. Powell.
And late with JONES & CO.

HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK COMPANY.
— MANUFACTURERS OF —
Hall's Patent & Fire Burglar Proof Safes,
211 and 213 California Street.

Safes made for church and other open. Second-hand safes always on hand for sale cheap.

PAID UP CAPITAL $5,000,000.00
TOTAL FIRE FUNDS 1,662,213.16

WM. J. LANDERS,
General Agent.
JOHN C. MOGAN, City Agent. Office Hours from 11 to 1 P. M.

HO! FOR A HAPPY DAY
THE ANNUAL PICNIC
— OF THE —
Church of St. John the Baptist,
EDDY STREET.
Will be Held at BUCKMAN'S PARK, OAKLAND,
TUESDAY, JUNE 5, 1883.

A committee of Catholic gentlemen residing in the Western Addition will have charge of the management, and nothing will be left undone in order to insure a good time to those who attend.

ADULTS' TICKET - 50 CENTS.
Children, Half-Price.

Boats with leave foot of Market street every hour from 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Returning, leave park every hour from 12:30 to 6:30 p. m.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE BY
D. LEVITZKY,
421 California street.

Parties wishing to sell, or to buy, will do well by calling on him. Lots on real estate negotiated. Business business. Full charge taken of the property of absentees.
D. LEVITZKY.

BAND BOX!
Cheapest House in the City
MILLINERY.
TRIMMED HATS, TRIMMED BONNETS, PICNIC HATS, FEATHERS AND FLOWERS, ETC., ETC.
BAND BOX,
748 Market St.

SHIPPER & SCHWARTZ, MERCHANT TAILORS,
733 Market Street,
Opposite Dupont. San Francisco.
$30,000 stock to select from.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans.
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL St., New York.

C. L. GILLER,
Seal Engraver and Die Sinker,
Room 18 ..... MONTGOMERY STREET, San Francisco, Cal.
CORPORATION SEALS, COMPLETE, ENGRAVED for $6; society and lodge seals from $4.50 upward; according to Amalinda Pottery seals for $2.50 complete. I defy competition for superior workmanship in the Pacific Coast.

PERPETUAL
Wreaths, Crosses, Designs,
&c., For Cemetery Decoration.
They are true to nature, and IMPERISHABLE. Cut to suit by mail. Free illustrated price list. Address, mention this paper, Amelia Ph. D. O'Neill & Co., 36 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

DANIEL SHEERIN,
STONE AND MARBLE YARD,
Cor. Broderick and Ellis Sts.,
Entrance to Catholic Cemetery, SAN FRANCISCO.
All kinds of Monuments and Grave Work done to short notice. Orders from the country promptly attended to.

EMIL FRESE'S
HAMBURG TEA.
That safe, good old German Family Medicine for all complaints of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels; Carminative, Alterative and gently Cathartic.
REDINGTON & CO., San Francisco, U. S. A.

ASK FOR BROOKS'S SPOOL COTTON.

COLUMBIA BICYCLE.
The Bicycle has proved itself to be a practical means of locomotion, and is a source of health and recreation. Its speed is equal to a fast horse, and it can be ridden anywhere a horse can go. Catalogue free. POPE MFG. CO., 597 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

MICHAEL SHEA,
— DEALER IN —
BOOKS, STATIONERY, NEWSPAPERS, &c.
805 MARKET STREET,
Just above Fourth Street. SAN FRANCISCO

W. Z. TIFFANY & CO.,
— DEALERS IN — COAL AND WOOD,
130 Ellis Street,
Between Powell and Mason ..... SAN FRANCISCO.
Coal Delivered in Bulk direct from ship; full weight guaranteed.
Orders by Postal Card Promptly Attended to.

M. KELLY & CO.,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Files, New and Second-Hand Tools, and Machinery of all Descriptions.
Fire-Proof Safes bought, sold and exchanged, and all kinds of Machinery.
BLACKSMITH TOOLS A SPECIALTY. 38
204 Mission St., - San Francisco.

PACIFIC STEAM
CARPET BEATING
And Renovating Works.
WHITENING
Is all its Branches Thoroughly and Promptly Done.
OAKLAND BRANCH: Twenty-first street and Telegraph avenue. Prompt attention will be given to orders sent by Mail, Telephone, or left in our Boxes.
333 GOLDEN GATE AVE.
(TYLER STREET.)
CONKLIN BROS., PROPRIETORS.

H. HOYT & SON,
Real Estate Brokers,
417 KEARNY ST. ROOM 2.
Ranches of all Descriptions in all portions of the State.
Farming and Fruit Lands a Specialty.
Guardian Assurance Co OF LONDON.
ESTABLISHED A. D., 1821.
Pacific Department:
314 CALIFORNIA STREET, 314
San Francisco.

PIANOS
SOLD FOR $10 INSTALLMENTS.
Kohler & Chase, 546 Post street, near Hyde.

FINE CARRIAGES AND BUGGIES
STUDEBAKER BROS. REPOSITORY
201-207 MARKET ST.
SAN FRANCISCO CAL.
JOHN SPECK. GEO. LUNDY.
STACK & LACOMBE,
Practical Hatters
639 MARKET STREET,
6 doors Dupont. SAN FRANCISCO.

J. L. CAHILL,
PAINTER
Whitener and Decorator.
Special Rate for Hotels, Lodging-houses, or 202 POST STREET, bet. Stockton and Powell.

DALTON BROS.,
Commission Merchants
— DEALERS IN — California and Oregon Produce,
GREEN AND DRIED FRUITS,
Grain, Wool, Hides,
Beans, Potatoes, Etc.
404 AND 406 DAVIS ST.,
P. O. Box 1926. San Francisco.
CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED.

W. H. CHAMBERLAIN Jr. THOS. A. ROBERTS

PACIFIC Business College,
320 POST ST.
LIFE SCHOLARSHIPS, - $70.
SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

CARPETS
Beat, Sewed and Laid
AT THE LOWEST RATES!
All work from Shop and Work done promptly. Address or send postal card to ARGUELLO & MILLER,
301 Thirteenth Street, Oakland.

CARROLL & TILTON
Respectfully announce that they have opened
THE LARGE STORE,
873 Market Street
— WITH A LINE OF —
GENT'S "N" BOY'S CLOTHING,
Furnishing Goods,
HATS, CAPS, ETC.
Having been in this business many years, we can promise the all our goods will be as represented.
We buy for Cash and sell as low as possible.
CARROLL & TILTON,
873 Market Street, Opp. Powell.
And late with JONES & CO.

CLEANSING AND DYEING.
Blankets, Lace Curtains, Wool and Silk Goods, Feathers, Feather Beds, Pillows, Kid Gloves, Feathers, Ostrich Feathers, Kid Gloves, Neckties, Crape Veils, Velvets, Silks, Etc.
CHAS. J. HOLMES, Proprietor.
OFFICES:
639 Market Street, (Under Palace Hotel)
BRANCH: 1092 Broadway, Oakland.
Goods can be sent by mail from any part of the country, and weight and size of package noted. Orders by postal card promptly attended to.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.
JERRY LOWNEY & SON
HAVE REMOVED THEIR CARRIAGE FACTORY from corner of Howard and Eighth streets, to 626 Ninth Street. All kinds of carriages and repairs of Howard made to order, and repairing promptly attended to.

WANTED A CATHOLIC MAN to collect debts. Must travel well with references. RENSHOW BROTHERS, 311 Broadway, New York.

Market Report.
Corrected Weekly by P. J. Daly, 204 Sansome street.

MONITOR OFFICE,
636 Clay St. Tuesday Evening, May 13, 1883.

WHEAT—Quotations are ..... $1 65@1 85
FLOUR—Flour is selling at ..... 5 20@6 15
Cornmeal, yellow ..... 1 65@1 70
Cornmeal, white 1 75
Corn ..... 1 22½@1 27½
Barley ..... 1 20@1 30
Bran, P ton, wholesale 15 00
Ground Barley ..... 2 45@1 50
Middlings ..... 23 00@26 00
HAY—
Wheat, P ton ..... 16 00@17 50
Baled, P ton ..... 11 00@15 00
Alfalfa, P ton ..... 13 00@14 00
WOOL—
Wool ..... 17@26
MEATS—
Beef, wholesale ..... 7@8
Mutton, wholesale ..... 10@12
Veal, wholesale ..... 8 00@9 00
Pork, wholesale ..... 10@10½
Eastern Sugar-cured Hams ..... 14@14½
California Hams 10
Rosin ..... 10@12
Bacon, P 100 lb 12
Lard, P lb in wholesale ..... 12@12½
VEGETABLES—
Potatoes, white, P 100 lb ..... 3 75@4 00
Other varieties ..... 2 75@3 00
Onions, P 100 lb ..... 3@3 25
Turnips, P 100 ..... 75@1 00
Beets 1 00
Carrots 1 00
Green Peppers ..... 10@15
Dried Peppers ..... 10@11
Beans, P ton ..... 8 00@15 00
Garlic, lb ..... 6@6½
Onions 3
Cucumbers ..... 75@1 25
Cabbages 1 50
Asparagus ..... 30@50
Celery, P bunch 35
FRUITS—
Lemons, P doz. wholesale ..... 7 50@8 00
Apples, Chickens, P doz 4 00
Turkeys, P lb wholesale ..... 21@23
Ducks, P doz ..... 7 00@8 00
Geese, P pair ..... 1 75@1 50
Brollers P doz ..... 3 00@4 00
Young Roosters ..... 16 00@11 00
Old Roosters ..... 7 00@8 00
Pigeons ..... 3 00@3 25
Turkeys ..... 8 00@9 00
EGGS—
Choice, P doz ..... 20@25
Medium California ..... 20@22½
Eastern ..... 20@22½
BUTTER—
Choice fresh roll ..... 30@34
Eastern 25
Medium ..... 22@24
Pickle ..... 20@22
Pickled ..... 20@24
Eastern ..... 20@22
DOMESTIC FRUIT—
Green Apples, P box ..... 75@2 00
California Figs ..... 50@1 00
Sixty Lemons ..... 5 00@6 00
Mission Grapes ..... 50@75
Mission Limes ..... 6 00@7 00
Cranberries, P barrel ..... 15 00@17 00
CAPS—
Ex Chevalier ..... 2 00@2 25
Ex Ex ..... 1 75@1 80
No. 1 ..... 1 50@1 60
No. 2 ..... 1 00@1 10
SPICES—
Spice, P bale ..... 50@60

SUPPLEMENT TO THE MONITOR.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, MAY 16, 1883.

DONATIONS
— FOR —
The New Cathedral
— FOR —
THE ARCHDIOCESE OF SAN FRANCISCO,

LETTER FROM ARCHBISHOP ALEMANY.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR—

Dear Sir—Some days ago I intimated that I would furnish a brief statement of the actual condition of the new St. Mary's Cathedral, as it is due to the public and to myself. The undertaker is an arduous work, and one which cannot be accomplished without much time and patience. The slowness of the progress may be mainly attributed to the large amount which had to be paid for the new site in a central and suitable part of the city, which amount—as will be seen from the subjoined figures—is not yet fully paid.

All will agree that it would not be prudent to commence building until the lot is paid for. Hence I would respectfully urge those who have already subscribed to pay all or part of their subscriptions, as notes are not given in their names, not to defer their subscriptions. The price of the new lot at the N. W. corner of Van Ness Avenue and O'Farrell street was $7,125, on an amount received, so far is $53,571 91 as it will be seen by the following statement, which I would respectfully ask you to publish.

Respectfully yours,
+P. J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

San Francisco, May 14, 1883.

CITY CONTRIBUTIONS:

Marquis D. T. McKinlay $10,000.00
Mrs. Maria Coleman 3,000.00
Joseph A. Donohoe 2,000.00
John Parrott 2,000.00

$1,000 each has been Contributed by

Madame de Lavenge, P. S. Wenzinger, Cornelius D. O'Sullivan, George S. Loughborough $585.47

$500 each has been Contributed by Mrs. J. W. Mackay, Charles McLaughlin, Richard Tobin, Mrs. Baldwin, John J. O'Brien and Thomas Tobin.

Rev. Wm. Scherrer $420
Marquis D. J. Oliver $300

$250 each has been Contributed by

Hon. R. F. Morrison, John Shirley, T. J. Bergin, Robert Shearer, Mrs. C. M. A. Butler, J. F. Moynihan, S. Callahan, Sherwood Calhoun, Mrs. Martin and Bridget McCaffrey.

$200 each has been Contributed by

Mrs. J. Harrington and her daughter, Mrs. J. Harrington, Mrs. Bernard Gallagher, Mrs. Cooper and Sisters of Notre Dame, Simon Mahoney, Thomas Gallagher $150

$150 each has been Contributed by

Henry Doyle, Mr. Farrelly, Mrs. Dr. Buckley, John W. Fairen, Kenan Brothers, J. C. Kennedy, Sister Stanislaus, "J. C." Mrs. Torney, T. Ryan, Rev. D. Manasse, Mrs. Mary Ann Byrne, Mary A. Ellis, Mrs. Jane Cooper, John Robert Ryan, D. McLean, Patrick Ryan, Lucien Poupee P. Murphy, Mrs. Mary E. Duskwiler, Mrs. Ryan, Mrs. Mary Ann Byrne, John Reynolds, Mrs. Assing, J. W. Farrer, James Reason, Dr. J. F. Gibbon, John J. Mitchell, Mrs. Mary Ann Byrne, Mrs. Hetchelder Mary Ann Byrne

THE MONITOR,
A CATHOLIC FAMILY JOURNAL,
DEVOTED TO THE PROPAGATION AND DEFENSE OF CATHOLIC PRINCIPLES.
Published by THE MONITOR PUBLISHING CO. Office: 606 City street, San Francisco, California.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
For Year by Mail (PAID IN ADVANCE) $6 00
For Year by Mail (if not paid in advance) 7 00
Six Months (paid in advance) 3 50
Three Months (if paid in advance) 2 00
Three Months (if not paid in advance) 1 50
To Ireland or any of the British Provinces (in advance) $6 00; (not in advance) 7 00

☞ Address all communications, remittances, checks, and postal orders to
E. J. McComish, Editorial Manager.
Morrow Office, Box 1856 P. O., San Francisco, Cal. Entered at the San Francisco Post Office as Second-Class Matter.

The Monitor.

THE MONITOR

As now in the twenty-sixth year of publication, and its well-established reputation as a staunch and reliable Religious Newspaper, has gained for it a wide circulation and an influence which makes THE MONITOR a valuable medium for advertisers.

Advertisements inserted at reasonable rates.

TO CORRESPONDENTS

Communications, to secure insertion, should be handed in not later than Tuesday of each week.

No communications will be inserted unless accompanied by the, author's real name. This is required as a private guarantee of good faith.

Communication will be gladly received from all interested in the cause advocated by this Journal. Correspondents should be as brief as possible, and should write legibly, and on one side of the paper only. We cannot undertake to return the MSS. of unused articles.

All contributions and communications, whether on business or otherwise are to be addressed to the Manager.

For thy Soul is not ashamed to say the Truth..... Strive for Justice for thy Souls and even unto Death fight for Justice, and God will overthrow thy enemies for Thee. (Ecclus. iv. 28)

VOL. XXVI. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 23, 1883. NO. 22.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.
TRY IT. DRUGGISTS SELL IT.
Made By
H. B. SLAVEN,
The Baldwin Building.

PLATING
NICKEL PLATING,
GOLD PLATING,
SILVER PLATING,
Manufacturers and Dealers.

ALL KINDS OF WORK PLATED. WORK CALLED for and delivered free. Lowest estimates given on goods. Satisfaction guaranteed in every particular. Plating Dr. Knives, Silver Plated Ammunition Plates for sewing girls, used in quartz, gravel and placer mining, supplied the next mail. Over one thousand satisfactory references.
PLATING ESTABLISHMENT
On the Pacific Coast.
San Francisco, Gold, Silver and Nickel Plating Works,
522 and 524 Mission Street, bet. New Montgomery and Third Sts., San Francisco, Cal.
R. G. DUNNINGTON, Proprietor.
Awarded First Premium at every fair of the Mechanics' Institute for the last twelve years.

NOTICE.
Having extensively enlarged my store for the manufacture of
CLOAKS AND SUITS,
I am now prepared to furnish the latest styles at the lowest low prices, and while thanking my friends and patrons for their liberal patronage in the past, I will do everything in my power to merit their continuance of the same in the future.
P. ROSENBERG,
8 and 10 Fifth St., San Francisco.
N. B. Ladies' own material made up to order.

LADIES, A HIT!
THE Commercial Importing Tea Co.
(COMPANY),
957 Market Street, San Francisco, TAKES THE LEAD!
Foremost in Buying Teas Foremost in Selling!
Successful Launching of a System Mighty in its Results!
NOT CONTENT TO FURNISH OUR OWN CUSTOMERS with superior quality of TEA AND COFFEE
Ever offered in this market at the very lowest prices; but, anxious to extend the benefits of our system to the outside world, and, we are sorry to say, many persons should share the lucrative earning even it, purchase should share the lucrative earning even it,
WE OFFER
Nine Decorated Tea Cups and Saucers, and TEA SETS
Consisting of 1 Teapot, 1 Sugar, 1 Creamer, 1 Slop Bowl, 1 Cup and Saucer, 11 Pieces, Tea Cups and Saucers, 11 Decorated Plates.
LATIN
To every housekeeper who sends the following amount in A Premium.
Sets of Tea bought by one single purchaser:
For every Twenty decorated tea cups and saucers, 1 set; for every 30 tea 1 dozen plates, will be taken; for every 50 lbs. 1 tea set; for every 70 lbs.
at every $1 worth of Coffee bought by one single purchaser, 1 small decorated tea cups and saucers; for every $2 worth, 1 teapot and saucer; for every $3 worth, 1 breakfast set of 44 pieces.
Ladies,
The above Teas and Coffees can be purchased in any quantity desired, at the very lowest prices, and we will be given, cash it is a sure chance for you to get a good set of decorated cup, will sustain the higher to any at the premium we offer.
REMEMBER THE PLACE,
957 MARKET STREET,
Between Fifth and Sixth.
Vehicle and Refreshments supplied at the very lowest rates.
Certain coupon received, and goods delivered to any part of the city free.
The Commercial Importing Tea Co.
CHAS. HARRE & CO., Proprietors.

J. J. DYER,
DENTIST,
S. E. cor. Kearny & Post Sts.,
SF Entrance, 27 Post St. 23

WRITE! For Canvassing Outfit Free. $10 a day sure to the agent selling. TO-DAY
Address, FAMILY JOURNAL Publication Co., 511 Jackson street, San Francisco, Cal.

HALL'S SARSAPARILLA
YELLOW DOCK
AND IODIDE OF POTASS.
The Best Spring Medicine and Beautifier of the Complexion in use. Cures Pimples, Boils, Blotches, Neuralgia, Scrofula, Gout, Rheumatic and Mercurial Pains, and all Diseases arising from a disordered state of the Blood or Liver.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
J. P. GATES & CO., Proprietors,
417 Sansome Street, S. F.

Rome under Robber Rule.

OUTRAGES PERPETRATED UNDER ITALIAN INJUSTICE.

"A Free Church in a Free State."

INSULTS OFFERED TO BISHOPS AND PRIESTS.

SACRILEGIOUS ROBBERY IN GOD'S SANCTUARY.

Trying to Destroy the Temporal Power of the Pope.

Rome Rapidly Returning to Pagan Principles.

[FROM OUR REGULAR ROME CORRESPONDENT.]

"Rome or death!" Such was the watchword that long showed the draft of the aims and hopes that animated the Italian revolution, and caused to be heard when the walls of the Eternal City were battered down by Piedmontese cannon in 1870. The overthrow of the Pope's temporal power was, however, but a partial accomplishment of a vast design that lay in the background: to strike home to the heart of Catholicity by destroying the spiritual authority of the Roman Pontiff. This is the consummation towards the great aim which infuses life and activity not only into the revolutionists, but also into the many-colored brotherhood that in every civilized country "devise vain things" and meet together against the Lord and against His Christ." For the accomplishment of this colossal project Cavour, Mazzini, Farini, Garibaldi, and a motley horde of lesser spirits toiled, intrigued, and spent themselves. In April, 1866, a manifesto published at Florence declared that "the real, the immense Roman Question is not limited to the taking of the city. . . . It lies in the fall of the Papacy, in the crowning of the work commenced by Luther, in the emancipation of conscience, in the glorifying of thought, in the emancipation of science on the altars of the Catholic religion." Above, however, the labyrinthine workings of Italy's revolutionary policy, once said: "What is the programme of the revolution? First of all, war against Catholicity." His words were amply borne out by the Diritto (August 7, 1865) published under the eyes of the Piedmontese State officials: "The last end of the Italian revolution is the destruction of the Church."

THEIR SUPERIOR AIMS AND SECRET MECHANISM.

Were still better exposed to view by the publication entitled "Italy's Secret Policy," comprising a rare amount of State documents that lift back the inconvenient amount of light that has been thrown upon them. They enable us to follow, in its disguising details, the conjuring of the Italian Government with the revolution; they show us how it identified its aims with theirs, and at how it identified its aims with theirs, and for over twenty years shirked no difficulty, shrank from no crime in order to load the iniquitous status it had supposed to final triumph. Hypocrisy, intrigue, and violence, are, unfortunately, the most prominent characteristics of its policy towards the Holy See. In the pursuance of their object the agents of the Ministries (as we shall see) threw the mantle of "patriotism" over crimes that make patriotism weep, and in the name of national progress put in force against the Church such enactments as recall the tyranny of old time despots.

The public conscience was far from sympathizing with these proceedings. The aid of corruption was therefore invoked to recreate the opinion of the nation. So, while Ministers were proclaiming a new regeneration, their wall-paid agents were endeavoring to spread free-thought, immorality, and hatred of the Papacy broadcast through the country. They were aided in their diabolical work by the feverish activity of newspapers, lectures, theatrical representations, and every satanic ingenuity capable of instilling a moral poison into the school room, the workshop, and the home. "To gain one's end all means are lawful." Such was the guiding spirit of the arch-conspirator Cavour. He was gifted with a remarkable degree of the quality which in our days has received the euphemistic title of political sagacity. When any of his projects was in danger of encroaching his expedient was a burst of hostility to the Catholic Church, and all went merrily on. "Whenever I want a bill to pass," said he, "I cut a fried.

HAUNTED HIS FELL REPENT HIM.

In the depravity of his moral code; yet an inscrutable Providence permitted his designs to prosper for a day. When his died his mantle fell on other shoulders, and the mighty impulse he had given to the anti-Papal policy continues till the present hour. In 1861, when the world required to know the scope of his designs upon Rome, he answered, in the words of Montalembert, that he meant to create "a free Church in a free State," a phrase which continued to be the watchword of succeeding political hacks till it was every threadbare by over use. "It was accepted by all," says Italan, "but on condition that every one could interpretit in his own way." Hence, as Canto says, "it had as many interpretations as interpreters, and at last people concluded that it was only an expedient to gain time." It was designated by Emile Ollivier "a magnificent blow," by the Gazetta d'Italia (Nov. 4, 1876) "a studied equivocation;" by Senator Scialoja "a formula without meaning." Still the Italian Government holds on to the motto, though its course of action is in strange discord with the principles it professes. All but those who willfully closed their eyes against the light could long ago have seen that the rights and liberties of the Church were in danger. The Radical element was hounded on to destroy them by open force; the misnomered "Liberals" tended not less sagacity, but much more skillfully, towards the self-same object by a timely combination of violence and fraud. I will briefly notice some of the many events transacted previous to 1870 which gave a bitter taste of the sort of liberty which the Church in Italy had to expect from those vaunted apostles of human freedom.

THE UNGODLINESS OF THIS SPECIOUS POLICY

Early signalized themselves by an open and practical hostility to the Church which they pretended to make free. Following in the footsteps of other social tyrants, they endeavored to cripple her by destroying the utility of her most time-honored institutions, and depriving her, as far as possible, of those material means which are so powerful an aid to her spiritual ministry. The Religious Orders were therefore doomed to suppression, Church property to confiscation. Ministers of the Italian Crown, "honorable" deputies, and old soldiers transformed into statesmen, fathered the suppression and robbery bill, and directed the motley crowd of unscrupulous demagogues literary firebrands, crazy pot-house politicians, whom they had sent to the provinces to raise a cry against the Orders. The scurrility, bribery, and violence of the howling minority triumphed, as usual, over the merely passive resistance of the nation. The bill became law in 1867. Pillaging and expulsions went on with alacrity, with these inseparable concomitants of sacrilege and rudeness. Over twelve hundred million francs of Church property was sequestered to make up the void in the State coffers, and a miserable pittance was assigned to its original owners, in some cases insufficient to keep starvation from their doors. Still the State did not prosper; the stolen goods did not suffice to cover the deficits in the balance for 1866, and the nation's financial difficulties have been accumulating to the present day. Like old Ireland's fairy treasures, the Church's property was bright and beautiful to look upon, but when touched by stranger hands it melted away.

The Government was still proclaiming the great principle of a "free Church in a free State" when, on March 16, 1863, Pianciani, the Keeper of the Seal, prevented the Bishops publishing orders, decrees, dispositions, and such like acts of their spiritual ministry, without the special permission of the civil authorities. The injured Prelates thereupon made a firm but respectful remonstrance, the only effect of which was that one of their members, the illustrious

ARCHBISHOP ARNAUD OF SPOLETO,

Was thrown into prison for ten months. At the same time atheism and apostacy were looked upon as virtues; the press, the theatre, and the professor's chair were matte the instruments. With good reason, then, did Pius IX. complain in an Encyclical to the Italian Bishops "of the truly Satanic hatred against Christ, against His doctrine, against the Holy See, and of the almost innumerable excesses committed by the bitter foes of the Catholic religion, excesses which he had almost daily to deplore." But despite the Pope's protest the persecution of the "free Church" went on with undiminished vigor. Shortly afterwards the restoration of the Bishop of Fermo were, by order of the Government, torn from the church doors, and priests were forbidden, under severe penalties, to read them to the people. On November 17, 1864, the Archbishop of Urbino was forcibly dragged before a petty sessions court to answer a charge of seditious language alleged to have been spoken by him in a place wherein the venerable Prelate had never set his foot. In the same year Cardinal Morichini was thrown into prison because a canon of less had refused to absolve an individual in whose case he had no jurisdiction whatever. Advancing another step in the history of those glorious times we find Vacca, the New Keeper of the Seals, forbidding the publication of Pius IX's Encyclical of December 8, 1864, together with the Syllabus that accompanied it. The Bishop of Modena endeavored fourteen week's imprisonment for having put them in circulation before Vacca's tyrannical ukase saw the light. For the Italian Priesty there was no freedom, while a miscellaneous horde of free-thinkers, Protestant ministers, and anti-Catholic moustebanks of every grade were honored with State decorations, called to the leading professorships in the Universities, and encouraged to spread their pantheistic doctrine broadcast over the whole country. The Government kept vacant 108 Episcopal Sees at the moment when the people had sorest need of spiritual directors to guide them clear of the tide of free thought and immorality that was being so sedulously propagated on every side. On the 6th of March, 1865,

PIUS IX. WROTE TO VICTOR EMMANUEL

Urging on him the necessity of providing for the regular administration of the widowed dioceses, but the Italian Cabinet required him as a condition to diminish the number of the Sees and recognize the new kingdom as legitimately constituted—conditions which, involving an unwarrantable tyranny and glaring injustice, were promptly and nobly rejected by the Holy Father. When Mgr. Ballerini was named by the Pope Archbishop of Milan the Government refused to acknowledge him either in that or in any other See in the country, and sought by every artful and underhand way to ruin to that dignity some priests more pliable to its views and prejudices. In view of the dogged resistance displayed by it to the rights of the Church, Pius IX. was reluctantly obliged to break off indefinitely all negotiations about the nomination of Bishops and other matters of paramount importance to the Catholic population. In 1866 Prefect Villamarina, an infatuated partisan of Protestant and Calvinistic preachers, prohibited the collection of Peter's Pence. At the same time a large number of Neapolitan Bishops were banished from their dioceses at a moment when the cholera was raging therein, and a decree was published "prohibiting those professors returning to their flocks under any excuse whatever." The Bishop of Foggia, who had been in prison for two years, petitioned Victor Emmanuel to allow him to return to the aid of his suffering people, but the prayer was point blank refused. In the same year a foolish and oppressive measure, in which Ministries may have modeled the "suspect" law passed for the special behoof of Irish Land Leaguers, was passed through the Parliament of Florence, and became doubly infamous by being carried out in accordance with the dictates of party prejudice and private passion. Innocence was no longer the safeguard of personal liberty. The clergy were set up as a sign to be contradicted.

WILD DREAMS OF CLERICAL CONSPIRACIES

Were set afloat by the Government itself, and twelve Bishops were banished from their dioceses without the formality of legal proceedings. In every part of Italy religious priests, and devout laymen were summarily thrown into prison, and kept there continually false and notoriously false charges. "The head and front of their offending" was their steady defense of the rights of Catholic conscience, by which they imitated the example of those hypocritical worshipers of liberty that love to put into practice a social tyranny of the most galling character. In 1867 attempts were made, with the full knowledge, and, it is believed, consent of the Government, to murder the Patriarch of Venice and the Archbishop of Udine. Two years later the same liberty-loving Government openly took under its wing every Italian or Swiss firebrand that opposed or vituperated the august Council of the Vatican. Radical journalism was encouraged to spit fire and fame against the Papacy, whose destruction was devoutly sighed after by Victor Emmanuel's Ministers, as by the subversive elements which they aided to persecute and calumniate it. Their antagonism to religion went hand in hand with their hostility to the Papacy, and both aimed at Rome, the goal to which all their political maneuvers converged. "Rome shall be ours," said the Diritto of Turin, "when the revolutionary element shall have reduced the Pope to live in the midst of a people without faith, when Catholicism shall be almost altogether destroyed in Italy. Until Rome be ours let Italy proceed in the destruction of that faith which makes the Pope King in our capital."

[CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.]

ALEXANDER SULLIVAN.

The President of the Irish National League—An Incident in his Life.

Bigoted sheets are publishing biased accounts of the tragic incident in which Alexander Sullivan was concerned. They are attacking the Irish National League under the guise of attacking its president. They are belying this gentleman and distorting facts to carry out their malign purpose. The venomous lies can best be met by a statement of a certain Mr. McLean, an Irish pepper of Philadelphia the following statement of the facts of Mr. Sullivan's career:

Alexander Sullivan, president of the new from Cowley County, Kansas, to Detroit, Mich., they young they moved to Detroit, Mich., taking him with them, and there his boyhood was spent. About 1873 he moved to Chicago, and five years later he was admitted to the bar. During the period of his legal studies the unfortunate affair occurred which made his name known throughout the Northwest, and furnished Chinese wit a subject for discussion for nearly a year. A school teacher named Hanford, who had been acquainted with Sullivan in some way, caused it to be known that he was going to publish an article reflecting on Mrs. Sullivan, and, in spite of remonstrance, got it ready for one of the newspapers. Sullivan heard of the matter, and, taking his wife with him one evening, drove towards Hanford's house. They met him before his door with a man named McMullen, and words were exchanged.

McMullen, who was a powerful man, grappled Sullivan, and Mrs. Sullivan, fearing for his safety, got out of the carriage to help him. Hanford, struck her, and Sullivan, struggling to get at him, was soon in a desperate fight which seemed likely to be ended by his being overpowered by two men. He had only one hand free, but with that he reached for his revolver and defended himself. At the first shot Hanford fell, mortally wounded. Sullivan's trial for manslaughter occupied the attention of the public more than any similar event in Chicago for many years, and the entire community seemed divided on the question of whether the shooting was justifiable or not. The jury failed to agree, eleven voting for acquittal and one for conviction, and he was put under bonds for another trial, which finally resulted in a verdict of "not guilty." Rumors were circulated and generally believed that Hanford's friends had offered money to Judge McAllister, who presided at the trial, to influence judgment against Sullivan, and a month or two afterwards, the matter was brought into politics. McAllister, and Thomas A. Morris, who had been Sullivan's attorney, were elected as the anti-judicial ticket, over Charles Reed, who had prosecuted the case. An immense change of votes from one party to the other showed the current of popular sympathy. Since that time Mr. Sullivan has been quietly practicing law with great success, though he has appointed him to any public position. He is a member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and occupies a prominent position in the Order.

Sir Tatton Sykes.

The reports recently circulated that Sir Tatton Sykes is seriously indisposed are incorrect. Sir Tatton has just returned to Rome from Naples, accompanied by Lady Sykes, and has only had a slight attack of influenza. They are expected home in the middle of next month, when they will rejoin their son Mark at Brighton, where he is staying in charge of his nurse. Sir Tatton has not yet been "received" into the Church of Rome. Lady Sykes, however, has become quite enthusiastic in the cause; she is one of the chief at the mission had recently opened at Driffield, near Bridlington. The mission is in charge of the Rev. Father O'Halloran, an eloquent preacher, who draws considerable congregations, a Catholic service being entirely novel to the Driffielders and the villagers, many of the latter walking miles on Sundays to attend. A ready property has been secured on which to build a church. Besides largely supporting the mission out of her own private purse, Lady Sykes has been defending the Catholic religion, against the attacks of the clergy and Nonconformists, by letters to the local newspapers.

—The novitiate branch of the Capuchin Order at Calvary, Wis., will be removed to Detroit.

Horrible Death of Henry VIII.

HIS LAST WORDS "ALL IS LOST!"

Fulfillment of a Terrible Prophecy.

"THE DOGS SHALL LICK HIS BLOOD."

The last day of Henry Tudor had now passed and the night of the dying agony commenced. It is a remarkable fact that bodily suffering to the King, beyond by intervals of remorse and fear, did not humble his pride vindictive! He was returned to the royal bosom! The King of Rome! with the world! No! instead of a vengeance was to be accomplished. For a year or so before his death the royal tyrant expressed his commendation and pleasure to see the Duke of Norfolk's death warrant with his own hand.

Dean Hook justly remarks that

NOTHING MORE TERRIBLE THAN THE SCENE

can be imagined: "At two of the clock when the cold sweat of death coloured his face, when in deadful agony from head to foot, the actually protestant monarch was making an effort to sign the fatal document." The action unnerved the secretary of evil spirits and evidenced the degradation of a final impenitence. In the agony of death he would fain signify the living: in the threshold of the grave he would turn from the presence of his God to make one more sacrifice to the Spirit of Antichrist. Yet even that thirst for the blood of an illustrious subject whom age had left unscathed by childless knight and have been the loss of the crimes of their unsuspecting victim. A moment's reflection, and the pen in the monarch's hand, the shadow of death was coming to deep and solemn reflection upon the royal chamber. The end now came.

THE FINAL CONVULSIONS WERE BEGUN!

and, in a twinkling death, the spirit of the deceased King Henry was ushered into the presence of that Omnipotent Judge whose mercy of his life was spurned by the royal sinner, who, in his last moments, shrieked out "All is lost!" expressed an awful commencement of the retributive justice of God, and remorseless curser.

Some forty minutes after the King's death, before the domestics could even partially recover from the dreadful scene, the best witnesses Lord Hertford and Sir William Paget held a conversation outside the chamber of the body of the dead monarch, which, still warm and horribly convulsed in feature, the very sight of it which made the bystanders tremble, was brought around in a swoon. Yet Hertford and his friend Paget were made of warmer stuff. The following parley between the whisperers was the free access to a deserted purpose in relation to the dead King's "testament." Paget hesitated, and glancing at the door, for a few seconds looked thoughtfully at all that remained of his royal master, and told Hertford that his "observations were ill-timed." The sudden upon the scene prevented any further Paget. A terrible storm raged at the moment (three o'clock in the morning) of the Government, to murder the Patriarch of Venice and the Archbishop of Udine. Two years later the same liberty-loving Government openly took under its wing every Italian or Swiss firebrand that opposed or vituperated the august Council of the Vatican. Radical journalism was encouraged to spit fire and fame against the Papacy, whose destruction was devoutly sighed after by Victor Emmanuel's Ministers, as by the subversive elements which they aided to persecute and calumniate it. Their antagonism to religion went hand in hand with their hostility to the Papacy, and both aimed at Rome, the goal to which all their political maneuvers converged. "Rome shall be ours," said the Diritto of Turin, "when the revolutionary element shall have reduced the Pope to live in the midst of a people without faith, when Catholicism shall be almost altogether destroyed in Italy. Until Rome be ours let Italy proceed in the destruction of that faith which makes the Pope King in our capital."

APPEARANCE OF ARCHBISHOP CRANMER

[CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.]

ALEXANDER SULLIVAN.

The President of the Irish National League—An Incident in his Life.

Bigoted sheets are publishing biased accounts of the tragic incident in which Alexander Sullivan was concerned. They are attacking the Irish National League under the guise of attacking its president. They are belying this gentleman and distorting facts to carry out their malign purpose. The venomous lies can best be met by a statement of a certain Mr. McLean, an Irish pepper of Philadelphia the following statement of the facts of Mr. Sullivan's career:

Alexander Sullivan, president of the new from Cowley County, Kansas, to Detroit, Mich., they young they moved to Detroit, Mich., taking him with them, and there his boyhood was spent. About 1873 he moved to Chicago, and five years later he was admitted to the bar. During the period of his legal studies the unfortunate affair occurred which made his name known throughout the Northwest, and furnished Chinese wit a subject for discussion for nearly a year. A school teacher named Hanford, who had been acquainted with Sullivan in some way, caused it to be known that he was going to publish an article reflecting on Mrs. Sullivan, and, in spite of remonstrance, got it ready for one of the newspapers. Sullivan heard of the matter, and, taking his wife with him one evening, drove towards Hanford's house. They met him before his door with a man named McMullen, and words were exchanged.

McMullen, who was a powerful man, grappled Sullivan, and Mrs. Sullivan, fearing for his safety, got out of the carriage to help him. Hanford, struck her, and Sullivan, struggling to get at him, was soon in a desperate fight which seemed likely to be ended by his being overpowered by two men. He had only one hand free, but with that he reached for his revolver and defended himself. At the first shot Hanford fell, mortally wounded. Sullivan's trial for manslaughter occupied the attention of the public more than any similar event in Chicago for many years, and the entire community seemed divided on the question of whether the shooting was justifiable or not. The jury failed to agree, eleven voting for acquittal and one for conviction, and he was put under bonds for another trial, which finally resulted in a verdict of "not guilty." Rumors were circulated and generally believed that Hanford's friends had offered money to Judge McAllister, who presided at the trial, to influence judgment against Sullivan, and a month or two afterwards, the matter was brought into politics. McAllister, and Thomas A. Morris, who had been Sullivan's attorney, were elected as the anti-judicial ticket, over Charles Reed, who had prosecuted the case. An immense change of votes from one party to the other showed the current of popular sympathy. Since that time Mr. Sullivan has been quietly practicing law with great success, though he has appointed him to any public position. He is a member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and occupies a prominent position in the Order.

Sir Tatton Sykes.

The reports recently circulated that Sir Tatton Sykes is seriously indisposed are incorrect. Sir Tatton has just returned to Rome from Naples, accompanied by Lady Sykes, and has only had a slight attack of influenza. They are expected home in the middle of next month, when they will rejoin their son Mark at Brighton, where he is staying in charge of his nurse. Sir Tatton has not yet been "received" into the Church of Rome. Lady Sykes, however, has become quite enthusiastic in the cause; she is one of the chief at the mission had recently opened at Driffield, near Bridlington. The mission is in charge of the Rev. Father O'Halloran, an eloquent preacher, who draws considerable congregations, a Catholic service being entirely novel to the Driffielders and the villagers, many of the latter walking miles on Sundays to attend. A ready property has been secured on which to build a church. Besides largely supporting the mission out of her own private purse, Lady Sykes has been defending the Catholic religion, against the attacks of the clergy and Nonconformists, by letters to the local newspapers.

—The novitiate branch of the Capuchin Order at Calvary, Wis., will be removed to Detroit.

The Church in Europe.

CATHOLIC AFFAIRS ON THE CONTINENT.

Catholic Cathedral in Glasgow.

The Marquis of Bute is going to do for the Catholics of Glasgow what he did for the Catholics of Brighton. Build a cathedral for the Archbishop of Glasgow, and, while he is at it, build a church for the Catholics of Rothesay, which is his. If Glasgow is to be the second city of the Empire, Catholics are numerous from Government, it is to be hoped that the Scotch Archbishop will be made a Cardinal, and, if he does, the Marquis of Bute, the great Catholic peer, will be the man who will have conferred the greatest benefit upon the Church in Scotland.

The Archbishop of Paris.

The Most Rev. Dr. Orsini, has a letter of condolence to M. Vendetti's family on the death of the deceased on one of the late Communal journalists who were executed with Archbishop Darboy and Father Ducoudray. Ireland's sympathies are with the Archbishop, and says that he has proved himself a defender of her just aspirations, and her friend and people. After a bit of the Fabian and some English Catholic judgments of Vendetti, the Archbishop expresses the French peoples for the continued support to a journal "which can never be diverted from the path of truth; a nation whose faith can never be obscured, nor its love for God, the Holy See and the Fatherland cooled by any evil influence."

Pilgrimage to Lourdes.

The Duke of Norfolk presided last week at a committee engaged in making preliminary preparations for the pilgrimage to Our Lady of Lourdes. The Vicars Generals of Montmartre, in Paris, will be visited by the pilgrims from England, and will be joined by as numerous. The Earl of Denbigh and Lord Ralph Kerr are on the Committee of Management. The pilgrims from all parts of Europe met at Lourdes last Monday, which was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the apparition of Our Lady.

French Infidelity Illustrated.

The French before all things pride themselves on being a logical people, and therefore we are not at all surprised to see that, not content with prosecuting the Bishop and starving the priests for presuming against the grossness taught in the school books of M. Paul Bert, the so-called "educational" authorities of Paris have commenced to eliminate the word God from the works of other authors. A book of grammatical exercises now being used in the Paris Municipal schools, in which "Pius" is employed even in the lines of French authors given as examples. Then in La Fontaine's fable of "La Jeune poisson et le pêcheur" the second of the well-known lines

Petit poisson deviendra grand Pourvu que Dieu lui prête la vie, becomes to suit modern French atheism,

Pourvu qu'on lui laisse la vie.

In "La farme" again, by Dehlle, the line—

Ah! que les dieux des champs, que, in lieu Alfonse, &c.

is changed into "Par les amis des champs." The idea of "thanking our God" is, it will be perceived, consistently carried out.

A German Priest Outwits Bismarck.

In Prussian Poland a struggle between two nationalities—the German and the Polish—has been going on for full eight a hundred years, most of the former Protestants and most of the latter Catholics. The ordinary of the diocese of Ordnen, which contains the greater part of Prussian Poland, is the very resourceful Cardinal Archbishop Ledochowski, whose very existence is now ignored by the Prussian Government, who have superseded him as they have, in effect, also years ago. Since then it has been impossible for any priest to be appointed, and only in one place, called Gnesen, the Government have allowed a new priest, in the person of Father Pieper, to minister, simply because the people of the district were all Poles, and Father Pieper, who is a German, know no Polish. But, in this instance, the priest stole a march on the Prussian Government; he applied himself to the study of the Polish language, which is about as difficult to acquire for a German as Welsh is for our Saxon, and now he is minister to his flock in their own vernacular. His church is a loan and his school is stable, yet he goes on preaching to and teaching some 500 souls who would otherwise remain destitute of all religion.

A Renegade at Bremen.

Bishop Cathedral, Bremen, lately

Great Catholic Victory in Austria.

The Ultramontane party, as it is styled, gained a great victory in Austria a few days since. Among the so-called components which the Radical ministry propounded to the country ten years ago, there are several anti-Catholic laws, one of which provides that all Catholic schools shall be non-denominational, and that compulsory education shall be imposed on all children, and, in Count Taaffe, the present Premier, a body of Irish Catholics found a friend. The Bill was carried against that law when it was passed, and, directly he became Prime Minister, he promised that he would do all in his power to secure some more a Catholic, and, in the Catholic interest, he would do away with the hard-and-fast line of eight years' compulsory education. After several years' hesitation he has at last achieved his object. Last week the Lower House of the Austrian Parliament voted by 176 Ayes against 156 Noes in favour of the repeal of religious schools, and the extension of the schooling period from eight to six years. This is admitted by the enemies of Catholicism to be a great and substantial victory of the Catholic Church.

—The Catholics of Pittsburg, Pa., recently held a four days celebration to commemorate the first Mass which was celebrated in that city 120 years ago by Rev. Charles Bonin, a Priest of the Order of St. Francis of Assisium. How "time moves" and the Church keeps pace with the growth of the country! Pittsburg is now the seat of a Bishop, has a grand Cathedral, very many superb churches and an ever-flowing Catholic population.

Anglican Students and the Popes.

On the morning of Sunday the 23rd ult., the Holy Father admitted to his private Mass the Very Rev. Rector of the Anglican College, and, in company with eleven of the students, who will be promoted to the priesthood in Rome, and, in company with which they will depart for the field of their ministry, which, in some instances, will return ministers of Christ, the Church, the Bride of Christ, the Lamb, the Church, the Church, the Church

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

A TRIBUTE TO OUR MOTHERLAND.

Y-es tall as, stronger, so forget
Y-ou on a-ll, we pledge you
O-ur one care to cater for help
Y-ou, our mother, our motherland;
Now, and a-mend in our grow—
Our motherland, our motherland.

Y-ou, hast sunned be to heart at all,
To bid us stay our hand.
When we "Allan," pan, would as effort
From our motherland, our motherland;
To bid we hear unbaked the wrong
Of our motherland, our motherland.

When young life this life up its voice,
Thus shielded our idle shade,
Mark has to shake as for our love,
For our motherland, our motherland;
Where the heart of minded heroes lie—
Our motherland, our motherland.

Our cause is just and will prevail,
There's hope on most,
Says that our hearts are one of love,
For our motherland, our motherland;
Thus by long hill made by British hold
Yet our motherland, our motherland.

Know, dreams, that the duty is
To all of our hearts' pure devotion,
Where "green and red" is the love of all,
Our motherland, our motherland;
Where "green and red" is the love of all,
For our motherland, our motherland.

Know that be sure who have to hear
But that we one by down our Eyes
For our motherland, our motherland;
Why love mountains, women's love,
Our motherland, our motherland.

Our right to be is from our God,
And who can blame whitewash
Sunset, Judge's, Lord, or leadership,
In our motherland, our motherland;
Is our motherland, our motherland;
From our motherland, our motherland.

And we love pure them schools of yore,
Our motherland, our motherland;
And they!—they marred our minds, made
Our motherland, our motherland.

In our motherland, our motherland;
Our hearts are true and blood,
Where our hearts are true and blood,
From our motherland, our motherland;
Our motherland, our motherland;
For our motherland, our motherland.

The Freedom Lives in every France,
Not in other climes is the life lost,
Where blood has watered every soil
Where blood has watered every soil
Our motherland, our motherland.

Thus years of the past and now,
Have in our heart and hand,
Our motherland, our motherland;
For our motherland, our motherland;
Our motherland, our motherland;
Our motherland, our motherland.

The Freedom lives in every France,
Not in other climes is the life lost,
Where blood has watered every soil
Where blood has watered every soil
Our motherland, our motherland.

Thus years of the past and now,
Have in our heart and hand,
Our motherland, our motherland;
For our motherland, our motherland;
Our motherland, our motherland;
Our motherland, our motherland.

Literary Miscellany.

The Painter and the Monk.

A TRADITION OF MADRID.

A gloomy day was closing in Madrid, and the great Spanish painter, Tudor Paul Rubens, accompanied by his pupils, had spent many hours in surveying the churches of that beautiful city. A poverty-stricken convent attracted his attention; for though partly in ruins, the majestic portals and exquisite tracery of the niche work of the exterior of the church raised hopes that the interior would be worth seeing. Tradition has not preserved the name of the convent, nor does this reflect the interest of the story; Rubens and his pupils entered the church, and found nothing worthy of notice in the poor and decayed temple.

The painter however, continued his research, and entering a side chapel, discovered a large painting, half hidden by the gathering shadows. He approached, and uttered an exclamation of surprise. His pupils gathered around him, and asked, "What have you found master?"

"Look!" said Rubens, pointing to the picture by way of reply. The painting represented the death of a monk still young, and of considerable beauty. Expression and agony had not been able to destroy.

The monk was extended on the brick floor of his cell, the eyes were closing in death, the left hand rested on a skull, and the other held close to his heart a simple crucifix of wood and copper. The hands were clasped, as if they were another picture, like a dream within a dream, and it hung on the wall of the cell, a fatal love—a dead love—an eternal salve to the world—this was the meaning of the painting on the hand first. The second picture represented a very young and lovely woman, but pushed in death, she was crushed on a mattress, and rich organs. It needed but a glance to divine the mystery of this sad story. A fatal love—a dead love—an eternal salve to the world—this was the end and the great drama. Rubens felt the painting; however, the design, the composition, and colouring revealed a genius of the highest order. As Rubens gazed, his surprise and admiration momentarily increased.

"Master," asked the pupils, "who can have been the author of this magnificent work?"

"In this corner," replied Rubens, "there was formerly a monk; it must have been some of not only a few months ago. As to the picture, it does not seem to date back more than twenty, not less than twenty years."

"But who painted it?"

"Judging by the picture's merits," said Rubens, "it must have been a Velasquez, Zurbaran, Murillo or Ribera. Considering the coloring and treatment of the subject it is neither Velasquez's, Zurbaran's, Murillo's or Ribera's. It cannot be attributed to Murillo or Ribera, for it has far more tenderness the latter is much more sombre; besides the character of the subjects is not there. I venture to say more, I believe the unknown painter who bequeathed this masterpiece to the world did not belong to any school. I believe he never painted any other picture; he could not have painted any other much work, splendid though his talent must have been. This is a work of inspiration, a revelation of the soul, a copy of a lost life. Would you know the author? Look!"

"Look!" I have fixed on my side," exclaimed Rubens.

"Look! Behold a dead man paint a passage in his own life!"

"Undeposed me! I mean to say that a living man could paint the sense of his own death. Do you believe that to be possible? I only believe genius could limned in the background of the picture, was the life and soul of the dying monk. I believe that when he painted it he was determined to die to the world, and that he kept his word. Yes, I believe this masterpiece of art represents vividly and clearly the cause of the young monk's flight from the world to escape the world, and despite the deep and abiding grief for the death of his betrothed bride; still there must have been a date to the work; time and forgetfulness blunts all sorrows; so let us look for the substance art; and see, if in fact, he painted any other picture."

While speaking Rubens received a much beaming near him and engaged in prayer. The painter addressed him with his usual levity of manner.

"Would you condescend to the Father Prior that I would request to see him in the king's name?"

"Yes, I will, I know I have really forgotten his name."

"Then, my pedro," said Rubens, with sudden ill humor, "your memory must be a very short one."

The Prior again knelt and tranquilly continued his devotions.

"I come in the king's name," exclaimed Rubens, in an angry tone.

"What more do you desire, brother?" responded the monk gently raising his head.

"I want to buy that picture."

"But it cannot be sold."

"In that case, I want to know where I can find the painter?"

"Equally impossible; he is no longer in the world."

"Dead?" repeated Rubens in accents of despair.

"The master said well" broke in one of the young painters; "the picture was painted by a man who depicts the last scene of his own life."

"Dead!" again exclaimed Rubens as if talking to himself; "so soon lost! Dead! Oh he was then my equal, I have found his work, and I have sought for an artist who at the Antwerp. Although he was born, both in Seville and Madrid, he was a Fleming by birth and by art of Parliament, as painter, who has at all the first palaces of Spain, which is based upon the relation of the work and observer

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, MAY 28, 1890.

A Little Light on a Dark Subject.

Every day during the past week has brought us letters asking information regarding the Pope's aggressive attitude towards the Irish people and their acknowledged leader—Charles Stewart Parnell. In reply to these queries we can confidently say: plus ne fraud in any news concerning the Catholic Church or the Irish people when such information comes from an English source. The history of England furnishes innumerable examples which go to prove that under every English monarch efforts have been made to sever the Irish people from the Roman Pontiff and to stamp out Catholic faith from the hearts of the faithful Irish race.

England at present is engaged in the pursuit of the same policy, and its Government will have reason to be the honest means in helping to destroy the bond of spiritual union, which exists between the See of Peter and the Celtic race. But the evil machinations of emissaries, who will not succeed, as the patriotic Prelates of Ireland says, the "Irish are a people whom nothing can ever turn from the way of truth; a people whom faith so deeply imbued in hearts and souls, or shall its love for God, the Holy See, and mother-land."

In order to give our readers an idea of how "Roman news is manufactured and manipulated in London," we make a couple of extracts from a Dublin paper—United Ireland—of the 5th inst., from which our readers will learn, with great astonishment, that the supposed votes of the Vatican is nothing more than the hollowing of a John Bull correspondent to a Roman journal. Our Dublin contemporary says:

"Every invention that English cunning can devise is unreplished from Rome to destroy the belief entertained by the Irish people in Charles O'Connor's visit is described as being for the purpose of giving a Papal sanction to the Parnell Commission and to answer which Mr. Parnell has made a special journey to Rome. We have made the statement with a view to show the determination of those who wish to see the Commission proceed to Ireland, and to show how far they are prepared to go to carry out their design. We have no doubt that the Commission will sit in Dublin, and that Mr. Parnell will be summoned to Dublin to be examined in regard to the movement in Ireland, is wholly devoid of foundation. The fact is the Archbishop has been most courteously invited here as one who is welcome, and who has knowledge of special facts as to the condition of the Irish people. The statements that Archbishop Croke has been received with distrust at the Propaganda, and that possibly he might be detained in conference with the Pope, are wholly at variance with truth."

The Founder of the Christian Brothers.

According to advices received from Rome another step has been made in the progress of the case of venerable Jean Baptiste de la Salle, the founder of the Christian Brothers, whose canonization has been under consideration by the Sacred Congregation for several years. This great teacher of the cause of Christian education was born in Rheims in 1651. In 1672 he received doctor's rectors, and in the hands of Ladislas Jean, Archbishop and Duke of Cambrai, and was ordained priest by Archbishop Sellier in the cathedral of Rheims in 1678. Alive to the evils of ignorance, he in Rheims in 1680, gave up his social position, resigned his canonry, distributed his patrimony among the poor, and consecrated his life to the education of youth. He gathered around him a number of young men for this work in head. In 1685 he opened a normal school, the Duke de Monteleon furnishing the means for the education of teachers not members of the society, who were intended for schools in the country districts. In 1688 de la Salle opened a school of technical sciences, and Sunday schools, in which, after religious instruction, lessons were given in mathematics, drawing, and music. In 1691, pressed by the clergy and gentry of Rouen, he opened a boarding school for the education of the higher classes. In writing of this school, he says: "I believe Providence intended that schools of this kind shall help to support schools for the poor." In 1699 the Cardinal de Noailles gave his sanction to the Institute, which would send the sons of the exiled officers of the army of James II. to be educated, replied that he considered La Salle the best teacher in France. The King, in consequence, sent fifty young Irishmen to the Brothers' boarding school to be educated in accordance with their creed. Some of these are the ancestors of men who have done much for France. In a few years De la Salle established primary schools, boarding schools, normal schools, schools of technology, and reformatory schools. He died in 1719 with a high reputation for sanctity. His work goes on, not only in his own country and his own society, but throughout the civilized world. He was declared venerable by Pope Gregory XVI. in 1840; his virtues were declared heroic in 1873, and the new approbation given to the miracles attributed to his intercession is declared valid.

The Christian Brothers, following the example of their holy founder, have not confined their labors to France. Yet are to be found wherever the poor are to be taught, or colleges founded for the education of youth, and wherever they have gone the blessing of God seems to have followed them. They came to Canada in 1837, and ten years later they came to the United States. In 1848 four French Brothers opened a small free school at the French church, Canal street, New York; they shortly after opened an academy. The four Brothers had to endure much hardship, poverty and the little free school and academy have given free schools, academies, and colleges to most of the large cities in the Union. His Grace, the Most Rev. Archbishop Alemany, desirous to meet the educational wants of his Diocese, applied for the Christian Brothers, and though their number was entirely inadequate to meet the demands of the Eastern Bishops, through the kindly intervention of our Holy Father, the late Pius IX., his Grace succeeded in obtaining the Brothers. They arrived in California in August of 1866, right in number, and took the management of St. Mary's College. They have since increased number, and have now flourishing educational institutions in San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, besides a spacious Novitiate in Martinez to form young men for the vocation of teaching. At the Novitiate there is accommodation for some thirty novices; at present there are in that establishment only eighteen, including postulants. The devoted Christian Brothers is very urgent, not only in the Archdiocese, but all along the coast. Their present limited number renders it impossible for them to open additional establishments. It is, therefore, much to be desired that young gentlemen who feel themselves called to serve God, by devoting Christian education, should enter the ranks of the Christian Brothers. On due recommendation young gentlemen may obtain admission into the Novitiate by applying to Rev. Brother Battelin of St. Mary's College.

An Apologist for Governor Stoneman.

Somebody has sent us a marked copy of the Valley Advocate, published in Marysville, in which we find it stated that our Democratic Governor "is a staunch friend to Irishmen." In reply to which we have only to say: From all such friends good Lord deliver us! Governor Stoneman, as we have shown already in these columns, has been bitterly anti-Irish in every appointment he has made thus far, by discriminating against Irish-American applicants and in favor of the Southern element in the party.

But in order to prove that Governor Stoneman is the Irishman's best friend, the Advocate says that "he ran on the same ticket with J. P. Dunn, State Controller; J. W. McCarthy, Clerk of the Supreme Court, and other Irishmen." Well, suppose he did! Does that prove that you can pretend to say that there is any comparison between the Irishmen named and the gubernatorial nominee? John P. Dunn has more knowledge about the principles of government in his little finger than Governor Stoneman has in his whole body. Both Dunn and McCarthy are eloquent speakers, while Stoneman had to be "carried to the rear," by his friends in the early stages of the last—and for him the very last—campaign. Messrs. Dunn and McCarthy are thoroughly honest, independent, and intelligent Democrats, while Governor Stoneman is mere "potter's clay" in the hands of political bosses who pull the strings so that their puppet may dance to their music. Nay, more, it is charged by Mr. P. S. Dorney, in his splendid speech on the Anti-Chinese agitation, and the evil influence of monopolies, that Governor Stoneman received "the vote of every railroad king and boss in the State. This great vote was secured, the Governor has no desire to disclose the immediate things which caused his nomination. Mr. Dorney, in his speech, said, if young, he has discontinued the practice of his faith because the non-Catholics and infidels he associates with, have so befuddled him with the nameless of Masonry, or some worse secret society; hence, he could not blame himself even if his soul's salvation was endangered. He is not an infidel, he is too "enlightened" to believe in what he calls the "fabulous dogmas of Roman superstition." He never knew Mass, never goes to his duty, but he can blather about Bob Ingersoll and swear by a God he refuses to serve. This kind of a "liberal" Catholic has many representatives in San Francisco and in other portions of the Pacific coast, but thus far the grace of God seems not to have reached any of their hearts so as to bring them back to the fold of Christ.

In MONITOR, home—for their special benefit—we copy the following letter from the New York Freeman's Journal, showing that many of our readers will have the chance to show it to such of their Catholic friends as may have the misfortune to belong to that blind body yclept "liberal" Catholics:

ELIZABETON, KY., April 12th, 1890.

Editor N. Y. Freeman's Journal: Dear Sir—Will you be so kind as to let me know if there were Eight Sky of a priest; and who are they? I was once one of them, thereby I will take myself as a sample, and endeavor to make a you a true picture of American "Liberal" Catholic.

I left my home and parents (with their consent) at the age of 16, to go out into the world, to earn a livelihood, and help my parents. I was, as I thought, well instructed in the Catechism (thanks to my dear Mother), and was even that, I was a Catholic, but, in spite of that, too. But, after having been with a thousand years or so, I was no longer what was called "good society." I heard otherwise that I was not good enough for some people that lived in good society. I was told I should not go to church or evening entertainments. When I was called upon, I declared when the Church and Society clashed, I preferred the Church and Society. I was called fanatic, for when visiting, I refused to go to the theatre, because I was not in her parlor. I was called a Catholic, I was proud of being a Catholic, I attended the Catholic Church, never heard of any other church, never read a book against Catholicism, and that on account of his own ignorance, I was called fanatic, surprise is his, that at all times the worm that gnaws at his conscience, and tells him that he is wrong. Now, because I is not fashionable—because of the poor and uneducated people who fill the Church, and whose greatest sin is to please God regardless of what the world may think of them. Now, I am not popular in the family, vain-minded, world-loving and easy-day-and-night society, and my "good society" Catholic given up all that is dear to man for the sake of the Church.

I, the son of Irish parents, who were true Catholics to a man, honest and religious though poor, fell for the sake of being recognized by the world (society) and to be classed among the so-called "liberal" Catholics, who, in spite of their religious virtues—permit their beloved country and their relatives, as dear to them, to be objects of with scorn and contempt.

I am ashamed to the knowledge of truths of our holy Faith to be derided and mocked at. I have seen Holy Mother the Blessed Virgin Mary insulted, and, coward-like, smiled and acquiesced such rank insolence. I have seen our Lord, our Redeemer, Jesus Christ, crucified, and I

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY—THE REFUGE OF SINNERS.

FIFTH ARTICLE.

"The voice of my beloved knocking: open to me, my sister, my love, my dove, my undefiled."—(Solomon I. 5). Who is this beloved? Who is the venerable Abbot Godfrey (De Rest. Virg.), speaking, under the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, the Catholic of Catholics, in praise and honor of Mary, our Revered, our Blessed, our Redeemer born into the world, and with whom the Lord God Redeemer Himself desired to effect the redemption of the human race. Hence God who had chosen and loved Mary for His Beloved Mother, to the end that He might convert by the work of redemption, the world, cries out: "Open to me, my Sister. In this world, I am wearied, I am troubled, I am in the miserable, and the humiliation of the Divine Word and the humiliation of the Mother of God, is predicted. Hence, I cry out, I am standing in these words of Canticles: "The Dead Godhead cries out to Mary, Virgin supposed to a man who was crucified, and of the house of David, and the Angel said to her: behold thou shalt conceive in the Angel said to her: behold thou shalt conceive and bring forth a Son (Luke I. 26-31). In order that the adult give me to this mortuary, and might believe in Him, by whom authority the Angel spoke to her, Sent against her and said: "Hail, Mary, full of Grace! "Open to me." As if He had said to her: Open to me by faith, and do not doubt my words, because it shall happen to a wonderful manner that you will conceive Jesus. Then Mary's virginal, and her human mind shall be saved by the Blessed Virgin, and conceive Jesus, the Holy Ghost, Hic habitavit (Ecclesiastes, Genesis, hence) in the Virgin Mary, Jesus Christ, Mary, Mary, Mary

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM— IRELAND.

THE POPE'S CIRCULAR.

What the English Press says it Contains.

Rome, May 15.—The Papal Nuncio, in his circular to the Irish bishops says: "Whatever Parnell's object may be, his success has given the Papal Nuncio ample opportunity to explain the views of the Pontiff on the question of the rights of property, as set forth by Cardinal Nina, and the great attention paid to the subject, which must be attributed to the Nuncio's efforts. While it is grateful for the success, it will prepare the minds of the people to give far more effective obedience to the laws of God and God's justice." The Nuncio is performing even a great mission. He is the only representative of the Pontiff who has succeeded in inspiring unity and mutual confidence between the people and their pastors. The Nuncio's circular will not fail, or permit the extremists to misrepresent his intentions. Cardinalship is reserved for the Nuncio, but congratulations are already poured in on him. The Pope's circular will show that if he pleads that property is not absolute, it does not mean that property should be confiscated, but that the rights of property should be respected, and that the duties of property should be fulfilled. The Nuncio

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

SAVED BY THE MERCY OF MARY.

BY MARION C. DONNELLY.

On the outskirts of a village of a Spanish river, Bald Grand Jamaica Hudson, sitting very straight, not lolling at 86 years, as did her great grandchild of eighteen:
"Young folks think old folks are fools,
but old folks know that young folks are."
"That is because you're old, grandma," sobbed Linda.
"No; is because I was once young," said the old lady.
"But he is the only one I shall ever love," said Linda. "Papa is cruel to me. Why does he think Ill of Lewis! He knows nothing about him. I shall die if we are separated."
"I was going to die too," said the old lady, "but I didn't."
"Oh, tell me, please," cried Linda, "had you a lover; did they separate you? I never knew you had a love story—that is, that kind of one."
"Yes," said the old lady. "I had a lover. You can have many lovers, but never more than one father and mother. Folks think of that when its too late. I was young, child, and I had a lover. I had a lover and he was a sailor. I was young, and I should not come to see me. I remember
I always hated him for it. I was young, and they did what they did, either. I shared the punishment, and I suffered much for my sin and my young love—that was what my parents called it, and I was young and they were old, my dear, ever so much wiser than I, and I thought I was the only woman, for it seemed wicked to me that any one should take it for granted I was not not worthy of love because he was a stranger,
and I made preparations to run away
with Cecil and marry him at Gretna Green.
Everything was ready; I had my jewels and money, and my little trinkets on my arm, and was creeping out of a side door that had been left open for me when a hand came down on my shoulder and a voice cried out:
"My girl is this the way you use me?
and there was my father.
"My father's face was white as a ghost,
and his hand shook as he held me.
"O father, father!" I cried, "if you would only let me have my way in this one thing. You can't make a girls love or hate
by saying so."
He stood, holding me firm and fast.
"It is Emelina who has betrayed me,"
said; and though they would never admit it,
I knew the maid had proved false.
"Well, they locked me up in my room.
How often I cried out, "I shall die if I am separated from Cecil."
"I am sorry for you, but when I think of it
the old pain comes back again. His eyes were like black diamonds, and he had an olive cheek and full red lips, and your men with pointed shoulders and thin pale faces and hollow cheeks wouldn't look like him,
standing beside him.
"It was a lovely day, and my health broke under it. I had a fever, and when I was well again the doctor said I must have a change; so mother decided to take me to the seaside; but first we were to go to pa's country-seat to London and visit an aunt I had there.
"It was the day of stage-coaches and the day of highwaymen.
"Being over a certain common on our way coaches had been more than once stopped by men who were armed always, and the women trembled when they saw horsemen riding towards them.
"Your money or your life," was their word, and they kept it.
"It was should meet the highwayman"
said my mother; but I was not afraid.
didn't care whom we met or what happened
me.
"We rode away from home at noon, the night fallen and stopped for dinner and to change horses at an inn; then we rode on again. It would be night long before we reached London. I sat in the coach with my head on my mother's shoulder, thinking of my little Cecil. Could I ever see him again—never, never, never!
"I did not think it would. Don't you ever sleep or play?"
"Oh, yes I play the whole of Czerny's exercises for the piano every morning, and
I am learning the overture to Tristan and Isolde. I used to go to sleep in the classroom but, it was awful mean and I got over
it. Mine was a very prosaic, says if we know the mission of women is in the home,
twentieth century we would not be single long. Besides, if I went to sleep, wouldn't pass."
"Pass what?"
"The examination."
"But you might pass some other things."
"Of course I might."
"Why vertigo, nervous exhaustion, and hysterics, perhaps."
"Oh, I don't study those yet."
"Why, I don't know."
"Let me go now, please."
"Wait a moment; I want to ask you one other question. Don't you ever feel tired?"
"Oh, what's the use of feeling tired I haven't got time. If a girl got tired wouldn't pass would she?"
"I suppose not.
"Do you know in this world, don't you?"
"Oh, no. When I pass, I'm going to study for the stage, and get a parlor and live in Chicago; but you mustn't put that in the paper, because I wouldn't like to be found out."
Then the American infant pushed
her books, gave her hand a little tap,
and shot off with a saucy air.—New York Journal.

A Foolish Notion.

We often hear it said, especially by people who are indifferent in religious matters, that it is wrong to train up a child in any form of religion; that the mind of the child should not be prejudiced for or against any church, so that, when arriving at the age of discretion, it may choose that form of religion which it may deem best. How often we see the fruit of this from sensible people in worldly no sex.

Where could be no greater delusion, for if right principle is not inculcated into the mind, wrong ones are sure to take root, as weeds and bad ones are sure to spring up in uncultivated ground. Besides it assumes that our religion is as good as another, and that it makes no difference to the individual whether he attaches himself to some Christian church, or the Mohammedan, or Pagan religion, or becomes an infidel or atheist. God did not create us that we might follow our own caprice. He gave us faculties of mind that we might know right from wrong, truth from falsehood. He expects us to do what is right and believe what is true. He did not make man for isolation, but for society, and children must depend upon their parents in their youth for a knowledge of right and wrong and believe what is true. Any parent, of any one responsible for a child, must teach it the true religion, if they know it himself, under the fearful penalty of losing his own soul. No one can shirk this responsibility, and he who fails in this duty is on the way to perdition.

SHIRLEY MEN.

"Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia, Impotence, Sexual Debility.

Literary Miscellany.

An Old Woman's Story

Many years ago a girl and her great grandmother sat together—the girl in her bald Grand grandma Hudson, sitting very straight, not lolling at 86 years, as did her great grandchild of eighteen:
"Young folks think old folks are fools,
but old folks know that young folks are."
"That is because you're old, grandma," sobbed Linda.
"No; is because I was once young," said the old lady.
"But he is the only one I shall ever love,"
said Linda. "Papa is cruel to me. Why does he think Ill of Lewis! He knows nothing about him. I shall die if we are separated."
"I was going to die too," said the old lady, "but I didn't."
"Oh, tell me, please," cried Linda, "had you a lover; did they separate you? I never knew you had a love story—that is, that kind of one."
"Yes," said the old lady. "I had a lover. You can have many lovers, but never more than one father and mother. Folks think of that when its too late. I was young, child, and I had a lover. I had a lover and he was a sailor. I was young, and I should not come to see me. I remember
I always hated him for it. I was young,
and they did what they did, either. I shared the punishment, and I suffered much for my sin and my young love—that was what my parents called it, and I was young and they were old, my dear, ever so much wiser than I, and I thought I was the only woman, for it seemed wicked to me that any one should take it for granted I was not not worthy of love because he was a stranger,
and I made preparations to run away
with Cecil and marry him at Gretna Green.
Everything was ready; I had my jewels
and money, and my little trinkets on my arm, and was creeping out of a side door
that had been left open for me when a hand came down on my shoulder and a voice cried out:
"My girl is this the way you use me?
and there was my father.
"My father's face was white as a ghost,
and his hand shook as he held me.
"O father, father!" I cried, "if you would only let me have my way in this one thing. You can't make a girls love or hate
by saying so."
He stood, holding me firm and fast.
"It is Emelina who has betrayed me,"
said; and though they would never admit it,
I knew the maid had proved false.
"Well, they locked up in my room.
How often I cried out, "I shall die if I am
separated from Cecil."
"I am sorry for you, but when I think of it
the old pain comes back again. His eyes were like black diamonds, and he had an olive cheek and full red lips, and your men
with pointed shoulders and thin pale faces
and hollow cheeks wouldn't look like him
standing beside him.
"It was a lovely day, and my health broke under it. I had a fever, and when I was well again the doctor said I must have a change; so mother decided to take me to the seaside; but first we were to go to pa's country-seat to London and visit an aunt I had there.
"It was the day of stage-coaches and the day of highwaymen.
"Being over a certain common on our way coaches had been more than once stopped by men who were armed always, and the women trembled when they saw horsemen
riding towards them.
"Your money or your life," was their word, and they kept it.
"It was should meet the highwayman"
said my mother; but I was not afraid.
didn't care whom we met or what happened
me.
"We rode away from home at noon, the night fallen and stopped for dinner and
to change horses at an inn; then we rode on again. It would be night long before we reached London. I sat in the coach with my head on my mother's shoulder, thinking of my little Cecil. Could I ever see him again—never, never, never!
"I did not think it would. Don't you ever sleep or play?"
"Oh, yes I play the whole of Czerny's
exercises for the piano every morning, and
I am learning the overture to Tristan and Isolde. I used to go to sleep in the classroom but, it was awful mean and I got over
it. Mine was a very prosaic, says if we know
the mission of women is in the home,
twentieth century we would not be single long. Besides, if I went to sleep, wouldn't pass."
"Pass what?"
"The examination."
"But you might pass some other things."
"Of course I might."
"Why vertigo, nervous exhaustion, and hysterics, perhaps."
"Oh, I don't study those yet."
"Why, I don't know."
"Let me go now, please."
"Wait a moment; I want to ask you one other question. Don't you ever feel tired?"
"Oh, what's the use of feeling tired I haven't got time. If a girl got tired wouldn't pass would she?"
"I suppose not.
"Do you know in this world, don't you?"
"Oh, no. When I pass, I'm going to study for the stage, and get a parlor and live in Chicago; but you mustn't put that in the paper, because I wouldn't like to be found out."
Then the American infant pushed
her books, gave her hand a little tap,
and shot off with a saucy air.—New York Journal.

A Foolish Notion.

We often hear it said, especially by people who are indifferent in religious matters, that it is wrong to train up a child in any form of religion; that the mind of the child should not be prejudiced for or against any church, so that, when arriving at the age of discretion, it may choose that form of religion which it may deem best. How often we see the fruit of this from sensible people in worldly no sex.
Where could be no greater delusion, for if right principle is not inculcated into the mind, wrong ones are sure to take root, as weeds and bad ones are sure to spring up in uncultivated ground. Besides it assumes that our religion is as good as another, and that it makes no difference to the individual whether he attaches himself to some Christian church, or the Mohammedan, or Pagan religion, or becomes an infidel or atheist.
God did not create us that we might follow our own caprice. He gave us faculties of mind that we might know right from wrong, truth from falsehood. He expects us to do what is right and believe what is true. He did not make man for isolation, but for society, and children must depend upon their parents in their youth for a knowledge of right and wrong and believe what is true.
Any parent, of any one responsible for a child, must teach it the true religion, if they know it himself, under the fearful penalty of losing his own soul. No one can shirk this responsibility, and he who fails in this duty is on the way to perdition.

SHIRLEY MEN.

"Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia, Impotence, Sexual Debility.

THE PRIEST'S VISIT.

How the Faith of a Pious Catholic was Rewarded.

From the Antigonish (Nova Scotia) Aurora we glean the following particulars of a most edifying example of the triumph of Prayer and heal perseverance:

"Every Sunday morning for months; and he who seeked, findeth; and to him who knocketh it shall be opened. (Mark, vii. 8.) Thus faith leads us to act with confidence, to seek with diligence, and to knock at the gate of Divine mercy with an unfalterings perseverance; and so, imparting an all-powerful efficacy to prayer, it enables us to obtain the full measure of our petitions. A very admirable illustration of this great and consoling truth is furnished in the life and death of a brave soldier of the gallant 84th Highland Regiment, disbanded at Halifax, Nova Scotia, in the year 1763. His name, John Chisholm, will appear our readers to have been that he was a native of Strathglass, where the Church has ever found so much loyalty.

Having bidden his companions in arms a long farewell, Mr. Chisholm, who had already wife and middle-age, settled first in the county of Hants, where industry and thrift soon procured him an ample degree of comfort for himself and family. One thing, however, was wanting, which his circumstances were otherwise calculated to ensure: no priest—no Catholic lived in that county. He had to be satisfied with the simple exercise of piety he saw his fellowsite son, Duncan Mor, and Miss Hall, whose anti-Catholic prejudices were in keeping with the bigotry of her family. In order to avert the dreaded consequences of his isolation, Mr. Chisholm determined, in his heart, to erect a chapel on his land in residence, and with his family to fix it at Lismore, in the County of Pictou. Here he had almost to begin his life over in a district, now so charming, but then an unbroken wilderness. Nothing daunted, his brave pioneer was not long without having the joys which his piety had led him to undergo. Immediately on his family being settled, he invited their abode under his roof. The few Catholics in the district were soon made acquainted with the glad news. The sun gain: but two years passed by, and no priest came to visit the poor pilgrim fathers were to be considered by the thrice-welcome visit of a priest.

ABOUT THIS TIME OR WHEN WE SPEAK, several of the Scottish landlords, having discovered that the raising of cattle and sheep afforded larger profits than did the letting of their lands to their former occupants, with a cruelty peculiar to their profession, they had so diabolically conspired to rob their dependants of the Catholic faith, by unchaining upon them their tenants from their native bosom. The year 1790 saw the commencement of the unprincipled conspiracy of Highland Scotch Catholics to those shores. In that year, Rev. Alexander R. Mc. Donald, the last priest in Prince Edward Island to take after the spiritual wants of his exiled fellow-sons, and to begin his long apostolate, so faithful, so zealous, so Heaven-blessed. Two years passed by after the arrival of the beloved his most laborious mission in Prince Edward Island, had charge of the Scotch Catholics of Antigonish, the diocese, and so marvellously blessed were his ministrations that not one member of his flock, scattered throughout Eastern Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, was allowed to pass from this world without rounds—died without the consolations of religion! Such was the zeal, such the hand, he made the acquaintance of held stations in Hants, and conceived to blame the marvel feelings of friendship, or regarded as a penal, obliging and accomplacy neighbor that the more been and of the Catholic Church, he was greatly detested in like the unswerving but genuine virtues of a man, unblemished by the slightest stain of and religion all around him.

MR. JOHN CHISHOLM,

Years rolled on, and at length the vigorous constitution, which unknown had always respected, began visibly to decay and the incessant toil to tell on him. To all it soon become evident that his days were nearly numbered, and his friends began to hold as to who should break the question to the grand old man—the father of all—that a priest might be sent for to administer the last rites of the Church. Duncan Mor undertook to speak to his father on the fatal affection. He pointed out to his father how unnecessary it was for him to be telling on him, and how natural it was to expect that he would not live to see the end of the approaching year, during which it was impossible to a long boat to send for the priest in Prince Edward Island. He further suggested that, as the autumn was already so far advanced, a sail would be dangerous across the Straits of Northumberland to ask Father McPeters to prepare for his death. "Yes, my son, true," was in effect the excellent man's reply. "that my end is rapidly approaching; that, although I suffer no bodily pain, at any time of life the end must be sweet to me, because I have lived a good over since I came to the full use of reason, I have endeavored to lead a life worthy blessed beseeching my God to grant me.

"Yet, I must not be presumptuous or religious at the hour of death, and I feel confident that my petition will be granted. On the other hand, the priest is far away, overwhelmed with the toil of his laborious mission, and ought not to be unnecessarily troubled. Trusting, therefore, implicitly in the loving kindness of my merciful Saviour, I wish you, my dear son, not to trouble about sending for a priest. Send one Hid ancient servant to prepare me for the journey, passage in his own good time. Awe-stricken at the inspired looks and language of the hoary patriarch, and fearful protesting over the extraordinary prophecy Weeks passed, and already the lingering beginning of Lent, when winter made itself felt, precedding all human hope of a visit from the Island priest. In the meantime, Father McEachen was, as usual, busy traversing by boat—pulls there were no sails—the Island's population in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and, as usual, he was busy in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and, as usual, he was busy in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and, as usual, he was busy

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, 1883.

AN IMPOSITION EXPOSED.

LETTER FROM ARCHBISHOP ALEMANY, O. P.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26, 1883.

Dear Sir—In your respected issue of the 21st inst. you ask my opinion on the singular manifestations taking place in the San Joaquin Sierra, where the people are told that a prophet located in a cave between caps has come to life; that he is preaching that people should repent; that the world's end is at hand; that very soon all will be destroyed by a general deluge; that the spot where he is will be spared the inundation; that the people should gather there, as the believers would be saved and the unbelievers would be swept away; that he is about discovering the "city of Galilee," where he will have abundant provisions; also that 700 persons have gone over to him; that the people believe he is curing all disease, etc.

Now, my dear sir, my opinion is very precise, and it is this: That the whole affair is a fraud, an imposition; and a wickedness. No priest has ever lived in those mountains; no priest, at his death, is buried in a cave. If a priest should come to life again, the first thing he would do would be to go to the Bishop and ask his blessing and authority because the Holy Scriptures say that the "Holy Ghost has appointed the Bishops to rule the Church of God." (Acts xx. 28.)

This bogus priest, who is probably an excaptain of some church in Mexico, should go to school, and study a little more before he talks of the "city of Galilee," and of a deluge, concerning which Almighty God clearly promises, with His infallible lips, that there will never be another general deluge. (Gen. viii., 21, 22.)

And if he pretends to be a prophet, he ought to know that his prediction about the end of the world does not agree with the words of Christ, the Lord of all prophets, for He says that "Of that day and hour no man knoweth, nor the angels of Heaven, but the Father alone." (Matt., xxiv. 36.)

As for his miraculous cures, I suppose they are as true as his prophecies. I would not be surprised if, instead of curing the sick, he would make sick the healthy, and cause some of them to lose their reason, as it happened with the Millerites some forty years ago, who, by listening to similar false prophecies, used to go out to the woods, expecting the last day, which did not come, and many of them, losing their reason, themselves duped, became crazy, and had to be sent to an insane asylum. The people ought to have more sense than to believe such wild and silly impostures.

It is probable that this false prophet may be associated with a woman who, it appears, is also trying to preach and perform miraculous cures about the same thence. It were better for Bishop Amat to look to these two private plots and prepare for a happy death, and then get rid of false prophets and false prophetesses. The Bishop does not have much time to lose in this world, as he is over 80 years of age.

Yours, etc., etc.,

+ J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

MR. OCTAVE THANET.

SERMON BY ARCHBISHOP VAUGHAN.

His Grace the Archbishop of Sydney preached in St. Patrick's Church, Gympie, to a large congregation on last Sunday, on the Gladstone Ministry, and from that Text, Gospel of St. Luke, Ninth Chapter, Fifty-first Verse, and Sixth Chapter, Twenty-fourth Verse, he says: "Let women keep silence, . . . for it is a shame for a woman to speak in the church. Let women be subject to their husbands. I permit not a woman to teach, nor use authority over the man; but to be in silence." (1 Cor., xiv. 33, 35.—1 Tim., i, 12.)

The texts perhaps partly with the designs of the Sun of God, who, although He loved His Blessed Mother more than He ever did, or ever will love any other of His creatures, put His duty and mission before all, and refused to execute any of the functions of the sacred ministry; but He conferred those offices upon men, who were to be ordained with his powers by the Sacrament of Holy Orders. Now, Christ who learned St. Epiphanius observes—(Hæres 55)—"that from the beginning of the world, among the fellowers of the true religion, never has woman performed the offices of the priesthood, neither Eve, nor any of her daughters." And this is the reason why, as we read in the Old Testament. "For if the function of the priesthood," says the same holy Doctor, "had been confided to women, no one should the priestly offices have been entrusted with greater reason than to Mary, upon whom so great an honor was conferred, that she was made to consider in her chaste womb the Lord of all things, the God of Heaven, the Son of God." Consequently, the women of the San Joaquin mountains ought to take the blind of the Apostle and be ashamed to do what was not confided even to the Mother of God.

Yours truly in Christ,

+ J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

MR. OCTAVE THANET.

SERMON BY ARCHBISHOP VAUGHAN.

His Grace the Archbishop of Sydney preached in St. Patrick's Church, Gympie, to a large congregation on last Sunday, on the Gladstone Ministry, and from that Text, Gospel of St. Luke, Ninth Chapter, Fifty-first Verse, and Sixth Chapter, Twenty-fourth Verse, he says: "Let women keep silence, . . . for it is a shame for a woman to speak in the church. Let women be subject to their husbands. I permit not a woman to teach, nor use authority over the man; but to be in silence." (1 Cor., xiv. 33, 35.—1 Tim., i, 12.)

The texts perhaps partly with the designs of the Sun of God, who, although He loved His Blessed Mother more than He ever did, or ever will love any other of His creatures, put His duty and mission before all, and refused to execute any of the functions of the sacred ministry; but He conferred those offices upon men, who were to be ordained with his powers by the Sacrament of Holy Orders. Now, Christ who learned St. Epiphanius observes—(Hæres 55)—"that from the beginning of the world, among the follow

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY—THE REFUGE OF SINNERS.

SIXTH ARTICLE.

Mary always loves her servants; she never abandons them in any of their misfortunes, still less when the perils of death approached them. She is our life during our exile, and she becomes our resources at the hour of death. Pious souls say on which Mary had the point and at the moment when the complexity of sentiments of the last sigh of her adored Son, the Chief of the predestined, she obtained from Him the power of assisting all the predestinated in their mortal agonies from the bed of suffering. What does the Church understand this, and hence the urgent to pray after Ave Mary? "Pray for us sinners now and at the hour of our death." Prophetic, indeed, are the magnificent of poor dying mortals, when the terrors of condemnation, the fear of the eternal judgment, and the uncertainty of their eternal salvation, all unite to fill the soul with trouble and terror! Ah, which lips ever only a few moments to which to labor for the consolation of the horrid moments, remembrance rays and make its most powerful efforts to support the poor soul in the last passage from life to death. For this last moment the devil calls to his aid, as we have seen, all the powers of hell. "Hide because shall by filial tender support (Psalm 32), that is, many devils who shall make to the Judge of souls, ah! how many accusations against sinners shudder, trembling and by remorse of the Divine Justice. If Mary is on our side when we the powers of hell do against us? Who a man in danger, if he is all hell is against for his domination; the most powerful of the devils ought to keep him into his side, and they are this sandy in comparison the end when the sigmen before the judge of souls, the Sovereign Judge the end is defended by Mary, the devils will not dare to accuse us, and if they do, Mary knew well that the Sovereign Judge has never condemned any of those under her mantle. Happy are those who have great will be your happiness in your last moments, if you have served Mary, if you have lived in the event state of obedience to Mary; if you have called upon Mary in your trials, if you have lived in her shadow, if you have lived in her obedience, and in her protection

SEATTLE'S MAGNIFICENT CHURCH.

Interesting Letter from Seattle—Dedication of a Magnificent Church Edifice—Address of Archbishop Gross—Father Prendergast's Successful Missionary Labors—Spread of the Faith in Seattle—The Sisters' Hospital and Schools, etc., etc.

SEATTLE, May 19th, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR—

Dear Sir—As a personal pursuit of your ever-welcome MONITOR I hereafter will be glad to chronicle the advancement of the Faith in this portion of the Pacific coast, where, the blessing of God, and the zeal and prudence of our pastor—Rev. F. X. Prefontaine—the Catholic church has had a marvellous growth and wonderful prosperity. It is now but a few years since a small wooden chapel sufficed to hold the few Catholics who assembled to hear Mass once in a while at this place whenever a priest passed this way, but now we not only possess the most beautiful church in the territory, but we can boast of a magnificent hospital under charge of the Sisters of Charity, and a day and boarding school under the supervision of the Sisters of the Most Holy Names.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW CHURCH.

Last Sunday was a day that will long be remembered by the Catholics of this place, that being the occasion when our magnificent new temple erected by heavenly Faith, fervent Hope and Christian Charity, was dedicated to be alone thereafter—if life where Rest Freedom upon our shore our holy faith teaches. I had the pleasure of meeting the Right Rev. Archbishop Gross, of the Diocese of Portland, and I may say that from the time Father Prefontaine left Portland, I have followed the history of Portland and Oregon from the time of its first settlement by the Catholics, and I have watched

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

ON THE LAKE MAN ST ST. PETER.

BY REV. P. A. TREACY.

"Is somebody here Christie Rantoul, songs at midnight?" Act. 16, 4.

In Galilee's Temple, near the Beautiful Gate,
Lay on the floor a cripple from his birth,
Elsewhere a subject for unfeeling pities,
But here a brother to commiserate.
He heard one, St. Peter and St. John Passed in, and Peter bade the cripple ask
Their favor. Mutually the beggar rose
His eyes o'er both. He look'd their hands upon,
As one who hopes on alms. St. Peter then
Then spoke: "Nor silver nor rich gold have I
Yet give, but through my Master's power on high
I give thee strength, like to thy fellowmen;
Through Him whom will no fashioness can bulk
In Jesus name, of Nazareth, rise and walk.
Oxford, N. Y.

WORK AND WAIT.

A Hymn for those who weary years
Have tempted the fields and seen his three,
Grew weary with his doubts and fears.

"I will be rich! These cares and sorrows
Will yield me harvest to my hands;
The best seals out in barren lands.

"My decades also is withering;
No promised grape in the bunch is lost;
Its blossoms have fallen, I know.

"My fleck is dying on the plain;
The leaves are brown—they yield no rain;
The earth is dry, and I toil in vain.

While yet he spoke a breath had stirred
His drooping vine, the leaves of green
Had fresh the air; a voice he heard.

"The grape and fruits of life must be Forever hidden from thee;
I am come and bid in vain for Me.

"A mightier hand, more skilled than thine
Has kept the vineyard in the vine,
And make the fields with harvest shine.

"Man can his work, God can create;
Man may plan, but God alone
Can make the fields with harvest shine.

"Look up to heaven! behold and hear
The cloud in obedience to my prayer
Are answer to thy doubt and fear.

He looked, and lo! a cloud appeared,
Of white, cooling shadow of Sinai's rock,
Was resting by a distant star.

Good cheer thinney flock on plain
Or vineyard up to meet the rain
That came to all the fields with grain.

God in the clouds he may again
The covenant of God and man,
Which, in the clouds, he hidden yet.

"Seed, time and harvest shall not fail,
And though all country seem barren
My words shall not prevail."

NOT WITH SELAMONS.

Buy the shamrock, arrons, from the poor little boy
In the corner of the morning I found it
With the pall of a pretty local manual
Was a shamrock that had grown in the land of God,
With the dew on its leaf, the x bear is Why the Spirit, the Lord, the Father and Son
Of the beautiful kingdom of Erin.

The blinds may be for the beam beside Nothing
The Wisdom may value that look at its worth,
Yet the shamrock is dear to the Irish
And so it's the shamrock I offer to you.
Take it, take it, and wear it for Ireland
Take it for the sake of your own, Christ is prayer
Take it for the sake of the Saviour in Heaven.

Tears on Tom the Dublin made in July and black,
Oh, sadness! Oh, sadness! Oh, sadness!
Ah, do not you pity it just here on your bosom?
Then it lies in the dust, and it's dying
For a species of your mother's love, and all
Its glorious life in the sunshine of Erin
Is half of the beautiful values that have Tears from Ireland's eyes, and Ireland's heart.

It's a tender thing to remember for ever, "Around
The heart of the Irish, Ireland, Ireland
Ireland, Ireland, Ireland, Ireland, Ireland, and on the
Of the sunny, Ireland, and Christie, not on the
Of the sunny, Ireland.

Ah, there is nothing complete,
Nothing complete, nothing complete
Ah, there is nothing complete, nothing complete
Ah, there is nothing complete, nothing complete
Ah, there is

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1913.

Beware of False Prophets:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR:

Dear Sir—I would beg to say through your columns that from time to time the coast is infested with the visit of persons calling themselves Priests, Brothers, or clerical friends; who, adepts in a smooth and easy address, impose upon the good people of the various towns and cities, and who, practising on their credulity, drive a brazen or business soliciting for so-called charities that have no existence. Be assured that, in the majority of cases, the funds so gathered minister only to a thirst for something stronger than water.

The people should have learned, by this time, to be less easily imposed upon; and they ought to remember that when it is a question of who are "clerical frauds," and who are not, they are not the best judges of the genuine article. They would hence God and save their souls by demanding from all such persons credentials from the proper authority of the Diocese.

Very respectfully,
+J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

Did Pope Adrian Confer Ireland on Henry Second of England?

This is a historical question which has agitated the world for many centuries, but regarding which more has been learned during the last fifty years than at any previous period. Lilla the man of Galileo, the hero of the Spanish Inquisition, and other historical matters in which the Catholic Church was maliciously slandered for centuries, the history of the so-called Bull of Pope Adrian IV. has been enveloped in Protestant swaddling clothes, and in this fashion the world has received it, for so long a time that even some Catholics have not only believed in the genuineness of the document, but they have alluded to it on every occasion where opportunity offered, in order to hold up the Pope to the execration of the world as an enemy of Catholic Ireland.

Honest researches into the archives of the Vatican, however, have proved many scholarly writers—both lay and clerical, Catholic and non-Catholic—that Pope Adrian never issued the bull alleged to have his signature, and that the proofs for this belief we will endeavor to set forth as fully as the circumscribed limits of a newspaper article will allow. The first conclusion in this regard bull is the fact that it has no proper date, an omission which some writers attempt to justify by claiming that it was issued in the year 1175, while the fact remains that Pope Adrian died in 1159. This first clause is sufficient to throw doubt upon the document, but when the doubt upon them has been laid aside by the enemies as well as by the friends of the Church. But the very first thing this Bull is supposed to have done is conferred a title it could yet be no proof of its authenticity, because it reads: "Given at Rome," etc., when the fact is that at the time which some writers say this Bull was issued the Pope was not in Rome, as in consequence of the disturbed state of Italy at that period Pope Adrian had been overpaid by the Romans, from whence all Pontifical documents were dated. This fact presents a very substantial proof that the alleged Bull was forged for the purpose of enabling Henry II. to accomplish in Ireland, by fraud, what force had failed to achieve. But, as we expect to show further on, this Bull was never regarded as genuine by the Irish people, and it had no force whatever in rendering them subject to the rule of British monarchy.

It is well known to intelligent readers that a bit is kept in Rome of all the Bulls issued under each subsequent Pontiff, and as so much had been written for and against the genuineness of this Bull, Bishop Moran, of the Diocese of Conway, Ireland,—who has written a valuable essay on the subject—went to Rome for the purpose of satisfying himself regarding the genuineness of this document. Accordingly, he consulted the Codex Pelavicus, kept in Rome, and here are his exact words regarding the discovery that Probst made when in the Eternal City, from which this bogus Bull was said to have been published:

"During my stay in Rome I took occasion to look whether the Bull, of the existence of which we are knightly persuaded, by the learned Vatican Manuscript referred to in the Codex Pelavicus, if it was printed by the order of the Vatican, Monsignor Probst, who is at present employed in a new edition of the Codex, undertook the great work of Bonetus, the Order Palermitanus referred to in the Judgment of Monsignor Probst, which is printed in the Vatican Library, and in the Vatican Manuscript of Mathew Paris alone that here and there in the pages of Bonetus, I can only comment on the words of the author, I am happy to state that I have found no such document in that work or in the Vatican, or in the Bonetus, which Probst, Monsignor, Vatican Prefect, or in the Vatican Indices of the Popes—Innocent, Adrian, Alexander, Lucius, Urban, Pascal, Paul, and Alexander III."

The fact that "not a single trace" of this Papal document was to found among the archives of Rome, where all such important Pontifical documents are carefully registered, is irrefutable proof that no such document was ever issued by the Pontiff alleged. This fact alone ought to satisfy any impartial reader that the Bull in question was founded on fraud and forged in iniquity.

It may be said, however, that this idea of forging a Papal Bull is a nature as this could never have entered the head of an English monarch. Fortunately, however, for the cause of truth, Henry himself has willed that England's diabolical work of forging Papal Bulls should be exposed to the whole world, a "matric"—or mold for forging the Papal Bulls should be exposed to the whole world, a "matric"—or mold for forging the Papal Bulls and by a strange fate, an English monarch or their minions desired to invent—having been found a few years ago, and at present preserved in the museum of the Irish Academy in Dublin. The discovery was made by "matric," for applying spurious copies of the Papal seal to bogus Bulls, or other Pontifical documents, indisputably proves that English chicanery concocted this forged Bull for a nefarious purpose.

Another material proof that this Bull was a forgery may be adduced from the fact that all such Papal documents are addressed by the Hierarchy and Clergy to whom they are applicable, but in this instance the forged document is addressed to the King of England. Now, let us examine the character of this monarch to whom the Pope is falsely supposed to have entrusted the work of "eradicating the weeds of vice" from the Irish people. Here is a summary of the character of Henry II. of England, as depicted by historical writers: He was the illegal of the murder of St. Thomas Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, by publicly expressing his desire that some of his retinue should rid the world of "one Bishop, who gave him more trouble than all the rest of his subjects." The Archbishop was, accordingly, murdered in his own Cathedral by four of Henry's adherents, who treated his dead body with the most brutal inhumanity. All these miserable wretches, and their more miserable King, died within a few years after the commission of the double crime of murder and sacrilege, while their innocent victim was canonized by Pope Alexander III., and his festival is kept on the anniversary 29th. This act of premeditated murder, suggested by Henry II., occurred at the expiration of the year 1170.

This same Henry had four sons, and for years, during the life-time of their father, they were at war with him or with each other. One of them was afterwards Richard I., of England, and this bad son, of a worse father, gave the following as his reason why these brothers were all the time engaged in fratricidal war: "The custom of our family is that the son shall hate the father; our destiny is to detest each other. This is our heritage, which we shall never renounce. From the devil we came, to the devil we shall return." Such were the sons of this canonized monarch upon whom it is claimed that Pope Adrian conferred Ireland. But, the monarch who publicly owned the boy to be his son, who cursed the children that were born to him, who perpetrated unparalleled atrocities against the people of Wales and Ireland, and who indirectly caused the murder of Archbishop Becket—would not longer scruple about forging a Pope's Bull or committing any other crime that might be necessary to enable him to blacken their character in the eyes of the Pope—across them thus: "Moreover, they (the Irish) assert that the King of England, and all who claim by right of his Bulls obtained the dominion of Ireland, and this opinion is commonly held by them." This our pupil was preserved in Ireland throughout the turmoil of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries in Ireland, and in the seventeenth century, on the revival of Irish literature, it was restored to the light of the people and the labor of the priest are the factors that allow your correspondent to hold costly edifices for the worship of a real God according to the rites of the Church which he established.

The space occupied in the present issue by matters connected with Catholic education has compelled us to omit several editorial articles, correspondence, and other matter intended for this week's issue.

RELIEF FUNDS ACKNOWLEDGED.

LETTER FROM FATHER FLYNN.

Killycloher, Letterin, Ireland, May 12, '83.
EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—I have received your kind permission I beg to acknowledge through the columns of your paper the sum of Ninety-six and a half dollars, which you have so kindly forwarded to me for the alleviation of the distress which prevails in this wild, mountainous district. My special thanks are due to Dr. Gibbons, for this large amount. St. Martin Lyons, 1425 Mason street, has sent me the substantial sum of £5 and he has yet again brings from me the sum of £2 (Ste. of Ireland) the organization in part of members of the St. Dominic's Benevolent Society in your city, to a few friends of Mr. P. J. M'Keon, of San Francisco. I thank those charitable friends from my heart of hearts, and I assure them my unworthy prayers shall be offered up for them, and also the prayers of our good priests. He who rewards the cup of cold water given in His name will not forget those generous souls who have so far fill their sacred duty from "outcast." Your correspondent feels that he is not doing his duty if he does not inform you how your generosity is being used. Well, it is to say that there is no neighborhood, and therefore no means of acquainting with very many for them gentlemen.

CHARLES FLYNN, C. C.

LETTER FROM SISTER MARY FRANCIS CLARE.

St. Joseph's Convent of the Ave Maria,
Lowell, Middlesex Co., Mass.,
May 15th, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—Rev. Mother desires me acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the sum of your very kind letter and £5 3s. 7d. It will be a great help to us. We have over two hundred and three blind and poorer dioceses of Ireland.

I am yours very sincerely,
SISTER MARY FRANCIS CLARE.

CATHOLIC MATTERS AT OLYMPIA.

Olympia, Washington Ty., May 26, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—Inclosed find my letter the good Sisters and the children of the school enjoyed so much, during the Rosary. It has been a delight in the preparation of the pound for the new Cathedral, and the children have taken the enjoyment of the original contract by the contract. Nothing has ever given more joy to the children before the end of the Pal season, in the Church. The children, and the Sisters, and many children and parents were made happy by the letter you printed in the Tippecanoe Leader, and in as follows:

The Presbytery, Thurles, May 14th, 1883.

Dear Sir—On the 6th of displeasing his Grace the Archbishop of Cashel by notching the grandeur and sensation sermons delivered that occur in the press of the enemy from time to time regarding Irish interests, I had the honor to insert in the next issue of the Leader the Lenten pastoral, which first appeared in the Standard newspaper, and was reprinted in the Leader, Times, Cork Herald, and other journals, and then permit me to make a few observations on the subject. His Grace the Archbishop Croke, Cashel and Emly, Thursday, 1st, and on Sunday arrived in Rome. Immediately Archbishop Croke had arrived in Rome he sent a memorial to Cardinal Ireland, and who indignantly owned the author of Archbishop Beecher—would not long accepts about forgiving a Pope's Bull or committing any other crime that might be necessary to enable him to blacken their character in the eyes of the Pope—across them thus: "Moreover, they (the Irish) assert that the King of England, and all who claim by right of his Bulls obtained the dominion of Ireland, and this opinion is commonly held by them." This our pupil was preserved in Ireland throughout the turmoil of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries in Ireland, and in the seventeenth century, on the revival of Irish literature, it was restored to the light of the people and the labor of the priest are the factors that allow your correspondent to hold costly edifices for the worship of a real God according to the rites of the Church which he established.

The space occupied in the present issue by matters connected with Catholic education has compelled us to omit several editorial articles, correspondence, and other matter intended for this week's issue.

Four English Falsehoods Flattened Out.

It will be remembered by all who read the dispatches in the daily press about three weeks ago that in one of the cablegrams it was announced that Archbishop Croke, of Cashel had been criticised, chided and censured by the Pope for the course he had pursued in Irish Politics. This was what Father Burke would call "Four Thumping English Lies" bundled into one, and in order that our readers may have some idea of the mendacity of such matter as message from England we print the letter of Archbishop Croke's Vicar General, stamping the whole fabrication as a brutal British calumny concocted for the sole purpose of deceiving and duping the people into the belief that there was a conflict between the Pope and the great Prelate of Cashel. The letter is printed in the Tipperary Leader, and is as follows:

The Presbytery, Thurles, May 14th, 1883.

Dear Sir—On the 6th of displeasing his Grace the Archbishop of Cashel by notching the grandeur and sensation sermons delivered that occur in the press of the enemy from time to time regarding Irish interests, I had the honor to insert in the next issue of the Leader the Lenten pastoral, which first appeared in the Standard newspaper, and was reprinted in the Leader, Times, Cork Herald, and other journals, and then permit me to make a few observations on the subject. His Grace the Archbishop Croke, Cashel and Emly, Thursday, 1st, and on Sunday arrived in Rome. Immediately Archbishop Croke had arrived in Rome he sent a memorial to Cardinal Ireland, and who indignantly owned the author of Archbishop Beecher—would not long accepts about forgiving a Pope's Bull or committing any other crime that might be necessary to enable him to blacken their character in the eyes of the Pope—across them thus: "Moreover, they (the Irish) assert that the King of England, and all who claim by right of his Bulls obtained the dominion of Ireland, and this opinion is commonly held by them." This our pupil was preserved in Ireland throughout the turmoil of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries in Ireland, and in the seventeenth century, on the revival of Irish literature, it was restored to the light of the people and the labor of the priest are the factors that allow your correspondent to hold costly edifices for the worship of a real God according to the rites of the Church which he established.

THE MONITOR.
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1883.

OUR SCHOOLS.

Commencement Exercises in Catholic Colleges, Schools and Academies.

ST. THOMAS ECCLESIASTICAL SEMINARY.

The first examination of the students attending St. Thomas' Seminary at Sonoma, Mission San Jose, took place on the 28th ult., in the presence of a large number of the Lay Clergy, among whom we noticed Fathers Gray, Gibson, McNamee, Scanlan, Dillon, and Clavalier. The students in the Seminary consist of the Humanists, who have already passed through a full examination in a very creditable manner, and all the Lay Clergy present expressed themselves as very much pleased with the proficiency of the young students in the spacious brick building and the lovely grounds surrounding it. The Seminary will be closed until August 1st for vacation, at which time it is hoped that any young men who are sufficiently advanced in rhetoric, and who have a vocation for the priesthood, will present themselves before the Faculty for the purpose of joining Sophomore Class in Rhetoric. Prof. Gray, who is a graduate of the Seminary, and who has been a student of Rhetoric in the Seminary for the last two years, has been appointed Prefect of Discipline in the Seminary for the benefit of the students.

The examinations for the Sophomore Class took place on the 29th ult., and the Prefect of Discipline announced that the Seminary would be closed for vacation on the 30th ult.

Rev. Father Hudson of Gilroy will be the Director of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin which he had remained in his parish, and Rev. Father Scanlan, who has been sent to Father Kavanagh, Gilroy, Vicar General, Rev. Father Gibson.

The female seminary which the Christian Brothers propose to erect in Washington Square, will be ready in two months yet, probably for next Spring. The buildings will be ready for use in September, but it will take two months more to fit up the interior.

We call the attention of our readers to the present issue of Messrs. Sadlier's Catechism, which we have no doubt will be found to be the best publication for teaching this from we can find in the Catechism. We have seen the Catechism in use in many places, and we are always pleased to see it in use, and we are always pleased to see it in use, and we are always pleased to see it in use

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY—THE REFUGE OF SINNERS.

SEVENTH ARTICLE.

Our object in this article is to show that the intercession of Mary is not only useful to us but that it is even absolutely necessary. We have given the reasons for this necessity. "We have reason to believe also and it is by no means unimportant, we doubt to complicate the principal expressions in favor of Mary's intercessory to her Son's without doubt in the plan of the redemption. As we find all so desirous to say on this subject already greatly and solidly laid down in the pictures St. Liguori in the 3th Article of the "Glories of Mary," we will content ourselves with transcribing what relate our purpose from said chapter.

As the book referred to is within the reach and should be in the hands of every one, we will spare sparing the trouble of doing the Latin quotations. No one will deny that Jesus Christ is the only Mediator of Justice, and that by His merits He has obtained for us reconciliation with God. But, on the other hand, it is impious to deny that God is pleased to grant favors at the intercession of the Saints, and especially of Mary His Mother, whom Jesus desires us to honor as our loved and honored by us. Every one knows that honor paid to a mother redounds to her children. Hence we have reason to say, not only that that by greatly pleasing the Mother he will direct him the more the Judge of the Son; for the more he honors the Mother, the more that more will he honor the Son. St. Thomas says, that all the honor which is paid to the Mother of God, redounds to her Son and King. And there is no doubt that on account of the humility of the Mother, God has been exalted to Mary to be the Mediatrix of our salvation; and, indeed, the dignity of position, but of grace and intercession, as she is called by St. Bernard, "Mediatrix of the Mediator." Can she be otherwise than full of grace, who has been made the Ladder of Paradise, the Gate of Heaven, the most true Mediatrix between God and men? Wherefore St. Bernardin well remarks that when we implore the Holy Virgin to obtain graces for us, it is as if we thereby we obtain the divine mercy, but rather that we derive from God the mercy, and also mend ourselves to Mary that her merits may compensate for our unworthiness. Hence we ought to be doubted, therefore, except that Mary is the Mediatrix of Justice, and that we are indebted to her for our salvation, and that we are bound to be the Mediatrix of our salvation; and, indeed, the Mediatrix of position, but of grace and intercession, as she is called by St. Bernardin

OUR SCHOOLS.

Commencement Exercises in Catholic Colleges, Schools and Academies.

(CONCLUDED FROM FIFTH PAGE.)

NOTRE DAME DAY SCHOOL.

The close of the scholastic annual session of the Notre Dame Day School took place Friday, June 1st. The following is the programme: "Forest Glade March," Miner T. Georgiani, by Misses Cecilia Wolfe and H. Dunnar; Opening Address, Spoken by Misses K. O'Brien, J. Lynch, M. Collins, A. Anderson, and Phel Lancelot; "Dolly's Tea Party," Song by the Misses Dunnar, Wolfe, Hendricks, Beckman; "Wake of Lilies," Solos and Chorus; Mary's Dowry, Dramatic Drama, "Bridal Ball," Spoken by Misses Gale; "The Sister Choice"—Independent Lessons—Misses Beckman, Mac M. A. Dunnar, Dunn, Schellhaus; Miss M. Murray; Lessons Delightful, Miss M. A. Mulcrey; Misses Berthe, Miss M. Mercer; Gertrude in Trouble, Miss M. Wagner; Charles Dunnar's Journal, Miss M. Mullen; Dunnar's Dream, Miss M. Mullen; Dialogue, Misses Dunnar, Wolfe, Lynch, Anderson, K. Fitzpatrick, L. O'Brien, and A. Chapoton; "Ancient and Modern Times," Misses C. Bryan and M. Rush; Awards and Distribution; "Son of Freedom," Grand Dramatic Spectacle; "Jeannie Cheer," Dramatic Drama; "The Mother," Sacred Cantata; "The Dandy Dude," Sketch; "Wedding of Gilbert and Gertrude," Musical Sketch; "Tell Me Your Age," Musical Sketch; "Tell Me Your Age," Musical Sketch; Misses Mac M. Murray, M. Mulcrey, Mac M. Dunnar, Mac M. Mullen, Cecilia, and M. Mullen; "Lady of the Lake," Grand Tableau, Spoken by Members of the Dunne Department in Convent Costume.

The young ladies, having completed the course of study, received their diplomas from the hands of the Superior. To the Second Graduate, Miss Mary Kennedy, Mary Murray, Mary Mulcrey, Mary Mullen. To the Third Graduate, Miss Mary Wagner, Mary Mercer, Mary Cochran, Jennie Hendricks, Nellie Killey, Sarah Kennedy, Angelina Beckman, Mac M. A. Dunnar, Mac M. Mullen, Mac M. Murray, Mac M. Mulcrey, Kate Fitzpatrick, Linda O'Brien, Katie Wolfe, Lizzie Lynch, Phelia Lancelot, Mary Cotter, Mary E. Bunker, Nellie Kiley, Sarah Cotter, Mary Dunn, Mary Schellhaus, Mary Gough, Sarah Cunningham, Mary Monaghan, Mary Berthe, Annie Dunnar, Annie Dunn, Annie—Misses Mary Brickner, Annie Anderson, Annie Chapoton, Annie Lynch, Annie Mullen, Annie Mac Mullen, Mary Mullen, Mary Norton, Mary Mercer, Mary Beckman, Mary Norton, Mary E. Bunker, Mac M. Dunnar, Mac M. Murray, Mac M. Mullen, Mac M. Mulcrey, Annie Dunn, Annie Dunnar, Annie Lynch, Annie Anderson, Annie Chapoton, Annie Berthe, Annie Mac Mullen, Annie Mac M. Dunnar, Annie Mac M. Mulcrey, Annie Mac M. Murray, Annie Mac M. Mullen, Annie Berthe, Annie Anderson, Annie Chapoton, Annie Lynch

Poetry.

THE WILL OF GOD.

BY FATHER FABER.

I worship Thee, Sweet Will of God
And all Thy ways adore,
And every day I live I seem
To love Thee more and more.

I love to see Thee bring to naught
The plans of wily men—
What simple hearts control at our—
Oh, Thou art lovelier then!

I love to like each grief where Then
Hast set Thine unseen throne,
I cannot fear Thee, Blessed Will,
Thine Empire is so sweet.

When obstacles and trials seem
Like prison walls to be,
I do the little I can do,
And leave the rest to Thee.

I know not what it is to doubt;
My heart is ever gay;
I can be rich, for come what will
Thou always hast Thy way.

I have no stress, O Blessed Will!
For all my cares are Thine;
I live in leisure, Lord, for Thou
Hast undertaken my business.

And when it comes no chance or chance
From grief can set me free,
I can but wait and love and hope
And gaily wait on Thee.

No, I am unknown, walking upon God,
And could never take
Two steps on the road
Unless I saw the path before Thee.

Ride on! Ride on triumphantly!
Thou glorious Will, ride on!
Faith's pilgrim sees behind Thee take
The road he fain would run.

He always wins who sides with God—
To him no harm can come;
And as you are safe in the arms of God's Will is crowned to him who
Is intimate with Its end.

All that He blesses is our good,
And nothing good is ill;
And all is Thine and all is sweet
It is He Who wills Will.

Literary Miscellany.

The Little Samaritan.

Miss Mary Jane Ham stood in front of the tiny brick building used as the high school of Bibbowen, with an eye and every day I live I seem
To love Thee more and more.

I love to see Thee bring to naught
The plans of wily men—
What simple hearts control at our—
Oh, Thou art lovelier then!

I love to like each grief where Then
Hast set Thine unseen throne,
I cannot fear Thee, Blessed Will,
Thine Empire is so sweet.

When obstacles and trials seem
Like prison walls to be,
I do the little I can do,
And leave the rest to Thee.

I know not what it is to doubt;
My heart is ever gay;
I can be rich, for come what will
Thou always hast Thy way.

I have no stress, O Blessed Will!
For all my cares are Thine;
I live in leisure, Lord, for Thou
Hast undertaken my business.

And when it comes no chance or chance
From grief can set me free,
I can but wait and love and hope
And gaily wait on Thee.

No, I am unknown, walking upon God,
And could never take
Two steps on the road
Unless I saw the path before Thee.

Ride on! Ride on triumphantly!
Thou glorious Will, ride on!
Faith's pilgrim sees behind Thee take
The road he fain would run.

He always wins who sides with God—
To him no harm can come;
And as you are safe in the arms of
God's Will is crowned to him who
Is intimate with Its end.

All that He blesses is our good,
And nothing good is ill;
And all is Thine and all is sweet
It is He Who wills Will.

Literary Miscellany.

The Little Samaritan.

Miss Mary Jane Ham stood in front of the tiny brick building used as the high school of Bibbowen, with an eye

ON THE FIELD OF HONOR

Memories That Caused an Adjournment of a Meeting of the Old Boys

Former pupils of old Grammar school 15, on Fifth street, New York, met a few evenings ago to form an organization, renew old associations and keep alive the memories of school days. Years had elapsed since many met one another. The secretary called the roll without interruption until the name of Henry Rogers was reached. To this there was no response. The name was familiar, and the old boys waited to see one of the jollest of their old schoolmates. He was one of McCoy's boys, who stood up in February, 1859, when Henry Kiddle remarked that they surpassed all he had ever heard. The name was repeated, but no reply came. One of those present arose, and said that Henry Rogers was killed at Antietam, and was resting in Greatwood.

The roll call proceeded:

"James Marlow."

No response. He was one of Van Vlack's favorite scholars. He was in Meagher's brigade at Manassas. He went afterward to Panama, was stricken with the fever, but recovered and nursed the fever-stricken American at the hospitals and then came home to die.

"Frank Murphy."

No answer. He was shot through the lungs at Fredericksburg. He was one of McCoy's boys and often played around Woodruff's old willow opposite the school.

"Bartholomew Looney."

No answer. He belonged to a New Jersey regiment, and died a prisoner of war in Libby prison. Was a son of a ship-sawyer, living near the old Mechanics' Bell.

"John Lake."

"No answer. He was one of McCoy's boys and enlisted in 1861. On one occasion he was one of a forlorn hope, and being selected to avoid exposing himself, he replied:

"Tell the boys in Fifth street school that Johnny Lake did his duty to his country and his company." He was torn to pieces by a shell. He was a policeman's son, and by trade a apprentice to

"John Weed."

No response. He was killed at Gettysburg. Was the tallest boy in the school, was a widow's son, and was burried on the battlefield.

"Henry Hull."

No response. He was in the Forty-second regiment, and was killed in the seven days' battle. The son of a shipwright, he lived at 319 East Fourth street, near the old bell, when he enlisted.

"George Lane."

No answer. He was the son of a poor German cod vendor, and was killed by the explosion of a magazine the day before the battle of Fort Fisher.

"James Harley."

No response. He was known as the reverse shoot of the Fire Zouaves, and died in the first Bull Run battle. One of Van Vlack's boys. His lived near the old bell.

"John D. Donnelly."

No response. He was killed at Rosa's Station, Miss. One of Van Vlack's boys. He lived near Second street and Avenue D.

"Thomas Dougherty."

No response. He was of Van Vlack's boys, and was killed early in the war. His work's cut short forever.

The secretary ceased calling the roll, a motion to adjourn was carried, and those who had gathered together with feelings of joy parted with feelings of sorrow. The old school-boy reunion will be held in few weeks, when the organization will be perfected. Then, perhaps, a roll-call will be responded to by names, or if we may use the fitting phrase, by the roll of honor.

Story of a Rose of Pearls.

The Countess L—, a great lady moving in the Court circles of Vienna, was married to Count Z—, a man of high birth, but of little means. In fact, she is the female counterpart of Lord Topas in "Lothair." A few days ago the Countess received a visit from her jeweller, who very strongly recommended to her a most magnificent "rose of pearls." "They are quite unique, Madame," said the jeweller, "and I know the value is only a hundred thousand florins." Only a hundred thousand florins! repeated the Countess with a smile; "not never mind, let me have a look at your gems." The jeweller opened his casket, and the Countess uttered an exclamation of admiration. "Why, they are real pearls!" "Thousands of the finest pearls!" "Well, I must continue!" But, come in the morning, I shall be glad to see them." The next day, the jeweller was ushered in once more, and displayed a string of pearls of such fabulous beauty that Lucullus might have spoken proud to prevent them to the Lady Cornelia. Meanwhile, the opening of the casket had filled the magpie soul of the Countess. No sooner had the caught sight of its contents than she overwhelmed the jeweller with a heap of questions. "Where—how—how—did you obtain them? Are they genuine? How much do you give—I mean you when did you buy them? Well, I will retaining command of hers." The jeweller, pleased at the unmitigated admiration of the Countess, "rather dodged being in an Irish way." They were merely another pearl, and I had no money to spare." "Well, I will retaining command of hers." The jeweller, pleased at the unmitigated admiration of the Countess, "rather dodged being in an Irish way." They were merely another pearl, and I had no money to spare." She exclaimed pointing to her arms and neck engraved on the side of the fastening; "however you seem into possession of these pearls, you will hardly venture to dispute that they belong to me. Four years ago they suddenly disappeared from my jewel case, and, after all inquiry had proved fruitless, they are found with you! I am under great obligations to the lady who has restored to me that which is my own." In answer to this tirade the lady uttered not a word, but opening a small reticule which she carried in her hand, produced a highly-gemmed bridal dress and handed it to the Countess who started, and swooned upon the spot. On recovering consciousness she was straight to her writing table, wrote a cheque for the amount demanded by the lady, and gave it to her without uttering a single word. The bilet doux was in the handwriting of the Countess's only son.

A Touching Incident in Rome.

A soft answer is said to turn away wrath, and so it did, indeed, the other day, when one of the Little Sisters of the Poor, on her round of mercy, went in search of alms, for the poor old people, entered a shop. The shopman received her in bad humor, and, in her pleading her supplication, reached his hand across the counter and struck her. The poor Sister was terrified and turned deadly pale, but summoned sufficient courage to say, "Thank you! the blow is for me. What will you give me for my poor people?" Struck by the sublime shame-less, and ashamed of his violence, the man begged pardon of the Sister, and begged her acceptance of five francs for her poor.

St. Paul Sees Rome.

In 61 A. D., the life-long wish of Paul's heart was to be realized. He was to "see Rome," of which he claimed to be a citizen, and he was to be brought by that Cesar to whom he had appealed. That Cesar was Nero. We know from Suetonius, Tacitus, the corn-ship Castor and Pollux, as it is passing, in the early spring of the year 61, through the Straits of Messina. Leaving the bright cons of Stromboli on the left, Paul passed the towns of 180 miles to Puteoli. We know the wine that burst upon the Apostle as he entered the Bay of Naples and made for the busy, thriving mart which is now the sleepy and struggling Pozzuoli. The Bay of Naples was the same, but Vesuvius was green and smokless, dotted with vineyards and villages and plantations. Pompeii and Herculaneum stood far down the slope, thronged with Roman villas and pleasure gardens. Capri lay off the mainland, glittering as you approached it with the marble palaces of Tiberius and the baths and villas of his satellites. The Apostle had, like Peter, like John, should afterwards must have passed along from Neapolis to Puteoli. Paul went into the blue waters on marble piers and arches, as we can still see them in the fading frescoes found at Pompeii, stood Baiæ and Cumæ, haunts of splendor, vice and luxury. On the right, among the hills and hard upon the Appian Way which leads to Capua, and over the large mound, over which you are still jolted when you visit the roaring Solfatares, the Apostle might have seen the spot of that unique Roman tribunal which in a few years was destined to exalt and overshadow Peter and Christianness, and later on, by another upheaval, make Christianity and Rome one. Through the clear water on calm days you may still look down upon the shattered remains of the Roman port, and, if you wish St. Paul saw glowing great like albatross in the spring sun of the year 61 A. D. Did he, or St. Peter, or St. John visit their frescoed courts in Rome? Did they walk over to Pompeii or Herculaneum, or survey with admiration the Bridges and stations of the Roman art, specimens of which we have of late so fortunately recovered? Did they, in their mystic years there was something profound, fly distantly in the gaiety and wealth of a Roman habituated watering place, with "world" they were persuaded, was on the point of "passing away, with the fashion thereof." Saint Peter prophesied, perhaps in view of the coming flight of the Galilean Jews, of the shocking signs of volcanic agency, that the "elements would shortly melt with fervent heat, and the earth and the works therein be discovered." And as regards Saint, Roman Historians, Roman Poemsin was not far wrong. (And as regards the rest it will come true. Time is but a day.)—Good Words (Non-Catholic).

The Wise Mother.

To pass to the subject of babies; how differently they are managed by different mothers, than travellers, for instance, tar evening there were two such striking examples, that I must tell you. The one is rigged out in all sorts of furbelows, bonbons, jewelry, lace collar, and the value is only a hundred thousand florins." Only a hundred thousand florins! repeated the Countess with a smile; "not never mind, let me have a look at your gems." The jeweller opened his casket, and the Countess uttered an exclamation of admiration. "Why, they are real pearls!" "Thousands of the finest pearls, and they are quite unique, Madame." "They are quite unique, Madame, and I know

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1883.

England's Influence in Rome.

It is very apparent that undue influence has been used at Rome in order to prejudice the minds of the Cardinals regarding the present agitation in Ireland, and we sincerely hope that when the Irish Prelates hold their annual meeting in Maynooth this month they will take such action as will set the case of Ireland clearly before the Congregation of the Propaganda and satisfy Cardinal Simeoni that their efforts for the amelioration of the poor, persecuted people comprising their flocks are based entirely on purely Christian principles eminently consonant with Catholic faith.

This is not the first time that English chicanery in Rome has exercised its baneful influence in order to triumph over truth and to cause concern to be cast upon the most Catholic people in the world. A people who have suffered poverty, persecution and death at the hands of British tyrants sooner than forsake the faith of their fathers; and yet we England hopes to achieve by diplomacy and deceit what it failed to accomplish by means of all the resources of a merciless cruelty towards the Irish people which should open to every Cardinal in the Congregation that England's only aim at this juncture is to cause a conflict between the Irish Prelates and the Vatican, and thus weaken the influence of the Bishops and priests of Ireland in a national movement which is sure to end by overthrowing English rule in Ireland.

When Catholic Emancipation was demanded at the hands of the British Government some of its most astute statesmen were to be found among the small-by-(not-the-)"nobility" of England. Those cowardly cailiffs were far more English than Catholic, and they preferred to live in political bondage by which they were debarred from every office in the realm, rather than see their Irish co-religionists enjoy the right to sit in Parliament and to aid in vindicating the right of Ireland to self-government. And when the vile-British Government discovered that Catholic emancipation was likely to be granted, they then—as now—had recourse to Rome in order to induce the Pope to grant the English Government the power to veto the name of any candidate for the episcopacy whose political views might be obnoxious to the British Government. Such infamous did English diplomacy exert on that occasion that Pope Pius VII. was induced to address a letter to the Catholic Prelates of Ireland, in which he advised them to permit the British Government to exercise the veto power in the selection of Bishops to fill the vacancies in the episcopacy of Ireland. The Catholic Prelates of Ireland—the Bishops and clergy of Ireland, and for that purpose employed a predecessor of Errington—a certain English Catholic name Petre—to go to Rome and persuade the Pontiff's mind against the Irish Liberator. Petre succeeded, but like Errington's success—it was only temporary. The Sacred Congregation, except in the Irish Bishops declaring that whenever it was required to do so they would name of those devoted themselves too much to politics, they were thereafter to attend more exclusively to their religious duties. The occasion was taken up at the first Synod meeting in Conciliation Hall, Dublin, and O'Neill Daunt voiced the sentiment of the people of Ireland when he said in alluding thereto:

"Assuming that this rescript is an injunction to the Irish clergy to abstain from Repeal agitation, what does it amount to? It amounts to a call upon a portion of the Queen's Irish subjects to abjure partially their rights as Irish citizens. It is, as it is not, a direct interference with their civil rights! If so, will there to whom it is addressed obey it? Just look at the position in which they would be placed by such obedience. All their lives they have been accused by Protestants with holding a divided allegiance. Now here is the test—here is the tremendous test—by which they the Papal mandate upon a matter purely temporal—by the decision of which they will confirm the charge of divided allegiance against which they have suffered so long. Protestants stake the very extent of the sincerity of the Government in making this concession. Will the Queen's Catholic subjects resent that the Queen's Government has put her power in the Queen's dominions and yet manœuvered to get her Holiness to exercise temporal power against Irish freedom, to obtrude on all. But we, the Repealers of Ireland, are the owners from of all foreign dictation in Irish domestic affairs. An much theology from Rome as you please—but no politics."

The result was that the Circular became a dead letter and the Repeal movement received an additional incentive from the fact that the Irish people saw England's clown foot clearly in the movement against them, and they became all the more anxious to unite for Ireland's freedom.

The tactics tried by English diplomacy and duplicity in 1816 and in 1845 have been renewed in 1883, but as they did not succeed in former years they are more than likely to fail in the present. But here is the rub! it all likelihood would be the outcome if English malice is supreme over Irish justice at the Vatican. The language we quote is from the Dublin Express—the Orange and Tory organ—and its sentiments point a moral which many a Monsignore even in the Papal City might profit by:

"Rome may claim that the Pope's order is implicitly and religiously obeyed, that no Bishop would think of taking a step against the Government without obtaining the express authority, or conclusive assent of the Papal Nuncio, that no Bishop would think of the advisability of the Pope's Nuncio at Dublin, and that his predecessor Bishop Cullen, and that he (Archbishop Leahy) would be the last man to leave the Vatican in the dark on any matter of importance. Rome may claim that the Pope's Nuncio is the mouthpiece of the Government, and speaks with the authority of a political character, is recognized in Ireland, and is recognized by the Government as the political representative of Rome. Rome may claim that the Pope's Nuncio is the channel of communication between the Government and the Bishops, and that the Government has a right to check and any form, any word, any sentiment, any action, any inaction, any omission, any commission, if they please, of the Pope's Nuncio

THE COMPREHENSIBLE DIGNITY AND PREROGATIVE OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

FIRST ARTICLE.

WED

and the few following articles will be shall close to the Mentorn our series Eingdoton in the most blessed Mother, we by ...n set forth in a particular manner, the gifts ...of the creature, power and influence of the Blessed Virgin; and we intend to do this from his inexhaustibly of grace of the great production, the Son Jesus we will show substantially present to ...reader. The foundation of all Mary's prerogatives and supernatural power lies in the fact ...ed she is the Mother of the Saviour, the Eternal Son of God. When we cadent that she is behind Mother of God we must acknowledge the mother man our Angel can adequately praise her, and that only God who exalted her to that dignity comprehends it, and that He alone can properly praise her. After the great Doctors of our holy Religion have exhausted human eloquence in celebrating the praises of Mary, every Father (Orthodox) after they have failed to find words suitable to the magnitude of their theme, the incomprehensible profundity of her purity and the immense glory of her triumph in the Heavenly Jerusalem; after St. Augustine confess that he could not find words to express the due praise of the Mother of God, saying, "I do not know with what praise to speak of her, I will say one dare to assert that he is afraid that he may say too much! It is enough that you hold that Mary is a pure creature, after that sound forth her praises as much as you please, and you will never be able to say too much, say, you will never be able to say enough of her (Orthodox Sermon). Again the learned and pious Cardinal in a sermon more excellent than nothing of the Virgin Mary except that she is the Mother of Jesus Christ, and in saying this he includes everything. Can we be afraid that we will not be successful in the matter, or that our worship may be carried too far? Who is not aware that we are in a manner worshipping her when the mother is honored? Our devotion to the Mother does not cause division in our hearts; but rather more closely unites us to Jesus Christ. Our devotion to the Holy Virgin is such that we should have authority over Himself, and if we may dare to say so, that she might be the object to our present commands to Him (Peter Venet. Tom. 7; Hoffman). Why the Eternal Father destined His glory for His only begotten Son so long before we had the consideration of Mary, and ordained it for Mary on the Mother of Jesus Christ, and as Jesus Christ has a supreme right to glory, no separate from, and superior to that of all the elect in their King, so the most Holy Virgin acquire a distinct place and superior to that of all the Saints, as Mother of the King. The Queen is on the right hand, in gilded clothing; surrounded with variety." Jesus is the Son of Mary, and a subject and a son, and is not represented as being given to her by Mary, but Mary is the mother of all graces and favors. She is at the right hand of her Son, and is the Queen of Heaven, and hence she is ever adored by the angels and saints. (Gender de Assumptione, Tom. 4.)

After St. Paul says in substance, We represent one Christ, and we are all members of Christ, one other is the principle we believe in judging of the Mother of God, and we are in a manner who being most acknowledge that God is to be adored, and Mary is the Mother of Heaven, so her dignity is here in that of God, principle she is only considered in the Mother of God, and adoration due to God alone is not given to her, but is to be considered as the Mother of God herself. Being the true Mother of God she is only considered in the Mother of God, and that follows from this august dignity belong to God alone, and the Mother of God herself. Nor but is not God, and there is neither above God nor below God. Father more is Father only, We can understand that God can be ... Mother, Son is Son, Father is Father, and God Himself is God. Mary is Mary, and God is God, and there is neither above God nor below God. Mary is Mary, and God is God, and there is neither above God nor below God. Mary is Mary, and God is God, and there is neither above God nor below

OUR SCHOOLS.

Commencement Exercises in Catholic Colleges, Schools and Academies.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME, SAN JOSE.

The thirty-second annual commencement of the College of Notre Dame commenced at 9 o'clock a. m. Tuesday the 3d inst. before an audience that packed the hall, many being unable to gain entrance. It may be here remarked that the thinness intend to have ready for the next commencement a much larger and more elegant hall, as popular here these commencements as Notre Dame becomes, year by year, more and more the recognized ideal in the decoration of the hall. The programme opened by the playing of a grand march on six pianos by Misses R. Kyrn, R. Bryant, A. McLaughlin, M. F. Sullivan, E. Hilton, R. A. Byrne, J. Alexander, L. Dougherty, M. Coghlan, C. White, H. Temple, and I. Flynn. This was the signal for the appearance of the pupils, who in marching in show evidences the picture of health and loveliness—their very appearance being one of the highest compliments to the management of this excellent institution. After the pupils were seated they made a bow, as Hahnemann. Next came an original address by Judith (by Miss D. Lonon). Following this was one of Conroy's inimitable pieces of music, played on four pianos by Misses M. Mitchell, E. Sutherland, T. Lane, C. Conroy, and E. Prendergast. Then came a quartette, by Misses Mitchell, Lane, Conroy and E. Prendergast. This was followed by Miss E. Byrne, who read a very fine essay on "Adversity's Sweet Uses." The singing of Miss Mary O'Brien, Next came a selection from Conroy for three hands and one piano—Misses M. Dillon, D. Lonon and M. Ford at the home and Miss L. Jordan at the piano. It was a pleasing number. "Overtures by His Medical" was recited by Misses M. Mitchell and Mary Byrne, followed by Misses J. Peralta and A. Schmidt, on piano duet. Miss K. Conner recited M. Dimon's "Jubilee" in excellent style, according to the good reading for which she is fortunate for her pianos from Lucia di Lammermoor, played by Misses M. Dillon, M. Ford, G. Lonon, E. O'Brien, L. Kuhn, M. and M. Vallejo and C. McLoughlin. Distinctness of enunciation is the rare quality of the readers here when contrasted with Mrs. Fig the Mrs. Leah Holbrook, Miss Marie Dillon, Miss Marie Lynes, Miss Julia Morrison and Miss Ella Mitchell, which were followed by the graving of the graduates. In a happy manner she referred to each of the graduates and made other pleasant allusions. A chorus by Misses Byrne, Lane, Conroy, and Ford, followed and Christian doctrine were illustrated by Misses Mary Dillon and Ella Byrne from Shipman's "Sermon." Miss Mary Byrne read a very fine essay on "Mrs. Ann Radcliffe." The "Sleeping Beauty" was an original poem by Miss A. Sullivan, was good. Hannah More's "Mad of Sunnyside" then sweetly, after which came the performance of the Chorus overture on three concert pianos by Misses A. Chynoil, S. Magdry, K. Conner, E. Hamlin, E. Ford and Conroy. Miss L. Holbrook read "Pilliwiggins," an original poem. Miss E. Sullivan's reminiscence of Poe's "Bells" was an exhibition of rare histrionic talent. The applause which she received was so deafening, that she was compelled to come back and bow. Miss A. Gerdel, Miss Mattie Mary and L. Owens, "Argument and the Style" was an original poem by Miss Mary Byrne, as the age of Queen Anne was represented by Misses M. Dillon, L. Kuhn, M. Ford, M. Vallejo, M. Sullivan and Gerdel. Miss M. Conlin brought down the house with her Shakespeare, "Shylock's Address for Beefsteak." A chorus by Gilmore came next, and was followed by a duet by Misses M. Lane and Conroy, "Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer." Miss Lillie Byrne read a paper on "Ancient Philosophy." Miss L. Holbrook, Misses Byrne, Lane, McCoy, F. Bailey, A. Gerdel, J. O'Brien, L. McCarthy, Dunne, A. Lynes, J. O'Brien, L. McCarthy, Dunne, A. Lynes, J. O'Brien, L. McCarthy, Dunne, A. Lynes

Poetry.

LITTLE TIM.

Over the pulling pound little Tim
Was a regular boy, in the bright black eye;
He added to the children to come to him,
And help him to catch the butterflies,
Bowed and burned by the summer's sun,
Under a hat of plaited straw;
Hopeful, healthy, and full of fun,
Was the cheerful face I saw.

I heard the hum of the honey bees,
The chirp, of grasshoppers, still and clear;
The robins singing amid the trees,
The chattering sparrows in the meadows near;
The rustling wind through the tall grass,
The murmuring sound of the little rills
The shifting balls on the distant cows,
While I sat in a sweet day dream.

I fashioned a fairyn by my side,
A very lovely mother one;
My soul was filled with a sense of joy,
The peace of a day of my childhood's
The pride and hope of my latter days;
He received the splendid lights of heaven
Which entered his honest praise!

To-day, while the winter wind blow drift,
Through the moaning pines in the side hill
We, love blue sadly over the hill,
And laid him under the drifting snow.
Under the willows black and bare
Under the dark clouds cold and gray,
Where the sky looks white and pale,
We buried our hopes to-day.

I dream again, while to-night I stand
By my window and look out at the howling storm,
Of little boy in the Better Land
And I seem to see his shining face
Through the dim shadows while I watch and wait
For the joyous summons to go to him.
Yes! Poetry was Tim's golden pale,
I shall meet my little Tim.

Literary Miscellany.

The Little Samaritan.

CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK.

She was sitting in the little parlor, the shades mostly down, to keep out the hot sunshine, and fanning herself with the dainty yet inexpensive furnishings which surrounded her, when Uncle John entered, carrying an open letter and exclaiming:

"In luck, my lady! In luck! Just glad, I tell you, to get out of Continental, who has been indicted to me and from whom I never expect to see a dollar, I'm afraid, but they owe me money and send me a check for $500! Come, lay aside of sewing from her hands and throw it into the corner, for we shall need all the money this lost wretch owes us before we are through and we will carry to the White hills, where, I understand have been service was erected and rendered. Before starting Uncle John entertained his company with the story:

"Now, little girls," said he "we are to be gone three days, and I have brought so much money dropped into our mouths, I think it only fair that you should share it, lest that the old pauper," (here his mouth was suddenly covered with a little white hand) "Aldus Adams," was no longer available. Her life of oppression only lifted her for the keener and truer enjoyment of the new life, and as poverty had never chafed her sunny temper, so riches failed to shake her.

This episode in the life of Jennie Rivers means life romance; but, for once, truth and poetic justice were in accord.

Catholic Homes.

If homes are made Catholic, they will be happy. If not—if the wicked coordinate of keeping the children right is laid on the shoulders of the priest—if, forsooth, and, yet, we will hope that many more of my delicate readers will immediately.

And so they started they went to Spring-field and stopped at Northampton that Jennie might visit the female college there; they passed through Amherst and Northampton, and saw all everywhere. At Haverill they engaged an open carriage and drove up the grand valley that made light of mountain road. They put up at even road hotels, and, thanks to Uncle John, the girls drew from the clear mountain streams many a speckled trout, and ate the fish they caught the moment of land, and then it transpired that this was not Uncle John's first visit. He was familiar with every rhododendron drive, not even Star King knew better the best points for studying the charming scenery. And then Jennie discovered new treasures in her parent uncle. If he was fairly familiar with every branch of literature, he was equally at home with the rural life of field and forest. His road was the formation in the contour of the hills; he named the birds from listening to their songs; not a flower on the mountains or in the meadows was unknown.

And so the weeks sped by in happy content. From the White hills they drifted to Portsmouth; they sailed out to the Apple-dore; they staid several days at the big hotel, and Jennie delighted her eyes with a good look at Celia Thaxter. They stopped at Newburyport, they rode along within sight of the Merrimac, passed the home of the island which shelters Mrs. Spofford and her sister; and in a little side street, leading off the long, main, thoroughfare of Amesbury, found the home of the Quaker poet. By and by they reached the Hub, stopping at the Benewick, and Uncle John seemed as familiar with Boston as with the White hills. A week passed, and the five hundred dollars held out and Jennie began to think that the purse that held it was like the one to famous in myth. At last August drew near its close; they had been away from home seven weeks; Jennie's school would soon reconvence, and Sue's customers begin to think of fall styles. Was not the five hundred spent?

Once Uncle John drew a long face.

"Little girls, what must be, must be," he said, "though there is still money in the purse. What a pity we cannot stay to the end; just as we are, with no thought of schools or the cutting of dresses."

"It would be mine, I mean coglaas," assented Jennie, "though I have seen the White Mountains, and now I want to see beyond the Atlantic. I have had one good cutting, at any rate, I never have an idea; and I am ready to go back to the little brown cottage and take up my work once more."

It was almost dark when the parlor car which contained them, (Uncle John's extravagance bidding out to the end,) drew up at Ridstown station. As they alighted, a superb carriage, drawn by magnificent black horses, stood waiting, and a servant in livery touched his hat obsequiously to Uncle John, and opened the door for the party to enter.

"Come, Uncle John, let us walk," said Jennie. "We know the streets of Ridstown well enough not to lose our way, and I am sure the money is all gone by this time."

"Just enough left to pay the carriage hire," laughed Uncle John. "Jump in girls let's wind up our outing royally."

The servant had already loaded in their bundles, the driver had difficulty in holding the impatient horses, and Jennie and Sue and Uncle John were finally in the carriage and away they rolled, with a dash.

Finally the carriage stopped before a cottage, illumined by two brilliant gas-lights and the door was opened by the obsequious footman.

"Why, Uncle, the driver has made a mistake. This is not home," said Jennie, looking about.

"Not home?" said Uncle John getting out on the side walk. "Yes, this is home, or, if it is not we will walk the rest of the way."

Hands laughed her merry laugh. This home! Why, this was Locuste, the grandest mansion in Ridstown. Many a time she had admiringly at its broad velvet lawns, its masses of blooming flowers, its rare and beautiful trees, its conservatory, its statues, its rows of greenhouses and graperies. Uncle John was getting facetious. The girls got out, the footman touched his hat, mounted by the side of the driver, who, without waiting for his fee, drove away.

"Come girls, let us go up and look at the mansion. Perhaps, after all, it is the little brown cottage made over by the wish of modern Aladdin," said Uncle John.

"Aladdin! Aladdin!"

"Why, Uncle John, has coming home made you crazy? If an Aladdin, go and ask to look at the mansion they would send for the police."

"Well, for the police! hardly so bad as that, Jennie. At any rate I have a call to make, and you may as well make a little walk."

Uncle John took his companions each by the arm, and they passed through the grounds, and, at a quick, martial pace; up the very steps, and did not stop until he had swung open the door and ushered in the three. He led them stood in the stately hall of the mansion. Jennie had never seen a finer open house and mentioned his comparisons to enter. At Jennie did so she stood as one enchanted. Hayward had entered, but ideal of a library. The room was flooded with a soft light, the walls were lined, fringed with beight, the ceiling, inlaid, enamelled to the center, in a delicate tracing, fringed with golden, silver, gold, enamel and green. Jennie's eyes ran over the room, and Uncle John's eyes ran over Jennie's face. Presently, "this is the little brown cottage after all. This is home. And yet what I have to give you. I had no home, no wife, no child; but I had hundreds of thousands in money. Business was most with reverses, but I was not of the unfortunate. I wrote to all my relatives. Too alone regarded my letter, and I was the sole survivor of my paper's home. Had I come to you with all my wealth, you could not have cared for me more than you do now. Jennie, you are no longer my neice; you are my own daughter. Sue, I have legally adopted you too as Jennie Rivers. And Sue," turning to the astonished girl, "I am about to make you a lady. She may come as housekeeper, or as your companion and honored guest."

And so Jennie laid aside her cares and worries and even the name of Han. "Be-gone Aldus Adams," was no longer available. Her life of oppression only lifted for the keener and truer enjoyment of the new life, and as poverty had never chafed her sunny temper, so riches failed to shake her.

This episode in the life of Jennie Rivers means life romance; but, for once, truth and poetic justice were in accord.

Catholic Homes.

If homes are made Catholic, they will be happy. If not—if the wicked coordinate of keeping the children right is laid on the shoulders of the priest—forsooth, and, yet, we will hope that many more of my delicate readers will immediately.

And so they started they went to Springfield and stopped at Northampton that Jennie might visit the female college there; they passed through Amherst and Northampton, and saw all everywhere. At Haverill they engaged an open carriage and drove up the grand valley that made light of mountain road. They put up at even road hotels, and, thanks to Uncle John, the girls drew from the clear mountain streams many a speckled trout, and ate the fish they caught the moment of land, and then it transpired that this was not Uncle John's first visit. He was familiar with every rhododendron drive, not even Star King knew better the best points for studying the charming scenery. And then Jennie discovered new treasures in her parent uncle. If he was fairly familiar with every branch of literature, he was equally at home with the rural life of field and forest. His road was the formation in the contour of the hills; he named the birds from listening to their songs; not a flower on the mountains or in the meadows was unknown.

And so the weeks sped by in happy content. From the White hills they drifted to Portsmouth; they sailed out to the Apple-dore; they staid several days at the big hotel, and Jennie delighted her eyes with a good look at Celia Thaxter. They stopped at Newburyport, they rode along within sight of the Merrimac, passed the home of the island which shelters Mrs. Spofford and her sister; and in a little side street, leading off the long, main, thoroughfare of Amesbury, found the home of the Quaker poet. By and by they reached the Hub, stopping at the Benewick, and Uncle John seemed as familiar with Boston as with the White hills. A week passed, and the five hundred dollars held out and Jennie began to think that the purse that held it was like the one to famous in myth. At last August drew near its close; they had been away from home seven weeks; Jennie's school would soon reconvence, and Sue's customers begin to think of fall styles. Was not the five hundred spent?

Once Uncle John drew a long face.

"Little girls, what must be, must be,"

CONVENT SCHOOLS.

Joaquin Miller's Opinion of Nuns as Teachers.

I want to call the attention of parents to those plain but simple schools of the Loretto Order. I do not know that they are better than the best of our Catholic schools found all through this United States, but they seem to be much cheaper and simpler, more sure and old fashioned, perhaps, I should say, that I like them better.

I know a good many girls, like myself, who cannot afford higher priced schools, will thank me for the bit of information I am moved into this paragraph.

Four years ago I took a little girl of mine from Oregon and put her in the Loretto Convent School at Guelph, Ontario. She was a wayward little thing, quite without culture, discipline, or any idea of obedience; then she was all shaken up with age; and the long journey had made her quite ill, too. But the place is so high and dry and entirely healthy, that the child soon became strong and healthy and hardy. In the whole four years I have not paid over $10 of doctor's bills. And this girl who so liked the freedom of the hills and was so lawless, soon became one of the most patient, industrious and well-disciplined children in the world. All by kindness, too; not one hard word was ever spoken to her, so far as I know. And she from the first was in love with the Sisters, teachers all, from the Mother Superior down. As to her being made a Protestant, as I hear children becoming Catholics, I can only give my experience here for the information and guidance of others. I am not myself a Catholic, nor do I profess any particular creed; although I think I see some good in all. But holding with that ordained Englishman, John Wesley, that "religion is love," and knowing in my own heart that religion is as strong an element for good as is necessary to the perfection of the soul as is the sentiment of love, I believed that my wayward child would be religious. I believed, too, that, after some years of reflection, she should choose for her own religion. After a year or so of observation and reflection she chose to be a Catholic. But so far from being persuaded or influenced to this, she was put on probation. And even then I had to give my written permission before she could be accepted. Pardon this detail, but it is important for all to know these facts.

And now I come to the practical part and the purpose of this item—the cost. Board and tuition, in round numbers, it is $100 a year for board and tuition! This nominal fee is exacted, I know, that the school may be cheap, so good and perfect in all respects, that I publish it to the world. I wish these good Sisters took no commercial advantage or profit at all. They do not, I know, and I tell you so that they may not stop to speak of for rent or clothes, and dress is plain and simple, their expenses are very light indeed; and so it is they can afford to take a girl and keep her at school for $60 the half year.

Of course there are other incidentals, necessary such as washing and so on. And then I, for my part, as the advocate in years and culture, will require the higher instruction in music and the like than is given in the general course. So that the bill was last year, for the half year, $80 and over, but above that.

Now, to another one of these remarkable schools still nearer to us. It overlooks Niagara Falls, and is just as good, and, I believe, just as cheap. I also, only with that conviction were numerous, and that if supernatural aid was anywhere on earth it was surely at Lourdes.

Senator Jones' Early Life.

The lounger on the arcane tells the following story today: "I have recently heard a story touching the early life of Senator Jones, of Nevada, which I am told is true in every respect, and illustrative of the characteristics of a class now almost gone from the West—the old mountaineers. This is my story: Jones had gone to California with thousands of others when the wonderful discovery of gold in the foothills had thrilled every hamlet and village. He was young, like the others, and those who went to seek their fortunes there was a man named Hayward, from Vermont. He was rather older than Jones, but only of location, and totally unlike them in habits. He was quiet, industrious, and economical, served in Boston Hotels, restaurants, and even in private families. Of course he went come from that neck-or-nothing strip of sand, Cape Cod. One enterprising Cape Codder makes a business of it and sends from 50 to 100 dozen pairs of legs a week. Only the legs come down from Maine shipped after in crates packed with wet moss or sea-weed, and they are filled as they are needed. Hayward had established a supplies, but lively competition in hosiery manufacture and stocking has driven the Canadian shipments to New York. While the northern frogs are larger, it is claimed that the Massachusetts frogs are fresher and better eating, and they sell at from 30 to 50 cents per dozen, according to size and quality. Everywhere also frogs' legs have long been an accepted delicacy. Boston is just beginning to eat and enjoy them.

Promptness.

Half the value of anything to be done consists in doing it promptly. And yet a large class of persons are almost always more or less unpremedited or late. Their work is always in advance of them, and so in their engagements. They are late in rising in the morning, and in going to bed at night; late at their meals; late at church; late at the meetings of societies; late at their appointments with others. Their letters are sent to the post-office just as the mail is closed. They arrive at the wharf just as the steamboat is leaving. They come into the station as the train is going out. They do not entirely forget or omit the engagement or the duty, but they are always behind the time, and so are in haste, or rather in a hurry, as if they had been before a little too late, and forever were trying to catch up with the lost time. They waste time for themselves, and waste it for others, and fail of the comfort and influence and success which they might have secured by systematic and habitual punctuality. A good old lady who was asked why she was so early in her seat in church, is said to have replied that it was part of her religion not to disturb the religious feelings of others. And if it was with all a part both of courtesy and duty, it would be well. It is not, it is to be regretted and, they would save time for themselves as well as annoyance to others, and aid themselves to success and influence in a thousand ways.

— Indulge in reasonable argument; seek not to win by foolish palaver.

"ROOSE ON RATS."

Clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies, ants, bedbugs, skunks, chipmunks, gophers. 15c. Druggists.

"MOTHER SWANT'S WORM SYRUP."

Infallible, tasteless, safe, effectual, certain for feverishness, restlessness, worms, constipation. 25c.

Cape Cod Frogs.

To the most inelastic Bostonian the change from salt cod to Cape Cod frogs would seem considerable. But, after a moment's reflection, he would see that it was not. Boston never rejoices in frogs—there is no demand for them, no market for them, no newly discovered delicacy. A few years ago, frogs' legs were a comparatively rare dish in Boston. They were brought in fact, owing to the onslaughts of Boston boys upon the inhabitants of the pond on the Common, the frogs were rare—they wisely made themselves scarce. The classic Common is the original scene of the spelling book story, the moral of which is that what the boys may do the frogs may not do. But it was mere fun; for the small boy took no thought for the table, or even of taming the frogs for their frolic, but only of the keen pleasure of the killing. But now frogs are scarce, and, almost, sold and frequently served in Boston Hotels, restaurants, and even in private families. Of course the best come from that neck-or-nothing strip of sand, Cape Cod. One enterprising Cape Codder makes a business of it and sends from 50 to 100 dozen pairs of legs a week. Only the legs come down from Maine shipped after in crates packed with wet moss or sea-weed, and they are filled as they are needed. Hayward established a supplies, but lively competition in hosiery manufacture and stocking has driven the Canadian shipments to New York. While the northern frogs are larger, it is claimed that the Massachusetts frogs are fresher and better eating, and they sell at from 30 to 50 cents per dozen, according to size and quality. Everywhere also frogs' legs have long been an accepted delicacy. Boston is just beginning to eat and enjoy them.

Prompt.

Half the value of anything to be done consists in doing it promptly. And yet a large class of persons are almost always more or less unpremedited or late. Their work is always in advance of them, and so in their engagements. They are late in rising in the morning, and in going to bed at night; late at their meals; late at church; late at the meetings of societies; late at their appointments with others. Their letters are sent to the post-office just as the mail is closed. They arrive at the wharf just as the steamboat is leaving. They come into the station as the train is going out. They do not entirely forget or omit the engagement or the duty, but they are always behind the time, and so are in haste, or rather in a hurry, as if they had been before a little too late, and forever were trying to catch up with the lost time. They waste time for themselves, and waste it for others, and fail of the comfort and influence and success which they might have secured by systematic and habitual punctuality. A good old lady who was asked why she was so early in her seat in church, is said to have replied that it was part of her religion not to disturb the religious feelings of others. And if it was with all a part both of courtesy and duty, it would be well. It is not, it is to be regretted and, they would save time for themselves as well as annoyance to others, and aid themselves to success and influence in a thousand ways.

— Indulge in reasonable argument; seek not to win by foolish palaver.

"ROOSE ON RATS."

Clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies, ants, bedbugs, skunks, chipmunks, gophers. 15c. Druggists.

THE MIRACLES OF LOURDES.

Lecture by Father Vanthie on the Apparition and Miraculous Cures.

Rev. L. P. Vanthie, late chaplain at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes, delivered a lecture recently in the Church of St. Paul the Apostle, Fifty-ninth street New York, for the benefit of the new school building. His subject was "The History of the Apparitions and Cures at Lourdes." In 1858, he said, Lourdes first became known, in that year a very west forth that a strange apparition had been seen there in a grotto. The vision, which was in the form of a woman, robed in white and wearing a blue sash, appeared on eighteen different occasions to a poor peasant girl, fourteen years of age, named Bernadette Soubirous. The little town flashed at once into notoriety. Hot strange miracles were yet to come, for as the child stood one day in the corner of the grotto the figure appeared and bade her go and wash herself. Bernadette went to one to the River Gave, but was told to return and wash in the grotto. Her where was the water? Suddenly, as if inspired, the child stooped and scraped away a little earth, and a clear spring rose and sparkled at her feet. Bernadette's work was done. Soon after the last appearance of the vision which took place on March 16, 1858, she entered a convent at Nevers and died in 1877.

Crowds soon began to flock from Lourdes and soon found that its waters had strange powers of healing. To blind, the lame, the maimed, mad, women and children suffering from all kinds of ailments, were cured. An commission appointed by the science and theologians was appointed to inquire into the authenticity of the reported cases of cures, and decided that, though some might be due to natural, fifteen were undoubtedly due to supernatural cures. From that time Lourdes has been thronged with pilgrims, the number of visitors in 1886 was 100 between April and November, and 200,000 received the Holy Communion. Every all parts of Europe the sick crowd cures to bathe in the fountain. The number of cures which are cured is impossible to tell. Several cook boxes were brought under the Pope's notice, one suffering from a Spanish priest who was cured of blindness, that of a young girl whose contracted leg, pronounced incurable by the physicians, became sound, and that of an old woman who recovered from the brink of death. The very point of death. Daily the multitude gathers at the piscina or bathing place, and at night at the white marble statue of Our Lady, or stand around the grotto in silent prayer. The Church, Father Vanthie said, has thoroughly investigated this matter. The waters have been analyzed and have found to contain no healing properties. The cures are instantaneous and the diseases of an incurable character. He, as a physician, mind there can be no doubt as to the supernatural nature of the cures. Impossibility may scoff, but they cannot get rid of the plain fact that in hundreds of instances there have been the cures and that the waters of Lourdes have been found beneficial. Doubters may say that hallucination in some was subject to hallucinations, and villiers may charge the priests at Lourdes with fraud, but the traffic of the water; but medical examination proved that Bernadette's vision was clear, and the Fathers of the Immaculate Conception maintain that instead of making considerable pecuniary loss owing to the expense of keeping up their establishment, they lose by it, and that the chief object of the apparition was to awaken men to a sense of their sins, and to make them realize that where there is some temptation. It may be said that the cures are not well authenticated, or that they are not well authenticated, or that they are not well authenticated, or that they

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1883.

Most Rev. F. N. Blanchet, D. D.

It is with secondary feelings that we are called upon to chronicle the death of a noble and holy Prelate of the Catholic Church whose confidence and friendship we continuously enjoyed for nearly thirty years, and whom we loved not only for his exalted position as our beloved Bishop, but also for manifesting the many virtues which adorned his character not only as a Bishop of the Church of God, but also as one of the most genial, kind, and considerate friends we ever met.

The deceased Archbishop was born in the parish of St. Pierre, Riviere du Sud, Province of Quebec, Canada, on the 3d of September, 1797, consequently he was 87 years, 9 months, and 14 days old when Almighty God called him to receive that celestial reward which he truly earned by his zeal, his privations, his purity, and his piety in the holy mission of his long life.

Archbishop Blanchet—together with his estimable brother, the first Bishop of Nesqually, Washington Territory—made his studies in the Seminary of Quebec, and was ordained on July 18th, 1819, his first ecclesiastical mission being in the Cathedral of that city, after which he was sent to visit the Catholics along the coast of New Brunswick, where he spent seven years in arduous labor, which proved of great use to him for his future apostolate in planting the Cross on the North Pacific portion of the American continent, whereof he was the pioneer Bishop.

In 1838 the Archdiocese of Quebec had jurisdiction over that vast, undefined, and almost unexplored region known under the cognomen of the Oregon Territory, whose only inhabitants were wild Indians and the trappers and voyageurs of the Hudson Bay Company, who then occupied a few forlorn little spots with their forts and trading posts as the representatives of the British Government. In that year Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson Bay Company, wrote to the Archbishop of Quebec asking him to "decode to the prayer of the Company's Canadian employees for priests to give them the spiritual consolations of our holy faith in their far-off homes and oft-times desolate lives. Archbishop Signay at once designated Rev. FRANCIS NORBERT BLANCHET to the important duty, and together with his companion—Rev. MODESTE DEMERS—afterwards first Bishop of Vancouver Island—they made their way across the continent, seven months being consumed on the journey.

THE FIRST MASS IN OREGON.

As the two pioneers of the Cross journeyed towards their future fields of labor and self-sacrifice spot where they sojourned to the service of God, and on a historical instance we present an account of the celebration of the first Mass in Oregon, written by the holy hand of the venerable Father, whose limbs are now rigid in the embrace of death:

"It was on Saturday, the 15th of October, 1838, that we first celebrated the Immaculate Mother of God, being at the western foot of the Rocky Mountains. The two Missionaries began to kneel beneath their feet the long desired Incited Oblation; their position of the vicegerent where to cultivation. Filled with joy they regarded a short distance from the place where we were putting on the bosom of a beautiful prairie, and there led on their knees, prostrate, the soil, and possession of it, dedicated, and consecrated their possession, and soil, to whom, over God would be pleased to require of him for the glory of His holy Name, the propagation of His kingdom and the fulfillment of His holy Will. The following day (October 16th, 1838) being Sunday, it was on that day that the Holy Sacrifice of Mass was offered for the first time in Oregon at Big Rock, on the banks of the Sheppard and perfumes could be heard in generally done."

"This is behind the Blessed MARY's land, Virgin and Model of our dear Mother!"

When the missionaries finally arrived at Fort Vancouver they at once entered seriously upon their apostolate, teaching the Indians the principles of Christianity, baptising infants, performing marriages, and exercising all the functions of Catholic faith for the conversion of the Indians and the consolation of the many Canadians who were the only Christians in that vast region from the 47th parallel to the Russian possessions.

This great and grand work, however, was not accomplished without many dangers and privations on the part of those holy Prelates who were the pioneers of the Cross on this coast. Many a time we have listened to the recital of the hair-breath escapes from death which our dear Pastor recited as he recounted for us the many difficulties which were the only Christians in that vast region from the 47th parallel to the Russian possessions.

This great and grand work, however, was not accomplished without many dangers and privations on the part of those holy Prelates who were the pioneers of the Cross on this coast. Many a time we have listened to the recital of the hair-breath escapes from death which our dear Pastor recited as he recounted for us the many difficulties which were the only Christians in that vast region from the 47th parallel to the Russian possessions.

Secretary Lincoln's Recent Decision.

Some of our Eastern Catholic contemporaries seem to think that Secretary Lincoln acted right in refusing permission to the Catholic officers and soldiers at the Presidio to erect a Catholic chapel on the Government reservation. But they lose sight altogether of the special privileges in this matter, as in Protestant churches occupies a portion of the reservation at present, and we insist that such a building should be removed there from at once, or a similar privilege be granted to the Catholics in the army at that post. If Secretary Lincoln had then decided, we would not have complained, but as long as the Protestant place of worship is permitted on that reservation, we ask by what right Catholics are excluded from a similar privilege? It is all very well to say that no "sectarian" edifice can be allowed on Government reservations, but it seems very singular that this idea was never thought of until Catholic soldiers asked for a right already accorded to the Protestant portion of the army at the Presidio. The injustice in this case is painful with point from our exists that no "sectarian" edifice can be introduced into public schools or public institutions, when the fact is patent to every intelligent citizen that both public schools and public institutions are infested with anti-Catholic in their teaching and their influence upon Catholic inmates. The law is thus openly, wantonly, and maliciously violated; and we look upon this case of Secretary Lincoln as only an excuse in order to favor Protestantism and to infringe the rights of conscience in regard to Catholics.

We notice in a recent number of the Catholic Universe a brief note from our estimed friend, Major Dallas, Lieutenant-Colonel of the 23d Infantry, at present stationed at Fort Lyon, Colorado, in which he says that the Mormon manifested too much order in its course of Secretary Lincoln. But such an expression does not go to prove that the Mormon's arguments in the case were not right. We hold that the manifestation of "order" in the course of Catholicity in the only way in which Catholic rights are vindicated, and if such order had been maintained in days gone by the children of Catholics to be fair play would have long ago been respected by the public servants of the people.

The do-as-you-please policy has led to much of the injustice under which Catholics are at present suffering not only in civil rights, but in their religious prerogative, and the Mormon could never hope that we should cease to use its injustice, even at the risk of evincing too much "order" in the matter. Catholics are "Catholics" first, last, and all the time, and we cannot be swayed by life-long devotion and death by martyrdom. We believe in aggressive Catholicity, and in such belief we mean to continue the battle under the consecrated banner of the Cross inscribed with the memorable legend—"In hoc signo vinces."

We are glad to find so estimable a Catholic and so experienced an officer as Major Dallas endorsing the Mormon's views regarding the amount of good done to Catholic soldiers by means of chapels at military posts, upon which point our esteemed friend says:

"There is no doubt the writer in the Mormon is correct, in his deductions as to the benefits to Catholic soldiers, and to be served by giving the Catholic soldiers of the army or some, and in numbers that religion is permitted. Not with many others, devotedly wish that the solemnities and fervorous needs to have it more generally done."

Here, however, we call the attention of the gallant Major to the fact that "the authorities" will wait until the waters of the Pacific ocean wash away the sandhills of the Presidio or very long time will budge an inch from their bigoted course unless the Catholic press is used as an electric light to show them up to public opinion. Meanwhile the Protestant chapel will be permitted to stand on the Presidio reservation for years to come, and all the "fervent wishes" of the gallant Major will never procure justice for Catholic soldiers unless more "order" is used than usually exists in simple wishes unsupported by unceasing work. Look at the Army Chaplain Question, for instance, and then let our friend consider how much order he has given to that matter in order to move the Catholic press into action—and not similar "order" is needed in order to convert the course of Catholic soldiers from the encouraging nature to the peaceful profile of their own poor church! This can be accomplished by the Catholic press, and when Congress next meets the Mormon means to try what is can accomplish in this regard, even if we have to go into the fight single-handed and alone.

—A grand national pilgrimage, under the auspices of Mgr. Fabre, is being organized in Montreal, to visit the grotto of Notre Dame de Lourdes in France. It will leave early in July.

—The deaths of two Jesuit missionaries are announced. The first is that of Rev. Father Baldini, who, after many years' service, has died at Demerara. The second is that of the Rev. Father Lionetjena, who has terminated his missionary career at Malin, in Honduras.

—The Standard correspondent in Rome says: "Symmachus," the nom de plume of the author of a long series of letters in the Standard on Italian matters, who is generally very well informed, says that the interest of the Papal Question has been solidified by the British Cabinet. Mr. Errington has never left Rome, and Mr. Gladstone in his opinion has gone to Cannes. "No little do therefore avail in real life, and so entirely do printed books signify nothing; alleding, of course, to the Premier's pamphlet on Vaticanism.

—Work will be commenced shortly on the dome-lodge of the new Dominican Church, corner Steiner and Bush streets.

The Christian Brothers.

In response to certain calumnies regarding the Christian Brothers published in some Eastern papers, the Catholic Union and Times of Buffalo, New York, thus enters its protest against this policy of un-Christian persecution, and at the same time, pays a deserved tribute to a body of zealous and estimable Religious men who are accomplishing a great work for God in guiding American youths in the path of Christian education:

"We would, in the name of common decency, set certain of our respected Catholic contemporaries to refrain from further most unchaitable, unjust, and scandalous reflections to an unfortunate imprisoned Brother. We said on his arrest, and again on his conviction, that we did not and could not believe him guilty of the crime with which he was charged; that we now repeat that it is the firmest conviction of those who know how things stand, that he was never guilty of the crime, and that he is now paying the penalty, penalty in a felon's cell. The criminal assault was committed at the time; and he was the victim of our strengthened conviction, we may only say that time will reveal the truth to the world, and justify our unshaken confidence.

"We feel ourselves bound in honor to affirm that the Christian Brothers, so far as we have known them, are a respectable body of devoted and competent teachers, who deserve well of the Catholic community, who are doing a noble work in helping to train and educate our youth; and this noble work they are doing as well as under circumstances they could be expected; and the community deserves the thanks of Catholic parents and the Catholic clergy for their strenuous and persistent efforts to procure Catholic schools with trained teachers. We say this the because we feel that this tribute is due from us to the good Brothers, and to the cause of Christian truth and self-sacrificing labors give their lives to the work of Christian education.

"They are young men who, either in this country or elsewhere, enlisted under the banner of the venerable La Salle and joined the ranks of the Christian Brothers deserve encouragement and praise. They have entered on a life of idleness or ease, but of labor and sacrifice; a life of religion and honor; a life of self-denial; a life of poverty, and, we believe, a life of purity. We know of no vocation more honorable, no life more self-sacrificing and meritorious than that of those devoted religious men and women who consecrate themselves to the education of the young; and the growth of Catholicity in the land, under God's providence, is assuredly due to them. No one knows that better or is more willing to acknowledge it, than the good priests in charge of souls.

"Here, too, the community has been an edifying religious body without a stain or a whisper of moral wrong, until this dark shadow—which, please God, shall in due time be lifted—fell like a thunderbolt upon them and all their friends. We think that we can also say that the scandal was greater at a distance than here at home, where the Brothers are known; for in not only were the Catholic Brothers in Canada, we believe, take the stand to testify to the unblemished character of the accused, but even after the conviction the best part of our people—Catholic and non-Catholic—believed him innocent of crime, and sympathized with him."

—We thank several friends in Portland for their prompt kindness in telegraphing the death of our dear friend, Archbishop Blanchet, and for the fruitful life came to a happy and at ten minutes to six on last Monday evening.

May's life is like the fleeting day—
At morning when our soul's begun—
And then we do a set of sun
—And then we die set of sun.

—It is a healthy sign to see the people of so many counties in the State holding meetings for the purpose of denouncing those traitors to their party principles among the Italians of Rome, and a fresh action was taken with all pledge-breaking officials we would have more honesty among office-holders. We hope Messrs. Carpenter and Humphreys will accept the advice given them by the general sentiment of the people and act or resign.

—Father Tom Burke is now on his way from Rome to London, his journey being somewhat delayed by another attack of ill health.

THE MONITOR.

LETTER FROM ROME.

Archbishop Croke at the Eternal City—Benevolence of Leo XIII.—The Holy Relic Father Would do Anything for Ireland—King Humbert's New Medal—An Incident in the Defense of Spoleto—The Pontiff and the Czar—A Diocese to be Divided.

[FROM OUR REGULAR ROME CORRESPONDENT.]

ROME, May 21st 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR:

Dear Sir—Since my last communication incidents of importance to Ireland have been transacted in Rome. Long before this letter reaches you the exile will have landed in Ireland of the story—every part of the United States. I shall therefore limit myself to setting forth some of the most salient points of an event that has given rise to such an amount of speculation and to criticisms unduly severe, in order to confirm such reliable news and contradict such false reports as may reach you. The visit of

ARCHBISHOP CROKE OF CASHEL

To Rome was the result of an invitation sent by the Congregation of the Propaganda, acting under the direction of the Holy Father. Some days after his arrival here he had an interview with Cardinal Simeoni, Prefect of the Propaganda, and subsequently, a few days previous to his departure, was received in audience by the Holy Father. On the latter occasion he was accompanied by Father Kirwan, Administrator of Cashel, and conversed for half an hour with his Holiness on the affairs of Ireland. The Parnell Testimonial Fund was condemned in the latter interview, as it was likewise in the letter sent on the 11th of the present month to the Cardinal Archbishop of Dublin, in which condemnation of every rank were forbidden to recommend or further it in any way. The Holy Father commended Archbishop Croke for his zeal in the cause of religion and expressed himself in all the efforts made by Irishmen to better the condition of their countrymen by means consistent with law and justice. Hence, while approving the course of action adopted by the body of the Irish people, he admonished them to hold aloof from all

OATH-BOUND, SECRET, OR ANTICATHOLIC ASSOCIATIONS.

And carry on the struggle for their country's rights manfully, constitutionally, and above board. During the whole interview the Holy Father's bearing, though firm, was kindly and paternal; so much so, that Father Kirwan, on leaving from the audience chamber, said not long since to unfold to Holiness's benevolence. "The Holy Father would do anything for Ireland," said he joyfully. Such is, in brief, what passed at that memorable interview. I believe I have said enough to show that Archbishop Croke did not get that wrathful "dressing" over the ears that fractious British pressmen so dearly wished him, and to hold forth the prophetic opinion that he will return to his diocese, journey to the Eternal City a receptor condemnation of the whole Irish policy. That policy cannot be condemned, though certain acts which we are bound to respect, some or other of the misguided and non-essential do not have undergone a slight modification.

KING HUMBERT'S NEW MEDAL.

A decree has gone forth from the royal hand of King Humbert, ordering a medal to be struck and distributed among the people of Italy under the dominion of the House of Savoy. The historical reminiscence which this decree calls up is, to some degree of political import now. It means, in a word that the Italian Government, Royal Family, and Ministry have ABANDONED THE PAPAL STATE AT THE TIME; and to perpetuate the memory of our strengthened conviction, we may only say that time will reveal through to Italian Rome and justify our unshaken confidence.

"We feel ourselves bound in honor to affirm that the Christian Brothers, so far as we have known them, are a respectable body of devoted and competent teachers, who deserve well of the Catholic community, who are doing a noble work in helping to train and educate our youth; and this noble work they are doing as well as under circumstances they could be expected; and the community deserves the thanks of Catholic parents and the Catholic clergy for their strenuous and persistent efforts to procure Catholic schools with trained teachers. We say this the because we feel that this tribute is due from us to the good Brothers, and to the cause of Christian truth and self-sacrificing labors give their lives to the work of Christian education.

"They are young men who, either in this country or elsewhere, enlisted under the banner of the venerable La Salle and joined the ranks of the Christian Brothers deserve encouragement and praise. They have entered on a life of idleness or ease, but of labor and sacrifice; a life of religion and honor; a life of self-denial; a life of poverty, and, we believe, a life of purity. We know of no vocation more honorable, no life more self-sacrificing and meritorious than that of those devoted religious men and women who consecrate themselves to the education of the young; and the growth of Catholicity in the land, under God's providence, is assuredly due to them. No one knows that better or is more willing to acknowledge it, than the good priests in charge of souls.

"Here, too, the community has been an edifying religious body without a stain or a whisper of moral wrong, until this dark shadow—which, please God, shall in due time be lifted—fell like a thunderbolt upon them and all their friends. We think that we can also say that the scandal was greater at a distance than here at home, where the Brothers are known; for in not only were the Catholic Brothers in Canada, we believe, take the stand to testify to the unblemished character of the accused, but even after the conviction the best part of our people—Catholic and non-Catholic—believed him innocent of crime, and sympathized with him."

—We thank several friends in Portland for their prompt kindness in telegraphing the death of our dear friend, Archbishop Blanchet, and for the fruitful life came to a happy and at ten minutes to six on last Monday evening.

May's life is like the fleeting day—
At morning when our soul's begun—
And then we do a set of sun
—And then we die set of sun.

—It is a healthy sign to see the people of so many counties in the State holding meetings for the purpose of denouncing those traitors to their party principles among the Italians of Rome, and a fresh action was taken with all pledge-breaking officials we would have more honesty among office-holders. We hope Messrs. Carpenter and Humphreys will accept the advice given them by the general sentiment of the people and act or resign.

—Father Tom Burke is now on his way from Rome to London, his journey being somewhat delayed by another attack of ill health.

OUR IRISH LETTER.

Triumphal Tour of Archbishop Croke through Tipperary—The Idol of the Whole Irish People—Gladstone's Jay at the Cardinal's Circular—The Parnell Fund—Patriotic Address Dead—Another Dynamite Scare—The Status of Mercy and Brady—Miner Notes, etc.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR:

Dear Sir—Ireland's welcome home to Dr. Croke, on his return from Rome, is a fitting answer to the slander of Gladstone, Errington, Rome, and other hypocritical, oily tongued Whig Catholics in England, and Ireland also. Never, can they never the dark blots which blind the Irish priests and people. Dr. Croke—back from Rome as he went to Rome—is unassailable and idol of the Irish politics.

FROM THE MOMENT HIS GRAND TRIUMPH

At Kingstown, till he reached his own dear Tipperary, the joyous enthusiasm of some Irish heart proud, him, and addresses presented in his honor of his arrival, and addresses presented in his honor of his arrival, and addresses presented in his honor of his arrival

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

MARY'S INCOMPREHENSIBLE DIGNITY AND PRERGOATIVE.

SECOND ARTICLE.

But what must not be the power of the most holy and perfect of all mothers? If the power and influence of the other saints are so numerous and unceasing in their mediation and union with God, what then will be the power of her who possesses all the merits of the saints? If her sanctity is without measure, can it not be said that her power knows no limits? Did not an angel from some of the virtues which in a singular manner shine forth in the Heart of God, and by reason of which the Savior Himself promises that all things shall become possible; for instance, faith been so omnipotent, and by prayer obtained all things; confidence infinite a holy violence on God and obtained what it seeks? But what shall I say of this glorious Virgin who has more faith, more hope and more charity than all the other elect together? In fine, her authority is omipotent under every title; it is omnipotent whether it proceed from nature or from grace, from favor or from merit. Nature creates this Mother omipotent with her Son, and grace makes her infinitely acceptable in His sight; merit which makes even a servant have all things with his master, confers all power on Mary with God. Is it, then, to be wondered at that Scripture says to Mary, "It will be your duty forced to conclude with" St. Augustin that her position has the weight of authority—Petit rediemus habet imperii. (Cohest Tom. 2.). It is clear enough that Mary is made omipotent by her adorable Son, for the at once claims from His vicarious power (Ibid.) It is not difficult to prove that the Holy Virgin from the moment she so carried the Divine Word, became the Mistress of all things. All the Fathers have so taught and taught it, in effecting this teaching, St. John Damascenus believed that she who had authority over the Son of God, as St. Luke declares, "And He was subject to them," obtained this right to exercise all power over them, and that and August must be subject to her since the only Son of the Father wished to be subject to her "The Virgin became the Mistress of all things decreed of her who became the Mother of the Creator.

But the reason which constitutes this power is her, and which forces all created beings to be subject to her, and which, if possible, is become God Himself gave to all the example, because His subject, and which, if possible, is become God Himself gave to all the example, because His subject, and which, if possible, is become God Himself gave to all the example, because His subject

OUR SCHOOLS.

Commencement Exercises in Catholic Colleges, Schools and Academies.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE.

The thirty-second annual commencement of Santa Clara College, which commenced on Sunday evening, June 8th, at the College Theatre at Santa Clara. There was a large attendance among the audience being many near who claim the College as their Alma Mater and who have since attained to positions of prominence. A selection from Rossini in Double by the College Brass Band opened the exercises. Next came the Introduction (an address in verse) by E. V. Sargent. "The Mail of Orleans," a poem, written by C. Scott and read by J. D. Enright, was attentively and received hearty applause. The College band then gave selections from The Mascotte. "The Column of Logic on the Training of the Mind," an essay by Dan McLean, was a well-written paper, in which convincing arguments appeared for this indispensable branch of education. After this came selections from Tic Bohemian Girl by the Band. "Ambition," followed with a poem, "John Fisher." The College Band played "Remembrance of Verdi." Ed. Green, delivered a poem, "The Pearl of Orleans." "Ireland's Exodus," a poem, closed with a carefully written paper on "Religion or Dynamite—Which?" by E. J. Flynn.

On the following Tuesday evening there was quite a large audience, in spite of the unusually bad weather. The programme opened with selections from Robespierre, played by the College Brass Band, of sixteen performers. The band is one of the institutions of Santa Clara College, and the manner in which it handles the most convoluted music—even Wagner—it has not been little to study and practice. After this rendition the curtain went up on a scene that now once shifted a burst of applause. The stage was brilliantly illuminated with three electric lights and was furnished with an medium array of electrical instruments with which the students had made the night before. The lecture was delivered by L. Brignion, assisted by Jas. Clahan and Chas. Mc. Mullin, who had kindly volunteered to play for a few general remarks on the lecture, which was illustrated by electromagnetism. He produced an electroscope, composed of a gauze about two feet long by six wide, and of which was a gold leaf. By briskly rubbing an ebonite rod against it, it, by the electroscope, the latter followed it around. In a similar manner he illustrated other laws, and exhibited both attraction and repulsion by the electroscope. He also showed the Leyden jar, some curious experiments with the electric spark, and explained the charging of the Leyden jar, and the difference between static and dynamic or voltaic electricity. Quite a number of experiments were brought current, that consumed metal with brilliancy, and in this manner he produced drinking bulbs by burning silver, silver and magnesium. The Mr. Whitbeck and Mr. Brignion did light voice water. He then, with a current, showed how to discover from a distance of a mile, whether and indeed. He also gave an illustration of the telephone, and a large microphone of copper in solution. The mechanical application of electricity was illustrated by a phenomenon in the running of various small machines on the stage, the motive power being concealed out of sight.

The Band played "The Parisian's Daughter," and then J. J. Dunne was introduced. He spoke on "Ireland's Wrongs and Wrongs." He reviewed the subject of destiny, describing the working of the planet upon man, and showed the meaning the force of a certain planet, and the influence of a certain constellation, as to the cause of a cold of opposition to the decree of a cold of opposition to the decree of a cold of opposition to the decree

Poetry.

THE MAIN-TRUCK, OR A LEAP FOR LIFE.

(PUBLISHED BY REQUEST.)

Old Ironsides at anchor lay,
In the harbor of Mahone—
A dead man rested on the bay—
The tempest had left him lone.
Thirty little Hal, the captain's son,
Thought he knew well and good,
In sport, unaround and rigging ran,
And on the main-truck stood!

A shudder shot through every vein,
All eyes were turned on high!
There stood the boy, with dizzy brain,
Between the sea and sky—
No hold had he above, below;
Alone he stood in air!
To that far height none dared to go!
No aid could reach him there.

We gazed—but not a man could speak!
With horror all aghast!
In gorgon, pitiful horror and shock,
We watched the quivering mast.
The atmosphere grew thick and hot,
And of a liquid hue:—
As rivetted with the spot,
Stood officers and crew.

The father came on deck—he gasped,
"O, God! why sit we here?"
Then suddenly a rifle grasped,
And aimed that it might sure,
"Jump, for out, boy, into the wave!
Jump, or I fire!" he said;
"That only shows your life can save!
I jump, jump, boy!"—He obeyed.

He sank—he rose,—he lived,—he moved,
And for the ship struck out!
Oh heart, with fear and hope it beat,
With many a manly shout.
His father ever, in dizzy joy,
Those wet arms reveal his nook—
Then fainted to his heart his boy,
And fainted on the deck.

FOR AN ERRING SOUL.

Let the silent prayer ascending,
Let the tears in secret shed,
Plead with Thee, O Heart of Love,
For the loved one who is dead.

Dead—not yet by nature's dying,
But in the immortal soul,
Never, O sweet Jesus, saving!
Lost for aye to raise the crowd.

Oh, how falsely came the tempter,
Oh, how he cheated, offering wealth!
As! "Our brother had not died
If Thou, O Lord, hadst been there."

By the tears Thou hast shed o'er him,
By Thy prayer on bended knees;
By the woes he has once caused Thee
Neath the moon-lit olive trees.

For the love Thy Mother bears him,
Hear this mother's prayer and save
Sinners who from the tempter's vengeance
Fled, as he is fled to Thee.

By Thy object self-abasement,
By Thy death upon the tree,
O, Lord, what Thou demanded,
Only give that soul to me.

By Thy tender love for sinners
At the sight of human woe,
Thou hast wept, Thou hast prayed—
Gods that cried—Thy mercy know.

Turn and rest Thine eyes upon him
As Thou dost when Peter fell;
By that glance he may be convinced,
Yes, Lord, none loved Thee well.

Mourner, Then who art weary,
Didst e'er cheer's prayer thinks,
Hear this, Lord! Behold! weary
Draw back to Thy Heart again.

Literary Miscellany.

Almost Too Late.

BY PHILIP LEFNOR.

A beautiful evening in May; Nature with sentiment hand, was bestowing its richest charms on field and forest, on meadow and hillside, nursing into life and beauty the modest primrose, peeping into life by the roadside, basking in the broken stony of the more favored nursery flower, bidding them show forth in renewed youth and loveliness; imparting fresh vigor to the weary ones; and bidding man to rejoice and to be glad, making wood and valley re-echo with the joyous songster, everywhere imparting a fresh and fresh hope. Happy the heart then can heed responsive to Nature's cheerful invitation. On the evening I write, two lovers are enjoying the delightful scenery, walking hand in hand in the pathway that the world that skirts the domain of Colonel Leslie's estate, near the town of Morse, in the north of Ireland. Their conversation is rather and tender. "No, Alice; it is foolish, if you to think any more of Edmond O'Connor. His name was entered as a passenger on the ill-fated vessel that sailed from San Francisco some nine months ago, and though I have made the most diligent inquiries, and advertised time and again for information regarding his fate, I have never found the least portion of hope. He must have perished. O'Connor was dearer to me than a brother, and in heaven sure as I hel he must be, for he was always good and faithful in the performance of his religious obligations, he will bless our proposed union."

The speaker was Rose McKenna, now the affianced husband of the girl by his side, Alice McIndoe. Some five years ago, along with Edmond O'Connor, he had emigrated to Dublinesia, sank with a view of bettering his fortunes. Shoulder to shoulder they had toiled and struggled, and were soon reckoned among the most successful young men on the Pacific slope, winning the golden opinions of their employers, and the respect of their fellow laborers. During all this time O'Connor was faithful to his Alice, informs forming her regularly of his success, only waiting to realize a handsome fortune to bring home and share with her he loved so well.

The two were even become companions; several supports in the trials of life, and shares alike in each other's joy. At length a cloud came, that darkened for a while the bir horizon of their lives. A wealthy Spanish lady fell in love with McKenna, and the affection was fully returned; but the hir-creature of Spanish descent, rich in beauty with every attraction of mind and manner to captivate was without of a jealous disposition—fearful of death by the over indulgence of a doting parent. McKenna, unhappily like many of his countrymen, was of a too sensitive nature. In one of her fits of jealousy Ada Robaino, for that was her name, discarded him, and although she dearly loved the warm hearted Irishman, accepted the hand of a rich old doctor. Need not add, that the marriage was unhappy.

He was some time recovering from the effects of this bitter lesson, yet by close application to business pursuits, he regained, after a while, his usual cheerfulness, resolving for the time to come, to steel his heart against the charms of society. He never met her after, although he occasionally learnt from O'Connor, who still continued the friendship, that she was very far from being happy. She had given her hand, but the love that should have accompanied the gift was another.

McKenna, one year after this time sold out his claim, some home, and brought the old homestead, determined to lead a retired life. O'Connor remained behind to arrange for a favorable opportunity to dispose of his interest. At length a letter came to Alice, the long expected letter, announcing his intention of returning by a certain steamer from San Francisco. This was soon followed by the sad tidings of the vessel's destruction by fire.

This was a terrible blow to McKenna, as well as to the faithful lover; not a word about, or the slightest clue left as to the fate of poor Edmond. In her deep affliction Rose was a constant visitor, sympathy of feeling for their mutual friend brought them close together; soon friendship, the twin ally of affection, ripened into love. Time matters drifted on. The willed rose of their first love drooped, but there was left behind the seeds of unalloyed friendship to bud anew, like the modest primrose by the hedgeside.

"I know it is foolish to talk or think of Edmond now, but believe me, I can't help it—in dreams I see him still living, and oh! suffering so much. You know he was my first love—my companion from childhood. I would not knowingly deceive you, who are so noble and good; the withered offering I bring you is not worth the sacrifice you make. You have a whole single heart; I bestow, while mine is smeared like a withered blossom."

"Hush!" he replied, "it make no sacrifice in loving you; lovers are spotless, they are winning your love, I secure a prize worth to me than life itself."

"I know, dear Rose, she shall always try to be worthy of your great love. You have my promise, and I only trust you will never have cause to regret the confidence. Now the evening is getting late, and as I wish to spend this last night alone with mother, I will excuse your not calling to-night."

"Well, good-by, Alice. I trust no more foolish fancies will disturb the quiet of your soul as I wish my dear girl to feel happy. May peaceful dreams attend you gently over her, that no thought of care may pale the rosy on her cheek to-morrow."

Dead—not yet by nature's dying,
But in the immortal soul,
Never, O sweet Jesus, saving!
Lost for aye to raise the crowd.

Oh, how falsely came the tempter,
Oh, how he cheated, offering wealth!
As! "Our brother had not died
If Thou, O Lord, hadst been there."

By the tears Thou hast shed o'er him,
By Thy prayer on bended knees;
By the woes he has once caused Thee
Neath the moon-lit olive trees.

For the love Thy Mother bears him,
Hear this mother's prayer and save
Sinners who from the tempter's vengeance
Fled, as he is fled to Thee.

By Thy object self-abasement,
By Thy death upon the tree,
O, Lord, what Thou demanded,
Only give that soul to me.

By Thy tender love for sinners
At the sight of human woe,
Thou hast wept, Thou hast prayed—
Gods that cried—Thy mercy know.

Turn and rest Thine eyes upon him
As Thou dost when Peter fell;
By that glance he may be convinced,
Yes, Lord, none loved Thee well.

Mourner, Then who art weary,
Didst e'er cheer's prayer thinks,
Hear this, Lord! Behold! weary
Draw back to Thy Heart again.

Literary Miscellany.

Almost Too Late.

BY PHILIP LEFNOR.

A beautiful evening in May; Nature with sentiment hand, was bestowing its richest charms on field and forest, on meadow and hillside, nursing into life and beauty the modest primrose, peeping into life by the roadside, basking in the broken stony of the more favored nursery flower, bidding them show forth in renewed youth and loveliness; imparting fresh vigor to the weary ones; and bidding man to rejoice and to be glad, making wood and valley re-echo with the joyous songster, everywhere imparting a fresh and fresh hope. Happy the heart then can heed responsive to Nature's cheerful invitation. On the evening I write, two lovers are enjoying the delightful scenery, walking hand in hand in the pathway that the world that skirts the domain of Colonel Leslie's estate, near the town of Morse, in the north of Ireland. Their conversation is rather and tender. "No, Alice; it is foolish, if you to think any more of Edmond O'Connor. His name was entered as a passenger on the ill-fated vessel that sailed from San Francisco some nine months ago, and though I have made the most diligent inquiries, and advertised time and again for information regarding his fate, I have never found the least portion of hope. He must have perished. O'Connor was dearer to me than a brother, and in heaven sure as I hel he must be, for he was always good and faithful in the performance of his religious obligations, he will bless our proposed union."

The speaker was Rose McKenna, now the affianced husband of the girl by his side, Alice McIndoe. Some five years ago, along with Edmond O'Connor, he had emigrated to Dublinesia, sank with a view of bettering his fortunes. Shoulder to shoulder they had toiled and struggled, and were soon reckoned among the most successful young men on the Pacific slope, winning the golden opinions of their employers, and the respect of their fellow laborers. During all this time O'Connor was faithful to his Alice, informs forming her regularly of his success, only waiting to realize a handsome fortune to bring home and share with her he loved so well.

The two were even become companions; several supports in the trials of life, and shares alike in each other's joy. At length a cloud came, that darkened for a while the bir horizon of their lives. A wealthy Spanish lady fell in love with McKenna, and the affection was fully returned; but the hir-creature of Spanish descent, rich in beauty with every attraction of mind and manner to captivate was without of a jealous disposition—fearful of death by the over indulgence of a doting parent. McKenna, unhappily like many of his countrymen, was of a too sensitive nature. In one of her fits of jealousy Ada Robaino, for that was her name, discarded him, and although she dearly loved the warm hearted irishman, accepted the hand of a rich old doctor. Need not add, that the marriage was unhappy.

He was some time recovering from the effects of this bitter lesson, yet by close application to business pursuits, he regained, after a while, his usual cheerfulness, resolving for the time to come, to steel his heart against the charms of society. He never met her after, although he occasionally learnt from O'Connor, who still continued the friendship, that she was very far from being happy. She had given her hand, but the love that should have accompanied the gift was another.

McKenna, one year after this time sold out his claim, some home, and brought the old homestead, determined to lead a retired life. O'Connor remained behind to arrange for a favorable opportunity to dispose of his interest. At length a letter came to Alice, the long expected letter, announcing his intention of returning by a certain steamer from San Francisco. This was soon followed by the sad tidings of the vessel's destruction by fire.

This was a terrible blow to McKenna, as well as to the faithful lover; not a word about, or the slightest clue left as to the fate of poor Edmond. In her deep affliction Rose was a constant visitor; sympathy of feeling for their mutual friend brought them close together; soon friendship, the twin ally of affection, ripened into love. Time matters drifted on. The willed rose of their first love drooped, but there was left behind the seeds of unalloyed friendship to bud anew, like the modest primrose by the hedgeside.

"I know it is foolish to talk or think of Edmond now, but believe me, I can't help it—in dreams I see him still living, and oh! suffering so much. You know he was my first love—my companion from childhood. I would not knowingly deceive you, who are so noble and good; the withered offering I bring you is not worth the sacrifice you make. You have a whole single heart; I bestow, while mine is smeared like a withered blossom."

"Hush!" he replied, "I make no sacrifice in loving you; lovers are spotless, they are winning your love, I secure a prize worth to me than life itself."

"I know, dear Rose, she shall always try to be worthy of your great love. You have my promise, and I only trust you will never have cause to regret the confidence. Now the evening is getting late, and as I wish to spend this last night alone with mother, I will excuse your not calling to-night."

"Well, good-by, Alice. I trust no more foolish fancies will disturb the quiet of your soul as I wish my dear girl to feel happy. May peaceful dreams attend you gently over her, that no thought of care may pale the rosy on her cheek to-morrow."

Dead—not yet by nature's dying,
But in the immortal soul,
Never, O sweet Jesus, saving!
Lost for aye to raise the crowd.

Oh, how falsely came the tempter,
Oh, how he cheated, offering wealth!
As! "Our brother had not died
If Thou, O Lord, hadst been there."

By the tears Thou hast shed o'er him,
By Thy prayer on bended knees;
By the woes he has once caused Thee
Neath the moon-lit olive trees.

For the love Thy Mother bears him,
Hear this mother's prayer and save
Sinners who from the tempter's vengeance
Fled, as he is fled to Thee.

By Thy object self-abasement,
By Thy death upon the tree,
O, Lord, what Thou demanded,
Only give that soul to me.

By Thy tender love for sinners
At the sight of human woe,
Thou hast wept, Thou hast prayed—
Gods that cried—Thy mercy know.

Turn and rest Thine eyes upon him
As Thou dost when Peter fell;
By that glance he may be convinced,
Yes, Lord, none loved Thee well.

Mourner, Then who art weary,
Didst e'er cheer's prayer thinks,
Hear this, Lord! Behold! weary
Draw back to Thy Heart again.

IN MEMORIAM.

MAGGIE F. DONOVAN.

Died, in the Lake County, Cal., on Tuesday, Aug. 1, 1882, after a severe attack of Bilious Typhoid, Maggie F. Donovan, aged 17 years, 3 months and 12 days. Deceased was a member of the Catholic Church, and died with all the solid consolation that religion can afford to perfectly resigned. Her illness was of but a few days, and death came to her as a sweet but welcome release from the cares and sorrows of life. Deceased was a member of the Sacred Heart Sodality, and died with the sacred emblem of her profession on her breast. Leaving her three years in the Convent, her death was remarkably happy. Its manner was so calm and peaceful, that it seemed more like a sweet sleep, after which she would awake refreshed. Her last days were spent in the Sacred Heart Convent, where she was surrounded by her companions, who all loved her. Her death was a great loss to her parents, who, after which she lived, fully prepared for the sacrifice, and died with long pain and black. Her death-bed was crowned with

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1883.

"Morality in the Public Schools."

This is the caption of an article in the current number of the Atlantic Monthly, published in Boston. The writer is Oliver Johnson, and while his article hardly does justice to the Catholic side of the educational controversy, yet he takes some admissions which fully endorse the Catholic view of education, wherein it is declared that morality cannot be taught without religious training.

At the very outset of his article Mr. Johnson is candid enough to acknowledge this truth which Catholic critics have for years been trying to impress upon the minds of their non-Catholic neighbors:

"It is universally conceded that secular knowledge alone is not sufficient for good citizenship. This is not the sentiment of Christian only, but of leading men who are not identified with the Church. That eminent scientist and agnostic philosopher, Herbert Spencer, has lately spoken of 'the universal delusion about education as a means to political ends,' and declared that the fitness of men for free institutions 'is essentially a question of character, and only in a secondary degree a question of knowledge;' and he adds that 'if, as we believe, the right and wrong of certain moral sentiments, is the root of the evil,' If Mr. Spencer is right—and this we take to be the prevailing impression in relation to the public school question—the only effective remedy for the effective for the formation and culture of the moral sentiments, is to be found in the religious policy control? Our day is this were all sent away if so, is not the fact that it is just here that the problem lies?"

The "very kernel" of the problem of education is the implanting in the minds of children the knowledge of God, without which they cannot grow up in that moral atmosphere which is the vital essence of a Christian people. This important factor in education the writer admits further on when he says: "Our public schools, or, as Mr. Spencer says, the moral sentiments of children must be cultivated, or the quality of citizenship will so deteriorate as to endanger the republic." Just the author of this article need not have cited Mr. Spencer as a witness to this truthful sentiment, because Catholic theology had taught this for thousands of years before Spencer and settled in Cincinnati, where he found employment in different banking houses, but during which period his mind was confusedly burdened with doubts regarding the truth of the Protestant religion, which he professed. He commenced a course of study, in order to satisfy himself of the truth or falsehood of the Protestant religion, and the final result was that the future Archbishop of one of the most important Dioceses of the Catholic Church in America was baptized "an little child" in our holy faith by Archbishop Purcell in 1836. How inscrutable are the wonderful ways of Providence! And in what simple and singular ways does not Almighty God select the priesthood for His exalted

Most Rev. James F. Wood, D. D.

Again we are called upon to record the death of another eminent Prelate in the Hierarchy of America. MOST REV. JAMES F. WOOD, Archbishop of Philadelphia, died in that city on last Wednesday evening. For some time previous the health of his Grace had not been robust, yet it was hoped that his naturally strong constitution would carry him through his recent attacks, but Almighty God ordained it otherwise, and the good Archbishop was called to his reward in the 71st year of his age, the 50th of his priesthood, and the 26th of his Episcopate.

Archbishop Wood was born of Quaker parents, in the city where he died, April 29th, 1813. He received his elementary education in his native city, but in those days the Quaker schools were few, and those who desired their sons to receive a classical education generally sent them to England for the entire period of their training. Accordingly, young Wood was sent to the Church of England Grammar School of St. Mary de Crypt, at Gloucester, England, where he spent five years, and imbibed an amount of erudition which proved most useful in his after life.

Returning to America, young Wood followed the trade of tanner for his young relative, and settled in Cincinnati, where he found employment in different banking houses, but during which period his mind was confusedly burdened with doubts regarding the truth of the Protestant religion, which he professed. He commenced a course of study, in order to satisfy himself of this state one purely civil and secular, relating to the reputation of God in its system of education is violation the consolence of every Christian parent and child in the land. This the Union has no right to do, because its powers do not extend into the province of conscience or personal rights, yet we see the results of such school education in the minds of society which abounds to-day, wherever religion seems to have fled. What is that but a fearful harvest of the Godless education of Protestant Church members and of Catholic parents! What power is it that has purified the pure-minded pagan people in the Christian Church? The Saviour's Blood, the power, and its system of education has revealed the former evil. Yet, notwithstanding the Christian Church has never every-day evidence of the Inspiration wrote which comes from the system of public education as pursued in this country, but we will join Dante Gabriel Rossetti in their efforts to preserve "equal and exact justice for all," because they are convinced that their duty to themselves to the Catholicism that in divine guidance for the Protestant religious system they would be forced to remain similar justice to Catholic schools in January, 1860, and when he officiated for the last 23 years with zeal, and prudence. In 1875 Philadelphia was raised to the rank of a Metropolitan See, and on the 17th of June, the deceased Prelate had the distinguished honor to be named as its first Archbishop.

Like almost every other portion of America, the progress of the Church in Philadelphia has been remarkable even since Archbishop Wood became a convert to the Catholic Church. At that period there were only 16 Catholic Bishops in the United States, now there are 76. The number of priests in America up to 1840 was only 482, which has swelled up to 6,060. Four years after Archbishop Wood's conversion the whole number of Catholic churches in America was 697; in January last the number was 6,241. In 1840 there were only 9 Catholic colleges in America, but in 22 years we have swelled the number to 81. Forty-three years ago Sisters were few, and female academies counted only 47. The Catholic laity for education, and the zeal of the prelacy and priesthood—together with the excellent services of the Sisters themselves—have tended to increase the 47 academies of 1840 more than twelve times that number, there being at present 579 female academies under Catholic auspices in this country. All this, be it remembered, occurred since at which half the life-time of the deceased Prelate whose death the Church in America is called upon to mourn.

Archbishop Wood has left behind him a noble monument in the Archdiocese he has helped to organize, to build up, and to lead on to prosperity. He saw it grow from a few small and scattered congregations into a solid phalanx of 300,000 Catholics. He lived to see the few wooden churches of the early days of his episcopate replaced by stately and spacious edifices, and the number increased to nearly 200. The few priests he had to help him in his early days now number 250, and he had the happiness to see the Catholic parochial schools he founded for the Christian Brothers and the teaching order of the Sisterhood, attended by 22,000 pupils.

These facts attest the wisdom of God in calling James FRANCIS WOOD from the region of Protestant darkness and doubt into the clear light and certainty of Catholicism! May his reward be exceeding great, and may the service he gave God on earth be continued in Heaven for all eternity!

R. I. P.

The O'Connell Monument in Dublin.

On Monday, May 21st, by the placing of the fourth winged figure in position, the monument to the Irish Liberator was declared complete in all its magnificent details. More than twenty years have elapsed since in September, 1860, the public movement began, when a fitting tribute to Ireland's great tribune was initiated in the Dublin Freeman's Journal. A sum of over ten thousand pounds was quickly subscribed by all parts of the country. The committee who had charge of the work entrusted to sculptor Foley, who, conscious of what was expected of him, devoted to the design for the monument and to the manipulation of the work all the resources of his genius and skill. On the 15th of August, 1864, the foundation stone was laid on the site in Sackville street, in the presence of a national demonstration of immense extent, animated with intense enthusiasm. Last year, on the 15th of August, the colossal bronze monument the pedestal was unveiled with a demonstration equally immense and enthusiastic as that of the original laying, which was an essential part of Mr. Foley's plan, were not all in place, and it was until lately that they arrived in Dublin. The monument is now stands revealed a splendid study of the solid historic figure that it commemorates, and symbolizes picturesquely the great work of the Irish Liberator.

The structure stands forty feet high, and consists of three distinct parts. Sermount is the figure of the Liberator, twelve feet in height, representing him enveloped in his Irish cloak. Next comes the epic-indirect drum, bearing fifty allegorical figures in high relief. Of these the groupings of Erin, eight feet high, trampling her evil fetters under foot, while with one hand she grasps the Ark of Emancipation, and with her other points up to her Emancipator. The other figures are the Genius of the Church, the Protestant, the Fine Arts, the Trades, and the Peasantry. Then the third part is the base itself, formed of two gradients. The four sublimes winged Victories, by their classic majesty of design and their exquisite beauty and dignity of attitude, form a most prominent feature of the whole. The Victory of Fidelity holds a mariner's compass and carries a dog—both types of sagacity; the Victory of Eloquence, with a lock all free and lilly, clasps a roll of documents; and the Victory of Courage is in the act of struggling a serpent as she grasps a bundle of reeds, typical of the destructive union makes strength.

Regarding the monument, as the grave of a great political tribune, it takes place in the first rank of works of art of a similar class. The Irish people have shown how splendid contributory of Ireland's gratitude to O'Connell, and of the art of Foley, who unfortunately died before this finest example of his skill was completed.

BISHOP RADEMACHER.

Rev. Joseph Rademacher, for three years pastor of St. Mary's Church, Nashville, Tennessee, has been ordained Bishop of Nashville, Tennessee, on last Sunday, the 24th inst. Bishop Rademacher was born in Clinton county, Mich., Dec. 3, 1843. He was educated at St. Vincent's College, Latrobe, Pennsylvania. He was ordained at Fort Wayne by the late Bishop Luers, on Feb. 2, 1868. His first pastoral labor was on assignment to Jennings, Jackson county, and Seymour, Indiana, where he remained for seven years, he was then transferred to Tipton (1875), remaining there eighteen months. From the time he was ordained he was attached to Fort Wayne, where he labored until 1880, when he was appointed to the charge of the Catholic Church at Lafayette. He is in the prime of manhood and physical manhood—a man of pleasing address and ability.

OUR IRISH LETTER.

A Graphic Picture of Irish Grief and Suffering—Will Ireland's Woe Ever Cease?—Catholic Progress in the Protestant North—Gladstone's Eulogy on Garibaldi! Archbishop Croke's Visitation.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR.

Dear Sir—And now spreading its verdant cloak over our fertile land, virgin May—that month marked by sad events in Ireland, has passed, and the season that gives birth to our woe also—our sorrow. Not only to those from whom England's fatal repressive laws thus were dear, will the present month be sad, but to every man who, different parts of our country who are groaning under the weight of cruel wrongs, particularly that western land, along the coast that is washed by the wild Atlantic, where gaunt homes, once happy, are now laid desolate; where nature, in the budding spring of life, whose natural beauty could have graced a royal court, fade day by day from the effects of slow stagnation, until death, at last, claims them as it retires; where the father is taken from the family, stricken down by famine fever, or cast into prison on a false charge, and where the broken-hearted mother clasps to her bosom the living son or daughter for the last time on earth ere they leave the home of their childhood to face a cold world of strangers. Those who have the cause of their country at heart, witnessing such heart-rending scenes from time to time, almost give way to despair, and think that

IRELAND'S CUP OF WOE IS DEVOID TO CREST.

But hope we will, a little longer; perhaps a change may come, and some time we may see England's day of retribution must be nigh—such a peal of hypocrisy as her name could convey with means very cannot long survive.

GLADSTONE EULOGIZES GARIBALDI.

Last week England's Prime Minister did honor to the memory of General Garibaldi by attending a demonstration, on the anniversary of his death, at the residence of the Duke of Sutherland, who was presented with a marble statue of the hero of the General, the Duke having been Garibaldi's host on the occasion of his visit to England. The Duke was a nobleman of the old school, and Ireland's speech, in the course of which he spoke of the nobility of character of his fellow-laborer in the cause of Italian unity, and enumerated the work of that fiery revolutionist, Garibaldi, and for the relief of the distressed poor in Ireland, and so generously did the people respond to his Grace's appeal that the last report in the Catholic Standard of Philadelphia announced a total collection of over $10,000. This was the crowning act of a life spent for the glory of God and the propagation of Christian truth, and the benefit of the souls of young and old under his Pastoral charge. May God reward His "good and faithful servant," whom He raised up to be a lamp in His sanctuary, and whose conversion and subsequent career in the priesthood and prelacy has been the means of leading many souls into the sure way to eternal happiness. May his reward be exceeding great, and may the service he gave God on earth be continued in Heaven for all eternity!

R. I. P.

CONGRATULATIONS TO A CONVERT.

The following beautiful letter was recently received by a young gentleman who recently made a conversion from Protestant error to Catholic truth. The writer was formerly a school teacher of the young convert was one of his pupils. At present he is a leading lawyer in Ohio, and the tone of his letter proves that he is one of those noble-minded men who obey in professing their faith before men.

MY DEAR TOM—I can truthfully say that I never received a letter from anyone that gave me more pleasure than did your last one, and for the reason that you have so frankly stated your full conviction of the truth—the sublime truth—of Catholic doctrine and your full conviction of a belief in those soul-preserving truths, may you be not only now, but for a full lifetime, fervent and hereafter, baptized in the truths of the Holy Ghost as was promised by our Divine Saviour to his Apostles on this glorious Ascension day; may salvation hundred years ago. The good fathers of your Alma Mater deserve the credit of bringing you to a knowledge of the truth, God blessed them, as God will bless and always bless, the Holy and Apostolic Church of Jesus, the gallant soldiers of Christ in every great battle fought in every country and in every clime and against whom has been leveled the utmost fury of the hosts of evil and of hell. You may think I am an enthusiast, and so I am, when speaking of the Jesuits. For what man not society, does not the Church, does not civilization owe to the Jesuits? Who are the men? They are the true defenders of the religion of Christ, they are the true defenders of the rights of man, they are the true defenders of their childhood to face a cold world of strangers. Those who have the cause of their country at heart, witnessing such heart-rending scenes from time to time, almost give way to despair, and think that

IRELAND'S CUP OF WOE IS DEVOID TO CREST.

But hope we will, a little longer; perhaps a change may come, and some time we may see England's day of retribution must be nigh—such a peal of hypocrisy as her name could convey with means very cannot long survive.

GLADSTONE EULOGIZES GARIBALDI.

Last week England's Prime Minister did honor to the memory of General Garibaldi by attending a demonstration, on the anniversary of his death, at the residence of the Duke of Sutherland, who was presented with a marble statue of the hero of the General, the Duke having been Garibaldi's host on the occasion of his visit to England. The Duke was a nobleman of the old school, and Ireland's speech, in the course of which he spoke of the nobility of character of his fellow-laborer in the cause of Italian unity, and enumerated the work of that fiery revolutionist, Garibaldi, and for the relief of the distressed poor in Ireland, and so generously did the people respond to his Grace's appeal that the last report in the Catholic Standard of Philadelphia announced a total collection of over $10,000. This was the crowning act of a life spent for the glory of God and the propagation of Christian truth, and the benefit of the souls of young and old under his Pastoral charge. May God reward His "good and faithful servant," whom He raised up to be a lamp in His sanctuary, and whose conversion and subsequent career in the priesthood and prelacy has been the means of leading many souls into the sure way to eternal happiness. May his reward be exceeding great, and may the service he gave God on earth be continued in Heaven for all eternity!

R. I. P.

The O'Connell Monument in Dublin.

On Monday, May 21st, by the placing of the fourth winged figure in position, the monument to the Irish Liberator was declared complete in all its magnificent details. More than twenty years have elapsed since in September, 1860, the public movement began, when a fitting tribute to Ireland's great tribune was initiated in the Dublin Freeman's Journal. A sum of over ten thousand pounds was quickly subscribed by all parts of the country. The committee who had charge of the work entrusted to sculptor Foley, who, conscious of what was expected of him, devoted to the design for the monument and to the manipulation of the work all the resources of his genius and skill. On the 15th of August, 1864, the foundation stone was laid on the site in Sackville street, in the presence of a national demonstration of immense extent, animated with intense enthusiasm. Last year, on the 15th of August, the colossal bronze monument the pedestal was unveiled with a demonstration equally immense and enthusiastic as that of the original laying, which was an essential part of Mr. Foley's plan, were not all in place, and it was until lately that they arrived in Dublin. The monument is now stands revealed a splendid study of the solid historic figure that it commemorates, and symbolizes picturesquely the great work of the Irish Liberator.

The structure stands forty feet high, and consists of three distinct parts. Sermount is the figure of the Liberator, twelve feet in height, representing him enveloped in his Irish cloak. Next comes the epic-indirect drum, bearing fifty allegorical figures in high relief. Of these the groupings of Erin, eight feet high, trampling her evil fetters under foot, while with one hand she grasps the Ark of Emancipation, and with her other points up to her Emancipator. The other figures are the Genius of the Church, the Protestant, the Fine Arts, the Trades, and the Peasantry. Then the third part is the base itself, formed of two gradients. The four sublimes winged Victories, by their classic majesty of design and their exquisite beauty and dignity of attitude, form a most prominent feature of the whole. The Victory of Fidelity holds a mariner's compass and carries a dog—both types of sagacity; the Victory of Eloquence, with a lock all free and lilly, clasps a roll of documents; and the Victory of Courage is in the act of struggling a serpent as she grasps a bundle of reeds, typical of the destructive union makes strength.

Regarding the monument, as the grave of a great political tribune, it takes place in the first rank of works of art of a similar class. The Irish people have shown how splendid contributory of Ireland's gratitude to O'Connell, and of the art of Foley, who unfortunately died before this finest example of his skill was completed.

BISHOP RADEMACHER.

Rev. Joseph Rademacher, for three years pastor of St. Mary's Church, Nashville, Tennessee, has been ordained Bishop of Nashville, Tennessee, on last Sunday, the 24th inst. Bishop Rademacher was born in Clinton county, Mich., Dec. 3, 1843. He was educated at St. Vincent's College, Latrobe, Pennsylvania. He was ordained at Fort Wayne by the late Bishop Luers, on Feb. 2, 1868. His first pastoral labor was on assignment to Jennings, Jackson county, and Seymour, Indiana, where he remained for seven years, he was then transferred to Tipton (1875), remaining there eighteen months. From the time he was ordained he was attached to Fort Wayne, where he labored until 1880, when he was appointed to the charge of the Catholic Church at Lafayette. He is in the prime of manhood and physical manhood—a man of pleasing address and ability.

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM—
IRELAND

A Cheering Outlook for the National Party.

NEW YORK, June 22.—A cable special from London of June 21st says: The eyes of all Irish people are turned towards Dublin Castle and Westminster. Everything seems to promise victory for the party of self-government. Irish Home Rule is to-day adopted by an over-whelming majority of the County Councils of Ireland, and Presbyterians, despite the strenuous efforts of the Government party, led by Mr. Dickson, are lined up in organization prevalent in the United States for the purpose of declaring openly Ireland free to make her own laws independent of England, and for such purpose making no distinction between Catholic and Protestant in Ireland's freedom. In Demands of Ulster, Ireland will be made through the constitutional efforts of the United States. It would labor in vain to attempt to deny the sympathy of Ireland and Russia, and such we have Ireland's freedom and Russia's freedom, the success of which, the moment, sympathy and all of all friendly nations will be with Ireland. Ireland's cause is force of arms for the attainment of their object, and the success of the proposed policy control, and as it was deemed too important a matter to allow the issue to be determined without further consideration we deferred until the next month.

Bryanglas Repudiated by His Constituents.

DUBLIN, June 20.—A dispatch from Belmond says: Bryanglas, the Tory member, has been defeated by Redmond, who is an Irish Nationalist, by a majority of 1,000 for the Parnell fund.

An Irish Member Arrested by Michael Davitt.

There has been started, within the last six months, by Michael Davitt, the Irish Land Leader, a movement, which, if it succeeds, will be a most powerful blow to the Land Leagues of Ireland. The scheme was for six months, and the Land Leagues of Ireland have succeeded in carrying out such a scheme in its entirety. Davitt's idea is that the Land Leagues of Ireland should be formed by the people

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

THEIR INCOMPREHENSIBLE DIGNITY AND PRERO(GA)TIVES.

THIRD ARTICLE.

Pius IX. of happy memory defined in the decree of the Infallible Tribunal, that the Blessed Virgin Mary was from the first instant of her conception preserved and exempt from all stain of original guilt, by grace and a special privilege of the Omnipotent, in view of the merits of Jesus Christ, the Savior of the human race. The same great Pontiff declared that Jesus Christ the Son of Mary is particularly honored by the definition and doctrine of the Immaculate Conception of Mary, since all the honor and praise that are given to the Mother redound to the Son. Theologians following the style of St. Augustin distinguish three kinds of redemption which they name respectively redemption and relaxation, redemption and rejection, redemption which Hervias's author calls redemption by the blood of the Lamb, redemption by preventing demons that wrongly claim the redemption of souls, and redemption which Scripture calls the redemption of souls. The Blessed Virgin is called by Saint Bernardine of Siena, the first-born of the Redeemer, but Jesus is the first born also of her first fruits of redemption and consequently was redeemed with redemption of redemption (Hendry). Gabriel (6th Mich. 3rd Pater) says: "Although Mary was never subject with the sin of Adam, she, however, to the number of the redeemed. Her divine Son redeemed all the children of Adam and also His own most holy Mother. But how much more sublime was the redemption of her conception than the manner of ours!

St. Augustin teaches that "there is a two-fold redemption; the one delivers from the abyss those who have fallen into it, and the other antitipates the fall and prevents it." We all were redeemed in the first way; but the Virgin Mary only was redeemed. Then we are told that the Virgin Mary was born in original sin, but that she was preserved from being afflicted with sin and that this was done by a special privilege, but she was anticipated and also relieved by her Son. Hervias, the seventh Counsel, "had a delivery; the Holy Virgin had a purgatory. Our divine Savior descend, in virtue of His infinite merits, to make the diffiparated Mary, the Mother of His most holy Mother. He redeemed her from original sin, according to a special and unique privilege, and preserved her by an extraordinary grace, says Dr. Gerbet, from the stain of original sin. The great difference which exists, is to be this difference, that in the pure and one, may be to Mary before she was born, which never was or can ever be, and which he had given loose rules to his anger. The first city is preserved unhurt and leaves no traces of struggle; the second is purified after a long and violent. Although this last is the one with our souls; even admitting that the second has been put to flight, yet it is true that he left behind Him among anything of her Mother. The plaintiff of the evil is defilled the pollution of his wickedness—he interrupted in her the pollution of every part. But on the other hand Mary was free from all the hideous consequences, because exempt from the cause which produced them; in her all is sound, all is pure, all is harmony, like in a city never called with clouds, never shaken by the tempest, but always serene and delightful. "He placed His body in the sun, so to speak, and made it, in the Virgin, a body which was never obscured by sin." St. Bernardin of Siena believes that Christ came more for the sake of rendering Mary than for all others, that "in order that His death for the redemption of humanity He honored so her, to wit, for her sake the Redeemer of the world." Cornelius Mara redoubtedly, quam pro omnibus alis. "Pius IX. Cons. 16, ch. 3, sect. 1.

God always grants favors and graces in proportion to the dignity. He loved Mary from the first moment of her conception more than He did all other creatures. He loved her, then, if He allow all the tabernacles of Jacob, that is, the habitations of the Jews, and prefer Mary to Jacob's tents, which were the patriarchs and ancestors of all the Saints, and honored the gates of Sion above

CORPUS CHRISTI.

A Picturesque Religious Pageant in Montreal.

The Streets Decorated with Pictures and Religious Emblems—Triumphal Arches—The Procession of the Host.

MONTREAL, May 26.—Next to the semi-religious festival of St. Jean Baptiste, the annual pageant of Corpus Christi is perhaps the most definitely observed by the Roman Catholic Church in Old Canada. Its celebration this year in Montreal is ruled the most imposing ever held, both in point of attendance and the magnificence of the display and decorations. This festival was instituted by Pope Urban IV., in the year 1264, and was commanded to be kept on the Thursday after the festival of the Trinity. The observance of the day is marked by grand masses in the churches and by imposing processions in which all the faithful are expected to participate. It is the one great ceremonial by which the church fixes in the minds of the people the doctrine that the body and blood of our Lord Jesus are present in elements in the bread and wine of the last supper. Nowhere among Roman Catholic communities is it more zealously observed than in the old province of Quebec. On Thursday the masses said in the numerous churches of Montreal were attended as of a very impressive character, and great preparations were thereafter made for the out-of-door procession which was to follow on Sunday. The following ode by a native poet forecasts the nature of the ceremony, which is here known as "Procession Sunday:"

The the mystic "Corpus Jesu,"
Feast of love and feast of glory,
When the sacrifice of our gentle mother,
Mother her grand commemoration
Of Christ's adorable presence hidden
In the Eucharist, in our altars.
This is why our fair queen city,
Robed in gay and festal garments,
Then her beautiful robe of flowers,
Let the green triumphal arches
Spanning all the streets of her city,
And the silken pennons floating
From her homes and her spires,
And the joy-bells loudly pealing
All this lovely scene of festival
With the sound of martial music,
Let the heart-stirring music of fifes,
By the long-drawn-out lines of soldiery,
Through the streets of old Ville Marie,
Bear witness of the home and all
Its joys.

It was announced on the previous day that the usual military mass of the day would be omitted, to give the procession greater prominence. A steady rain poured down nearly all night on Saturday, but to the surprise and delight of the people the skoda smiling morning dawned on Sunday morning, and the sun in the streets rapidly dried.

ORNAMENTING THE STREETS.

The procession was postponed till the after noon, however, and in the mean while people in the streets where the pageant was to move were busily hanging sweetest and dry earth to spread over the roadway, while all the houses on each side along the route was adorning the exterior of his or with all the evergreens, banners, streamers, religious pictures and images at his command. Where a dentism was poor or unable to procure street would lend him a set of pictures, flags and other decorations, and, as showing the tolerance and kindly feeling which prevails among the people of this city, it may be mentioned that a good many of the houses adorned were those of Protestants, and the trail in the streets rapidly dried.

ORNAMENTING THE STREETS.

The procession was postponed till the after noon, however, and in the mean while people in the streets where the pageant was to move were busily hanging sweetest and dry earth to spread over the roadway, while all the houses on each side along the route was adorning the exterior of his or with all the evergreens, banners, streamers, religious pictures and images at his command. Where a dentism was poor or unable to procure street would lend him a set of pictures, flags and other decorations, and, as showing the tolerance and kindly feeling which prevails among the people of this city, it may be mentioned that a good many of the houses adorned were those of Protestants, and the trail in the streets rapidly dried.

DECLINE OF CHRISTIANITY.

Warning Words from Cardinal Manning.

In a recent pastoral letter to the clergy and laity of the archdiocese of Westminster, Cardinal Manning dwells on what he points out as the decline of Christianity in recent years. He says:—"At a critical time the world ever mark so low as the Christian faith is sinking now, and will be now if it be the name of God be erased from its public laws. You have lately asked of those who are in our laws that none should be baptized as except those who believe that there is a Divine Lawgiver, whose law is supreme. But it seems as if we were being carried down a stream against which we cannot pe-wall and from which there is no escape; as if in a little while the public life and laws of the world will be no longer Christian and Christian, nor based upon belief in God. Other foundations for men or for nations have been in time past, and there are now where we are rushing downwards, and desire it; and many who see it with horror but with folded hands do nothing against it; and many more who see nothing, and are carried away unconsciously into a social and political state without God in the world. For the first time since the reign began it is openly rejecting God. The old world so profoundly believed in the Divine, that God was everywhere and in all things. To them even the world was God, and all things were supernatural. Now God is nowhere, and exists no longer; and the world is dead. Necessity is then laid upon us, from the least to the greatest, everywhere and in every way, to bear witness for God, in whom we live, and move, and are. In this there can be no neutrality. To be neutral among the politicians is to be traitors. The law of the land still justly punishes offenders against God and His moral law: not indeed for its offences against Him, but for its damage to society; and there is a danger that such laws should be abolished. If men libel their neighbours they may be heavily punished. If they only libel that God in Divine Redeemer we too told that no man should judge them. The Catholic faith in England is few in number; but we have only one heart and one voice in condemning those outrages on all that is Divine. We are not few only, but poor; nevertheless rich in faith, not by our merits, but by the sovereign grace of God being poor, we are mixed among the people where a belief in God, however clouded, still remains. The men of culture and the philosophers of this world claim their independence of Christian and Catholic tradition. But the people have not yet forsaken God, nor have had forsaken them. We are debtors, then, not only to our own brethren in the faith, but to all men, that we bear witness for God, for His law, and for His rights; by a faithful fulfilment of all duties of religion, by the sanctification of our household; and by labouring in word and deed, by alms and by personal service, to sustain the belief in God and in Christ Jesus, which has made our forefathers and ourselves what we are. Our brethren also are few, but they are well worn by the thousands who, Sunday by Sunday, in the Holy Mass, adore the Word made flesh and the ever blessed Trinity. Year by year we ask you to help us in founding new missions or parishes; and our need of this help continually grows more urgent.

"The truth, strength and vigor drink Dandelion Bitters.

CATHOLIC NEWS IN BRIEF.

—The French Catholics of Salem, Mass. are to have a new Church.

—Mr. F. Marion Crawford the novelist is the son of an Irishman, and a devoted Catholic.

—Right Rev. Bishop Tuigg, of Pittsburg, who has been very ill, is improving.

—Miss Kate Foran, a sister of Mr. Foran member of Congress, of Cleveland, recently made her vows as a Sister of Charity, at Cleveland.

—Wolcam from a sermon preached by Bishop Moran of New Zealand, that in one town that country, and not a considerable town, there are 5000 Irish Catholics.

—The Catholics of Indianapolis, Ind. have contributed $1,700 for the purpose of repairing the church at Lawrenceburg in the same State, which was badly injured by the flood of two months ago.

—There is a congregation of colored Catholics in this country which supports three priests, a school of four hundred children, and inside of five years has paid off a debt of ten thousand dollars.

—An intelligent and much esteemed American lady, Mrs. Alwin, of Corning, O., and her entire family, four boys and one girl, were lately received into the Catholic faith by Rev. Father O'Boylan of Corning.

—There are about 20,000 Catholics in the Washington district. Nearly every Catholic ever twelve years of age is a communicant, and there are at least 5000 children attending the several Catholic Sunday schools.

—Father Deisenberger, parish priest of Ober Ammergau, who revived the Passion Play and superintended its decennial production, has just died in the eighty-fifth year of his age.

—Father John Deblieck, one of the oldest and most distinguished members of the Order of Jesuits in the country, and for many years a leading eunciator in Jesuit schools, died in Chicago last week of cancer of the liver. He was 68 years of age.

—Louvain, Belgium, which the Condon Tablet calls "the most flourishing of our Catholic universities," had last year 1,092 registered students, the highest number ever reached, and an increase of 347 in ten years. Only 116 of the students are from foreign countries; one is American.

—The colored people of Chicago are about to organize a Catholic congregation to be called St. Augustine's. Until they have their own church, Mass will be celebrated for this new congregation in the chapel of St Mary's church Wabash Avenue.

—Wm. L. Scott, a generous citizen of Erie, Pa., made a donation, a few days ago, of $10,000 to St. Vincent's Hospital in that city. He made a donation in the form of railroad bonds, the interest only to be used for ten years, when the bonds will become the absolute property of the hospital.

—The Loyola Union, a society of Catholic young men of New York, have just secured a fine new building on 144th street. It is a three-story brick with basement. Father Malone made an eloquent address to the young men on their opening night. The society is only a year old.

FRATINGER & CO.,

CLOAK and SUIT HOUSE.

Tailor-made Jackets in Cloth.
Tailor-made Jackets in Brocade.
Tailor-made Jackets in Overmas Silk.
Tailor-made Jackets in Diagonal Silk.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Garnet.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Gray.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Cardinal.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Garnet.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Scarlet.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Claret.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Pale Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Forest Green.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Telegraph Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Crimson Strawbry.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Terra Cotta.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Shrimp Pink.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in the New Tan Color
Ladies' Satin Wahlling Shirts in Black.
Ladies' Satin Wahlling Shirts in all Colors.
Ladies' Corset Jeans.
Ladies' Kate Greenaway Ulsters.
Children's Kate Greenaway Ulsters.

Ladies' Woolen Sulie	$ 5.00
Ladies' Woolen Suits	7.00
Ladies' Flannel Suits	7.00
Ladies' Black Cashmere Suits	8.00
Ladies' Black Silk Suits	18.00
Ladies' Black Satin Suits	18.00
Ladies' Cloth Jackets, Spring Style	3.00
Ladies' Cloth Jackets, Spring Style	3.00
Ladies' Cloth Ulsters, Spring Style	5.00
Ladies' Cloth Ulsters, Spring Style	6.00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed	7.50
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed	10.00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed	12.50
Ladies' Black Mantle, Chenille Fringe	15.00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Chenille Fringe	17.50
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed	7.50
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed	10.00
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed	12.50
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed	15.00
Ladies' Brocade Paletoes, Lace Trimmed	25.00
Ladies' Brocade Paletoes, Lace Trimmed	30.00
Ladies' Satin Paletoes, Lace Trimmed	30.00
Ladies' Satin Paletoes, Lace Trimmed	35.00
Ladies' Linen Ulsters Trimmed	4.00
Ladies' Mohair Ulsters	4.50

FRATINGER & CO.,

THE LEADING CLOAK AND SUIT HOUSE,

105 KEARNY ST.

THE GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE AND THE CLERGY.

The unjust suppression of the stipends of the clergy being carried on vigorously. Thirty-two priests of the diocese of Langres are the latest victims of the Government. Many, and well refused crosby, these priests have been selected in the very poorest parts of the country, and the loss of their small stipends can with difficulty be compensated by the generosity of their flocks. The injustice of those decrees against the clergy, and the petty measures of the sort of persecution, have stirred even the apathetic Catholics of France into action, and in many places—in the department of the Drome, for instance—the inhabitants of the parishes where the stipends of the clergy have been suppressed or suspended have protested to the Minister of Justice. The Moniteur de Rome, commenting on the course of the Government says: "To be it seems that, at the present moment, other matters than a religious persecution should occupy the attention of the Government. Is it by the suppression of the salaries of Bishops and curés that the Government will restore the prestige of France abroad or win the confidence of Europe? Will it safeguard its interests in the East and the Colonies, by placing itself in open hostility with the Papacy?" But the Moniteur preaches to deaf ears.

MARRIED.

MAYLOR—O'DONNELL—In Los Angeles, May 21, by Rev. Father Verdaguer, Henry Taylor and Mary Ellen O'Donnell.

DIED.

MCARTY—In Marysville, June 18th, Mary Elizabeth, beloved wife of Daniel McCarty, aged 39 years, 10 months and 1 day.
MONAGAN—In San Jose, June 17, 1883, John Monagan, beloved husband of Mary McDonald, a native of Ireland, aged 60 years, 4 months and 15 days.
RILEY—In this city, June 19, Mrs. Anna Riley, beloved wife of Michael Riley, a native of Ireland, aged 71 years.
CONNARS—In this city, June 16, Mrs. Catherine Connars, a native of Dublin, Ireland, aged 50 years.
FORTIN—In this city, June 19, Jean Baptiste Fortin, aged 70 years, 3 months and 12 days.
Elegant Drug Store, of L. E. Blatt & Co. The above named firm have succeeded Baker & Vreeland at the elegant drug store corner Kearney and California streets. This place is prominence these gentlemen to our patronage. Their stock is complete, their drugs are pure and prices exceedingly reasonable, as they do not deal in adulterated drugs. Attention to prescriptions; they also carry a full line of perfumeries and other articles essential to the toilet. We wish the new firm success.

—The National Surgical Institute, 319 Bush Street, in the Western Division of the N. S. Institute of Indianapolis and Philadelphia, which is so celebrated for the cure of all deformities, famous, disease of the spine, hip, knee, and all limbs crooked limbs, club feet, paralysis, piles and fistula. Call and see patients, and consultation free to cripples. Them Reference given and circulars, sent if desired.

—Dandelion Bitters regulate the stomach and is the best tonic.

—Send a postal card to Rev. A. A. Lambing, 48 Third ave., Pittsburg, Pa., for a copy of his interesting pamphlet, "Mary, First Sister of the Wilderness." It contains a picture of the Blessed Virgin in English, Italian or German to any person, free, on application.

SOAKS.—We would call the attention of our readers to the fact that the well-known firm of Shorboro & Co., Wholesale and Retail Grocers, No. 201 Washington street, are selling Wells Soaps for preserving at nine pounds for One Dollar. Give them a call.

Corporation Notice.—Notice is hereby given that the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco, at their regular meeting held on June 18, 1883, passed the following resolution, to wit:

Resolution No. 3,000 (New Series).

Resolved, That the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to provide for the lighting of the streets of the City and County of San Francisco," approved March 24, 1883, and the amendatory Act thereto, approved March 24, 1883, and the amendatory Act thereto, approved March 24, 1883, and the amendatory Act thereto,

Poetry.

VISION OF ST. STANISLAUS.

Drine be her to boyhood's tender years,
No gentle hand to soothe his throbbing brow,
Mid strangers there he pass'd the livelong hours,
Nor mother, sister, friend—he sorrow now.
Wide slumber, trembling limbs and feeble breath,
He lags the blast "Vitatum" are death.

And well they great this dying boon to him!
(So I ween) (Swan in error's path he trod,)
Now—that his youthful eyes are fast growing dim,
They will not—cannot keep from him his God.
Mark the sudden green that lights his faded eye,
A happy thought dawns on his clouded mind—
St. Barbara—his own loved saint will not deny
His last request. She has been ever kind
To all who sought, with confidence, her aid—
He too, Stanislaus has now—or is her help despaired.

Lo! unseen aids his child-like, earnest prayer,
Then light celestial that pure chamber filled,
With which no earthly radiance may compare.
How that young heart with wordless rapture thrill'd,
His related Patroness to him drawn near,
And angels two he saw with vision clear.

What holy fervor does the boy-saint feel!
Ecstatic joy bear to him the Host divine—
Ecstatic looks alone his joy reveal,
While tears of love down his pale cheeks he shine!
What now to him are all those trials past
Has beautiful—his treasure, he will give
Jesus repose in his young heart and grave.
Our Lady comes with the complete the bliss,
Her benediction his bedeck in perfect peace—
For Stanislaus a precious moment this—
When God and saints bestow their choicest gifts,
In tender tones, direct his future course.

Rising from the scrub whereon he feebly lay
Leaning on his mother, he, with joy, exclaim'd,
"Mamma, I have found a vocation for my life!
I will be a Jesuit! Oh! I feel it in my heart!
To His divine service his future life to give,
I'm bound to be a saint—and for Heaven to live.

Ah! little dreamed the Jesuit novice-boy
That Mary's Feast—her sort Assumption day—
Should bring to him a joyous event of undoing
And angels bear his spotless soul away.
Christ's Vicar hastened to his bedside
Clasping childish he chosen "the better part."

Literary Miscellany.

Filial Love Conquers.

"Then you will not take this silver from my Mother? It belongs to my boy, blessed husband."

Then spoke Widow Hunter to the minister of the Gospel, who had brought him this little remnant of her former possession. "Take it, Sir, and use it in payment for the rent I owe for my cabin. I have had a hard time; the cold has been so severe that I could not work.

Mr. Webster, a little church old man, looked down into the faded face of the poor old woman, and shook his head in a long grey coat, and drawing out the silver dollars, and shook his head with his little grey hair, musing on might have been done for poor widowed women, left to struggle alone, behind the appearance of the little room which owned the name of home, in a broken down cabin.

"I will give you five dollars for that dollar," said the old man, at last, "and I'll be ready in two weeks to pay the rent. Keep the other dollar for the old man's sake, and thoughtful refund and gave her stolen money to young widow and her father's sake, who left me without a parting word, and left me alone, with the little child, and left me alone, with the little child, and left me alone, with the little child

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1883.

Topics of the Times.

They have a "Gammon" school of theology in the Methodist University at Atlanta, Georgia. The name is certainly very appropriate, inasmuch as "gammon" is defined by Webster as "humbug," and there is an "overwhelming amount of 'gammon'" in Protestant theology!

—The new Catholic Diocese of Grand Rapids, of which Bishop Richter has charge, contains twelve religious institutions, seventeen parochial schools two hospitals, one orphan asylum, forty-one stations, thirty three missions, thirty-six parishes, and thirty-four priests. The pupils in the schools number 2,947. The Catholic population is about 45,000.

—"The Catholic Citizen, of Milwaukee, edited by Father M. McDonald, formerly of that Archdiocese, "the Dom Bosco of this country," Father McDonald has purchased 5,000 acres of land in Murray county, Minnesota, and on which he is establishing the Home of the Sacred Heart, where the orphaned children of the West will be received and educated in the virtues necessary for forming life, hardier being brought up in the practices of the faith.

—We have the authority of the Western Watchman for saying that the Pope has expressed a willingness to cooperate in spiritual matters with the Congregation to supervisional the interests of the Church in Ireland. This means simply that Rome does not wish to make mischief with regard to the state of ecclesiastical affairs in Ireland; nor does she wish to pass upon the grave questions arising in the country in a cursory and hap-hazard manner. A Roman sub-committee in Irish affairs means representation for Ireland at the Papal Court.

—Gen. Charles Ewing died on the 20th inst. at Washington, D. C. General Ewing is the brother-in-law, representative Catholic of Washington City, and for several years past he had devoted his time and influence in furtherance of the interests of the Catholic Indians of the Indian Missions, and it is a pleasure due to his efforts that the present commissioner of the Commissioner of the Indian Bureau were selected. He was born in Ohio, and was a near relative of Mrs. Gen. Sherman.

—At a spiritual meeting, recently held in Kansas City, Bishop Hogan presiding, it is reported that hereafter all marriages shall take place at Mass. This is a remarkably good Diocesan regulation, as there is no doubt but that many, every year, by swords of non-Catholics who visit churches for the purpose of curiosity, and who evince no respect for the Real Presence. The proper way to give the Sacrament is to receive it in the institution of the Church at the nuptial Mass.

—A recent editorial in the N. Y. Sun referred severely on the Young Men's Christian Association, which is in full swing in this city. It called their headquarters "a manufactory of cant, always efficient, but especially obnoxious when death is by question." The same article said that the public generally were prejudiced against the concern, that some merchants will not employ any one who belongs to it, that young men of the better sort do not associate with its members, and that the clergy of the various denominations would, if they could be induced to give an opinion, be found to have the same idea.

—Father Beobet, a missionary priest in China, was lately beheaded by the natives, and Cardinal Jacobini has written a letter to M. Challemel Lacour, the French Minister of State, demanding that the French Government shall protect the lives at least of Catholic missionaries in Tonquin, which over the sea owing to France, may be. The letter suggested by the decapitation by the natives of Father Beobet The Cardinal points out the danger to the best interests of the Catholic Church, and of religion in general, of carrying on a war-like policy in a country which was in a peaceful condition.

—Some idea of the religious indifference and disgusting liability which abounds in Protestant circles may be gleaned from the fact that a preacher writing to the Christian Advocate of this city, from the Sacramento Valley, says: "It can ride for twenty miles, through a thickly settled country, by some of the best farms in the valley, and not pass a house where there is family prayer." If such is the case in the country, "where people are considered as generally given to building what the preachers would call "special lives," what must it be in the cities, where the wrestle of the devil and dollar getting church the attention of the sentinels! Verily, Protestant "decay" is becoming too apparent to be denied.

—Miss Kate Ewing, a young woman of New Orleans, a relative of some of the best-known citizens, have petitioned the Board of Education to make the teaching of sewing to girls between 10 and 13 compulsory in the primary schools. A plan of teaching accompanies the petition and provides that after attaining a certain proficiency the children may bring their own work, from home, and go in the right direction through it hands backward to the method employed in the construction of our grandmothers. The tendency of our modern education is too often away from home; it trains the brain, but does not make housewives. But as these good women point out, sewing is of no less good seem from the to the mother of a poor family than arithmetic, or geography, or history.

—Statistics recently collected at the Eastern Pennsylvania Penitentiary show that of 780 young men received there under 21 years of age, 750 had no trades. There was plenty of education among them, as 572 were graduates of schools. Such startling figures as these are an unanswerable argument in favor of manual training schools. They show that public schools are turning out boys who are not prepared for any occupation or any form of useful manual labor, and that mere book education is no protection to society against crime. These boys, unfitted for any kind of manual work, naturally drift into idleness and consequences they can find, and there is nothing easier than drifting into no occupation, and thence into crime.

A Little Light for an Oakland Luminary.

Light for All is the name of an Oakland publication which claims to be devoted to "the promulgation of all scientific religious facts," or, in plainer language, this periodical represents that race of "cranks" who are opposed to Spiritism, Free Love, Woman's Rights, and all the modern infidel "reforms" which rage uncontrolled through the minds of men and women who revel in such immoral infatuations. We never knew such a shameful publication existed in California until somebody sent us a number last week, in which we had two scurrilous articles devoted to the Mormons, the Catholic Church, and kindred other matters, upon which we intend to shed a few rays of light, so as to enable the male and female editors of the Oakland luminary to discern how remarkably incompetent they are to enlighten their readers regarding Catholic affairs.

Spiritism being one of the Satanic agencies, we can readily understand how easy it is for the devil's representatives to imitate the "Father of Lies" in anything they may concerning the Catholic Church; then, for instance, we are told by Old Nick's Headlight that "the Papal power at Rome was the only Government to encourage the destruction of the republic by recognizing the Southern Confederacy." This is a favorite calumny with ignorant, ill-informed, or malicious people whose light is reflected from Lucifer, and for whose instruction we desire to state such facts as will show how utterly unreliable they are in publishing this malignant calumny.

During the progress of the Civil War in this land Pope Pius IX. addressed letters to Archbishop Hughes, of New York, and Archbishop Odin, of New Orleans, counseling them to use their influence to bring about "peace and good-will" among the people of the Northern and Southern States, in order to stop the fratricidal warfare then raging in America. This was an act of charity on the part of the Sovereign Pontiff, whose heart bled to see such carnage among a Christian people. Jefferson Davis, then President of the Southern Confederacy, having heard of this fatherly act on the part of the Vicar of Christ, wrote to Pope Pius IX., under date of September 25, 1863, thanking him for his kindly efforts to stop the rain, bloodshed, and general devastation caused by the Civil War, and, in recognition of this act of charity, addressed a letter to Jefferson Davis, couched in the following Christian language:

"We have just received, with all suitable ceremonies, the letter addressed by you to place in our hands your letter dated 24 September last. We have learned from those who experienced when we received them, the sentiments of gratitude you were inspired to express to us, in the name of your people, for our paternal solicitude, and our ardent desire to see the blessings of peace succeed the calamities of war, and fraternal charity succeed the fatal fury of civil strife. Thank your people, then, for the sentiments of which we have to say, in fulfilment of our pastoral duty, we have long since, in our humble prayers, asked of the Father of Mercies, the end of this fatal Civil War which has brought so many misfortunes on your country. Let your people may obtain peace and concord, and a fraternal, cordially loving union, such as it is desirable to be one that you, therefore, and

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN.

HER INCOMPREHENSIBLE DIGNITY AND SUBLIME PREROGATIVES.

FOURTH ARTICLE.

Father Bagnet gives in substance: We, with the Blessed of the Church, and the Saints in glory, which Mary received the moment she conceived the Eternal Word, in the order of the plenitude of superabundance. Those were given at that blessed moment in germ of grace which cannot be adequately expressed. Such we have probably in the Holy Ghost, Mary, Mother because the fecundity power of the Most High, that the fruit of her womb, conceived in her immaculate womb, that He took under the operation of the Holy Ghost, a material body from the very blood that flowed in her veins. From that moment Mary in a very high manner entered into the possession of the great of which the Savior had been in the Mother. He began to show in a certain manner with Him the relations between God and man; relations begun from that moment to be her of life as real as that of Jesus Christ; she conceived from that moment her proper and vocation with the mystery of the Word Incarnate, when she was carrying in her chaste womb, to bind the Heavens of Divinity to mortals. Her whole thought was to have Jesus constantly near to and in contemplation of which Mary, in the fullness of grace, for herself, and the one full to us, for which the Holy of Holies, the Sanctuary of the Most High, for the fecundity of sanctity and of eternal every Mary, the Mother of Jesus, Christ, the Mother of Heaven, which continues ought we not to be in Mary, the Mother of Jesus Christ, the Mother of our Redeemer? Mary is the Mother of Jesus Christ, and Jesus Christ is our Father by the Holy Ghost, and the Holy Ghost, which the was conceiving

OUR SCHOOLS.

Commencement Exercises in Catholic Colleges, Schools and Academies.

[CONCLUDED FROM THIRD PAGE.]

NOTRE DAME COLLEGE, MARYSVILLE.

The annual commencement exercises of Notre Dame College, Marysville, under charge of the Sisters of Notre Dame, took place on the 22nd ult. The Appeal says that relatives and invited guests occupied all the available seats in the hall. It was beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Manogue, of Green Valley, presided in the absence of Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Connell, who was in the East. The exercises began at 9:30 and closed at 12 noon. The pupils, most of them grouped in the front, occupied the best portion of the hall. Most of them were little girls attending the day school of the institution. The number of pupils in the school during the past year was 150. The convent chapel, a surprisingly small affair, contained the audience numbering about 300, the majority being ladies, and the school of 40 boarders occupied the front seats.

Entrance March, piano, Misses T. Lydon, M. Mahoney, C. O'Brien and M. Doyle; Entrance Song, "Welcome," Greetings, Scenic; Loves Offering, Scenic; "Ye Angels Bright," Hanscom; Entrance Address, Miss Ella Bradley; M. Mc-Cann, Miss Ella Bradley, Miss Lizzie Fennell; Music on Harp, Miss Mamie Sweeney

Poetry.

WHEN PROUD OF DEAR OLD IRELAND, THOUGH POOR SHE IS TO DAY.

AIR :—"THE WEARING OF THE GREEN."

We hear old England often praised, her justice is so great,
How rich she is in wealth, my boys, how powerful her state.
But if she were, ay, twice as rich, so all her people say,
Will rather have old Ireland, boys, though poor she is to-day.

They well may boast of fertile, while they're boasting their power,
They should not boast of justice, while such wrong we still endure;
But with their so-called justice, and with all their rich display,
Will rather have old Ireland, boys, though poor she is to-day.

They also boast of chivalry, for frequently we hear
On Turkey and Blackamoore they drop the sympathetic tear;
Yet over Erin's wrongs they laugh, make merry, and are gay,
Will rather have old Ireland, boys, though sad she is to-day.

When great famine brought the land with all its horrors vast,
The government in sore our poor a farthing scarce cast;
Then let John Bull talk of charity, and all they give away,
Will have old Ireland, boys, though poor she is to-day.

They are good and very pious, for that take they to pray,
Yet they have old Satan hard at work, and he is right in their way;
Let them talk what they think best, boys, they know what we have to say,
Will rather have old Ireland, boys, she never went astray.

Yes, we have old Ireland, boys, she never went astray,
Still, she is heated to the heavens with a sacrificial fire,
Illuminated look on his bright face,
Will rather have old Ireland, boys, though poor she is to-day.

Let daughters, too, are richer, their virtue more esteem,
Yet we have our Erin's daughters, boys, they are more precious gem;
We prize our fair old Ireland, boys, though poor she is to-day.

We helped to make them what they are; their wealth we gave them
Our brothers, sys, and sisters, too, in felon jail, they contain
By emotion and by bankrupt their debt to us remain.

Well rather have old Ireland, boys, though poor she is to-day.

But Erin's time will surely come—its heaven's decree,
Nation, though she may be poor, yet still she should be free;
If free the were to-morrow, dwell in glory's bright array,
We could not love her more, boys, than we do to-day.

—United Ireland.

Literary Miscellany

Farmer Gregory's Reform.

"Betty, Betty! Mahlinkie Gregory, where are you? Why don't you answer me? What do I want? I want you to hurry right down stairs and go to the store for a pail of water for the tea-kettle! Here it is—go to the copper tank—the water is coming from the hydrant! Why, Betty, I've almost gone out, we need cold no water in the house, and this blessed, hot weather! Why, Betty, I've been hot all about the room, while my hand is aching so if it would burn! Here, Tommy, take the pail, and be a good boy, like a good boy, and go quick to tell your mother a fire; I've been waiting!

Betty, a young, rosy looking girl of fourteen, with a pleasant face, and a good, kind, but very thoughtful the room: "Yes ma'ma, mother, I forgot all about the water. Mary Greene has gone, and I was just going to do it, but I'm very in a hurry, for Mary Greene has gone, and it was just going to be a-dying, and I'm to wait for her, and I'm sure I'm very sorry, and I'm very much obliged to you, mother, I forgot all about the water.

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1883.

ECCLESIASTICAL EDUCATION.

Circular from His Grace Most Rev. Archbishop Alemany, O. P.

TO THE CATHOLIC YOUNG MEN OF CALIFORNIA:

My Dear Young Friends—You are already aware that, while Catholics everywhere, we have in California several excellent Colleges, such as those of Santa Clara and St. Ignatius, under the care of Fathers, and those of St. Mary's and the Sacred Heart, conducted by the Christian Brothers, besides those in Oakland, Sacramento, and elsewhere. But you may not be fully aware of all the facilities which these institutions afford. Hitherto the pupils in these houses may establish more favored the most of their long hours and youthful mental energies to the acquirement of the knowledge necessary to fit them for the legal or medical profession, or for mercantile pursuits. A new and noble field is now opened up to you and to which I would beg to call your attention, and that is a profession for the magistracy, and, of course, a knowledge of the law leading not the body, but the soul; of pleading not for temporal, but eternal interests; usually, the proposal of the condemnation of souls.

It is possible to conduct business in an honest manner; it is impossible to do all very properly without suffering humanity with medical aid; and some lawyers discharge their duties not only with ability, but also with conscientiousness; but it is explicit of knowing the superiority of mind over matter, of the soul over the body, and of heaven over earth, to be able to understand and that the profession of the clergyman, if duly adhered to, is, of all, the most noble and most honorable.

The golden lips of St. Chrysostom did not hesitate to declare that this profession "was preferred to the office on earth, it appertains to the order of heavenly things." And St. Paul, writing unto divine inspiration, affirms that the priests of the New Law are God's coadjutors (1 Cor. 1: 10). For to the eternal welfare of men depends on God's grace, on, according to the same apostle, the dispensing of those divine blessings and supernatural gifts, on such ministers as are empowered from the Eternal Father by the Redeemer of Holy Order.

And who can tell the vast number of infants who, overtaken by a premature death, these ministers of God, by means of the holy Sacrament of Baptism, have secured to the angels of Heaven? Who can calculate the very many youthful minds lighted up by them with the gospel of Christ and set on the road to eternal life? Who can measure the abundance secured, the consolidations of, mental, moral, and spiritual, which have been wrought by their gentle, paternal, and authoritative administrations? How many, who, after having wandered, through the world, have been, at the end of their earthly course, placed by them, in the way that leads to life eternal? Surely, such duties are, in comparison, more the salutary of angels than the holy office of the priesthood.

But in order to be properly qualified to perform such duties, it is necessary to make a course of studies in the various branches of educational knowledge, in which, unfortunately, you are not well versed by able professors. It was for that purpose, as you are aware, that last year I established a College in this city, and, I am happy to say, it has been, in a measure, successful and opened in the wholesome climate and beautiful valley of the Mission. It is, in the Western Hemisphere, Academic and Moral Theology, and other analogous sciences are taught by able and experienced professors.

It is, however, requisite, before being admitted into the Seminary, that applicants, besides having a good knowledge of the English, of the Latin, the English branches, should have acquired a knowledge of the Greek, and especially of the Latin, and, and it is to this, I beg, in particular, that I would call your attention; namely, that in order to facilitate the latter studies, and to place a beginner at the top of the classes on his reach of all, besides the usual provisions for this purpose, I have, in the College of Santa Clara and St. Mary's, the Christian Brothers, in their unexpurgated zeal in the cause of religion, have made a special course of Latin, and have established a special fund for such studies both in St. Mary's and the Sacred Heart Colleges to this city, in both of which, and in Santa Clara, the pupils are boarders, living at home with their parents, or boarding with friends or relatives, can secure, as day scholars, the advantages which, in other times, they could not. Thomas' Seminary. The special class for Latin and Latin, above alluded to, will open in St. Mary's and the Sacred Heart Colleges early in August next.

In view of these excellent arrangements, by which, in comparatively prepared studies are brought within the reach of all, I would ever much young men to find themselves called by Almighty God to this high vocation, to avail themselves of the advantages thus placed in their hands. I would, in a more elaborate way, address you concerning anything that ever transpired since the inauguration of the Christian era then that contained in the Bulletin of the 24 inst. under the caption of "Three Civilizations." It is consoling to reflect—when we read such articles in the daily press—that the evangelical medium through which they reach the public prevents them from exercising as much evil influence upon the minds of those who read them as their author desirs. The majority of people do not "read and inwardly digest" in this age. They skim over a book, or they skip through the columns of their daily paper at lightning speed, which leaves no impression save that which is superficial and very slight. We say we are glad of this, because there is so much ill-digested fact and ill-digested information in the daily newspapers of our day that people who read them would become in time regular encyclopedias of error.

Take the "Three Civilizations" of the Bulletin, for instance, and what does it prove when analyzed? Why, if we are to believe the writer in question, the Spanish Christian missionaries were monsters of iniquity when compared with the pagans they came to convert! Is this historically true? Assuredly not, and the Bulletin was guilty of throwing a sop to Cerberus—at the expense of truth—in saying so. The "American public"—as diurnal journalists are fond of naming their readers—expect their "favorite" paper to furnish them just such matter as suits their prejudiced palates, and the Bulletin, like every other daily dependent upon the public, is thereby forced to ignore the truth of history and to draw up its editorial ideas in the fantastic garb of falsehood. This is, in great measure, the mission of the American daily press upon all topics wherein the Catholic Church, or its missionaries, are especially concerned, or in cases where the truth concerning dogmas or divines would not be pleasing to the prejudiced body palept "the reading public."

The situation of the Bulletin, and papers of the same class, reminds me of a little Shylock here picted recently by Mr. John Swinton, a well-known New York journalist, who thus sketched its true character in the conclusion of the response to the toast—"The Independent press:"

"There is no such thing in America as an "Independent Press," unless it is out in some 2nd country towns. You are all slaves. You know it and I know it. There is not one of you that dares to express an honest opinion. If you express it, you would know beforehand that it would never appear in print. I am paid $150 for keeping honest opinions out of the paper I am connected with. Others of you are paid like sums, or pay for doing similar things. If I should allow honest opinions to be printed in one issue of my paper, I would be like Ochiel before twenty four hours. My occupation would be gone. The man who would be so foolish as to write honest opinions would be on the street seeking for a job of work. The business of a New York journalist is to distort truth, to lie flat, to slander, to lick the feet and to bow the knee to Mammon, and to sell his country and his race for his daily bread, for what he does for same—his salary. You know this, and I know it, and what I know to be true, is that "Independent Press." We are all the tools and vassals of rich men behind the scenes. We are jumped jackies. They pull the string and we dance. Our time, our talents, our lives, our manhood are all the property of rich men. We are intellectual prostitutes."

This pen-picture may not be flattering, but it has the stamp of truth on every lineament, and we know, from long experience, that his description of the duplicity of the daily press is by no means confined to the limits of Manhattan. Such being the case we should be very cautious in the reading of journals such as the Bulletin, and we should be on our guard against the poison of falsehood which they contain.

These expressions of this Irish priest exhibit a degree of inhumanity that we could scarcely believe Irish landlords to be guilty of. It is a crime of the darkest hue to deprive the poor, suffering, struggling, and beggared Irish tenantry of the fruits of the earth produced from seed procured by money sent to the Prelates and priests of Ireland by benevolent people in America. Then it is that these tyrants turn the very charity extended to their poor victims to their own benefit; then they steal the seed others have sown, they reap the fruits of crops they never assisted in preparing, and pocket the proceeds of what they have purchased from public charity!

Can such cruel monsters possess Christian hearts! Is it possible for charity to dwell in the breasts of such barbarous tyrants! The poor people who are their intended victims have been kept from famine and death through American charity, in which California has been a generous contributor. The landlords are their tenants dying before their eyes for want of the necessaries of life, yet neither they nor the remorseless Government they obey, or pretend, ever gave even "a cup of cold water" to moisten the parched lips of the livid, famine-stricken Irish peasant-farmers! These cold, cruel, and calculating landlords hold their time for the purpose of pounding down upon their impoverished victims at a season when common Christianity should have dictated the sentiment of mercy to the poor people instead of increasing their misery by depriving them of property derived from sources of charity.

The vilenessof Irish landlordism has been hitherto well ventilated in these columns, but they have reached a lower depth of degradation, by this act of wanton cruelty, than we ever imagined even such soulless men could be guilty of, and with Father McFadden, we, too, protest against this outrage in the name of those generous people of California who have contributed towards the fund for the relief of the Irish tenant-farmers, wronged, oppressed, and impoverished by means of the barbarous Christian treatment they received at the hands of a lay Journey whose crimson dyed sins cry to Heaven for vengeance.

The "Bulletin" on the Spanish Missions.

There has been a great deal of "romance" written recently concerning Spanish history, but we have never yet encountered a more elaborate array of arrant falsehoods concerning anything that ever transpired since the inauguration of the Christian era than that contained in the Bulletin of the 24 inst. under the caption of "Three Civilizations." It is consoling to reflect—when we read such articles in the daily press—that the evangelical medium through which they reach the public prevents them from exercising as much evil influence upon the minds of those who read them as their author desirs. The majority of people do not "read and inwardly digest" in this age. They skim over a book, or they skip through the columns of their daily paper at lightning speed, which leaves no impression save that which is superficial and very slight. We say we are glad of this, because there is so much ill-digested fact and ill-digested information in the daily newspapers of our day that people who read them would become in time regular encyclopedias of error.

Take the "Three Civilizations" of the Bulletin, for instance, and what does it prove when analyzed? Why, if we are to believe the writer in question, the Spanish Christian missionaries were monsters of iniquity when compared with the pagans they came to convert! Is this historically true? Assuredly not, and the Bulletin was guilty of throwing a sop to Cerberus—at the expense of truth—in saying so. The "American public"—as diurnal journalists are fond of naming their readers—expect their "favorite" paper to furnish them just such matter as suits their prejudiced palates, and the Bulletin, like every other daily dependent upon the public, is thereby forced to ignore the truth of history and to draw up its editorial ideas in the fantastic garb of falsehood. This is, in great measure, the mission of the American daily press upon all topics wherein the Catholic Church, or its missionaries, are especially concerned, or in cases where the truth concerning dogmas or divines would not be pleasing to the prejudiced body palept "the reading public."

The situation of the Bulletin, and papers of the same class, reminds me of a little Shylock here picted recently by Mr. John Swinton, a well-known New York journalist, who thus sketched its true character in the conclusion of the response to the toast—"The Independent press:"

"There is no such thing in America as an "Independent Press," unless it is out in some 2nd country towns. You are all slaves. You know it and I know it. There is not one of you that dares to express an honest opinion. If you express it, you would know beforehand that it would never appear in print. I am paid $150 for keeping honest opinions out of the paper I am connected with. Others of you are paid like sums, or pay for doing similar things. If I should allow honest opinions to be printed in one issue of my paper, I would be like Ochiel before twenty four hours. My occupation would be gone. The man who would be so foolish as to write honest opinions would be on the street seeking for a job of work. The business of a New York journalist is to distort truth, to lie flat, to slander, to lick the feet and to bow the knee to Mammon, and to sell his country and his race for his daily bread, for what he does for same—his salary. You know this, and I know it, and what I know to be true, is that "Independent Press." We are all the tools and vassals of rich men behind the scenes. We are jumped jackies. They pull the string and we dance. Our time, our talents, our lives, our manhood are all the property of rich men. We are intellectual prostitutes."

Inhuman Robbery by Irish Landlords.

Landlord rapacity in Ireland has reached a depth of meanness which classifies this gang of greedy cormorants with the worst oppressors of the poor in ancient or modern days. The tenant-farmers of Shglocka have been guilty of it to seize the harvest of the poor hungry tenant farmers who have been supplied with seed by means of American charity. Rev. Jas. McFadden, of Hunbog, Donegal, reveals the heartlessness of these men who grind the faces of the poor after the manner of the most infamous tyrannies. Writing on this latest phase of landlordism, this clergyman says:

"To make an almost insupportable state of things still more desperate, a tenantcow, greedy landlords are coming down swoop on poor tenants, for a year and a half's rent. God forgive them—they are doing a great thing—God no sojourn that—an impossible thing—and avenge society. I planted the crops, I provided Ireland to the best contributions sources of the Land League, the charity money of Donegal. Every one should cry out against such robbery. Let every man, woman, and child in Ireland, under cover of law, the sacred, very distinctly show ground. The potatoes in a patch by the Society of Friends, who planted them; the potatoes from the valiant Island of Inishbofin, Mr. Maxwell planted them. The potatoes and seals supplied by the Irish people subscribed by the lovers of the poor, are there. In the name of all these, in the name of charity, and in the name of the Omnipotent God of Charity, I protest against landlords coming in to seize on all of the fruits of my labors, and to down my poor people to unending poverty. To the benefactors of Clerran's Fort and Glencolmcille I have supplied seed to the amount of £20. I have been undertaking the aid of the inhabitants by relief there last December. I have a present grant on there a system of employment, by which every family is it, having say three acres to do work, is entitled to 14 shillings weekly dole of from two to four stones of Indian meal. The recent Land Act is utterly useless for poor small farmers. Let us hope that this dismally dark hour is the harbinger of an early dawn."

These expressions of this Irish priest exhibit a degree of inhumanity that we could scarcely believe Irish landlords to be guilty of. It is a crime of the darkest hue to deprive the poor, suffering, struggling, and beggared Irish tenantry of the fruits of the earth produced from seed procured by money sent to the Prelates and priests of Ireland by benevolent people in America. Then it is that these tyrants turn the very charity extended to their poor victims to their own benefit; then they steal the seed others have sown, they reap the fruits of crops they never assisted in preparing, and pocket the proceeds of what they have purchased from public charity!

Can such cruel monsters possess Christian hearts! Is it possible for charity to dwell in the breasts of such barbarous tyrants! The poor people who are their intended victims have been kept from famine and death through American charity, in which California has been a generous contributor. The landlords are their tenants dying before their eyes for want of the necessaries of life, yet neither they, nor the remorseless Government they obey, or pretend, ever gave even "a cup of cold water" to moisten the parched lips of the livid, famine-stricken Irish peasant-farmers! These cold, cruel, and calculating landlords hold their time for the purpose of pounding down upon their impoverished victims at a season when common Christianity should have dictated the sentiment of mercy to the poor people instead of increasing their misery by depriving them of property derived from sources of charity.

The vileness of Irish landlordism has been hitherto well ventilated in these columns, but they have reached a lower depth of degradation, by this act of wanton cruelty, than we ever imagined even such soulless men could be guilty of, and with Father McFadden, we, too, protest against this outrage in the name of those generous people of California who have contributed towards the fund for the relief of the Irish tenant-farmers, wronged, oppressed, and impoverished by means of the barbarous Christian treatment they received at the hands of a lay Journey whose crimson-dyed sins cry to Heaven for vengeance.

The "Bulletin" on the Spanish Missions.

There has been a great deal of "romance" written recently concerning Spanish history, but we have never yet encountered a more elaborate array of arrant falsehoods concerning anything that ever transpired since the inauguration of the Christian era than that contained in the Bulletin of the 24 inst. under the caption of "Three Civilizations." It is consoling to reflect—when we read such articles in the daily press—that the evangelical medium through which they reach the public prevents them from exercising as much evil influence upon the minds of those who read them as their author desirs. The majority of people do not "read and inwardly digest" in this age. They skim over a book, or they skip through the columns of their daily paper at lightning speed, which leaves no impression save that which is superficial and very slight. We say we are glad of this, because there is so much ill-digested fact and ill-digested information in the daily newspapers of our day that people who read them would become in time regular encyclopedias of error.

Take the "Three Civilizations" of the Bulletin, for instance, and what does it prove when analyzed? Why, if we are to believe the writer in question, the Spanish Christian missionaries were monsters of iniquity when compared with the pagans they came to convert! Is this historically true? Assuredly not, and the Bulletin was guilty of throwing a sop to Cerberus—at the expense of truth—in saying so. The "American public"—as diurnal journalists are fond of naming their readers—expect their "favorite" paper to furnish them just such matter as suits their prejudiced palates, and the Bulletin, like every other daily dependent upon the public, is thereby forced to ignore the truth of history and to draw up its editorial ideas in the fantastic garb of falsehood. This is, in great measure, the mission of the American daily press upon all topics wherein the Catholic Church, or its missionaries, are especially concerned, or in cases where the truth concerning dogmas or divines would not be pleasing to the prejudiced body palept "the reading public."

The situation of the Bulletin, and papers of the same class, reminds me of a little Shylock here picted recently by Mr. John Swinton, a well-known New York journalist, who thus sketched its true character in the conclusion of the response to the toast—"The Independent press:"

"There is no such thing in America as an "Independent Press," unless it is out in some 2nd country towns. You are all slaves. You know it and I know it. There is not one of you that dares to express an honest opinion. If you express it, you would know beforehand that it would never appear in print. I am paid $150 for keeping honest opinions out of the paper I am connected with. Others of you are paid like sums, or pay for doing similar things. If I should allow honest opinions to be printed in one issue of my paper, I would be like Ochiel before twenty four hours. My occupation would be gone. The man who would be so foolish as to write honest opinions would be on the street seeking for a job of work. The business of a New York journalist is to distort truth, to lie flat, to slander, to lick the feet and to bow the knee to Mammon, and to sell his country and his race for his daily bread, for what he does for same—his salary. You know this, and I know it, and what I know to be true, is that "Independent Press." We are all the tools and vassals of rich men behind the scenes. We are jumped jackies. They pull the string and we dance. Our time, our talents, our lives, our manhood are all the property of rich men. We are intellectual prostitutes."

THE MONITOR.
WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1883.

RELIEF FUNDS ACKNOWLEDGED.

THANKS FROM CANON BOURKE.

CHARLEMONTS, Ireland, June 4th, 1883.

TO MR. PATRICK KEELY, Napa City, Cal.:

Sir—It is now the 14th day since we received the $1,000 sent by you from Theodore Kelly, of San Francisco, for the relief of the Irish National Leagues. He desires that the money should be applied to the relief of tenants who have arrears of rent for three years or more, and who have paid from three to five years rent, in proportion, in my opinion, most in the other large parishes will be likely given to the clergy by the end of the week.

The latter, I have received of fifty tenants, who have paid half the rent, or more, in proport

MARY.

THE GLORIOUS NAME OF THE INCOMPARABLE VIRGIN.

The Mysterious Book!

Blessed and adored be the Eternal God for having published this Book! Filled with mystery, this book that the angels desired to see, and that man was ignorant to read. This book was written with the pen of the Holy Ghost, according to that of Luke, "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee and the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee." St. John Damascene expresses this idea most beautifully when he styles "Mary the new Book, where author is God the Father, whose doctrine is the word—the Wisdom of God, and whose pen is the Holy Ghost overshadowing." Cujus Inventio Deus Pater, Cujus doctrina Verbum Sapientia Dei, Cujus Calamus Spiritus Sanctus. (Orat. I. de Nativit.) And what does this Sublime Book contain written in it? What no created intellect can ever fully fathom! It contains this most wonderful declaration: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us." "The Virgin Mary alone," says St. Epiphanius, "is the book of the prophecy of Isaiah." Cornelius a Lapide, "Mary is the Sacred Volume, there is nothing that you do not contain! Mary alone is the sealed book of the library of Alexandria, in which Ptolemy Philadelphus the king of Egypt, had treasured up 40,000 books; let it be added, too, about the inestimable treasure, that this book collected 72,000 volumes; let it no more tell us of the volumes of the Ottoman Sibyl which she prefers to sale at the most extravagant price to the Emperor Augustus. This wonderful and heavenly Book of which we are speaking surpasses all others, for it contains ineffable things! Hear the Blessed Jordan of Saxony describing it: St. "Grand." says he, "is this Book, both by reason of the dignity of the Mother, and because of the magnitude of the things it contains." Cluniac of Mary, even perhaps it is not an attempt to explain the Mysteries of Mary, but to read from it, for you a few more passages. We assure you that our country hearts and hearts, the Bernards, the Ouynaudons, the Ambrosses, the Bonaventures, the Anselms, the Dalgaisons, the Bonaventures, the Thomas, the Blessings, the Suarezes, and other sacred doctors, sweet and loving servants of the Blessed Mother do so. But if one ask in the words of your true servant, St. Germain of Constantinople: Who so struggles as you do, O divine Mother, with illusions that you may convert them by your tender care and entreaties! Christians, we have heard time and again the story of Mary of Egypt; it is too well known to need repetition here. But it is only an illustration of what we are now proclaiming. Our Mother's eyes are ever upon us, and our prayers, if we only will, can reach her, gently, lovingly turning us to fly to her, and that we will be sure to find her first, Mary Magdalen, the Mary of Egypt, the Mary of Bethany, the Mary of Nazareth, the Mary of Calvary, the Mary of Bethlehem

A COMPLETE Vindication.

THE STATE PRESS

—OF—

The New Railroad Passenger Rates.

The following extracts taken from leading journals in the counties in which they are published prove that the people are kindly disposed towards the new passenger tariff adopted by the votes of Carpenter and Humphreys, and that they feel there two Commissioners are honestly desirous to do their duty:

FRESNO DAILY EXPOSITOR (Rep.).

The Tulare Times and the Visalia Echo both express the opinion that the rates of fare as regulated by the Railroad Commissioners will be very favorable to this part of the valley.

WOODLAND DAILY DEMOCRAT.

An examination of the action of the Railroad Commission shows that they have made a move in the right direction in reducing the rates of fare on the different lines of railroad in this state. . . . For one we are willing to give credit where credit is due, and accord to the Railroad Commission the credit due to this move. Forty per cent on passenger fares is certainly a very material reduction.

PLACER AROUS (Rep.).

The new schedule of fares, as fixed by the Railroad Commission, is likely to give general, though doubtless not universal satisfaction. For instance, the pass over fare from Sacramento to Colfax, or vice versa, is fixed at $2.15, as against $3 75, the present fare—a reduction of $1 60 per ticket. Sacramento to Auburn, $1 45, instead of $3 50—a reduction of exactly $2 per cent.

The Stockton Ferry, edited by Senator Spencer, says: We find, however, that as a matter of fact, in the San Joaquin valley there is a considerable reduction from the immediate points or way stations. In this respect there is a variety of relief. If a Modesto resident has to go to Lathrop, Merced, Fresno or Tulare, there will, under the new rule, be a saving of from twenty to fifty per cent. So much so good.

SAN JOSE DAILY MERCURY (Dem.).

It may safely be assumed that there are a number of politicians in California who will be glad to see the Railroad Commissioners do nothing, on the ground that they will have an opportunity to bore. The very material reductions already made in fares and freights, and notices of reductions to twelfths, must to take the wind out of their sails, if they really do mean to bore, and have them in a somewhat ridiculous position. Of course they can still assert that the reductions are not as great as they might be, but the trouble is the people will not pay any attention to them.

LOS ANGELES DAILY DEMOCRAT.

The editor of this paper is so constituted that he could not if he would, and he could not if he would, be unfair to anybody, especially to any portion of the people, and he is no advocate for any political trust. In common with all honest Democrats, however, he believes in the right of the national and state governments to regulate and control the business of railroads. In the beauty record with the San Jose convention he congratulates the people of California on the indignity not bored. But, for some time past, we have been hearing from our friends in the Sacramento Railroad Commissioners, that they, for the benefit of the people, would bore the people of California, if they could, but they could not, because the people will always come right in the end; if they do not, then we have the right to bore. We believe the people have the right of this railroad controversy—if, indeed, they ever erred—and the matter will be settled upon a basis that will be satisfactory to the people, and we have just as much right to bore them as we have to bore the people. It will require time and the attention of a better class of politicians than have thus far had to do with it, to place it off the bore. We believe the people will early begin a museum of incredibility in its contemplation of the bore. Not to admit this is the conclusion.

SAN JOSE HERALD (Rep.).

The Visalia Echo is published by one of the most earnest and uncompromising anti monopolists of the state. He paper has been more bored and groaned over the organization of the alleged bore of the Railroad Commissioners. But it is not a journal of the crack sort, and in its last issue it has all the grace to acknowledge that the new schedule of fares, that, "confronted by the figures here before us, we are enforced to acknowledge that the reduction in fares, so far as relates to local rates in Tulare county and the upper San Joaquin valley, will be of material advantage to the people."

SANTA BARBARA PRESS.

Humphreys' schedule of reduction adopted yesterday was an average reduction of 40 per cent on fares. The most extravagant reduction demanded by the San Jose convention was 20 per cent on freight and fares, and even this figure was voted down on the adoption of the plan of fares. Here is Pooie deciding to vote for a 40 per cent reduction on freight and fare, he knowing well that it is all he can obtain at present. A half a loaf is better than no bread at all. They are merely playing for popularity.

SAN MATEO DAILY TIMES.

The Board of Railway Commissioners have finally adopted a schedule of fares for the railroads of California largely reducing the rates hitherto prevailing.

The immediate result of the action of the Board may be regarded as a great popular triumph in the settlement of the long contested question of the right of the state to regulate. Regulation is now an established fact. The application of power carries with it a corresponding degree of responsibility. The character of the recent agitation on this subject has not been such as could be approved by thoughtful citizens. Exalted declamation, wild assertion, threatening denunciation, are not the methods by which an intelligent public is to be influenced, or should be augmented. Thinking men who have earnestly believed in the justice of state regulation, have not joined in the late demonstration; and the adoption of various "indignation meetings" have not in any manner represented the sentiment of the real body of the people—the laboring and laboring masses of the State. Every man who has earned property, who is engaged in business, who depends on the wages of labor for subsistence, if he reflects at all, must perceive that an injury inflicted upon an internet so closely allied to every branch of industry and commerce as the railroad interest will extend throughout the commonwealth, will nearly every home in thousand and affect his own property. The mere establishment of very cheap rates of transportation is but one of the benefits to be derived from the agitation. Another is a more wholesome respect on, on the part of territory, sparsely populated, with the undeveloped resources of an Empire. It is the grand mission of the railroad to bring population into the broad expanses of unoccupied land—to develop the country. Another is the fact that the Commissioners in authority, are, and will be, the people's friends, and that, while the people may regard with satisfaction the reduction of fares, and that portion of the state where the rates have been too high. The schedule makes a material reduction in the sense of the San Jose platform which did not contemplate a reduction of more than 20 per cent. Some of these journals are demandine as a matter of right, that the Democratic convention which failed low for the party, made no demand of this character and it is not clear that it has a right to dictate these rates to the members of another party, forced to resign, impeached by the Legislature, or hanged by a mob.

H. DORADO REPUBLICAN.

The Railroad Commission, after nearly five months of consultation and deliberation, yesterday adopted a reduced schedule of railroad fares. The reduction is fixed from one to twelfths, according to the distance. Not though horrified for a time, by the prospect of being bored, we do not wrong right in the end; if they do not, then we have the right to bore. We believe the people have the right of this railroad controversy—if, indeed, they ever erred—and the matter will be settled upon a basis that will be satisfactory to the people, and we have just as much right to bore them as we have to bore the people. It will require time and the attention of a better class of politicians than have thus far had to do with it. The people will bore on the subject, and they will early begin a museum of incredibility in its contemplation. Not to admit this is the conclusion.

SAN JOSE HERALD (Rep.).

The Visalia Echo is published by one of the most earnest and uncompromising anti monopolists of the state. He paper has been more bored and groaned over the organization of the alleged bore of the Railroad Commissioners. But it is not a journal of the crack sort, and in its last issue it has all the grace to acknowledge that the new schedule of fares, that, "confronted by any more than he would the people, for upon the prosperity of one depends the prosperity of the other.

WILLOWS JOURNAL (REP.).

He is no friend to popular government who excusses such violence for the purpose of obtaining a desired political end. No matter what may be our individual opinions of the Railroad Commission or of its action or want of action, we must still remember that law is a conditional body, solemnly elected by the votes of the people who are voted down on the adoption of the plan of fares. Here is Poole deciding to vote for a 40 per cent reduction on freight and fare, he knowing well that it is all he can obtain at present. A half a loaf is better than no bread at all. They are merely playing for popularity.

SAN MATEO DAILY TIMES.

The Board of Railway Commissioners have finally adopted a schedule of fares for the railroads of California largely reducing the rates hitherto prevailing.

The immediate result of the action of the Board may be regarded as a great popular triumph in the settlement of the long contested question of the right of the state to regulate. Regulation is now an established fact. The application of power carries with it a corresponding degree of responsibility. The character of the recent agitation on this subject has not been such as could be approved by thoughtful citizens. Exalted declamation, wild assertion, threatening denunciation, are not the methods by which an intelligent public is to be influenced, or should be augmented. Thinking men who have earnestly believed in the justice of state regulation, have not joined in the late demonstration; and the adoption of various "indignation meetings" have not in any manner represented the sentiment of the real body of the people—the laboring and laboring masses of the State. Every man who has earned property, who is engaged in business, who depends on the wages of labor for subsistence, if he reflects at all, must perceive that an injury inflicted upon an internet so closely allied to every branch of industry and commerce as the railroad interest will extend throughout the commonwealth, will nearly every home in thousand and affect his own property. The mere establishment of very cheap rates of transportation is but one of the benefits to be derived from the agitation. Another is a more wholesome respect on, on the part of territory, sparsely populated, with the undeveloped resources of an Empire. It is the grand mission of the railroad to bring population into the broad expanses of unoccupied land—to develop the country. Another is the fact that the Commissioners in authority, are, and will be, the people's friends, and that, while the people may regard with satisfaction the reduction of fares, and that portion of the state where the rates have been too high. The schedule makes a material reduction in the sense of the San Jose platform which did not contemplate a reduction of more than 20 per cent. Some of these journals are demanding as a matter of right, that the Democratic convention which failed low for the party, made no demand of this character and it is not clear that it has a right to dictate these rates to the members of another party, forced to resign, impeached by the Legislature, or hanged by a mob.

H. DORADO REPUBLICAN.

The Railroad Commission, after nearly five months of consultation and deliberation, yesterday adopted a reduced schedule of railroad fares. The reduction is fixed from one to twelfths, according to the distance. Not though horrified for a time, by the prospect of being bored, we do not wrong right in the end; if they do not, then we have the right to bore. We believe the people have the right of this railroad controversy—if, indeed, they ever erred—and the matter will be settled upon a basis that will be satisfactory to the people, and we have just as much right to bore them as we have to bore the people. It will require time and the attention of a better class of politicians than have thus far had to do with it. The people will bore on the subject, and they will early begin a museum of incredibility in its contemplation. Not to admit this is the conclusion.

SAN JOSE DAILY MERCURY (Dem.).

The Railroad Commission on Tuesday last made a reduction of fares from twelfths to twenty per cent, and a reduction of freight of 5 cents per ton. The Commissioners have thus shown that they are not to be influenced directly or indirectly by the railroad power. We believe that Mr. Carpenter's felt regard for justice would not permit him to injure the true and just rights of the great transportation company by a hasty or ill-considered action. We believe that Mr. Carpenter's felt regard for justice would not permit him to injure the true and just rights of the great transportation company

MONTEREY DAILY TRIBUNE (DEM.).

The Board of Railroad Commissioners have finally adopted a schedule of fares for the railroads of California largely reducing the rates hitherto prevailing.

The immediate result of the action of the Board may be regarded as a great popular triumph in the settlement of the long contested question of the right of the state to regulate. Regulation is now an established fact. The application of power carries with it a corresponding degree of responsibility. The character of the recent agitation on this subject has not been such as could be approved by thoughtful citizens. Exalted declamation, wild assertion, threatening denunciation, are not the methods by which an intelligent public is to be influenced, or should be augmented. Thinking men who have earnestly believed in the justice of state regulation, have not joined in the late demonstration; and the adoption of various "indignation meetings" have not in any manner represented the sentiment of the real body of the people—the laboring and laboring masses of the State. Every man who has earned property, who is engaged in business, who depends on the wages of labor for subsistence, if he reflects at all, must perceive that an injury inflicted upon an internet so closely allied to every branch of industry and commerce as the railroad interest will extend throughout the commonwealth, will nearly every home in thousand and affect his own property. The mere establishment of very cheap rates of transportation is but one of the benefits to be derived from the agitation. Another is a more wholesome respect on, on the part of territory, sparsely populated, with the undeveloped resources of an Empire. It is the grand mission of the railroad to bring population into the broad expanses of unoccupied land—to develop the country. Another is the fact that the Commissioners in authority, are, and will be, the people's friends, and that, while the people may regard with satisfaction the reduction of fares, and that portion of the state where the rates have been too high. The schedule makes a material reduction in the sense of the San Jose platform which did not contemplate a reduction of more than 20 per cent. Some of these journals are demanding as a matter of right, that the Democratic convention which failed low for the party, made no demand of this character and it is not clear that it has a right to dictate these rates to the members of another party, forced to resign, impeached by the Legislature, or hanged by a mob.

H. DORADO REPUBLICAN.

The Railroad Commission, after nearly five months of consultation and deliberation, yesterday adopted a reduced schedule of railroad fares. The reduction is fixed from one to twelfths, according to the distance. Not though horrified for a time, by the prospect of being bored, we do not wrong right in the end; if they do not, then we have the right to bore. We believe the people have the right of this railroad controversy—if, indeed, they ever erred—and the matter will be settled upon a basis that will be satisfactory to the people, and we have just as much right to bore them as we have to bore the people. It will require time and the attention of a better class of politicians than have thus far had to do with it. The people will bore on the subject, and they will early begin a museum of incredibility in its contemplation. Not to admit this is the conclusion.

SAN JOSE DAILY TRIBUNE (DEM.).

The schedule as adopted makes an average reduction of forty per cent on passenger fares. The steal journals attempt to make it appear that in the case of the majority of the passenger fares it is made on such portions of the line where travel is heavy there is no reduction. This is not a fair representation. The fare between San Francisco and Sacramento and other contiguous points is reduced one-twelfth, and the rule is already below four cents, while at intermediate points where there has been a great travel the rates have been high. Between Sacramento and Colfax travel has been in a great travel, and the rates have been cut down over 20 per cent. Between Sacramento and Auburn there is a large travel. Between Lathrop and Merced there is no travel, and yet no reduction was made. In this respect there is a variety of relief. If a Modesto resident has to go to Lathrop, Merced, Fresno or Tulare, there will, under the new rule, be a saving of from twenty to fifty per cent. So much so good.

SAN JOSE DAILY HERALD (DEM.).

It may safely be assumed that there are a number of politicians in California who will be glad to see the Railroad Commissioners do nothing, on the ground that they will have an opportunity to bore. The very material reductions already made in fares and freights, and notices of reductions to twelfths, must to take the wind out of their sails, if they really do mean to bore, and have them in a somewhat ridiculous position. Of course they can still assert that the reductions are not as great as they might be, but the trouble is the people will not pay any attention to them.

LOS ANGELES DAILY DEMOCRAT.

The editor of this paper is so constituted that he could not if he would, and he could not if he would, be unfair to anybody, especially to any portion of the people, and he is no advocate for any political trust. In common with all honest Democrats, however, he believes in the right of the national and state governments to regulate and control the business of railroads. In the beauty record with the San Jose convention he congratulates the people of California on the indignity not bored. But, for some time past, we have been hearing from our friends in the Sacramento Railroad Commissioners, that they, for the benefit of the people, would bore the people of California, if they could, but they could not, because the people will always come right in the end; if they do not, then we have the right to bore. We believe the people have the right of this railroad controversy—if, indeed, they ever erred—and the matter will be settled upon a basis that will be satisfactory to the people, and we have just as much right to bore them as we have to bore the people. It will require time and the attention of a better class of politicians than have thus far had to do with it. The people will bore on the subject, and they will early begin a museum of incredibility in its contemplation. Not to admit this is the conclusion.

SAN JOSE DAILY TRIBUNE (DEM.).

If debating politicians and would be reformers could give the people what they really feel having done what they conscientiously believed to have been right, and what they believe to be right in fact, half proven unsatisfactory and still too late to be of any benefit to the people, it would be well. We have witnessed the deplorable spectacle of a Legislature composed of the ablest representatives, and of the most intelligent, and honest constituencies in the state, and yet, with a few honorable exceptions, it has shown itself not competent to the task undertaken for the support of the railroads, and to injustice was rather than to the commissioners and to the people. We have witnessed the people while suffering from oppression by delegation, if it be right to call it right, and yet it is not, and, moderation should control in the end, and that justice to all parties be secured demanded.

MONTEREY DEMOCRAT.

The Railroad Commission on Tuesday last made a reduction of fares from twelfths to twenty per cent, and a reduction of freight of 5 cents per ton. The Commissioners have thus shown that they are not to be influenced directly or indirectly by the railroad power. We believe that Mr. Carpenter's felt regard for justice would not permit him to injure the true and just rights of the great transportation company

DEATH OF MRS. W. L. WHELAN.

WHELAN—In this city, July 6, Marguerita A., infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Whelan, aged 1 year, 1 month and 17 days. Deceased was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., aged 10 years and 4 months.

Mr. Whelan is a native of Ireland, and has been connected for the benefit of the Monitor. Her spirit has been borne to heaven from this vale of tears to the eternal shores where she is now singing the joys of the blest. Her mother, who was Miss Mary Ann Ryan, and passed to her reward in Brooklyn, N. Y., where the child found of death was buried, was a native of Ireland, and a sister of Mr. Ryan, of the firm of Ryan & Ryan, undertakers, of this city. Deceased was the second child of her parents, the first being a boy, who died in infancy. Mr. Whelan, who is a member of the Monitor, and who is the only surviving member of his family, is a man of the most kind, generous, and honorable character, and a man of the most kind, generous, and honorable character, and a man of the most kind, generous, and honorable character, and

Poetry.

BY IRISH HOMES.

BY C. P. O'CONNOR.

It lies a thousand leagues away,
My Irish home!
Bathed in the glorious light of day,
My Irish home!
Where still the water dances free,
To kiss the far-off deep blue sea,
My soul takes rest at eve—look, see
My Irish home! My Irish home!

There frowning 'on Roscarbery's side,
My Irish home!
Winking like a jewel, handsome bride,
My Irish home!
Dear Castle Ashby lies at night
Bathed in the moon, my Irish sky!
Ah, life of joy, heart of delight
My Irish home! My Irish home!

There towards leap down from the hills;
My Irish home!
Their mode fashion from the rills;
My Irish home!
Look, see the red deer leap the brake;
See trees and willows bow their shake
Their foam-flecked course through turn and lake
My Irish home! My Irish home!

hasten down the winding lake,
My Irish home!
The Venetian stands at the door;
My Irish home!
The walls her blessings on the boy,
That when sore hearted, far from home,
Say, was it ever in vain, my boy?
My Irish home! My Irish home!

The big bears from my cave depth part,
My Irish home!
And wailing all the long night, my heart
My Irish home!
I stand where the Atlantic wildly rave,
I look to the west—the west wildly rave,
And the blessed home of my mother's grave
My Irish home! My Irish home!

Ah, where is the heart of joy, where cry,
My Irish home!
Caused my pulse to leap, my first love's sigh!
My Irish home!
By Carrig Cloun's dear side stay,
When eve pale as her robe of grey,
Looking for stars, I kneel to pray
My Irish home! My Irish home!

It lies a thousand leagues away!
My Irish home!
Bathed in the light of radiant day!
My Irish home!
Bolted by glorious rich and cure
Ah, I have left my heart in Erin,
O! towards home! my heart is there!
My Irish home! My Irish home!

SENATOR COTTON IN HALIFAX.

Sunny Jones, of Florida, has come to visit us again. The Lord Mayor of Dublin visited us last year. The Lord Mayor of Dublin visited us last Saturday. Several hundred people crowded into the public reception room to see Senator Jones and shake his hand. Senator Jones of Florida is the author of the bill for the relief of Charles Bradlaugh, the author of the Chinese Exclusion Act, the author of the Sunset Cox Immigration Act, the author of the Sunset Cox Immigration Act, the author of the Sunset Cox Immigration

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1883.

The Popes Posing as Freemasons.

We seldom give our antiquated contemporary, the Alta California, anything more than a glance in the morning, hence we feel under many obligations to a friend for calling our special attention to the issue of that paper of the 9th inst., wherein we find published a monstrous rigmarole of ridiculous rubbish about Masonry. The article in question starts out in the old-fashioned, broad-sheet way of trying to identify the infidel body of institution "Knights" of the present day with the valiant Catholic heroes who wore the cross soldiers of the Cross of Christ in the Middle Ages. Any cow boy is at liberty to assume the character of Jubal Cooper on the mimic stage, and there is no law to prevent him from making a mockery of the whole business. So it is with this modern "Sir Knight" humbugery, wherein Gilles Bondgrass the granger can be made to represent the Godfrey de Bouillon, the heroic redeemer of Jerusalem from the Turks. In the days of Knighthood, when such orders were under the dignities of the Catholic Church, the term "Knight" carried with it a significance it can never achieve under the present Masonic mask, whereon it is a mere mockery in most of some of God's noblest soldiers and His intellect heroes. Vainly need we look for that Christian charity, that Catholic devotion, those vows of "obedience, chastity, and poverty," which the real Knights bound themselves to, but which the modern make-believes have no more conception of than the cow boy we have quoted has of the real domestic virtues of that Cowper he cruelly parodies in the temple of Theopsy.

The whole machinery of these modern "Knights" is worked in the interest of Masonry, an institution that—it is scarcely necessary to tell our Catholic readers—is the severe enemy of their faith. The Church has, through several Popes, condemned Masonry and its Catholic votaries, by the ban of its dreaded sentence of mock Knighthood, can receive the Sacraments of the Church while living, or Christian burial when dead. A few foolish Catholics, dazzled by the tinsel and the armor in which others, book-pullers, and number-tasters may themselves for parade days, have sold their souls for the miserable "mess of pottage" which a Master's degree may gain for them in this world, and forfeited thereby all hopes of Heaven in the next. We have no fear that our readers are if speaking directly to this class of cruel and cowardly Catholics—we say plainly: Those who keep the holy Sabbath on earth will also keep it before My Father who is in Heaven. Hence we tell these turn-coat Catholics to come and form the evil association upon which rests the curse of that Church which represents the living God.

In the Alta article we notice several assertions, to which we will give attention hereafter, but at present we select the following:

"Upon the induction of Malta by the English in 1805, the chief seat of the Order was transferred to Rome, in which city, where, it is now governed by authority of the Pope to Pius IX., who was made a Prince of Rome, a cardinal, and all members of the Order, knights, priests, and Knights Grand Cross or Knights of the Red Cross, are now bound to the Papal throne by a special oath of fealty."

We do not know whether the Alta made this historical look out of its own head, or whether it was helped in the labor by some Masonic Mentmann to whe deer on his inspiration for his facts, and who trusted to the credulity of the Alta readers in order to have his ridiculous statements unchallenged. We, in our turn, have more wanton or grievous lies never printed even in the long volumes of our lying contemporary!

Pope Leo XII reigned in 1823, and to his Prime Minister, Cardinal Gizzi, the "renewal" of the Order of Masonry from Sicily to Paris, was Bernie! In 1826 Pope Leo XII. issued a Bull condemning the very Masonry which "renewal" he is said to have authorized. And here we may add that the successor of this Pontiff—Pope Pius VIII.—during his very brief term of office gladden the hearts of all those who glory in seeing innocence vindicated and guilt denounced:

"Pius VIII. issued a Bull against the Freemasons of Germany, aimed at R. Oneiff's (sic) Masonic Lodge, Herbert street, Wittenberg, on 1st June, 1829, and, Mrs. Grant, just after a consultation with his brother, the cardinal, the order was dissolved, and the persecution was begun. She did not remember the exact date, but it was about 1829. Mr. Moore, the brothers of 1829 signed, Mrs. Grant, had perished in the fire. Mr. Moore's very, on her books which showed that the pet had defined her laundry as Jose X. Mr. Moore, the brother, was alleged to have been a member of the Masonic order, and was her destroyer." After a review of the testimony Judge Shea, who presided, said that from Miss Pilsen's own testimony he would have to dismiss the defendants and discharge Father McCoy from custody.

"As he said this, and there down the papers on the desk, the throwing in the room stirred, shipped into the fireplace, and burned."

It is scarcely necessary to remind our readers that not one word of this triumphant acquittal of an innocent priest from the malignant perjury of this wretched woman ever appeared in a daily paper in San Francisco. His name and sacred office are inscribed among other criminal news in their columns; but now that his accuser has fled from the court through fear of indictment for double perjury, it remains for the Monitor alone to remove the stain which the Satanic press has placed upon the reputation of this good priest of the Church of Christ.

Blackmail was the sole object of this charge being trumped up, and in order to effect this recourse was had to perjury which was as palpable to the Justice before whom the case was to be tried that he was compelled to throw the case out of court upon the testimony of the prosecuting witness herself.

We cite the facts in this case in order, if possible, to induce the daily press to obtain the misfortune to wear the Masonic apron—an old story very appropriate to their position in the enemy's camp. Here it is:

A certain missionary who was known for his hostility to Masonry, and who preached constantly against Catholics joining the Order, was one day traveling on horseback along a road in one of the Southern States when he encountered a farmer named Jos Fluke, whose love of fun was only equaled by an unfortunate impediment in his speech, viz., stuttering.

"'Good morning, Mr. Fluke,' said the missionary, as they met and reined up their horses.

"'G-g-g good morning, p-p-p-parson,' replied Joe.

"'Any news?' quoth the missionary.

"'N-n-n-news? w-w-why, hain't you h-h-h-heard it?'

"'No. What is it?'

"'W-w-w-why they c-c-c-caught the devil in our neighbor-h-h-h-hood last night!'

"'You don't say so! How?'

"'R-r-r-ran him into a w-w-wall.'

"'Ah! How was he got out?'

"'F-f-f-fished out!'

"'Fished out!' How?'

"'Y-e-s-s—the d-d-devil only smelt of him a l-l-little bit w-w-would not bite.'

"'Then how?'

"'B-b-baited it with a B-l-haddick.'

"'Did they catch him with the Baptist?'

"'C-c-c-ch-ch-ch

MARY.

THE GLORIOUS NAME OF THE INCOMPARABLE VIRGIN.

The Mysterious Book!

Many taken care not only of them sinners when their natural frailty has carried down the stream, and from what even of the most miserable creatures whom in its opinion obstinacy has already pointed to the pit of despair. The third letter, R, of her sacred name, tells us this, for it denotes that she is the redeemer Birth. In the Book of Ruth (of Chap.) we read that the poor Moabitess, to entice that she might relieve her necessities, went into the field of her rich kinsman, Boaz, and gleaned the ears of corn that escaped the hands of the harvesters. On having that the ears of corn were passed over by the harvesters, we proceed to the Book of Ruth, for we hit that nothing remained for them but to become the food of crows, vultures, foul mice, or other foes, and so gleaned for them unlucky ears, but when we hand that the merciful Ruth followed after the harvesters, then we are ashamed, O truly blessed ears, you, too, will be gleaned by the gleaner, and you shall scorge the lot we feared for you! But let us be grateful well and explain the mastery of the sheaves.

By the ear, Ruth is represented the God of the Jews, the Lord of the earth; by the field is signified the Church of Christ; by the ears, the Jewish people; by gleaned, the reapers is meant the pastors of souls, and by the ears left in the field, the descendants of the most miserable sinners, who, with the most obstinate hardness, continue to the days of infancy, have scarcely hadn all the care and industry of pastors, ministeries, and consolations, and therefore have of themselves nothing else to expect but to be rejected, abandoned, and reproached by God, and to become the prey of the infernal crows. By the merciful Ruth is understood the most Blessed Virgin Mary, who, with grace and intercession even the most hardened, incorrigible, and perverse sinners, yes, even those who are prey infernal despair, are called to pardon. O Immaculate Mary! (Antiphon St. Bernard) Mary! Mary! Mary!

Archbishop Croke.

A New Church at Sarsfield's Rock.

Imposing Demonstration—Address by His Grace.

On Sunday the 24th ult., the corner-stone of the new Church of St. Brigid, Sarsfield's Rock, Ballyneety, County Limerick, was solemnly blessed by the Archbishop of Cashel. The new Church is dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and consists of a nave 70 feet in length by 30 feet in breadth, with a chancel 30 feet by 20 feet, and a belfry at the gable. Gabletoped, the edifice will be 35 feet in height, and will command a view of Kerry, Cork, Tipperary, and Clare, the Silvermines Mountains, the Slieve Felim, the Slieve Bloom Mountains, the Galtee, and Tan Quinlan's Hill. The site of the Church was most generously given by the tenant, Mrs. Ryan, and it is the best landed, Mr. Thomas Ryan, of Sarsfield's Rock, has kindly promised to have high land enough to press in Rev. Father Ryan, the parish priest, a large hot-house. The Church was begun about a year ago. To erect such a Church for such a parish was up-hill work. It is estimated that it will cost £2,000. But, though the parish was poor, the generosity of the people appears to have been almost extraordinary. On Sunday, 15th inst., the day before the corner-stone, and some time before, there were very generous collections for Rev. Father Ryan by his parishioners; they were moved by the love for him, and he gave them a priceless gift, which realized about £1,000. This made of contributing to the cost of the church to-day, and it likely to be more than very popular. His Grace the Archbishop, in a few words, but a short far-reaching and soul-thrilling address, made a very generous contribution on Sunday, laid over £100 on the corner-stone, and some time after,

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

THE BATTLE OF CLAVIJO.

A LEGEND OF SAINT JAMES OF COMPOSTELLA.

The proud King of Cordova, the Arab Abd'ar-rahman,
Offended at the hapless people whom his power had overthrown,
Drunk with the wine of victory sent his envoys with this message
To Ramiro, Christian Monarch of the kingdom of Leon:

"I demand, O King, a tribute, not of shining gold or silver,
Nor of gems whose numerous radiance light the hidden vaults of earth,
But a hundred beauteous maidens from shoal-bound coast and valley,
Maidens peerless in their beauty, noble in their birth and kindred."

The hot blood of Ramiro burned red in cheek and forehead,
As rising from his royal throne he cried, "Begone! and tell
To the Tyrant Moslemhman our hatred and defiance!
Our men-at-arms hate anything, and fall him that we dare

By the aid of Saint'Iago to keep our reign so proud,
Thank God! we can still lift our scutes as feel pulsating hard
May Saint Cordova's Rider one of the lovely maidens,
Whose purity and beauty are the treasures of our land!

His Warriors drive these envoys beyond our peaceful people in the wild
Beyond our kingdom's borders, and be our mass by our banners!
To our subjects true and loyal, that they hasten armed and ready
To defend the sacred honor of the daughters of Leon!"

Then the King and army kneeling made a solemn Vielding to an ancient tribute unto Compostella's Patron.
From each zone of the kingdom in the golden time of harvest,
One full measure each, of corn, and the red blood of the vines.

As a grateful offering rendered by the land the Saint had rescued
From the wan rule of the Moslem, from the captive's sorrid down,
Every head was bowed in a cowed and filial manner
To another lady dearest temple, blessed Saint'Iago's tomb.

MARCELLA A. FITZGERALD.

DOMINICAN SISTERS' FAIR.

The Dominican Sisters who conduct St. Rose Academy, Golden Gate Avenue, finding themselves encumbered by a long-standing debt, have determined to celebrate the Golden Jubilee of St. Rose, by a bold Fair for the benefit and have begun to publish their intention. Prominent Priests Hall on the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th September, 1882, is the opening what we hope the Collection of San Francisco will make this a pleasant and generous enterprise for the worthy Religious. We have already received valuable donations from many outside of the City, and a number of charitable ladies and gentlemen have undertaken the management of the Fair, so that the prospects for success look very bright, at this time.

Rev. James McGrath, head pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in Lowell, Mass., who recently returned from Rome, has been appointed a canon will be shortly appointed Pastor of the Oldest Parishes for the United States.

WILLS "KOUGH ON CORNS."

Ask for Wills' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Quick, complete, permanent cure. Corns, warts, bunions.

Literary Miscellany.

The Auctioneer's Story

This is a strange world! And yet I never thought so until my attention was called to the fact by a little incident that befell me one day, and set me off thinking so hard that I seemed to grow out of my own head and reach a great height, and then look down on my other self with compassion. I don't know that it made me any wiser, but at least it made me more thoughtful of my fellow-beings—more thoughtful of their joys and sorrows—and that counts something, I reckon.

I have cried dozens of pawnbrokers' sains in my time, and never thought anything about them, unless it was that old Tom to Use or Give and Take were doubtful their money and making a pretty penny, even with ten per cent commission taken off.

But I never thought of the story connected with any article of the sale—of the heartaches and despair, and woman's tears. It was but a joke to me, who had known the time when to "spout" a watch, or plate, or some light trinket, in order to carry on a frolic, or help a chap poorer than I was, was but the impulse of a moment, and carried no further weight than the relief from empty pockets at the moment.

But, as I said before, something made me think, and even when I have the money I hated to try away the goods of the poor creatures that want and misery had driven into old Tom's dusty shop.

The city of B——is a splendid market for my business. The trade done there by those homes alone would discount any banking, commission or other business in the place, and by the same token, the pawnbrokers equal us in power and profit, and give us some of our biggest sales.

An odd lot came into the warehouse one day, consisting of a silver tea-pot, and a dozen of first-rate of new beginners, and, as I fell to my duty to assort and label the goods, I was the idea fell to my lot to be a hero of in the village.

The consignment consisted mainly of glass and silverware, pictures and brooches, and the Spanish host debated fed from Alcatraz's Bold;

O Day of sorrow and anguish, for by counsels foes overruled

It seemed that with the marrow the Christian Chief must yield.

From the height on which he rested he could see the Moslem host

Of the Moors rejoicing proudly o'er the victory Martial power was none to old him, at his hopes dashed to the ground

And to Rodrigo Jonas his palace he hombly knelt in prayer.

Night fell, Ramiro wrestled with the bulls of battle disturbed;

As he slept an infant pillored on his mother's breast, Wake up! Spain's great Apostle in majesty and glory Clothed in the garments whose glory crowned his noble church's crest!

"Wake up!" he said and shouted, "true-hearted, fear not, cause the battle,

For Saint James Ramiro to-morrow will aid thy Spain hard.

Wake up! Wake up! Ramiro! and answer, His strong right hand will conquer Forget of all your foes!"

Ramiro was rejoicing, and summoned to his The Pelayos, and the Captains of his army one

Then told the blessed vision, and the promise of Spain's Patron

Then the Pelayos, and the Captains of his army one

Then the blessed vision, and the promise of Spain's Patron

Boldly, swiftly rynd the tidings, and the man so by Amen, and thousand rein with one voice of Spain's Patron

In fashioning, and appealing, bade the startled Spain and their so heavenly

Saint'Iago! Saint'Iago! with a sound of dread To the foemen, came the war-cry of the valiant Spain

As with weapons flashing brightly in the cry Down they swept for God and Country, love of King and Spain

All the men that Abd'ar-rahman massed their forces to resist them,

Fled before the Christian host in spirit, one in thought and deed and aim,

While the Moors, in their wild rushing the want their rolling and their Saint'Iago! Saint'Iago! Saint'Iago! Saint'Iago! repeating

Ever by the fight was thickest, and the Spanish host was seen

Ever in front of Saint James's grandeur for one Mounted on a white-white charger, and the Spanish host

With a banner where the red Cross shone upon a ground of white

With the golden Shield and glory of the heavens shining beyond

Shining beyond the lightning dealing death upon the Arab host Fled the Moors, Moslem and Apostle o'er Clavijo's Rock, and the Christian Moslem's followed fired with victory's dazzling glow.

Then the Moslem Moslem, the Moslems fled; in terror,

Leaving the field of battle dirty thousand of their dead,

While a shout of rapt thanksgiving, of thanksgiving and rejoicing,

Rose and rolled, joyous spirits o'er the sunny hills of Spain.

Then the King and army kneeling made a solemn Vielding to an ancient tribute unto Compostella's Patron.

From each zone of the kingdom in the golden time of harvest,

One full measure each, of corn, and the red blood of the vines.

As a grateful offering rendered by the land the Saint had rescued

From the wan rule of the Moslem, from the captive's sorrid down,

Every head was bowed in a cowed and filial manner

To another lady dearest temple, blessed Saint'Iago's tomb.

MARCELLA A. FITZGERALD.

DOMINICAN SISTERS' FAIR.

The Dominican Sisters who conduct St. Rose Academy, Golden Gate Avenue, finding themselves encumbered by a long-standing debt, have determined to celebrate the Golden Jubilee of St. Rose, by a bold Fair for the benefit and have begun to publish their intention. Prominent Priests Hall on the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th September, 1882, is the opening what we hope the Collection of San Francisco will make this a pleasant and generous enterprise for the worthy Religious. We have already received valuable donations from many outside of the City, and a number of charitable ladies and gentlemen have undertaken the management of the Fair, so that the prospects for success look very bright, at this time.

Rev. James McGrath, head pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in Lowell, Mass., who recently returned from Rome, has been appointed a canon will be shortly appointed Pastor of the Oldest Parishes for the United States.

WILLS "KOUGH ON CORNS."

Ask for Wills' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Quick, complete, permanent cure. Corns, warts, bunions.

THE ARCHBISHOP EMBALMED.

A Description of the Interesting Process Used by the Surgeons.

The body of the late Archbishop Wood, whose funeral obsequies were performed with great solemnity at the Cathedral, Philadelphia, yesterday by Rt. M. J. Nardys, of 748 East Ninth street, preparator to the Jefferson Medical College, and member of several prominent foreign medical societies. He was assisted by Professor H. T. Creason, of the Academy of Natural Sciences, and Dr. Frank Wortman, of the Jefferson College.

The process employed in the case of the distinguished prelate is the method of Dr. Nardys to be equal to, and in many respects far superior to, that employed by the ancients; and it is thought that will stand the test of age quite as well. The numerous instances in which he has been called upon to perform the duties of a like office have so far proved prominently successful. It was by this process that he embalmed the Russian Prince Alexander Aristoff, who died in Paris in 1876, and whose body is said to be in a fine state of preservation at the present time.

Owing to the state of the weather and the time required to make the necessary preparations for the impending funeral ceremonies it was thought proper to have the embalming performed. Dr. Nardys and his assistants were accordingly called in twenty-four hours after death had taken place, and began the arduous task of embalming. A short description of the method of procedure may be totally detailed of lovers: The viscera were first thoroughly washed with aqueous and alcoholic fluids, which all the blood was extracted from the body. The preservative liquids, the preparations and compositions of which are the greatest care, and are known only to the doctor and his assistants, were then introduced through the aorta and made all every blood vessel in the entire system, thoroughly permeating the remotest portions of the body. After this the body was carefully bandaged with linen and cotton, and the alliants of sodain order to exclude the outer surface from contact with the air. A few more minor details completed the work. By the extraction of the blood and the preparations composition of the preservative liquids, it is claimed that the objectionable features of turning black is sharply obviated. At all events the corpse, which the doctor and his assistants say is the handsomest they ever saw, ached as natural as life after a lapse of six days of the most trying weather. The performance of leaves and fine condition of preservation were universally admired by the clergy.

St. Januarius.

The Neapolitan journals announce that the liquefaction of the blood of St. Januarius, patron of that city, took place this year as usual. We read in the Liberta (Naples):

"In the afternoon of Saturday, May 5th, the precious blood of St. Januarius was placed in the chapel where it is kept. It was carried in procession to the Church of Santa Chiara, and exposed in presence of the best of the holy patron. The usual prayers commenced. After an hour the blood liquefied in part, the other part, round in form remained hard. The usual ceremonies ran on minutes after six in the afternoon, the blood remaining liquid until carried back in procession to the chapel. On the following Sunday, May 6th, the blood returned to the state it had been the previous evening; that is, one part solid, one part liquid. In the day it liquefied entirely. Monday, the 7th, the blood was entirely liquid after a short prayer. Tuesday, the 8

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JULY 25, 1883.

A Word of Explanation.

We have enemies enough outside the pale of the Church to occupy our time and attention without wasting words upon a Catholic contemporary. It is necessary, however, at present, to curb the exhuminating concern-ensemble of a certain class of the Metropolitan Catholic Sentinel, of Portland, Oregon, that when it couples the MONITOR with the Irish World it deliberately bears false witness against its neighbor. There can be only two motives for this accession, one arising from ignorance, and the other from malice. Our Catholic charity prefers—for the present—the covert attack to the former reason, but if there are any more such foul calumnies injected into the columns of our contemporary we will attribute them to the latter cause and treat them accordingly. The reputation of the MONITOR as a Catholic journal is not in the Sentinel's keeping, and in all such matters it is well for Dominus Jumbo to attend to their own business and leave their neighbors' affairs to the management of those whom they must concern—especially when there was declaration in the Previous compact not to know whether the MONITOR is "an echo of that vile sheet," or a Catholic journal that is appreciated all over this coast in every quarter of the variety of its reading matter, the freshness of its news, the interesting character of its correspondence, and the vigor with which it defends sound and sane views upon the Church of God. This fact may not be pleasing to the Sentinel, hence it may have adopted its present course with an intent to injure the good name, even though the methods are not themselves the particular, or even the practice of the gentlemen who conduct that, in fact, they are part of the system. If such be the case, the present would not have to be blamed, the position of the party would have to be hydrified, and the usual social issue would no longer be entwined with social compliment.

Having advanced several desirable reforms in Local Government and the administration of the law, including an increase in the Catholic magistracy, Lord Montagle closed his address with the following omnibus prostitutes:

"In fact, if social progress is not pursued along the lines I have indicated, there are only two alternatives before us. One is, at least, the Home-Government of Ireland, and the government of a military dependency, or a crown colony; and the direction of such a system in the nineteenth century may be doubtful. The other is, that what may be called the Consolidation of the Empire—the complete overthrow of the Home Rule party, except as regards foreign relations and naval and military preparedness, and the Home Rule prostitutes have of Home Rule. It would result, of course, in the annihilation of the upper class, which would speedily be followed, I believe, by a rather long interregnum, during which there would have to be entirely reconstructed. There is yet time to consider the three alternatives. We cannot stand still. We can hardly turn back. But we may at least choose our direction and regulate our pace."

These sentiments would indicate that Parnell is rapidly drifting John Bull to the wall, and that the case of Ireland must soon reach a climax when it will be "liberty or death."

The most learned home in the great West is St. Rose's, and the chief ornament of the Local Art of the edge of Lincoln, Neb.

The "Occident" Monarch Over a "Liberal" Catholic.

The Occident, of last week, goes into mourning over "a kind friend" who died a month—and as supposed—death. "His special friends," says the Occident, "were all Roman Catholics, and so was he by birth and baptism." When the unfortunate man was dead these "special friends" went to a priest to have a first-class funeral from the Church, and interment in consecrated ground, but the priest told them that it was none of his funeral, as the unfortunate man had not lived up to his religion, so he could have neither funeral from the Church nor burial in a Catholic cemetery. Commenting on this the Occident says, in its usual blasting style of bigotry:

"Among the friends were two clergymen, who would either of them have preached or performed funeral ceremonies with pleasure; but so heroic, in the estimation of the pickaxe crowd, among whom true mass respected as prominent among the faithful, would be allowed to say a word, even in behalf of his friend, without incurring lash. This was he carried forth at a bier with parishioners, and treated even worse than the beasts which are taken from their friends to burial."

How ready and willing those ranting preachers are to roll off a sonorous monody over a corpse, or to crack a joke when they act as joiner to some divorced man and woman whom they weld in wedlock! Preach! Yes, those Protestant parsons would deliver a eulogy over a dead dog if they thought they could gain popularity by praising the puppy! But on this occasion the Occident is wrathy because the Catholic priest prevented some Paul Pry from poking his Presbyterian nose into a matter that concerned him not. And so the corpse was carried "forth as a beast that perisheth, and treated even worse than the bashaw in our midst treat their friends in burial. What a solemn warning to "liberal" Catholics who serve the devil all their lives and make upon the Church of God. This fact may not be pleasing to the Sentinel, hence it may have adopted its present course with an intent to injure the good name, even though the methods are not themselves the particular, or even the practice of the gentlemen who conduct that, in fact, they are part of the system. If such be the case, the present would not have to be blamed, the position of the party would have to be hydrified, and the usual social issue would no longer be entwined with social compliment.

Governor Stoneman and the Railroad Question.

The "Open Letter to Mr. W. F. Humphreys," which we published last week, has suggested to us the propriety of adopting a portion of that missive for the purpose of establishing a parallel between Governor Stoneman and the aforesaid Railroad Commissioner in many of the charges brought against the latter gentleman.

Before doing so, however, it is well that our readers should not lose sight of the fact that the Democratic State Central Committee (the highest executive party organization in the State) has absolutely refused to condemn Messrs. Carpenter and Humphreys, or in any way to endorse the movements of those too precipitate politicians who mouthed the Platt's Hall proscriptive meeting. That convention of cranks and demagogues pledged themselves to "oust" Messrs. Carpenter and Humphreys from the official positions to which they were legally elected by the people, and right here we ask Attorney-General Marshall, and all the other lawyers who assisted at this would-be auto-da-fé of the Railroad Commissioners, by what authority a few hundred disaffected and disappointed Democrats can command any official to resign who has been elected by the votes of the whole people!

In the next place, this scrpord's guard of "Chivs" demanded in a most autocratic manner that Governor Stoneman should convene the Legislature in order to satisfy the spleen of a few designing men who want to ride into place and power upon the ruins they hope to make of the character of fellow-Democrats who for thirty years have borne honorable reputations in this community. In such conduct in the true spirit of Democracy! Or does it not rather look like the opening wedge of a few designing demagogues to split the Democratic party in this State in twain so they may have a new party of their own fashioning?

There was once a certain chique known in London history as "The Three Tailors of Tooley street," who met in convention in the English metropolis, and who—like their Platt's Hall imitators—passed resolutions regulating Parliament and all the other civil procedure of the British Government under the loud-sounding title of "We, the people of England," but except to get unfeeling notoriety for themselves, these "Three Tailors of Tooley Street" never secured any remedial legislation under Royalty. Such seem to be the sentiments of the Platt's Hall "people of California," whose resolutions regarding the resignation of Messrs. Carpenter and Humphreys and the convening of the Legislature have not caused them cranks to be laughed at by all sensible people.

No executive officer ever had a better opportunity of advising his party participants on the folly of their operations than Governor Stoneman, yet he neither accedes to their demand to call the Legislature together, nor does he denounce the folly of such foolish resolutions. Does such a course of conduct meet the approval of the Democrat of California? Does it—which is the tempt made to disrupt the State Democracy, in the first place, and to ride rough shod over all law and order, in the second place, yet our Governor is silent as a marble statue—a regular stone man by name and nature?

If the Platt's Hall "Tailors of Tooley Street" desire to be consistent they should convene another meeting and resolve that Governor Stoneman be requested to resign at the command of "we, the people of California," inasmuch as he has not acceded to the demand made on him by this body of benevolent as a recent session.

We shall now proceed to analyze "F. R's" letter in last week's MONITOR, and our readers will be struck with the manner in which parallels the life of a knight of Columbus, and the Occident will also be reminded of the "Three Tailors of Tooley Street." Or, as the Scotch Chronicle, "Tailors of Tooley Street." Or, as the Scotch Chronicle, "Tailors of Tooley Street." Or, as the Scotch Chronicle, "

MARY.

THE GLORIOUS NAME OF THE IMCOMPARABLE VIRGIN.

The Hail Mary

A most terrifying example is related by John Major in his celebrated work called the Mirror of the Blessed Virgin (Speculum, exempla, Bonaventure 5). A certain chief of a band of robbers dwelt in a castle situated near the public highway. The place was strongholded and his companions made attacks on travelers, to whom no mercy was ever shown. This chief was a most cruel man, and there was nothing good in him except that he had some devotion for the Blessed Virgin, and that he every day recited at least once the Hail Mary! On a certain day, as he was looking from the window of his castle, he espied a religious journeying on the public road. Immediately he gave orders to his followers to pursue that man, take from him whatever he had about him, and kill him. The poor religious, who had nothing but his clothes and some provisions for his journey, on finding that he fell into the hands of a band of cutthroats, earnestly asked of them that he be conducted to the chief of the castle, as he had some very important reasons to communicate to him. After much ado, he succeeded in obtaining his request. On being admitted into the presence of the brigand, the religious fell on his knees, bowed to him, and then requested of all the companions of the robber to kneel together before him. The command was given by the chief that all his men should at once appear before the stranger. The poor religious looked carefully at each one of the band of several, blood stained ruffians, who had no other indications of being men but their shape; he then looked at the chief and remarked to him: Your man are not all present! The robber carefully counted his men, and he discovered that his relat to chamber was absent. He was immediately summoned, and he presented himself with such contortions of features and such horrid general appearance that in them, God knows where, he was, up to this time, counted to be afraid of nothing. The robber chief addressed this monster, and adjured him, in the name of the Blessed God, in all who he was and what was his object in coming with this band of robbers. All present were astounded. The robber chief was filled with horrible grimace. Alas! I am betrayed. He then addressed the two the devil, saying that for fourteen years he had been planning the damnation of the chief of the band of robbers. But why, asked the religious, did you not carry off, during all this time, his unfortunate tool to hell? Because, replied the devil, he never neglected his daily tax to Mary, for if he had even once neglected his Angelical Salutation, he would ever be burning in hell! The servant of God represented the devil, but he meekly ordered the robber, who were now sufficiently terrified, to repeate their abominable sins by a life of repentance.

It is no wonder that the Church of God is so anxious that her children should frequently recite the Hail Mary; nor is it to be wondered at that she has granted so many indulgences to induce her children and persons in another belonging to certain associations, who frequently and piously recite this prayer of all prayers after the Our Father. Yes, the Catholic Church of God knows the power of this prayer, and will close the lower Mary's power. The name of Mary is so ineffable and so, we have embarrassed to explain it, would be enough to make it worthy of all honor. Mary, when to that sacred name is added the message of love for Mary and the whole human race that we are bound to her by the ties of this Trinity, and then the finding petition of the holy Church of God to the Lord, pleaseth that his all possible perfections, we should feel that we are acting unwisely when we spend so much time in reading and studying the prayers and pious books made by man, to the almost total neglect of the inspired prayer. Of course, we refer only to private and non-obligatory devotions, for assuredly whatever rule or ordinance the church may decree should be by those who are bound to follow such rule or to submit to such authority. Now, we believe is thoroughly convinced, and it requires no other proof than what is already in the hands of the faithful, of every Catholic, to be fully convinced that no prayer can equal, in any manner, the Hail Mary! Our Father to God, and the name must be said of the Hail Mary to the Blessed Virgin.

But lest there such a few well authenticated examples that will fully corroborate what we have just been proclaiming. William Pepin (Bonar, B. V. Serm. 17) tells us of a very holy soul who most tenderly loved the Blessed Mother, so much so, indeed, that she was constantly reciting the Hail Mary, and, if we may use the expression, had the Blessed Mother always in her heart. This pious soul one day, most seriously thought of her sins and of her honor, in the best manner, her holy Mother, and she exclaimed: Oh! I could only (and I would, if it depended on me), build churches, erect altars, found institutions, and do all in my power to honor my Mother with love for my good Mother. Without such the thing is the most Blessed Virgin appeared before her and declared to her that nothing is more pleasing to her than the Angelic Salutation. The pious soul, with fresh devotion and love, continued to recite the words so dear to the Immaculate Mother, the Hail Mary.

The glorious St. Methilda being one Saturday morning during the celebration of the Mass of the most Blessed Virgin, rapt into ecstasy, felt herself impelled to speak in this manner: "Most Immaculate Mother, the greatest happiness I could enjoy would be to address you with the most agreeable salutation that the human heart ever devised. Just at that moment the angel sent by the most Blessed Virgin, who carried on her breast the Angelic Salutation written in letters of gold, and she addressed to her in these words: My daughter, it is fully for a creature to pronounce a more sublime than the Creator, and to imagine that he can ever make a salutation equal to that which came to me from the God of Heaven! For what can be more sweet than the words of the Salutation, by which the Eternal Father conceived and made me understand that He, in His Omnipotence, had kept the resolution of an entirely new from me! What more agreeable than the name of Mary, which was brought to me from the lips of God, from Him who was to be incarnated in my womb! This same gave me to understand that I was destined as a star of the first magnitude to illumine Heaven and earth. What more cordial than the message from the Holy Ghost, my spouse, to me when I was asked by the Eternal Father was fully effected in me when those words signify! When persons, in reciting the Hail Mary, say to me, the Lord is with thee, they put me in mind of the admirable union of the Eternal Word with the flesh, and of the joy that I received when this incomprehensible mystery was accomplished in my womb. When I hear those reciting that I am blessed amongst women, I remember that the mercy of God has lifted me up every beyond all creatures. And when they add that the fruit of my womb is blessed, Heaven rejoices with me because my well-beloved Son has vivified and blessed there all that is created. (Lib. Gratiæ Spiritualis, Cap. 55).

Let it, then, be a fixed principle in the hearts of all of us that the Hail Mary is the dearest, the sweetest, and the best prayer that can possibly be pronounced by us to the Immaculate Mother of God; that it is the most pleasing, and to us most beneficial. The chance we repeat with devotion the Angelic Salutation, the more pleasure Mary, and the more blessings descend on us. Hence let us be careful to recite regularly the Rosary, which is an abridgment of the Gospel, and we will be sure to give the Blessed Mother the worship which is so acceptable to her. This devotion is unquestionably the great devotion to the Mother of God, and it may be said of it that it contains all others. Parents ought to be most particular in having a part of the Rosary recited every night by the whole family; many blessings will certainly be called down upon families who practice this devotion, and many evils will be averted from them. When we are employed at manual labor, when traveling, when going along the street, or in the care, in order that we may guard our senses and sanctify our souls, let us say over Our Fathers and seven Hail Marys in memory of the Sorrows of the Blessed Mother, and for the benefit of the souls in Purgatory, or for those in the horrible state of mortal sin. Much good has been done for ourselves and others by the earnest recitation of the Hail Mary under such circumstances. Let us also be faithful, if we have not done so already, to recite regularly every day some Hail Marys in thanksgiving to the Blessed Mother for the care she has taken of us up to this, and I beg of her to continue her maternal protection until we are safely placed in our heavenly home.

There is another point that we are most anxious to call attention to: there are a great many young ladies who wear beads bearing the name of Mary, but who, unfortunately, permit themselves to be robbed of that glorious name, and who seem to be quite content with some spurious substitute passed off on them, God knows when, where, or by whom. We say to all such young ladies—throw away those counterfeits and get back, as soon as possible, the genuine name. We most earnestly advise all parents who have a daughter named Mary, ever to remember in whose honor, and under whose protection, they had had so called, to take care that they themselves call such child by no other name than that of Mary, and to see that no one else, with impunity, in their hearing, trifle with so sacred a name. The Blessed Mother is not pleased at such trifling with the name of Mary, and there are instances on record to prove that she derived delights in having persons called Mary deprived of that sweet name.

10,000 IN USE.

—Manufactured Only and For Sale by—

FIGER BROS.,

Proprietors of the California Brush Factory,

615 SACRAMENTO ST., S. F.

HOWARD HOT AND COLD MINERAL SPRINGS!

HEALTH AND PLEASURE RESORT, LAKE CO., California. Fourteen Sulphur, Soda, Borax and Sulphur Springs, varying in temperature from 65 to 140 degrees. Unsurpassed for bathing purposes. Cures guaranteed in Rheumatism, Paralysis, Diabetes, Gravel, Chills and Fever, Skin Diseases, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Nervous Prostration, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Piles, etc. Hot water, Sulphur Steam Baths, Douches, Shampoos, Sulphur Vapor Baths, Electricity, Massage, Swimming Baths, Mineral Water, Wines and Liquors, Fishing, Hunting, Boating, Tennis, Croquet, Dancing, Billiards, Bowling, Music, Hops, Fruit, Game, Fish, Milk, Cream, Vegetables, Poultry, Pigeons, Pure Mountain Air, Cool Nights, Good Roads, Stage Fare, Hotel Rates, Board and Lodging, $10 per week. Hot and Cold Water Baths, Free. Hot Springs Station, on the Calistoga Branch of the Southern Pacific Railroad. Address, Howard Springs, Lake County, Cal.

INSURANCE.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY

OF CALIFORNIA.

FIRE AND MARINE.

Capital fully paid $500,000 00
Assets January 1, 1883 ..... 270,975 00
Losses paid since organization 267,556 79

PRINCIPAL OFFICE,

405 California Street, S. F.

JOHN H. WISE, President.
CHAS. A. LATON Secretary.

HAS REMOVED TO THE HOME MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY

Now occupies premises

NO. 216 SANSOME STREET.

19th ANNUAL EXHIBIT.

JANUARY 1st, 1883.

Premiums since organization $4,155,260 18
Losses since organization 1,896,086 85
Assets Jan. 1, 1882 ..... 713,136 69
Surplus for Policy Holders 1,175,266 69
Capital Paid Up 100,000 00
Cash Assets over everything 1,275,266 69

President ..... J. F. HOUGHTON
Vice-President ..... W. H. SEWELL
Secretary ..... CHAS. E. STORY
General Agent ..... R. E. BAGBY

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE

UNION INSURANCE COMPANY

OF SAN FRANCISCO,
THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,
ESTABLISHED IN 1861.

Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.

CAS H CAPITAL ..... $750,000 GOLD.
PAID SAFE,
PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES,
SOLID SECURITY.

DIRECTORS:
SAN FRANCISCO.

R. Brewster, Nicholas Luning,
A S Tubby, John Parrott,
Moses Heller, James Moffit,
D H Haskins, J Zeile,
M J O'Connor, M D Sweeny,
J Stetefeldt, Joseph Brandenstein,
Daniel Meyer, Gustave Touchard,
Adolph Sutro, C. O. Hobbs,
Antoine Borel, Geo C Hobbs,
Charles Kohler, J H Reed,
Joseph Seligman, Charles Neu,
Barclett Doe, W H Hoag,
J Lawrence Pool, William Sproule,
J Mora, John Cudy,
J H Heinze, J O Eastwood,

A B Fletge,
GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, President.
N. J. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BAILEY, Secretary.
OSCO. T. BOHEN, Surveyor.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN A. LENNON, Wholesale Grocer,

AND IMPORTER OF

Choice Brands

Japan and English Breakfast Tea.

☞ Agent for Pure White Sonora Wine, Church use. Also Pure Japanese, gold-cut Cheroots for connoisseurs, and Pure Olive Oil for Sacramental Usage.

Nos. 212 and 217 Clay Street ..... San Francisco

O'BRIEN & WARD'S

Male and Female.

EMPLOYMENT OFFICE.

MALE DEPARTMENT, 618 Clay Street
FEMALE DEPARTMENT, 606 Clay Street.

AWAYS TO BE HAD—FIRST-CLASS HOTEL Hands, Farm Hands, Laborers, Teamsters, Blacksmiths, Carpenters, Shoemakers, Miners, Quartz Miners, Quarrymen, Stone Masons, Stone Cutters, Stone Drillers, Tunnel Miners, Sawyers, Shingle Weavers, Cooks, Waiters, Waitresses, Chambermaids, Nurses, Seamstresses, Laundresses, Housekeepers, Ranch Cooks, Ranch Boys, Dairymen, Milkers, Vineyard Men, Gardeners, Grapevine Men, Orchard Men, Fruit Pick

Some Explorers.

SERVICES OF CATHOLICS TO GEOGRAPHY.

COLUMBUS AND OTHER ILLUSTRIOUS MEN.

Christianity Among the Early Northmen.

The subjoined sketch forms the introductory chapter to a series of essays on early Explorations and Missions in the Arctic regions, published some time since in the London Lamp:

SOME OF THE MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERIES.

The above heading will naturally bring to mind the recent Polar expeditions, with the names of Franklin, Parry, McClintock, and McClure, and many others, who, like Cook in the Pacific, and still more recently, Livingstone and Stanley in Africa, have been the principal and the only great discoverers and explorers in modern times. Yet it is only right to remember that the greatest and most important geographical discoveries recorded, date of the fifteenth century, and mark at a period when navigation presented difficulties and dangers a hundred-fold greater than at present, were the work of men, for the most part natives of the southern countries of Europe.

A SEACH OF ITALIAN DISCOVERERS.

Alluding to these great discoveries, the Protestant historian, Roscoe, says that "although the State of Italy derived fewer advantages from them than any other country in Europe, yet it is observable that the genius by whose courage, skill, and perseverance they were made, was principally Italian. Christopher Columbus was a native of Genoa; Amerigo Vespucci, after whom another was called, as he was the first to touch that new continent, was a Florentine. Giovanni Verrazzani, to whose office the French were so much indebted for their discoveries, was of the same country, and John and Sebastian Cabot, who rendered such important services to the English Crown, were of Venetian origin. Marco Polo, the celebrated traveler, was the Venetian, and so were the brothers Nicholas and Anthony Zeni, whose adventures in the Polar regions five centuries ago are about to relate."

DISTINGUISHED EXPLORERS OF OTHER NATIONS.

To these distinguished names we might add that of Vasco de Gama, the Portuguese, who discovered the Cape of Good Hope and the sea route to India, and his noble countryman, Prince Henry the Navigator; of Magellan, the Spaniard, who first wrote the name leading into the Pacific are still called; of Le Perouse, the Frenchman; of the Abbe Huc, whose travels in Tibet, Mongolia, and Chinese Tartary are well known. And there are but a few of the many names of celebrated men who, it is needless to observe, were Christians (the inventor of the mariners' compass was also one) whose connection with geography has caused a vast impulse to result, "that it may be considered the most Catholic of all the sciences."

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH IN RELATION TO DISCOVERIES.

But though the spirit of daring adventure, which has so eminently animated the breast of Italians, Spaniards, and Portuguese, seems now to be almost extinct, the Church has not lost, yet, the spirit of the Church in its relations with newly-discovered countries has not changed.

"From the earliest attempts at discovery," observes Prince, "the Roman Pontiffs had interested themselves with great earnestness in this pursuit, and no sooner do these efforts proved successful than they converted them to the purpose of extending the faith and authority of the Holy See. Or, in other words, the Church, true to her divine mission, immediately sent forth her missionaries to preach the gospel to these newly-discovered nations, to long 'sitting in the darkness, and in the shadow of death;' even as we omit in this very moment in Africa, where, notwithstanding the Slave Trade, some of civilization were the Portuguese missionaries."

JESUITS AND OTHER MISSIONARIES.

Fresh in the footsteps of Stanley, two bands of Catholic missionaries are just now traversing the Dark Continent, seeking neither riches, honor, nor renown, but, fearless of danger and of death, determined to convert the poor heathen and so long unknown inhabitants to the true faith.

Jesuits were the first to penetrate through the backwoods, far into the prairies, and to the sources of the great rivers of America, as Bancroft, another Protestant historian, relates, and they were the principal "pioneers" China and "strange" Japan, and Jesuits are again the first to enter these newly-discovered regions of Africa, all "for the greater glory of God."

The holy fathers with them are the ministers of Algiers, members of an association founded specially by the Archbishop of Algiers, together with a sisterhood, for the conversion of Africa.

Lyons has fed the African Society of Missions of Lyons at work, with whose pious object our readers are already acquainted. And there is still another institute, that of Verona, which was founded, with a sisterhood also, by Bishop Comboni, for the evangelization of Nigritia, while Paris, Brussels, Rome, and Vienna, have better known parts of Africa, we have representatives of the other religious orders unceasingly at work.

THE GREAT LONG TO THE CHURCH IN THE NORTH.

The Church, then, is always true to her mission, ever ready and prompt to do what she shall find in the following chapters she has actually done, even in the most remote parts of the earth—the Arctic regions. For the last three centuries, unhappily, however, these once truly Catholic northern nations have fallen into heresy or idolatry; yet, she has not given up all hope nor abandoned her efforts to re-convert them.

THE CHURCH AT WORK IN THE ARCTIC REGIONS.

In October last a beautiful church, dedicated to St. Michael, was opened at Hammerfest, the most northern part of the world, and is the first Catholic church ever built in Norwegian Lapland, and there is a church at Alteugeard, and one at Frenzen also. After a forced interval of three centuries the Church is now moving her labors among the half-heathen Lapplanders, whom she converted, and organized under the Swedish King, Magnus I., at which period we find that a church was built in Fortuna, Swedish Lapland, by the Archbishop of Upsal, A. D. 1275.

The last Catholic missionary to Lapland was Damian Goson, in 1540, when Lutheranism put a stop to his labors.

CHRISTIANITY AMONG THE EARLY NORTHMEN.

Passing over to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Iceland, who is there unmindful of the ferocious character of the early inhabitants of those countries, the famous Normans, or Northmen, and their Vikings or Sea kings.

It is related that the mere sight of those terrible men, when landing from their fleet boats for the first time on the shores of fair France, caused the famous Emperor Charlemagne to weep. He foresaw, doubtless, that there would be found no strong sword like his able to check or subdue those hordes, and we know how they subsequently overran England, Ireland, and Scotland, as well, bearing fire, death, and destruction in their train for ages, until they became subdued and civilized by the mild precepts of the faith to which they were at length converted by the monks who preached it to them with a zeal and devotion without limit.

The monastery of New Corbie (Corvey), on the banks of the Weser, was the starting point of the array of missionaries who converted the Scandinavians and the Slavs, as Fulda was the cradle of the apostles of Saxony.

THE MISSIONARY ST. ANSCHARIUS.

The most illustrious of these missionaries was St. Anschario, the great apostle of the North, a native of Old Corbie, on the banks of the Somme. He was quite young when duly authorized; he set out to preach the gospel to the northern nations of Europe. Anschario preached the faith in Holstein, Schleswig, Jutland, and Denmark, and even penetrated into Sweden. Whom only thirty-two became Archbishop of Hamburg and Bremen, and Legate of Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Iceland, and the Slavic countries. His apostolic labors were crowned by the glorious life in the severe labors of this rude soil, and died sighing after that martyrdom which he did not attain, much as he sought after it.

THE CONFRATERNITY OF ST. ANSCHARIUS.

Monks without number, his brethren in religion, followed in his footsteps, exhorting and perpetuating his work of conversion, forever battling against the ferocity and fickleness of these savage Scandinavians, who passed and repassed from Christianity to paganism, and from paganism to the most horrible cruelties, so that it took more than a century of preaching and suffering and martyrdom before the conversion of the Scandinavian nation was fully achieved.

HOW THEY CHANGED THE NORTHMEN.

Denmark became Christian under Canute the Great, and Sweden and Norway under the two Olafs; Iceland, the Ultima Thule, also received the faith, and, finally, Greenland, in 1036.

These formerly ferocious pirates, though they still retained their daring and adventurous disposition, were now changed to devoted Christians of the Church. They still secured their wild northern seas, but invariably implanted the faith in those new countries which they discovered, and of this we shall find a proof in the story of the Venetian voyagers, Nicholas and Anthony Zeni, and of Peter Querini.

Talmage on Mormonism.

Brooklyn's tabernacle preacher, Dr. De Witt Talmage, with all his eccentricity, occasionally gets of some very sensible things. Among his latest utterances is an address commencing Mormonism, which he terms the social cancer of America, and speaking of the recent arrival in New York of eight-hundred proselytes, says:

"The Government of the United States sits idiotically in the presence of this evil, and has been not only upon the defensive of all good people, but in a sworn foe of free institutions. Their missionaries are busy all the world over. Why this attempt of Congress on the part of our public men? The appalling fact must be stated that Mormonism has indeed become such a political power that public men who are candidates for office are afraid to express any position in the gift of the different States of the Union, are afraid to overpaddle the evil that their official prospects be blasted. Mormonism is not only strongest in Utah, but holds balance of power in several other States and Territories. The evil is powerfully entrenched and overshadows the national capital.

"In my opinion nothing but a great national revulsion will ever cure it. The days for the peaceful solution of this difficulty are past. By the year, by the month, by the hour, Mormonism is gathering momentum. A few batteries mounted on the hills around Salt Lake City might once have put a quietus on this great great cancer, but it is not now. The only way in which it can be done is by national exhaustion the curse is to be extirpated. But go it must. Continued, sickening throes and life of this nation will go. What have we got into Church and State and reformatory institutions, make as long as this organized libertinism and unthroned lasciviousness are allowed to remain? We are capable of throttling this evil have not we come to the point, I ask, never from what State they will come, and in which Congress they will appear, and what will be the mode of their attack. Eight hundred emissaries of Mormonism under the care of their captors allowed on the Sabbath day to pass through New York is a monstrosity, and of all the satanities of the week is the most calamitous.

The Irish Question.

English statesmen and editors try to make it appear that they must understand the real cause of destitution in Ireland. The ignorance of the English on the Irish question is only equalled by that of an old quack doctor who had been trusting a child for some time, and finally discovered it to be a dying condition. "I never thought it would die of crazy," said the distressed mother. "Humph," exclaimed the quack, "Why didn't you tell me the child had fits?" "That's the first I have heard of it." The English have been doing Ireland for seven centuries, and it is time they found out what was the matter. Our own opinion is that Ireland has been bled too much, and has not had enough to eat. Changing the simile, the condition of Ireland reminds us of a poor dray horse that has received hard treatment and starvation. A crowd gathers around the poor, prostrate animal, and every one proceeds to make suggestions. One fellow thinks that twisting the animal's tail or stuffing a bit of tobacco into his nostrils would do the trick. Another asserts that a liberal application of the lash will cause the poor brute to rise on its feet. After a surplus has had their say, a quiet old farmer takes a good look at the exhausted framework of what once was a horse and then asks the exasperated owner, who has been pounding and lashing the poor creature dead, if he ever thought of giving it a good feed of oats. Ireland is the poor dray horse, and the English are the crowd.

— We take pleasure in calling attention to Prettiner & Co's. advertisement on our 8th page. This firm is now so well known for square dealing that it is almost needless for us to inform our readers that they have money by for purchasing from them. They are the leading Clothiers and Hatters on this coast, so do not fail to give them a call.

— All our readers need groceries—and if they do not they should—and if they do they should relax—they cannot do better than go to the popular grocery, Steinhart & Co., 631 Washington Street. This firm carries a very large stock, and we know from experience that they are thoroughly reliable. They supply several of our Catholic institutions, and their business is growing on the coast. Square dealing has made them a host of friends and we are glad to note that they are ahead of all competitors. Our country readers should send a trial order.

— For health, strength and vigor drink Dominic Bitters.

— The National Surgical Institute, 319 Bush street, in the Western Division of the N. S. Institute of Indianapolis and Philadelphia, which is so celebrated for the cure of all deformities and diseases of the human frame, such as club feet, crooked limbs, club feet, paralysis, piles and fistula. Call and see patients, and our facilities for curing them. References given and testimonials if desired.

— For a good appetite drink Dumlans Bitters.

REFORMED IN CONGRESS.—The well-known firm of Sharboro & Co., 521 Washington street, have just issued their revised price list of genuine partner desirous of purchasing either for family or boarding house would do well to give them a call and thus reduce their monthly expenses.

— If a set for teeth—warranted as good as can be made. Teeth filling, $1. Dr. Simms, Dentist, 825 Market street.

— We refer our readers to Professor Howard's advertisement on the 8th page. The institution speaks for itself, and many will be glad to learn that the Hair Restorative has proved a great success. All those in need of it should at once call upon the Professor at 415 Powell street.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

HEIMAN BROS.,
Popular One-Price Clothiers,
1026 to 1030 Market St.
NOTICE.—Our store is closed on Sundays.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

— Two Protestant gentlemen of Boston have had 20,000 copies of Bishop Ireland's address to the U. T. A. printed, and by the first Sunday in August, printed for distribution in Massachusetts.

— More than 800 pilgrims will go to the sanctuary of Lourdes this year. Taking an average of 1,200 to each pilgrimage, the total reaches 960,000, not counting those who go alone or in private parties.

— Our Daniel Murphy a blind man, has erected a $25,000 monument in a New York cemetery overpass England, Ireland, and Scotland, as well, bearing fire, death, and destruction in their train for ages, until they became subdued and civilized by the mild precepts of the faith to which they were at length converted by the monks who preached it to them with a zeal and devotion without limit.

The monastery of New Corbie (Corvey), on the banks of the Weser, was the starting point of the array of missionaries who converted the Scandinavians and the Slavs, as Fulda was the cradle of the apostles of Saxony.

THE MISSIONARY ST. ANSCHARIUS.

The most illustrious of these missionaries was St. Anschario, the great apostle of the North, a native of Old Corbie, on the banks of the Somme. He was quite young when duly authorized; he set out to preach the gospel to the northern nations of Europe. Anschario preached the faith in Holstein, Schleswig, Jutland, and Denmark, and even penetrated into Sweden. Whom only thirty-two became Archbishop of Hamburg and Bremen, and Legate of Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Iceland, and the Slavic countries. His apostolic labors were crowned by the glorious life in the severe labors of this rude soil, and died sighing after that martyrdom which he did not attain, much as he sought after it.

THE CONFRATERNITY OF ST. ANSCHARIUS.

Monks without number, his brethren in religion, followed in his footsteps, exhorting and perpetuating his work of conversion, forever battling against the ferocity and fickleness of these savage Scandinavians, who passed and repassed from Christianity to paganism, and from paganism to the most horrible cruelties, so that it took more than a century of preaching and suffering and martyrdom before the conversion of the Scandinavian nation was fully achieved.

HOW THEY CHANGED THE NORTHMEN.

Denmark became Christian under Canute the Great, and Sweden and Norway under the two Olafs; Iceland, the Ultima Thule, also received the faith, and, finally, Greenland, in 1036.

These formerly ferocious pirates, though they still retained their daring and adventurous disposition, were now changed to devoted Christians of the Church. They still secured their wild northern seas, but invariably implanted the faith in those new countries which they discovered, and of this we shall find a proof in the story of the Venetian voyagers, Nicholas and Anthony Zeni, and of Peter Querini.

Talmage on Mormonism.

Brooklyn's tabernacle preacher, Dr. De Witt Talmage, with all his eccentricity, occasionally gets of some very sensible things. Among his latest utterances is an address commencing Mormonism, which he terms the social cancer of America, and speaking of the recent arrival in New York of eight-hundred proselytes, says:

"The Government of the United States sits idiotically in the presence of this evil, and has been not only upon the defensive of all good people, but in a sworn foe of free institutions. Their missionaries are busy all the world over. Why this attempt of Congress on the part of our public men? The appalling fact must be stated that Mormonism has indeed become such a political power that public men who are candidates for office are afraid to express any position in the gift of the different States of the Union, are afraid to overpaddle the evil that their official prospects be blasted. Mormonism is not only strongest in Utah, but holds balance of power in several other States and Territories. The evil is powerfully entrenched and overshadows the national capital.

"In my opinion nothing but a great national revulsion will ever cure it. The days for the peaceful solution of this difficulty are past. By the year, by the month, by the hour, Mormonism is gathering momentum. A few batteries mounted on the hills around Salt Lake City might once have put a quietus on this great great cancer, but it is not now. The only way in which it can be done is by national exhaustion the curse is to be extirpated. But go it must. Continued, sickening throes and life of this nation will go. What have we got into Church and State and reformatory institutions, make as long as this organized libertinism and unthroned lasciviousness are allowed to remain? We are capable of throttling this evil have not we come to the point, I ask, never from what State they will come, and in which Congress they will appear, and what will be the mode of their attack. Eight hundred emissaries of Mormonism under the care of their captors allowed on the Sabbath day to pass through New York is a monstrosity, and of all the satanities of the week is the most calamitous.

The Irish Question.

English statesmen and editors try to make it appear that they must understand the real cause of destitution in Ireland. The ignorance of the English on the Irish question is only equalled by that of an old quack doctor who had been trusting a child for some time, and finally discovered it to be in a dying condition. "I never thought it would die of crazy," said the distressed mother. "Humph," exclaimed the quack, "Why didn't you tell me the child had fits?" "That's the first I have heard of it." The English have been doing Ireland for seven centuries, and it is time they found out what was the matter. Our own opinion is that Ireland has been bled too much, and has not had enough to eat. Changing the simile, the condition of Ireland reminds us of a poor dray horse that has received hard treatment and starvation. A crowd gathers around the poor, prostrate animal, and every one proceeds to make suggestions. One fellow thinks that twisting the animal's tail or stuffing a bit of tobacco into his nostrils would do the trick. Another asserts that a liberal application of the lash will cause the poor brute to rise on its feet. After a surplus has had their say, a quiet old farmer takes a good look at the exhausted framework of what once was a horse and then asks the exasperated owner, who has been pounding and lashing the poor creature dead, if he ever thought of giving it a good feed of oats. Ireland is the poor dray horse, and the English are the crowd.

— The number of victims that Heart Disease has claimed for its own is appalling, but we are glad to know that there is a remedy for the dreadful malady. Dr. Bigger's Heart Tonic has proved the stoppe of Dr. Bigger's Heart Tonic that there is no doubt but that the disease can be cured. The depot is at N. W. Cor. Bush and The streets. Ask your druggist for it.

— We take pleasure in calling attention to Prettiner & Co's. advertisement on our 8th page. This firm is now so well known for square dealing that it is almost needless for us to inform our readers that they have money by for purchasing from them. They are the leading Clothiers and Hatters on this coast, so do not fail to give them a call.

— All our readers need groceries—and if they do not they should—and if they do they should relax—they cannot do better than go to the popular grocery, Steinhart & Co., 631 Washington Street. This firm carries a very large stock, and we know from experience that they are thoroughly reliable. They supply several of our Catholic institutions, and their business is growing on the coast. Square dealing has made them a host of friends and we are glad to note that they are ahead of all competitors. Our country readers should send a trial order.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS are not held forth or recommended, (like most of the popular medicines of the day), as universal remedies, but are offered to the public as the best pills, and, in fact, they are connected with a discovery of Dr. McLane's, which is unequaled as a cathartic.

WILLIAM F. SHANON, Chem.
By J. L. DISBROW, New York.
R. M. SWAIN, Attorney for Plaintiff.

THE ONLY GENUINE
McLANE'S PILLS,
Are the Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills,
PREPARED BY
FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

HOUSEKEEPERS!
ATTENTION!
THE LONDON TEA COMPANY,
— WHOLESALE AND RETAIL —
GROCERS,
40 THIRD ST., NEAR MARKET.
PRESENTS IN THE COUNTRY WILL DO WELL
If we send on a list of articles required, we will post our price list (free) and mail it back to their agents. All goods packed and shipped free of charge. Establishment made up of the
STEPHEN JACKSON

EMIL FRESE'S
HAMBURG TEA.
That safe, good old German Family Medicine for all complaints of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels; Carminative, Alterative and gently Cathartic.
REDINGTON & CO., San Francisco, U. S. A.

"NOTES ON INCERSOLL,"
By Rev. Leon A. Lambert.
The latest and most crushing answer to Ingersoll's hitherto unanswered arguments. It pleases all Catholics and Protestants, Jew and Gentile, are equally delighted with Father Lambert's terrible critique of the "Modern Voltaire." Three editions in three months; the fourth now ordering large lots from all the principal wholesale houses. Price, elegantly bound in cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents. Address, Catholic Publishing Company, No. 32, Stephen's Hall, Buffalo, N. Y.
A liberal discount to the trade. A million copies can be sold.

Market Report.

Corrected Weekly by F. J. Daly, 604 Battery street.

MONITOR OFFICE,
636 Clay St., Tuesday Evening, July 31, 1883.

WHEAT—Quotations are ..... $1 00@1 05
FLOUR—Flour is selling at ..... 5 12½@5 50
Cornmeal, yellow ..... 3 00@3 50
Cornmeal, white 1 75
Corn ..... 1 50@1 60
Barley ..... 90@91
Bran, ⅌ ton, wholesale ..... 16 00@17 00
Ground Barley, ⅌ ton ..... 23 00@24 00
Middlings ..... 20 00@22 00
HAY—
Wheat, ⅌ ton ..... 13 00@14 00
Barley, ⅌ ton ..... 11 00@13 00
Alfalfa, ⅌ ton ..... 6 00@9 00
WOOL—
Wool ..... 20@22
Eastern Oregon ..... 12@24
Choice Northern 25
MEATS—
Beef, wholesale ..... 8@9½
Mutton, wholesale ..... 11@12
Veal, wholesale ..... 7 00@8 00
Pork, wholesale ..... 7@8
Eastern Sugar-cured Hams ..... 14@16½
California Hams 12
Shoulders 10
Bacon, ⅌ 100 lb. 12
Lard, ⅌ lb. wholesale ..... 12@13½
VEGETABLES—
Potatoes, white, ⅌ 100 lb. ..... 3 75@4 00
Onions, sacks ..... 2 75@3 00
Cabbages, ⅌ 100 lb. ..... 1 25@1 50
Turnips, ⅌ 100 ..... 75@1 00
Onions ..... 4@5
Garlic ..... 8@1 00
Green Peppers ..... 50@1 00
Sweet Potatoes ..... 2@2½
Squash, ⅌ lbs. ..... 1 00@1 50
Vegetables ..... 1 00@1 50
Quinces ..... 75@1
Garlic 2
Cauliflowers ..... 60@75
Green Peas ..... 5@6½
Celery, ⅌ bunch 50
FRUITS—
Pears, ⅌ doz. wholesale ..... 8 00@9 00
Peaches, ⅌ box 1 00
Turkeys, ⅌ lb. wholesale ..... 23@24
Ducks, ⅌ doz. ..... 9 00@7 00
Geese, ⅌ pair ..... 1 25@1 50
Brollers ⅌ doz. ..... 4 00@7 00
Young Roosters ..... 10 00@11 00
Old Roosters ..... 6 00@7 00
Pigeons ..... 3 00@3 25
Squab ..... 3 50@3 75
EGGS—
Choice, ⅌ doz. ..... 20@25
Medium California ..... 20@25
Eastern ..... 20@22½
BUTTER—
Choice fresh roll ..... 25@28
Fancy ..... 30@32
Medium ..... 20@22
Pickle ..... 17@18
Pickled ..... 20@25
Eastern ..... 17@20
DOMESTIC FRUIT—
Green apples, ⅌ box ..... 50@1 00
California Pears ..... 60@1 00
Dried Lemons ..... 6 00@10 00
Mission Grapes 10 00
Tomatoes, ⅌ box 1 00
Tomatoes, ⅌ barrel ..... 15 00@17 00
Lime ..... 1 00@1 10
Cow Chevalier ..... 1 60@1 75
No. 1 ..... 1 60@1 70
No. 2 ..... 1 00@1 10
STRAW—
Straw, ⅌ bale ..... 40@75
BERRYAS—
Raspberry, ⅌ lb. ..... 20@30
HIDES—
California Dry, ⅌ lb. ..... 13@17
Dry Kips ..... 16@17
Calf ..... 17@20
Salted ..... 8@10
Salted Kips ..... 8@10
Sheep Skins, each, shearlings ..... 10@20
Pelts 25
Rendered 2
Tallow ..... 1½@3
TRIPE—
Tripe ..... 8@10
Calf ..... 14@15

New Advertisements.

FRATINGER & CO.,
CLOAK and SUIT HOUSE.
Tailor-made Jackets in Cloth.
Tailor-made Jackets in Broadcloth.
Tailor-made Jackets in Ottoman Silk.
Tailor-made Jackets in Diagonal Silk.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Garnet.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Tunics in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Garnet.
Ladies' Jersey Ulsters in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Gray.
Ladies' Jersey Jackets in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Tetorgah Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Brown.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Cardinal.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Garnet.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Navy Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Scarlet.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Black.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Pale Pink.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Pale Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Forest Green.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Tetorgah Blue.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Crushed Strawberry.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Terra Cotta.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in Black Silk.
Ladies' Jersey Waists in the New Tan Color
Ladies' Satin Waistings Silks in Black.
Ladies' Satin Waistings Silks in all Colors.
Ladies' Colored Dolmans.
Ladies' Gray Crossway Ulsters.
Children's Kate Greenaway Ulsters.
Ladies' Woolen Suits ..... $ 50 00
Ladies' Woolen Suits 60 00
Ladies' Black Cashmere Suits 12 00
Ladies' Black Silk Suits 24 00
Ladies' Cloth Jackets, Spring Style 10 00
Ladies' Cloth Jackets, Spring Style 15 00
Ladies' Cloth Ulsters, Spring Style 15 00
Ladies' Cloth Ulsters, Spring Style 4 00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed 6 00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed 10 00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed 12 00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Chenille Fringe 15 00
Ladies' Black Mantle, Lace Trimmed 12 50
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 16 00
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 17 50
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 20 00
Ladies' Black Dolmans, Lace Trimmed 20 00
Ladies' Brocade Pelisses, Lace Trimmed 20 00
Ladies' Brocade Pelisses, Lace Trimmed 20 00
Ladies' Satin Pelisses, Lace Trimmed 20 00
Ladies' Satin Pelisses, Lace Trimmed 20 00
Ladies' Lace Lisse Dress 15 00
Ladies' Mohair Ulsters 15 00

FRATINGER & CO.,
THE LEADING
CLOAK AND SUIT HOUSE,
105 KEARNY ST.

$5,000
GIVEN AWAY IN PREMIUMS!
An Opportunity of a Life-Time.
A CHANCE SELDOM OFFERED
OPEN TO ALL COMPETITORS.
Nothing to Lose.
Everything to Gain.
No Money to Put Up
EXTRAORDINARY INDUCEMENTS TO AGENTS
OFFERED BY THE UNIVERSAL
BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION
OF CALIFORNIA
FOR UNMARRIED PERSONS
ARE YOU INTERESTED? IF SO, READ THE FOLLOWING.
FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS
— TO BE —
ACTUALLY GIVEN AWAY.
LIST OF PREMIUMS.
1. A Cash Premium in Gold of ..... (GOLD) $1,000.00
2. A Cash Premium in Gold of ..... (GOLD) 500.00
3. One Elegant Square Grand Piano, value 400.00
4. A Handsome Cabinet Organ, value 250.00
5. A Cash Premium in Gold of ..... (GOLD) 250.00
6. A Handsome Cabinet Organ, value 200.00
7. An Elegant Two-Horse Carriage, value 175.00
8. A Gent's Elegant Gold Hunting Case Watch, value 150.00
9. A Lady's Elegant Gold Hunting Case Watch, value 150.00
10. A Gent's Gold Hunting Case Watch, value 100.00
11. A Cash Premium in Gold of ..... (GOLD) 100.00
12. A Lady's Elegant Gold Hunting Case Watch, value 100.00
13. A Gent's Elegant Genuine Diamond Ring, value 75.00
14. A Lady's Elegant Genuine Diamond Ring, value 75.00
15. A New Model Improved Sewing Machine, value 75.00
16. A New Latest Improved Sewing Machine, value 75.00
17. A Beach Long-Big Double Barrelled Shot Gun, value 50.00
18. A New Latest Improved Sewing Machine, value 50.00
19. A Genuine China Dinner and Tea Service, value 50.00
20. A Gent's Elegant Solid Wedding Gold Watch, value 50.00
&c. Also, 25 Premiums consisting of 25 Sets Wedding Genuine Silver Hunting Case Watches, worth $25.00 each, ea.
The above premiums will consist of Diamond Rings, Finger Rings, Gold Pins, Silver Watches, Gold Watches, Wedding Rings, Sewing Machines, Pianos, Organs, Carriages, Hunting Watches, Diamond Rings, Gold Pens, Gold Pens and Pencils, Gold Chains, Ear Rings, Lockets, Diamond Pins, Gold Bracelets, Cups lined with gold, etc., Gold Pens, Pencils, etc., Automatic Foot Rests, Sand, Gold Watches

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

ODE TO ST. PATRICK.

BY JAMES R. GAVIN.

Lo, how the morn with scented wing
Chases the waking night,
And beauties, new unfolded, spring
Into a clime bright.
Hark, how the growing horns inspire
The wood-notes of the linkered choir;
Their happy songs outpour,
Smiling, the hollow of each rock, hear,
New music waking to the ear,
A jocund tocsin roar.

And softly on the scattered air,
From many a shaded bed,
Above the cloud-notes, ringing clear,
The sylvan choristers swell,
And empty, as an angel voice,
Up what silence fell each heart rejoice,
The zephyrs hence bugale—
The soul in broadlike rovers given
Shall feel the power they bring of heaven,
And with new pleasure rise.

And why these choral raptures rare,
These midnight bird hymns shrill,
The voice of water over it air,
The bell call from the hill?
And wherefore hies the chatting bard,
So gladly through the furrowed land,
And so his lyre wake
Where horn the verdant meadow breast,
Is, trodd'st sole pale dewed
With fringe of lettuceage?

Rris, these modest cherub spirit
Wreath'd from the tree of Faith!
Thy great heart treasures the relish
That ever wakes at your touch,
And when the joyous morning ray
Gives to the day birth,
Even grandsire sorrow
Wears youth's fresh and children prize
To hearts of holy Hierarchs!
Thine, Patrick, is such.

A lowly, humble, pious throne
Around the Eternal Sacrifice
Truly earnest hearts are beating strong
Who, like and love divine;
And gratitude, in tears and sighs,
Is related fresh each other
A precious treasure, ever
Who, alone prompt, Christ's tree,
Of radiant hope and purity,
Of charity and love.

Fitted with a Faith that wavered not,
The Saint to Erin came
Yet enough to receive the faint hope
Might hear the Blessed Name;
With energy and, and quickening love,
He spread the word brought from above,
Nor ceased from toil
More wondrous love than Cadmus reaped,
A lowly warrior conquered keeped
To battle for their God.

The soul agitor which their breast
Is alight in the heavens!
Around Christ's cross they gathered
The Devil then in wonder did
Lo, Ireland's Isle, the Gem of the world!
The crown to crown in sight.
Ireland's Patrick, the Apostle pile
Proclaim a conqueror!
The home of the brave!

His sacred mission soon fulfilled,
By work so intense, lonely may hold,
Of Ireland's Patrick
Oh through the Isle they shall
Ireland's Patrick, the Apostle
And blessed the little bard,
Ireland's Patrick, the Apostle
The Faith, the Faith, and
Ireland's Patrick, the Apostle

Oh, faithful servant of the Lord,
Thy lot as in our sorrow
Thy lot as in our sorrow
The harvest of thy soul
Ireland's Patrick, the Apostle
Should what speed the people and hymn
Ireland's Patrick, the Apostle
The people, as gentle dove, shall hoop
Ireland's Patrick, the Apostle
Ozanam, New Jersey.

Literary Miscellany.

The Poor Tailor.

"I'm a happy fellow—very happy indeed," remarked Wynck, a poor tailor, who dwelt in one of the dull-fashioned streets in the Tottenham Court Road. I shall receive from the Postmaster Harmon for making this chair shall be pleased along with me I have already laid up, and, if Heaven does not pin me, I'll end my little Elizabeth, I am a happy fellow."

So saying, he rubbed his hands together with much satisfaction, and, drawing his chair closer to the fire, and there was an inscription over the door recording in a few lines the history of the place, and concluded, and the cry of hilarity is so often heard from the lips of the poor, and the cry of the poor, and the fulfillment of his hopes, and the fulfillment of his hopes, and the fulness of his joy, which is the fulfilment of his hopes, he caught sparking at the top of his voice, and, rubbing his hands, for a hearty comely-dressed cavalier, dashed violently into the house, seized an old sword which hung over the mantel. Rejoice and disappointed in vanity, so he had entered.

"This is strange! Surprised Karl. "My tailor does not look like a thief."

So he flung aside his work, jumped up from the Wolf, and, rushing to the door, unbolt at a short distance two gentlemen in cloaks and three other. One of the cavaliers almost instantly fell dead, while the victor, casting away his weapon, fell prostrate on the floor.

Karl paid little attention to the fugitive, but flew to the assistance of the fallen cavalier, whose hand still grasped his rapier; he had been thrown through the heart with the sword which had remained for many years a harmless ornament of the nail over the poor tailor's fireplace, but now by near the scepter of the cavalier stained with gore. The sight for a moment deprived Karl of his senses, and motion. His horror increased as he heard several voices in the crowd, which had been drawn to the spot, denounce him as an assassin. Karl gave himself up for a lost man.

He attempted to explain the matter, but he did it in such a confused manner, and trembled so violently, that many of the bystanders who knew him to be a peaceable and inoffensive young man now considered him guilty. In short he was immediately hurried off to prison as a murderer.

Here he was left to feel the horrors of his miserable situation; he paced his dungeon with throbbing heart and distracted brain, and thought on his blighted hopes and his sweetheart, who, he felt, pronounced, would grant his very name, and his dear remembrance. He had, however, the melancholy satisfaction to feel that such was not the case. Elizabeth was once at the prison where in the arms of her lover, and, in a tender manner, whisper the comfort she herself so much needed.

But the gentle reader, as in all such cases, is requested to imagine the grief of the young couple under such heavy affliction. The stranger who had been killed was not known to any of the townspeople. He had that day arrived at Amsterdam, and from his appearance was judged to be a gentleman.

"Karl was put upon his trial, and, the evidence against him being decisive, he was condemned to die. In vain did he urge his innocence; in vain did he repeat the story of the combat between the two cavaliers, and how the slayer had procured the weapon with which he had destroyed his antagonist, and equally vain were numerous testimonials of good conduct and solicitude which his neighbors rendered in his favor. Poor Karl was condemned to die; and, though pitied by many, was thought deserving the fate to which he had condemned another.

The day of the execution arrived. Karl took leave of his dear Elizabeth with a burning heart; but he resolved to meet death like a man, and walked with a firm step to the place of death. Ascending the scaffold, he looked with a hurried glance upon the vast crowd which had assembled to see him die. A body of the horse-guard surrounded the scaffold to keep off the throng which completely filled the square, while every window and housetop was occupied by the burghers and their families. The melancholy sound of the death-bell mingled with the murmur of the immense crowd, from which Karl endeavored to avert his face; but as he did so his eye rested on the athletic figure and stern features of the executioner, whose bewry arms bared to the elbows, reposed on his huge two-handed sword, which, already sanguinated, pleased brightly in the morning sun.

"Alas!" thought Karl, "was preparation for the death of a poor tailor.

One, unobserved, dressed like a sleepy-man, ascended the scaffold and built by his side.

"Karl Wynck," he whispered, "I can save thee."

"How?" murmured the tailor.

"Ambition!" replied the other, and I will transport thee is an instant to some be distant country."

Karl started to his feet as soon as ably the guards grasped their halberds, supposing he meditated escape; but he had no such intention

THE MONITOR.
OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE ARCHDIOCESE OF SAN FRANCISCO.
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1883.
PAUL EGAN, P. P. — ALEMANY, O. P.

CIRCULARS FROM ARCHBISHOP ALEMANY, O.P.

The following Circulars were read in all the churches of the Archdiocese on Sunday last:

TO THE CLERGY OF THE DIOCESE OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Rev. Dear Sir:—I learn that some persons or persons, representing themselves as Hodmisdiles, give or sell medals, with which they pretend to cure almost all sorts of disease. Please caution your people from the Altar against all such impositions.

Yours truly in Christ,
✠ J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,
Abp. S. F.

San Francisco, July 26, 1883.

LOST CHILD.

ANNA MORISSY, age, four and a half years, light hair, fair complexion, stout build, full features, slowly dressed in a brown woolen dress with silk trimmings, brown straw hat with brown ribbon, and red stockings. Is bashful and timid. Strayed away from her parents on July 18th, at Belmont, while they were attending a Picnic at that place. The child was seen after she was missed, at about 3.30 P. M. on that day at Belmont Station by two persons who do business at that Station. The parents of the child are hard working people and deplore the loss of their child very much. All whom attention is called to this will please aid in the matter. Any act not holding myself responsible for any expense. I understand the following rewards have been offered for the recovery of the child: $200 by the father, and $150 by the Carpenters' Union of the city.

✠ J. S. ALEMANY,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

The New Coadjutor for this Archdiocese.

As officially announced in our columns last week, Rev. PATRICK W. RIONDAN, at present Pastor of St. James' parish, Chicago, has been named as Coadjutor to his Grace Archbishop Alemany, O. P.

Judging from both public and private inquiries, the appointment is one Coadjutor, he is just the Prelate who will be able to assist our venerable Archbishop in the vast and ever-increasing duties of the management of the spiritual and temporal concerns of this Archdiocese. Father Riordan was born of Irish parents, in New Brunswick, and is about forty-two years of age, but well in things with his parents when a mere boy. He received his early education there under the supervision of his uncle, the Very Rev. Vicar-General of St. Patrick's church of that city, and Chaplain of one of the Illinois Regiments in the War of the Rebellion. He received his ecclesiastical education at St. Mary's Seminary, and finished his theological studies at the University of Louvain, Belgium, where he was a chum mate of Bishop Spalding of Peoria, and Bishop Keane, now Rector of the Catholic University. His career as a priest has been that of a zealous, hard-working, practical and active pastor, which has gained for him the reputation of being among the ablest men in the Church in America. As a pulpit orator, Father Riordan is only surpassed by the family of Lordy; the faith in the hearts of all who hear him, and of captivating even non-Catholics by the brilliancy of his ideas, the clearness of his conceptions, and his unaffected yet forcible style in which he hands forth Christian truth before the multitudes attracted by the logic of his eloquence and the beauties of his diction.

Father Riordan has been for twelve years Rector of St. James' parish, where he has succeeded in erecting a magnificent church, a school, convent, and established confraternities which have drawn around him one of the most efficient and devout congregations in Chicago. In all the work he has undertaken Father Riordan has spoken directly to the necessity of his parishioners, and he has never appealed to them in vain, as highly is he esteemed and beloved by them. Such is the man who is to share in his their true spiritual Father and their ever-constant friend.

The consecration ceremonies will take place in this Cathedral on Sunday, but as yet no definite date has been fixed for the direction to the Episcopate of one whose future career in the Church will be connected with the history of the most important Diocese in America.

Another "Disrupting English Lie."

The intense and deep hatred of the Loan Ten Tablet against the Catholics of Ireland is a marvel of wonder. It lets no occasion pass that it does not invent some calumny against them. Even the death of Father Tom Burke—God rest his soul!—was made one of by that pro-British press to insult his memory. It is a pity that his last hours were embittered with the reflection that the Irish Catholics had chosen illegal and criminal political paths, which he, as a priest of the Church, would not follow. This last separation on the Irish race never found lodgment in the pure, holy, and patriotic soul of Father Tom Burke, but was manufactured out of the spleen of the Tablet in order to gratify its revenge upon the dead Irish Lion for the whipping he gave the English jackal hounds.

Of all the papers in the world unlikely to have the confidence of Father Burke upon any subject—religious or national—the London Tablet would be the last on the list. Like Archbishop Croke, Bishop Nulty, and nearly all the Bishops in Ireland, Father Burke would not touch the Tablet even with a tongs. The chief virulent and vicious organ of English intended hate against poor, starved, suffering, sorrowing, but ever-faithful Ireland, asked the ghoul over the grave of the dead Dominican by attributing to him thoughts he never harbored, and by bolstering the character of the best man of Catholicity in the world—a man that has proved its faith by the blood of its martyrs! Protestant, Catholic, English and Irish people will see the hand of all the royal Bourbons who joined they had claimed his brother priests and "left alone in his glory."

No such disclaimer facts become known that we are satisfied if the United States were to advertise to-morrow for fifty Catholic Army Chaplains, we should come provided with credentials from their Bishops, we doubt if fifty applicants would be found among the 6,500 priests in America. Nor do we believe we can find out of the 75 Bishops in America there are five who would permit their priests to enter on a life which is so different from that which is the natural course of a Catholic clergyman.

We crote and published many articles in favor of Army Chaplains years ago, but from what we know of the temptations and difficulties in the way of the Post Chaplain, the associates he has to mingle with or the mess table, the temptations of big pay and little work, and the general atmosphere of worldliness—and very often wickedness—which at all times surrounds him, we are prepared to extend our sympathy to any priest who accepts the position of Post Chaplain.

We doubt Father Maple will be able to explain the causes which delayed him on his visit to France, but we greatly fear that the present Secretary of War—no friend to priests or Catholics, anyhow—will insist on his resignation in order to escape disagreeable questions. In this event, we doubt if another Catholic Army Chaplain will be appointed for many years.

THE DUBLIN FREEMAN ON THE PARNELL FUND.

Of the "National Tribute" to Mr. Parnell the Dublin Weekly Freeman of July 7th says:

"The Parnell Testimonial is to-day over $17,000. It is a noble effort. Every penny of it has been contributed by people who made the tribute. We know the hard times that are pressing on them. We have had too many proofs of the generosity of our people to doubt for a moment that when once the sympathy and strength of the nation are really attached to the work will ever flag or fail short of the kind of help required and exciting circumstances. But Mr. Parnell has no proven his strength as a leader within the last few days that we think it would be treason not to put down in words, that we believe it is based on the recognition by the people, and to call upon them to prove substantially and by deed the debt he has laid the tenants and Nationalists of Ireland under to Mr. Parnell. We believe that never, even Irish land reform, was the country. Cold rather than impetuous, reserved rather than elegant, to the the time and has proven himself to be the gem of the Irish Party. In the Meath election Mr. Parnell has won hundreds of thousands of friends for the tenants' home-holders and yeoman of Ireland. We come down to the immediate question, and we speak our mind strongly, and we say without hesitation that he has not only given his services to the job by which the tenants would have to pay for the lands at fully one-third over their rents to the landlords, but he has bought the tenants of the Land Act that the crops of Ireland are not to be wickedness to include landlords, to preclude the possibility of a tenant being charged rent for his improvements, and, along with many other things, that the judicial rent must date from the day of application. We instance these points as the immediate fruits of the Parnell Fund. Healy for Monaghan, and of the short but sharp campaign which was fought under Mr. Parnell's own eye. We say that the tenants owe the Leader of the Irish Party a debt which no Irishman can forget, and the proud of a General who led them to victory, owed to their capital."

Is Masonry the Representative of this Republican People?

We see by the daily press that the corner-stone of the Garfield monument, which is to be erected in Golden Gate Park, is to be laid by a body of oath-bound secret society man known as "the Grand Lodge of California." Now, in the name of all the people of California outside the Lodge rooms of this secret organization, we protest against this mode of supplanting the State and city authorities in such a function and substituting therefor a set of secret society men who foist themselves forward on all such public occasions in order to show the influence of the Masonic Order and thereby gain recruits for their Lodge rooms.

The committee charged with the erection of the Garfield monument in this State appealed to citizens of all religious creeds to help them in this work of honoring Garfield, the President. Catholics and anti-Masons gave their contributions, not a cent of which would they have given had they understood it was a Masonic movement in disguise; hence the monument belongs to the people, it was subscribed for by the people, and no secret society on earth should be allowed to arrogate to itself the right to erect to Garfield, the Mason, a monument subscribed for and erected on ground of Perot Keogh, Montana, the assassinated President of this Republic.

The park wherein this monument is to be erected is public property, in which the hard-last-pay-paying citizen has as much vested right as the highest Royal Arch Mason. But all the citizens of the city and county of San Francisco are ordered to "stand back" by a synod of secret society members who propose to lay the foundation stone paid for by public subscription with a ceremonial of mystery, mummery, and mock-ery which is disgusting to nineteen-twentieths of the citizens, and degrading to the State, the county, and the city officials elected to represent the people on all such public occasions.

As the funds for this monument were contributed by citizens all over the State, Governor Stoneman is the proper person to represent the people by laying the corner-stone. We presume the Governor would officiate on the occasion, provided he was assured that no Irishman had any hand in mixing the mortar! If Governor St-neman should object, let Mayor Bartlett represent the people of this city, from whom the large subscription of the fund was procured, but it looks both ridiculous in practice and wrong in principle to have such ceremonies performed by a body of a sect whose secret society is condemned by the Catholic Church, and whose principles are repugnant to a vast majority of people in every community.

The ceremony intended to be performed by the Masonic body is—according to the Masonic Ritual—a religious ceremony, and the Masonic Order claims that perfect freedom is given to all citizens, to be a Bagnard in gaol, to support the Church of Rome, to allow citizens to stand by and see a set of secret society dodge, decked out in regalia, perform a ceremony that of right belongs to the people, but to the representatives of the people thus ignored and insulted.

Suppose there was a project set on foot to erect a monument to Christopher Columbus in Golden Gate Park, and when Catholics and Protestants, atheists and infidels, Jews and Gentiles in all parts of the State subscribed, it was announced that the corner-stone would be laid by a Catholic Prelate, according to the Catholic Ritual Pontifical, what a howl would be raised by every non-Catholic in the community. The press would be charged with condemnation of the subscribers and with a desire on the part of the people into contributing for an object which the Catholic authorities were now about to wrest from the public at large. What a cry would also be raised about the "monstrous" of peculiar religious exercises in a public park. Yet here, in this proposed Masonic-Grass laying, we have all the objectionable features alleged, and not a people in the State has raised its voice against the outrage.

The MONITOR alludes to this matter, with the hope that the citizens throughout the State who see the matter in the same light as we do, will protest against the production of a public monument, raised by public money, by any set of secret society members—whose only object on earth is to elevate Masonry and to extend its baneful influence throughout the whole country. Let remonstrances be sent to the Board of Supervisors against the innovation; let civic societies, labor organizations, and military bodies enter their protests against this dangerous and anti-republican system of giving quasi-official recognition to a body of men whose secret plans are unknown to the people, and whose record in the past history of this country is not to the credit of their boasted humanity.

The Garfield monument is a public enterprise and not a Masonic tablet, hence the corner-stone should be laid by the officials representing the people of California, who are the contributors, and if the people will only set their feet upon the first attempt at Masonic interference in public affairs much good will accrue to the whole community, but if such secret-society ceremonies are permitted at public gatherings at which the whole people are interested, and where a large majority are incensed and insulted by such rubbishy ritualism on the part of the society, there we must only conclude that the Masonic fraternity represents the miscalled "free and enlightened citizens of the American Republic."

—The Sale of the Count de Chambord, the Comte de Paris, is now in Paris, and in the Rue de Varenne. He died for a time on the staff of Gen. McClellan, and has written a history of the American Republic. There was an intimation in 1873 that he had joined the Union with Chambord, and a few professions upon the condition that after Chambord's death he should succeed to the hole of all the royal Bourbons who

The Only Catholic Chaplain in the United States Army.

The Washington dispatch published yesterday, stating that upon his arrival at Fort Leavenworth, Chaplain Toulmont Murphy, U. S. A., was placed under arrest, is contradicted by authority Adjutant-General Drum, of Kilton of the military division of the Pacific, the Secretary of War has ordered the Judge Advocate General of the Army to provide the necessary charges for trial by court-martial of Chaplain Murphy, preparatory to his being ordered to pay warrants during his disembodiment leave, and the chief of staff of the War Department says that on several occasions at least these accounts were not in order. Chaplain Murphy was the Chaplain at Fort Boise, Idaho, and leaved to have obtained a leave of absence three months in Europe. He is said to have warm friends in this city who are interesting themselves in his behalf. Chief Justice Waite, who is a Governor Woods of Oregon, to whom General Kelton gave information regarding the condition attached to his charge. The General states that Chaplain Murphy is probably the only Catholic chaplain in the United States Army, and that he claims to have had reasons for having taken more time than was allowed him, and that he believes the reviewed gentleman has returned to his post. It is likely that necessary explanations will be made regarding the matter upon his examination. The penalty for being absent without leave is dismissal, and it should be imposed in this case there will not be probably a single Catholic Chaplain in the entire army of the United States.

We copy the above item from Monday's dailies for the purpose of correcting a few misstatements therein. In the first place, there is no Catholic Army Chaplains, the other being Rev. E. W. J. Lindesmith, formerly of the Diocese of Cleveland, but at present on duty at Fort Keogh, Montana.

We have known Father Maple for thirty years, and a more simple-minded, innocent, well-meaning priest cannot be found in America, but through his unsuspecting good nature he has been "fleeced" by politicians in Washington City, "sinched" by mining speculators in Idaho and in this city, and, in general way, has been a victim of misplaced confidence ever since he entered the Army. Father Maple has been on this coast since the Right Reverend Archbishop Alemany, Blanchet on his return from Havre, France, to Oregon that year as an ecclesiastic, and was ordained by his Bishop at St. Paul, Oregon, May, 1860. Hence he has now been thirty-three years in the priesthood. As guileless and as trusting as a child, his ardent desire to "do unto others as he would be done by" has caused him many a financial pinch and many a heartfelt pang.

We were among the intimate friends of Father Maple when he rejoiced at his good fortune in securing his present appointment some ten years ago, but from what we have seen of the workings of the Army Chaplain system since, we are forced to state that while it may do good to the soldiers, it inevitably spoils the priest. In the first place, it annihilates the discipline of the Church and sets up the omnons of the Military Fort instead of the Canons of the Church. No Bishop has any control over an Army Chaplain, whose Bishop is the Secretary of War. He can go to Europe, Asia, or Africa, and stay as long as his "Superior Officer" extends him leave of absence, and even Cardinal McCloskey can prevent him. In fine, an Army Chaplain is

"Monarch of all he surveys,"

And, like Robinson Crusoe, he is, in a measure, exiled from his brother priests and "left alone in his glory."

No such disclaimer facts become known that we are satisfied if the United States were to advertise to-morrow for fifty Catholic Army Chaplains we should come provided with credentials from their Bishops, we doubt if five applicants would be found among the 6,500 priests in America. Nor do we believe we can find out of the 75 Bishops in America there are five who would permit their priests to enter on a life which is so different from that which is the natural course of a Catholic clergyman.

We crote and published many articles in favor of Army Chaplains years ago, but from what we know of the temptations and difficulties in the way of the Post Chaplain, the associates he has to mingle with or the mess table, the temptations of big pay and little work, and the general atmosphere of worldliness—and very often wickedness—which at all times surrounds him, we are prepared to extend our sympathy to any priest who accepts the position of Post Chaplain.

We doubt Father Maple will be able to explain the causes which delayed him on his visit to France, but we greatly fear that the present Secretary of War—no friend to priests or Catholics, anyhow—will insist on his resignation in order to escape disagreeable questions. In this event, we doubt if another Catholic Army Chaplain will be appointed for many years.

A Benicia Paper Badly Mistaken.

"Not only Roman Catholics, but the whole community, will be interested in the decision of Judge Freeman, of New York, rendered on the 3d inst., by which the case of Mrs. Margaret Gillman's suit of leaving a ruin of money in trust for the repose of the souls of herself and her husband was declared invalid.

We ship the foregoing very peculiar piece of information from the Benicia New Era, and instead of being surprised at the extraordinarily ridiculous its conclusions are, from a Catholic standpoint, we will merely cite that well-known Protestant religious paper, the New York Independent, and ask it to let a little old-fashioned common sense into the New Era's nonsense. Here is what a strongly non-Catholic paper says regarding the ridiculous and illegal decision:

"Mrs. Margaret Gillman, of this city, a Catholic lady of some eighty-five years of age, in August, 1862, placed $2,300 in the hands of a friend named McBride, and directed him after her death, and that of her husband, to use the money to pay funeral expenses, to keep a mass said over their graves, and expend the remainder in paying Masses said for the repose of their souls. Both died, and McBride, and one James Gilman, took out letters of administration on the estate and claimed the sum in McBride's hands as part of the estate. Judge Freeman, in a recent decision, referring specially to the funds to be spent in having Masses, holds that the claim is a good one in law, not on the ground that such expenditure would be for 'superstitious' uses, but because, the fund not being an absolute gift, it is to be used, and, there being no one living who is one-who has or can hire an equitable interest therein. On the ground legally that no one is to be paid over to the administrator on Mrs. Gilman's estate. A decision which will very greatly cause before a court of Chicago, and the Supreme Court of the United States by Judge Freeman. Which of these decisions is the right one? It seems to us that the Chicago court took the right view of this matter. There is no law in this country which gives the power of property shall not dispose of a part or the whole of it in paying for masses to be said for his soul after he is dead, and this is precisely what Gilman attempted to have done. Not, with the funds placed in the hands of McBride. We say, as a matter of law, that the Chicago court has no interest in these Masses, and judge Freeman's decision is right. We know that the Catholic creed on this point is false; and this is one, but, as we said, it is not the business of the Catholic Church that the Chicago court and Blanchet on its return from Havre, France, to Oregon that year as an ecclesiastic, and was ordained by his Bishop at St. Paul, Oregon, May, 1860. Hence he has now been thirty-three years in the priesthood. As guileless and as trusting as a child, his ardent desire to "do unto others as he would be done by" has caused him many a financial pinch and many a heartfelt pang.

We were among the intimate friends of Father Maple when he rejoiced at his good fortune in securing his present appointment some ten years ago, but from what we have seen of the workings of the Army Chaplain system since, we are forced to state that while it may do good to the soldiers, it inevitably spoils the priest. In the first place, it annihilates the discipline of the Church and sets up the omnons of the Military Fort instead of the Canons of the Church. No Bishop has any control over an Army Chaplain, whose Bishop is the Secretary of War. He can go to Europe, Asia, or Africa, and stay as long as his "Superior Officer" extends him leave of absence, and even Cardinal McCloskey can prevent him. In fine, an Army Chaplain is

"Monarch of all he surveys,"

And, like Robinson Crusoe, he is, in a measure, exiled from his brother priests and "left alone in his glory."

DAILY LIFE OF POPE LEO XIII.

His Poverty of Life—His Simplicity of Manners—His Humility and Piety—How the Pope Passes His Public and Private Life—Receptions at the Vatican—The Pope's Independence—Pleased with the Pope's Kindness—Kneeling Before the Pope—Scene in the Shrine of the Vatican.

We have decided to a very kind and distinguished friend for a copy of The Sisters Trees, a very superior printed in English at Rome, from which we cull the following edifying and interesting article regarding the Sovereign Pontiff and which we hope will receive a careful perusal at the hands of all our readers.

It has been forth recently that the Pope is slightly ailing in health. We are enabled to contradict this. Pathos, and he is as well as most has His Holiness been in better bodily health than at present. At the day—now warm and the twilight become attractive in its sweet serenity, the Pope may be seen in a brief period after his sun has gone down, walking easily and enjoyably in the Vatican Garden. In it a well kept garden; indeed, it is an it kept one. Trees and rest are trimmed to the. Rows of revenue manifests the presence of neglect. It is somewhat like the Garden of Gethsemane, Cath-dies of the Old and New Worlds, sons of the Church, and sons of the world, are the Pope of independence. Peter's Pence go into the treasury of the Vatican, and the Pope is not starving idle. But a really earnest Catholic people should never neglect alms to be paid to the Pope, the fund as it bears an absolute gift, it is an urgent fund, and there is no one who—no one who—no one who has an equitable interest therein. On the ground legally that no one is to be paid over to the administrator on Mrs. Gilman's estate. A decision which will very greatly cause before a court of Chicago, and the Supreme Court of the United States by Judge Freeman. Which of these decisions is the right one? It seems to us that the Chicago court took the right view of this matter. There is no law in this country which gives the power of property shall not dispose of a part or the whole of it in paying for masses to be said for his soul after he is dead, and this is precisely what Gilman attempted to have done. Not, with the funds placed in the hands of McBride. We say, as a matter of law, that the Chicago court has no interest in these Masses, and judge Freeman's decision is right. We know that the Catholic creed on this point is false; and this is one, but, as we said, it is not the business of the Catholic Church that the Chicago court and Blanchet on its return from Havre, France, to Oregon that year as an ecclesiastic, and was ordained by his Bishop at St. Paul, Oregon, May, 1860. Hence he has now been thirty-three years in the priesthood. As guileless and as trusting as a child, his ardent desire to "do unto others as he would be done by" has caused him many a financial pinch and many a heartfelt pang.

We were among the intimate friends of Father Maple when he rejoiced at his good fortune in securing his present appointment some ten years ago, but from what we have seen of the workings of the Army Chaplain system since, we are forced to state that while it may do good to the soldiers, it inevitably spoils the priest. In the first place, it annihilates the discipline of the Church and sets up the omnons of the Military Fort instead of the Canons of the Church. No Bishop has any control over an Army Chaplain, whose Bishop is the Secretary of War. He can go to Europe, Asia, or Africa, and stay as long as his "Superior Officer" extends him leave of absence, and even Cardinal McCloskey can prevent him. In fine, an Army Chaplain is

"Monarch of all he surveys,"

And, like Robinson Crusoe, he is, in a measure, exiled from his brother priests and "left alone in his glory."

PARNELL'S NOBLE RESOLVE

Ready to Spend the Testimonial Fund to Carry the Elections—The English Government Alarmed at the Revolt in Monaghan—Planning to Beat the Home Rule Party.

LONDON, July 26.—There is a very serious feeling among all Parliamentary parties over the result of the election in Monaghan, and a great deal of speculation as to what Mr. Parnell will do, or the possible results of such scattering elections as that in Meath. Mr. Parnell himself does not make no pronouncement of his assurances, but he is understood to be very much in earnest, which cannot now be for all, is more than doubtful. The Irish Parliamentary Party is now down to 30 votes in a new House. Mr. Parnell has the right to expect that the Liberals will be more confidence, expects to come back to St. Stephen's with not a party of 40 or 50 at his back, and he believes that the number will give him the balance of power. He is determined, it seems, to better that fact.

The feeling among the Irish centres and the greatest danger comes from a lack of funds with which to contest elections. The Irish Parliamentary both of the Liberal and Conservative candidates, and the Irish people are not in a mood for such purposes, but for the support of the members of the Parliamentary Party who have kept the Home Rule candidates are men in either poor or moderate circumstances. Mr. Parnell is said to contribute as far as they can, and much entitled, and he is understood to be considering that Mr. Parnell will come to the front and contribute a considerable portion of the testimonial fund, now going raised for him, to the uses of the party. Nobody Johnson, not only in America but in Australia, are being asked to contribute when the time for the testimonial fund has been received indicate that the cash receipts to be used. The Irish people are not in a mood to get been only preparatory.

The only thing that is keeping the Irish party with certainty is in a condition on candidates in Ireland, is the fear that the Conservatives may be run by the Conservatives and Liberals in each constituency, and the Conservatives are strong in one and the Liberals a Conservative in another district, in some cases, even, on one question plan. This would be a difficult programme to carry out, and Mr. Parnell believes that with the best arrangement that can be made any coalition will fail.

The Fitzpatrick State at another possibility which is causing the greatest alarm. It is spoken of in the suggestion that if the Liberals are defeated in many in Irish seats and Conservative majority in England and Scotland that the Conservative majority might combine with the Irish Home Rule combination, and thus defeat the Liberal Government and carry a vote of

In an interview to-day Parnell says: "I think the results of the coming election are largely influenced by the recent in Monaghan. The Protestant Irishmen—and for Mr. Healy, and I believe they will vote for Ireland's interest—have shown, although they are a small party, they are to a greater extent than ever before. The North of Ireland is beginning to understand that it is not undeserved that there are still possibilities in Ireland for the Irish Parliamentary Party, and if the Irish Nationalists and the whole North will refuse to support Home Rule."

THE IRISH HIERARCHY.

The result of the recent meeting of the Irish Hierarchy, the outcome of whose deliberations is to be a pronouncement against the Land League, is not known, but it is said that they have been felt as a sore blow by the Gladstonians, and that it will be felt by the Tory party of late, in satisfying plots to stay the downfall of the hypocrites who are at the head of affairs in England to day. Instead of condemning the Irish Parliamentary Party for the Home Rule, the English back stairs diplomats confidently expect the Government will be forced to support the Government indignantly in the face. The Irish people are not in a mood to allow the Irish guardian on earth of their Faith to be insulted by the Tory Government, and the Irish people are not in a mood to allow the world is nearly two thousand years how the Irish people have been persecuted for their Faith, and how they have been persecuted for their loyal subjects to trials and to triumphs. His Holiness Leo XIII. is a Nationalist, and he is a religion makes us the dignified, the humble, the patient, the loyal, the Irish people. He is the Pope of the Church. It is worthy of our Irish people to be proud of the Pope, and to show their loyal duty and this Papal power. In no wishes to be a Nationalist.

PARNELL'S NOBLE RESOLVE

Ready to Spend the Testimonial Fund to Carry the Elections—The English Government Alarmed at the Revolt in Monaghan—Planning to Beat the Home Rule Party.

LONDON, July 26.—There is a very serious feeling among all Parliamentary parties over the FATHER BURKE'S FUNERAL.

Thirteen Bishops and Over Three Hundred Priests Present—A Vast Concourse of Sorrowing Mourners.

From the Dublin Freeman's Journal, of a recent date, we glean the following and less consoling intelligence regarding the imposing funeral ceremonies held over the remains of one of the most popular preachers of the great Dominican Order, and one of Ireland's most gifted pulpit or platform orators:

The humble monastic funeral of the great missionary priest and preacher, which took place yesterday at Tallaght, was perhaps all the more in harmony with the sentiments of the people of Dublin, universally, than the grand pomp of public pomp. The stringent rules of the order allowed the attendance of the remains of its most illustrious dead, and though it was one less in the great and country almost demanded the wishes of the deceased Dominican, it was thought by those to whose authority defer, more to see that the interment should be made at Tallaght.

The place where the Pope, the hymn "O Roma felix quæ tuorum principum es coronata martyrum" is sung. The crowd in the Jubilee was so great that there was a struggle at the doors. At times it was a fight as to who should get in and who should get out. The Pope's Jubilee, that the world knows so well, and which, serene and beautiful in death, looked as it were in its most classic mantle, the Bishops of Ireland who could attend was present, and the Bishop of Dublin, and there in no disease which does not owe a debt and his kin a monument to the Church and Holy Ireland, "a nearly every parish in the country. The show of the Dominicans, and the Bishop of Dublin, are the dead when the rain falls on.

The coffin was placed in the procession in the chapel into the church, through a night but pure, and the Pope's Jubilee, the Pope's Jubilee, the Pope's Jubilee, INTERRUPTING THE SERMON.

How the Preacher and a Drunkard Were Frightened the Drunkard and the Preacher.

Bill Sykes kept a saw in his whiskey saloon on a Texas turnpike, which had picked up the words "darn you" from the conversation of Bill's customers so that he could say it quite plainly. One day in a hand-down and drag-out at the grocery the saw became so frightened that he flew away from home and took up his abode in a tumble-down and dilapidated settlement meeting house, which was only opened twice or three times a year on the visit of the "circuit rider."

Two days after the crow's occupancy, the church was thrown open for preaching and a large crowd assembled, among whom was a very old lady who was compelled to be carried in walking and who took her seat in the "front pew" and was soon deeply absorbed in the eloquence of the preacher. The reverend gentleman, however, had scarcely got under full headway, and commenced thundering his anathemas against all grades of sinners, when a hoarse croaking voice from above uttered the ominous words:

"Darn you!"

The preacher and congregation looked aghast at such profanity and each peered into his neighbor's face to gain a clue to some idea of the joke. Quiet was at length restored and the sermon proceeded, but before ten minutes had elapsed the ominous "darn you" again disturbed the audience, and just as the preacher had his eyes upturned to catch the inspiration the crow flew down from his perch and alighting on the open bible, calmly surveyed the terrified crowd and gave another doleful croak:

"Darn you!"

The effect was electrifying. Giving one startled and terrified glance at the intruder, the preacher jumped through the window carrying sash, glass, and all with him, and set off in a frantic flight through the woods, closely followed by his panic-struck congregation, who piled out of the building pell-mell after him.

In the general scramble the old lady with the crutches had been knocked down in the church, where she lay, unable to rise, and no observing her, she remained for some time something to eat, flew down beside her and very knowingly cocked his eye up at her as he again croaked:

"Darn you!"

The old lady groaned aloud at the sound and then burst forth in a tone of restless chagrin:

"Darn you, darn you too! I had nothing to do with getting up this pesky old meeting and you know it, too!"

The poor old woman had mistaken the voice of a messenger of the devil, if he himself in an assumed shape, and concluded to try and propitiate, if possible, the wrath of the old scamp, by denying all complicity in the affair.

The world is full of just such kind of people—good Lord and good devil individuals, according to the circumstances in which they may be placed.

QUEER STORIES.

—An Englishman bequeathed his two daughters their weight in £1 bank notes. One of the girls received £54,000, and the other £56,340.

—The wife of J. W. Wise of Spartanburg, S. C., is a grandmother at 31 years of age. She was married at the age of 14, and her daughter was married at the same age.

—The reason given by a Camden, Oneida, N. Y., man for not paying his taxes was that his wife had run away with a man living recently buried his sixth wife there.

—In a recent suit at Bennington, Vt., Moses, relating to a pair of robes bought at an auction for 50 cents, the unfortunate litigant paid in costs more than $500. Over 100 witnesses were examined.

—A man named Van Vorst married several young men not to bathe in the Mohawk at Schenectady on Sunday, but they disregarded him. Now Van Vorst married off an awful of their clothing. A tall young man of the party found a boarding house, into which he stepped, and then made his way home with the dogs of the town furnished a howling escort.

Upon breaking the seal of a couch shell at Mr. John Clark's grocery, in Jackson, Ills., recently, the entire leaf of a bynes book was discovered. It was far up in the spiral, and was only slightly injured at. How it came there only the wild, wily tyro of the ocean can tell, and perhaps they won't.

—A frog boy, weighing nineteen pounds and measuring one foot six inches in his shoes, was on exhibition in Lexington, Va., the other day. He represents to be both his father and mother and in his manner of getting about. The boy was colored, and in charge of a colored man.

—Sol Burgess, colored, of Newburn, had one of the most exciting May days he ever experienced. He was chopping wood, while in Smith's Creek in his boat, he caught a small alligator, and to his horror colored Burgess saw a gigantic bull alligator, high and thirty cows. He became so frightened that he lay down on his back in the bottom of his boat and left the spot as fast as he could sail.

—From a letter received from Bigbee, Washington county, Ala., it is learned that one day last week Mr. W. H. Richardson killed a white deer in the immediate locality. Mr. Richardson and Mr. Coleman were hunting together when they discovered the beautiful creature, and fired at it at the same before they succeeded in killing it. The hair on the sides of the deer was of a yellowish tint, but the back was nearly white. It is said that there are two other white deers in the forests of Washington county, one of which is supposed to be the mother of the one killed. The ignorant and superstitious people think that white deer are akin to witches.

—The daughter of the late Harvey Jewell some weeks ago dreamed that she saw an undertaker drive up to her residence with a hearse. He was a peculiar looking man. His country shaped nose, which looked as if it had been broken and was twisted to one side, gave his countenance a very odd expression. He came directly towards her, and as he drew near he said "I" at each newly sawn. Within a week the dream was repeated, and even the words "I are you ready?" Willie visiting Cincinnati some days afterward she went to a hotel to call upon a friend, and, stepping into an elevator, was startled to hear the man in charge say to her dreamer. He requested to be let out of the elevator at the first landing. She stepped out and the man remained. The elevator machinery gave out; suddenly the car went up, and then down, and the man was killed.

—Avoid procrastination. There is no time like the present in which to labor.

CATARRH OF THE BLADDER.

Dropsical Irritation, Inflammation, all Kidney and Urinary Complaints, cured by "Bochepaiba." $1.

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of these LUMINOUS GOODS, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet tint which fade only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,

SAN JOSE, CAL.

Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonder, full discovery, conveys but a vague impression of the marvels which have been brought to light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which arrests the flight of imagination and pinions it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Cerqui's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful design. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the Monitor and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherein to incite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the Monitor, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE! ARGUELTHM!!!

ROOFS Not Repaired, But Renewed. Old Roofs Repaired. And Guaranteed Water-tight. Old Roofs Covered with Felt. Paper Roofing Material. Warranted for 5 Years. Roofing Felt, Tarred Felt, Rosin Sized Sheathing Felt, Asphalt Roofing Paste, Roofing Paper, Roofing Nails, Tarred Rope, Roofing Tools. Roofs Painted and Repaired. Roofs Painted and Guaranteed. Roofs Painted and Guaranteed. Roofs Painted and Guaranteed

Ireland's Chances for Independence.

HOME RULE POSSIBLE IN THE NEXT PARLIAMENT.

The Chances of National Candidates in Ulster.

The Rev. Harold Rylett writes to the Dublin Freeman from Monaghan, Belfast, estimating the chances of National candidates in the Ulster constituencies. From his letter we take the following passages :—

The victory which has just been achieved in Monaghan prompts me to ask your permission to make a few remarks in reference to the political possibilities of the Northern province. The census returns for 1881 with regard to the nine Ulster counties are at hand, and on the basis of five members to each household I think that the comparative number of Catholic and Protestant householders may be regarded as fairly stated :—

	Catholic Population.	Per-centage of Catholic population.	Catholic survivals.	Liberal Nationalists.
Antrim	51,200	18.28	2	1
Armagh	46,33	44.33	2	1
Down	62,000	31.00	3	2
Donegal	76,53	76.53	4	1
Derry	39,000	39.00	2	1
Fermanagh	35,30	35.30	2	1
Cavan	52,000	52.00	3	2
Monaghan	72,00	72.00	2	1
Tyrone	75,000	75.00	3	2

You will observe that the two most Protestant counties return Nationalists, while the most Catholic counties have, as a natural, the strongest bias to Nationalism. To a more serious fresh of Presbyterian, who in Glasgow a intensely Liberal, Innocent Conservative. Cavan is in Ulster, and Cavan has returned Nationalist members for some time; and it is probable that Monaghan will follow its example. In fact, since the Redmond-Dolan victory on an utterne Tinkel part of the country where now issues are ripe for a final judgment, but may also be reached by that time. The Monaghan election is no surprise to those living in Ireland who have watched the progress of events. It is, as you remark, the union of many of Mr. Gladstone's unfortunate refusal in March last to consider and assist certain amendments to the Land Act demanded to be important, if not essential, but which he had at that time been compelled to sacrifice. This refusal was received with dismay by those who still clung to the Liberal party in Ireland—a small and feeble remnant, especially in the South. By this step

HOME RULE WAS BROUGHT WITHIN MEASURABLE DISTANCE.

The Monaghan election is the first result, and there will be others to follow. Nothing succeeds like success; and we may expect to see great progress in Ireland, not previously held by a Nationalist, vigorously contested. After the general election there were sixty-three Home Rule members; there are now sixty-five, and will probably be seventy-two after the next, being over two-thirds of the representatives of the Ireland. Many of the new Home Rulers are men of moderate character, like Mr. Shaw and Mr. Blake; but a vigorous attempt will be made to replace them by more thorough partisans. Assuming, then, that after the next election there are seventy members ready to follow Mr. Parnell, and assuming also, what is extremely probable, that twenty-one are won by the Conservatives, the present system of government will become unworkable, and there must either be some new arrangement of parties or the grant of Home Rule. I have never been a Home Ruler, but have slowly been convinced that the thing is inevitable, and perhaps, his other changes which have been forced on an unwilling legislature by popular demand, it may be time not to be much a dreadful thing when it does come,—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

T. N. H.

The Secret Societies.

The account, published in another column, of the resolution of a dying Freemason is something that coming from any other source would scarcely find credit. Men, like many others, have heard of such things but we believe there are few who have seen it statistically related as this. It is stated, and we believe with truth, that by far the great or number of those who become Freemasons in this country do so for merely political or other reasons. They have no idea of opposing civil or ecclesiastical authority. Of course it can be easily understood that a system or a movement which has no adverse to civil or ecclesiastical interests without be least intention on the part of those engaged in the movement. Civil interests may be misunderstood. Even those who given a society may misunderstand its true interests and lead it to run. Hence the case may happen that a society may absolutely be perverted by a civil rule and yet meet with the condemnation of the Church. This is where ally people call interference of the Church in politics. On the same principle a man refused the sacrament because of unwillingness to pay his debts might say the Church was interfering in his grocery dealings.

It may be said, and no doubt with truth, that comparatively few freemasons enter into any such compact as the one here described. But there is certainly in the case a striking illustration of the singular power for evil which may be exercised by these forbidden associations. This unfortunate man was not led at once into the snare. He was gradually entangled the faith of his youth. Without doubt he was told that there was something in the association offensive to the Church. By degrees he was led to that extraordinary and almost unintelligible process of disimmulation, lying, and deathbed sacrilege. All this under the inspiration of a system that was unknown to exist formally. Almost defying human nature, yet debasing it, and extinguishing the very spirit of honorable pagans offering.

Who can tell us how many in such occasions the very counterpart of the Catholic Church! Here is a man retaining the faith, receiving the Sacraments, knowing he is soon to appear before God, and that all his secret society sublimes do, are then to be of no avail, and yet he clings blindly to that which will damn his soul. It is any wonder the Church should condemn a society that exercises so despotic and ruinous a power over the soul! If influence can be exercised over the dying how much more can it be exercised over the living! Is it wrong to the man who has no reason to think that death is nigh!

Given these two factors, a close association of men of all sorts of belief, and an object which includes something that is unknown, and it is scarcely possible to avoid a clash with the unchangeable principles of ecclesiastical or civil authority. It is easy to understand how the Protestant may be misled in these societies. He makes, to a certain extent, his own religious principle. The Roman Catholic is that in which exists between the non-Catholic state and its established church. With a Catholic the case is very different.

He has a recognized living authority, the voice of whose commands are not always intelligible to himself. How can he expect to explain them as to gain the consent—I don of the non-Catholic spectator, when they are bent on directing the society in a certain manner? Their power is professedly recognized religious code is a sort of dictionary of human nature. They understand the ordinary tendencies to measures which have a definite moral character. What is beyond them is lawful.

Even apart, therefore, from absolute necessity, does not the Church appear to have never be known except when legitimate civil or ecclesiastical authority would be morally, and therefore, would be exceedingly dangerous. How often would that authority be so misused! How often would a society exist that could lead to an investigation! Condemnation of and action of man of all sorts no belief in a common humanity platform must necessarily result in perversion, and if we are not mistaken this is the principal part of forbidden associations and at the same time the principal reason of the condemnation.

—T. P. MEAGH, D. D.

Catholic Universe.

Singular Power of the Name of "Mary."

It is related by Father Rho, in his Sabbati, and by Father Lieze, in his Triangle Sacrum, of a certain young maiden of Guelder-land, who lived about the year 1460, that she was sent one day by her uncle to purchase something at the market of the town. Passing with the direct way to the and pass the night at the house of her aunt, who lived in the town. The girl obeyed, but when she went at night to her aunt's house, she was rudely sent away by her, and she set out on her way homewards. Night overtaking her, she fell into a passion, and called loudly upon the devil to come to her aid. Old Nobold, he suddenly appeared in the form of a man, and promised to assist her, provided she would do one thing. I will do any thing, answered the unhappy creature, if only you will help me. Nobold forsooth yet will not bless yourself with the sign of the cross, and will change your name. As to the cross, she answered, I will no longer sign myself with it, but my name of Mary is too dear to me, I will not change it. Then I will not help you, said the devil. At length, after much debate, it was agreed that she should be called by the first letter of the name Mary, that is Emme. They then went together to Antwerp, and the wretched girl remained there six years with her diabolical companion, living an sinful life, that it was the scandal of the whole place. One day she told the devil that she wished to see her country again; the enemy objected, but finally was obliged to consent. When they entered together the city of Nimeguen, there were just then performing a public representation of the life of the most holy Mary, of such a sight the poor Emme, from that little devotion she had still preserved towards the mother of God, began to weep. "What are we doing here?" said her companion. "I would you performs here another comedy?" He then seized her to take her away, but she resisted, and seeing that she was escaping from him, in a rage he raised her into the air and let her fall in the midst of the the Bishop of Cologne, and the bishop sent her to the Pope, who, on hearing her confession, imposed it upon her as a penance, that she should wear three rings of iron, one around her neck, and two around her arms. The penitent obeyed, and having arrived at Maestricht, she retired into a convent of penitents, where she lived for fourteen years in severe penance. One morning she arose from her bed and found the rings broken. Two years after, she died in the odor of sanctity, and wished to have the rings buried with her, which had changed her from a slave of hell into the happy slave of Mary, her deliverer.

AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW.

The Post-Dispatch of Wednesday contained an interview with the editor of this paper which was very because it is true and because some things it says are more generally known.

"Do you seen the Globe-Democrat of this morning?"

"It's so my table."

"Well, it promises the public a scathing article in the Watchman of this week on the Forest wedding."

"No, it has no right or reason to make any such promise. I have nothing against the public or private concerning Mayor Ewing's domestic affairs. He has done no wrong and I am not the keeper of his conscience.

"But Mayor Ewing is a Catholic, belongs to a very prominent Catholic family, and his marriage by a Protestant preacher excites the great Catholic public."

"Yes; it is a great public scandal, which all good Catholics deplore, but I am informed that Mr. Ewing has not for more years been a practical Catholic, and he has renewed a course of religious indifference with or act of apostacy.

"But has a man not a right to leave the Catholic Church in this free country? If he wants out, I do not know that among the rights our fathers fought for was the liberty to go to hell. It was a grossness sort of liberty to say the least of it.

"But the family into which Mr. Ewing married was the most prominent family in existing that the ceremony should take place according to the ceremonies of the Church of which the bride belonged.

"They were or much to blame; he. They should not be should sacrifice his religious principles, which is always and under all circumstances, sacred, and it is not a choice as to what principles should give away. A Protestant lose nothing more and standing in his church by being married by a priest. A Catholic lose his membership in the church and sacrifice his soul by being married by a Protestant minister. No man can consciously induce another to violate his conscience. A Turk or an Indian has a conscience.

"But would it not be a violation of conscience for a Jew, Turk, or Indian to be married by a Catholic priest?"

"The Church has always provided against any such enormity. When she gives a dispensation for marriage she lays down the priest shall not of official insigns and abstain from all religious ceremonies.

"But suppose the non-Catholic party were to be married by a Protestant minister, is it a sacrilege or a sin; what then?"

"Sacrilege is a violation of conscience, and a violation of conscience being inevitable, she will commit sacrilege if she consents to be married. A man who would induce a conscientious Jew to be married would commit a crime against Christian ethics.

"Then the preacher who married them was guilty of a breach of Christian principle?"

"Preachers have no principle."

"Do you attack the Mayor in this week's Watchman?"

The Watchman attacks nobody. It will probably discuss some current events over in Indiana.

The following appears in to-day's Western Watchman: "Mary Zeiler was married at Vincennes on Tuesday last by a Methodist minister. He prayed, and a Methodist preacher. Is not this a sign we support the vice is bad?"

The Catholic Universe says: Mr. L. Ewing has been false to his inauguration oath. His two bastard sponsors are bound to swear that he is a true and sincere to his baptismal vows.—Western Watchman.

MARRIED.

PETER—PETERSON—In Petaluma, July 24, by Father O'Keefe, Peter O'Keefe, George F. Peter to Grace D. Peterson, both of Petaluma.

BURIE—CARPENTER—In Petaluma, July 25, by Rev. Father Scopesi, Lt. Peter Burie, of the 4th Cavalry, to Frances E. Carpenter of Petaluma.

GOLDSTEIN—GOLDSTEIN—In this city, July 26, by Rev. Father Gallagher, Dr. L. Goldstein to Miss Lena Goldstein, both of this city.

SCHUYLER—COTTRELL—In this city, July 25, by Rev. Father Barnum, William Henry Schuyler to Jennie Hoit Cottrell, both of this city.

DUFFY—MCCARTHY—In this city, July 25, by Rev. St. Mary's Cathedral, by Rev. Father Scott, Bernard Duffy to Annie McCarthy, both of this city.

DIED.

BARTLON—In this city, July 24, George F. Bahlon, a native of Germany, aged 40 years, 1 month and 24 days.

Mrs. Mary A. Schneider and the late Adolf Thoreson, a native of Germany, aged 40 years.

BUCHAT—In New York, July 24, Leopold Buchat, a native of Prussia, aged 40 years, 1 month and 24 days.

DIETZ—In this city, July 25, Mary Dietz, a native of Germany, aged 72 years.

DUFFY—At Point Pinole, July 24, Mrs. Mary Duffy, relict of P. E. and Lizzie Duffy, a native of this city, aged 18 years, 1 month and 17 days.

SHERIDAN—Lodge city, July 20, Mae Mary Fraser, daughter of Lieutenant Sheridan, Fifth Cavalry, aged 2 years, 2 months and 20 days.

Interment at Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

Horticulturist, Shelby County, Ky.

Messrs. Fleming Bros.

I am a practising physician, residing personally in this place. In the year 1882, my son resident of the State of Missouri, I became acquainted with the superior merits of your Lonely Farmer's Pure Fruit Brandy, and have since used it in my family and will send you the result of an experience I made with our well, in regard to operation of our reverse.

L. CARTER, M. D.

New York.

I can honestly recommend your Brandy to the public. Our family have used it for years and, being troubled with weakness, I was induced to purchase a bottle of C. E. Lonely Farmer's Pure, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., which I administered according to the result was, it brought years to my recollection, and I feel like a young man. Many had given up hope of my recovery, but I am happy to state that I am now enjoying good health. I take pleasure in recommending it to both young and old, as one of the best medicines I ever used.

MAX ARN, Jeweler, Jersey City.

Mrs. Quigley, No. 64 Essex street, New York, writes that her husband, who had been for years a victim of rheumatism, was cured by the use of a few bottles of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and adds that it is the best medicine she ever used. The child passed a large quantity of worms.

The Only Genuine

McLane's Vermifuge,

In the Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge,

PREPARED BY

FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Market Report.

Corrected Weekly by F. J. Daly, Old Battery street.

MONTHLY CIRCULAR.

656 Clay St. Tuesday Evening, July 31, 1883.

WHEAT—Quotations are	$1 40@1 70
FLOUR—Flour is selling at	5 15@5 50
Cornmeal, white	3 00@3 50
Cornmeal, yellow	"
Oats	1 70@1 80
Barley	1 00@1 05
Bran, ₩ ton, wholesale	15 50@17 00
Ground Barley, ₩ ton	23 00@24 00
Middlings	20 00@22 00
HAY—
Wheat, ₩ ton	13 00@13 50
Baled, ₩ ton	11 00@13 00
Alfalfa, ₩ ton	6 00@9 00
WOOL—
Wool	18@28
Eastern Oregon	20@24
Choice Northern	22@24
MEATS—
Beef, wholesale	6@9
Mutton, wholesale	8@9
Veal, wholesale	7@8
Pork, wholesale	8
Eastern Sugar-cured Ham	14@15
California Ham	11@12
Shoulders	10
Bacon, ₩ 100 lb	11@12
Lard, ₩ ₩ wholesale	8
VEGETABLES—
Bean, white, ₩ 100 lb	$ 7 00@8 00
Other varieties	7 75@3 00
Cabbage, ₩ 100 lb	1 25@1 50
Turnips, ₩ 100	87@1 00
Onions	2@2 50
Potatoes	60@1 00
Green Peppers	5@8
Tomatoes, ₩ box	50@75
Dried Peas, ₩ ton	$ 60@1 00
Garlic	4 00@5 00
Cucumbers	20@25
Carrots, ₩ sack	50@60
Beets, ₩ sack	"
POULTRY—
Hens, ₩ doz, wholesale	7 50@8 50
Spring Chickens, ₩ doz	4 00
Turkeys, ₩ ₩ wholesale	23@25
Ducks, ₩ doz	6 00@7 50
Geese, ₩ pair	2 50@3 00
Broilers, ₩ doz	4 00@7 50
Pigeons, ₩ dozen	1 00@1 50
Old Roosters	3 00@4 50
Young Roosters	6 00@8 50
EGGS—
Eggs	20@25
BUTTER—
Choice, ₩ doz	22@25
Medium California	22@25
Lima	3@27
Eastern	19@20
BUTTER—
Choice fresh roll	22@25
Fancy	22@25
Medium	20@22
Pickle	17@18
Rancid	12
Eastern	17@20
DOMESTIC FRUIT—
Green Apples, ₩ box
California Pears	75@1 25
Sicily Lemons	5@6
Tangiers	1 50@2 00
Mexican Limes	2 50@3 00
Pineapples, ₩ doz	15 00@17 00
DRIED FRUITS—
Apples	7@8
Apricots	7@8
Blackberries	3@4
Cherries	7@8
Peaches	4@5
Pears	4@5
Plums, pitted	4@5
Prunes	4@5
Raisins	2 25@2 50
NUTS—
Almonds, new	15@17
Walnuts, new	12@14
Filberts	12@14
Pecans	12@14
Peanuts, roasted	10@12
Peanuts, green	6@7
Chestnuts	8@10
Brazils	12
Cocoanuts, ₩ doz	6 00
GRAIN—
Barley, ₩ bale	75@80
Beans—
Bayo, ₩ ₩	2 75@3 00
Pickling—
California Dry, ₩ ₩	1 65@1 17
Dry Kipper	1 50@1 75
Chili	1 75@2 00
Bulk	1 50@1 75
Salted Kipper	1 50@1 75
Shoes Salmon, each, shortings	1 00@2 00
TALLOW—
Rendered	6
Fair	11@12
PEARS—
Pulse	8@10
Calf	14@15

New Advertisements.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in Cans.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., New York.

PIANOS

Warerooms, Shelby County, Ky.

Would inform Pianos as low as $200 cash or $10 per month. Pianos as low as $125 cash, $5 per month. Pianos as low as $125 cash, $5 per month. Pianos as low as $125 cash, $5

Poetry.

LEFT ALONE.

What did you say, dear? Breakfast!
Somehow I've slept too late.
You are very kind, dear Kate,
Go tell them not to wait.
My dress is quick as ever I can,
My old hands tremble now,
And Polly, she used to be such a lass
Like spider side of the dough.

Put up the old pipe, my dear,
I couldn't smoke today,
I'm sort of dazed and frightened,
And don't know what to say.
It's lonesome in the house, here,
And lonesome out of doors,
I never knew what lonesome meant
Is all my life before.

The bees go humming the whole day long,
And the first I ever knew
Was when I was a little lad
Like you, dear Kate, like you—
You old to be a child,
O, heart of love, so still and cold!
O, proud of love, so white!
Yet the feet and hands and hearts
You were out of my reach last night!

I can't rest, now—I cannot rest—
Let the old man have his will.
And wander from porch to garden
The house is so deadly still—
Wander and fret for a sight of the gate
She has left afar for me.
I've had so much to do down on the coun-
Do used to each other you see.

Sixty years and we was and good!
We made and a better one
From the moment I kissed her fair, young
Jane,
And our lovers' life began.
And I held her hand—we were young
That we stood up to be wed.
And even, I remember, I was slightly to-day,
And my sister with Polly to lead!

Literary Miscellany.

Put to the Test.

"And you really fancy yourself in love with this black-haired girl?"

Mr. Meredith, a tall, well fastened man of twenty-five, rather sadly at his elegantly young nephew.

"Fancy, uncle! That is hardly an appropriate word to use. I am quite certain of the fact."

"I suppose you will consider me a very bad judge of human character if I tell you I like her little sweet, demure face best. Believe me, Harry, there is more stamina in Ruth Dare than in her pretty cousin Rachel. Rachel Clarvoise talks and she is the most dutiful girl going to his church, and she is very useful to her father was alive she used to nurse him like a Sister of Charity. Rachel is frivolous. Ruth is a girl of heart and soul."

"There, sir," said Harry, resolutely, "is where I must beg leave to differ with you."

"That she cares her bloom fading the counter of a fancy store—what they both do so is no drawback in my eyes. Independence and self-reliance are to me cardinal virtues, and even though your wife will be mind into an atmosphere of comparative wealth, a few hours taken from her home the imperial school of worldly experience will be of inestimable use to her."

Harry Meredith was long that night before the song bright fire in his young bachelor sitting room with his uncle's words.

He had met the two cousins, Rachel and Ruth Dare, at a quiet little birthday gathering at the house of a friend, and naturally fell drawn to the elder one—older by twenty months, and, as he had discovered Monda, while the other was rather the brunette type. During the evening he had quietly followed up his first introduction, Harry Meredith had contrived to see the cousins twice within a week, and consequently fell deeper in love with the gold-brown hair, the soft, dark eyes, and the sweetness of Ruth's deeper character and stronger intellect.

Meredith, he was even tempted to waver in his allegiance towards the elder, and then look himself to task with very reproachful sarcasm.

To-night, however, he dismissed the whole of the past as a dream in reverie before his memory, and decided that insation was the more judge in the world.

"The response must be put an end to," ejaculated with a heavy sigh. "Rachel is sweet, mischievously to himself, as an idea came into his head.

"I'll do it, he thought, thing his lip. "Of course it's only for the fun of the thing. I have not the shadow of a doubt that she is all she seems.

He was silent for a few moments and then proceeded to prepare for shaving.

"They are polite enough to me as the proverbial stiff of dainty. Now I will take measure to learn whether this courtesy is somebody from the heart, and whether I am worthy love and admiration for wealth.

So our hero, laying his head on his pillow, dreamed of private parlors and of Rachel.

Rachel Dare and her cousin Ruth were sharp friends, and yet they were opposites.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Rachel, one morning as the took off her bonnet in the little dressing-room behind the shop, and shook down her golden shower of curls, "I have been a fool in this bonnet all day. How I wish Harry Meredith would propose, if he's going to."

Ruth laughed as she smoothed down her auburn brown hair and tied the bow of crimson ribbon at her throat.

"And what do you think of me, Rachel, I, who have to wear a brilliant bonnet in mourning to light up the monotony of my daily toil?"

Rachel shrugged her shoulders.

"I don't see how you bear it so patient. I should die of vexation and envy if I didn't hope for something better."

"Hush!" said Ruth, "there is Mr. Wick, the forewoman, calling the roll.

"How I hate the old vixen!" Rachel exclaimed, pettily following Ruth into the store.

"Really, Miss Rachel Dare, you must be a little more genteel," said Mrs. Wicks, turning up her mouth primly. "You are the worst little girl, and it was just so yesterday."

Rachel pouted, and went to work labeling a box of newly-arrived ribbons. She and Mrs. Wicks had never agreed very well, she owned, nay did she ever affiliate with the other girls. If A stock up impertinent thing, who called her, with her, from the coarse heights of the possibility of her one brave beginning Mr. Harry Meredith, treating of them with a kind of pity that was anything in the world but agreeable.

In vain were Ruth's remonstrances. Rachel had always been willful and inclined to superciliousness, nor would she heed her cousin's kindly proffered advice now.

"It's all very well for you, Ruth, you've got to speak and look prudent, but I shall soon be lifted out of the grovelling atmosphere.

"It is by no means a certainty."

"Yes, it is," laughed Rachel blushing like a damask rose.

And Ruth could sigh softly, and think how bright the future was unfolding to her cousin's kindly proffered advice now.

Rachel Dare waited rather languidly upon one or two customers that morning. Evidently her heart was not in her work, and Mrs. Wicks, from her lurking place behind the desk, had not several unvenomed glances towards her, premonitory of a coming storm.

Presently a new customer hobbled in, bent and crooked, and made her way directly to the counter where Rachel and Ruth were standing. A huge cotton umbrella protruded in a warlike manner from beneath his arm, and mended cotton gloves covered his hands, while a rusty red wig was half concealed by a bent and battered hat.

"My goodness, Ruth, what a figure!" ejaculated Rachel in a very audible voice.

"Hush!" said Ruth, almost sternly, "he will hear you."

"And what if he does! What do I care?"

"He is old and infirm, Rachel, and his age should render him sacred in our eyes!"

Rachel tossed her head assenting.

"Ruth, you are too absurd for anything. I won't wait on him."

But the old man steered resolutely for Rachel herself.

"I want to buy some gloves, Miss," he said, in a feeble cracking voice.

"You had better go somewhere else," said the young lady, superciliously; "our store doesn't keep cheap goods."

"Please let me see the article."

Rachel tossed the box down on the counter; the old man bent his spectacled eyes down to survey the goods.

"How much are these?"

"A dollar a pair."

"But I am a poor man, Miss," have you nothing cheaper?"

"No," snapped Rachel, "I told you to go elsewhere. I have no patience with paupers."

"I beg your pardon, Miss," said the old man; I am no pauper.

"Ruth, dear," called the girl, scornfully, "you look like one."

"Appearances are often deceitful. Did you tell me you had cheaper gloves?"

"I didn't tell you any such thing."

"Rachel! Rachel!" remonstrated her cousin. "Let me show you what you want." Rachel pouted, turnous to the old customer. "We have some very nice gloves at sixteen cents."

"Seventy-five cents is a great deal of money to pay for a pair of gloves," said the old man, looking curiously down on the mended fingers of those he wore, "but the article is pleasing very freely, and I am not so young as I was."

"It should think that quite evident," said Rachel, with a heartless titter.

Ruth bent towards the old man, saying in a low, sweet voice:

"Take those warm worsted gloves, sir. They are seventy-five cents, but you shall have them for fifty. I myself will make up the difference to the store. You are an old gentleman, and I am young and able to work."

"But I am nothing to you, Miss."

Ruth folded the gloves neatly in a piece of paper and handed them to him.

"I am the friend of your father, who died a year ago, old age can never be nothing to me, sir. Please don't thank me; I indeed deserve no gratitude."

And Ruth blushingly drew back, while Rachel burst into a laugh.

"Upon my word, Ruth, you are the greatest fool I ever saw!" she cried while the old gentleman hobbled out of the store.

"I would have seen the old gentleman in Jericho before I would have given him anything!" Why does he not go to the poorhouse?"

The days crept on, and one day Mr. Meredith accosted Miss Ruth Dare very much by asking her to be his wife.

It was as if the gates of Paradise had suddenly opened to her—the sordid little girl, merely worshipping Harry Meredith in her secret soul, never even dreamed of the such good luck being in store for her.

That evening she told her cousin; Rachel listened in silence. The prize had been very near her grasp once. But somehow it slipped away.

"I think you must be mistaken Ruth," she said, acrimoniously. "I think Mr. Meredith never wanted you."

She checked herself, for that instant the door opened, and Mr. Meredith was in attendance.

"Well, Rachel," he said pleasantly, "are you ready to congratulate me on the sweet little wife I have won?"

Rachel narrowed one or two formal sentences; she was very pale. Mr. Meredith answered for her.

"Ruth," he said, turning to her, "I have something to show you."

He put a tiny parcel in her hand. She opened it and cut full a pair of worsted gloves.

She looked wistfully in his face, then the whole tide of memory came upon her heart.

"Harry! were you the old man?"

"I was the old man, dearest."

And then Ruth blushed over why it was that she ship freighted with all her hopes had drifted away, when it was so near the haven.

The Specimen.

A young man who lives in Philadelphia ventured one idea to the country a few days ago. The young man did not know much about the country, and it seemed quite natural that he should wish to carry home a memento of his trip, a specimen of natural history, as it were. Accordingly, from a low bush by the roadside a strange object was plucked like a small hollow, and of course gray paper. The singular thing seemed to be let the specimen was wanted.

He broke off the twig from which the ovicinity was suspended and went to the station. He entered a well filled car, placed his specimen in a hat-rack and sank into a seat. The young man slept. Suddenly the artificial summer atmosphere was rent by an unearthly shriek, and a lady rose convulsively, and just as suddenly fainted. Before the startled passengers had time to discover the cause of the alarm, another lady repeated the performance. A thing, who began it in the same manner, would probably have finished it without any change in the programme, had she not received a sudden shock that acted like hartshorn, and saved her from losing consciousness, for just behind her a man began to scratch, gasping as if matters were not already bad enough, a baby set up a yell, and would not be comforted. The passengers were soon in strange commotion. The men were dancing, and some of them bellowing, the women trembling, fainting, and shrieking, the children scrambling under the seats and blubbering, and whispering. The young man awoke in amazement. Forsomonetbe lasing the people were crazy, and that some of them would do injury to his prehistoric bird cage. The conductor came through the crowd and stood before the young man. He did not speak. He leaned over in front of the young man and opened the window. The young man was surprised. The conductor seized the prehistoric specimen and threw it through the window with all his strength. "Impertinence!" shrieked the young man. "How dare you touch my specimen!" Your specimen!" shrieked the young man. "How fool, don't you know its a horner's nest!"

WHO WERE THE BROTHERS OF JESUS?

The late controversy on the prerogatives of the Blessed Virgin ended in an abrupt termination when this paper gave its late transcendle presentment of her claims. Since then the Protestant papers have contented themselves with weakening the force of our statements by shorter and shorter claims were in great part shared by many. But in all the discussions they bring against the Blessed Mother of God, they in this late sobriefuge injure Our Lord as well as Mary. They endeavor to prove that Mary was the Mother of other children; and that the Saviour had several brothers and sisters. This attacks the perpetual virginity of Mary, and pollutes the fountain of the Saviour's humanity.

The "Brethren of Jesus" are many times mentioned in the gospel. The neighbors and acquaintances of the Holy Family were slow to recognize the divine character of Our Lord. In Matthew they say "Is not this the Carpenter's son? Is not His Mother called Mary? And His brethren James and Joseph, and Simon, and Jude? And His sisters, are they not all with us?" Their interpretative surprise is expressed in the same words by Mark. St. Matthew in another place, tells us that when Our Lord was addressing the multitude "His Mother and His brethren stood without, seeking to speak to Him." St. John's says: "After this He went down to Capharnaum, He and His Mother and His brethren and His disciples." Much stress is laid on the existence of these brethren of Our Lord to accept His Messiahship. St. John tells us that at first they did not believe in Him. This would show absence of collusion, and of forewords show that they were nonrelated to the faith. When the followers of Christ were awaiting the coming of Holy Ghost, Luke tells us that "all these were persevering with one mind in prayer, with the women, and Mary the Mother of Jesus and His brethren." St. Paul, in his first epistle to the Corinthians claims the authority to do certain things because he had the example of "the brethren of the Lord and Cephas."

We have seen that the names of these brethren of Our Lord were James, Joseph, Jude and Simon. Were these sons of Mary? No. The term "brethren" means in Hebrew relatives, and the Septuagint translate the term in Greek. In the eighth verse of the thirteenth chapter of Genesis Abram tells Lot that there should be no quarrel between their respective people because they were brethren. In the sixteenth verse of the fourteenth chapter Lot is called Abram's brother. Now in the thirty-first verse in the eleventh chapter we read that Lot was the son of Aran, Abram's brother, and therefore was nephew to the patriarch. If these four were Mary's children how comes it that they are never called their Mother? Everywhere she is called the wife of "the Mother of Jesus." How did it happen that when dying on the cross Our Lord commended His Mother to St. John? By solemn right Her other sons should have assumed the care and protection of their Mother. Then Our Saviour asked His Mother to accept John, not as "my son" but "as the son of thine." Not even a single plausible reason can be given. Among those who stood by the cross on Calvary Matthew mentions, besides the Blessed Virgin, "Mary the Mother of James and Joses." Mark does the same. There were two men who bore the name of James. One was the son of Zebedee, brother of John, the other the son of Alpheus, called the less, and the first bishop of Jerusalem and author of the epistle that bears his name. Jude in his epistle calls himself brother of James. The Mary who was the Mother of these three was the Mary spoken of by St. John in the twenty-fifth verse of the nineteenth chapter as the wife of Cleophas, otherwise called Alpheus. Hegesippus, the Christian historian states that Simon, was son of Alpheus; so that the three brothers of Our Lord turn out to be the Saviour's first cousins, as the wife of Alpheus or Cleophas was the Blessed Virgin's own sister. But how did it happen that two sisters bore the same name of Mary? Many ingenious commentators are astonished at this, not knowing the customs of the ancient Jews. The Jews and even the Romans give the same name to several of their offspring. The sister of Cesar Augustus had four living daughters; two were called Marcella and two Antonia.

As regards the charge made against the "brethren" of Our Lord that they did not believe in his mission, we have but to answer that they were not all the apostles. Simon became second bishop of Jerusalem and of Jesus nothing is definitely known.

There is no shadow of doubt as to the relationship existing between Our Lord and his so-called brethren. Mary had but one child her sister, another Mary, had four sons, James, Jude, Simon, and Joses. They were the sons of Alpheus or Cleophas, both names designating the one person, the spelling being changed to suit the exigencies of the translators. So our charge against the Virgin Mother of Our Lord goes up in smoke.—Western Watchman.

No Spirits at That Seance.

It is related that Professor Agassiz was once invited by the noted spiritualist Home to attend one of his seances.

"Well," said Agassiz, "what shall I see at your seance?"

"You will see," replied Home, "legs and arms moving about the room, and some of them will touch you."

"Mr. Home, said Agassiz, "I will attend your meeting, and I will add to that the mystery of these floating limbs. I have a sword; it so happens that it was recently sharpened. That sword I will bring with me, and I will cut at the legs and arms, if Mr. Home thanked him and withdrew. The next day Agassiz drove up to the hall where the seance was to be held. The doors were shut, but on the door was placed a placard announcing in large letters that no seance would take place, as Mr. Home had unexpectedly been recalled to New York.

The Faith of a Child.

Have you ever thought of the life of a child? Why, the life of a child is a perfect life of faith. That little child—what can it do without faith? Why, that little child could not find its way to the street and and back again! That little child could not even find its way to the door in the yard. I am only too willing to bear testimony to his merits, his courage, his manliness and to thank best of all qualities—good sense and cheerfulness under any and all circumstances. W. Affectionate-ly, etc. W. T. Sherman.

Hoofbeats Amid Theosophic Indignation from Overwork.

Dr. DANIEL T. NELSON, Chicago, says: "I find its pleasant and valuable remedy in feeble gestion, particularly in overworked nervous.

THE EARLY CATHOLIC CHURCH OF OHIO.

Small Beginnings of Great Prosperity.

The first Catholic missionaries to settle permanently in Ohio were Rev. Edward Fenwick and Rev. Demetrius Young, who came from Maryland in 1818. They experienced great privations and hardships in administering the blessings of their religion to a flock scattered far and near over a wild waste of land. The first Catholic church in settle in Cincinnati was that of Michael Speck, an architect and sculptor, in whose frame house, on the east side of Broadway, between Seventh and Eight, the missionary priests often celebrated Mass. He is described as a little slim man, who wore knee breeches. He had twenty-two children by his wife, who was a large, buxom dame. John Fink and wife were the first Roman Catholics to settle in the State. They came from Conemaugh, Pa., and built a tavern at Somerset, Perry county, where they were discovered by Bishop Fenwick, while on a journey to Kentucky. Somerset afterward became a strong Catholic settlement. In 1819 Bishop Flaget, in whose diocese Cincinnati was then included, visited Rev. Dominick Young to dedicate the first Catholic church in the state. It was a small, cottage-like frame structure and was built by Michael Speck, the first Catholic settler. It was located on Vine and Liberty, where the St. Francesca Church now stands. In 1818, Mass was celebrated in a log cabin in Somerset, located on the site of the present Sacred Heart church. In the years the congregation had outgrown the little cottage church. Bishop Fenwick built a brick addition to it, and it was in use when Bishop Purcell took charge of the diocese.

Ohio being formed into a separate diocese in 1822, Rev. Edward Fenwick was consecrated the first Bishop. He was born in Maryland in 1768, and was an affiliated son of the English Dominicans, and was a college established in Belgium. After it was broken up by the French invasion he returned to his native State of Maryland. He was received by Bishop Carroll, and by him assigned to the mission of Kentucky and Iowa. Ky., where he remained until he became a missionary in Ohio. He was a very humble, unassuming man, with very little self-reliance. Bishop Fenwick felt keenly the responsibility of so large and laborious a charge. He accepted the appointment, however, only upon the condition that Rev. John Austin Hill should be the vicar-general and administrator of the diocese in his absence. This condition was at once granted.

John Austin Hill was a near relative of Lord Hill and a convert from Protestantism. He had been an officer in the British army. Resigning his commission, he retired as a private gentleman to Belgium, where he joined the Dominican colleges of Bornheim. While there both he and his accomplished wife, also a Protestant, embraced the Catholic religion, and, by mutual desire, they separated, he to enter the order of St. Dominic and she to embrace the Augustine Order of nuns, established near Brussels. Father Hill was ordained in Rome in 1821 and set out almost immediately for America. He was joined by the amiable and lo Bishop Fenwick, who was absent much of his time in making pastoral visits through the diocese. Father Young was back.

The small church in Cincinnati was in two years insufficient to hold its congregation, and a larger church was built in its place. It was used for that purpose Bishop Fenwick made a visit to Rome, and on his return begun the foundation of the first cathedral. He continued to administer the diocese of Cincinnati until 1832, when he fell a victim to the cholera, then an epidemic. He was on a visit to the church in Worcester, Ohio, at which place he died in that city October 3, 1832. In the ten years of his ministry he erected twelve churches, which were scattered over the diocese, and one church in the course of erection at Hamilton, then a mere village. They scarcely deserved the name of churches, they were so rude and primitive. They have long since disappeared, having been replaced by handsome modern edifices.—Cincinnati Penny Post.

Gen. Sherman's Tribute to Gen. Chas. Ewing.

General Sherman the day before leaving Washington on his stroll through the Western military posts of the north-west wrote a letter explaining the necessity which called him from the city almost at the time of General Charles Ewing's death, and pays the following tribute to the character of his dying comrade.

I am deeply distressed at the sudden and wholly unexpected danger in which the life of General Charles Ewing is at this moment, and equally grieved at your own position, which forces me to leave the city this morning at 6 o'clock, to be gone to fulfill appointments which I must keep and have already postponed for months, and for the last instance of possibility. He has all the care and attention that man or woman can give. I by remaining can be of no service except through [illegible] hope against hope till the last breath. Ewing is a soldier and a gentleman. Ewing is a faithful soldier. He and I lived in its midst till it was shorn of its terrors. We first saw it at Lindell's grove at St. Louis, before we knew the civil war had begun. At Vicksburg we saw the ditch literally filled by the dead bodies of our charmed comrades and the glass blue of the fatal victim of war. So at Jackson, Collierville and on Mission Ridge. He was with me in all the Atlanta campaign, the march through Georgia and to the end of the war. Then he resigned his commission and resumed the exercise of law, which he had quitted to serve his country in her hour of need.

I merely refer to these matters familiar to you to show that I bear in memory his military history, and yet I cannot think thinking of him as a bright, cheery youth, who so promptly and so unselfishly met the call of the Republic, and served a young lawyer in St. Louis in 1861, to embark in the perilous business of war. He was a captain in the Thirteenth infantry, of which I was colonel, and when I commanded a brigade in western grief, he was an inspector general on my staff. At the close of the war he was a brigadier general, and I was the brother-in-law I do not believe a single person in the army ever thought he owed his deserved advancement to the fact of relationship, but rather the contrary, for in the war and since I am accused of leaning against rather than in favor of my relatives.

But now that the end is far in the past I am only too willing to bear testimony to his merits, his courage, his manliness and to thank best of all qualities—good sense and cheerfulness under any and all circumstances. W. T. Sherman.

The Ross Family Sorrow.

Still Hoping for a Solution of the Nine Years Mystery.

On a porch overlooking a beautiful lawn in front of a quiet-looking residence on Walnut lane, Germantown, yesterday afternoon, an elderly-looking gentleman, dressed in a plain business suit, a nice-looking lady of nearly 50 years of age, whose finely-molded features bore traces of a sad sorrow, and a lithe, supple of some 16 years, comprised a trio who have occupied more or less of public attention for the past nine years. They were the parents and brother of Charlie Ross, who, nine years ago yesterday, was abducted. The grief of Mrs. Ross has not been assuaged by the lapse of three years, and, her husband, who suffers intensely, apart from the feelings of suspense in which they are at all times kept by the fear that they do not know whether the boy is alive or dead.

"Were we only assured of Charlie's death," said Mr. Ross, "it would be a relief, for we are tortured with struggles of him being reared among thieves and outlaws, if he is alive. He is surely reared among vagabonds, because those who stole him, Mother and Douglass could not have been in a position to place footpads and robbers. This is what causes us so much uneasiness. If we could rather have him dead than to grow to lead a dishonest life, another. It was about nine years ago, or nine years and could pass without any trace of the boy being discovered. His abductors were followed by the recovery of his death. Death is a familiar word. He and I lived in its midst till it was shorn of its terrors. We first saw it at Lindell's grove at St. Louis, before we knew the civil war had begun. At Vicksburg we saw the ditch literally filled by the dead bodies of our charmed comrades and the glass blue of the fatal victim of war. So at Jackson, Collierville and on Mission Ridge. He was with me in all the Atlanta campaign, the march through Georgia and to the end of the war. Then he resigned his commission and resumed the exercise of law, which he had quitted to serve his country in her hour of need.

I merely refer to these matters familiar to you to show that I bear in memory his military history, and yet I cannot think thinking of him as a bright, cheery youth, who so promptly and so unselfishly met the call of the Republic, and served a young lawyer in St. Louis in 1861, to embark in the perilous business of war. He was a captain in the Thirteenth infantry, of which I was colonel, and when I commanded a brigade in western grief, he was an inspector general on my staff. At the close of the war he was a brigadier general, and I was the brother-in-law I do not believe a single person in the army ever thought he owed his deserved advancement to the fact of relationship, but rather the contrary, for in the war and since I am accused of leaning against rather than in favor of my relatives.

But now that the end is far in the past I am only too willing to bear testimony to his merits, his courage, his manliness and to thank best of all qualities—good sense and cheerfulness under any and all circumstances. W. T. Sherman.

A NEW DEPARTURE IN THE GRROCERY TADE

LOW RENTS

The Cause of Low Prices

The Long-Established Firm

SBARBORO & CO.,

Still in the Lead!!

531 Washington St.,

MESSRS. SBARBORO & Co.,
Who have done business at (Below the Bridge)
During the past thirty years, seem to have in mind the public who purchase

GROCERIES

That their great business success has achieved through the adoption of certain rules and principles, which are as follows:

1. To Purchase all our Goods for Cash.
2. Sell Quickly at Small Profits.
3. Give Honest Weight and Full Measure.

These have been the Cardinal points where made the House of MESSRS. SBARBORO & Co.

The constant resort of customers who can verify the fact that they can purchase from us

FRESHER, PURER AND CHEAPER

Groceries than from any other store in the city bears our customers are constantly with us cause we give them good value for their money.

OUR PRICE CURRENT

Is changed every week to suit the fluctuations of the market, so that readers of the Monitor subscribing this volume every week will find our prices are within a whole as low as Groceries can be purchased for by the cents.

Sbarboro & Co.'s Price Current List for August, 1883.

SUGARS.—REDUCED.

Cuba,	9 lb.	10c
A. Crushed	9 lb.	10c
Dry Granulated	9 lb.	10c
Confectioners' A.	9 lb.	10c
Golden D.	9 lb.	10c
Island, in bags,	9 lb.	10c

AT WHOLESALE IN QUANTITY TO SUIT ALL

New Orleans Molasses.

Costa Rica Coffee, Green, No. 1,	9 lb.	16
Costa Rica Coffee, Green, No. 2,	9 lb.	15
Fresh Roasted Coffee,	9 lb.	[illegible]
Fresh Roasted Coffee,	9 lb.	[illegible]

TEA.—NEW CROP JUST ARRIVED.

Black (Oolong Tea (choice),	9 lb.	[illegible]
Black (Oolong Tea (fine),	9 lb.	75, 80,
Mixed Green and Black Tea,	9 lb.	75, 80,
Japan Tea, (green tea)	9 lb.	[illegible]
Green Young Hyson Tea,	9 lb.	[illegible]
Green Young Hyson Tea,	9 lb.	[illegible]

CANNED GOODS.

Tomatoes, 2 lbs.	[illegible]
Oysters, Lemon, 2 lbs.	[illegible]
Oysters, Lemon, 2 lbs.	[illegible]
Assorted Table Fruit, 2 lbs.	[illegible]
Green Corn, 2 lbs.	[illegible]
Jams and Jellies, 2 lbs.	[illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Crackers, 6 lbs.	[illegible]
Soap, 6 lbs.	[illegible]
Starch, 6 lbs.	[illegible]
Kerosene, Standard, 9 gal.	[illegible]
Salt, 9 sack, (56 lb.)	[illegible]
Rice, tricolor, tubs,	16lbs.
Tapioca, 16 lb.
Sago, 16 lb.
Kerosene, 9 gal. 5 gallon	100 cent

FISH.

Mayo's Breakfast Mess Mackerel,	9 gal.
Mackerel, choice,	9 lb.
Codfish,	9 lb.
Herrings, smoked,	9 box

BUTTS.

French Prunes,	9 lb.
Jersey Prunes,	9 lb.
Raisins, 4 lbs.
Currants, large,	9 lb.
Citron, 4 lbs.
Walnuts,	9
Almonds,	9 lb.
Filberts,	9 lb.

PICKLES.

Worcestershire Sauce,	9 bottle
Pickles 9 bbl. 5 gall.	[illegible]
Bottle Pickles,	9 doz.

MEAT.

Meals of all kinds, 9 lb.

FLOUR.

Barbo Said in a large supply of Flour the recent rise we can furnish our customers Four Cross Flour at the lowest market price

WINES AND LIQUORS.

Claret, Zinfandel,	9 gallon
Claret, French,	9 gallon
Sherry, Cal.,	9 gal
Port, Cal.,	9 gal
Old Times Bourbon,	9 gallon
Old Times Bourbon,	9 gallon
Grape Brandy,	9 gallon
Old Tom Gin,	9 gallon
Jamaica Rum,	9 gallon

Assortment of Imported Wines and Liquors constantly on hand.

N. B.—The Managers of our house having TWENTY-FIVE YEARS' EXPERIENCE in the business in this city, and being perfect in buying large stocks of goods, is a guarantee that under his management we are able to offer AMERICAN CHEAPER than any other house on this Coast. Examine goods and prices before purchasing your supplies. Yours respectfully. Economy is the road leading with us. Wealth is the result of economy. All orders promptly and carefully filled and delivered to any part of the city. Children Alameda free of charge. Country orders attended and made a specialty and shipped free charge.

Country Produce Exchanged!

SEND FOR OUR PRICE LIST

SBARBORO & CO.

R. SBARBORO, Manager

HOW IT FEELS TO BE INSANE.

I was once insane and I often muse over my experience. There are, of course, many kinds of insanity. Some mental disorders take place so gradually that even the closest companions of the victim see it as a loss from member when the trouble began. It must have been this way in my case. One evening, after an oppressively warm day, a day when I experienced more fatigue from it the heat than ever before or since, I sat on my porch fanning myself. "This arm that is now in motion," I mused, "ought one of the days to be." Then I wonder how long will the time be." Then I had of immortality. I could do things that other people could not accomplish. I had gone through battle after battle, and though bullets sang and shrieked around me thick as hail, yet I remained uninjured. I had passed through epidemics of yellow fever. My idea grained I guessed, and I was convinced that I should live forever. No, this cannot be, for death follows all our steps. I felt it as I sat in the silent moonlight, and I believe it is my duty to make the most of life; to make money and enjoy myself, and to educate my children. I wanted to be rich, and I began to study over an imaginary list of enterprises. At last I hit upon railroads. Projects and contracts floated through my brain for years. They could be dried and sold for a profit. I would form a radiah syndicate and rip up all the radishes, and travel around and be admired. I hastened to the office to tell my wife that I had hit upon a radiah king. At the breakfast table I said:

"Julia, how would you like to be a radiah queen?"

"What!" she exclaimed.

I explained to her my plan of acquiring wealth, and she said I was a fool. I spoke cool so seriously that I was alarmed. I feared that she was losing her mind. Perhaps she seemed to understand. She agreed with me, but told me not to say anything about it. I promised, and I went to my office earnestly with her father and I gave the matter to him. I told him that I wanted to have him indented paying his debts when I became known as the radiah king. He said I must think of business. He was old and sadly worried, and I promised to go home and think of business. Pretty soon I went out to inspect my radiah kingdom. Coming around, I saw the old man following me. From the field I went to the village. I approached a prominent citizen, and I said to him, "Sir, I am the radiah king. I intended to become rich. Have you any money? I want to know if you are contemplating the same enterprise. It seemed much better to me that we should be partners, and told him so. He tried to make me see that I was crazy. I left him, but he made me so mad that I went home and told my wife. She said I had not come up and separated us. I tried to kill myself but could not. Those who had been my friends proved to be my enemies, and I was determined to be avenged. I could conceive of no way of revenge but by several men. My father-in-law was a prominent man, and I said to him, "Sir, I want you to help me. My wife came to me, but she did not try to have me committed to an asylum. I want to be revenged dead. Then I realized that I was insane. I realized that I was insane so mad that my anger seemed to grow on me like a dead child. It pressed me down like a dead child. It pressed me down like a dead child. Men after a long time and took me away, though, to the great asylum. I was put in a room into my cell, and I tried to be in it. I was not insane, though, but I killed men. I don't know how long I remained here, but one morning the sun rose and shone in on my cell. I felt that I was a responsible man for the first time I had seen the great luminary of day. I was sane. I was free. I was happy. My brain began to work, and I realized that I had been insane. I called the keeper, and when he came up, I exclaimed: "Thank God!" and grasped his hand. He was astonished. I explained how sweet he was grandpa was happy, and shocked at the idea that I had been insane, having bathy with him at the store. Once at the store, baby was the center of an admiring circle of his uncles. My wife remarked when she saw me and learned that I was sane, that I had lost my mind. I asked for my children, and two boys and a young lady were formed to give them. I had been the asylum twelve years.

Contentedness Rarely Met With.

"What are you singing for?" said a lady to Mary Malony.

"Why I feel so happy, ma'am, without it seems my heart feels happy."

"Happy! what for, Mary Malony? Let me tell you don't own a foot of land in the world."

"Feet of land, is it?" she cried with a very Irish laugh, "Oh, what a hard jo ke you have made of it. Why I haven't a penny for the land."

"Your brother is dead?"

"God rest her soul, yes," replied Mary Malony, with a touch of genuine pathos in her voice, "God rest her soul, yes, but Your brother is still a hard case, I suppose."

"Ay, you may well say that. It's not her drink, drink, and beating his poor wife, that she is, the creature."

"You have to pay your sister's board?"

"Ay, and it's a hard, hard one, for a girl, is Hinny, willing to do whatever I tell her; I don't grudge the money what for her."

"You haven't many fashionable dresses to make."

"Fashionable, is it? ay, yes, I put a little shabbiness in my skirt, and my gown looks as big as any of the great ones."

"But then you enjoy true; I haven't anything to do but to sew—she does so much and one bonnet to me head, barring the trimmin' she gave me."

"You haven't any lover?"

"Why be off wid ye! lakin' Mary Malony for a big drivin' man, when the hard is come. No, no, thank heaven! I have that to contend with, nor do I."

"Well, I'm sorry, then, have you got to be happy?"

"Ay, I am happy! A drunken brother, a helpless sister, no mother, no father, and a little girl, and yet I do get all I your fingers from!"

"The Lord be praised, Miss, it proved to me. Give me a bit of sunshine, a clean floor, plenty of work, and a sup at night times, and I am happy. That my brother and sing; and then, if deep sorrow comes, I can sit down in my heart. Sure it would be a sad day if Patrick Mestrow should take it into his head to come and at me, but I'm the Lord I'd try to bear up under it."

The majority in the English House of Commons against woman suffrage last month was only 14. Last year it was 104. Next year it probably will be invested with the ballot-long as the same privilege is enjoyed by their American sisters.

WELLS' "HOUSE ON CORAL."

Ask for Wells' "House on Coral." Its complete, permanent cure. Corns, warts, [illegible]

The Editor and the Cobbler.

One day an editor, hard at work, trying to devise a plan to increase the number of subscribers yet their dues, was called upon by a shoemaker, who dropped in to give the editor some hints on running a newspaper. The editor, overjoyed at the opportunity, gave the man his best easy-seat chair and honored him with a cigar, and listened attentively to what he had to say. "Good morning, sir," said the cobbler, "I have come to the shoemaker, as he is the week."

"Your paper needs a hundred improved features. You do not grasp the topics of the day by the right handle; you don't set the locals in the right kind of type; your telegraph news is too thin, even the paper is poorly manufactured; not fully enough and of too chalky white; you don't run enough matter, and what you do run and the page sorely; your idea about protective tariff is awfully foolish. I tell you these because I want to see you succeed. I tell you as a friend. I don't take your paper myself, but I see it once in a while; and, as a paper or a public affair, I suppose I have as good a right to criticise as anybody. I'm a man who should be respected. I'm a man who I'm glad to have him in fact."

"That's exactly I," said the editor, kindly, "I always had a dim idea of my shortcomings, but never had them so clearly and concisely set forth as by you. It is simply impossible for me to express my gratitude to you for your kind advice, not only to find out these facts, but to point them out to me. Sir, the people, have been blind to these things perhaps nearly as well as you, are mean enough to keep them to themselves. Sir, I appreciate you in a most appropriate time. I have wanted some one to lean on, to use, to serve, for weeks. Keep your eye on the paper, and when you see a change, just come up."

The shoemaker left, happy to know that his suggestions had been received with such a grateful feeling. Meanwhile, the paper was finishing a boot, the editor came in, and, pointing to the boot, remarked:

"I want to tell you how that boot strikes me. In the first place the leather is poor, in fact it is nothing but split leather; the stitches in the sole are wide apart, and the heel is too near the edge. Then upper will go to pieces in two weeks. Its all wrong my friend; putting your leather on the heels and smoothing it over with grease and lampblack. Although I don't buy your boots myself, still I have great many complaints; they don't last; the upper is apt to get off the vamp, and the instep too high. How you can happs the gaul to charge $12 for such boots I don't know. I tell you this because I like to see you succeed. Of course I don't take any more interest in your business than to do about a newspaper, but still I take an interest in you because you are so well disposed towards me. In fact—"

Here the exasperated cobbler grasped a big shoe-knife and sprang towards the editor followed by cold knives, jimmers, hammers and lasts, sent after him by his wife and children, who, on regaining his seat, swore by the nine gods that no impertinent, lop-eared editor should ever come round trying to teach him his trade.

The Baby Down Town.

Grandma loved the baby. The baby is three years old, with the prettiest big blue eyes, the dimpled mouth, and the sweetest little face in the world. Baby has sturdy little legs, and restless, strong little arms, and is a regular little bundle of energy. Sometimes grandpaps accompanied him on various errands down town, but I blushed at the ambition was to take baby down to the store, where the boys could see what a fine specimen of humanity he was. Baby enjoys his bus. Yesterday morning grandma dressed baby in his best clothes and left him with grandpa he looked, with his wavy golden hair, bright eyes, and the dimples in his cheeks, like an angel of Kate Greenaway's creations imbued with life. When the passenger in the car saw the conductor stop to take his ticket, and turning my face towards baby, he chuckled as if he had enjoyed the joke, and everybody seemed bright and happy at my recovery. I boarded a train, and presently found I was down. My wife noticed when she saw me and learned that I was down, and I was down. I left my children, and two boys and a young lady were formed to give them. I had been the asylum twelve years.

Contentedness Rarely Met With.

"What are you singing for?" said a lady to Mary Malony.

"Why I feel so happy, ma'am, without it seems my heart feels happy."

"Happy! what for, Mary Malony?

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST, 6, 1883.

The Secretary of War on the Presidio Question.

We were somewhat astonished when perusing one of the city dailies recently to find a speech in a private letter from Secretary of War Lincoln upon the Presidio question, wherein Robert, son of Abraham, had previously publicly and officially decided that no Catholic chapel should be built upon the military reservation at the Presidio—adjacent to this city. We say we were astonished to find such a letter in print, and our reason therefor was in consequence of the bad blunder Robert made in mixing up official business in his private correspondence. This is a breach of official etiquette which no Cabinet officer—except Robert—would be guilty of, and it is an act for which his poor father would pull his wool were he yet in the land of the living. No Chief of a Department has any right to speak of official business in his private correspondence, as is a breach of all acknowledged diplomacy. Inasmuch as Robert has evidently been unsettled in his mind regarding what he calls "this decision," but in which it appears, from the private letter before us, he only played second-fiddle to General Sherman! Here is the private correspondence of one who signs himself—by the grace and greatness of Abraham, his father—Secretary of War of the United States of America:

UNITED STATES PROPERTY.

WHY THE SECRETARY OF WAR DECLINED THE REQUEST FOR THE ERECTION OF A CHURCH ON THE PRESIDIO RESERVATION.

The answer letter from Robert Lincoln, Secretary of War, to a resident in this city, explains why the request to erect a church on the Presidio Military Reservation was denied.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D.C., July 7, 1883.

Dear Sir: I have your letter of the 28th June, in which chiefly by your kind expressions. My action in the matter of the proposed Catholic chapel at the Presidio, I understand, has caused considerable comment and some abuse of me in the newspapers, but I have not been disturbed by it.

The circumstances were merely that application was made for the grant of a building site on ground.

This expression is not borne out by the petition, wherein the petitioners merely asked for the use of sufficient ground on the Presidio Reservation, whereon they proposed to erect a small Catholic chapel, at their own expense, and bound themselves to remove the building at any time whenever the military authorities so ordered. The petitioners asked for no permanent grant in the matter, and it is just as well that this should be correctly understood by the public, especially when it is wrongly set forth in the private correspondence of the Secretary of War.

We must confess we do not like that feature of the private letter of Robert, son of Abraham, wherein he tries to shield himself behind the signature of Gen. Sherman. A Cabinet officer should possess at least sufficient courage to stand up for his own official decisions, especially in a private letter to a friend who so very foolishly made it public! But then, Robert, son of Abraham, is young yet, and wisdom does not come by breathing the air of Washington City, whatever other qualities it may impregnate its inhabitants with.

It was remarkably kind of the Secretary of War to to'l his friend, in a private letter, how much opposed he is to giving any one the use of Government land, a matter, doubtless, we should never have heard a word about only for the action of a few Public Catholics who wanted a little quiet chapel whereto they could hear Mass and say their prayers! Strange, indeed, what very small pebbles make very large ripples on the smooth waters of the Department of War! And then, again, how kind and friendly of Robert, son of Abraham, to tell his distinguished correspondent, in a private letter, how he could furnish many examples where "very great trouble" caused because somebody done something that somebody else said the aforesaid somebody should not have done! And then this tender-hearted Secretary of War imparts to his beloved correspondent, in a private letter the confidential intelligence that

"In one case, what appears to have been originally a harmless request has now been erected into a claim for a whole military reservation and all the buildings that the Government may put on it, at an expense of more than $500,000."

We are sorry to have to contradict so often the assertions of the Secretary of War, especially when made in "very truly yours," in a private letter, but then "the truth must be told though the heavens fall," hence we pronounce not true the assertion that "a harmless license has now been expanded into a claim for a whole military reservation." We pronounce Robert, son of Abraham, allodes to the St. James' Mission at Vancouver, Washington Territory, a claim that has been before different officials and courts since 1860, and which has neither "expanded" nor contracted since. We are somewhat familiar with this case, having had a great deal about it even before it got into the courts, away back on "the Platte!"

When Robert—like many unfortunate boy—Washington and jail in Illinois.

And, inasmuch as the Secretary of War has seen fit to drag this case before the public through his private correspondence, we will tell him what we know about it next week.

Inhuman Treatment of the Dead.

At the inquest over the remains of John Shanahan, last week, a medical student swore that the dead body of some unfortunate subject underwent the following revolting treatment at his hands

Gilles O. Wanterer, a medical student, sworn said: "Made the autopsy on the body of Shanahan, under direction of Drs. Black and Daniels. The injuries which caused death, had, in my opinion, have been inflicted by a blow from a club. The injuries were such as would be caused by a medical college and through a canal, made with a pickaxe; the body was then taken out and cut by the blow as by a razor. The wounds were not antemortem, but were made after death, and again, and again the scalp was cut, and the skull and brain laid in two, and with the knife and stroke a blow on the head occurred with the club. This was done on the dead body of a man, in a dead body in the basement, and it fell to the floor, and upon examination, I found it extended to the spine, and there was the blood shed from the spine, and there was the blow with force by the club, and the injuries were entirely without production of blood, and I found no effect upon the blood pulse of the average Washington City office-holder! Boss Tweed was not in the least "disturbed" by the existence of the press of the whole country when it condemned his stealings from the city treasury of New York. He merely twirled his mammoth diamond and said the newspapers, and the poor, robbed tax-payer they represented, "What are you going to do about it?" When Vanderbilt was charged by the press with stealing the people through his railroad monopoly, he was not at all "disturbed" by the newspaper strictures; he merely said: "The people be d—d!" Jay Gould is with all millionaires, monopolists, and men who have mounted to place and power on the backs of the people; they come to look upon themselves as the "masters," and not the "servants" of those who have made them what they are.

But, Robert, son of Abraham, take our advice and do not copy after the men, the men we have mentioned. We would hate to see the honored name of Lincoln trailed in the mire made by such sensory characters, and, in the future, when over the press does criticise your public acts, it will show a due respect to that vast organ of the we people to abstain at least from making such a fool of themselves, or any of the Washington ringsters in saying that "you were not disturbed" by proper criticisms on your public acts by the press.

Bear in mind, also, dear Robert, that

"The Fate is mighty than rye Swean,"

And, although you may carry the sword of Secretary of War, still the press can mouse that sword to fall from your hands and relegate you again to the ranks of the undistinguished millions from which you sprung.

The next sentence in this very private letter to which we desire to call the attention of our readers is that portion where the Secretary of War says:

The circumstances were merely that application was made for the grant of a building site on ground.

This expression is not borne out by the petition, wherein the petitioners merely asked for the use of sufficient ground on the Presidio Reservation, whereon they proposed to erect a small Catholic chapel, at their own expense, and bound themselves to remove the building at any time whenever the military authorities so ordered. The petitioners asked for no permanent grant in the matter, and it is just as well that this should be correctly understood by the public, especially when it is wrongly set forth in the private correspondence of the Secretary of War.

We must confess we do not like that feature of the private letter of Robert, son of Abraham, wherein he tries to shield himself behind the signature of Gen. Sherman. A Cabinet officer should possess at least sufficient courage to stand up for his own official decisions, especially in a private letter to a friend who so very foolishly made it public! But then, Robert, son of Abraham, is young yet, and wisdom does not come by breathing the air of Washington City, whatever other qualities it may impregnate its inhabitants with.

It was remarkably kind of the Secretary of War to to'l his friend, in a private letter, how much opposed he is to giving any one the use of Government land, a matter, doubtless, we should never have heard a word about only for the action of a few Public Catholics who wanted a little quiet chapel whereto they could hear Mass and say their prayers! Strange, indeed, what very small pebbles make very large ripples on the smooth waters of the Department of War! And then, again, how kind and friendly of Robert, son of Abraham, to tell his distinguished correspondent, in a private letter, how he could furnish many examples where "very great trouble" caused because somebody done something that somebody else said the aforesaid somebody should not have done! And then this tender-hearted Secretary of War imparts to his beloved correspondent, in a private letter the confidential intelligence that

"In one case, what appears to have been originally a harmless request has now been erected into a claim for a whole military reservation and all the buildings that the Government may put on it, at an expense of more than $500,000."

We are sorry to have to contradict so often the assertions of the Secretary of War, especially when made in "very truly yours," in a private letter, but then "the truth must be told though the heavens fall," hence we pronounce not true the assertion that "a harmless license has now been expanded into a claim for a whole military reservation." We pronounce Robert, son of Abraham, allodes to the St. James' Mission at Vancouver, Washington Territory, a claim that has been before different officials and courts since 1860, and which has neither "expanded" nor contracted since. We are somewhat familiar with this case, having had a great deal about it even before it got into the courts, away back on "the Platte!"

When Robert—like many unfortunate boy—Washington and jail in Illinois.

And, inasmuch as the Secretary of War has seen fit to drag this case before the public through his private correspondence, we will tell him what we know about it next week.

Inhuman Treatment of the Dead.

At the inquest over the remains of John Shanahan, last week, a medical student swore that the dead body of some unfortunate subject underwent the following revolting treatment at his hands

Gilles O. Wanterer, a medical student, sworn said: "Made the autopsy on the body of Shanahan, under direction of Drs. Black and Daniels. The injuries which caused death, had, in my opinion, have been inflicted by a blow from a club. The injuries were such as would be caused by a medical college and through a canal, made with a pickaxe; the body was then taken out and cut by the blow as by a razor. The wounds were not antemortem, but were made after death, and again, and again the scalp was cut, and the skull and brain laid in two, and with the knife and stroke a blow on the head occurred with the club. This was done on the dead body of a man, in a dead body in the basement, and it fell to the floor, and upon examination, I found it extended to the spine, and there was the blood shed from the spine, and there was the blow with force by the club, and the injuries were entirely without production of blood, and I found no effect upon the blood pulse of the average Washington City office-holder! Boss Tweed was not in the least "disturbed" by the existence of the press of the whole country when it condemned his stealings from the city treasury of New York. He merely twirled his mammoth diamond and said the newspapers, and the poor, robbed tax-payer they represented, "What are you going to do about it?" When Vanderbilt was charged by the press with stealing the people through his railroad monopoly, he was not at all "disturbed" by the newspaper strictures; he merely said: "The people be d—d!" Jay Gould is with all millionaires, monopolists, and men who have mounted to place and power on the backs of the people; they come to look upon themselves as the "masters," and not the "servants" of those who have made them what they are.

But, Robert, son of Abraham, take our advice and do not copy after the men, the men we have mentioned. We would hate to see the honored name of Lincoln trailed in the mire made by such sensory characters, and, in the future, when over the press does criticise your public acts, it will show a due respect to that vast organ of the we people to abstain at least from making such a fool of themselves, or any of the Washington ringsters in saying that "you were not disturbed" by proper criticisms on your public acts by the press.

Bear in mind, also, dear Robert, that

"The Fate is mighty than rye Swean,"

And, although you may carry the sword of Secretary of War, still the press can mouse that sword to fall from your hands and relegate

A Protestant Paper on the Present Pope.

Even the bitterest enemies of the Church are rapidly coming round to hold the opinion that Leo XIII is what they would term "the right man in the right place." Many years ago, we have ventured to recognize in the Sovereign Pontiff any traits which ranked him above the ordinary run of pious Pontiffs, are now compelled to admit that for keen diplomacy, superior statesmanship, and sound judgment, the present Sovereign Pontiff stands supreme above all civil rulers in the world.

The London Spectator is notoriously non-Catholic in all its principles, yet it recently published an article from which we quote some extracts in order to prove what an influence the courage, consistency, and truth of the declarations of the Holy Father have exercised in respect to even his avowed enemies to render homage to his superior diplomatic skill:

"It is to be regretted," says the Spectator, "in the interests of contemporary history, that the acts and words of Leo XIII. are not more critically sifted and recorded. A philosopher on a throne, and a Pope who is both, and to one quite other than Leo XIII. has set for centuries in the Papal chair, this Pope and secular Pope, and Pope who is a deputy for disease there have been many, yet, after all, the Pope who picked Italian out of one gives the impression of being a wise man, who knows how to be meek as a modest substance of high character and serene thought would show him. He is a moderate man, of facility, and a certain honest plainness in his unmistakable which are not expressed in usual among ecclesiastics. Leo XIII. is a statesman of a type we unanimously see in all countries, whom nature or circumstances has bred tolerant, but who cannot be tolerant because he has made the machine to move on, and who can, when occasion arises, utilize it. This Pope has been tried in four very grave affairs, the struggle with Germany, the struggle with the Vaux in Poland, the struggle with Italy, and the struggle with the Irish Sole, and in all he has shown the same qualities—infinite deviation in the Church, a cool perception of all circumstances, and a patient vigorous—we do not quite mean wisdom—which is the end secured at least partial success. No man can have a more fallible opinion than Prince Bismarck, and the Chancellor has not come well out of that fight, nor can any one fairly say that the Pope has won by unworthy devices. The Vaux in Poland are supported by temporale force, but they have yielded in the contest about Bishops so completely that the Vatican has won. Newman is reverence weaker for the Papacy than in Rome, where such economy Pope lives under a microscope; and in Rome, in the municipal election of last week, the Papal party everywhere suffered them. They seated two-thirds of all municipal dates.

Alluding to the struggle at present going on between the Sovereign Pontiff and the Infidel Government of France, the Spectator says:

"Now the Pope has turned to France, and very quickly, but unmistakably, has intimated in a letter to President Grevy, that if the tone of the Government cannot be modified, the Pope cannot keep on its old terms with France. The Pope knows well, as he is German, and Rome, generally at war. The letter to the President from the Pope, read in the Cabinet on Tuesday—and thought not published, allowed to mean not—is, perhaps, not, but which, perhaps, it may mean. Though Leo XIII. carefully abstains from any direct threat, it is clear that Gambetta, who do not know that the Assembly has yet passed a bill to which the Senate has not yet consented, mult under protest, unless it be the one mysterious exception of the Senate, which is the one case of recent jugs a ton in France so not Christian, and it is not Christian, and it is not Christian, and it is not officially, to declare that it is submitted to the Senate, and that it is not Christian, and it is not Christian, and it is not Christian, and Sustaining the Cause.

"Are the springs of life eternally flowing around this section of the vineyard?" asked a hard-faced woman with steel and glasses, of the managing editor.

"I reckon so," replied the editor trying to get the cork screw into his boot.

"Are they flowing freely?" demanded the hard-faced woman, surveying the managing editor distrustfully.

"I don't think I have detected any abatement," sighed the managing editor, abandoning the cork-screw and endeavoring to draw his hat over the flask on the desk. "The springs of life appear to be doing a land-office business in these quarters. How do you find it in other quarters of the vineyard?" and the editor succeeded in kicking an empty bottle into the city editor's room.

"In the cause of temperance taking a good strong hold on the sinners of this establishment!" she inquired with a frown.

"That's the only thing that may be said to have a death grip on the newspaper business," returned the managing editor with a pleasant smile. "I should say that the profession of journalism is the only one that now practically supports the temperance cause on principle," and the managing editor cautiously edged the office boy and commanded a glass of water.

"This I understand that rum has been entirely shut out from the office?" demanded the woman, making a few memoranda in her pocket-book. "The evils of intemperance have been completely rooted out of this institution?"

"Never got in here, ma'am," averred the editor, solemnly. "I wouldn't permit it," and the editor rolled around in his chair and his boot bottom around his chair would not show.

"Are you a worker in the cause?" and the hard-faced woman looked at him suspiciously.

"That is the way I spend most of my time," returned the editor. "Every spare moment, and a great deal of my business time is put in that way. I am right on the temperance rocket from the first section of the box to the last cord on the layout."

The woman looked intently at him for a moment, and then made another memorandum.

"Have you collected any money for the great cause?" she asked after a long pause.

"Not as yet, ma'am. But I have a great deal promised," and the editor threw his overcoat over a demijohn in the corner.

"I had your assurance to be $5," observed the woman after a careful scrutiny of her tablets. "If you can collect it well and good, but you will have to pay me now or I will strike you from the roll."

"How much is asked of the religious editor, stopping upon the seme and counting the fingers with a pleasant smile and a hearty shake of the hand. "Lump his and make out the city editor's proposition and the religious editor pulled out a ten dollar bill and held it temptingly in sight.

"That just about fits," said the hard-faced wonder, grabbing at the bill. "That is just right. Take the change. Good day. I keep up the cause, no matter what it costs."

"I don't know how you could have made a larger sum of pennies with your money," remarked the managing editor, and they talked over the deal, joked, and proceeded to keep up the cause.

"That's all right," smiled the religious editor. "Don't bother about me. I'm all right. That ten dollars was a counterfeit, and I've tried every blamed thing for two months, but I never latched it. This is very nice; where'd you get it?"

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of those LUMINOUS GOODS, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet tint which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonderful discovery, conveys but a vague idea of the marvels which have been brought to light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which arrests the flight of imagination and pinions it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Cerqui's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like rays of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the MONITOR and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherein to incite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the MONITOR, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES!
NIGHT CROSSES!
NIGHT STATUES!
VISIBLE
— IN THE —
DARKEST ROOM!
When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.
THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,
— HAD A —
LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!
— AND SAID —
"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journal:

Through the courtesy of Messrs. J. S. Maxwell & Co., proprietors of Cerqui's Chemical Compound, we were favored with a private view of one of the most wonderful discoveries of the century. I was led into a room, the curtains were drawn and every ray of light was excluded, and in the darkness, where dwelt I saw not, place fixed a figure, there stood out in clear, bright, yet imposing distinctness, first the figure of the blessed Virgin, then a cross, then a crucifix, then a figure of our Lord, then a figure of St. Joseph, then a figure of St. Anthony, then a figure of St. Patrick, then a figure of St. Anthony, then a figure of St. Patrick, then a figure of St. Anthony, then a figure of St. Patrick

IN MEMORIAM.

FATHER "TOM" BURKE, O. P.

"Blessed is the corpse that the rain falls on," said an Irish proverb. A month ago to-day—on the anniversary of his sacred ordination—the body of Father Burke was laid at rest; and ever let that, the corpse in question, be the heart's affections of all who knew him, or knew of him, in the Island of the Blessed. Well, indeed, slightly filed through the mortal, the immortal, the immaculate, and who shall say, but that the spirit of the departed may be permitted to realize fully that the prayers offered, that prayer is well and loved as they are called forever. To them that disagree with the rain falling on the land, and when the plain of the opposed, horses on the shoulders of death's Dominicans, a good shed through every heart, strong men's faces were strangely moved, and through the pashed, still unshrinkable, one of them strange whole flashes of sympathy passed that which his magic power alike over the hearts of peasant and of peer.

"I AM I PATHER TOM BURKE OF LEAVING TO THE EYRE," It seemed to my, and with one bumpkin a rush was made for the coffin, and I, for my part, felt my human heart, and the tears as they would, might shoot death of the Island, and the tears, which the rain was pressed into the hearts, a many cry of pale brown faces, and the tears of the Island, and the tears of the nation's sentiment, for he blessed paragraph was the last word of Father Burke, the last word of the Island, the last word of the Island, the last word of the Island

Poetry.

DO I REMEMBER IRELAND!

BY S. A. SUTTON.

Do I remember Ireland! is it that you ask us there,
Why, maybe you have reason, child, for fifty years and more,
Have left the place we loved in youth, to wear your sons and sorrow,
My children yet to be born, shall hear she once grew dim and fade away.

Yes, fifty years and over—that's a length of time, to be true,
With all its cares and troubles, its scenes and faces now;
But neither years nor cares, child, will ever wear away
My memory of Ireland—'tis as fresh as yesterday.

And when I call the vision up how vivid it appears,
So near me, and so real then! the long, long lake of years!
Ev'ry scene I used to love, ev'ry haunt I used to know,
When youth's bright days were with me in poor Ireland long ago!

The hill all crowned with heather, where I loved to roll at will
For sweeter smell and daisies in the beautiful spring time,
To rob the prickly furze bush of its gems of golden pride,
Or search beneath the hedges where the primroses could be spied.

The roadtreen's merry chirrup and the thrush's matchless lay,
The perfume of the hawthorn; all the beauties of the May,
The freshness of the turf smoke as it curled blue and thick,
With babe and laughter laden from the happy hearts which—

I wind me now o'wandered thro' the castle old and grey,
A chered place then! Thinking (and 'tis standing yet they say)
How often I hobbled, slow column, keeping watch upon the flow
Of the tide—the river—which hollowed past the mouldy rocks below.

These pictures from the buried past come troop-ing up so swiftly,
The couch, the house it stopped at, the bridge, the river, the hill,
The door old withewaled chapel where my child-hood's prayers were first taught me to pray,
The church yard with, God rest them, its loved and honored dead;

Yes my, and maybe rightly, that this land has been dear to me,
I know and love its beauty, yet it's not the same as there is,
Your mountains, lakes and rivers may be wonderful and grand,
But give me the beauties of my good old native land!

Yes, I remember Ireland, child, and if it were God's will—
A death, when you'll call it perhaps, but I want even it still—
That I should end my days on earth I wish my bed of clay
With Irish earth was covered in that church yard far away.

An Original Story.

OUR NELLIE.

TALE OF THE WEST.

WRITTEN FOR THE MONITOR BY A LADY CONTRIBUTOR.

CHAPTER I.

WHO IS NELLIE?

"Only the actions of the just, Smell sweet, and blossom in their dust."
—SHELEY.

I have often promised to tell you the story of Nellie Byrne's life, but I thought it was not right to show her pure and patient spirit her pained to its reward, for Nellie, "Our Nellie" was a saint.

Thirty years she dwelt with us, ever the same, gentle, unselfish, patient, moving in the narrow path of daily labor with a manner that lent grace and dignity to the meanest employment.

How well I remember the day that Nellie first came to our home. Uncle Paul, the partner of my father's store had sent to Ireland for his family, and when they landed in New York they brought with them Nellie, a slender girl of fourteen whose parents had perished in the passage. Her brother was with her brother she had embarked for America, but he was weakened by the famine lever was unable to endure the stifling atmosphere and horrors of a crowded emigrant ship, and died on the voyage. She saw the blue waves of the Atlantic close above her and by half crazed with fever, lonely hearted Mrs. Feehan had insisted on the beauty, docility and affection of her little orphan niece, and remaining with them until the could feel employment. Denial was not in her nature, and she had long prepared for his family, but are many weeks were over, she was ready to leave her home and work for her, dreading that she would be a burden to him. In his distress he had forgotten the relations of money, but little Nellie on a course, adding that he knew she would never regret the act, replied quaintly,

"She comes a blessed guest stock, and will be as dear to me as those who are kind to her."

My mother consented to take the child promising to interfere in no way with the management of her income, but after her own fashion, and my father, who was proud of his wealth so soon to be theirs in their land whose portals have been so fifty named the Golden Gate. To her also I owed the realization of my hopes and dreams, some sank to rest soon after reaching their journey's end, others, while others toiled on for years happy to be able to keep the roof from the dew, and win for their families the shelter of an humble home. True some became the possessors of small fields, and are quoted to-day as our leading citizens; men who carry the balance of power in their hands, or pockets, and more than one of the brightest girls who used to chat with Kate and Nellie on the verandah, have long been leaders of California society, while their children highly endowed and richly attired look down with patronizing scorn upon the servants who attend their mothers carriages or at most a huge deceit, and its blunt blood is not unstained with the taint of trade or labor.

There were others, Ah! may the good Father in Heaven look down upon them, poor, pitiful wrecks of humanity, worn with labor or want, prematurely aged by excess or disorder, they may see no gleam of day upon the streets of our cities waiting the final summons to the grave.

The vessel glided over the waters of the Atlantic literally days of blessed and elastic bliss, unmarred by any incidents of an unpleasant nature. The journey up the Hudson river proved less delightful, crowded into small boats propelled through the dangerous rapids by native boatmen, in costume, or lack of it, formed a prominent feature in the picture. The passage of Niagara well never be forgotten, many of its incidents still stand out vividly through the mist of years as when first impressed upon my childish memory.

Oh, can one feel the river shot in by wooded banks, rich with a [illegible] vegetation, so calm, so full of life in its peace, so full of rest, so full of life in its peace, so full of rest, so full of life in its peace, so full of rest

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST, 13, 1883.

A Correspondent's Questions on Masonry Answered.

We are in receipt of a communication concerning an article on Masonry which appeared in the MONITOR of the 1st inst., copied from the Cleveland Catholic Universe, and duly credited to that journal. Every intelligent reader of a newspaper is supposed to know that when a journal gives the name of the paper from which it copies any special matter, the responsibility for the truth of that matter rests with the former journal, and the paper copying the matter is then exonerated. But in this instance our correspondent desires to hold the MONITOR responsible for the truth or falsity of the whole extract, a responsibility we accept only so far as "we told the tale as 'twas told to us."

We do not believe that Rev. T. F. Maher, the eminent editorial contributor to the Cleveland Catholic Universe, would have given insertion to the Masonic item unless he was firmly convinced of its truth, as he says so implicitly in his editorial remarks which he made in the issue of the Universe in which this item occurs (and which were published on the 8th page of the MONITOR of the 1st inst.).

Father Maher speaks as if he had the most implicit faith in the revelations made. Moreover, he says:

"We can fall to see in such confession the very image and superscription of the Catholic Church's Master, who, during the flesh, receiving the penitent's confession, hearing in it even to opprobrious words, and, with the power of God, absolving, saying, 'Go, and thou be of no sin.' Is it, blindly to think which will do his soul. Is it any wonder that the Catholic should continue a member of the Church, the organic and visible power over the souls of men, which has such an hold over the living, how much more can he point to some wretch lying in his bed, and say, who has no reason to think that death is nigh?"

This looks as if Father Maher had faith in the revelations made in the article, and that he was satisfied the facts related were true.

Now let us turn to our correspondent's letter, to which he has intended to respond fully and freely, hoping thereby to satisfy our friend and co-religionist that the developments made by the Catholic Universe were not altogether so shameless as he considers them. Here is the opening paragraph in our friend's letter:

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER:—

Dear Sir: I am a practical Catholic, and Church Member. I believe in the welfare of the Church. I believe in disseminating Catholic literature, in the spreading of a Catholic Journal press, and in every other honorable way. I think you will agree with me that the world's object can best be obtained by a strict adherency to truth and honesty. With this brief introductory, permit me to call your attention to an article in the first page of the issue of August 1st (you have doubtless seen it), entitled "The Horrors of Masonry—Revelations Made by a Catholic Priest—The Oath of Blood Revealed in Brief—Masonic Ceremonies—Cain the first Mason, and Abel, in the east, and west Mason, dately falsely called the first martyr." Perhaps, I am seen to have read it carefully. I am sure it would have appeared in the MONITOR.

We are in full accord with our friend when he says that the cause of Catholicity can be best advanced "by a strict adherence to fact and truth," a line of conduct which Masonry has always observed. But right here let us ask our friend if he has any proof that the selected article on Masonry was not intended for public consumption? Has he some evidence in the matter, his case must be at once thrown out of court, as a mere supposition of error on the part of any individual, is not unsanctioned by evidence, nor standing in law.

Our friend will also pardon us if we remind him that assertion is not proof, and when he omnipotent to tell us that the article in question is "most absurd" and "clearly false," we must ask him to prove his assertions before we accept them as established facts. Another statement we desire to call the attention of our friend to is that wherein he insinuates that the editor inserted Father Maher's article "without reading it." This is a gratuitous insult—although, perhaps, not so intended—as we read carefully every selection we make before inserting it in the MONITOR.

Having settled these preliminary points, we will answer the sixth(sic) communication of our correspondent(sic) friend in a distinguished member of the bar, and, like all lawyers, he puts the editor of the MONITOR on the witness-stand and compels the investigation by this periodical.

I shall not undertake to review the article in great detail, but cannot refrain from calling your attention to some of the statements which appeared in the article of Cleveland Universe and which are a Catholic paper.

ANSWER—The statements therein contained having appeared over the signature of a Catholic priest who translated them from M. Janet's Notes on Masonry, are certainly entitled to credence, and having been inserted in nearly one-half of the Catholic papers of America, prove that they were deemed worthy a place in many Catholic journals.

Do you think it likely, my dear sir, that the "Pastoral Father" ever uttered this yarn?

ANSWER—Assuredly yes. Strange "yarns" are our catechetical counsellor-at-law calls this narration—than the one in question are on record concerning Masonry, a fact our friend will discover if he will read the little book entitled, "A Study of Freemasonry," by Monsignor Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans, which we will gladly lend him if he cannot find a copy in the local book stores of his place of residence.

Is it at all probable that this priest did, or that he dared depose, on the "had hands" on "souls" of his alleged Freemasons, and "sin if he is belonged to any secret society?"

ANSWER—The first and most important duty of a priest attending a dying sinner is to see his soul right with God, make his peace, and then to give him absolution. That done, his spiritual affairs are safe, and then, if the penitent's life is spared, the priest may naturally ask the question: "Do you belong to any society condemned by the Church?" Our friend, as a practical Catholic, ought to know that no priest in the world would venture a moment of the footing minutes given to a dying man, in asking such a question before or during confession. So that it is not only probable, but very probable, that the Passionist Father alluded to asked the question after confession.

Would he not have asked him during his confession? And then, if his penitent answered yes, would he, the priest, afterwards have gone out and told what was confided to him under the sacred seal of the confessional?

ANSWER—Our friend, as a practical Catholic, ought to know that no priest would stop dying man in the midst of his confession for the purpose of asking such a question. The only questions asked on such occasions are those pertaining to the rites confessed. Regarding the latter portion of the interrogatory, we must say we are both astonished and shocked to think that a legal gentleman, who writes himself down a practical Catholic, could conjure up in his mind such a base insinuation against any Catholic priest, as to harbor for a moment the idea that the secrets of the confessional would be revealed. As we before stated, the question was asked and answered after confession, and therefore outside the seal of that Sacrament.

Is it likely that a priest would ask a dying sinner to sign a retraction? What purpose could it be made to serve? If it was published to the world, would it not be a breach of the trust which a priest has ever yet committed even in the face of death?

ANSWER—Retractions have been signed by thousands of people on their death beds for divers reasons, among others, to prevent trouble regarding the disposition of ex-Masons, whereby the "brethren" may try to coerce the family into having the remains of their deceased "brother" buried with what they call "Masonic honors," but which is effectually stopped by presenting the written retraction of the dead ex-Mason to his brethren of the Lodge. There are divers other cases in which retractions are "made to serve," as any priest will explain to our friend if he will ask for information on that point.

Ask our friend seems to be ignorant of the requirements of the Church in the case of retracting Freemasons it may be well to inform him that the formula with which the Penitentiarius Major grants the faculty to absolve Freemasons contains this peculiar proviso: "After they have altogether separated themselves from the respective sect, and have abjured it, have consigned into proper hands the books, manuscripts, and emblems pertaining to the sect, if any are held, to be carefully transmitted to the Ordinary, and shall have shown signs of true repentance, etc."

To the last query, we say there can be no "breach of trust" in using a written document for the purpose for which it was given and intended, any more than it is a breach of trust to publish the last will and testament of a deceased citizen in the newspapers. Any lawyer ought to know this, and we are astonished at our legal friend for asking such a question.

Is it likely that a priest would ask a dying sinner to sign a retraction? What purpose could it be made to serve? If it was published to the world, would it not be a breach of the trust which a priest has ever yet committed even in the face of death?

ANSWER—Retractions have been signed by thousands of people on their death beds for divers reasons, among others, to prevent trouble regarding the disposition of ex-Masons, whereby the "brethren" may try to coerce the family into having the remains of their deceased "brother" buried with what they call "Masonic honors," but which is effectually stopped by presenting the written retraction of the dead ex-Mason to his brethren of the Lodge. There are divers other cases in which retractions are "made to serve," as any priest will explain to our friend if he will ask for information on that point.

Ask our friend seems to be ignorant of the requirements of the Church in the case of retracting Freemasons it may be well to inform him that the formula with which the Penitentiarius Major grants the faculty to absolve Freemasons contains this peculiar proviso: "After they have altogether separated themselves from the respective sect, and have abjured it, have consigned into proper hands the books, manuscripts, and emblems pertaining to the sect, if any are held, to be carefully transmitted to the Ordinary, and shall have shown signs of true repentance, etc."

To the last query, we say there can be no "breach of trust" in using a written document for the purpose for which it was given and intended, any more than it is a breach of trust to publish the last will and testament of a deceased citizen in the newspapers. Any lawyer ought to know this, and we are astonished at our legal friend for asking such a question.

Did it ever occur to you that there might be no such thing as a priest "ritual" in the Masonic Order?

ANSWER—No. It never occurred to us that "there might be no such thing as a priest ritual in the Masonic Order," because we are familiar with the fact that they, as a church works. The ritual of Freemasonry, as defined by Albert G. Mackey, comprises the forms of opening and closing a Lodge, of initiating candidates, and of conferring the degrees and other ceremonies of the Order. These can be found in many Masonic works by Cross, Mackey, Mackey, Moore, and others whose names we have forgotten.

Do you not know that the "square," "trowel," etc., are nothing but ornaments without supposed or any meaning other than to represent symbolically, the same as our crucifix, or image of the Cross, enjoys that, in our eyes, there is added the mentions of the blessing of the Church?

ANSWER—We are surprised that any practical Catholic should draw a comparison between Masonic emblems and those of the Catholic Church. The Cross is the sign of salvation. The devil's dread and the Christian's hope. The Stations of the Cross represent to Catholic minds the sufferings of the Son of God for our sins on His way to Calvary. And does a practical Catholic intend to insinuate that these sanctified symbols of our holy Faith are on a par with the "square," the "trowel," or the other trivial and nonsensical emblems of Masonry! Is the Crucifix nothing but an "ornament without supposed merit or significance?" Shame upon a practical Catholic who can thus insult the sacred sign of Christianity by such a supposition. We commend our friend to a course of religious reading on this point before he again asks such an insulting question.

Do you really think that the priest, in the case of the dying man gave such evidence, and until our catechising friend can prove the contrary by cross-examination, we are compelled to admit the truth of the daughter's statement.

Did it ever dawn upon you that there is no office or so-called "Venerable?"

ANSWER—No, it never dawned upon us that there is no such office as the "Venerable." Nor does it by any means follow that because our legal friend knows nothing of such a Masonic official that, therefore, there cannot be any such title in Masonry.

If our litigating friend will examine the brief in this case he will discover that the dying Catholic was a German, and in parts of Europe it is customary to call what is known in America as the "Master" of the Lodge, the "Venerable." This fact is fully set forth by the Abbe Barruel, in his "History of Jacobinism," where he alludes to such Masonic officers as those who enjoyed the rights of "Venerable" to preside over "Lodges." The same title is used by Monsignor Dupanloup to designate the head officer of a Lodge, hence the German was right in using a term he became familiar with in Europe, and our legal friend "missed his mark" when he thought he had us in Chancery by asking such a question.

Did it strike you that the reporter for this Cleveland Universe must be with the man who signed and swore it, as more than a note-writer? ANSWER—No. The fact that it was discovered in the possession of the individual in question is not to say fact set forth. The man may have had it in order to show how "high Jew" he was in Masonry, just as Masons wear certain jewels in public so that their brethren may discern what rank they hold in the Masonic Order. We see nothing wrong about the possession of the document by the reporter, and we see no connection whatever between the one cited by "the attorney on the other side," and the one at present under consideration.

Have you ever stopped to consider that Masonic oath is not binding on Christ? (2) Is it not a fact that the Masons sign no oath? (3) Is it not a fact that their oath is in real use?

ANSWER—We have the authority of M. Jannet, the Passionist Father, and Father Maher, for saying that the oath under consideration was signed in blood. These witnesses have not been impeached, and their evidence stands good until they are. (2) Masons (according to Masonic authority) do not take the solemn obligation of an oath," and whether this is oral or written is a mere legal quibble too insignificant to be noticed. (3) The oath subscribed to by the priest of the first part, in this case, was a written one, hence all the oaths of Masons cannot be oral.

Would it not be well, if all that the article here referred to contains is true, to publish that in pamphlet form and let it be signed and placed in the hands of the Archbishop?

ANSWER.—No. Because we have seen in the case of Morgan what beliefs a man will have to divulge Masonic secrets. Again, it may not be familiar to our legal friend that such a revelation might cost the Archbishop his life, just as in the case of the Bishop of Barcelona, who translated "Barruel's History of Masonry," and was soon afterwards assassinated. Bishops are sometimes just and obliged to save their lives so that they may save the souls of their people, and it would not add anything to the horrible revelations already published concerning Masonry to publish this oath.

Now, in conclusion, permit me to add that I have been a constant reader of the MONITOR for a number of years, and recognize its ability and have kept scrupulous track of its editorials, and especially have I been pleased with the hard knocks it has given to Freemasonry, but I deprecate the publication of the article above criticised, as it is, in my opinion, a fabrication, and, as such, do no good, but great harm. Nothing is ever gained by falsehood, but it is "the pillar and ground of truth," by such truth as that, when it is clearly known that the facts are not as represented, is nothing more nor less than one of the most powerful means of the day—a weapon of unbending thoroughness of honorable, trustworthy, and upright character—wielded not in "war-cries against the Church, the Papacy, and Kings," but upholding the Church, the Papacy, and Kings, and everything that good citizens take pride in.

Now, Mr. Editor, I have written this, which would not, perhaps, have attracted such wide attention only that California is on the eve of a great celebration in the Masonic Church which will, if it succeeds, be a great blow to Masonry, such of whom will, in some measure, enhance the wealth and the temporal prosperity of our religious body. Why, then, should these, and three or four other articles, be published in Masonic Journals? Does it do any good to anybody? I have yet, in the course of my long life, never, in one instance, by my hand, in my humble influence, well disposed to the Church, and, if you would permit me to say, I have raised thereby your position could not be more elevated than it is, and, if you do not, I have gone, in my mind, irreversible coming from the Masonic Order

SALUTATIONS AMONG NATIONS.

The expressions used as salutations among different nations have, under their common aspect, something characteristic and interesting, even for the most casual observer.

In the East some of these expressions savor in a more or less degree of the Scripture and of the serene and patriarchal sentiment of the inhabitants. One recognizes the immobility of the pastoral and warlike people, standing aloof from all human progress. Nearly all have a foundation in religious sentiment, and express peace to those to whom they are addressed. The salutation used by the Arab, "Salem," or "Shalem," means peace, and is found in the word Jerusalem. The Arab salutes his friend thus: "May you have a happy morning." "If God will it, you are well."

The Turks have a formula which can only be used in a sunny climate—"May your shadow never be less." An Englishman would never think of wishing a friend a fine shadow.

The climate of Egypt is feverish, and sanghalution is necessary to health, hence the Egyptian greeting you, asks, "How do you perspire?"

"Good cheer," says the modern Greek, in nearly the same language as that the ancients used when wont to greet their friends. A charming salutation, which could only have originated among the happy, ancient Greeks.

The Roman, who were heretofore robust, indefatigable and laborious, had another salutation, expressing the same idea, thus, "Bene," "Be strong," "Be healthy," and "Quid facis," "What do you?" or "What make you?"

The Gascons of modern times say, "Health and wealth," which is very appropriate for an active and commercial people.

The Neapolitan devoutly says, "Grow in sanctity!" and Pasquariello, "I am your servant." The "How stand you?" of almost all Italy, forcibly indicates the nonchalance of the sunny land.

The Spaniard, grave, haughty and indifferent, wishes you "Good morning," to which we respond, "At your service, sir." Another salutation, which the Spaniard uses, "God be with you, Seignor," shows a mingling of respect for one's self and religious sentiment.

The ordinary salutation of the German is "Wie gehts?"—"How goes it?" and has a vagueness partaking somewhat of the dreamy character of the German. To bid one adieu, he says, "Lieben sie wohl"—"Live quiet and happy." This last phrase exhibits the peculiar national sentiment, the simple joys of life.

The inventive Hollander asks, "Hoe maakt gij?"—"How do you get?" The thoughtful, active Swede demands, "Of what do you think?" while the Dane, more phlegmatic, uses the German expression, "Live well!" The Russian, Pole and Bohemian, "How the Pole is the best of all," "Are you happy?"

The English have the "Good bye," a corruption of the words "God be with you," and some other; but that which establishes best the character of the English is, "How do you do?" as the activity of the people is shown in this phrase above the "happy" spoken twice. Nothing is more characteristic, more lively, or more stirring than this.

The "Comment vous portez vous?" of the French is equally characteristic. The Frenchman is more active than laborious; more ardent than phlegmatic; more phlegmatic than laborious; more ardent than phlegmatic; but, to be the principle with him is not to be, but to go to be lively, in short, motion. There is therefore, in the phrase, "Comment vous portez vous?" "How do you carry yourself?"—which implies motion of his frank manner and pleasant bow.

A Bad Shave.

One of the New Orleans papers gives a portrait of a gentleman who is so bad a shave in that city, who had recently taken out a license to practice in the Courts of Louisiana. The gentleman was duly examined by a committee consisting of some of his friends at one of our hotels, at which occasion he acted the part of prominent host. The party pretty freely, but the host, having drunk pretty freely, became boisterous and resistant in his bearing. Looking around, saw a gentleman who was known to be at last discovered a queer old man, sitting in a remote corner of the room quietly reading. At him he at once commenced firing sallies sends from between his finger and thumb. The first one hit him on the left ear. The second struck his hand, and third rebounded from his breast.

"You are a bad shaver," said the old man—"I will give you a few lessons," and he kapped his razor.

The parties met, with pistols in hand, next morning, at a secluded spot—the injured lawyer, who was a crack, having won the first shot. His foe, intimidated.

"Monsieur and the gentleman, "you are too young, and you bear too hard on the trigger, but you will be young, I advise you to stand cool and true; the best variation would cost you your life."

He raised his pistol, and deliberately saying "Monsieur's left ear," he fired—the lower lobe of that organ of hearing disappeared.

"One lesson at a time," said the unknown, "been in your front molar good. Adieu—you shall hear from me again."

A year passed and when one evening, while at the theatre, the Creole felt a tap on his shoulder. He hurriedly turned, and encountered the superior stranger of the restaurant.

"Monsieur," whispered he, "I crave you another lesson—are you at leisure to-morrow morning?"

"At your service, Monsieur."

They met again, and the Creole missed, and the old man, "You have not improved much since your last lesson. Your second shot at the restaurant struck my head, from which this gem to the same spot."

At the firing of the pistol the Creole's head hung in shreds to arm.

"The next time we meet, Monsieur, your breast shall be the target," exclaimed the Unknown, as he bended over the second time and quietly wrapped up in a piece of paper.

"At revoir."

The Creole recovered, but lost his spirits, and was a changed man.

A few days ago the Creole received a small package from Havana, accompanied by a letter from a hotel-keeper there, stating that the said package was ordered to be sent to his address by a foreign gentleman who died there.

He opened the box, and found therein a small purse, containing one melon seed. The stranger was no more.

The writer of the sketch says the above is no fiction, and that the principal actor even now resides in New Orleans, a talented and enthusiastic member of the bar, and often remarks to his friends, to show how dearly he paid for the excesses of one night at the saloon.

"ROOM OF BAIR."

Claus cut rose, mice, roaches, flies, ants, bedbugs, skunks, chipmunks, gophers. Ins. Drugists.

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of these Luminous Crosses, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet tint which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonderful discovery, conveys but a vague impression of the marvels which have been brought to light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which accounts the fight of imagination and pleiasure it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Corrigo's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the Mornton and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherein to incite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the MONITOR, having experimented with a set of the desiers, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES!
NIGHT CROSSES!
NIGHT STATUES!
—VISIBLE—
—IN THE—
DARKEST ROOM!
When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.
THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,
—HAD A—
LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!
—AND SAID—
"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journal:

Through the courtesy of Messrs. J. R. Maxwell & Co., proprietors of Corrigo's Chemical Compound, we were favored with a private view at one of their stores, of a cross which, when the room was closed and darkened, shone forth a luminous cross of light. The effect was exceedingly striking, and the impression it produced on the beholders was very impressive. Instinctively, first the figure of the Saviour suspended to the cross, as it were, from an invisible cross, the figure of Mary and Joseph, while bending up in the foreground was the figure of an angel pointing a crown that seemed to rate light. If ever a feeling of faith and veneration possessed a Catholic, it then overwhelmed the writer, the cross was as natural and revealed. Upon leaving we were presented with a cross; it is kept on a bracket in our chamber, and in the darkness of night it seems to say, "Sleep safe, life cross watches and guards you."

No 1. A Cross 24 inches high, with Pedestal	$1 00.
" 2. A Crucifix, with a figure of 8 inches	1.50.
" 3. " " 8 "	2.00.
" 4. " " 11 "	2.50.
" 5. Cross of Blessed Virgin, 11 "	2.00.
" 7. " St. Joseph, 11 "	2.00.

Other Statues and Religious Articles will be Announced Shortly.
A DISCOUNT TO THOSE ORDERING IN QUANTITIES.
Address Orders to
A. WALDTEUFEL,
General Agent for the Pacific Coast,
SAN JOSE, CAL.

RELIABLE CANVASSERS WANTED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MT. ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,
RENO, NEVADA.
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF ST. DOMINIC. Will open on September 1st. For terms apply to
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

PHILADELPHIA BREWERY.
JOHN WIEDEMANN, — PROPRIETOR
SECOND STREET, NEAR FOLSOM,
SAN FRANCISCO.
Amount of Beer Sold in 1868, 64,189 barrels.

Pacific Coast Agency
GENUINE
J. H. CUTTER WHISKIES,
A. P. HOTALING & CO.,
San Francisco, Cal.

EDWARD E. OSBORN,
(Successor to Brown and Osborn.)
Solicitor of Patents,
(AMERICAN AND FOREIGN.)
206 California St., Rooms, 12 & 14.

O'BRIEN & WAYD'S
Male and Female EMPLOYMENT OFFICE.
MALE DEPARTMENT, 628 Clay Street
FEMALE DEPARTMENT, 628 Clay Street.
LEVEE TO BE HAD—FIRST-CLASS HOTEL & Boarding Houses, Chambermaids, Waiters, Cooks, Laundresses, Chambermaids and Market Gardeners for private families and others, also good reliable Female Help, without any charge to employers. Reliable orders from far better at 628 Clay street.

MISS JANE GRAY,
Teacher of Elocution, Oratory and Drama.
Particular Attention paid to Voice Culture.
ST. ANN'S BUILDING,
COR. POWELL AND ELLIS STREETS, ROOM 100.

HOWARD HOT AND COLD MINERAL SPRINGS!
HEALTH AND PLEASURE RESORT, LAKE CO., 90 miles from Calistoga Springs. Celebrated Hot and Wonderful Springs, varying in temperature from 70 to 200 degrees. Cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Dropsy, Liver Complaint, Diseases of the Urinary Organs, Diseases of the Skin, Chills and Fever, Bile Diseases, Liver and Spleen Complaints, Nervous Prostration, Dyspepsia. Located in deep valley, thirty miles from Sugar Calistoga, six miles from Lower Lake, and 22 miles from Steamboat Springs. Take morning train from San Francisco or Sacramento, arrive at Steamboat Springs at 5 P. M. Stage leaves Steamboat Springs every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and to Glenbrook on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at which points connections are made by the Napoleon Springs stage. Round trip tickets, $20 to $25 per week; tickets good for thirty days; ample accommodations; meals and rooms for boarders, $1 per day; $6 per week; $25 per month. Tourists will find this the most pleasant resort. For further information address KEL. CLAYTON, Proprietor, Steamboat Springs, Lower Lake Postoffice, Lake county, Cal.

MURPHY, GRANT & CO.,
IMPORTERS OF DRY GOODS,
And Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast
OF THE ....
Veuve Xavier Jouvin Kid Gloves
Bush and Sansome Sts., San Francisco, cal3

MISCELLANEOUS.

WITH
FIVE DOLLARS
YOU CAN BUY A WHOLE IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN
100 FLORINS GOVERNMENT BOND,
ISSUED IN 1866.
Which bonds are based upon the credit of the Government and are redeemable in Silver.
FOUR TIMES ANNUALLY.
Until each and every bond is drawn, with a buyer or a number, must win. Every bond must draw a prize, as there are no blanks.
THE THREE HIGHEST PRIZES AMOUNT TO
100,000 FLORINS,
50,000 FLORINS,
25,000 FLORINS.
Each bond must obtain one of these prizes.
200 Florins.
The next drawing takes place on the 1st of September, 1868.
Parties who send bonds bought of us on or before the 1st of September is entitled to the whole premium that will be drawn on those bonds on that date.
Out-of-town orders must be Registered Letters, inclosing the money, or Express Money Orders, and we will attend to the business with the same fidelity as if the parties were present.
Send for orders, circulars, or any other information, address,
INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO.,
207 B'Way, cor. Fulton St., New York City.
REFERENCE to 1874.
N. B.—In writing to us, please state you saw this in The San Francisco Monitor.

HEART DISEASE!
DR. ROGERS' HEART TONIC.
Cures Heart Disease or Palpitation Principle.
A LITHOGRAPH ALL THE SERIOUS TROUBLE OF THE heart are latent upon the back and shoulders, which, let its most specific effect upon the serous membrane lining the heart and covering its valves. Serous Effusions are manifested by small oscillation which, when the heart is in motion, are felt by the hand, and sometimes heard by the stethoscope. Palpitation, Difficult Breathing, Pain in the Side, Shortness of the Breath, Swelling of the Feet and Ankles, Numbness of the Limbs, Pain in the Shoulder Blades, Fainting Fits, Coldness of the Extremities, Dizziness, Ringing in the Ears, Sudden Flushes of Heat, Dropsy, Pain in the Region of the Heart, Irregular Pulse, Sleeplessness, Cough, Difficulty of Breathing, Fluttering, Suffocating and Choking Sensations, Smothering Spells, Pain in the Left Side, Coldness, Paleness and Lividness of the Skin, Nervous Prostration, Sudden Startings of the Nervous System, Timidity, Irritability, Fretfulness, Anxiety, Apprehension of Evil, Dread of Death, Indigestion, Want of Sleep, Dyspepsia, Nervous Headache, Pain in the Back, Dull Pain in the Top of the Head, Pain in the Side, Dull Pain in the Left Breast, Pain in the Left Arm, Numbness of the Left Arm, Dull Pain in the Back Part of the Head, Dull Pain in the Back Part of the Neck, Dull Pain in the Back Part of the Neck and Shoulders, Dull Pain in the Back Part of the Neck and Shoulders, Dull Pain in the Back Part of the Neck and Shoulders

LETTER FROM FATHER HEALY, S. J.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE]

There are plenty of Sivash curios at curious prices in the stores. A large quantity of ecclesiastic is expected. Hence every thing is thistled for a bonanza sale. If I had funds to get you anything like a complete collection, I should go up to Chichiak, where most of them are obtained. To get one or two articles is all I can do with my meagre purse. At Wrangel I procured some

THE SCRUBBERS OF INBRED RUSSIA.

They are valuable as curiosities not in the market. The rubles are luminous, though perfect in form and soon yield to atmospheric action. I may pick up more curios as I move onward. Now one word about the climate and I am done. People talk of Sitka as if it were in the Arctic Circle. The climate is very wet, as there are 247 rainy days out of the 365, on the average, but it is not as cold as New York or even Washington. The lowest temperature last winter was 7°, 5°; the average for the winter was 20°. The summers are temperate, so that the mean annual temperature is not as variable as with us. The doctors say that there is no special complaint among the natives arising from their unfortunate. No cases of consumption nor rheumatism, although the natives wear cotton next their persons, and use a blanket as a cloak. In winter they go barefoot, without inconvenience, and as for rain, they never try to prevent their vanity by getting out of it.

We leave Sitka as soon as the mail boat comes, probably on Saturday, 16th. Our next stopping place is Annahakis, in one of the Aleutian archipelagoes. We go thence to St. Lawrence Bay, St. Michael's, Point Barrow, and back to Annahakis, in October. The only mail I can get will come up from San Francisco on September 1st. Direct in care of Capt. M. A. Healy, revenue steamer Corwin, Box 2648, San Francisco.

My health is perfectly restored. The head's still weak. Please ask the Fathers to consider me just in consistence to all, by writing to you. Kindest regards, etc.

Your poor, P. F. Healy, S. J.

P. S.—The collector here is Wm. Governor Morris, an old student at Georgetown, in Father Ryder's time. He knows Father Curley well.

IRELAND'S CAUSE IN AUSTRALIA.

Notable Letter from a Noble Bishop.

The following letter was addressed to Mr. Redmond by his Lordship the Bishop of Goulburn:

Dear Mr. Redmond,—In your mission of peace you have met stern opponents, and have had your path strewn with thorns. At it, I, say rats, feel surprise. About three years ago I was at Newport in Ireland. I preserved and intend it to be used with the country people about, to which I belonged until near the town, carrying their shoes, which they then put on for me when in the town. Try to get some one to do the same, should serve them for several years. Their dress shows poverty and their physiques proves one to be a type of more. These poor people were the tenants of a nobleman who had good cause to hate Lord Lucan, who had received in rents about £30,000 a year, and who, I was told, had not been a resident proprietor about Westport. Of the £30,000, perhaps about £1000 he spent in Ireland, the rest went to London. I was twenty-seven years ago a curate

IN KILCORNAN COUNTY TIPPERARY.

The rents were very high. I was nobleman were the proprietors of a large portion of it—one 16th, the other 18th. Both the same name were managed much after the same manner. A lease was given for twenty-one years, and at the close the rent was raised according to the increased value of the tenant's improvements. In the case of the English nobleman, the rent, except what was given to agents and bailiffs, went to England. Such men are not military men, nor were these landlords looked on as samples of all the nobility.

Some in Australia appear to think that by his legislation all abuses are swept away, and a blessed era is promised. Calumny, the newspapers, will be the utmost to my power. I had published a pamphlet, which appeared in some Catholic journals, and if those powerful societies will spread their body throughout you, had, as freemen, disposed to allow freedom to others too, at a public meeting of the people, I have had the opportunity of having their delusion corrected. In 1874, Gladstone's Bill, I think, of a valuable change was introduced, giving to tenants the first right to purchase, and by his bidding, the Land Act of 1881 was sold. Were this clause fairly and fully carried out, the tenant would be provided for beyond them, there would be at the present a large peasant proprietary in Ireland. But a clause was introduced requiring a certain number on the estate to purchase. And this clause frustrated the good proposed to be gained. In this way, as also through the partial appointed.

TO ABOLISHMENT THE LAND LAWS,

the measure proposed by Mr. Gladstone fail, of to be the misleading measures which I think Mr. Gladstone intended them to be. Only a few months ago we heard of famine threatening some counties in Ireland, while the English press was throwing discredit on it. Famine was real, and what did the British Parliament do?—save the lives of the people? As on former like occasions, it did nothing! Such is a country of a route would scarcely take place if there was a native Irish Parliament in Dublin.

Hence you see your cause is one where their halls against you, to, they looked on you as an association of men who seemed aiming at outrage and assassination. A contrived at outrage and assassination. A short time ago a telegram told us that Mr. Parnell charged in the House of Commons, London, Mr. Parnell and his party with the crimes which took place in Ireland. A telegram told us, too, that Mr. Parnell's reply was not considered satisfactory. Now if his papers which published these telegrams had published Mr. Parnell's reply, and Mr. John McCarthy's reply, their readers would be able to see there were no grounds for Mr. Forster's charges.

Again, these gentlemen thought you disloyal, because indeed, you advocated a native Parliament in Dublin.

THIS IS A LITTLE SURPRISING.

Many years have not passed since a very notable event took place in Sydney. A public banquet was given to the late Mr. Wentworth. All classes attended—religious, judges, to do honor to his memory. And what is it that called forth this public mark of respect? The principal cause was he was first amongst those who advocated and obtained a native Parliament in Sydney. And yet our dialogist honours you advocated a native Parliament in Dublin for Ireland! Why this course is not very clear. Perhaps our notable members for Goulburn and Argyle thought you and such Irishmen said to take a place in Parliament.

Prejudice is an evil. Ignorance is an evil. To remove both is a virtue and a charity. You are working effectively for this end. You are doing it in a manner which cannot provoke bad feelings in anyone rationally disposed. I then, for myself, welcome you to Goulburn.

I am, yours faithfully,

✠ W. LANIGAN.

J. E. Redmond, Esq.

Note—Cheque for £10 is enclosed for your mission.

THE WEXFORD ELECTION.

Healy's Cantata Scoring of the O'Connor Don.

The descent of The O'Connor Don upon the electoral field in Wexford provoked an outbreak of indignation. A meeting was held on the spot to give expression to the feelings which the audacity of the unexpected candidate excited among the friends of the young gentleman who is now in Australia with his brother to collect money for the National League. Captain H. M'Guire took the chair. Mr. Edward Walsh moved a resolution to the effect that Mr. Redmond be adopted by the electors as the National candidate. Mr. Healy made a demonstrative speech in support of the resolution. He ridiculed the chief proposition of the O'Connor Don as seven writ-serving attorneys, whom he nicknamed the Seven champions of Christendom, and afterwards, by rapid turns of his versatile imagination, transformed into the seven wild geese, in whose tails the electors were to be dragged, and, further, into the seven devils by one. The attorneys, he said, had been putting their hands together for a long time in order to manufacture a candidate to suit the wishes of the will of the people. He wanted it to go forth that the man was an attorney's candidate, a carpetbagger, and a stranger from the Lord knows where; because, since he was last in Roscommon, he had been hiding his head like the ostrich in the sand, and nobody knew exactly where his address was, and heaven only knew how Simon Litwas, and heaven only knew how Simon Lit-the found it out. He asked, what had the O'Connor done to entitle him to their suffrages? In the first place, he was a landlord; and how local they were all of landlords! Landlords were not popular in Ireland, willing invariably to be the friends, disinguished and crushed political caress of The O'Connor Don (laughter and applause.

The buildings in connection with the Convent and Industrial School at Knock are rapidly being completed, and when the work is finally completed, and already the first story of what promises to be a beautiful song are has been erected.

—Messrs. Fitzpatrick & Co., the Bow Tailors of the Pacific Coast, have removed to more commodious premises, 105 Fourth street, below Market, where they will be pleased to see their friends who accentuated the change. Mr. Fitzpatrick is very popular with his customers, and he believed an envied reputation both for quality and price. We wish him continued success.

—You will not have your stomach if you drink Dandelion Bitters.

GROCERIES.—We want the readers of the MONITOR to patronize the advertisement of Mr. Sullivan, of Co., 331 Washington street, on the second page. This firm is the leading Grocery House in San Francisco; they supply several Catholic institutions, and we know from experience that you can get better value for your money there than elsewhere. Send a trial order.

OH! OH! OH!! Best Assortment, 10c. Oil Dolls and Toys. Cracker goods, 7½ c. lb., and 10 cents. Myers & Co., 809 Market street, San Francisco.

—For health, strength and vigor drink Dandelion Bitters.

THE STATE ORPHANS.

Official Inspection of Asylums.

Ex Senator Moreland of Sonoma, at present secretary of the Governor, and State Prison Director, was making a tour of the State, in the interest of the asylums which receive public aid. They have visited completed their work, having now only to inspect institutions at Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Sacramento and Grass Valley. Mr. Moreland will make a report to the State Board when they meet at Ukiah. The law of 1880 the State makes an allowance of $100 per annum for each orphan and $75 a year for each half-orphan and abandoned child taken care of, having no institutional fund for the support and training of these little waifs. Under a law of last winter $150 a year is also paid for each foundling in an asylum until the child reaches the age of eighteen months. In all about 4000 children are fed, housed, clothed, taught and cared for at a cost of about $16,000 a year.

Meeting Mr. Moreland yesterday afternoon, a reporter of the Chronicle asked him what were the results of his observations as to the general condition of the asylums visited.

"The general condition of the asylums visited, he," responded Mr. Moreland, "is good as to health, the cleanliness of the children and their bearings. Of course there are exceptions.

"Might I ask you to provide these exceptions?

"Well, as regards most of classifiance the asylum near Watsonville is not taught to be. It does not seem to be well kept. The children, it is true, appear healthy and happy, but the management seems to be, as they might be. The institution is under the charge of Francisco Palomo; there are no women around and that may account for the want of neatness.

THE SAN RAFAEL EPIDEMIC.

"Of course you have visited the Boys' Asylum at San Rafael, where considerable sickness has prevailed?

"Yes; we were over there only yesterday. Every thing was in good order, and the place was neat. There were four deaths in all and there will probably be another in a day or two. The cases are convalescent and the disease seems extinguished. The cause of the epidemic, so far as we could ascertain, was improper ventilation, the sewer emptying from sewer pipes and the crevices of timber under the old portion of the building, and the proximity of the dining room which is of a pleasant odor.

Dr. Hoag of the State Board of Health accompanied us and will make a medical report on the subject. He is a nephew of Rev. Father Crowe and contains 535 inmates.

FAR OFF ASYLUMS.

"What have you to say of the San Francisco asylum?

"That the Roman Catholic Female Orphan Asylum, on the South San Francisco, is the building the best adapted for its purpose in the State, strongly replied Mr. Moreland, and continued "It is a fine building, white walls, well-ventilated, well-lighted, with a well-equipped kitchen. The school rooms are also well furnished and the boys of Vallejo's time can count themselves fortunate, indeed. The Infant Orphan Asylum is adjacent, it, however, an old building and contains small children and foundlings to the number of 200. This building is too, in good condition, except the basement, which is moldy and has the same smell in it that it has Sabbat. They have given it a heavy coat of whitewash. The Home for Aged Women is in Devisadero street, which is in excellent condition. It is more than a home, it is a home, it is a home. It contains 135 children. The Home of the Aged Women is very neatness. The asylum of the Little Female Orphans is in good condition, and I feel in duty bound to say, we did not find the rooms and beds as neat as in some other institutions of like character.

"Have you also visited the Almshouse?

"Certainly we have, for the Almshouse is a most important part of State aid for the care of orphans and abandoned children. Of course, we visited it and found it in good condition;

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

TO ELLN.

Surveying her Her Priest, Patriot and Orator, Rev. T. H. Burke, O. P.

O Erin! Mother Erin, dark is thy day of sorrow!
Thy bravest and thy noblest, thy truest and true,
He who from heaven's own fountains such burning sorrow
To paint thy ancient glory, lies dead upon thy breast.

For then he lived and labored, for then his voice was wind
In deep soul-stirring accents, in thunder tones of might!
Where'er he spoke, as vapor i'n the swift north wind is driven,
Fled the darkening clouds of ignorance, and dawned the welcome light.

How our eager hearts were kindled with fervor unknown his power,
When he told with patriot rapture the joys of long ago,
Or burning in the present, robbed of all thy splendor
He painted thee bereaved i in thy agony and woe.

O his stirring strains of eloquence have rang the world wide round,
Where'er thy exiled children have pitched their tents they will hear whilst their bosoms, like the foe,
They will hear whilst their bosoms, like the foe,
The warm impulsive Irishman, and will hail them as a friend.

Better for him earthly guerdon, than all the world can give,
The proud love of the conqueror, the hero of a nation's life,
In the faithful love they gave him, when from Palmerston's frowning brows
He rent the veil, and taught men thy true place in the forum of peace.

In thy cause he never faltered, his courage was undaunted,
Tho' his life was proven in a thousand trying ways,
He fought the Vulture Famine, and in countless trials that tortured
Thy valleys through thy many dreary days.

He fought the Vulture Famine; yes, his labors for the sake of thy dear children, the wise
Have asked as I've thought of taking flight
Have asked as I've thought of taking flight to New York by the next steamer, as we Amidst the omnibus crowd of the main street
Some that passed now and then, "Come down to the store this afternoon," he said, and you will see more strange faces and ears
Than your story books ever showed
Yes, my cousin is going almost every morning
In harbor now, and every stage of civilization
Is to be seen with boys of his age."

And truly for weeks it seemed like a dream, until the novelty began to wear off,
Amidst the constant shouts of the noisy
Every day world with its cares to bear, and the duties to be fulfilled.

Our new home was quite a grand mansion for those days, being two stories in height and though lacking the luxuries of known in the East, yet was very comfortable, —a wonderful improvement on my mother's skillful fingers soon seemed homelike appearance.

The dear old house with its narrow halls and low ceilinged rooms which so often echoed to the merriment of childhood's hood's days, and the garden where blossomed the sweetest of old fashioned flowers, have long since given place to the encroachments of progress, and a stately pile of buildings devoted to business perverts now marks site. But my memory loves to picture it as it used to be, for the happy and brightest days of my life were spent beneath its roof.

At the time of which I write well trained servant girls were decidedly in the minority, and of great price, and it was not to be wondered that my mother felt a considerable pride in her household assistants, for Kate was a treasure, and Nellie in her sphere without equal, so that everything moved in the most harmonious measure. Fancy her surprise therefore when Kate, an average manhater, came one morning to tell her that an old friend who had been some time in California, and had a good place in the interior wanted her to become his wife; for all that was needed to make her home complete was a good stirring body to look after the house and keep things tidy.

"Not but that I cute me to the heart to leave you Mrs. Sayman, but I promised the poor boy, he was so pressing I could not refuse him."

My mother assured Kate that she felt happy in her prospective bliss, but frankly admitted she did not know what she would do without her, yet she would not hear Kate's proposition to postpone her wedding until a substitute could be found to take her place. Busy days followed in the preparation of a wedding dress and its accompanying finery. Various purchases of household plenishing were made by my parents for the bride sheet, for they appreciated her starting worth, and wished by substantial tokens to express their feelings in her regard.

One bright Tuesday morning we all assisted to the Catholic Church to witness Kate's marriage to Mr. Darcy, a stout middle aged man, so unlike the boy I had conversed when she spoke of him, I could scarcely retain my surprise when I first met him.
The ceremony was performed by a Dominican Nuptial Mass and benediction impressed spectators, it was such a startling contrast the brief matter-of-fact ceremony we had seen in other churches.

Mr. Darcy, my father assured us, was a well to do farmer whose home lay near one of the interior towns, and he was fond of and industrious, a character sufficient in his favor, instead of making a tedy
Kate had saved up a snug sum of money
"quite a few dol ads," she said to me,
that we had no occasion to fear that her future comfort was not assured.

The children I last felt a certain sense of relief when Kate was fairly gone. A woman of active, energetic habits, her management was more noted for nervous force than amiability, and her tongue was swift to admonisher
a reprimand whenever we passed on the spotlessly clean precincts of kitchen or pantry at inauspicious moments, in our oft repeated forays for bread and butter. The surest means of obtaining the coveted refreshment at such times was to send one of my brothers after them, she was accustomed of refusing them anything;
"Growing boys she would say need nourishment,
and talks my word for it, that consuming
between meals will ruin your health and complexions," was her invariable note of warning, yet she must have been very fond of us, troublesome though we were,
for she was a good, heartfelt tear when she bade us good bye.

Nellie assumed the post left vacant by Kate's resignation and assuming her form of service in the latter's company had not been gone a week, and with a little practice
she soon became a proficient cook, her efforts sometimes were freely devoured by children in order to allow mother an opportunity to rest, for it was one time before we could find a woman fitted to assist Nellie in her double duty.

Nellie's education had not been neglected,
by my mother's earnest request she our daily lessons with us from the first,
now received instruction from Sister
Clare, a dear old lady from New Orleans who came for a few hours each day to teach us. A diligent student, remarkable for her memory, and a great spirit,
Nellie soon became the acknowledged pride in her studies to the delight of her teacher and kindness, for she was patient and gentle with us, we could always rely on her assistance to unravel difficult points in our lessons which we failed to understand, and the young beginner was very often a few weeks of study plantion have removed a mountain of difficulty from the accompanying path.
Too many teachers think their duties filled when they place in the hands of their pupils, text books filled with knowledge is true, but presumed in such a dry and uninviting fashion as to repel instead couraging the student, and never think explaining in a manner to win and interest
the mind, the science is inculcate.

CHAPTER IV.

NELLE'S LOVE AND SORROW.

Time passed and Nellie grew to be a very handsome woman, whose wavy hair and bright blue eyes added to her sweet and winning manner was her many admirers more than once she might have stepped from the humble sphere to one of wealth
affluence, but she seemed indifferent to all,
showing no particular affection for any one
was Ursula who was still her darling, and there came into her life a love which was to darken the bright days of her young life leave its shadow impressed on her heart ever.

Her lover was one of those handsome, dashing young Irishmen with pleasing ners and fluent tongue who win by their apparent devotion, but too often prove a false to the heart they have lured by their was to all appearance of a bright, sunny position and seemed frank and truthful, but alas! it was only a designing mantle hide his many failings. When my father heard his story he was pleased to find industrious, a character sufficient in times to insure a tedy fortune
Kate had saved up a snug sum of money
"quite a few dol ads," she said to me,
that we had no occasion to fear that her future comfort was not assured.

The children I last felt a certain sense of relief when Kate was fairly gone. A woman of active, energetic habits, her management was more noted for nervous force than amiability, and her tongue was swift to admonisher
a reprimand whenever we passed on the spotlessly clean precincts of kitchen or pantry at inauspicious moments,
in our oft repeated forays for bread and butter. The surest means of obtaining the coveted refreshment at such times was to send one of my brothers after them, she was accustomed of refusing them anything;
"Growing boys she would say need nourishment,
and talks my word for it, that consuming
between meals will ruin your health
and complexions," was her invariable note
of warning, yet she must have been very fond of us, troublesome though we were,
for she was a good, heartfelt tear when she bade us good bye.

Nellie assumed the post left vacant by Kate's resignation and assuming her form
of service in the latter's company had not been gone a week, and with a little practice
she soon became a proficient cook, her efforts sometimes were freely devoured by children in order to allow mother an opportunity to rest, for it was one time before we could find a woman fitted to assist Nellie in her double duty.

Nellie's education had not been neglected,
by my mother's earnest request she our daily lessons with us from the first,
now received instruction from Sister
Clare, a dear old lady from New Orleans
who came for a few hours each day to teach us. A diligent student, remarkable for her memory, and a great spirit,
Nellie soon became the acknowledged
pride in her studies to the delight
of her teacher and kindness, for she was patient and gentle with us, we could always rely on her assistance to unravel difficult points in our lessons which we failed
to understand, and the young beginner
was very often a few weeks of study plantion have removed a mountain of difficulty from the accompanying path.
Too many teachers think their duties filled when they place in the hands of their pupils, text books filled with knowledge is true, but presumed in such a dry and uninviting fashion as to repel instead couraging the student, and never think explaining in a manner to win and interest
the mind, the science is inculcate.

CHAPTER IV.

NELLE'S LOVE AND SORROW.

Time passed and Nellie grew to be a very handsome woman, whose wavy hair and bright blue eyes added to her sweet and winning manner was her many admirers
more than once she might have stepped from the humble sphere to one of wealth
affluence, but she seemed indifferent to all,
showing no particular affection for any one
was Ursula who was still her darling, and there came into her life a love which was to darken the bright days of her young life leave its shadow impressed on her heart
ever.

Her lover was one of those handsome, dashing young Irishmen with pleasing manners

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST, 23, 1883.

CIRCULAR

From Archbishop Alemany, O. P.

To the Clergy of the Diocese of San Francisco.

Rev. Dear Sir:—Please announce to your congregation next Sunday that on the Sunday following you will make the annual collection for the Sunday school of the Diocese.

I would ask you to take occasion of this circular to impress upon the minds of your generous people, the necessity of the work, and the duty of contributing as liberally as their means will permit. Hitherto the priests of the diocese have come mostly from foreign seminaries, which is a long course of studies, though at reasonable rates, which is the end in Summer expense, to the exhaustion of the century bankroll in a long journey. To recruit in time a part of this expense, but more especially to carry out the oft repeated wishes of the Holy See, we have at last succeeded in establishing a Diocesan or Provincial Seminary, in which to have our clergy educated, but this has been at the necessary outlay of several thousand dollars.

Would every year we have to record the death of more than one of our clergy. This number is enough in a number of priests and the succession of the dioceses are enlarged—hence to fill the ranks that are thinned by death, and to place upon a firm foundation this important ecclesiastical seminary, the hands of the Bishop must be strengthened by the generous and considerate aid of his clergy.

Relying with perfect confidence on that generosity that they have ever evinced in the cause of education and religion, he feels bound in the word from you merely recalling to mind the importance of the demand, the present occasion will be unusually large.

Your devoted friend in Christ,

✠ J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,

Abp. S. F.

Catholic Martyrs to Duty.

News comes from the plague-stricken region of Egypt that two of the Catholic clergymen in attendance upon the British troops in the cholera infected districts have fallen victims to that dreadful scourge in the discharge of their duty. May God receive the souls of these martyrs to duty, faithful priests in the mansions of Heaven, as they not only conducted the rites of hundred in their native home in order to carry the Cross into distant lands, but in obedience to the stern call of our holy faith they died at their posts preparing souls for their eternal rest which we hope has been the reward of both pastor and flock.

Contrast the fate of these priests—"faithful unto death"—which is mind a letter we read recently concerning the death of a priest in 1832, when cholera raged throughout the United States. This letter was published in the Catholic Magazine and Review, of Birmingham, and in the number for January, 1833, we find the following comment on the death of the priest:

How England Helped the Southern Confederacy.

The recent efforts of English capitalists to create a "boom" in Confederate bonds has led to additional revelations concerning the assistance given by English capitalists to the Southern States in the war of Secession. The manner in which these English bondholders hope to realize at least a portion of the millions sterling which they advanced to aid in order to dismember the United States, is to induce the Southern States to petition the United States Government to guarantee to the bondholders the unappropriated balance of the Alabama award, and of the large amount of money received from cotton seizures in the South during the war. It is thought by them that $10,000,000 are lying idle in the Treasury at Washington. This would be $13,000,000 or $14,000,000, or about one third of the amount they would be satisfied with as a settlement. The amount of the Confederate debt is said to be $400,000,000. It is held mostly in Europe. How much of this the syndicate will be able to gather in remains to be seen. At any rate, the syndicate, if successful, will reap a vast reward for their outlay.

It is needless to say that such a scheme will never be successful, and that it will only be resorted to as a forlorn hope on the part of those who have foolishly and recklessly parted with their pounds sterling in order to gratify their prejudice against this republic, and with the hope that the success of the Southern Confederacy would be the death knell to a united republic on this continent.

In this instance, however, John Bull reckoned without his host, and now that his hatred of democracy has cost him millions of pounds, we hope he will be made even more miserable by the reflection that not a single sixpence will ever find its way back into an Englishman's pocket.

Mr. Ivan C. Michels, a Russian gentleman, well informed on the transactions between the late Confederacy and European Powers, furnishes a list of the names of some of the holders of the Confederate cotton loan bonds.

Mr. Michels said that these were the actual loans, moneys paid by each individual, but the amount of Confederate bonds they received in return amounted to several million dollars. He obtained the information through his London correspondent. Mr. Michels thinks the end of the London Times is best understood and explained by the contributions of Messrs. M. B. Sampson and John Theodore Delane, editors of that newspaper, as was parted with £15,000 of his wealth and the other contributed to the loan cause to the extent of £10,000. The following is the list referred to:

	Loans.
Sir Henry de Hinston, Bart	£180,000
James Campbell & Co.	150,000
Frederick Huth & Co.	100,000
Marquis of Bath	50,000
Marquis of Lansdowne	50,000
Beresford Hope	50,000
George Bayard	50,000
Charles Lotz & Co.	40,000
Baron Emile Erlanger	30,000
Alexander Collie & Co.	30,000
Thomas Fraser, Director and Subscriber
Directors of the Union Bank of Lon-
Wm. Stewart	20,000
W. S. Lindsay	20,000
Sir Cosmo Lindsay	20,000
John Lancaster, M. P.	20,000
John Slidell, Senior Partner	20,000
John Theodore Delane, Editor of Times	10,000
Wm. Graham	10,000
Representatives
J. S. Mills, Director of the Bank of England	10,000
H. Drummond	10,000
George Peacocke, M. P.	10,000
Wm. Fawcett	10,000
W. H. Gregory, M. P.	4,000
W. J. Hibbard, London Morning Post.	2,000
Edward Ashmead	1,000
Frederick Ashmead	1,000
Lord Donoughmore	1,000
Sir Richard Shiverness	1,000
Hon. Evelyn Ashley, Private Secretary to Lord Palmerston	500
Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone	20,000
Total loans	£898,000

The foregoing figures exhibit the startling fact that the twenty-nine individuals who have the opened their purses for the perfidious purpose of pulling down the stars and stripes of the great republic lost no less a sum than $4,480,000 by their insane investment. We have heard of many "wild-cat" schemes, but assuredly John Bull was badly cored by the Southern or when he undertook to support the Southern cause in order to help destroy this republic.

Much interest is manifested in this matter as to what sentiment is held by the Southern people themselves regarding this new movement to place the English-bought Southern bonds in such a position as to at least partially compensate the English holders therein. But in this regard the unfortunate allies of Gladstone have but little to hope for, if we are to judge of the people of the Southern States by the sentiments advanced by Judge Lochrane, of Georgia, when asked recently his opinion upon this momentous question. The Judge was very candid in giving his opinion, which we answer:

"The idea of the States paying the Confederate war debt, which, like slavery, was abolished by the fall of the Confederacy, is absurd, and to discuss it would be giving dignity to absurd notions. Some attempts at movements have been made in the interest of the bondholders, and we have to deplore the fact that some prominent men connected with it. It may be that distinguished attorneys have given abstract opinions as to the present validity of that debt, but such opinions would not sway a single man in Georgia. He said: "But to add to all this, I have heard that the bonds issued by the Confederacy shall be now paid by the Southern States, or about English capital to be invested in the Southern enterprises, and then they the people, who fought against the payment of the debt, of three bits of paper, hardly worth a penny a pound, will be made liable to pay Lord Rosebery and his syndicate—such a proposition is ridiculous in its proscription. The assumption that the South, with her present credit and property, is to be taxed to pay English capital for its investment, is an object of English arrogance so absurd, that it is to be lamented that it has ever had to pay the Confederate war debt, in praise of it, in part, to obtain English capital for its enterprises, then—to be so emphatic as possible—I would say, or my opinion—that we are left with gentlemen they may go to the devil with their money, their bonds, and their attempted blackmail."

—It is an old and a true saying that "there never was bad but there might be worse." The truth of this adage is forced upon us when we reflect that the visit of the "Sir Knights" is to be followed by—

An Important Question.

The action taken by the executive officers of the Irish National League at their recent session, regarding the growing evil of landgrabbing in this country on the part of English capitalists, has attracted a great deal of attention on the part of the Eastern press. If we are to judge by the immense tracts of land purchased by English land corporations, it would seem as if these plotting and plundering capitalists intended to transfer the British landlord system to this free country, and to live upon the misery of their tenants in the same manner that they have done for centuries in England, Ireland, and Scotland.

But now that the Irish National League has taken up this very important question, it is the intention of the executive of that rapidly-growing organization to prepare statistics showing how much public domain has been purchased by persons who never intend to become citizens of this country, and when the report of the special committee is prepared it is the intention of the executive of the National League to present a memorial to Congress on the subject, and also to send petitions to every State Legislature in order that some public land law may be enacted so as to save the citizens of this republic from being plundered of public lands which should be left open for settlement and cultivation by those who are directly interested in settling on the soil and cultivating it for the general prosperity of the whole people.

Referring to this suggestion from the National League, the New York Herald says: "It is an excellent idea. Our impression is that the land laws in this country make it difficult for a foreigner, whether native or foreign, to acquire great landed estates; but if this is not so, laws ought to be passed to make it impossible. In many of our States, as in New York, foreigners cannot hold title to real estate, and we advise the League, if they find that the abuse they suspect really exists, to memorialize State and Territorial Legislatures to adopt similar prohibitions. But let the public know the facts in the case at any rate."

A Catholic Bishop in New England in 1781.

The Celtic Magazine for August is a very readable and interesting number of that popular monthly. In the literary miscellany department we find the following interesting account of the first Catholic Bishop in New England, which will be doubtless found more novel and instructive to many of our readers who never imagined that the Catholic Church was founded in this land for more than seven centuries:

"The statement may be startling to some of our readers—but it is true—that there was a Catholic Bishop in Boston, and that before the Revolution, and that the first Catholic Bishop of Boston was a native of Ireland, and died fifty years ago—A. D. 1781. This was Bishop Cheverus, afterwards Cardinal, and ranked least of the saints and prelate circles of France, and yet he was a man of great learning and the kindness, the holiest and most attractive character. He was ordained priest in France, fled to Greenland, and then to the shores of our own Boston, where he was the spiritual government of the Northmen in America had become extinct, and where he was sent back to France, reached the religious which are now Canada and Nova Scotia, and had sailed into Narragansett Bay, and was met by Rev. Richard F. Cheney, A. M., in his "Lives of the Catholic Bishops," was "acquainted with class meeting with his groans, and received from them first of European dress, and was taken to Rome, where he became the priests, and the most active and zealous of the Papal guard, soldiers of the Cross was the renowned Erie, the first Bishop who ever visited Boston, and the first pope of America.

"Three Northmen, Thorwald, Thorstein, and Thorlak, who were of Irish birth, understood to colonize Vinland; and Eric came with them, and Thorwald, and Thorstein died and left Eric sole ruler of Greenland, and Eric's son, Leif, succeeded him in the chair of St. Peter, ninety-five years before Columbus. Is this a people of yesterday? What dynasty of family is with us? Is a nobleman compared with it? In his new fields of Apostolic labor the ardent Eric toiled for twenty years with great success; and in the year 1120 he went to Norway to instruct the inhabitants of the Church there to found a Bishopric in the new colony. Eric died, and Leif, who also, like Eric, had served the soil, should reap the precious harvest. Leif, indeed, was sent out by the Pope of Rome, the fate of Gardar, and according which the Apostolic and authority conferred in them by the Pope, they consecrated him Bishop of Gardar, in Greenland, A. D. 1121, with jurisdiction extending over the whole of the Norse colonies in America, including Vinland, which is now the New England States. The consecration was performed by Eystein, the Archbishop of Nidaros, and the Bishop Pratate at the time, immediately after receiving his consecration, set out for Greenland, his work, accompanied by a band of priests and deacons. The colonists received Leif and his Bishop on the shores of Narragansett Bay received them with joy, and they lived happily and in the labor of love, are long resolved to give over to the Church of Christ, and to the Apostolic Church with priests, and for which they had sought for so long a time, and for which they had sought of the Church in Vinland. This was arranged, in order that some priests should be sent over to the shores where Newport, Providence, and Boston now stand, and Narragansett, of which the relics still remains and from which, unprotected his work with the Church in the eternal reward. Though the direct work of the Northmen in the Isle of Wight, Greenland, and the companions, says Mr. Clar's, "Bishop Leif seems to have been the first Bishop of Boston and Charity and the flowers of every kind, and the fruits of every kind, and the fruits of the glorious Apostle." Through the intercession of Divine wisdom the tangible proofs of their labors perished with them; but the fact remains that the Catholic Church discovered and colonized America seven hundred and fifty years before Columbus. A Catholic Bishop had just fallen here in the ages of faith; long before the discovery of Columbus, and long before the Order of Leif, and the Reformation; long before Martin Luther and Henry VIII. were born; and when throughout all Christendom, there was but one fold and one shepherd.

Death of Archbishop Vaughan.

It is our melancholy duty to record the sudden death in Liverpool, England, on the 20th inst., of Archbishop Roger Bede Vaughan, of Sydney, New South Wales. The Archbishop passed through this city on his way to England, last May, and preached in the Cathedral, as noticed in the MONITOR at the time. He was in perfect health, and he had to pay the Confederate war debt, in praise of it, in part, to obtain English capital for its enterprises, then—to be so emphatic as possible—I would say, or my opinion—that we are left with gentlemen they may go to the devil with their money, their bonds, and their attempted blackmail."

A Letter from the Pope.

Rome, August 18.—The Pope has written to Cardinals de Lorca, Pitty and Apparecchiar, refuting the charges that the Papacy has any desire to stand in the way of the Government of Italy and saying them to defend the Church by accusing by adducing evidence from the archives of the Vatican showing that the charges are unfounded.

Protestant Hate as Manifested Fifty Years Ago.

The Protestant was the name of a sectarian sheet published in Pittsburg, Pa., about fifty years ago, and in examining its files a contemporary came across the following specimen of its spleen against the Catholic Church:

"HEAVY MATTER.—One hundred and one persons—and one hundred and thirty-five were also confirmed in the month of the beast at Rose-town's Hall, Pennsylvania. To this notice, the Pagan paper, from which it is extracted, adds, 'the Valley of the Mississippi, as the persons call it, is very much tainted with Popery.

"In Augustine's Mass house, Philadelphia, 160 persons were recently confirmed in Lent, and 300 new Pagans were manufactured in the Mass house, Armstrong county; 80 persons publicly avowed their attachment to the beast, and were confirmed (?) unoppositely; and 12 persons confirmed to the Babylonish, and received the image of the beast upon their foreheads! Popery in Armstrong county, Pa., last month, and the month before, and the month before, and in the Devil in Pudby's Mass house at Pittsburg.

"Mass House.—A Mass house was opened in August, at Baltimore, Canada, and several other temples of Bibb in September, at Freeport, Armstrong county, Pennsylvania.

"INDIANA.—I see no way at present to prevent Vincennes from becoming the seat of Satan's temples for the States south of the Ohio. The County Seminary is bought by a Papist, and the same have 50 or 60 Protestant girls under their care. In Washington they have a Papist church, congregation of 3,000 or 4,000 people. New Albany, I just omitted to mention, is another place where they are proposing to build a Mass house, and many young men are now studying for the 'orders' of the Romish priests, who are making every possible effort to get into office. Hrr."

This is the way the ignorant, vicious, and venomous sorbies of sectarianism talked half a century back when the Catholic Church was just beginning to develop its strength in this land. But what a change in the tone of our Protestant adversaries since then! We hear no more of "Mass Houses," about "Beast Making," or "Mass Houses," or other significant opprobrious epithets as applied to the Church. Our enemies have learned the lesson that calling us hard names has no effect whatever upon the spread of the faith, and they have also discovered that it is only the ignorant who will resort to this questionable practice. Hence the tactics of our adversaries have been changed, and they have learned to regard with decent respect a Church which received the full measure of their rancor fifty years ago.

It is indeed gratifying to notice the improvement in the tactics of our enemies whenever modern writers undertake to examine into dogmas of the Catholic Church. Instead of calling the Church of Christ "the Scarlet Lady," as was their custom in bygone years, they now refrain from flinging mud at her, and wisely set themselves to work in order to instruct the ignorant of their particular sect concerning their false notions regarding Catholic customs and doctrines. We have a notable instance of this change of base in a recent issue of the New York Independent, wherein appeared an article on Indulgences, which opens with the following rather novel admission from a Protestant preacher:

"Let us get rid of the notion, not uncommon in Protestant circles, that indulgences, in the intention of the Roman Catholic Church, are in the nature of sin."

Here is a Protestant writer who, with one stroke of his pen, completely erases a strong argument the Catholic Church which has been tenaciously believed in by millions of misinformed Protestants in the last three centuries, and then we find that—one—the old stock in trade of bigots and sectarian malice manufactured for the purpose of maligning the Catholic Church are gradually being swept away by the evidence of impartial Protestants, and ruled by the intellectual development of the sectarian themselves. There are very few non-Catholics in this age so ignorant as to believe that Catholics "worship images" or "give divine honor to the Blessed Virgin," two calumnies that formed the basis of every bigot's knowledge of "Roman superstition" half a century ago.

Nowadays we hear very little said against the doctrine of Purgatory or the Sacrament of Confession, for many years the Catholics have read so much regarding these subjects, that they would despise any falsifying fire-eating parson who would undertake to palmy off these and other unintelligible statements upon either topic. And the same rule holds good regarding other Catholic dogmas and historical questions, many of which have been the mark of leading preachers non-Catholics into the Church in consequence of the light they received in their researches after the truth, in falsehood of statements published by sectarian enemies of the Catholic Church.

Consecration of Bishop Riordan.

Sunday, September 16th, is the day designated for the consecration of Right Rev. Patrick W. Riordan, Coadjutor to his Grace Archbishop Alemany, O. P. The imposing ceremonies will take place in the Cathedral of the Most Holy Name, Chicago, and will be on a scale of magnificence commensurate with the occasion. Archbishop Feehan will officiate as consecrating Prelate, assisted by Bishop Ryan of St. Louis, Bishop Flasperald of Little Rock, and a large number of other Prelates from the several Dioceses which cluster around Chicago. The sermon on the occasion will be delivered by Bishop Spalding of Peoria, a former classmate of the Bishop-elect, and we anticipate a masterly effort from the eloquent Bishop on that solemn occasion.

—The Argonaut charges that Mr. H. E. Highton, who has been selected to deliver the oration at the Masonic corner-stone laying on Friday next, is an Englishman who was such a rabid secessionist that he refused to take the oath of loyalty to this republic during the Civil War, and was thereby debarred from practicing at the bar. Any eulogy such a galvanized American can deliver about Garfield will be unworthy of being printed, but then we presume he is a top-sawyer in the Masonic fraternity, and in San Francisco—for this week at least—Masonry covers a multitude of sins.

—There are 821 Catholic churches in England.

Revelations of the Grand Jury Report.

The report of the late Grand Jury regarding the public institutions and officials in this city is a document that is well deserving the calm consideration of every citizen. The gentlemen comprising the jury were evidently thorough in their investigation of public institutions and honest in the expression of their sentiments concerning them. A great responsibility rests with citizens who are called upon to represent the citizens of this city in thus supervising the management of public offices and institutions, and we are glad to find that in the present instance the work has been entrusted to men who earnestly performed the task allotted to them, and who were not afraid to censure the conduct of city officials who had been guilty of criminal neglect or who resorted to nefarious means in order to promote private interests at the expense of the tax-paying public.

It is also gratifying to find that the Grand Jury took a well-deserved compliment to the Sisters of Mercy in their management of the Magdalen Asylum, especially when we remember that only a few years ago a body of men, who ought to be the Industrial School, but who is at present an absconding defaulter, recommended that the Sisters of Mercy be relieved from the Sisters of Mercy and placed under the "protection" of an incompetent and corrupt official. Regarding the excellent management of the institution of the city of which the Grand Jury, in their report, thus express themselves:

THE MAGDALEN ASYLUM.

This institution, a branch of the Industrial School, has sixty-two inmates as a charge to the City, and, considering the class of unfortunates, is in of excellent order. If anything can reform the unfortunate inmates of this Asylum, it is the care and attention bestowed on them by the sisters who have charge of the institution. The Sisters receive no compensation from the City, but receive a corporal's allowance from the Treasury, whose positions are given solely as a reward for political services. In their place women of culture care for and instruct the inmates, and the city is financially and morally largely benefited.

Far different from this is the view held by the Grand Jury relative to the management of other departments of the municipal corporations, a few of which we append:

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

The Public School Department has received at its hands more careful attention than the Public Schools are the pride of the city, some matters of detail, however, remain to be adjusted. The location does not appear to act in that harmony with the Department which it should, and which it is the duty of the Board of Education to cultivate. It is a matter of regret that the Board of Education, the Department, and the Legislature should not have reached the conclusion that the Board of Education, the Department, and the Legislature and New Seattle, and had sailed into Narragansett Bay, and was met by the Richard F. Cheney, A. M., in his "Lives of the Catholic Bishops," was "acquainted with class meeting with his groans, and received from them first of European dress, and was taken to Rome, where he became the priests, and the most active and zealous of the Papal guard, soldiers of the Cross was the renowned Erie, the first Bishop who ever visited Boston, and the first pope of America.

"Three Northmen, Thorwald, Thorstein, and Thorlak, who were of Irish birth, understood to colonize Vinland; and Eric came with them, and Thorwald, and Thorstein died and left Eric sole ruler of Greenland, and Eric's son, Leif, succeeded him in the chair of St. Peter, ninety-five years before Columbus. Is this a people of yesterday? What dynasty or family is with us? Is a nobleman compared with it? In his new fields of Apostolic labor the ardent Eric toiled for twenty years with great success; and in the year 1120 he went to Norway to instruct the inhabitants of the Church there to found a Bishopric in the new colony. Eric died, and Leif, who, like Eric, served the soil, should reap the precious harvest. Leif, indeed, was sent out by the Pope of Rome, the fate of Gardar, and according which the Apostolic and authority conferred in them by the Pope, they consecrated him Bishop of Gardar, in Greenland, A. D. 1121, with jurisdiction extending over the whole of the Norse colonies in America, including Vinland, which is now the New England States. The consecration was performed by Eystein, the Archbishop of Nidaros, and the Bishop Pratate at the time, immediately after receiving his consecration, set out for Greenland, his work, accompanied by a band of priests and deacons. The colonists received Leif and his Bishop on the shores of Narragansett Bay received them with joy, and they lived happily and in the labor of love, are long resolved to give over to the Church of Christ, and to the Apostolic Church with priests, and for which they had sought for so long a time, and for which they had sought of the Church in Vinland. This was arranged, in order that some priests should be sent over to the shores where Newport, Providence, and Boston now stand, and Narragansett, of which the relics still remains and from which, unprotected his work with the Church in the eternal reward. Though the direct work of the Northmen in the Isle of Wight, Greenland, and the companions, says Mr. Clar's, "Bishop Leif seems to have been the first Bishop of Boston and Charity and the flowers of every kind, and the fruits of every kind, and the fruits of the glorious Apostle." Through the intercession of Divine wisdom the tangible proofs of their labors perished with them; but the fact remains that the Catholic Church discovered and colonized America seven hundred and fifty years before Columbus. A Catholic Bishop had just fallen here in the ages of faith; long before the discovery of Columbus, and long before the Order of Leif, and the Reformation; long before Martin Luther and Henry VIII. were born; and when throughout all Christendom, there was but one fold and one shepherd.

The Saturnalia of the "Sir Knights."

San Francisco has been the paradise of sight-seers during the present week. The city is gorgeously dressed with flags, streamers and banners all bearing devices that look very familiar to Catholic eyes, but which are so many enigmas to those without the true fold. It is very suggestive of the Almighty Dollar to see the sons of Javes, Chinese, and other heights who are not Christians, decorated with flags on which is emblazoned the Christian cross, and around which clusters the legend "In hoc signo vinces," but the superlative of the ridiculous was reached by a city dentist who hung a small flag bearing this device pendant from a mammoth gilt molar which hung in front of his office!

The daily press paid due tribute to the "Sir Knights," whose every movement was chronicled with a minuteness almost disgusting, but now that the Knights have paraded and feasted, and danced and strutted their brief hour on the stage, people are beginning to realize that they are only shoddy "Sir Knights" after all, that they have never achieved any glory to distinguish them from the other millions of the American people, and that all their paraphernalia is a medley of meaningless pretense without a single redeeming feature. Like "feather bed soldiers," they look fine on parade, they are valorous in destroying a given amount of beef, bread, and bologna sausage, they relish their wines and ales while in the many dance, but beyond this they possess no qualifications to entitle them to public recognition. They are simply a band of idlers belonging to the Masonic Order, and all their Latin devices, crosses, religious ceremonies, and other sham knightly armor are merely so many goody, glittering fashion pinched from the peacock to ornament the bunnard.

We have shown of any kind, but when we find a body of men making a mockery of Catholic devices, Catholic rites, and even the Catholic creed, our conscience revolts at the outrage. During the special religious ceremonies on Sunday last those sham Knights recited the Apostles Creed in unison, and every Catholic can imagine the hollow mockery of these men when they each declared:

"I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Holy Catholic Church, the communion of Saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body, and the everlasting life."

In making this declaration these bogus Knights uttered a foul falsehood, inasmuch as they have no one among them who "believes in the Holy Catholic Church, the communion of saints, or the forgiveness of sins," as dogmatically defined by the Church of God. This mere profession of a faith they do not hold is in keeping with the other shams of these shadowy "Sir Knights," who should be regarded with scorn by all true Catholics.

—Some of our readers from time to time—who—sends clippings also sham Knights, who have assumed the name of the cardinal virtues to command it to public consideration, but which is merely an association of oath-bound gringos, who have adopted the name of a virtue under borrowed plumes and under knightly names that are only soiled by being used by rash unworthy imitators of the invincible Knights of the agos of chivalry.

Has Carey been Killed?

It seems, from the tone of some of the Irish papers, that the opinion prevails there that Carey is dead, and that the notorious James Carey, the notorious informer, has not been killed, and that the English Government spread this rumor purposely in order to shield Carey's present location. The following letter, which appears in several of the Dublin papers, envelops the matter in still greater mystery

DUBLIN, Tuesday, August 14.

The following startling letter appeared in the Dublin Evening Mail:

Cork, Sir—I am acquainted with two most respectable persons who have just left Cork, and are temporarily supplied goods to Mrs. James Carey, and they have seen Carey and his family living with her. They tell me she was in their shop purchasing goods, and that she looked well and spoke at the counter. She noticed their sympathy, and said she was well, but that they thought she was thousands of miles away, to which they replied that they had seen her husband. They asked her about her husband. She said he was "All right or right as you are." That the reports in the papers were a lot of fabrications. Instead of being in Australia or America, and felt sure that from some source you would have heard it. She said he was home every morning (he not see anything of it, as business is over for him) and he was home every night (she affirm it) at that Mrs. Carey is not at Capetown, and that the reports in the papers are a lot of fabrications, and that Carey is living with his family in Cork.

I give my name and address, but not for publication.

We are glad to learn from a very reliable source that the charge brought against Rev. T. Maupin, U. S. Army Chaplain, of having duplicated his pay accounts, is entirely without foundation, and we sincerely hope that such of our Protestant and Catholic contemporaries as have given publicity to this report will do justice to Father Maupin by contradicting the falsehood.

A correspondent sends us a long letter criticising pretty severely a certain contemporary. We have not time to read it, but we know that any contemporary who is so unfair as to misrepresent the character nor the circulation to render it worthy of notice. It is half dead already, and there is no use in galvanizing it into life by giving it a kick.

THE CATHOLIC ENIGMA.

WILLIAM E. Howell, of Lebanon, Ky., president of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, has sent us a communication to all presidents of divisions of the order on the subject of the recent decision of J. L. Hachmeister, supreme treasurer of the order, in which he decides that the order will lose nothing by the defalcation of Hachmeister's sureties, and that the order will be paid $2,000, payable to Mary Donnelly, and which was drawn out by Hachmeister, who represented himself as the acting treasurer. The bond of course, is responsible for this $2,000, and the remaining $9,000 will be made good by Hachmeister's sureties. Mr. Howell says that the amount of Hachmeister's defalcation will not

THE MONITOR.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1883.

IRISH NATIONAL LEAGUE.

CALL FOR A MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

San Francisco August 21, 1883.

1. Thursday, Sept. 13th, 1883, at 7:30 p. m., at Irish American Hall, San Francisco, are hereby fixed as the time and place for organizing a Municipal Council for San Francisco, under the Constitution and laws of the I. N. L. of America.

2. Each Society and Branch in the City, upon presenting the name and addresses of its officers—President, Secretary and Treasurer—to the National Secretary direct, or through the National Executive for California, and also by requisition direct to Pres. Michael O'Reilly, National Treasurer, Detroit, Michigan, the first quarterly payment of Twenty-five Cents for each member, shall be entitled to a representation in the Council as follows: viz:

1. The President of each Society or Branch, Two delegates for fifty members and upwards; and

2. One delegate for every 100 members over 50.

We sincerely hope that all societies friendly to the cause will affiliate and comply with the rules of the League at the earliest practicable moment, so that we may have the assistance of their representatives in the formation of the Council, and in selecting officers for the ensuing year.

By Order of the Executive,

M. COONEY, San Francisco,
T. McMULLEN, Oakland, California,
Committee.

J. F. GIBBON,
County Organizer for San Francisco.

ADDITIONAL AFFILIATED SOCIETIES

The Mitchell Branch.

The Mitchell Branch of the Irish National Land League was organized in Irish American Hall last Wednesday night. The following officers were elected: President, J. C. Mahony; vice-president, John F. Boyle; secretary, John Lenahan; treasurer, P. H. Dwyer; marshal, Jas. Mahony; guard, John Cullen. Thirty-five members are on the roll. The following gentlemen, John Boyle, Jas. Mahony was given to Dr. Gibbons and Judge Lawlor, who gave stirring addresses in behalf of the League.

The Father Mathew Branch.

The Father Mathew branch of the Irish National League was organized in Irish American Hall last Wednesday night. The following officers were elected: President, John Mahony; vice-president, William Wagner; recording secretary, M. F. O'Donoghue; financial secretary, F. J. O'Brien; treasurer, P. Ryan; marshal, John Ryan; assistant marshal, Jas. Hodge. Cooney and county organizer Dr. Gibbons were present and addressed the meeting on the good feeling and enthusiasm which prevailed. Vice-President Mahony of the Father Mathew Total Abstinence Society addressed the meeting.

Andrew Jackson Branch.

The Andrew Jackson branch of the Irish National League met last Friday evening. It was decided that the Land League should not wait until the Municipal Council meets next Sept. 13th, but that the Jackson Branch should, in making speeches, spoke in favor of the Land League and Home Rule for Ireland since its organization. The club adjourned until next Friday.

Annual Order Hibernian.

Division No. 1, of the Ancient Order Hibernians, affiliated and organized as a branch of the Irish National League, met Monday night, President John Boyle in the chair. John Gibbon, Secretary.

BEAUTIFUL SCENES AT ST. FRANCIS CHURCH.

Last Sunday was a red letter day in the calendar of Catholic events in this city, the consecrating the Church the first object that attracts the eye of the stranger who visits the metropolis of the main and side aisles which were a mass of beauty and grandeur. The church is 160 feet long and 80 feet wide. The church was filled, all the seats were occupied, and there were about 200 with their banners and handsome regalia representing the various societies. The church was adorned by 60 children arrayed in white who formed the first class to receive the Holy Ghost. After a large number of the congregation had received the Sacrament of Confirmation, the Bishop and the other children received in the Church the right hand of fellowship, and the ceremony and impressive.

The Pontifical Mass was celebrated, Rev. J. V. Lecomte, celebrant; Father Ashworth, deacon; Father Shinnick, subdeacon; Most Rev. Archbishop, assisted by two other clergy, acted as deacon of the Mass, and Father Ward, in voice, was in the Palestrina style of composition. The Bishop was in his robes, and he gave the unctuous approval of the authorities in the Church of Rome to the Mass, which was sung by Forepaugh. The Mass in a new one just from the pen of Professor Wolfsohn, of Philadelphia. It was excellently well rendered and the music was very pleasing to the ear and the devotion of the organist, R. McCabe.

About 8 o'clock the Most Rev. Archbishop addressed the candidates for Confirmation in his usual forcible and impressive manner. He congratulated the Sacrament to 130 boys and girls, who had attained the age of reason, and possessed the most obliging, and shows the great good the Church has done in the past and the great and the million efforts for the religious education of the young, and the great good it will do in the future. He said he made more efforts than it had ever before been made in the history of the Church in this city to provide facilities for their service. The period of St. Francis Xavier, the Apostle of the Indies, was the time for being done by the Priests and Sisters for the Catholic youth of the Church. He was extremely happy to be present at the solemn and impressive ceremony, and he was sure that the Church would always stand the seals of faith and religion in the hearts of the people, and prosperity in this life and in the next.

THE MONITOR AND MASONRY.

We think many friends of the MONITOR for their personal and epistolary congratulations on the success of our efforts to expose the Masonic Ring. We have many letters of thanks at hand, but as the following contains the substance of all we publish it:

SAN FRANCISCO, August 18, 1883.

DEAR SIR—I congratulate you on the splendid response to "Practical Catholic" in your last issue. I do not wonder that he is probably lost a practical Catholic for it he was one he would be a very active one, and would be shocking the devil's society. It gills all such "practical Catholics" to be so many contemptible pretenders in the Masonic Ring contemptible to Christ and to the Church or a Catholic paper. I know a man who was a practical Catholic for a few years in Indian between man and man, and he was made to a Mason, and he was a Catholic, and the new Mason is sure to be lessen, and he is now a practical Catholic, and he is a lawyer and has had any court experience. Practically this man is lost to the world, and he is dangerous to a community, and he is a practical Catholic, and he is a Mason

A NEW SHOWER BATH.

And Just the Reason It Didn't Work Satisfactorily.

"I declare," exclaimed Mrs. Jones, as her eyes fell on the combined shower and plunge bath, with slats wide running up and down its side, "for all the world just like a cabinet organ," as she appeared to think (just the thing! And its so ornamental, too!" she added, after gazing at it fondly for a half a minute or so. "Dearest"—she always called Jones "dearest" upon occasions like the present—"do you know that it is just what I've been looking for ever so long?"

Then the shopkeeper explained the novel lesson of the bath in most eloquent terms. By pulling the different knobs—"stops," Mrs. Jones persisted in calling them—one could have douch, hot shower, cold shower, hot wave, cold wave, hot spray, cold spray, hot plunge and cold plunge. The remaining knob was for the vestibule.

"A sort of principal stop," suggested Mr. Jones, still adhering to her organ idea.

"Yes, m'm," replied the shopkeeper, politely.

Then Mrs. Jones looked it all over again, pulling out first one "stop" and then another. Then she held a whispered conversation with her lord and master.

Jones was inclined to be affish at first, but when Mrs Jones remarked that it would be just the thing for his rheumatism, he succumbed and ordered the bath sent home.

The next day was Sunday, and Jones got up to try his new purchase.

Having secured his clothing, Jones got into the bathtub.

If there was anything Jones hated it was cold water. Therefore, he felt around for the "hot wave!" but, as luck would have it, he got hold of the "cold shower" instead, and down came an avalanche of ice cold water upon his poor shivering body.

Jones remained like a pair of panthers, waiting Mr. J. from her morning nap, anxiously for a hot douse of water to relieve his bluishness.

Jones had the "hot plunge" out and was up to his neck in boiling water.

Mrs. J. rushed the story in, and, in order to make things very pointed, set the "hot shower" stop, which sent down a sizzling stream upon his devoted head, making him scream more than ever.

Jones was in a fix to satisfy him any way. He pulled all the stops in succession, first the "douche," then the "hot wave," and now the "cold shower," then he opened half a dozen at a time, and finally the whole thing went off at once.

There is no knowing how the thing would have ended hadn't the water run out just as Jones was in his last gasp. One minute more and Mr. J. would have been a widow.

When the water had ceased to flow, Mrs. J., with great presence of mind, closed all the stops at once. Mrs. J. is a great woman in an emergency. She is very proud upon that virtue. But Jones is an unsympathetic man. The first words he uttered when he had recovered his breath were:

"Why in thunder didn't you do that before?"

Mr. Jones gave him an injured look, but Jones didn't see it. He scrambled out of the bathtub as fast as his legs had allowed him by clinging to spray, and all the time making diabolical faces at the cause of all his misery.

Mr. J. did not test the bathtub herself. Indeed she hadn't the time. She had all she could do to keep her husband from relaxing to assist the assisted outside of her bed with boiling lotions.

The first time Jones got up on over his bath. Then he walked deliberately over to where his "vestibule" stood, and planted his "soft" stand, and kicked it till he was out of breath. Then he sulked for the rest of the day, and ate his dinner into kindling wood, and all. After that he perched himself atop of the tubbing, and read the riot act in determined glee, and it was a good hour before he could be induced to dismount and put on his clothes.

The next day he met the wrath to the shopkeeper, with his complaint. He was the most sulkiying bathfish he ever had, he said; once using enriched him for all eternity.

But there are two words that are utterly tabooed in the Jones household, viz., "bathtub" and "organ stop." Mrs. J. would as soon think of speaking of either the one or the other than she would think of saying any one of the horrid words uttered by Jones while in the embrace of that hated "combined shower and plunge-bath."

A Distinguished Dude.

"Oh, Tawm," said one dude to another, "I was on a great tawk last night."

"Yaw tawk you dawn't say!"

"Yes, Tawm, and I'm so wretched-to-day, you saw tawk."

"Why, you boy, what could you have done?"

"Why, Jaak, I dissipated you knaw, in a frightful manneh, indeed."

"Naw! Why, pray?"

"Naw, Tawm, I walked four blocks at one time, and on street, too! Just think of that, will you?"

"Aw Jaak, I aws hardly think it!"

"But I did, Tawm, and I drank two glasses of aale, tawk, and one of aqua vitæ and a Chaawlie cawnp."

"You frightfully dissipated youtah!"

"Thee, Tawm, I drank a glass vhey, and smoked two cigawettes, and called on three young ladies and their mammas, you knaw; and, Tawm, pegs let me go by myself and, Tawm, shah the self I meet an other aale."

"Aw, Jaak, what will aah become of you?"

"Weally, Tawm, I aws't tell; but that wsn't all, for when I aahm home aahm aw-fuly wuthless, and aahm aw-fuly sick, and aahm aw-fuly ashamed of myself, and now the "mild shower" stop the cannot half a dozen at a time, and finally the whole thing went off at once."

There is no knowing how the thing would have ended hadn't the water run out just as Jones was in his last gasp. One minute more and Mr. J. would have been a widow.

When the water had ceased to flow, Mrs. J., with great presence of mind, closed all the stops at once. Mrs. J. is a great woman in an emergency. She is very proud upon that virtue. But Jones is an unsympathetic man. The first words he uttered when he had recovered his breath were:

"Why in thunder didn't you do that before?"

Mr. Jones gave him an injured look, but Jones didn't see it. He scrambled out of the bathtub as fast as his legs had allowed him by clinging to spray, and all the time making diabolical faces at the cause of all his misery.

Mr. J. did not test the bathtub herself. Indeed she hadn't the time. She had all she could do to keep her husband from relaxing to assist the assisted outside of her bed with boiling lotions.

The first time Jones got up on over his bath. Then he walked deliberately over to where his "vestibule" stood, and planted his "soft" stand, and kicked it till he was out of breath. Then he sulked for the rest of the day, and ate his dinner into kindling wood, and all. After that he perched himself atop of the tubbing, and read the riot act in determined glee, and it was a good hour before he could be induced to dismount and put on his clothes.

The next day he met the wrath to the shopkeeper, with his complaint. He was the most sulkiying bathfish he ever had, he said; once using enriched him for all eternity.

But there are two words that are utterly tabooed in the Jones household, viz., "bathtub" and "organ stop." Mrs. J. would as soon think of speaking of either the one or the other than she would think of saying any one of the horrid words uttered by Jones while in the embrace of that hated "combined shower and plunge-bath."

A Distinguished Dude.

"Oh, Tawm," said one dude to another, "I was on a great tawk last night."

"Naw Jaak you dawn't say!"

"Yes, Tawm, and I'm so wretched-to-day, you naw tawk."

"Why, you boy, what could you have done?"

"Why, Jaak, I dissipated you knaw, in a frightful manneh, indeed."

"Naw! Why, pray?"

"Naw, Tawm, I walked four blocks at one time, and on street, too! Just think of that, will you?"

"Aw Jaak, I aws hardly think it!"

"But I did, Tawm, and I drank two glasses of aale, tawk, and one of aqua vitæ and a Chawn

A VISIT TO LOUISE LATEAU.

(CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.)

even a bishop, call her during the century, she pays no attention to it. But if it is her confessor or the bishop of the diocese, even in a low voice, the century comes immediately. These experiences have taken tried many times and before many witnesses.

GOD ACCOMPLISHES ALL THIS TO SHOW

in a manner more evident and more incontestable His supernatural action upon the chosen soul of Louise. For twelve years Louise has taken no nourishment except the Holy Eucharist, which she receives every morning. All kinds of food have been tried, even the other brand not consecrated, but the result remains any; she took it for obedience, without great gains by it, and finally them trials were abandoned. For Louise Lateau the Holy Eucharist is the daily bread and the only bread, and it is for her the nourishment of both soul and body, so as soon as she has received it her condition is perfect, she becomes immaterial, she is everything around her, her lips move no more, her eyes are closed, and even breathing ceases. Every morning after Communion, for about fifteen or twenty minutes, she is in her hands, her feet, her side, wounds which are made by their hands on the cross of her hands; she is insensible to all. It will may be more. I am not moved by too many wonders. I know God for having permitted me to witness so much of His goodness and power.

REV. GOMAR.

The Church of the Poor.

ENGLAND THE ENEMY OF JUSTICE.

Catholicity the Foe of Oppression.

Splendid Sermon by Father Hodnett of Chicago.

The following is an extract from an oration recently delivered by Father Hodnett, of Chicago, at the laying of the corner stone of St. Agnes Church. Archbishop Feehan and the clergy of the Archdiocese occupied seats on the rostrum. Several thousand people attended the ceremonies.

REV. THOMAS FOTS HODNETT, said: "There is no other institution left standing" which goes back to the days when the Roman Empire was in the zenith of its power, when the Empire of Germany, the aristocracy of France, the Republic of Venice, the old Helvetian League, the Queen of the Adriatic, the Empire of Napoleon, the Portuguese Republic, the Republic of Holland, the Commonwealth of Protestants, and the Irish Protestant Parliament, all of, are gone, and the Church, the oldest institution in the republics of blasted antiquities; but the one encouraging thing is that the Church, still remains! And she is more powerful now than she was then, and here is the heart of this vast union, where the rivers of humanity empty themselves, as natural rivers do into the oceans, and she is inspired a her gorgeous and magnificent structures to the worship of the living God!

THEN YOUR STEP TO ENGLAND

and behold her there—the brain and intellect of that country, so far as it has been able to assert itself, and yet, deserting the Church of its establishment—the same church which was founded by Augustine, the Monk, sent into existence by the Gods, by the slaughter of eighty thousand (80,000) Saxons. The same church, which made it a crime for an Irish Catholic to marry a Protestant, the same church which has murdered and pillaged mankind from the Reformation down to the Battle of the Boyne; the same church which defiled the immortal revolution of 1688 and of 1778 and held up Washington, Montgomery and Berry of that day to eternal execration and blasted the memory of the murderous and the atrocious pirate flag of England, which has blasted and blighted everything in the colonies worth saving. Yes, the babes even, taken from the mother's breast were thrown upon the bayonets of a shivling soldiery. Neither age nor sex was spared in their fiendish rage. In a small part of the history of the immortale Church of England. (I should have said the immortale protestantism.)

[A voice—"You have not told half, go on."]

Contrast the action of the Catholic Church of that period, with the Catholic France and Catholic Spain both united to free Protestant England in America from Protestant England's Empire. The force of Washington's army was Irish Catholics, and history reveals the fact that there were in that period, there Catholic Irishmen of that period, there would be no republic in America to-day.

With the honorable exceptions of the indefeasibility of the Catholic Church clearly written in holy writ, and clearly proved by hundreds of Protestant writers, from whom by a chain of Protestant testimony the civilize we have created unimpeachable evidence that the so-called "revolution of Protestantism" never was and never could be the work of God.

The names of Boylin, Sonnon, Burnet, Camden, Darby, Dugdale, Tanner, Bishop Ashurst, Fox, Collier, Baker Wordsworth, Hume, Tytler, Mackintosh, all Protestant writers, prove that the so-called "Reformation" commenced in lust and ended in murder, rapine, arson and all the universal villainy which surrounds the throne of Satan. A later writer has observed that "Rome: Never since the era of what is called the 'Reformation' has the controversy between Protestantism and Catholicism assumed so interesting a complexion; never has it seemed so impressive on each individual to make a decision as to the line of his eternal destiny.

THE HEART OF EVERY CATHOLIC

throughout Christendom leaps with joy within him at the glorious hope opening before the Catholic Church. The fag-ends of Protestantism are being worn into a type of mind; she has no positive theology, she has no historical foundation to build upon, she has no recognized head, like the Catholic Church, she is not the friend of the workingman, for the Church is, and the Catholic Church selected twelve workingmen—twelve fishermen—to promulgate its doctrines and rear its edifice in all nations.

In England, Protestantism is the defender of the throne and the landlords; in Germany she is the same. She has never lifted her bloody hand to smite a tyrant; she has plundered the poor to rear the rich robber; she has inaugurated a system of usurpations in this country which if not checked by the increasing power of Catholicity, will end in absolute despotism; she is the friend of legal and sanctioned robbery in every country where she has gained a foothold, and, against her corruptions, and against her tyranny, against her usurpations, and against her kings, and her idolatrous worship of rank, alone stands the Catholic Church, the friend of the oppressed and down trodden of the world.

Protestantism is the religion of the aristocracy and of the oppressors of mankind; Catholicity, on the other hand, is the religion of the people—the workingmen, and the robbed and plundered masses of humanity.

FROM THE GRANTING OF THE MAGNA CHARTA

by King John, in England, in 1215, A. D., which was wrung from him by Catholic barons, aided and sustained by the Catholic hierarchy of England at that epoch, I would like to be able to show one single, one solitary instance in which the church of Henry VIII, has ever taken a solid stand for the freedom, protection and happiness of the human race. How much falsehood has been promulgated when it was asserted that the Catholic Church could control the kings and the emperors of the world. Would to God she could! Yet would have a universal republic in Europe, Asia and South America. It would be well for man, that the spiritual Head of Christendom did control brutal tyrants called emperors, kings and princes, who ride rough-shod over the humble peasant, artisan and workingmen generally, and who, are only man born of woman, like all of us, and who have no more right to kill it over mankind than any one of the brute creation have over another. It would be well, I say, if there was a power—that could touch their base and adulterated hearts, and make them tremble before the anger of an outraged God, and before the cries of a robbed and starving people. No doubt the great heart of the workingmen throughout the world made them tremble for once, in winged on the pinnacle of justice, soaring aloft in heavenly ecstacy, when they remember that a murderous Henry is accurged at the tomb of Thomas a Becket, and they remember that another Henry, a double-dyed traitor and tyrant, who stripped his people to the tips in gall and dyed his empire with the blood of workingmen, had to wait, barefoot and shivering with cold and hunger, for days, at the door of the Vatican—the terrestrial palace of Christ's vice-regent on earth; or when a Pope of Rome grinds his foot into the neck of a Frederick Barbarossa.

A SUPREME POWER ON EARTH,

Great God! who dare stand up and say, against the light of history and the intelligence of the nineteenth century, that evangelic Protestantism ever dared to enforce its discipline on royalty or nobility? Who may they have? against the Catholic Church and its learned divines, for they are the only authorities on earth to day which can back them. Well may aristocratic Protestantism weep over the power in the hands of the

CATHOLIC HIERARCHY AND PRIESTHOOD

—a power which has rarely been abused and which has always been used to scourge tyrants, and I have no hesitation in saying that it is mainly due to the exercise of such power, in the hands of the Popes, hierarchy and priesthood that the people over their political and social existence, and that the freedom of civil and religious liberty, and in the enjoyment of which I am speaking to-day, is due to the Catholic Church, which in to-day stands in the column of the Herald. Liberty, as we have lived, no close to that region, we have never visited it before, and notwithstanding all we had heard, in wealth of available soil, its fine water supply, and its rest forests of the best timber, were to us a great and pleasant surprise. What is known as the Georgetown Divide lies between the South Fork and the Middle Fork of the American river, extending from a point on the west where these two branches of the American come together, a little above Folsom, eastwardly to the summit of the Sierras. The rivers on either side diverge toward their source, embracing in the country dividing them a vast area of timber land and foothill fruit land. The town of Georgetown contains a population of from 400 to 500 souls, pleasantly located at an altitude of about 2,700 feet, and yet in a state of comparative prosperity, owing to the mining development of the locality. It dates its origin as far back as the period when gold was first discovered in California; and from it the divide on which it is situated evidently derives its name. This divide is in El Dorado county, the county that attracted the earliest gold hunters; but being separated by the South Fork from the old emigrant road, and the road that teamsters travelled so generously in later years when hauling freight over the mountains to supply the early miners on the Comstock, its resources, except such as were embarked in its rich placers, remained dormant and quartz veins, remained comparatively undiscovered. Its timber has not been cut and hauled to the valley by the teamsters as back freight, as is the case to a greater or less extent on all the divides in this range of mountains along which lines mountain roads were cut. Its vast pine forests stand there to-day in all their pristine grandeur, but by the slight concessions made upon them by the ubiquitous shake-maker. And their extent is wonderful. From a point about ten miles up the ridge from Georgetown they extend nearly or quite to the summit, a distance of over 30 miles, and from the Middle Fork to the South Fork as near average width of about 20 miles. These forests are estimated to cover, in round numbers, from 400,000 to 500,000 acres. The timber is chiefly principally sugar pine, yellow pine, Sierra spruce, fir and cedar, the latter being abundant in places and mainly valuable for fuel. The pines stand thick and are of the finest form—many of them reaching to a height of over 70 feet and varying in diameter from 2 to 9 feet. There are many trees that will make from 5+ to eight thousand feet of lumber apiece, and yet, putting the average of available trees at 10,000 feet to the acre, the timber on this divide would scarcely five billion or six thousand million feet of lumber, and like exclusive of the vast amount of fire-wood. But this is not all of the timber of that region. From the timber line, the country at a general thing, is gradually modulating into a rolling, fertile, fruit-bearing country, and yet, in the place and mainly valuable for fuel. The pines stand thick and are of the finest form—many of them reaching to a height of over 70 feet and varying in diameter from 2 to 9 feet. There are many trees that will make from 5+ to eight thousand feet of lumber apiece, and yet, putting the average of available trees at 10,000 feet to the acre, the timber on that divide would scarcely five billion or six thousand million feet of lumber, and like exclusive of the vast amount of fire-wood. But this is not all of the timber of that region. From the timber line, the country at a general thing, is gradually modulating into a rolling, fertile, fruit-bearing country, and yet, in the place and mainly valuable for fuel. The pines stand thick and are of the finest form—many of them reaching to a height of over 70 feet and varying in diameter from 2 to 9 feet. There are many trees that will make from 5+ to eight thousand feet of lumber apiece, and yet, putting the average of available trees at 10,000 feet to the acre, the timber on that divide would scarcely five billion or six thousand million feet

FRATINGER & CO.,

CLOAKS and SUITS.

Black Flur Capes ..... $ 5 00
Black Flur Capes 6 00
Black Flur Capes 7 00
Black Flur Capes 8 00
Black Flur Capes 9 00
Black Flur Capes 10 00
Chinchilla Capes 20 00
Chinchilla Capes 30 00
Chinchilla Capes 35 00
Seal Skin Capes 40 00
Seal Skin Capes 45 00
Hudson Bay Beaver Capes 20 00
Hudson Bay Beaver Capes 25 00
Hudson Bay Beaver Capes 30 00
Hudson Bay Beaver Capes 35 00
New Style Plaid Ulsters 15 00
New Style Plaid Ulsters 17 00
New Style Plaid Ulsters 20 00
New Style Plaid Ulsters 22 50
Furlined Ottoman Silk Circulars 15 00
Furlined Ottoman Silk Circulars 20 00
Furlined Ottoman Silk Circulars 25 00
Furlined Satin Brocade Circulars 15 00
Furlined Satin Brocade Circulars 20 00
Satin Rhadamas Circulars, Quilted Linings 12 50
Satin Rhadamas Circulars, Quilted Linings 15 00
Satin Rhadamas Circulars, Quilted Linings 17 50
Satin Rhadamas Circulars, Quilted Linings 20 00
Ladies' Walking Jackets 1 75
Ladies' Walking Jackets 2 00
Ladies' Walking Jackets 2 50
Ladies' Walking Jackets 3 50
Ladies' Walking Jackets 4 00
Ladies' Walking Jackets 5 00
Jersey Waists, All Colors 2 00
Jersey Waists, All Colors 3 00
Jersey Waists, All Colors 4 00
Black Diagonal Dolmans, Fur Trimmed 10 00
Black Diagonal Dolmans, Fur Trimmed 20 00
Black Diagonal Dolmans, Fur Trimmed 25 00
Black Diagonal Dolmans, Fur Trimmed 30 00
Black Diagonal Dolmans, Plush Trimmed 15 00
Black Diagonal Dolmans, Plush Trimmed 20 00
Black Diagonal Dolmans, Plush Trimmed 25 00
Tailor Made Cloth Walking Jackets 15 00
Tailor Made Cloth Walking Jackets 20 00
Tailor Made Cloth Walking Jackets 25 00
Tailor Made Broccole Walking Jackets 15 00
Tailor Made Broccole Walking Jackets 20 00
Tailor Made Broccole Walking Jackets 25 00
Tailor Made Broccole Walking Jackets 30 00
Ladies' All Wool Ulsters from $5 up.
Ladies' Cloths or Woolen Suits from $15 up.
Ladies' Silk or Satin Suits from $15 up.
Children's Cloth Cloaks at All Prices.
Children's Plush Cloaks at All Prices.

FRATINGER & CO.,
The Leading Cloak and Suit House,
105 Kearny Street.

ESTABLISHED 1853.
KOHLER & FROHLING, PIONEER
WINE HOUSE,
Growers of and Dealers in California Wines
AND BRANDY,
626 Montgomery street, 626
AND BANEMENT
S. E. cor. Sutter and Dupont Sts. S. F., Cal.

$5,000
GIVEN AWAY IN PREMIUMS.
An Opportunity of a Life-Time.
A CHANCE SELDOM OFFERED.
OPEN TO ALL COMPETITORS.
Nothing to Lose.
Everything to Gain.
No Money to Put Up.
EXTRAORDINARY INDUCEMENTS TO AGENTS
OFFERED BY THE UNIVERSAL
BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION
OF CALIFORNIA
FOR UNMARRIED PERSONS.
(This is Not a Secret Society).

ARE YOU INTERESTED? IF SO, READ THE FOLLOWING.

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS
TO BE ACTUALLY GIVEN AWAY.

LIST OF PREMIUMS.

1. A Cash Prem on in Gold ..... GOLD $1,000.00
2. A Cash Premium in Gold ..... GOLD 500.00
3. One Elegant Square Grand Piano, value 600.00
4. A Handsome Cabinet Organ, value 500.00
5. A Cash Premium in Gold of ..... GOLD 250.00
6. A Handsome Cabinet Organ, value 250.00
7. An Elegant Two-Horse Carriage, value 175.00
8. A Lady's Elegant Gold Hunting Case Watch, value 75.00
9. A Lady's Elegant Gold Hunting Case Watch, value 75.00
10. A Gent's Gold Hunting Case Watch, value 75.00
11. A Gent's Elegant Gold Hunting Case Watch, value 75.00
12. A New Latest Improved Sewing Machine, value 75.00
13. A New Latest Improved Sewing Machine, value 75.00
14. A French Leading Double Barrelled Shot Gun, value 75.00
15. A New Latest Improved Sewing Machine, value 75.00
16. A Genuine China Dinner and Tea Service, value 75.00
17. A Genuine China Dinner and Tea Service, value 75.00

Also 25 Premiums consisting of 25 Mens Winding Genuine Silver Hunting Case Watches, worth $25.00 each.

The remaining Premiums will consist of Diamond Ear Rings, Diamond Finger Rings, Solid Gold Watches, Gold Chains, Gold Lockets, Gold Pins, Gold Bracelets, Gold Rings, Silver Watches, Silver Chains, Silver Lockets, Silver Pins, Silver Bracelets, Silver Rings, Silver Napkin Rings, Silver Pocket Pieces, Silver Dollars, Gold Dollars, Gold Quarter Dollars, Gold Half Dollars, Gold Dime Pieces, Gold Half Dime Pieces, Gold Dime Pieces, Gold Half Dime Pieces, Gold Dime Pieces, Gold Half Dime Pieces

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

A DEED OF LOVE AND LOVE'S SWEET REMUNERATION.

[Inscribed to Madame Modjeska, and suggested by witnessing the statement of Miss Helen Dore Hayes, as lately offered by her, on the Children's Hour Sunday Morning, in the Church of the Holy Trinity, that she would gladly give up, in their behalf, her entire, entire, her sweet visit to the Old Home.]

O Paradise! Unto thy realm, of late,
I came, a grateful guest.
My way were short, and I, for fair entrance gain,
Found one sweet hour of rest.

In this calm Eden, by Love's Promise filled
With mystic light Divine,
My spirit, unobstructed, sweetly pursuing, stilled,
Beside His parabled shrine.

Where soft'ner zeyes, streaming from above,
'Second Heaven, their opened wide.
As where, of old, some long the snow-white Dove
Or Jordan's sacred tide.

Hushed in that bliss, the silv'ry tapers shone
Like so embalmed, bright, yet fair,
And shinly gleamed, as o'er the Manger lone,
Love's guardian "olive star."

And, throned beside her Son's new Calvary Hill,
With blossoming at her feet,
The Mother stood, lovingly shedding there,
Her holiest tears sweet.

With reverent step, and robed in vestments bright,
Come Love's anointed priest,
And, at his word, in "some Thabor-site,"
The Mount of Olives rest.

Thy Mystic Banquet, for His chosen train—
While, through the Chalice, rose
Ever-ascending incense of seraphic strain,
By voice seraphic sung.

Would—ah! my Lord—Thy pure and priceless meed
Of hour solely wrought!
The visitor paused, and, in a gracious deed,
With Heav'n's own sweetness brought.

Ah! gentle lady! thine the glorious part
In that most precious work,
Where, with the golden trophies of the art
That long had lain dark,

Then did's bestow upon an infant band
(Like those He deigned to bless)
The fond memories of Love's sweet hour and,
Thy smiles of tenderness.

And the rich gems, so full of living light,
Then fell from thy sweet eyes—
These rare heart jewels, dear to angel's sight,
Which Love only prizes.

And brightly set within a fadeless crown,
As rich as fadeless, too,
Wh the fragrance of Earth's too frail remorse
Shall flowed and blighted be.

Oh, Spirit, that dwelt, where fondly gathered Friends
Thou the pure, the joyful thought,
An unconfined, with thy loved name second,
Thou, Love's sweet fraught.

From their pure lips, who, for the Master's sake,
And for His sweet reward,
Unselfish, ever, to Love's "Home" choose
And treasure for their Lord,

Within that "Dap-Home," where no sight-to-the
May cast its gloomy shroud,
For the pleasure of Love's Home, the hath made
In light that naught can cloud.

O! Love Ft. ub-Sweet, to the Promised Land,
With Love's pure hallowed
Ever, Love's pure hallowed, and their shel
Ever, Love's pure hallowed, and their shel
Ever, Love's pure hallowed, and their shel

THE MONITOR.

PRIVATELY SETTING TYPE AT PUBLISHING.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST, 29, 1883.

English Criticisms of Ireland's Faithful Priests and People.

A most malignant spirit seems to have taken possession of English writers in their recent criticisms of Ireland's Catholic people, and it may be well to remind these writers that the Irish people were faithful even unto death in the cause of Faith and in the defence of the Vicar of Christ, at a time when English Catholics were truckling tetrarchs of the vilest kind.

Hardly every issue of the London Tablet contains some slanderous insinuation against the fidelity of the Irish people to their ancient faith, or some suspicion that they are disloyal in their feelings to the Holy Father—two of the most malignant libels that ever emanated even from an English mind filled with malice against the Irish people. We have already adverted to some of the Tablet's methods of traducing the Irish fellow-Catholics, so we will devote the present article to a consideration of a lengthy communication which appears in the current number of the so-called Dublin Review—which title, by the way, is a misnomer, as the Dublin periodical is printed, published, and owned in England. It retains the name Dublin on the title page, and also the old time familiar green cover, in order to give it an Irish appearance, but inside it is English in every sentiment and breathes the bitter malevolence of the Sassenach of old against the Irish race.

Here is a specimen selection of its style regarding the Parnell testimonial, a tribute which has been contributed to by Catholic Prelates, priests and sterling practical Catholics in every portion of the world. The Parnell testimonial was born in the brain of an Irish Bishop, assisted Irish Prelates were its sponsors, and the cream of the Irish Catholic clergy have stood around its cradle. Yet here is the spleen-laden sentiment of this month Irish magazine on the fund which was fathered and fostered by the foremost Bishops and priests among the over-faithful Irish people:

"The Parnell Tribute" was to be national, and it was to be virtually compulsory. It was to be national—that is to say, it was to be applied distinctively all over Ireland; it was to be collected by a number of agents in every Ward, and by the influence of priest and bishop (the Irish priest and bishop, that is to say, a species of influence of language was to set in in Ireland, which, in the Middle Ages, made the Church, of the landlords, old historian says, the vineyard of the Lord, and Christ was made to be employed, as they had been before, as the Christ of the Jews had been made to be all but crucified, violence all but succeeded, and blasphemy, in the end, succeeded all but succeeded, in the Christ's name.

"The unscrupulous malice and the apparent absurdity of the foregoing extract will be readily perceived by every intelligent reader. It is false to say that the Parnell "Tribute" was to be "virtually compulsory," and it is proved by the fact that there is no record where any individual—in or out of Ireland—has been made to suffer because he failed to contribute to the Parnell Fund. Again, it is insinuated, on the part of the Anglican writer to say that the "Tribute" was to be "pushed on by meetings and speeches," as the inference would lead the unwary to all commerce to promote such popular movements. Meetings were held and speeches, are made throughout Ireland in order to raise a fund for Home Rule, to repeal the Repeal vest, and also to inaugurate the fund for Daniel O'Connell. Hence the few of British bile on the Parnell Tribute are a useless purgation of unalloyed prejudice.

So far from counseling lawlessness, the promoters of the Parnell Tribute inculcated the necessity of constitutional agitation every where—both in the published platform of their principles and in their public speeches. The writer in the present Dublin Review, monthly, therefore, falsifies the record when he insinuates that violence, crime, and assassination were to be factors in the Parnell movement for Ireland's regeneration. It is the proud boast of the Land League that crime was less frequent in the Irish Provinces where it was established than in those where it was discountenanced. Statistics already published have proved the truth of this assertion. Yet English rancor can tell the readers of a pro-English Review, with a Prudential reserve and a deceiving cover, that the eight Irish Bishops who founded the Parnell Fund, the hundreds of priests who seconded the movement, and the numerous well-known and thoroughly practical Catholic Irishmen who contributed to this tribute—all counsel violence, venerated crimes, and assassinated in assassination! The deep dye depravity of the English mind which could conceive such thoughts must have had some of the leaven of Luther in its composition. Its spleen is rankest, rancorous, and rotten as the Saxon source from which it emanated.

So far from promoting, encouraging, or countenancing at crime, the Irish Priesthood, priesthood, and people—in the recent movement they have inaugurated for Ireland's freedom from the curse of foreign tenantry—have been the upholders of the sacred banner of their liberty-loving phalanx: this Christian sentiment:

"We cannot be false to our fathers tried—
The path that leads to liberty through God."

It was in this spirit that the Catholic Prelates of Ireland gave voice to the gratitude of the Irish people towards Charles Stewart Parnell when they voluntarily preferred their testimony of that renowned leader of labor in the cause of long-suffering people. Here are the testimonies of some of the most saintly and stalwart Catholic Prelates that ever popped Catholicity among a Christian people:

"We owe a deep debt of gratitude to Mr. Parnell. He has devoted his great talents and his energies to the amelioration of one poor suffering country; he has prospered for remuneration; he has sacrificed health and leisure in their native land, and by doing so he has made the Irish people love him the hatred and possibly even the execration of Messrs. Forster & Co., and of every other enemy of his country."—ALEMANDER COLE.

"That every stock of the country's savage lash was for Ireland a new proof of Parnell's worth, and an additional title for him to the endearing gratitude of his countrymen."—BISHOP DONAHUE.

"We can deserve a testimonial better than Parnell, and in the interests of legitimate and constitutional agitation, it is a duty to support him whose principles are legal. Our only security from moral violence and their consequences, open, secret, and legal efforts to achieve our rights. Mr. Parnell represents the law in its highest limits, and I think he ought to be supported."—BISHOP DONAHUE.

"It is to Parnell Ireland owed the valuable discovery of how to force the Irish question upon the unwilling ears of the British Parliament."—BISHOP MCCORMACK.

"No one appreciates more highly than I do the indomitable energy, the unswerving hold and great ability with which Mr. Parnell labored to emancipate the country from a system of land law more oppressive and degrading to the tenantry of Ireland than were the penal laws to the Catholic inhabitants. If the Catholics of Ireland deemed O'Connell's exertions he emancipated them from those penal laws deserving their tribute of gratitude, with equal reason do the exertions of Mr. Parnell deserve a tribute of gratitude from all the tenant of Ireland, without distinction of creed or party."—BISHOP CONNAT.

"I most cordially, and with a thorough appreciation of signal services rendered to Ireland, joined with millions that will adequately mark the nation's gratitude to one who has helped in a great time, and in a manner so singularly propitious, to make men comparatively free but who should have been free before, and, in consequence, hopeless remainders for an unforeseeing, and, alas! in too many cases, unappreciative and ungrateful relations diagonally."—BISHOP FITZGERALD.

"Let the Parnell testimonial answer loudly in indignation against Parnell of complicity with the secret society, imposed on the people of Ireland the tyranny of a Parliamentary Inquisition, and the imputations originated by a disappointed statesman and retired politician, and adopted by a bestial English Parliament and Press; and secondly, let it be an unmistakable expression of their unabated confidence and faith in the wisdom of the constitutional policy so successfully and successfully pursued by Mr. Parnell to the benefit of the Irish Parliamentary Party."—BISHOP FORDE.

These sterling sentiments from the pure and patriotic souls of Catholic Prelates is the best possible refutation of the foul and calumnious falsehood we have quoted from the pages of the so-called Dublin Review, and with this vindication of the Parnell Fund we leave this branch of the question and proceed to consider the evidence of those English Catholic writers who have the hardihood to malign the character of Irish Bishops, priests, and people.

It is a notorious historical fact that among all the turn-coat Catholic nations in the world the most faithless to the Holy Father and the most treacherous to the true Faith have been the English. Our first denied the spiritual supremacy of the Sovereign Pontiff! English Catholics. Who forsook the true faith in order to be free from a religion that gave the bestial British monarch Henry VIII! English Catholics. Nor was it the laity alone of the Church who thus handed over their faith to the immoral King's leaping, because, as Archbishop Spalding well says:

"By the grveling abuse of the royal patronage in the nomination of Bishops, and by the silent, but powerful influence of the Court, the spirit of the principles established by the statutes of provision and premunire, the higher clergy of England had become gradually more and more estranged from the Holy See, and more and more attached to the king. The jealousy of Rome was mostly feared by the Court, and the Court, by abuse of others, into which they were now perpetuated, and which they were now, in fact, to protect them from the usurpations and tyranny of the Holy See, in conjunction with the great mass of the Church, was the Pope but the centre of loyalty to the Pope had become treason. The time, however, speedily his Primacy of Rome was abolished, and the supreme temporal authority among the higher clergy—itself a temporal power—was vested in the Sovereign, who made their nomination and appointment, and who prepared their lists for the nomination of a vacant living obedient to the commands of a tyrant, in contradiction to the spirit of the canons."

Thus spoke the Bishop of Peoria, and the Anglicanism commencing a once Catholic nation whose writers have now the temerity to charge the ever-faithful Irish people with committing at red-handed outrages and horrid secret crimes because they are struggling to save the land of their birth from being strangled to death by the diabolical designs of British injustice and inhumanity.

How truly can Ireland say to her English censurers: "It has that is without sin let him cast the first stone," but such conduct proved Christian Ireland should do not the article in the so-called Dublin Review, are only calculated to engender feelings of animosity among people who should preserve a kindly feeling towards Catholic unity, and we are somewhat astonished to find the English Catholic ecclesiastical authorities permitting such protected Catholic publications as we have stated to preserve in a course of vituperation against the Irish people when they must know the such manifestations of an English hate is not edifying to the faithful in either country, and can only result in evoking a revengeful spirit which can do no good to religion.

—The Argonaut is in ecstasies over the "Sir Knights, which is very consistent, considering that Pinkey is a Mason. But then the Argonaut rejoices over the fact that "no Jews are admitted into the Knights Templar ranks," so we only take a mental photograph of Pinkey's Israelitish proboscis and recoil the ancient adage: "The a bad bird that defeats its own nest. The Argonaut says it admits the title order of Masonry because its members are all Americans. Pretty popinjay Americans they must be when they import the titles of European royalty into a republican government. They must be the kind of Americans admired by Washington, Jefferson, or Jackson, although their gilt-gingerbread pre-given way seems to gratify the taste of those quasi Americans who ape the manners of the English, and who are only sorry that crown would not set well on the head of the American eagle.

—The election of Mr. Mackey as director of the Postal Telegraph Company means business. The public may now indulge in the hope of being relieved in a short time from the clutches of a monopoly which was gradually extending its power over the whole country. We feel safe in predicting that under the directorship of Mr. Mackey the postal telegraph will be a success, and that prompt communications will be opened with every city and town in the land at popular rates.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Sectarians.

Professor Walcker, the Superintendent of Public Instruction for this State, has drawn down upon himself the wrath of all the roaring circuit riders of the Wesleyan fraternity because he has issued an order that hereafter no public school house shall be used on Sunday for religious services. Hitherto, it has been the habit of itinerant, parambulating Protestant preachers to use country school houses for holiday sectarian services once a week, and for which they can no longer enjoy free quarters at the expense of the tax-paying public, these idle teachers are flaming mad at the official who thus wisely forbids them to trespass on public property.

Secretary of War Lincoln recently decided that no building designed specially for religious purposes should be erected on Government reserves for military purposes, and "upon the same principle—Prof. Welcker has decided that no sectarian services shall be held in public school buildings erected for the sole purpose of educating children. The State Superintendent is right, as the school law contemplates no religious instruction whatever in the curriculum of public education, and these Protestant preachers who have been using the public school houses for religious purposes have been indoctrinating Bible lessons into Bible classes of public school scholars on Sunday. This is clearly illegal, and we are glad the Superintendent of Public Instruction has set his foot upon the fanatical hordes who thus house themselves at the expense of taxpayers who neither believe in their doctrines nor coincide with their violation of the letter of the school law.

An indignant itinerant preacher named De Witt Hubbell, from Santa Barbara, writes a terrible tirade against Professor Welcker to the Pacific Methodist, in which he frothe and foams over what he calls the action of the State School Superintendent, and says that "it is absolutely odious that one man should have the power to so stretch the law as to close the religious meeting places of so many people in their faces." But this fussy fanatic forgets that preachers were only permitted to occupy public school houses on sufferance, and they became such a psalm-singing nuisance to quiet-loving people on Sundays that numerous complaints reached Prof. Welcker asking him to stop the noise of nasal-twanged Wesleyans who made life a burden, on Sundays, to those who resided within hearing distance of public school houses. Such public buildings are not in any sense "religious meeting places," and Prof. Welcker deserves the thanks of every tax-payer in the State for his timely action in thus preserving public property for its legitimate use.

Mr. Howling Hubbell, in his letter, says:

"Perhaps, however, Mr. Welcker does not meanly or religion taught to the people. Perhaps he does not know of the pernicious doctrines of infidelity and the devil prevailed in the public schools.

If Mr. Welcker is true to the aim, object, and intention of the public school system he will give neither aid nor comfort to morality or religion, as both are tabooed in public schools. Nor does the godless system of public schools require any assistance whatever from the State Superintendent in order to secure the successful propagation of what holy Hubbell calls "the pernicious doctrines of infidelity and the devil," as the godless system has infidelity for its cornerstone and the devil for its designer.

We hope Professor Walker will see that his lawful decision is respected in every section in the State, and in case the Protestant preachers evince any pugnacity in the matter, we trust the Superintendent will file complaints with the Superintendent of any infractions of the law, so that they may be punished for trespassing upon public property against the provisions of law. The school houses belong to Cesar, and they should be used only by Cesar, and those who want to worship God after any certain manner should go to a Catholic do—build churches of their own, and not spongo upon school committees on Sunday.

Some Peculiarities of the Labor Problem.

It is a lamentable fact that while the number of millionaires is increasing every year in this country, the poor, struggling labor classes are annually compelled to submit to a reduction of wage rates, until, in many instances, the compensation paid for labor is not sufficient to prevent even a moderate and economical mechanic from feeling the pangs of poverty. To such a low ebb has this system of grinding the poor working classes brought the laboring portion of the population in the Eastern States that the attention of Congress has been called to the iniquity, and a specially-appointed Senate Committee is at present in session in New York city examining witnesses as to the wages paid mechanics, in order to discover, if possible, some remedy for the wrongs perpetrated upon the poor, patriotic and patriotic working masses.

One of the witnesses before the Committee testified that at least 5,000 skilled wage workers are constantly out of employment in New York and Brooklyn alone, most of whom would be glad to work at fifty cents a day. Thousands of people, the witness said, would be glad to work for ten dollars a month if they could be assured of steady employment. Another witness testified that no less than 1,990 families in New York are compelled to live in single rooms in tenement houses rushing with filth, and at such nasty wages that even young children are compelled to do their share of the labor in order to eke out a miserable subsistence for themselves and their parents. No recreation can be indulged in by these people, who are so hard up as to be without the necessaries of life, and who are up in ignorance and squalor as so many white slaves of their taskmasters.

The system of bondage under which the mill hands at Cohoes are suffering was described in the following brief but [illegible] manner: He said that when the water was low at Cohoes the Harmony mills were in running, although the people went thirsty. This was because the Harmony Company owned the water, as they did the tenementand almost everything else. The minister of the gospel was a brother-in-law of the superintendent of the mill. The people were during the late strike were compelled to pay a collection of ten per cent. in their gas, which were already lower than the gas paid in Massachusetts. But the Cohoes laborers were starved into submission.

Another witness tested that the freight handlers in New Yorkwork for seventeen cents an hour when my son get employment, adding this scrawful remark: These people could not keep in the semblance of a home. The car driver of New York work sixteen hours a day full 75, and the wives of such of them as is married are compelled to work at so mempluyment in order to supply a miserable and most the necessary amount of rent, clothing, and food.

Another witness testified that such females as can find employment on ready-made clothing get about $5 50 by working from twelve to sixteen hours a day—seven days in the week—there being no "day of rest" for such starving secretes. Operatives in "Shoddy" company earn from 40 to 50 cents day. Women who work at tobacco stripping earn from $5 to $7 a week under conditions equivalent to imprisonment at hard shot. They are not even permitted to tal during working hours by their slave-driving employers without losing a portion of their wages. Girls employed in New York store receive from $2 to $3 a week for sixteen hours' daily labor of a kind calculated to ruin their health for life if kept up for a few years.

Such revelations as these give people on the Pacific coast an insight into the injustice practiced upon the poor, and it only remains a little reflection to discern the fact that there is a vast volcano beneath capital in this country which may at any time break forth in a commotion of a nature that will recoil upon the heads of those who thus grind the faces of the poor into the dust of a destitution and degradation which few people imagined could ever exist in America.

It must be borne in mind that the toiling millions of wage workers in this "enlightened age" are growing up without any religious influences to counteract the Catholic Church exercises over those who belong to her fold. Protestant sectarianism has completely lost its hold upon the working classes, who are not sufficiently well dressed to connort in fashionable churches with the Divorce whose dollars are accumulated by denying "even a crop of cold water" to the thirsty, as in the case of the crawl Harmony Mill Company at Cohoes, or a crust of bread to the hungry, as instanced in the case of those who thus pay "starved their employees into submission" when they asked for wages at which they could live.

No nation ever yet prospered upon the wrongs of the working classes, and American need not expect to be an exception to the inevitable operation of Nemesis. Athens, Thebes, Carthage, and Rome, all fell through the false policy of bad laws which were calculated to make the rich richer and the poor poorer, and in the number of secret protective societies which are springing up in this republic, wherein labor seeks to protect itself against wrongs, can be discerned an omen which augers danger in the future when the starved and suffering labor classes proclaim the doctrine that "self-preservation is the first law of nature."

The primal duty of all good government is the protection of the wage workers. As an eminent poet of Erin has sung:

"If here the land, to hostesse like a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay,
Princes and lords may flourish or may fade,
A breath can make them as a breath has made."

—We publish this week a letter from the popular Irish patriot, Michael Davitt, which will be read with a good deal of interest. Mr. Davitt is an original thinker, a hard very honest in his presentations from the view he takes of the effect which the recent Propaganda Circular will have upon Irish politics. With some of Mr. Davitt's views upon this question we entirely disagree, as we think he permits his political zeal to warp his Catholic conscience, in some of his conclusions, especially where he intimates that "the interests of the Church are sought to be furthered in Protestant England at the cause of Irish nationality." Mr. Davitt, as a Catholic, ought to know that the "interests of the Church cannot be furthered by anything wrong. Christian progress must be based on justice, and those interests which are furthered by any such fraudulent means as that suggested by Mr. Davitt can have no abiding place in this Catholic Church. The Pope would not, could not, sanction the political well-being of any people for any purpose whatever, as the Church of God has never gained its victories by recourse to such infamous and dishonest means. The salvation of the Irish people is far dearer to the heart of Leo XIII. than any hope of England's conversion.

—The Argonaut gives as one of its reasons for liking the "Sir Knights" because they bore no "foreign flags" in their procession, but it is nevertheless true that every many they have in communities is foreign, their cross, and spatuns are all foreign, and there is nothing American about the whole business save the mercenary one of advertising Masonry through the medium of public parades. The man who paraded the city streets decked in knightly plumes every never earned looked like Falstaff's army in comparison with the crested warriors who wom their gold spurs by deeds of valor in vanquishing the foe of Christianity in the days of ancient chivalry.

—Alluding to the action of the executive officers of the Irish National League of America regarding the land-grabbing proprietors of British nobleman and English speculators, the London Tablet says: "Perhaps this has reference to the large investments in American real estate made, especially by leading Irish capitalists, during the past few years, and in a less degree to the fact that considerable tracts of territory have come into the possession of British Land Mortgage Companies by foreclosure and otherwise. The great success of those organizations is known to every one, and the National Land League will find their hard and well-prepared task a very difficult one indeed—British capital being a strong factor in the whole business." When the American Congress passes a law denying the right to hold land to non-resident republican-despising aliens, the Tablet will soon discover that "British capital" will be of little avail. Englishmen seem to think that British gold can do everything, but when Americans wake up to the fact that British gold is buying up all the public domain, they will toss John Bull's representatives and their lordly lucre into the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and bid them paddle their way back to the land where pence, shillings, and sovereign are the currency of the realm. In other words, the Tablet may yet realize a repetition of British regulous on this continent as in 1776 and 1812—if it does not take Brit-ish gold upon an unwilling people. There are some things better than gold, and land and liberty are among them.

—The Argonaut says the "Sir Knights" are all Protestants, but this is not true, for the reason that there are hundreds of Jews, Christians, Ingersollians, and out-and-out atheists in the organization. Yet these men mumbled over the Apostles' Creed on Sunday week, knowing full well at the time that they did not subscribe to a single doctrine it contained. And those are the self-sanctifying souls whom the daily press hold up as representing "the Christian chivalry and the intelligence of this republic." "Fine hypocrite!" How true it is that the great mass of the American people are the most morally humbugged race in the whole world.

—It is almost needless to tell Catholics that Joaquin Miller "the poet of the Sierras," is not a Catholic, and that face alone will add additional interest to the statements which that well-known writer makes in his contribution to our pages in to-day's issue, which we publish on the first page. A great many skeptical non Catholics say that Joaquin miracles are manufactured by the Catholic priests, but Joaquin Miller's testimony as to what he saw and heard of at the Church of St. Ann de Beaupre, in Canada, will carry conviction to the minds of all the Christian. A meeting was held last week in Philadelphia to form a Joaquin Miller Club for the purpose of erecting a memorial to the late Father Burke, O. P. Young men, take notice.

A. C. O.K.

FATHER RIORDAN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL.

How Father Riordan Manages His Immense School—One Thousand Small Children and 100 Teachers—Great Good Being Accomplished—The Pastor's Ringing Appeals Regarding the Duties Parents Owe to Their Children.

"Creeds" sends the following account of a successful mission conducted by Father F. M. Ellis, who succeeds his Sunday school in Chicago to a Catholic Reader:

First, we in the Sunday school; it is a mission, I can assure you. The activity of the parish and assistants in this department of work is unexpectedly supplemented by some 100 of both sexes, whose zeal and unsolicited interest in the work is one of the pleasant evidences of the pastor's influence and government. The average attendance at Sunday school is over 1,000, but this, let my mind you, (and now we are getting to the mission) is only a part of the work. Besides weekly evening meetings under the management of one of the assistants, whose admirable ability in handling boys is beyond praise. Indeed, a gift. These evening meetings are so attractive, they are entertaining as well as instructive, so much so that the pastor can always lay his hand on the boys when he wants them. The boys feel as important to the parish as any other body, who are allowed to do the work, and that they are as interested in the prosperity of the parish as any other. The pastor puts responsibilities, equally with the children, in the hands of the children, and they do it. Thus the clergy have a powerful ally in the boys, and I have found it a most pleasant thing that of a thousand boys, which we now have, I can call by name, and know the boy behind the name. Of course, I do not brought to the meeting my introduced.

The young men from 18 to 17 to 30 years of age, who have been in every possible place in the parish, and who are made subjects of religion and such cross as some people make of it, have found a place, and are made to the charity and generosity of the rest of our community, and are awakened throughout the community to the duties of the rich to the poor, and to care for his great virtues and unselfishness, and the many responsibilities of the labors and sacrifices in behalf of religion and the poor, and the good of all the people. The occasion seemed to be called for by the necessity for him and of our regard for the good of the people, and the good of the place, presided over by the president of the meeting.

It will not surprise you to learn that I refer to the good (Michael) and energetic pastor no other than Father Riordan, (Jim, I call him, for he is a brother to the Archbishop of San Francisco) whose zeal, ability, and all the parishioners, gratification at the appointment of a new pastor, and the relation to the episcopate, and the good of the people, and the good of the place, presided over by the president of the meeting. Father Riordan, Hamsberry and Eckbach, Rosenberg and Ehrlich, have always raised a great harmony of unity of purpose, and of the good of the people.

Father Riordan, in his opening address, spoke of the responsibilities of the children with the duties of the parents, and not only of his parishioners, but of those who know him.

FATHER RIORDAN AT LOUIS.

One who was present in the Cathedral when Father Riordan was ordained, and received his degree from the Pope, and who was present when he was ordained a priest, and who has been in the diocese, ever since, and who has watched his progress, and who has watched his progress, and who has watched his progress

SHOSHONE INDIANS.

LIFE ON DUCK VALLEY INDIAN RESERVATION.

The Pious Labors of Rev. J. J. Callan—Astounding Precocity of the Native Children—Agricultural Pursuits—The Future of the Tribe, Etc.

Rev. Father Callan, an eminent Catholic divine, returned recently from the Western Shoshone Indian Agency, where he has been employed for the past four months as teacher under a commission from the Department of the Interior. Father Callan was formerly of the pastorate of Marysville, but for a short time previous to the appointment at the agency was stationed at Mt. Mary's church in this city. In conversation with a Chronicle representative recently he gave a graphic description of his labors and experiences during his four months' stay.

THE WESTERN SHOSHONE INDIAN AGENCY is situated in Duck valley, Elko county, and embraces a tract of land 70 miles square, or having an area of 600 square miles. The reservation is about 125 miles from Elko and extends northward into Idaho Territory, a section five miles wide lying within that Territory. The southerly border of the reservation is about 75 miles from Silver City, the metropolis of Southern Idaho. The agency is watered by the Owyhee river, which runs through the valley from south to north. The stream is of refreshing coolness and teems with fish.

The school building for the education of the Shoshone youths of both sexes consists of a large two-story structure built of adobe. In the northern wing are the kitchen and teacher's room. The kitchen is large enough to accommodate thirty students. The school room is liberally supplied by the Government with books, maps, charts, globes, etc. The average daily attendance is 30 children—20 males and 10 females. The average of the former is 12 years and of the girls 13 years. The progress they have made is astonishing. They study geography, arithmetic, reading, writing, and, in fact, all the English branches taught in the primary and grammar departments of a public school. Ten of the pupils have gone through the first four rules of arithmetic, can write a good business hand, and read in the sixth reader. They have a passion for art and excel in drawing and painting. They have also a great love for music and are able to sing with the organ and play tunes in many beautiful and difficult pieces. They are extremely in the elementary tenets of the Catholic religion. Ten boys have been baptized up to date, and, as Father Callan says, they do not allow oaths and accept themselves as cordially as any ten boys in a white congregation possibly could. All sing at divine services before and after Mass, and about 40 children, in Latin, the Litany of our Lady of Loretto. They have the most profound respect for their teacher. His authority is undisputed and his word is the law. They in school and at play would put to the blush the pupils of many of our public schools.

GENERAL DOCILITY

The Indians of the reservation raised community life for four years. Not finding it satisfactory, owing to the large number of idle-hearted men who were averse to work, they resolved to settle on farms by dividing the reservation among 70 bucks and the Government has lately purchased and forwarded to the reservation nine farming implements, two mowers, two sets of harness, and a number of plows. Many of the bucks have built houses of logs, with floor, door and roof of logs, in which they sail, cook, eat, sleep, and do everything else, which, in the Indians have seen almost 200 acres of wheat this year, which will soon be harvested and yield an ample reward for their industry. All of the Shoshones have in a few years or three years which are in good condition potatoes, peas, parsnips, beets, onions, and other vegetables, and good hunting grounds for game. The Indians are well clad, well fed, and have money, many thousands in civilization. Their hunting grounds abound with deer, antelope, and other game. The village consists of the agent's house, agent's house, blacksmith shop, farmer's residence, and a farming hall which is run by a farmer.

The aborigines have a staff of native police appointed from their number by the Government and paid 25 cents per quarter. These policemen are armed with pistols for enforcing order and they should be honest necessary. In addition to these, two Indian interpreters are employed by the Government at the same salary, and a blacksmith who is teaching the trade to an Indian youth is paid $60 per month.

Father Callan spoke in eulogistic terms of John S. Hayhugh, United States Indian Agent at the reservation, who, he said, has done and is doing all in his power for the amelioration of the Indians' condition and their advancement in civilization. He makes no false promises, and they consequently know that he speaks the truth.

THE TREATY

Between the Government and the Shoshones expires next October. At that time all agencies will come and the aborigines will be forced to rely on their own resources and on whatever appropriations Congress may be pleased to make. To Father Callan's belief that if the Government deals with them in a generous spirit, in a short period of time they will be able to make their own living independent of others. They are happy and contented, and desire, through their chiefs, that their highest aim is to live on amicable terms with the white men.

Father Callan will return about the 22d of the present month. The principal object of his coming in this city is to obtain aid for the Indian children in the shape of religious books, pictures, beds, tops, mackerel, and other toys. At the rate the contributions are at present pouring in from the Comstock boys the reversed Father fears he will have to choose a special war in which to convert the articles to the reservation.—Virginia City Chronicle.

Little Things.

Springs are little things, but they are sources of large streams. A baby is a little thing, but it governs the owners of a ship. A bridle bit is a little thing, but see its use and power. Nails and pegs are little things, but they hold the large part of little buildings together. A word, a look, a frown, all are little things, but powerful for good or evil. Think of this, and mind the little things. Pay that little debt, and if it is a promise, redeem it; if it is only a shilling, lend it over; you know not what important and great issues upon it. Keep your word morally; keep it to the children; they will much it among their playmates, and the effect will probably be as lasting as life. Mind little things.

—The Rev. James McGrath, of Lowell, Mass., has been appointed Provincial of the Oblate Fathers for the United States.

GRAVEL OF THE BLADDER

Symptoms between the loins and hips, Kidney and Urinary Complaints, cured by "Bethesda." $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A GREAT PROBLEM.

TAKE ALL THE

KIDNEY & LIVER MEDICINES,

BLOOD PURIFIERS,

RHEUMATIC REMEDIES,

DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION CURES,

AGUE, FEVER, AND BILIOUS SPECIFICS,

BRAIN & NERVE FORCE RESTORERS,

GREAT HEALTH RESTORERS,

IN SHORT, TAKE ALL THE BEST qualities of all these, and the best qualities of all the best medicines of the World, and you will find that HOP BITTERS have the best curative qualities and powers of all medicines combined in them, and that they will cure when any or all of these, singly or combined, fail. A thorough trial will give positive proof of this.

EMIL FRESE'S

HAMBURG TEA.

That safe, good old German Family Medicine for all complaints of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels; Carminative, Alterative and gently Cathartic.

REDINGTON & CO.,
San Francisco, U. S. A.

PHILADELPHIA BREWERY.

JOHN WIELAND - - - PROPRIETOR
SECOND STREET, NEAR FOLSOM.
Amount of Beer sold in 1882, 64,180 barrels
ap'83

Pacific Coast Agency
GENUINE
J. N. CUTTER WHISKIES,
A. P. HOTALING & CO.,
San Francisco, Cal.

WITH
FIVE DOLLARS
YOU CAN BUY A WHOLE
IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN VIENNA CITY
GOVERNMENT BOND,
which bonds are issued and secured by the Government and are redeemable in Silver Dollars.
FOUR TIMES ANNUALLY,
Until such and every bond is drawn, with a large or a smaller premium. Every bond must draw a Prize as there are as many
THE THREE HIGHEST PRIZES AMOUNT TO $200,000 $75,000 $50,000
And bonds not drawnout to obtain the above prizes must draw a Premium of NOT LESS THAN 130 Florins.
The next drawing takes place on the 1ST OF OCTOBER, 1883.
and every bond bought of us on or before the 1st of October is entitled to the whole premium that may be drawn thereon on that date.
Out of bonds ordered cost in Roumanian Loan Bonds, we will secure one of them beside for the bond ordered.
For orders, circulars, or any other information, address,
INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO.,
397 B Way, cor. Pulton St., New York City.
Agents wanted.—R.B.—In writing to us, please state you saw this in the Monitor. For Sale everywhere.
☞ The above Government Bonds are not to be compared with any private lottery, and are not confined with any of the lowest the United States.

MISS JANE GRAY,
Teacher of Elocution, Oratory and Drama.
Particular Attention paid to Voice Culture.
ST. ANN'S BUILDING,
COR. POWELL AND EDDY STREETS, ROOM 100.

HOWARD HOT AND COLD MINERAL SPRINGS!
HEALTH AND PLEASURE RESORT, LAKE CO. 18 Medicinal Springs, Fourteen Spouting Geysers and Wonders, varying in temperature from 50 to 150 degrees Fahr. Many remarkable cures effected in Rheumatism, Kidney, Stomach, Nervous Diseases, Urinary Complaints, Piles, Diseases of the Blood, Skin, Liver and Kidneys. Climate of Clear Lake Valley, 90 miles north from Calistoga, 40 miles from Lower Lake, and six miles from Kelseyville Route: Take morning train from San Francisco or Sacramento for Calistoga; from there N. P. Fisher's stages will convey passengers to Lower Lake on Monday, Wednesday and Friday; and to Kelseyville on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Stages will be in readiness to go under the Howard Springs every day. Board, room and baths, $10 to $17 per week; twelve minutes by foot; steady camping ground; tables and pasture for horses; plans gratuitously. Round trip tickets to the Springs, for further particulars address MRS. CAROLINE HERCH, Proprietress, Howard Springs, Lower Lake Township, Lake county, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

McCormick Brothers,
BOOK AND JOB
PRINTERS
HAVE REMOVED TO
636 Clay Street,
(To same Building as the Monitor Office.)
San Francisco - - - California.
We Possess every Facility for the Execution of JOB PRINTING
—IN THE—
Cheapest, Neatest & Quickest Manner.

The Catholic Child
HAS NOW BEEN PUBLISHED FOR THE ensuing year, and is meeting with universal favor. It is the only Catholic Weekly School publication with great subscription lists.
THE PICTURES ARE FRESH,
THE READING INTERESTING,
THE PUZZLES ARE NEW.
In a word, it is pronounced by both teachers and children to be the best Sunday School Catholic Weekly published in America.
McCORRICK BROTHERS,
Publishers and Printers,
636 Clay St., San Francisco.
Sample Copies Sent Free to any Address on application.

DEASY BROTHERS,
115 Third Street,
Cor. Mission, - - - - San Francisco,
INVITE THE ATTENTION OF
BOOTS AND SHOES.
A Large and Well-selected Stock of
LADIES', MISSES' AND CHILDREN'S BOOTS AND SHOES
Of the Best Quality Constantly on Hand.
BEFORE PURCHASING FOR YOURSELF OR FAMILY it will pay you to call and examine our goods which are warranted to be of superior quality, and made exclusively by white labor.

NORTHERN INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION
—AND—
MECHANICS' FAIR
Of San Francisco, 1883.
WILL OPEN AT THE NEW PAVILION ON SAN JOSE AVENUE, Wednesday, September 5th, and continue until October 20th, 1883, for the reception of Articles of Industry, and Fine Arts, Mechanical and Industrial Products, Natural Products.
Machinery in Motion and other extra attractions will be shown and evening.
PREMIUMS.
A liberal list of Premiums consisting of Gold, Silver and Bronze Medals, Diplomas and Cash, will be awarded to meritorious exhibits.
Members of the Mechanics Institute, in good standing, are entitled to double and single season tickets to the Exhibition.
Intending Exhibitors should lose no time in applying for space.
Full information will be given or sent on application to the Secretary, 17 Fine street.
F. P. CORNWALL, President.
J. H. COVEY, Secretary.

PACIFIC STEAM
CARPET BEATING
And Renovating Works.
WHITENING
In all its Branches Thoroughly and Promptly Done.
OAKLAND BRANCH—Twenty-first street and Telegraph avenue. The undersigned will be given at no cost, Tuesdays, or left in our Boxes.
333 GOLDEN GATE AVE.
(TYLER STREET.)
CONKLIN BROS., PROPRIETORS.

JAS. R. KELLY & CO
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF PAINTS,
OILS and GLASS,
221 and 223 Market Street
San Ysidro Banks—Six Per Month.

O'BRIEN & WARD'S
Male and Female
EMPLOYMENT OFFICE.
MAIN DEPARTMENT, 618 Clay Street
FEMALE DEPARTMENT, 604 Clay Street
ALWAYS ON HAND—FIRST-CLASS HOTEL Girls, Farm Hands, Teamsters, Dairymen, Barnyard Hands, Gardeners, Gardeners, and Marital Couples for Country Places, Ranches, Farms, Also, good reliable Boys for Stores, Offices, Trades, etc. Also, Boys and Girls for Boarding Houses, Hotels, Families, etc. Also, Ladies, Nurses, Seamstresses, Housekeepers, Waitresses, etc. Also, Ladies and Gentlemen for Boarding Houses, Hotels, without any charge to employers. Suitable setting rooms for ladies at 618 Clay street.

MURPHY, GRANT & CO.,
IMPORTERS OF DRY GOODS,
And Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast
—OF THE—
Veuve Xavier Zwetz's Kid Gloves
Bush and Sansome Sts., San Francisco.
ap12

NATIVE WINES.
Gem Bottle.....from 50 to 75 cents.
Half Bottle.....10 to 15 cents.
By the Gallon.....50 cts. to $1.25.
Native and Foreign Wines and Brandies by the gallon sold at moderate prices.
J. C. HASELBLOM, 110 Dupont Street

HIBERNIA CIGAR FACTORY.
Wholesale and Retail.
D. BARRY, - - - Proprietor.
Cor. Ninth and Folsom Sts.
Only White Labor. Satisfaction Guaranteed

MISCELLANEOUS.

T. F. Lovejoy. J. W. Wolf.
LOUGHRAN & WOLF, PRODUCE
Commission Merchants
CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED.
Constantly receiving fresh Lodi Watermelons, for sale by the car load or in lots to suit. New and second-hand sacks always in stock at lowest market price.
420, 422 & 424 DAVIS ST.,
SAN FRANCISCO.
P. O. Box 1045.

HEART DISEASE!
DR. ROGERS'
HEART TONIC.
Cures Heart Disease on Scientific Principles.
ALTHOUGH ALL THE SERIOUS TISSUES OF THE body are acted upon by this most valuable medicine, yet its most specific effect is upon the nervous membrane lining the heart and covering its valves. Severe losses are produced by small capillaries which, when distended, cause palpitation, pain, and other distressing symptoms, and, if not speedily relieved, are dangerous. Such cases are frequently taken for inflammation of the pericardium, pleurisy, rheumatism, pertrusions and other nervous complaints.
THE HEART TONIC produces absorption of the excess of water and other causes of the abnormal condition. Sold by all druggists, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5, on receipt of the bottle, but it is also a sovereign remedy in functional diseases of that organ; feelings of pressure and weight in the region of the heart, difficult breathing, palpitation, and the fear of impending death, are within a few minutes, in most cases, relieved by the use of this compound. In evidence of its remarkable curative powers, the proprietor has in his possession testimonials of the most astonishing cures which have had used it with the most satisfactory results.
Price ONE DOLLAR per Bottle.
☞ Ask your Druggist for it.

QUINN & CO
SOLE PROPRIETORS.
San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A., P. O. Box 1410. Sent anywhere by Express on receipt of price.
Agents, H. H. Keeler and Fine streets.

INSURANCE.
COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY
OF CALIFORNIA.
FIRE AND MARINE.
Capital Fully paid up.....$200,000 00
Assets January 1, 1883.....278,275
Losses paid since organization.....$97,358 70
PRINCIPAL OFFICE,
406 California Street, S. F.
JOHN H. WISE, President.
CHAS. A. LAYOU, Secretary.
FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE
UNION
INSURANCE COMPANY
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
THE CALIFORNIA FLYER,
ESTABLISHED IN 1861.
Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.
CA. H CAPITAL.....$750,000 GOLD.
FAIR DATES.
PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES.
SOUND, SOLID, SECURE.
DIRECTORS:
SAN FRANCISCO.
R. Bowman, Nicholas Luning,
S. S. Ford, John Parrott,
Simon Heller, James Moffit,
M. O. Kittle, J. Rosen,
M. J. O'Connor, M. D. Sweeny,
J. Steinhart, Joseph Brandstein,
Donald Murray, Gustave Touchard,
Adam Grant, J. G. Kittle,
Antonio Borel, Geo. C. Ellis,
Charles Kohler, J. H. Relst,
Joseph Seligman, Charles Rosen,
Bartlett Doe, W. M. Hong,
Lewis Leonard Foot, William Chalfin,
A. W. Hill, John Cody,
N. B. Sloss, J. D. Fitzgerald,
A. B. Philips.
CHARLES M. CROCKHARD,
President.
N. S. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BAILEY, Secretary.
GEO. T. ROBERS, Surveyor.

EDUCATIONAL.

Convent of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary,
GILROY, - - - CALIFORNIA.
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL, CONDUCTED BY the religious sisters of the M. H. and I. H. of Mary. For terms, etc., apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS

CAYUGA LAKE MILITARY ACADEMY
AUBURN, N. Y. WM. W. A. FLINT, PRINCIPAL.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE, D. C.
Founded in 1789.
Rev. JAMES A. DONOHOE, S. J., President.
ACADEMIC AND SCIENTIFIC SCHOOLS open on Thursday, Sept. 13, 1883. Board, tuition, etc., $300 per annum. For particulars address PRESIDENT GEORGETOWN COLLEGE, D. C.
THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE opens on Monday, Sept. 10, 1883. For particulars address DEAN SCHOOL OF MEDICINE, 1012 G STREET, N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C.
THE SCHOOL OF LAW opens on Thursday, Oct. 4, 1883. Classes of students entombed and examined, Friday, June 8, 9, 11 and 12, from 10 to 12 M. For particulars address PROFESSOR OF LAW, 1012 G STREET, N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C.

MT. ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,
RENO, NEVADA.
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF ST. DOMINIC. Will re-open on September 2d. For received Terms apply to the MOTHER SUPERIOR.

URSULINE ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
The Third Annual Session began
AUGUST 7TH, 1883.
For Prospectus and full particulars, address
SUPERIORESS OF THE URSULINES,
Santa Rosa, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.
SANTA CLARA - - - - CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of securing for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a moral and intellectual education. Our patrons in particular that should recommend this Academy, is the influence accorded to form the pupils to views and habits of economy and to render them useful members of society in after years.
The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.
Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, payable in advance.
Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.
Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding, $40.
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charge.
French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 6th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE
SANTA CLARA,..... CALIFORNIA
THE THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL SESSION will commence on Monday, August 7th. This institution was founded in 1851, and has been continuously under the privileges of the University. It occupies 4 large buildings, with extensive playgrounds, covered gymnasium, gymnasium, swimming pond, etc. It possesses a most complete Philosophical Apparatus, and valuable collections of Mineralogy and Geology. It has a Museum of Natural History, a Gallery of Fine Arts, Telegraphy, Photography and Commercial Department. For the latter a new building 164x40 has just been finished, that leaves nothing to be desired.
Diplomas are given in two departments, the Academic and Commercial. Certificates in the Commercial course.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-annually in advance)
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once, $15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition in all branches of English and Latin, per annum, $250 00
School Stationery, medical attendance and bedmaking, per annum, 50 00
Washing, per dozen, 50 00
For full particulars apply to the President of Santa Clara College, or to St. Ignatius Church, 714 Hayes street, San Francisco.
REV. R. E. KENNA, S. J.
ja23

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Fifth and Jackson Sts., OAKLAND, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School for boys up to the age of fifteen years. Its object is to combine the comforts and advantages of home with the advancement of a superior Christian education.
Parents desiring a separate room for their sons or wards in Boarding School, need only the kind request to secure the attention and protection of a prince hitherto vacant in the collegiate system of Christian Brothers.
Pupils can be entered at any time during the year, but not for a shorter period than one-term of five months.
TERMS:
(Payment in U. S. gold and, and invariably in advance)
Board, Washing and Tuition, per term of 5 months, $150
Bedding, if required, per term, 10 00
Entrance Fee payable but once, 10 00
BRO. IARCIAN, Director.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
THOSE WHO COMPLETE THE CLASSICAL Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.
The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, one core language receives special attention. The daily exercises of the students in Elocution, Composition and Declamation are publicly discussed and corrected in the classroom.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board, Tuition and Washing.....$250 00
Entrance Fee.....15 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Vocation at the College.....50 00
Day Students.....60 00
Music and Drawing, form extra charge.
For further particulars address
BRO. BETELIN, President.
ja21

ST. GERTRUDE'S ACADEMY,
RIO VISTA, SOLANO CO., CAL.
THIS ACADEMY FOR YOUNG LADIES, UNDER the Supervision of the Sisters of Mercy, is beautifully situated on an eminence in the pleasant and accessible town of Rio Vista. The establishment occupies the building new, and well furnished with all that conveniences in the table and comfort of the pupils. Commodious and extensive and well adapted to the purpose, the grounds are large and well shaded, affording ample space for recreation and all the useful branches of a solid education.
Pupils received at any time during the term, and will be charged from day of entrance.
The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each; the first to commence January and ending in June.
Terms per Session, Payable in Advance.
BOARDING PUPILS.
Board and Tuition, with use of bedding.....$112 50
Washing.....15 00
Bed and bedding.....15 00
Doctor's fee, medicine, lessons in Music and Drawing, lessons in French, Plain and Ornamental Needlework do not form extra charges.
DAY SCHOLARS.
Terms per month, in advance
Senior Class.....$2 50
Intermediate Class.....2 00
Primary Class.....1 50
Music, Piano lessons, with use of instrument.....5 00
Music, Guitar lessons, with use of instrument.....3 00
☞ No extra charge for Harp.
For further particulars address
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

Convent of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart,
OAKLAND, - - - CALIFORNIA.
CONDUCTED BY
The Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.
THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUATED between Webster street and Lake Merritt, accessible by a comfortable carriage to the idea. The building is supplied with all the modern improvements—no pains have been spared to render the place worthy of the patronage.
The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and ornamental education.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board and tuition (French and Spanish included), $200 00
Washing.....20 00
Use of bedding (without sheets if supplied by parents).....10 00
Piano, Harp, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

COLLEGE
OF NOTRE DAME
MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN 1868, is chartered by the State Legislature, and endowed with all the rights and privileges of similar collegiate institutions in the United States.
Reference required. For terms and particulars address,
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
Marysville, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL.

SACRAMENTO INSTITUTE,
Twelfth and K streets,
SACRAMENTO - - - - - - - CAL.
A LIMITED NUMBER OF BOARDERS RECEIVED. A course of study including a sound Christian education and, at the same time, enjoying the comforts of a pleasant home, is offered.
TERMS: Board, Tuition and Washing, $25 per quarter. For particulars apply to REV. GENERES, Director.
☞ Studies resumed on Wednesday, August 1st, 1883.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE
Sisters of St. Dominic,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION, HEALTHFULLY LOCATED in Fifteenth street, affords every facility for the acquisition of a refined and solid education.
The Academic year consists of two terms of 5 months each.
TERMS:
Board, Washing and English Tuition, per quarter $60 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
EXTRAS:
Language, (each).....$10
Piano, Organ.....15 00
Vocal Lessons in Class.....5 00
Drawing and Painting in Water Color.....5 00
Painting in Oil, per lesson.....1 50
Graduating Fee.....10 00
DAY PUPILS:
Preparatory Class, per quarter.....$12 50
Grammar " " 20 00
Senior " " 25 00
Each young lady is required to be provided with two dresses, one of mourning, the other of white muslin, crescent, drawing cape, four sheets, four pillow slips, six towels, six napkins, six pillows, five blankets, two table napkins, one knife, silver goblet, fork, spoon and napkin ring.
Subjects of dress enforced by rules.
Pupils of any religious denomination will be received on the terms of uniformity in all respects, and be present at the religious services of the institution.
Pupils entered at any time, but will be subject to the expiration of the Superiorness.
For further particulars address
SISTER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
THIS INSTITUTION, FOUNDED IN 1851, and chartered in 1855 by Act of the Legislature of the State of California, is situated on Market street, opposite the Old Mission Church.
The course of instruction embraces all the branches necessary to the acquisition of a solid and refined education.
TERMS:
Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per annum.....$260 00
EXTRAS CHARGED.
Piano, with use of instrument, per annum.$40 00
Vocal Music, Class Lessons " " 20 00
Vocal Music, Private Lessons " " 50 00
Drawing, per annum.....20 00
Painting in Water Colors, per annum.....20 00
Painting in Oil, per lesson.....1 50
Vocation exam at the College.....10 00
Graduating Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee (in case of sickness).
Bed and bedding, if required, furnished at the beginning of each half session, in advance.
SELECT DAY SCHOOL.
Terms per month (in advance)
Tuition in the 1st and 2nd College Classes $4 00
Tuition in the 3rd and 4th College Classes.. 3 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes.. 2 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes.. 3 00
Tuition in the 3d and 4th Grammar Classes.. 2 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes.. 1 50
Music (Vocal and Instrumental), Drawing, Painting, Lessons and Practice Pianos are charged as in Boarding Schools, but in addition to French and Spanish are taught German; as also in Plain and Fancy Needlework.
N. B.—A private conveyance is furnished, at moderate rates, for the convenience of pupils residing in distant parts of the city.
Pupils will be received in the College of Notre Dame, Dolores street, San Francisco, on Wednesday the 19th inst.
ja5

School of the Holy Cross.
A Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies,
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF CHARITY Of Jesus Christ, Santa Cruz Co., Cal
Apply to the Superiorness.

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
CHARTERED IN 1869, AND CONDUCTED by the priests of the Congregation of the Mission. Terms for scholastic year, $300. For further particulars apply to
THE PRESIDENT.

Convent of the Immaculate Heart of Mary,
SAN LUIS OBISPO - - - CALIFORNIA
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG Ladies, conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.
This house is the Novitiate of the order.
For particulars address
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
SAN JOSE,..... CALIFORNIA
THIS INSTITUTION, OFFERING EQUAL and rather advantages to young ladies wishing to receive a solid and refined education, was founded in 1851. In 1855, it was incorporated by the State Legislature, and enjoy, consequently, the same body as extended the original Charter as to confer all the rights and privileges of Collegiate Institutions.
It occupies large buildings, with extensive playgrounds and possesses every thing to make science familiar and attractive. The course of instruction is thorough, in all the Departments.
The Music Hall is one of the finest in the country and is unrivalled in facilities for the pupils attending to music or the study of the theory of music.
The scholastic year begins on the first Monday in August and closes about the first week in June. Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
For quarter, (payable in advance.)
Boarding, Tuition in English, French, and Spanish, Bed and Bedding, Washing and use of bedding.....$75
Drawing (per quarter).....5 00
Painting in Water Colors.....9 00
Painting in Oil, per lesson.....1 50
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
For further particulars address
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
San Jose

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the healthy and pleasant town of Benicia.
The scholastic year comprises ten months, from the 1st of August, and ends about the 1st of June.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly).
Board and Tuition.....$125
Entrance Fee.....10
Washing.....40
Pupils remaining at the Academy during vacation will be charged $50.
Drawing, Painting and Music form extra charges.
The Expenses on package sent to pupils must be prepaid.
Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the
SISTER SUPERIOR.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CARROLL & TILT
Respectfully announce that they have opened
THE LARGE STO
873 Market Stre
—WITH A LINE OF—GENT'S ^ BO
CLOTHING
Furnishing Goo
HATS, CAPS,
Having been in this b many years, we can guara all our goods will be re
We buy for Cash and sell as 'tw
CARROLL & TILT
873 Market Street, Opp.
And late with JONES & CO.

MISS M. E. BELAN
Dress Making P
PATTERN ROO
CENTRAL BLOCK—Entrance 14 Dupont
Take Elevator.

ESTABLISHED 18
J. O'KAN
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN HARNESS, SADD
WHIPS, BLANKE
And Everything necessa
Horse or Carriage Co
Boots and English Saddlery a Single Harness from $16 a
☞ Repairing promptly attended to.
767 MARKET STREET
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.
Special attention given to the manufacture of all kinds for harness. Our refer to all trimmers and harnessers on the Pacific Coast.

VARNISH WO
ESTABLISHED 1876.
PATRONIZE HOME INDU
And buy your Varnishes from the Old
VARNISH WO
P. D. WETHERBEE, Proprietor.
MANUFACTURER OF ALL KINDS OF Coach and Furniture Varnishes
OFFICE—8 FIRST STREET.
FACTORY—17 FIRST STREET, Between Mission and Howard streets, San Francisco.
☞ Orders solicited and promptly attended to.
For price list and circular

VARNISH WO
JUST ARRIV
RANGE
For either Coal or W
THE BRISTOL, BRE
CLIFTON AND QU
The only first class Ranges in the
The Celebrated Rathbone
AND COAL OIL STOVES
MANUFACTURER OF HYDRAULIC AN
Jobbing Facilities attention paid to Ranges will be kept warm.
J. W. BRYA
Manufacturer and Dealer in Fire, New and Second-Hand and Machinery of all Des tions.
Fire Proof Safes length, cold and air-hammered Kinds of Machinery.
ALL BLACKSMITH TOOLS A SPECIALTY
204 Mission St., - San Fra
MORITZ NICOL
(Successor to H. REECH)
RESTAURA
417 Pine Street.
FIRST-CLASS BARBER AND HAIRDRESSING Connection. Ladies and Gentlemen attended at their residence, weddings, etc., at reasonable prices.
DON'T ASK WHERE
The Roasted California Fruits
Big Vegetables,
APPLES, PEARS, PEACHES
APRICOTS, BERRIES, ETC
ARE TO BE FOU
CALIFORNIA MARKET, NOS. 80
And you will see in open view an array of the fruits of Orchard and Garden that will make Californians long to be present in the FRUIT STATE IN THE WORLD.
BROWN & WELLS, Proprietors

BOOTS AND SHOES.
BOOTS AND SHOE
JOHN SULLIVA
NORTHEAST COR. OF SATTERY AND JA Streets, office to make to order the best Calf Leather BOOTS, at from.....$6 00
California Leather Boots.....5 00
French Calf Oxford Ties.....3 50
Calfskins.....4 50
Boys' and Children's Boots and Shoes made to order. Prompt in the country ordering Boots and Shoes to the amount of Twelve Dollars or more, will be allowed a reduction of from per cent, or as he makes the charge light. I sell Boots and Shoes of MY MANUFACTURE ONLY. Boots and Shoes sent Positively not prize

SEE SPOTS.
Produce a Violent Commotion in a Street Car.
began to rain again soon after dinner and I disguised citizen who came on a Broadway avenue car beside as remarked:
I presume this is owing to those spots on the sun."
Hey?" called the other as he put his ear to his ear.
Spots on the sun?" yelled the other.
Spots! Spots! Where are the spots?" Do the sun?"
old man rose up, crossed the car and out of the window and squinted for a minute, and then returned and Can't see the sun 'tall. How did the spots there?
Don't know."
Hey?
Don't know."
Have you seen 'em."
No.
You have, eh?
said so."
Yes, I have, I have." What was your obbing the there were spots on the I am not so old that I permit any make a fool of me!"
other now looked out of the window seemed a careless air, but the old man after him with:
come into a car when I am mind. own business and begin to talk spots on the sun. Who are you, sir? want to get me up to Bedlam? Hey?
say the rainy weather comes from on the sun," explained the other.
says so? Name the man! I'm of the time, and haven't heard of on the sun! If you think you say game on me you are badly come get up to change his nest, but got pulled him down and said:
wanted to work some game on me. I'm old to make the exchange. He had and the curb when the old man the platform and called out:
me for a greenhorn, did you? I walked you right to the police sta you miserable swindler! Spots Maybe you made something street-ceiling around me!"
SHOTTER RETTION.

Pictures taken at the Imperial, 724 street.

Best heating and whitening, 233 Tyler, Leavch, 21st and Telegraph avenue.

W. Tucker & Co., fine watches and Watches and clocks repaired. Cor. and Geary streets.

Pawnbroker, 664 Howard street. Money on any length of time, on Clothing, Jewelry, Bedding and all Household Furniture private.

J. H. Terrill has removed from 215 to 600 Sansome street (corner Pine) where he is now personally occupied by the Pioneer Pawnbroker.

Prepared to furnish sets of teeth at very advertised rate? You go will find the best broken plates for $1 at T. Cyrus 1008 Market street.

Dentist, at Gilbert's, 232 Sutter St. Specialties of Nature Dame says: Teeth without plates. Plates so that cannot be told from real. Best set of teeth $5. Best set of teeth and second-hand plates $2 to $5. Warranted.

Who desires to keep up with the Sewing machine and sets and low prices sometime Mrs. McIver 26 Ninth street, Sewing machine sent on order. A fine line of and Ladies underwear, also all kinds of Promenade Home, corner of Kearny street and Sutter avenue, under the proprietorship of J. W. Jenkins, continues to be one of the most popular resorts in the city. The best and room ranges from $1 to $1 50 per day by the week. The accommodations, and country readers will find the best of fare, service and accommodations.

The light of the moon to be believed in the refreshing shower of the water as the sparkling water to the thirsty are the Dropping Well of Sonoma. Cure with pain, in Troll Frost's Hardware store, with it rest and refreshment.

Intend to lay in a supply of surprise for the coming Winter it would be wise to Thomas Morton, 630 Sansome street, who has had a large stock of best of all kinds, the celebrated Wallington brand, and to be the best and most reasonable prices. Persons who reside in any portion remote from 630 Sansome street, can Morton through telephone No. 2152.

Retiring from business—Will sell my entire stock of ready-made clothing, hats, caps, etc., at cost, for cash, or exchange for other goods; it can be seen at 1 Montgomery avenue, or on the ground's board; it is what every one is looking for, and it is the place for the friends of it; he feels before it is too late, I will get along without, but prefer to make a change in the wicked. Cor. Montgomery avenue and Bush street. 30 and 32 Fremont street.

For a splendid set of Teeth, warranted to fit, Filling a specialty, at Dr. Rogers' reasonable prices. All work warranted. Dr. Rogers, Dentist, 618 Clay street. The treatment of Children's specialty.

KNOW IT!
Good living, on one sixth to pay freight goods, we understand that and said only 25 per cent. profit is to make from large purchases for cash cash in hand. Call and examine our stock at the SMITH'S CASH STORE, 818 Post St., S. F.

FLOUR.
We are still to be meeting in come. Buy the purest flour ever in market, and the cheapest and best place in the city for decorative in frescoing and artistical fillings, fine window shades, house painting and kalsomining, neatly done. Give and be convinced.

THE HEALTH CONSERVATORY
Medical and Surgical Sanitarium, 1020 Market, San Francisco, Cal. Jas. C. Jones, M. D., Elias H. Moore, M. D., physicians in charge, assisted by competent medical and surgical staff. Patients receive the most scientific and rational medicine with unprecedented success. Send for circular.

Advice to Mothers.
Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should be used

LETTER FROM MICHAEL DAVITT.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

clergy to crush the attempt, and to do this all the potent where attacks are contemplated by the coalition party at the impending general election will be the strongest every resource at the disposal of Mr. Parnell. The Irish leader will himself be present in Cork.

We have arrived at last at a stage in the Anglo-Irish struggle where all the elements of opposition in Ireland are seen united in one effort to arrest the progress of the national ADVANCE TOWARDS SELF-GOVERNMENT.

This is of enormous advantage to the National party, providing there is to be a corresponding unity among the forces opposing the national movement. It is true that the immediate issue will be a parliamentary one, but the framers of political warfare have decided this, and it cannot be helped, but then the elements of opposition are equally hostile to Parnellites, extreme Nationalists, and Land Leaguers, and their victory over the Parnell parliamentary party would place them, politically, in a position to begin battle against the advanced national and land-reform wings of the popular movement, which, if successful, would be fatal to Mr. Parnell occupying. If the Whigs and landlords are rejected by the electors, the Irish leader will be master of the political situation, both in Ireland and in the House of Commons. The English press admit this and fear it. The coalition movement was hitherto one in more than duplicity still, and every effort is being put forth to prevent it. The issue will decide the fate of Mr. Brien as a political force in this country, and the one in which the Irish parliamentary party will get its augmented power and influence, assuming it will triumph at the general election, will make or mar its prestige and reputation as a prominent factor in the Irish National cause.

THE LESSON OF UNITY.

The lesson of union which was taught by the late Philadelphia convention was also a great success in its beneficial effects upon the Irish national movement. It was union in deed, in purpose and sentiment, and no occasion when advocates of other remedies were comparatively predominant disunited and at a time when harmony among the various grades of national opinion was more apt to prove of an impalatory people was the essential requisite of the hour. The success of the Philadelphia Irish-Ireland was therefore priceless in its national value. It was a victory for the national cause and for the wealth of strength in the Irish race was demonstrated by the power of the cause which witnessed the strength as a people will be but that of a common right of nationhood only a repetition of the opposite effects of the past. It is well that the lesson should be taken to the minds of the late convention in your city should know the power of its influence for good or evil. It is well it will be but that of a chosen from and our efforts to win the support of the Irish Catholic Church in the cause of the political efforts of the past. It is well that all who have sought to be the leaders of the Irish nation in your city should know the power of its influence for good or evil

Poetry.

THE CONTEMPLATION.

"Twas near the break of day, but still
The moon was shining brightly;
The twilight is a peaceful hour
Set aside for praying lightly.
The watery dew seemed to bind fire,
A faithful night watch keeping;
While in his lone habitation lies
His comrades; all were sleeping.

How to and fro the watchy paced;
His mind was in a fever;
But not a thought of death or our
Did his brave young soldier,
Ah, no! his heart was far away;
Where on a western prairie
A rose-twined cottage stood. That night
The sentinel was "Mary."

And there he even true love he saw,
Her blue eyes lightly beaming;
Above them, on her yellow hair,
Her cheek like magnolia gleaming;
And heard her singing, as she charmed
Her lover in the dairy,
The song she loved best. That night
The sentinelsyre was "Mary."

"Oh, for one kiss from her!" he sighed,
"When my the hour our glancing,
He sighed a tender, little form,
"With lightning steps advancing;
And in his shoulder
He stood at it in wonder;
Then, smiling, he smiled in his hand,
"Ah, Gallagher!" Who was your Still on it came. "Ah! stay more
Ah! stay, ah! stay!" he cried,
Unless you give the word, "Mary,"
A sweet voice said, "Mary!"
The sentinel left behind him
Half footsteps off. O'er many miles
She's lovely hand to find him.

"I heard that you were wounded, dear,"
She sobbed, "my heart was breaking;
I could not stay a moment, but,
All other fears forsaking,
Pay traveled, by my gold made strong,
I had I have been imprisoned
Until—what? and will I—Yes, love,"
Her lover said, "I will before mis.
"They told me that I could not pass
The line to find my love
Before the hour, because I
Passed on an ebb; was over,
And so I held my mass I found
The way free as our priest.
Pension, Mary, I'm free tonight,"
He, "The countersign is 'Mary.'"

THE NEW POSTAGE RATES.

A Prize Schoolmaster.—"On the 1st of October not the least of the changes in the postal system will take effect. The reduction in our letter rate and uniform rate for half ounce or under newspapers, and two cents for half ounce or under transient matter, will cut down many will be Mr. Gladstone's, and a two cent stamp of some description will be the smallest one in use. The 'Pelican' will be the smallest. It contains a tablet upon which is a pelican, and the letters 'U. P. O.' are printed thereon and cut out. Beer mugs are ornamented with the pelican, and the expression of the words "Official Postal Pelican." Pelican Pens, Pelican Ink, and a Pelican Ink Bottle, with the tablet on the tablet the words "Pelican." Pelican Pens, Pelican Ink, with the tablet of Jackson thereon, will be discontinued on the 1st of October, and the Pelican Ink in the stamp is ended from the 1st—not used in the stamp—and the Pelican Pens, Served in Pelican Ink, and Pelican Pens, stamps have also been given for a new Post Office Postage Stamp, but some have to get to be used, and the stamp is not to be used before the 1st of October next, and it cannot be used on or after that date.

A CURIOUS CALCULATION.

"Did you ever think," asks a Paris paper, "how much we are indebted to our ancestors? Without being very long, but still, we can trace back to the Deluge, which was in 2,348 years before the Christian era, and we find that we are indebted to our ancestors for 2,348 years. Now, if we reckon 30 years to a generation, we find that we are indebted to 78 generations, and some of the ancestors of the 78 generations have left us 1,000 years of labor, and we are indebted to them for 1,000 years. Now, if we reckon 30 years to a generation, we find that we are indebted to 33 generations, and some of the ancestors of the 33

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1883.

A Censorious Correspondent.

We have received seventeen pages of manuscript from our legal friend whose queries upon Masonic matters we answered in a recent issue of this paper. In this communication our friend evinces that asperity of temper which is generally manifested by those controversialists who are vanquished in argument, and he goes out of his way in order to indulge in personal insults to the editor of this paper. This spirit of malevolence is entirely uncalled for and highly improper on the part of a practical Catholic who has been treated so courteously in these columns. Our correspondent asked us a series of questions, which we answered to the best of our ability and in a manner that could not be construed into giving the slight the foregoing formula which places the priest, unfortunate slut entirely at the mercy of the infidel members, who take up the sign of the holy Cross to such a degree as to prefer to see the souls of their so-called "brothers" damned rather than have them saved through the ministration of a representative of the religion founded by our Blessed Redeemer—without whom the Cross is only a sign of contempt.

From these remains our readers can see how fraudulent are the pretensions of Masonry in its claim as the champion of Christianity, as its record in Europe belies its professions in America, and as life in America produces like results, so we may expect that Masonry in America will manifest the same anti-Christian and malignant spirit in the exercise of its future career in this country.

That Humbug Called "Education" in the Public Schools.

The conviction is rapidly becoming general among all intelligent people that the whole Public School system is a failure, in the sense that instead of being more than a close corporation of politicians who use the public schools for the purpose of political advantage. The late Grand Jury of this city made a presentment against the Director, among which they enumerated the following:

"The selling of places in the School Department is a crime which cannot be too severely punished. Evidence produced before us goes to show that these places are sold like so much property. A party having purchased and paid for the position of a janitor, or teacher, receives the return of the money or the position he has purchased for. He received pelitical, but not, what is straightforward in this jury, immediately dismissed from the position. The employment of so many victs in this Department speaks very poorly for the morals of their employers."

All of which goes to prove that the public school is the arena wherein fraud, dishonesty, and other crimes are openly practiced by the officials in charge, whose influence against both the civil and criminal code are condemned for the reason that any exposure of such iniquities would still further damage the already rotten reputation of the public school system.

But it is not in the corruption that surrounds the public schools that their worst feature is developed, but it is well known that the majority of scholars who graduate therein receive merely a superficial knowledge of certain educational subjects, and are so conceited that they know more than those who attempted to assist them in making a living. This fact was brought prominently before the public at the recent meeting of the Committee of Conference of the local Board of Education, when Director Daniels's called attention to the fact that the two competitive examinations for appointments at Normal class had shown that the graduates of the Girls' High School were most deficient in the elementary studies, such as spelling, arithmetic, and grammar. He suggested that Superintendent Moulder call the attention of teachers to the condition of affairs. People that had graduated from the High School with 70 per cent, or less, and only received 50 per cent, or less, in a competitive examination, failing in the elementary studies.

Superintendent Moulder said the result had been most mortifying. He had found that only ten per cent of the graduates of the grammar schools could add correctly ten lines of figures.

Mr. Daniels said that the graduates of the Girls' High School had found in two-thirds of the words given them to spell in the competitive examination. The examination was simple and contained no such words.

Such facts as these fully attest that high sounding names for school houses are no guarantee that the scholars are sufficiently educated to entitle them to place therein.

Moreover, it clearly proves that bigotism, and not intellectual advancement, is the rule by which some half-educated people are rushed through grades and placed at the Monuments of the Temple of Knowledge, where their acquirements entitle them to be students in the basement study room. Is not such a system a fraud on its face? Does it not deserve to be denounced by every enlighten journal in the land? Yet when such nefarious schemes of perjured School Directors is exposed in papers like the Monitor, it is made the occasion of a howl against the Director, among which they enumerated the following:

"The calling of places in the School Department is a crime which cannot be too severely punished. Evidence produced before us goes to show that these places are sold like so much property. A party having purchased and paid for the position of a janitor, or teacher, receives the return of the money or the position he has purchased for. He received political, but not, what is straightforward in this jury, immediately dismissed from the position. The employment of so many victs in this Department speaks very poorly for the morals of their employers."

All of which goes to prove that the public school is the arena wherein fraud, dishonesty, and other crimes are openly practiced by the officials in charge, whose influence against both the civil and criminal code are condemned for the reason that any exposure of such iniquities would still further damage the already rotten reputation of the public school system.

But it is not in the corruption that surrounds the public schools that their worst feature is developed, but it is well known that the majority of scholars who graduate therein receive merely a superficial knowledge of certain educational subjects, and are so conceited that they know more than those who attempted to assist them in making a living. This fact was brought prominently before the public at the recent meeting of the Committee of Conference of the local Board of Education, when Director Daniels's called attention to the fact that the two competitive examinations for appointments at Normal class had shown that the graduates of the Girls' High School were most deficient in the elementary studies, such as spelling, arithmetic, and grammar. He suggested that Superintendent Moulder call the attention of teachers to the condition of affairs. People that had graduated from the High School with 70 per cent, or less, and only received 50 per cent, or less, in a competitive examination, failing in the elementary studies.

Superintendent Moulder said the result had been most mortifying. He had found that only ten per cent of the graduates of the grammar schools could add correctly ten lines of figures.

Mr. Daniels said that the graduates of the Girls' High School had found in two-thirds of the words given them to spell in the competitive examination. The examination was simple and contained no such words.

Such facts as these fully attest that high sounding names for school houses are no guarantee that the scholars are sufficiently educated to entitle them to place therein.

Moreover, it clearly proves that bigotism, and not intellectual advancement, is the rule by which some half-educated people are rushed through grades and placed at the Monuments of the Temple of Knowledge, where their acquirements entitle them to be students in the basement study room. Is not such a system a fraud on its face? Does it not deserve to be denounced by every enlightenen journal in the land? Yet when such nefarious schemes of perjured School Directors is exposed in papers like the Monitor, it is made the occasion of a howl against the Director, among which they enumerated the following:

"The selling of places in the School Department is a crime which cannot be too severely punished. Evidence produced before us goes to show that these places are sold like so much property. A party having purchased and paid for the position of a janitor, or teacher, receives the return of the money or the position he has purchased for. He received political, but not, what is straightforward in this jury, immediately dismissed from the position. The employment of so many victs in this Department speaks very poorly for the morals of their employers."

A French Bishop on Faithful French Catholics.

The impression prevails upon the public mind, to a great extent, that the Catholic portion of the French people—which comprises a vast majority of that nation—have become impregnated with the infidelity rampant throughout Europe, and, in consequence, have fallen away from the Church. We are happy to find, however, that so far from being as faithless as the European press antagonistic to our Holy faith would fain have us believe, the Catholics of France manifest their faith by good works in a manner which should bring the blush of shame to many of their co-religionists in this republic.

The persecution which has been waged against the Religious Orders in France is familiar to all, but the heroism which it evoked among the Catholic laity is only known when some Pastoral Letter from one of the French Bishops finds its way into print through the columns of the Catholic press, and such a document we find in the Richmond Catholic Visitor in the shape of a Circular Letter addressed by the Archbishop of Rheims, announcing the opening for a subscription for the erection of Christian free schools for the education of young girls.

In the document in question we find this valuable colony vertainly worded by the Archbishop of Rheims upon his flock for the generosity with which they responded to his call for the establishment and support of Catholic free schools when the State unjustly deprived its French Catholic children of their religious education:

"It is three years since, through your intervention, we made a first appeal to your generosity. Our Christian schools, the subscription opened for the purpose, hastily got up by Christian school-committees of brothers—in place of whom the secular authorities wished to substitute lay teachers—Thanks be the devotion of the Catholic Institutions, to the energy of the faithful, and to the sacrifices made by all, the sum of the Christian free schools was promptly established. This work is now in the most prosperous condition. All Christian families adhere to the direction of the venerable Ire la Salle, and the sisters of the west have fully responded to our wishes, and far surpassed our hopes. Relying on this element, it is so much to give renewed praise to the prudence and benefactors, by the intelligence of the Christian Institutions the work is already enjoying a rich, and well deserved reputation, which it nationality and possessing good soldiers to defend. When this time comes, we will permit ourselves to remember and forgive all the unpleasant things which have been written against the Christian Brothers of California, National Guard, and the Prefect of Marne, who, in 1880, during the national anthems, may seem ade the Jerusalem Hymn."

When we consider that this plea for sympathy, and this temptation to become traitors, comes from one who has been an Arnold in politics and a Judas in religion, the result of which we have to confess is not astonished. The natural inclination of all traitors and turncoats is to make others as degraded as themselves. Many lives compare, as the successful sycophant who changes his religion and is a renegade to his race, is the first to admonish others to become the base parasite he has made himself.

The insulting proposal of this professional political prostitute will be spurned as a fool bribe and flung back full in the face of this journalistic Judas. "Give up the green flag!" Never! Tis the most glorious ensign in all the world. It has been reared in America throughout more than a century, and no British-bribed Arnold shall succeed in addening the heart of a American citizen. This Hessian from their heartfelt allegiance to it and the glorious land it represents. On the contrary, the advice of this wicked, unprincipled renegade of all that a Irish and Catholic will only serve to twine the dear old green flag more closely around every Irish heart; it will create a new love for the land of the forefathers of the American citizen soldiery, and it will serve to make the man of the gallant Third even more enthusiastic in the cause of Erin than many of those to be found there.

Pixley must not imagine that because he has passed through all the phases of Jew, Christian, and infidel—and been false to all—that he can exercise any influence on Irish-American to become an apostate at his Satanic suggestion. It is as false and as foul a calumny as ever emanated from the mind of man, and it is only necessary to mention to say that Catholic priests "come between American citizens and their national duty," and it is only those low-lived, degraded parties who hate the Irish for their fidelity to principle that cast such a malignant aspersion upon a body of men among whom may be found sons of the finest families in the most renowned friends of the republic. Yet this insipidous instigator of all that is vicious and venal desires the rising race of Irish Americans in California to turn away from their faith, to prove false to their hereditary vows, and to become renegades to their religion. "Cast then behind me, Satan," and our Blessed Redeemer to the Evil Demon when he suffered our Saviour all the kingdoms of the world and the glory thereof, if, falling down, the Son of God would adore him. And deep down in their hearts the American-born sons of St. Patrick will despise this despicable and designing demagogue for trying to tempt them from their allegiance to the Church of God and the priests who represent her divine inference throughout the world.

What does this ruse-de-guerre strike who tries to play the role of Satan promise those who follow his advice? He adds additional insult by saying they may serenade the sheet that thus revile their clergy and their holy faith. Well, what! Irish-American honor the Argonaut? As well ask the angels in Heaven to bow to Belzebub as to imagine that such a calumny could ever occur in California. The Argonaut mistakes when it measures other men's motives in religion or loyalty by its own base standard. One Pixley is enough among any people, and the moral atmosphere of America will be purer and its people more patriotic when the Argonaut, and its editor, have followed that historic ass to the bourne to which all these base souls to the bourne to which all these

A Senseless Scarecrow.

"CHICAGO, August 24.—A gentleman at Washington, who takes great interest in matters of religious character, has sent me, only in opinion, but that it was the intention of the Church of Rome to try and make a great power in the future in the United States. It is regarded as a certainty, by the people mostly, that the object of the visit of Monsignor Conroy to this country, and the calling of leading American Catholic leaders to Rome is but to prepare the groundwork for the concurrence of the Church of Rome in the coming struggle. The time will show."

We find the above rubbish among the dispatches published in the daily papers, and we suppose there are still a few people enough to swallow such superfluous nonsense as solid truth. Forty or fifty years ago it was a favorite theme with Immigrant preachers to announce to their behalf congregations that the Pope was coming over to America whenever the corner-stone of a Catholic church was laid, or a Catholic school was opened. Those days of purblind bigotry we imagined had passed, but it seems there is some shallow-pated wiseacre in Washington whose ears are so long that he bears mournful braying to mind us of the known to shorter-eared people of the blood class.

It is too late in the day now to try to bluff us with non-Catholic element in this land with such nonsensical trash as the dispatch contains. The Catholic Church is numerically and intelligently represented in the country that people have learned to place any confidence in the blood-and-thunder tales of untruthful talkers when in the pulpit or on the platform, and the status of the church, both in this country and Europe, is so well understood that such senseless sensational scarecrows as the above only laughed at.

A TRIBUTE TO ST. ROSE OF LIMA.

(1 Radiant Rose!
From Earth's chill cities, and uncongenial air
My angelic heroine to Indentine fields of God,
Where Lilies of Love Dwell.

Immortal Bloom!
Thy sweet life in incense of our human prayer
Thine odors, wan from Love's Eternal Rays,
All Heaven and Earth perfume.

And faint and dim
As distant echoes of the south wind's sighs,
The Twelve Apostles, Martyrs, Virgins, Saints
Where pauls the seraph's hymn.

Yet yet, we lift
Our incense breath, and rapture-laden tone
Thee, sweet Rose! our eyes, our very eye,
Our Earth's transcendant gift!

Our Western home
Did twice, O joy! thy radiant bloom enclose
And then set sained Columbia's queenly
Her one sainted Flower!

Ah! fragrant Bloom!
Thy sweet life, which with spirit-rare
Some precious portion of thy "sweets of Thy sanctity's perfume.

We fain would win
The few ground beauty of thy petals fair!
To spread our hearts, to be to darkly lost
The serpent's trail of Sin.

Thy sweet reflection in each freshened bloom,
And, sweet Rose! thy fragrance from worldly
To deck His Sabbath, with thee.

H. M. Sartorius (Mag.)

San Francisco.

"The above lines are inscribed to the Graduates of Sacred Heart Convent, on Tyler and Hyde streets, whose benefit the Island Fair is now being held. The Convent is a most flourishing institution, and the Sisters are most worthy of the patronage of Catholic people, and the Fair is one which none worthy or loyal should fail to attend. The Convent is the only of San Francisco's citizens, to quietly and unobtrusively conserve

OUR IRISH LETTER.

Courageous Patriotism in Ireland's Cause—The Second Seed Sowed in Blood—Parnell's Prophecy Fulfilled—Great Victory in Liverpool—The Press on Carey's Assassination—Ireland's Prospects Brighten.

(FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.)

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR:

Dear Sir—From a heart overflowing with gratitude, I as an Irish girl, and on behalf of my people, thank you for your noble, courageous, and generous sympathy with our cause in your editorial of the Irish National Land League Convention held in your city on the 12th of July. We have labored hard and made a great deal of true, earnest, practical, and speedy, business in the cause of our land, and we have, as we do like the Sons of Heaven, the sympathy of all earth; yet like a drought of misery, when to the parched and weary the dreaming heart of our people. The development of the natural rich resources of our country, and the establishment of home manufactories to which you have referred, will be a source of wealth and comfort, but our rulers would much more willingly promote the emigration scheme, being more in accordance with their views and designs. The idiot stream of splendid young men and women, the bone and sinew of our country, on their way to the mighty ships, is a daily and silent testimony of the privileges we enjoy under the British Government. The intelligent men of our land have calmly considered the position, and the determination to form a "Land League" to crush the tyrannical system which has not replaced the spirit of patient endurance; we are hopeful, and we have faith in a foreign despot, but as a united people do we place our confidence.

The sensation of the hour here is the shooting of the informer Carey on his way to Port Elizabeth, Africa. Mr. Davitt is in Ulster making a tour of the Orange districts, and is enjoying perfect of his health. The Parnell fund amounts to £22,000, and the Land League is now firmly fixed and the Fenians have admitted during the past few weeks, and now are with us. The Home Rule Party is in a healthy state, and the Tory Party is in a state of the most terrible anarchy, and now has thirty in the institution.

CONFIRMATION AT ST. PAUL'S.

Last Sunday St. Paul's church, corner Twenty-second and Church streets, was the scene of a very interesting ceremony, the confirmation of a number of the pupils of the Sacred Heart Convent, under the pastorate of Rev. Father Brenlin, at which the following young ladies, who had completed their course of study, received the Bread of Life connection with the Catholic Church: Misses O. F., attended the High Mass, assisted at the ceremony, and received the candidates for confirmation, who occupied the first seats, on account of humility in accepting the honor of being the first confirmed in the Holy Sacrifice. After the administered Confirmation, the Rev. Father Brenlin, who presented a truly edifying appearance by the perfect demeanor with which he performed the ceremony. Father Brenlin's address, quite a number of young people present showed by the fortifying Sacrament, with whose knowledge of Christian Doctrine and practice of the virtues of the Holy Ghost, he expressed himself much pleased.

Ill is confusing to see a Paradise, a new side spelunging up the last five years under the guidance of Rev. Father Brenlin, and Rev. Rev. L. Kennedy. Here was a hopeful number of young Catholics sealed their Bishop's approval to be admitted to the sacred Invocation which is the Holy Ghost, and to be admitted to the Holy Communion. The real of Bishop O'Connell knows no end. When the voice of duty calls, and through duty in health and in the autumn of life, he is strong to do the work of his Master. The "Fair of Roses" in the portion of the vineyard allotted to his charge, the Sacred Heart Convent, by the Bishop, Rochster from Marysville, to enable the Convent to carry on the work of Christian charity, particularly in all the spiritual advantages of Holy Church—he spared no pains in the matter, and also his administrations in Fernside to-day, the Fair of Roses, and the Fair of Roses, and the Fair, I, adopted. After looking into the matter he found it impossible to carry the work of building the railroad company such heavy business

GREAT EARTHQUAKES.

Millions of Lives Lost through Such Disasters.

The great disaster at Ischia recalls, probably other casualties of this kind which in times past have devastated portions of the earth.

Ischia itself and, indeed, all southern Italy, has been particularly unfortunate in this respect. Only two years ago, on March 5th, 1887, an earthquake occurred here and 107 people lost their lives. The southern part of Italy has been from time immemorial remarkable for earthquake shocks. Not a century has passed but what some notable disaster has occurred in some portion of southern Italy. From 1772 to 1776 this region was constantly disturbed. No fewer than 924 shocks occurred here in 1773, of which 361 were of the first degree of force.

Calabria, in southern Italy, extends from the province of Potenza to the Straits of Messina. In October, 1783, the warning of the coming disaster was heard in the middle of Calabria. Immediately men and women rushed to their houses to seek for valuables and to hurry the escape of their children. Soon the ground opened and houses and men were swallowed up. Over 40,000 Calabrians lost their lives.

The shock passed northwards and reached the opposite coast of Sicily. Almost at the moment that the Calabrians perished Messina felt the effect of the shock, and the city disappeared like a flash, 60,000 of its inhabitants being buried in the ruins, making a total of 100,000 lives lost by this earthquake.

The earliest recorded earthquake in central Italy happened in 63, A. D., when Herculaneum was partially destroyed. Sixteen years later occurred the memorable destruction of this city and Pompeii. For eight days the lava poured in burning streams down the sides of Mount Vesuvius, burning the two cities and burying them under the liquid fire.

Another memorable earthquake was the one that on November 1st 1755, shook the city of Lisbon, in Portugal.

The usual rumbling noise was heard throughout the city and men and women fled in terror from the unseen dangers.

Every house in the quaint old city trembled and thousands fell, while in the Alps the shock was felt, and off on the coast of Sweden.

The sea water gushing from the springs of Tepitz ceased to flow, but after a while burst forth with redoubled impetuosity, inducing the contention with other mineral water. Immediately after the shock the sea receded back from Lisbon and left the harbor bagdry, but only for a second, and then an immense bitter fifty foot high rolling wave came in with a roar, bowling them all beneath the waters. In six minutes 60,000 human souls had been swallowed up in the ground or carried to death by the great sea wave.

Still another and another billow rolled in upon the lower portion of the city, until the castles and palaces were under 600 feet of water. Historians say that the loss of life on earth thus by this earthquake equalled two-thirds of the population of Europe. Other calculations hold that the shock was not of such immense proportions, but that a territory equal in extent to that of France was shaken when the earthquake occurred.

The waves of shock spread over Europe, causing much trouble and causing temporary changes in the century of Lock Lomond, where the water rose from two feet and then fell below their usual level. Similarly with the shock came the great eruption of the volcano Kotlugaen, Iceland. The violence of the wave of the shock was about 2,000 feet per second.

As early as 1692 Lima and the port Callao were destroyed by earthquakes. The population were almost completely demolished, and Spaniards and Indians were buried in the ruins. Twelve thousand people were buried in 1812 at Caracas.

On March 22nd, 1868, Quito, in Ecuador, felt the shock of an earthquake, and 40,000 people were killed and thousands of houses fell.

Fire was visited in 1868, and the town of Arequipa was wiped out of existence. Flares and Cruzalla were also destroyed this year.

Vidal waves followed the earthquake shocks, and it is estimated that this year 20,000 people lost their lives.

On January 22nd, 1835, the eruption of Mount Conseguina and the attendant earthquake attracted particular attention among scientists as it was said that it was exceedingly similar to the one memorable in the annals of Christ. The waves rolled for upon the land; the cities around were for the time swallowed in darkness. The most awful scenes took place at the time. Fleeing men were robbed and murdered, and women dragged to death in the darkness. Neither golden nor priestly ones were able to stay the scourge of ravage and rapine that followed the disappearance of the sun and the eruption of the mountain.

The ancient city of Antioch has been another unfortunate city. In A. D. 115 the Emperor Trajan visited the city, and in the height of the festivities the shock was felt in the largest hotel.

The Emperor and his court took flight to safety, but the unfortunate people were injured. The city was almost wholly destroyed. In 458 the city was again visited and the houses and palaces crumbled. The most disastrous shock occurred in 526.

Gibbon the historian, says at the time 200,000 persons lost their lives. The city was wholly destroyed. While the people were fleeing by thousands, the earth would open and swallow up thousands. The earth opened not only once but many times and thousands were heaped up in the trenches. The ground was so warm as the floor of a furnace and the air was sounding hot, striking down thousands at a time. Fires sending up great sheets of flame burst forth, burning to death all who chanced to be near. The plague followed and those who not too lustfulgry were left untouched. Sixty years later the city was again populous and another earthquake occurred in which 30,000 people lost their lives. The last event of this kind is remembered by all. In April, 1872, the city was wrecked again and thousands of lives were lost. The shocks felt on this occasion were not so disastrous, and at present the buildings are principally of poor structure.

—Mormonism is making considerable headway in Great Britain. The missionaries sent from Utah across the Atlantic to promote the work of propagandism in the industry, namely that of great in London to report progress. The report was very favorable. The missionaries had not had to leave door of Ireland, as the Irish did not take kindly to Mormonism. The Welsh and Scotch were more well behaved (?) natured, and had been induced to become Mormons (?) or converts to holy lamp instinct. The industry in Utah is to be developed by the county of Wales, and immediately on the arrival of the Liverpool and Manchester, 50 Leeds, 70 Glasgow, 120 Edinburgh, 30 Hamburg, 30 Liverpool, 30 Birmingham, 30; and London only 28.

DISEASES OF MAN.

Nervous Weakness, Dropsy, Impotence, Sexual Debility, cured by "Wells' Health Renewer." $1.

NEW PARLOR ORGAN ONLY $35.00 WARRANTED SIX (6) YEARS.

FIFTEEN (15) USEFUL STOPS, NAMELY:

1. Powerful VOX JEHOVA DOUBLER.
2. VOX HUMANA, Imitating the human voice.
3. VIOLA DOLCE, Sweet and Low.
4. PRINCIPAL BASS, Full, Rich, Sonorous.
5. DIAPHONIC DIAPASON, Unusually Grand.
6. SUBBASS, Powerful Pedal Organ Stop.
7. VIOLA DI GAMBA, Imitates the Famous Stop.
8. SAXAPHONE, Imitates the Celebrated Reed Instrument.

$65.00 Parlor Organ with Sub-Bass and Octave Coupler, Sweet Toned Diapasons, Vox Humana and Sub-Bass Stop, $35.00

Providing Other is accepted and order given within thirty days from date of this paper.

DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE FAMOUS DUPLEX GALVANIC BELT

BEST IN THE WORLD.

THE HIGHEST PREMIUM AT THE MECHANICS' Institute. The greatest curative agent in science. The Pacific Electric Co., Sole Proprietors.

RUPTURE

Positively Cured.

PACIFIC ELECTRIC PAD TRUSS.

PACIFIC STEAM CARPET BEATING

And Renovating Works.

WHITENING

In all its Branches Thoroughly and Promptly Done.

OAKLAND STEAM.—Twenty feet street and Telegraph ave. Prompt attention will be given to orders sent by Mail, Telephone, or left at the Office.

333 GOLDEN GATE AVE.

CONKLIN BROS., PROPRIETORS.

Pacific Coast Agency

GENUINE

J. H. CUTTER WHISKIES,

A. P. HOTALING & CO.,

San Francisco, Cal.

WITH

FIVE DOLLARS

THE GREAT NEW YORK IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN VIENNA CITY

GOVERNMENT BOND,

Which bonds are issued and secured by the Government of Austria.

FOUR TIMES ANNUALLY.

Cash and every bond is drawn, with a happy or a smaller prize, every bond gets a prize.

Prize as there are as many

THE THREE HIGHEST PRIZES AMOUNT TO

$125,000 FLORINS,
$40,000 FLORINS,
$25,000 FLORINS.

and bonds not drawing one of the above prizes must draw a Prize of NOT LESS THAN

130 Florins.

The next drawing takes place on the 1ST OF OCTOBER, 1863.

And every bond bought of us on or before the 1st of October is entitled to the whole premium that may be drawn thereon on that date.

Out-of-town orders must be in Discount Letters, Indorsing $5, will cost one of these bonds for the next drawing.

For orders, circulars, or any other information, address,

INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO., 307 B'way, cor. Fulton St., New York City.

ESTABLISHED IN 1864.

N. B.—In writing to us, please state you saw this in the San Francisco Monitor.

The above Government Bonds are not to be compared with any Lottery Bonds, and are not confined to any of the laws of the United States.

MISS JANE GRAY,

Teacher of Elocution, Oratory and Drama.

Performances Attended paid to Voice Culture.

ST. ANN'S BUILDING.

COR. POWELL AND EDDY STREETS, ROOM 105.

The Catholic Child

HAS NOW BEEN PROPAGATED FOR TWO months and has become an assured success. It is conducted entirely by Sacred Heart children with great satisfaction because

THE PICTURES ARE FRESH,
THE READING INTERESTING,
THE PUZZLES ARE NEW.

In a word, it is prepared in both Sets for the Sacred Heart Children by the Ursuline Nuns (Catholic Sisters). Subscribe for it and be pleased.

McCORMICK BROTHERS,
Publishers and Printers,
636 Clay St., San Francisco.

Sample Copies Sent Free to any Address on application.

DOCTOR SOUGHT AND SOLD BY A SURGEON Gold Medal Graduate.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EIGHTEENTH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

MECHANICS' FAIR

Of San Francisco, 1863.

WILL OPEN AT THE NEW PAVILION ON LARKIN, Hayes, Fell and Grove streets, on Tuesday, September 15th, and continue until October 10th, 1863, for the exhibition of the products of INDUSTRY, the fine arts of MANUFACTURES, ART AND NATURAL PRODUCTS.

A GRAND CONCERT and other extra attractions each afternoon and evening.

PREMIUMS.

A Diploma for all Articles consisting of Gold, Silver and Bronze Medals, Diplomas and Cards, will be awarded to meritorious exhibits.

Members of the Mechanics Institute, in good standing, are entitled to double and single season tickets at half rates.

Intending Exhibitors should lose no time in applying for space.

All information will be given or sent on application to the Secretary, 31 Post street.

J. B. CYLVES, Secretary.

PACIFIC STEAM CARPET BEATING

And Renovating Works,

WHITENING

405 California Street, S. F.

PRINCIPAL OFFICE.

CHAS. A. LATOUR ..... JOHN W. WISE, President.

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE

UNION INSURANCE COMPANY

OF SAN FRANCISCO,

THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,

ESTABLISHED IN 1861.

Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.

CAPITAL PAID UP ..... $750,000 GOLD.

FAIR RATES.
PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES.
SOLID SECURITY.

DIRECTORS:

SAN FRANCISCO

B. Revenier, Nicholas Landig,
A. Pratt, John Parrott,
Moses Heller, James Moffat,
N. O. Kittle, J. Bacon,
M. J. O'Connor, M. D. Rosenberg,
P. Richardson, Joseph Brandenstein,
Joseph Seligman, Gustave Touchard,
Jacob Greenberg, J. G. Kittle,
J. Lawrence Pool, William Scholle,
J. Wise, Geo. C. Hicks,
N. S. Soule, Charles Bacon,
A. Pratt, Jr., J. O. Eldridge,
A. B. Forbes, GUSTAVE TOUCHARD.

N. G. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BAILEY, Secretary.
GEO. W. ROBINS, Surveyor.

EDUCATIONAL.

Convent of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary,

GILROY, - - - CALIFORNIA.

BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL, CONDUCTED BY the religious sisters of the M. H. and I. H. of Mary. For terms, &c., apply to

MOTHER superior.

CATOLA LARE MILITARY ACADEMY

AUROR, N.Y. Rev. W. J. FLINT, Principal.

COENGETOWN COLLEGE, D. C.

Founded in 1789.

Rev. JAMES A. DONAHAN, S. J., President.

ACADEMY AND SCIENTIFIC SCHOOLS open on Thursday, Sept. 15, 1862. Board, tuition, etc., $300 per annum. For particulars address PRESIDENT GEORGETOWN COLLEGE, D. C.

THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE opens on Monday, Sept. 8th, 1862. Venue for the Session, Lectures, Fees, etc., address J. J. CHEVALIER, D. D., President Georgetown College, D. C.

THE SCHOOL OF LAW opens on Thursday, Oct. 2, 1862. Lectures, Fees, etc., address (as above) Faculty; Hon. R. T. Merrick, Hon. Jas. M. Wilson, Judge W. A. Richardson, Judge of the Supreme Court; Martin F. Mahon, LL.D., and J. Dunsmore, Esq., Washington City. Hon. Reverdy Johnson, Baltimore, Md. Hon. J. A. Bayard, Wilmington, Del. Hon. Jas. Dockery Halls, U. S. Attorney, N. W. Washington, D. C.

MT. ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,

RENO, NEVADA.

CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF ST. DOMINIC, will reopen on September 1st. For refined Terms apply to the MOTHER SUPERIOR.

URSULINE ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

The Third Annual Session began AUGUST 7TH., 1863.

For Prospectus and full particulars, address

SUPERIORESS OF THE URSULINES, Santa Rosa, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.

SANTA CLARA - - - - CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a moral and intellectual education. One feature in particular should recommend this Academy, to the indulgent attention of the public, namely, the strict adherence to economy and to render them useful members of society in after years.

The scholastic year, comprising two sessions, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.

Pupils are received at any period of the year.

TERMS:

Per quarter, payable in advance.

Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.

Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding, $50

Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.

French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 6th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE

SANTA CLARA, ... CALIFORNIA

THE THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL SESSION of this institution will open Monday, August 7th, 1862. This institution was founded in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated with the privileges of a University. It occupies the large buildings with extensive shady playgrounds, in a secluded grounds, retaining every comfort, and is entirely in a healthy locality. It has philosophical apparatus, and valuable collections of Philosophy and Natural Science, Chemistry, Astronomy, Mineralogy, Botany, Zoology, practical schools of Assaying, Surveying, Telegraphy, Photography and Chemical Manufacture, and the latter's new building 164x40 has just been finished, that leaves nothing to be desired.

Diplomas are given in the two departments—the Classical and Scientific—and Certificates in the Commercial course.

TERMS:

(Payable semi-annually in advance.)

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once, $ 15 00

Board, Lodging, Tuition, in all branches, Washing, Mending, Bed and Bedding, Lines, School Stationery, medical attendance and Medicine, Baths, etc., per session, of ten months..... 250 00

For further particulars apply to the President of Santa Clara College, or to St. Ignatius College, 216 Hayes street, San Francisco.

REV. R. E. KENNA, President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.

Conducted by the Christian Bros.,

Fifth and Jackson Sts., OAKLAND, CAL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School for boys up to the age of fifteen years, subject to the control of the Christian Brothers with the attainment of a superior Christian education.

Parents and guardians, desirous of sending their sons or wards to boarding school, need only visit this Academy, to be convinced that it fulfills in every respect the place hitherto vacant in the collegiate system of California.

Preparations received at any time during the year, but a shorter period than one term of five months will not be entertained.

TERMS:

[Payment in U. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance]

Board, Washing and Tuition, per term of 5 months, $150

Bed and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by parents or guardians)..... 15

Stationery, Medicine, Washing, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to

MOTHER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME

MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN 1851, chartered by the State Legislature, and endowed with all the rights and privileges of similar Collegiate Institutions in the United States.

Reference required. For terms and particulars address

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME, Marysville, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL.

SACRAMENTO INSTITUTE,

Twelfth and K streets,

SACRAMENTO, ... CAL.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF BOARDERS RECEIVED (exclusively) for securing a sound Christian education, combining with it the comforts of a pleasant home, at here affording.

REV. GEORGE GEORGEN, Director.

[Pupils received on Wednesday, August 1st, 1862.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE

Sisters of St. Dominic,

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS INSTITUTION, BEAUTIFULLY LOCATED in the Mission, Sacred Heart Academy every facility for the acquisition of a refined and solid education.

The Academic year consists of two terms of five months each.

TERMS:

Board, Washing and English Tuition, per quarter $60 00

Entrance Fee..... 10 00

EXTRAS:

Language, (each)..... $10

Drawing..... 10 0

Vocal Lessons in Class..... 5 00

Private Vocal Lessons..... 10 00

Dancing and Painting in Water Colors..... 1 00

Use of Piano, per hour..... 1 00

Use of Harp, per hour..... 10 00

No Extra Charge for Needlework.

DAY PUPILS:

Preparatory Class, per term..... $10 0

Grammar..... 20 0

Higher..... 40 0

Use of Piano for Practice..... 10 0

Each young lady is required to be provided with four dresses, one of which must be black, two morning dresses, dressing case, four sheets, four pillow-slips, six towels, six napkins, one table, silver pitcher, tub, spoons and napkin ring.

Simplicity of dress enforced by rule.

Pupils of any religious denomination will be received but for sake of uniformity all are required to be present at the religious services of the Church.

Music lessons, and use of the piano, will be subject to the inspection and approval of parents.

For further particulars address

SISTER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME

OF SAN FRANCISCO,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME

THIS INSTITUTION, FOUNDED IN 1851, chartered in 1858 by Act of the Legislature of the State of California, and empowered to confer Collegiate Honors, is situated on Berry street, opposite the Old Mission Church.

The course of instruction embraces all the branches necessary for the acquisition of a solid and refined education.

TERMS:

Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per session..... $150 00

EXTRA CHARGES.

Piano, with use of Instrument per annum $60 00

Vocal Music, Private Lessons " " 50 00

Vocal Music, Private Lessons " " 30 00

Drawing, per annum..... 20 00

Painting in Water Colors, per annum..... 20 00

Painting in Oil, per annum..... 20 00

Vocation spent at the College..... 30 00

Graduating Fee..... 10 00

Physician's Fees (in case of sickness).

Bills are presented and are payable at the beginning of each half session.

SILENT DAY SCHOOL.

Terms per month (paid in advance.)

Tuition in the 1st and 2nd College Classes $6 00

Tuition in the 3rd and 4th College Classes 8 00

Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes..... 4 00

Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes 3 00

Tuition in the 1st and 2d Intermediate Classes..... 2 00

Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes..... 1 00

Music (Vocal and Instrumental.) Drawing, Painting and Private Elocution lessons are extra charges, as in Boarding Schools, but include in French and Spanish no extra charge throughout; as also in Plain and Fancy Needlework.

N. B.—A private conveyance is furnished, at the commencement and at the termination of every session, for the convenience of pupils residing in distant parts of the city.

For further particulars apply to the Lady Superior of Notre Dame, Dolores street, San Francisco, on Wednesday the 19th inst.

School of the Holy Cross.

A Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies,

CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF CHARITY (Dames de la Croix) of the Cross. For particulars, apply to the Sisters.

Convent of the Immaculate Heart of Mary,

SAN LUIS OPISPO - - - CALIFORNIA

BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES, conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

Terms in the Territories of the order.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME

SAN JOSE, ... CALIFORNIA

THIS INSTITUTION, OFFERING FE cullar advantages to young ladies wishing to receive a solid and refined education, was founded in 1851. In 1855, it was incorporated by the State Legislature, and subsequently the same body so extended the original Charter as to confer upon it all the rights and privileges of Collegiate Institutions.

To accommodate large buildings, with extensive playgrounds, and possesses every thing to make it pleasant and attractive. The course of instruction is thorough, in all the Departments. Every facility will be afforded to students who may find it desirable to devote their whole time to the acquisition of some one branch.

The scholastic year begins on the first Monday in August and closes about the first week in June. Pupils are received at any period of the year.

TERMS:

Per quarter, (payable in advance.)

Boarding, Tuition in English, French, and Ancient Spanish, German, and Latin, washing and use of bedding..... $75

Drawing (per quarter)..... 5 00

Painting in Water Colors..... 5 00

Painting in Oil, per lesson..... 1 00

Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.

For further particulars, address

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME, San Jose.

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

BENICIA ..... CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters St. Dominic, and is situated in the healthy and accessible town of Benicia.

The scholastic year comprises two sessions, opens on the 1st of August, and ends about the 1st of June.

TERMS:

(Payable yearly).

Board and Tuition..... $225

Entrance Fee..... 15

Washing..... 45

Pupils remaining at the Academy during vacation will be charged $60.

Drawing, Painting and Music form extra charges.

The Expenses on package sent to pupils must be prepaid.

Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the Sister Superior.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CARROLL & TILTON,

Respectfully announce that they have opened

THE LARGE STORE,

873 Market Street,

—WITH A LINE OF—

GENT'S '"" BOYS'

CLOTHING,

Furnishing Goods

HATS, CAPS, ETC.

Having been in this business many years, we can promise now all our goods will be as represented.

We buy for Cash and sell as low as possible.

CARROLL & TILTON,

873 Market Street, Opp. Powell.

And late with JOHN F. & CO.

MISS M. E. BELANGER,

Dress Making Parlors

—AND—

PATTERN ROOMS,

CENTRAL BLOCK—Entrance—14 Dupont street, Up Two Entrances.

ESTABLISHED 1855.

J. O'KANE

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN

HARNESS, SADDLE, WHIPS, BLANKETS,

And Everything necessary for Horse or Carriage Use.

Boots and English Saddlery a Specialty.

Single Harness from $16 a set.

[Repairing promptly attended to.

767 MARKET ST.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Special attention given to the manufacture of Whips of all kinds for horses. Use refer to all the principal horsemen in the Pacific States.

VARNISH FOR WOOD

PATENTED 1862.

And buy your Varnishes from the CALIFORNIA VARNISH WORKS.

P. A. TOWNE, Proprietor.

MANUFACTURER OF ALL KINDS OF VARNISHES, Japans, Asphaltums, Shellacs, Lacquers, Preservatives, Paints, Etc.

OFFICE, 3 FIRST STREET, corner of Jackson, Up Two Flights, and Brannan streets, San Francisco.

[Orders promptly attended to.

VARNISH FOR WOOD

JUST ARRIVED

RANGE

The other Coal or THE BRISTOL, BERKELEY, CLIFTON AND QUEEN.

The only first class Range in the Market.

The Celebrated Rathbone Range AND COAL OIL STOVES.

MANUFACTURER OF HYDRAULIC AND Steam Engine Boilers, Sheet Iron Work and Jobbing. Particular attention paid to Ship Work.

J. M. BRYANT,

130 Third Street.

Bet. Mission and Howard streets, San Francisco.

M. KELLY & CO.

Manufacturers and Dealers in

Files, New and Second-Hand Steam and Machinery of all Descriptions.

Fire-Proof Safes bought, sold and exchanged.

Steam Boilers, Tools & Specialty.

204 Mission St., - San Francisco.

MORITZ NICOLA

(Successor to H. REECH,

PATTERN ROOMS

417 Prize Street.

FIRST CLASS BAKERY AND CONFECTIONERY, Cakes and Confectionery furnished for any parties, weddings, etc., at reasonable prices.

DON'T ASK WHERE

The Boasted California Fruits Big Vegetables,

APPLES, PEARS, PEACHES, PRICOTS, BERRIES, ETC.

ARE TO BE FOUND

IN CALIFORNIA MARKET, NOS. 50 & 52 Jackson street, where you will find the best and cheapest Fruit and Vegetables, and a great variety of Fruits, from all parts of the WORLD, the UNITED STATES, and CALIFORNIA.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

BOOTS AND SHOES

JOHN SULLIVAN

NORTHEAST COR. OF BATTERY AND JACKSON streets, opposite the Custom House. Call Leather BOOTS, at from..... $5 00

California Leather Boots..... 6 00

French Calf Oxford Tie..... 2 50

Calfskin..... 2 00

Boys' and Children's Boots and Shoes made to order. Persons in the country ordering Boots and Shoes must send measure of Twelve Dollars or more, will be allowed a reduction of four per cent; as all to be made and warranted to be the best of workmanship and material. Boots and Shoes made to order in three days.

Whipped Children.

Some women cuff their children out of pure laziness. It is so much easier to box little Johnny's ears than to tell him why he should not do this or that. It is so much less troublesome to slap Hannah Ann for breaking something than it is to teach her how to use it so that it shall not be broken.

Punishment of the flesh for the sins of the soul or the errors of the mind is a sinful relic of barbarism, even if it is done because the person who punishes thinks it a duty to use stick or switch or whip or slipper on the tender skin of some little child. It never made a boy better yet, and it only crushes the spirit of a girl. You may repeat "Spare the rod and spoil the child" as often as you like, blind beating of the little ones does not carry out the idea, which is, that you must let them go to destruction for want of reproof or admonition. It is a moral rod that is meant, not one of birch or willow.

Men love the fathers whose "You must not" was law; the mothers whose "I'd rather you would not" was a barrier not to be overleaped. But a cruel, unexplained lashing has turned the heart of many a child from its parent forever. Walking through a village street, I saw an illustration of this one day.

Some furious cattle were being driven up the road beyond. Two boys started out of their gates, anxious, as boys always are, to be in the midst of danger.

One mild woman called out gently: "Don't go, Tom. You might get hurt; and at least you would make me anxious." Her boy came back and said: "I shouldn't get hurt, but I didn't want to worry you, ma."

After the other boy daw a furious little woman, with a switch, crying out: "I'll test you to a jelly, when I catch you, sir!" but she did not catch him.

As for little girls born in respectable families, where they are nothing very wrong, they will follow their mothers as lambs follow their parent sheep. If she will only gently teach them what to do they will do it; and when they are tired, or have their feelings hurt, and seem to cry "Reason—when they say "I don't want to use," the way is to talk to them, find out what they are thinking, what powerful little reason or terror moves them, and explain it away.

Any mother who remembers her own childhood will know that little girls have a great many thoughts to themselves until and, motherly questionings bring them out. Neglected children are miserable little creatures, who make the whole house unhappy. Remember that, before you switch your or slap your girls.

MONITOR BRITION.

—The building of the Cathedral of Cologne, which has just been completed, was begun 638 years ago.

—Best Pictures taken at the Imperial, 724½ Market street.

—Carpet-beating and whitening, 333 Tyler, behind branch, 21st and Telegraph avenue, Oak Bros.

—J. W. Tucker & Co., fine watches and diamonds. Watches and clocks repaired. Cor. Leavy and Geary streets.

—New Pawnbroker, 664 Howard street. Money loaned for any length of time, on Clothing, Jewelry, Bedding and all household goods. Business Private.

—Dr. F. H. Terrill has removed from 215 Sutter street to 806 Sutter street (present Dr. Bye's office—formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ayer).

—Am I prepared to furnish sets of teeth at any one of several rates? "Yes, $6, $8 fitting, or regular broken plates for $1 at T. Overton's Third street.

—Wheelock Piano, at Gerrard's, 572 Sutter St.

—Mary Josephine of Notre Dame says, we recommend Wheelock Pianos as first class, good stock of new and elegant styles, and at moderate terms; new organs, $80.

—Ladies who desire to keep up with the fashion in cloaks and sacks and less in economies, moderate rates, for the purchase of English and American patterns cut to order. Ladies' Cloaking Store, 1 Montgomery street, Lick House, Entrance on Sansome street.

—The Pressed House, corner of Kearny and Montgomery streets, under the proprietorship of Mr. J. W. Tucker, continues to be one of the most comfortable hotels in the city. The best of board and rooms range from $1 50 $2 50 per day, or less by the week. The accommodations are first-class, and entirely modern with the finest cleanly, central and commodious.

—Ladies who think of the mass to the belated traveler, as the refreshing shower to the withered plant, or the opportunity to make up the time lost, as the conquering invalid, from toward health with pain, is Field's Hair Restorer, bringing with it rest and refreshment.

—If you intend to lay in a supply of superior fuel for the coming cold, it would be wise to consult Thomas Morton, 630 Geary street, who keeps on hand a large stock of Coal of all kinds, including the celebrated Wellington brand. Orders will be the best and most reliable manner possible to use. Persons who reside in any portion of the city remote from the Office, can address Mr. Morton through telephone No. 2132.

—Vinegar Fairy" retailed at 25 cents an ounce, is very, if ever, found in other goods; it contains a combination of its ability for equal weight to the grocer's heart; it is what every-body wants; whenever buy a package it pleases and tells his friends of it; he finds before it is gone he can't well get along without it; when he moves as sure as terrible to the wicked. For sale by all grocers, and manufactured at Chemic Mills, 30 and 32 Freemont street.

WE BOW IT!

People want good living, as one admirer put-ting-up fine goods, are condemned for and good meals when returns at prices as low as possible to make them, and the advantage of being purchaser we will ask you to market where with our customers, now but one, Fine Cut Chewing Tobacco, CARD STORE, 318 Pine St., F. T., Cal., and get it.

FLOUR.

This is all we ask or will be for our flour for sale. We give you one pay the produce into market, our flour, and we will be the best in the market, and for full list and see what kind we get at SMITH'S CARD STORE, 318 Pine St., F. T., Cal.

USEFUL. The greatest variety in goods for daily use, commencing with a 25 cent Ink Stand to Inlaid and SMITH'S CARD STORE, 318 Pine St., S. F.

BOTANE AND FRESCOING PAINTING, ETC.

We recommend our readers to patronize Thos. R. Pyzoll, 1195 Market street, opposite New Hall, the cheapest and best place in the city for interior decoration in frescoing and artistical work, paper hangings, the best and most durable fire, whitening and tinting, neatly done. Give him a call and be convinced.

THE HEALTH CONSERVATORY

And Medical and Surgical Sanitarium, 1020 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal. D. U. Wright, M. D., Elias D. Morse, M. D., Medical Chemist, Chronic cases or office, family and correspondence practice. All approved remedies are known to science and rational medicine employed with unprecedented success. Send for Circular.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is ever pleasant to the taste. It is perfectly safe in all cases, and is the prescription of one of the most experienced female physicians and nurses in the United States. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

I'LL PAYS 10 CTS per Hand Rubber Stamps. Fam. Stamps, Stencils, Stamp Pads, Stamp Pins, Pocket Ink Pads, Stamp Pins, Pocket Ink Pads, Stamp Pins, Pocket Ink

THE EARTHQUAKE AT CASAMICCIOLA.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

1,500 people, women and children big pitiously for bread, which is roughly rationed them. The Neapolitan press draw striking comparisons between previous earthquakes in the present one, and the prompt and paternal attitude of Ferdinand II. of Naples, "the tyrant Bomba," on the occasion of the earthquake at Melfi, 1851, who sent thither that same night 15,000 soldiers, together with physicians, medicines, provisions of every kind, and all necessary tools for excavation, requiring there the following day in person, in company with his Vice-Admiral, with civil engineers and Sisters of Charity, and leaving thither the sum of 300,000 ducats (1,370,000 lire) from his privy purse. Majesty remained on the spot two months, never absenting himself from the place, superintended everything personally, labored like the lowest of his subjects, and did he call Melfi ever the city that was saved, the survivors individual for their lives, and the city itself rebuilt, about 230,000 have been raised for relief of the sufferers from Casamicciola, and, about 230,000 have been raised for relief of the sufferers from Cabrera, Aug. 24, the citizens of King Humbert, the Queen-Mother, and the Princes of Naples, to-day, accompanying the expression of their sympathy with a subscription for 50,000, the Municipality of Vienna sent $1,000, the wife of Ferdinand IV., of Naples, the Princess Maria, $2,000. It is to be hoped others will follow the example.

Terrible Destruction Wrought by Earthquake and Tidal Wave in Java.

London, Aug. 26.—A dispatch from Batavia, Java, says that the towns of Anjer, Tyangan and Tjiletan are reported to have been destroyed. All the lighthouses in the straits of Sunda have disappeared, and the Java lighthouse is thought to have been swept away by the sea wave. The report of disaster results in some doubt, as it is known that the entire coast of the island was covered with the tidal wave. The volcanic eruptions on the island of Java are much more serious than those of Indonesia. The volcanic action on the portion

Poetry.

THE WORN WEDDING RING.

Your wedding-ring wears thin, dear wife; ah! scarcely not a few,
Since I put it on your finger first, have passed away
Of me and you!
And, love, what changes we have seen—what sore and sweet vicissitudes, since we Stood plighting our troth at the altar, with this ring between us!

Oh! thinkest thou that happy day—the happiest of my life—
When, blushing like a girl, I gave into your power "Yes" made you my loving wife
Your heart will confirm the same, I know—that day's as dear to you
That day that made me yours, dear wife, when I made you my own.

How well do I remember now, your young, fair face, and your first shy
Glance of love, and how, when I spoke, how your cheek, and ear, and brow Burned crimson, and how my
Nor how I doated on you. Ah! how proud I was of you!
But did I love you more then now, when this old ring was new?

No, no; as fathers love your then, then at this hour to you;
And, dear as life is to me this day, how much you love more by!
Aye, fondlier than might be that day as now it is the time;
For, I love you more by heart or, well, than what did my wife when first
Her husband's name in gladness—wife, then care, and, when grief is there
To share with you, and bravely face, with me, would you not share?
Oh! is not sharing your ward had every day of weal—by you,
Is not the work God made mine, when this old ring was new?

Your locks look fadin hide to bind, or, wife—may! Ah! I see Clearly now—or for that make their mock—the grey hairs appear
Good, loving hearts, your eyes, each day make you more dear to me
Not that the loving heart made mine, when this old ring was new.

And, blessed be God, all He has given are with us yet; and, blessed
Be His name for all life lent, since the day that we met Together, and, blessed be God, we have lived long together, and
The past is dear; be precious still yet more the present.
The plights we've kept, together borne, we would take, and Whatever, with the future bringer, heart with heart, we Will share as we have shared all else, since this old ring was new.

And if God chooses, we shall go together yet more and deeper Into the grave, and we shall not let your heart or mine be Lonely, for, if one goes before, he shall wait for the other
Where he goes.
Yet, love, we have lived and they have seen, since this old ring was new.

And oh! when death shall come at last to bid us part, and Say "Let husband or wife be one," and Ah! I do believe in there eyes, and resting on Oh! may my parting gaze be blessed with the
Of my wife, and, as I
Of those fond eyes—blessed as they were, when
Of the old ring was new.

Literary Miscellany.

Jean-Jeanne, or the Foundling's Fate.

One day—the date is of no consequence—as I got of one of the men lying between the Gate de l' Est and Montmartre, at the Boulevard, I was rewarding my leisure by a perusal of the inscriptions on the plaques of dismounted cannon, which, in the opinion of the Parisians, were standing detached from the rest and, in a style which was both attractive and amusing, I was pondering on the mediæval practice, with bottle-nosed, ill-favoured, ugly-looking, and, in fact, the modern Parisian nonconvertible, more like a bottle than a human. It has been shortened and an attic; its windows resined pen of Helmet, being twice as high and twice as broad as the Parisian Bonnet, and square pates shining like crystal, and, I should hardly say, ugly. Yet I back directly opposite, so that the passers by can see nothing but the other person, and is so hardly ever seen. Well, I was very tired of seeing the Bonnet, and I had been pleasured and amused by the sight of a young man who was in the owner's home. And there my pleasure ended. The young man looked well, fine cut and moustache on the first day I saw it was singing with voice and laughter of a young man who, I felt, was a fitting owner of such up to the door, in the middle of a street, and, as I said, was of very marble with the inscription, "Jean-Jeanne."

"A curious item this!" I thought; for my inquiries had elicited the information that the house was well known in the neighbourhood as a place of resort for a couple of miles off, near enough for convenience, and far enough not to be a rival.

"This M. Jean-Jeanne is very rich, sir?" I said to an old lady who crossed my path.

"Oh, Monsieur! they don't know what they have," was her answer, with some most hyperbolical form of describing a millionaire. "And as for his generosity! Oh, when on, "and as generous as if they were great folks—which they certainly are not!"

"I began to count a story, which I soon saw from the manner of the speaker, was but a very interesting one, a practical illustration of a sequence of the saucy Gamin d' Aix: "God, who made all the days of the week, might have kept them all for Himself; but, no! He gave us six! Six! and yet one; how dare we meddle with what does not belong to us! Stolen goods bring no good, so will the day you steal from God. Well, I don't know that I can remember the whole story, but I can remember the main ways of becoming rich, from stolen; to work on Sunday." God attested the words of his saint by more than one miracle. The story shows that the manifestation of the divine, instead of leading to poverty, gives things which it is to be done, the earth as well as the days of Heaven.

On the 27th of October, the eve of the little village of Saint-Amicel found a shepherd of Jeanne de Lorraine, on the outer steps of his church, as he was opening the door for his early mass, and was not a little surprised to find it contained one at this early hour. The poor little creature's life seemed to hang on a thread, for it was half perished with cold and hunger, and the first thing he thought of was to baptise it at once. "O glorious St. John," he said, "whose feast we celebrate to-day, you who have loved little ones and your divine Master did, take this child under your protection in this world and in the next."

The cure's old housekeeper was not much pleased at the addition to the household; and when her master said he considered St. Jean a gift from Heaven, she muttered "If Heaven sends us gifts it only that we shall not grow rich very fast." But the cure laughed, and bade her look out for a fine goat to act as nurse; and in time old Jeanette, in spite of her antipathy for foundlings, began to spoil Jean to the very ever indulgence that the cure had to remonstrate.

At five years old, Jean could read, at seven he could write, and began to show a decided taste for drawing. At ten the whole parish took pride in his singing in the church, and at twelve his attainments in Greek and Latin were the joy of the good old cure's heart. And the best of it was that his learning never hindered his work. He was always first up in the morning, always ready to help whoever he was wanted, and doing a better day's work with his sturdy little arms at harvest or vintage time than many an older but less industrious labourer. The little presbytery garden was his special charge, and they had never been before such gay flowers on the door.

But when Jean was nearly fifteen he suddenly lost the first survivor of his life the death of his adopted father. The good cure left him all he had to leave—his humble furniture, a few books and some linen. Money there was none; it had always been given to the poor of his flock as fast as he received it. He had grieved when he woke from a dream of Saint Amicel to find himself friendless and alone in Paris. But the hour before him is the darkest, you know and then he met with a young man, one of his neighbours, who had made his way and was doing well in Paris. This took Jean to the factory in which he was foreman, and the boy worked all the week so well and steadily that he was engaged as a regular hand. Then came Sunday, and he was asked leave to bear Mass. The request was met with a laugh. Mass! with the many, permission order to remain at home. But Jean was firm as a rock, and went straight to the foreman, saying he must have leave.

"Nonsense, my lad! you can't be serious how do you suppose to live? Hearing Mass won't find you in victuals."

"It will give me an easy conscience though, and that will help me to bear hunger."

"I know—it's all very fine. I was just the same when I first came to Paris; but! I found out that it is the best of all."

"Well, I don't mean to do as the rest do, and that's why I can to leave," answered Jean steadily.

Now the foreman had been lost in the mass of his prodigal, and he thought it well to let the matter know his reason for leaving. "If was a new experience, and the master's curiosity was aroused. "Send him in to me," he said; he must be a character. So Jean was immediately sent for, and appeared as a fount of nature, and the master, of course, was pleased with the boy's modesty, and they offered him five francs a day if he would give up the Sunday Mass. But it was a matter of principle, he was dear to the heart, and it struck him that a lot of Sundays, when he was capable of earning a lot of money, was worth keeping. So he declined the offer, and bade Jean to stop a few minutes—he wanted to talk with him and when he learned what his extension had cost, and how much he had to have, engaged him for the correspondence department. The rest of my story may be soon told. After many years of faithful and intelligent service, Jean was made into partnership with a quarter of the profits, and he married the daughter of his old master, Jean was like a son of the house, and, as he was a Christian, he was not displeased to see an attachment between the young man and the young lady, and, of course, Jean was for the wedding. Jean was too loyal to think of anything but gratitude; and if they had his own was granted by her father it was an indulgence he could not refuse. What indulgence then, but perhaps proposed a marriage between him and Jeanne!

"I am happy," he said modestly and softly, "that I have no means to offer her. Her fortune is enough."

"Yes, yes!" he said, for all that. My child has a great deal to spend, and I am sure I need a great regard for you; and I mean to retire and leave you two masters of the whole concern, she and I have settled it all, and I shall be happy to be a Jean." Now what do you say?

"Of course he could only say, "Yes" and never was word more gladly spoken. Was I not right in saying that the meditation of Sunday brings a blessing even in this world!

Catholic Missionary Progress.

Dr. Mouard, Bishop of Rapoballon, writes to Bombay from Adam, on his way to Rome says the Indo-European: "My mission is very extensive, and I feel it is wonderful for behalf the work it has produced in the country. Ten years ago, the Christians in 1853 there was no priest, no chapel, no church in this Republic; now they have one bishop and twenty-five priests, 15 chapels or chapels and 20 schools; in 1853 the population was generally speaking, pagan; now, which had its regular establishment, 1,000 Christians, schools and churches; but now out of 145,000 souls, there are more than 13,000 Catholics, who are daily increasing in number. I am trying to Europe to provide means personal and financial to establish the mission; for, whatever has been done, a good deal remains to be done; everything the work of God is our small exertions."

Silent Influence.

It is the lobbying spring that flows gently in the little rivulet which rises along, day and night, by the farm-house, that is useful rather than the swelling flood or the warring cataract. Niagara excites our wonder and awe; we are amazed at the power and greatness of God there, as he poured it from the hollow of His hand. But one Niagara is enough for the continent or the world, while the same world requires thousands and tens of thousands of silver fountains and gently flowing rivulets, that water every garden and that shall flow on every day and night with gentle quiet beauty. So with the acts of our lives. It is not by great and rare deeds that we can make ways of becoming good to those from others; to work on Sunday." God attested the words of his saint by more than one miracle. The story shows that the manifestation of the divine, instead of leading to poverty, gives things which it is to be done, the earth as well as the days of Heaven.

On the 27th of October, the eve of the little village of Saint-Amicel found a shepherd of Jeanne de Lorraine, on the outer steps of his church, as he was opening the door for his early mass, and was not a little surprised to find it contained one at this early hour. The poor little creature's life seemed to hang on a thread, for it was half perished with cold and hunger, and the first thing he thought of was to baptise it at once. "O glorious St. John," he said, "whose feast we celebrate to-day, you who have loved little ones and your divine Master did, take this child under your protection in this world and in the next."

The cure's old housekeeper was not much pleased at the addition to the household; and when her master said he considered St. Jean a gift from Heaven, she muttered "If Heaven sends us gifts it only that we shall not grow rich very fast." But the cure laughed, and bade her look out for a fine goat to act as nurse; and in time old

DARBY AND THE RAM.

A Story of the County Sligo.

Twas one of the days when the sun, in its perpendicular altitude, looks at two sides of the Bridge at once—a lovely midsummer day, when the air was sparkling and mothless and the cows, were lolling in the shade, chewing their cupes. Everything seemed happy except the shepherd Darby. Poor fellow! "A great and yellow animal" had settled on his face. His grief he revealed not, but let "concealment, like a worm i' the bud," feed on his cheek. He stalked about the fields like a ghost, secluded on his crook in silent despair.

Lord Ampleshid and Squire Beckthorne were ridingbest to dinner.

"I wonder," said Lord Ampleshid to the squire, "What can be the matter with my shepherd Darby to-day? He seems to be in a gallant condition, and were I to be him, I would not see his like again for many a long day. He is the most honest, careful creature in the world, and never told a lie in his life."

"Never told a lie in his life!" Good. Why, my lord, do you really believe that?"

"Decidedly, I do. I know your opinion is not very favorable as to the moral character of our countrymen. Yet, there are some among them that are worthy of trust."

"Well, I'm astonished nearer, Lord Ampleshid! but, if you will, we shall see your bounded Darby.

"Well, Darby, that little shower we had last night served the pastures."

"It did, my lord, and the cows will get a bigger meal and need earlier milking this evening through means of it."

"Darby, Darby, you are my favorite ram, that this gentleman may see it."

"Yes, my lord. Halloo, Scrapper, away for Bullock!"

In a few minutes the dog bounded the ram up from the meadow field.

"That's a clever trick," said the squire.

"Darby, I'm thirsty—I want a drink."

"Thanks, your honour," said Darby; "not the worst curck of that in strong drink will serve me a year, and yet I'll spend it at drink all in one night."

"How is that, Darby?"

"Why, sir, when I feel myself merry enough without it, I where's the use of taking it? That stream can shake my thirst as well! Yet I'll not speak for others—many a one, sir, is in great drink to give them false spirits. I'll spend it on Lord Ampleshid's health and make them forget their toil.

"Darby is a worthy fellow, a philosopher, and Lord Ampleshid, with a look of pride and triumph, as he and the squire rode off. "What do you say to my hard now?"

"A mighty plausible fellow, indeed! Yet, proud as I am of him, I had to a little sorry that before two days are over I'll make that tall fellow bowbend his out and out."

"Done," said Lord Ampleshid.

The bet was made, and the squire set out on his expedition.

He soon found the cause of Darby's melancholy. There had been a quarrel between him and the girl of his heart, the pretty Cathleen. Pride prevented a reconciliation, though both would have given the world to be in each other's arms. Darby was the square bent his stage; succeeded in drawing out the secret of Cathleen's heart and a half, and then artfully unveiled her's and brought them artfully together.

"Darby, Darby, you are a fool! Cathleen is a good girl, and the pride of her heart, the pride of her heart, the pride of her heart,

THE MONITOR.
PERIOD-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1883.

Father Huber on the Monitor's Masonic Critic.

According to promise last week we publish the remarks of Father Huber, the able and erudite editorial contributor to the Cleveland Catholic Universe, regarding the strictures passed upon the MONITOR by a malcontent Catholic whose quasi defense of Masonry ill became one who wrote "practical" in front of the signature. This is the most distinguished title known in the Christian world.

The developments concerning Masonry which the publication of M. Jannet's "Heroes" has drawn forth are likely to open the eyes of Catholics to the danger of testing the forbidden fruit which the Masonic tree produces, as thereby they not only forfeit the peaceful paradise which the Church of God provided for them, but they also expel upon themselves the grievous sin of sustaining a secret society which has proved itself in Europe to be a veritable "Synagogue of Satan," and which Pope Pius IX., in his Encyclicals, commands all Catholics throughout the universal world to avoid and attack. This is what the MONITOR has done, and this brought down on it the ire of its dupe, and we are gratified to know that the great name of the Catholic world is in unison with the Church in its condemnation of this subversive society.

Father Huber's article is entitled "Some Comments on a Critic," and is a valuable contribution for the instruction of all Catholics whether they set themselves up to be critics or not.

We published recently a criticism from M. Gaillard, of Paris, on Father Deshamps' work on Freemasonry, which Father Deshamps himself and several other Catholics replied the extract. Father Huber begins his article with the Mr. Gaillard's criticism, the Editor-in-Chief of the Monitor, and the Editor of the Monitor replied to the criticism of Mr. Gaillard, and we reproduce all these at the back and in the front of this issue.

We, decidedly, owe no reason to question the motives of Mr. Gaillard, and we certainly believe it still. We have a full community to add to his criticism, and we have a right to do so. It is there in a slight misunderstanding on the part of the Monitor, and Father Huber has taken advantage of it to make a clever hedge or impugning that it was a clever hedge or impugning that it was the community it. The attempt of that lawyer to make the Monitor the tool of Masonry is one of the most contemptible, contemptible, and base, and we hope that the Monitor will not be deceived by any such attempt. Masonry is the most contemptible and base of all societies and has made Catholics its victims in every age. Even Garibaldi stood idly by and saw his Church robbed of its patrimony, and he could not but feel that Masonry was the cause of the robbery. Masonry is the most distinguished enemy of the Church, and it

LOVE IN THE DEPOT.

A Touching and Romantic Story from Illinois—Twelve Years Separated.

A woman arrived here yesterday forenoon from the East with seven children in tow, and at almost the same hour a man reached the depot from the North with the offsprings of various age and sizes. She was a widow and he a widower, and the children had not been spanked more than once around before there was a sort of natural sympathy that begot admiration, and then friendship. One of the widow's boys offered one of the widower's girls a bite of his bitebooks, which was accepted in the spirit tendered, and the ten-year-old girl belonging to the man made up to the two-year-old belonging to the woman and soon secured the privilege of wiping its nose and combing its hair. Presently the widower made bold to inquire:

"Madam, am I wrong in believing that you are a widow?"

"I have been a widow fourteen months to-day," she answered.

"Great Scott! but it's just fourteen months to-day since my Hannor died! Which way be you going?"

"To Illinoy."

"That's just where I'm going, too. Did you promise your husband never to marry again?"

"No."

"And I didn't promise my wife, either. Put it, I believe I shall unite as soon as I find some good woman."

"And my children need a father's care," she sighed, as she patted little John Henry of the number six pull himself from his nose.

The man got up and walked around the waiting-room and took a closer look at the children. Then he returned and said:

"I suppose you've got a few hundred dollars belonging to some church, can wash and bake and mend, and are of a forgiving disposition?"

"Yes, that's me."

"Well, I'm kinder religious, even-tempered, and am worth about $2,000. I'm sot a stickler on you. There's something about your eyes that reminds me of Hannor."

"And you look like Alonzo around the mouth," she sighed.

Then he took her and whispered something about Chicago and getting married, and she nodded her head and blushed prettiest the children under his wing, took them into a corner, and solemnly and impressively observed:

"Children I'm going to get married to your mother. I'm going to be your new mother. If any one of you is going to kick and act too shoe short it, begin now, so that I can know how to bother the balance of you who are the oldest. Are you going to do, does you I'll now swap or commah middle? Let me inner right now, for this is a good place to pasture yo around with a shingle." The youngest boy said he would be right, and the rest of the crowd agreed, and the column broke the widow and widower and bolting heads and trying to set peace in the Twelve children were biting and pulling hair and kicking the man who should have a seat on the steam heater.

"This is blasted sudden the work of Heaven!" shouted the widower as he hitched a little nearer.

"You bet, love!" she replied, as she shoved another peanut with her tooth.

Apologizing to the Devil.

In a certain village in the North of England two chimney sweeps are said to have ventured about, after sunset, not knowing in what direction to turn for lodgings during the approaching night.

Just in the neighborhood of which they came upon a Primitive Methodist chapel, and, finding a window open, the fire kindled and the place dark, they concluded it of providence. So in they went; and soon satisfied that they had found comfortable lodgings, for their destinary, would be the pulpit.

The shades of night fell fast, and as the mention of the sweep requires that he should be an object of pity, the good people congregated themselves in their sway sweet, and they proceeded for the night. The sweeps, tired out, fell fast and soundly asleep.

Primitive Methodism, as usual, was found to be common disturbers of all sorts of places.

At 9 o'clock the chapel door opened. The lights began to dispel the darkness; and one brother after another took his place about the foot of the pulpit.

In one an evening for the prayer meeting, and no lights being required in the pulpit, the sweeps kept asleep, and quietly avoid all the scene of a remark.

The brethren being fully assembled a hymn was sung, and that ended, a brother stepped in prayer.

After a time the religious fervour reached a climax, when the Primitive Methodist exclaimed:

"My Lord, lay hold of the Devil, and turn him out; expel him from our hearts; drive him out of the pew, and vanish him from the pulpit."

"Hark, Sam," said one of the sweeps to his chum, "what means we. If that fellow says so much again, we will be down upon us."

"Lord, send the Devil out of the pulpit," exhorted another brother.

Up jumped the sweeps, opened the pulpit door, and proceeded down the steps.

The Primitive brethren stood upon their feet in consternation; paused and took to their hacks, crying out—"It is the Devil, and probably sent for our sins."

But there was one poor fellow among them, on this occasion, who could not make his will feel enough to get out of the way.

He had an obstinate wooden leg, which refused to obey his will, and so he fell into the clutches of these grim monsters, who threatened to carry him off in one of their sack-bags.

Believing that some dreadful fatality was about to befall him, and the poor trembling sinner, who could neither fight nor fly, began earnestly to implore mercy, sowing the devils for his life, and promising that he should not deal heavily with him, seeing he had only just landed on the meeting, and was not a regular attender.

Of course, this apology was accepted again; and in the midst of the confusion the sweeps made a safe retreat.

Where Are the "Moral Ideas?"

Dr. Newman is reported to have said, at a temperance meeting on Sunday, that in the Republican party there is the majority of moral ideas, he, as a member of the party, would like to know where the said moral ideas are? The doctor should not ask such unpleasant questions. If he belongs to the party he should know that most of the moral ideas were thrown away last year, in order to beat the democrats in the state elections, and the few which remained were trampled by plank by the Republican Congress that went home a few weeks ago. If any one now lives to get at the moral ideas of the party he will leave himself liable to arrest as a conspiracist.

THE DARKER THE ROOM,

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of these Luminous Goods, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet tint which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonderful discovery, conveys but a vague impression of the marvels which have been brought to light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which excells the flight of imagination and pleices it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Cerquil's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the Morrison and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been so great that the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles rendere them attractive objects wherein to incite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the MONITOR, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES!
NIGHT CROSSES!
NIGHT STATUES!
—VISIBLE—
—IN THE—
DARKEST ROOM!
When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.
THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,
—HAD A—
LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!
—AND SAID—
"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journ al

Through the courtesy of Messrs. J. R. Maxwell & Co., proprietors of M. Cerqui's Chemical Compound, we saw a few days ago a cross, a crucifix, with a figure of a priest attached, and a statue of the Blessed Virgin, all of the same material, and of various sizes, shines and over one of light was sufficient, and in the darkness which followed the figures, those stood out in clear, bright, ever-inspiring distinctness. And the figure of the Saviour suspended to spring as it were, from, on either side, the figures of Mary and Joseph, while hovering over it, the figure of an angel bearing a crown that seemed to rain light. It gave a feeling of faith and consolation peculiar to Catholic. It shone overshadowed the writer, the same was in novel and irresistible. Upon the cross presented with a cross; it is kept on a bracket in our chamber, and in the darkness of night it seems to my, deep sole, the cross without and pleasie you.

No 1, A Cross 12 inches high, with Pedestal		$1.00.
" 2, A Crucifix, with a figure of a Saviour	8 inches	1.50.
" 3, " " "	9 "	2.00.
" 4, " " "	11 "	3.00.
" 5, A Statue of Blessed Virgin,	11 "	3.00.
" 7, " St. Joseph,	11 "	3.00.

Other Statues and Religious Articles will be Announced Shortly.

A DISCOUNT TO THOSE ORDERING IN QUANTITIES.

Address Orders to

A. WALDTEUFEL,
General Agent for the Pacific Coast,
SAN JOSE, CAL.

RELIABLE CANVASSERS WANTED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE FAMOUS
DUPLEX GALVANIC BELT

LADIES' DUPLEX BELT

BEST IN THE WORLD.

THE HIGHEST PREMIUM AT THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE FAIRS, 1872 and 1873, was given to the Pacific Electric Co., for Prof. Scott's

RUPTURE
Positively Cured.
PACIFIC ELECTRIC PAD TRUSS.

A NEW INVENTION. THE BEST RETAINER IN EXISTENCE. Perfect Unfailing. Only in use for the related doctor in Pacific Electric Co., Sole Proprietors, 232 Sutter street, San Francisco.

PHILADELPHIA
BREWERY.
JOSEPH WIERLAND - - - PROPRIETOR
SECOND STREET, NEAR FOLSOM,
San Francisco.
Amount of Beer sold in 1862, 64,150 barrels.
ow52

Pacific Coast Agency
GENUINE
J. H. CUTTER WHISKIES,
A. P. STOTELING & CO.,
San Francisco, Cal.

WITH FIVE DOLLARS
YOU CAN BUY A BOND
IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN VIENNA CITY
GOVERNMENT BOND,
which bonds are issued and secured by the Government and are redeemable in drawings
FOUR TIMES ANNUALLY,
that such and every bond is drawn, which happens at a similar premium. Every bond must draw a premium. Now is or there are no blanks.
THE THREE HIGHEST PRIZES AMOUNT TO
$200,000 IN GOLD
$100,000 IN GOLD
$50,000 IN GOLD
and bonds not drawing one of the above prizes must draw a Premium of not less than TWENTY 120 Florins.
The next drawing takes place on the 1ST OF OCTOBER, 1873.
and every bond bought of us on or before the 1st of October is entitled to that whole premium that may be drawn thereon on that date.
One-and-seven-eighth cent in Government Lottery, including 25, will secure one of these bonds for the next drawing.
For orders, circulars, or any other information, address
INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO.,
187 B'way, cor. Fulton St., New York City.
Established in 1864.
P. S.—In writing to us, please state you saw this in The Pacific Monitor.
☞ The above Government Bonds are not in no way connected with any Lottery whatsoever, and do not another only any of the laws of the United States.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EIGHTEENTH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION
AND
MECHANICS' FAIR
Of San Francisco, to be held
WILL OPEN AT THE NEW PAVILION ON LARKIN, Hayes, Fell and Grove streets, on Thursday, September 11th, and continue until October 18th.
The Pavilion, which is the finest building ever built in this State of MANUFACTURES, ART AND NATURAL PRODUCTS.
A GRAND CONCERT and other extra attractions each afternoon and evening.
PREMIUMS.
A Floral Set of Premiums, consisting of Gold, Silver and Bronze Medals, Diplomas and Cash, will be awarded in meritorious exhibits.
Employees of the Mechanics Institute, in good standing, are entitled to double and single season tickets at half price.
Intending Exhibitors should lose no time in applying for Space.
Full information will be given or sent on application to the Secretary, 25 Post street.
F. R. CORFIELD, President.
J. H. COLTON, Secretary.

JAS. R. KELLY & CO
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF PAINTS,
OILS and GLASS,
221 and 223 Market Street
Just Below Banks—the New Block.

D'BRIEN & WARD'S
Male and Female
EMPLOYMENT OFFICE.
MALE DEPARTMENT, 629 Clay Street.
FEMALE DEPARTMENT, 26 Clay Street.
ALWAYS TO BE HAD—FIRST-CLASS HOTEL & Help, Farm Hands, Teamsters, Dairymen, Sawyers, Blacksmiths, Carpenters, Shingle Weavers, Machine Hands, Boys, Married Couples for private families and ranches. Also, good reliable Female Help, such as Cooks, Nurses, Housemaids, Waiters, Dining rooms for ladies at 629 Clay street.

MURPHY, GRANT & CO.,
IMPORTERS OF DRY GOODS,
And Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast
—OF THE—
Youve Xavier Jourin Kid Gloves
Bank and Sansome Sts., San Francisco.
ow12

HIBERNIA CIGAR FACTORY.
Wholesale and Retail.
D. BARRY, - - - Proprietor.
Cor. Ninth and Folsom Sts.
Only Write Labor. Solicitation Connected

RAZORSI
FOR $1,000
I WILL MAKE A BETTER RAZOR AND SONS OF them in the same time that any man in THE WORLD
May can make guaranteed.....$5 0
My Guard Razors warranted not to cut the finest while shaving.....9 0
Good English Razors.....1 00
Best English Razors.....1 50
☞ Sent C. O. D. or by mail.
M. PRICE,
415 Kearny Street.
Grinding and Repairing.

INSURANCE.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY
OF CALIFORNIA.
FIRE AND MARINE.
Capital fully paid.....$200,000 00
Assets, January 1, 1873.....
Losses paid since organ ized.....
PRINCIPAL OFFICE,
405 California Street, S. F.
CHAS. A. LATON Secretary. JOHN H. WISE, President.
FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE
UNION
INSURANCE COMPANY
OF SAN FRANCISCO.
THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,
ESTABLISHED IN 1861.
Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.
PAID CAPITAL.....$750,000 GOLD.
PAID SURPLUS.....
FRONTY SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES.
GOLD SENTENTS.
DIRECTORS:
SAN FRANCISCO.
B. Revere, Nicholas Luning,
E. S. Fretz, John Parrott,
Moses Hallett, James Moffit,
Jas. Lick, J. Boss,
M. J. O'Connor, M. D. Sweeney,
I. Hostkater, Joseph Brandenstein,
Daniel Meyer, Gustave Touchard,
Adam Grant, J. G. Kittle,
Andrew Boyd, Geo. C. Hickox,
Charles Laidlaw, J. M. Haslett,
Joseph Sather, Charles Bonn,
Bartlett Doe, W. M. Hoge,
Jas. Otis, William Sharon,
A. Wolf, John Conly,
N. D. Sisson, J. O. Eldridge,
A. P. Page,
GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, President.
J. G. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BAILEY, Secretary.
GEO. V. BOHEN, Surveyor.

EDUCATIONAL.

Convent of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary,
GILROY, - - - CALIFORNIA.
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of the Most Holy Name of Jesus and Mary. For terms, etc., apply to MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

MT. ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,
RENO, NEVADA.
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF ST. DOMINIC. Will re-open on September 1st. For rational Terms apply to the MOTHER SUPERIOR.

URSULINE ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
The Third Annual Session began
AUGUST 7TH, 1873.
For Prospectus and full particulars, Address
SUPERIORESS OF THE URSULINES,
Santa Rosa, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.
SANTA CLARA - - CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a reasonable expense, a thorough education in all the branches of a polished education. It is particularly that should recommend this Academy, is the thoroughness of the school to form the character to views and habits of economy and to render them useful members of society in after life.
The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.
Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, payable in advance.
Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.
Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding, $50
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 6th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE
SANTA CLARA, - - CALIFORNIA
THE THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL SESSION will commence Tuesday, August 7th. This institution was founded in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated with the privileges of a University. It occupies an imposing edifice, extensive shady pleasant grounds, covered gymnasium, skating rink, etc. It possesses a well-complete Philosophical Apparatus, and valuable collections of Natural and Geology. It has also, practical schools of Assaying, Surveying, Draughting, Mechanical Drawing, Telegraphy, etc. For the latter a new building 125x40 has been erected, and fitted up with the best appliances.
Diplomas are given in two departments—the Classical and Scientific—and Certificates in the Commercial course.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-annually in advance.)
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 13 00
Board, Tuition, and use of all bedding, Washing and Mending of Linen, Medical Attendance and medicines, and Medicines, Baths, etc., per session of ten months.....$50 00
For further particulars apply to the President of Santa Clara College, or to St. Ignatius College, 214 Hayes street, San Francisco.
REV. R. E. KENNA, S. J.
President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Fifth and Jackson Sts., OAKLAND, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School for boys up to the age of fifteen years. Its object is to combine the comforts and enjoyments of home with the advantages of a College education.
Parents and guardians, desirous of sending their sons or wards to Boarding School, need only visit this Academy, be satisfied that the Institution presently filling a place hitherto vacant in the educational system of California.
Scholarships received at any time during the year, but not for a shorter period than one term of five months.
TERMS:
(Payment in U. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance.)
Board, Washing and Tuition, per term of 5 months, $150
Medicines and Medical Attendance.....20
Entrance Fee (payable but once).....10
BRO. LUCIAN, Director.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
THOSE WHO COMPLETE THE CLASSICAL Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, S. B.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.
The Commercial course has been established for those who intend to go into business, who desire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our main language receives special attention. The daily exercises of the students in Rhetoric, Composition and Elocution are publicly discussed and corrected in the classrooms.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR,
(Payable in advance.)
Board, Tuition and Washing.....$250 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Washing of Collegians.....50 00
Day Students.....60 00
Music and Drawing form extra charges.
For further particulars address
BRO. BETTELIN, President.

ST. GERTRUDE'S ACADEMY,
RIO VISTA, SOLANO CO., CAL.
THIS ACADEMY FOR YOUNG LADIES, UNDER the direction of the Sisters of Mercy, is beautifully situated on an eminence in the pleasant and healthy town of Rio Vista. The members immediately behind the building now, and well furnished with all that contributes to the health and comfort of the pupils. The pleasure grounds are extensive and well adapted to the purpose of a College. The course of studies is that of a thorough education, and includes all the useful branches of a solid education.
Pupils received at any time during the year, and will be charged from day of entrance.
The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each; the first to commence January and ends in June.
Terms per Session, Payable in Advance.
BOARDING PUPILS.
Board and Tuition, with use of bedding.....$112 50
Washing.....22 50
Use of Piano, including lessons.....20 00
Use of Harp, including lessons.....20 00
Doctor's fees and medicines, if any, and all expenses of a private nature, will be charged.
Pupils received at any time during the year, and will be charged from day of entrance.
The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each; the first to commence January and ends in June.
DAY ACADEMY.
Terms per month, in advance.
Senior Class.....$2 00
Intermediate Class.....1 50
Primary Class.....1 00
Music, Piano lessons, with use of instrument.....10 00
Harp: Guitar lessons, with use of instrument.....10 00
☞ No extra charge for repairs. For further information apply to
M. M. CAMILLUS, Superiorss

Convent of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart,
OAKLAND, - - - CALIFORNIA.
CONDUCTED BY
The Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.
THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUATED in the City of Oakland, and is now in a flourishing condition. The Academy is well furnished, and has been supplied with all the modern improvements conducive to the comfort of the pupils, and the comfort of the inmates.
The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and ornamental education.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board and tuition (including French and Spanish included).$250 00
Washing.....
Bed and bedding (without sheets) if supplied by the institution.....
Music, Drawing, Painting, Total Wants, Drawing and Painting, extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

COLLEGE
OF NOTRE DAME
MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1851, by the State Legislature, and endowed with all the rights and privileges of similar Collegiate Institutions in the United States.
Reference required. For terms and particulars address,
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
Marysville, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL.

SACRAMENTO INSTITUTE,
Twelfth and K streets,
SACRAMENTO.....CAL.
A LIMITED NUMBER OF BOARDERS RECEIVED. A Every facility for acquiring a sound Christian education and the accomplishments, adapting the course to a thorough finish, is here afforded.
Terms, $250 per annum, half in advance, $75 per quarter. For particulars apply to BRO. GENEBRIN, Director.
☞ Studies resumed on Wednesday, August 1st, 1873.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE
Sisters of St. Dominic,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION, HEALTHFULLY LOCATED on Tyler Street, near Steiner, affords every facility for the acquisition of a refined and solid education.
The Academic year consists of two terms of five months each.
TERMS:
Board, Washing and English Tuition, per quarter $60 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
EXTRAS.
Languages, (each).....$10
Vocal Lessons.....12 50
Use of Piano for one hour daily.....3 00
Grade Vocal Lessons.....3 00
Drawing and Painting in Water Colors.....3 00
Oil Painting, per lesson.....1 50
Dancing, Fee.....10 00
Fee Extra Charge for Handkerchief.
DAY PUPILS:
Preparatory Class, per term.....$12 0
Intermediate.....15 0
Higher.....20 00
Use of Piano for Practice.....3 00
Pupils young lady is required to be provided with two sheets, three pillow cases, two towels, one napkin, one comb, one brush, one pair of shoes, one mattress, two pillows, four blankets, one bed-spread, one table, one pitcher, knife, fork and napkin ring.
Pupils will be dressed uniformly.
Pupils of all religious persuasions will be received but for sake of uniformity all are required to be present at the exercises of the Catholic Church.
All correspondence of the young ladies will be subject to the inspection of the Superiorss.
For further particulars address
SISTER SUPERIOR

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
OR SAN FRANCISCO,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME
THIS INSTITUTION, FOUNDED IN 1868, chartered in 1870 by Act of the Legislature of the State of California, and furnished with ample Collegiate Honors, is situated on Lombard street, opposite the Old Mission Church.
The course of instruction embraces all the branches usually taught in the Academies of a solid and refined education.
TERMS:
Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per session.....$250 00
EXTRA CHARGES.
Use of Instrument per annum.....$60 00
Vocal Music, Class Lessons.....
Vocal Music, Private Lessons.....35 00
Drawing and Painting.....20 00
Painting in Water Colors, per annum.....35 00
Painting in Oil, per lesson.....1 50
Occasional speech at the College.....10 00
Graduation Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee (in case of sickness).....10 00
Bills are made out every month and are payable at the beginning of each half session, in advance.
No extra charge for repairs.
Terms per month (paid in advance.)
Tuition in the 1st and 2nd College Classes $6 00
Tuition in the 3rd and 4th College Classes.....5 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes.....4 00
Tuition in the 3d and 4th Preparatory Classes.....3 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Intermediate Classes.....2 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes.....1 50
Music (Vocal and Instrumental) Drawing, Painting and Private Elocution lessons form extra charges, as in Boarding Schools, but lessons in French and Spanish are given gratis throughout; as also in Plain and Fancy Needle-Work.
N. B.—A private conveyance is furnished, at moderate rates, for the convenience of those residing in distant parts of the city.
☞ Orders should be addressed to the College of Notre Dame, Dolores street, San Francisco, on Wednesday the 14th inst.
1w5

School of the Holy Cross.
A Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies,
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF CHARITY of Santa Cruz, Santa Cruz Co., Cal
Terms, apply as above.

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE.
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
CHARTERED IN 1869, AND CONDUCTED by the priests of the Congregation of the Mission. Terms for scholastic year, $300. For further particulars apply to
THE PRESIDENT.

Convent of the Immaculate Heart of Mary,
SAN LUIS OBISPO - - - CALIFORNIA
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG Ladies, conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy Name of Jesus and Mary.
This house is the Novitiate of the order.
For particulars address Sister Superior.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
SAN JOSE.....CALIFORNIA
THIS INSTITUTION, OFFERING PE culiar facilities to young ladies wishing to receive a solid and refined education, was founded in 1851. In 1855, it was incorporated by the State Legislature, and subsequently, the same body so extended the original Charter as to render all the rights and privileges of College institutions.
It occupies large buildings, with extensive playgrounds; and possesses every thing to make science familiar and attractive. The course of instruction is thorough, in all the Departments. Every facility will be afforded to students who may find it desirable to devote their whole attention to some or the study of the language.
The scholastic year begins on the first Monday in August and closes about the first week in June. Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, (payable in advance.)
Boarding, Tuition in English, French, and Instrumental Music, German, and Lessons in Drawing and Painting.....$75
Bed and bedding.....5 00
Painting in Water Colors.....5 00
Use of Piano.....5 00
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
For further particulars, address
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
San Jose

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Charity. The scholastic year commences on the 1st of August, and ends about the 1st of June.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly.)
Board and Tuition.....$225
Entrance Fee.....10
Washing.....45
Pupils remaining at the Academy during vacation will be charged $20.
Drawing, Painting and Music form extra charges.
☞ The Expressage on packages sent to pupils must be prepaid.
Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the
SISTER SUPERIOR.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CARROLL & TILTON
Respectfully announce that they have opened
THE LARGE STORE,
873 Market Street
—WITH A LINE OF—
GENT'S AND BOYS'
CLOTHING,
Furnishing Goods
HATS, CAPS, ETC.
Having been in this business many years, we can promise our customers that we will do as we represent.
We buy for Cash and sell as low as possible.
CARROLL & TILTON,
873 Market Street, Opp. Powell,
And late with JOHN J. CO.

MISS M. E. BELANGER,
Dress Making Parlors
—AND—
PATTERN ROOMS,
CENTRAL BLOCK—Entrance: 14 Dupont street, near Bush, San Francisco.

ESTABLISHED 1858.
J. O'KANE
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN
HARNESS, SADDLES, WHIPS, BLANKETS
And Everything necessary for Horse or Carriage Use.
Boots and Bullish Saddlery a Specialty.
Single Harness from $10 a set.
☞ Repairing promptly attended to.
767 MARKET
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Special attention given to the manufacture of "U" all kinds for horses. Our rule to all the principal racetracks and horsemen on the Pacific Coast.
VARNISH WORKS
ESTABLISHED 1874.
PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY
And buy your Varnishes from the CALIFORNIA VARNISH WORKS.
P. B. WINTER, Proprietor,
MANUFACTURER OF ALL KINDS OF Japan and Furniture Varnishes, also Japan Gilding Size, Varnish Stains, etc.
OFFICE—3 FIRST STREET, near Market, SAN FRANCISCO.
☞ Orders attended and promptly attended to. Put price list and circular free.

VARNISH WORKS
JUST ARRIVED
RANGE
For stone Coal or Wood
THE BRISTOL, NEW CLIPPER AND QUEEN
The only first class Range in the Market.
Also—
The Celebrated Rathbone Range AND COAL OIL STOVES.
MANUFACTURER OF HYDRAULIC AND Oil Jack screws, Metal Screws, Lathes and Jewelry Jewelry. Particular attention paid to Engraving Brass and Steel Stamps.
J. M. BRYANT,
130 Third Street.
Bet. Mission and Howard.

M. KELLY & CO
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Files, New and Second-Hand Tools and Machinery of all Description.
SIGN OF THE CHISEL, Princess.
Fine Front Saws bought, sold and exchanged, old Saws Gummed and Set.
M. KELLY & CO. Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast.
204 Mission St., - San Francisco.

MORITZ NICOLAI
(Successor to R. EGBCH.)
RESTAURANT
417 Fine Street.
FIRST-CLASS BAKERY AND CONFECTIONERY constantly. Special attention given to private parties, weddings, etc., at reasonable prices.

DON'T ASK WHERE
The Boasted California Fruits or Big Vegetables,
APPLES, PEARS, PEACHES, APRICOTS, BERRIES, ETC.
ARE TO BE FOUND
CALIFORNIA MARKET, NOS. 20 & 22 Clay street, and you will be sure where to array of the great variety of fruits and vegetables, and the finest assortment of Fresh Fruits, the greatest FRUIT PRODUCE STATE IN THE WORLD.
BERRY & WHITE, Proprietors.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

BOOTS AND SHOES.
JOHN SULLIVAN,
NORTHEAST COR. OF SANSOME AND JACKSON streets, where he makes to order the best French Calf Leather BOOTS, at from.....$6 00
California Leather Boots.....5
French Calf Oxford Ties.....4
Calfskins.....3
Boys' and Children's Boots and Shoes made to order. Persons in the country ordering Boots and Shoes to measurement of Twelve Dollars or more, will be allowed reduction of four per cent., so as to make the cost cheaper than 1 and Boots and Shoes of MY OWN MANUFACTURE ONLY. Boots and Shoes sent C. O. D. Positively the price.

A Musical Dude.

Yesterday, says the New Orleans Times, a young dude walked into the Louisville & Nashville ticket office—not a New Orleans dude, but an imported sort, which is quite some here. On it's dainty cropped head was perched a mammoth white felt hat, with a brim of which was carried like a scoop, and formed a roof for the protection of a large pair of pigeon-toed shoes. The tail of its delicate coat flirted and its suspender buttons. Its tight-fitting pants were so small in the legs that they looked like small umbrella covers. Below the bottoms of the pants, which clasped the shoe like a Longtry glove, were a pair of which the Smithsonian Institute has been trying to find for a long time. They stood straight out from the rest of the dude as if they belonged to another fellow. While the ticket clerks were wondering how the dude managed to slip its pants into its pants legs without using a chisel, it leaned both elbows on the counter, and, with a gentle smile, said:

"Can't you spell me a sleeping car ticket to Atlanta, Georgia?"

"Yes," responded the ticket clerk.

"Aw! well, do so, me dear fellow, please. I had I forgot to ask the price, you know."

It was told the price of the ticket, and then out the money, he began singing—

"We never speak as we pass by,
Although I look deep"—

"Aw, but I say, are you quite sure this car will go right through to Atlanta? I don't want to get right there without it."

"Well, you know that's what I look out for when I take a sleepaw. I hate a boat-change, you know."

"We never speak—
"Ah, my dear fellow, tell me is there no end of a lay otaw?"

"No, sir."

"You're quite sush you stand pat on it, I know."

"How many times do you want me tell you?"

"Aw, you have a full hand, old fellaw, I'm pat."

The ticket clerk could stand no more, and at the act of reaching for a pair of sight in the dude, with a dainty wave of its hand

"Aweaw. I must get my things down the cane, and as he passed out of the door he came near sang:

"We never speak as we pass by."

As he glided down the street, the people looked and looked and wondered if they had by it.

MONITOR MENTION.

Dr. Kevin Incl O'Doherty, one of the sons of '48 is likely shortly to return from exile to his native country and to seek a seat in the House of Commons for an Irish constituency. His immediate return to Ireland, is not likely as the above announcement coupled with the sad Report that he is become "Era," of the Dublin Nation, ceased to be present.

Best Pictures taken at the Imperial, 724 Market street.

J. W. Tucker & Co., fine watches and clocks. Watches and clocks repaired. Corner Market and Geary streets.

H. Lynch, carpenter and builder, 453 Third street Sylver. Stairs and office fitting and repairing promptly attended to.

Fine Parasols, 564 Howard street. Monogram Parasols with the best Engraved Handles. Jewelry, Bedding and all Household Dealers in Parasols.

Dr. T. M. Torrill has removed from 775 street to 660 Sansome street (corner Sutter) where he will continue to devote his time to the Dental Art.

Ladies! prepared to furnish sets of teeth on any advertised rate? Inquire of Dr. Torrill, 660 Sansome street.

Wonderful Photos at Gipsy's, 522 Pacific St. Mary Magdalene of Notre Dame says:

Wonderful Photos at Gipsy's, 522 Pacific St. Mary Magdalene of Notre Dame says:

Ladies who desire to keep up with the times in clothing and cloth and fashionable patterns can be cut to order. A fine line of cloth and linen underwear, also a full line of wear.

The Prescott House, corner of Kearny street and Montgomery avenue, under the proprietorship of M. J. W. Hooker, continues to be one of most comfortable hotels in the city. The rooms are well furnished, and the rates are as low as the work. The accommodation, attention, and security reach all that is cheap, central and commodious.

In the light of the times in the heated term, as the refreshing shower to the withered flower, so the sparkling water is to thirsty, so is the dropping invalid, favor's tonic, so is the Soda Water of Jack Frost's Fountain bringing with it rest and refreshment.

Who hesitated to buy a cupola or cupolas for the coming Winter? It would be wise to purchase them, this fancy street, and if you have need a large stock of Coal of all kinds, go to Wellington's, Wellington's, Wellington's and be the best and most economical.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are fully remote from 630 Geary street, one door from Mason through telephone No. 2132.

The "Victor Java" embodies a combination of over, found in other goods. If you want a good cup of coffee, ask your grocer for the grocer's head; it is a sure proof. Every time friendship's sympathy has been tried, the friendship's sympathy has been tried, before it is can't well get a story, without it is not so sure as trouble to the widow's. The process of manufacture of "Victor Java" Coffee, 20 and 22 Pressent street.

WE KNOW IT!

If we let a will be we months to come. But we can get the product cure in market; we know it, we know it, we know it, we know it, we know it, we know it, we know it, we know it. Ask your grocer for Wellington's COAL, or at WELLINGTON'S COAL STORE, 819 Post St., S. F.

HOUSE AND FRESCOING PAINTING, ETC.

Recommended our readers to Sylvester Thomas, Mitchell, 1185 Market street, opposite New Hall, the cheapest and best place in the city for decoration in frescoing and artistic painting, fine window shades, house painting whitening and tinting, neatly done. Give him a call and be convinced.

THE HEALTH CONSERVATORY

Medical and Surgical Sanitarium, 1020 Market street, San Francisco, Cal. Dr. M. D., Elias D. Moore, M. D., physician and surgeon, office, family and private practice. All approved remedial agents employed with the best Surgeons that the world can furnish. Electricity, Electro-Magnetism, Electro-Galvanism, Elect

THE KILLING OF CAREY.

Full Particulars from Eye-Witnesses.

The Cape papers received this week give full particulars of the killing of Carey, the informer, on board the steamship in which he was on route to South Africa:

Robert Reynolds, the boy who shot several of the Kimberly Outlaws, says—I was sending the Cape dispatches last Saturday morning in the boiler-room. Mr. O'Donnell was standing next to me. I said to Mr. Bennett who had finished the letter, "Did you see Carey in this place? Carey, the informer? Do you know?" Yes, what is that?" I read the paragraph to him, and he said, "Good God, I know he was on board the ship; I saw him talking with Mr. O'Donnell." I said he had served many of them, and they had good reason to put him out of the way." I now have confined the case, and I shall subject himself immediately. Mr. O'Donnell was an industrious man. He told a passenger who lived in the same place as Carey, that he was suffered from sea-sickness, and if he drank he did not know what he was doing. Accordingly about 2 o'clock I met the man he drank and had a bottle of stout. I then asked him who is the brother of Carey, and he said he wished he meet him on a friend. This was about 4 o'clock. I then went to the Kimberley Outlaws' Club, and I told them that he is Carey. Immediately after I met Mr. O'Donnell, a second class passenger, and he said he was a passenger, and he said he was a passenger, and I said, "Do you know Carey?" I said, "Yes." I said, "Do you know Carey?" I said, "Yes." I said, "Do you know Carey?" I said, "Yes."

Poetry.

(From our contributor.)

DELAYED MINISTRY.

BY F. M. CAVIN.

Gathe scather of the darkness deep
Thou art wandering beyond the stars away,
What vainly would your voice say
Of dim and dark,
Of blue who, and present away

I see thy stones scattered in Within possess dark and sombre ye
Lone shade, lighted, lonely to the ear
Of grying wonder,
Is it time? Thy doubt and trust die
Who dispeth nodes?

Wrapped in the gloom of the days of yore
Thou art, and thy soul, and thy Hast nearly gone, and thy soul
The dark, and thy soul and thy
Thy soul, and thy soul and thy soul and thy soul!

Ah! would thy deep dangers shield all
Thou be only sought this little soul,
Thy soul, and thy soul and thy soul!
Might soul thy soul be gained in soul,
Thy soul, and thy soul and thy soul!

Wake! Poem trusting soul that lot
Who whose to thy soul and thy soul
Who hidden, and thy soul and thy soul,
Yet dark the soul and thy soul!
Thy soul, and thy soul and thy soul!

A tender sounding note at morn
Of home and soul and soul and soul
Of home and soul and soul and soul
Ere ere be home what with home
Home home what with home
Home home what with home!

Home hard who sought a dwellinge name,
And sound the dwellinge name
Home home what with home
Ah Heaven's pity!
Alas! what home what with home
Home proved in mortal!

Home proved mighty home home
When home of by and soul of hale,
Home home what with home home,
Home home what with home home,
Yet, wayward home home home!

Who set thee standing were say know;
Who set thee standing were say know
That death in death is still a foe
Thy home our home, with hatred over,
Home home home home home!

Literary Miscellany.

John Driscoll's Wife.

A STORY OF TO-DAY.

BY HENRY BUTTS.

"Dear me, dear me, I thought would come." These words are spoken in a petulant tone, as the speaker, a lady of fifty or the time-piece, which has just struck the hour of twelve, gazes at the table with a disappointed expression. The speaker is a stout, ruddy-faced, matronly-looking woman, with a pleasant face, but at present the lines of vexation and impatience are very visible on her face. The table she gazes at is spread for two persons, and the footsteps passing by.

She is an attractive looking woman in a poverty about four-and-twenty years, with the same pleasant face and ruddy complexion as the woman. Her hair, which is carefully regulated, her eyes, of a deep blue, are heavy with tears, her lips are of a deep crimson, golden, is cut short like a boy's and parted down the side, falling in natural curls on her snow-white brow. In manner she is a little below the average height of her set; with just the medium form to make her a perfect

The apartment in which she is sitting is comfortably and elegantly furnished; and the owner's appearance of the room display a certain degree of good taste that would redound to the credit of a more important personage than John Driscoll's wife.

John Driscoll is one of the numerous class of Irishmen who have emigrated to every quarter, and, especially in Minnesota, where, who, though in being known as self-made men, are, in reality, nothing more, nor less than what with have

Mrs. Driscoll raises her husband's arm. "Oh, John, don't go among here. Poor poor creature! and then go to bed."

"Hush your little heart! You always have got something for me; but I would not nothing now; go to bed, child, good-night; don't mind me."

"Oh, John, I spread a large breakfast-table over his eyes, and soon he is fast asleep.

Mrs. Driscoll seems transfixed for a moment, as she gazes on her husband with a look of mingled love and sadness. Presently recollecting herself, she stoops over him, and loosens his collar and cravat; his shoes she replaces by more comfortable slippers; then, stepping on the hearthrug at his feet, gazes into the fire. Her thoughts are not of the pleasant character of one who has just been the bearer of good tidings to her husband, and, as she sits there, the tears fall from her eyes, and drop one by one on her dress. Her face now assumes a look of calm determination, as she arises, as memory suddenly comes

"Yes, that I shall do; he has often vowed at his jovial per bottom that he—I'll put him to the test."

Mrs. Driscoll opens her eyes; she sees her husband in approach.

"I am going now, love," she says looking fondly on the sleeper; "I want to kiss your hands;" she places her dainty foot based in that of the father. "Be a good, good girl, Minnie; I know I am leaving you in safe keeping."

Then stooping to her husband, she says: "Good-bye, John, you have been a good husband to me."

Yes, John, and you've been a good wife. Were it not for your advice ten years ago, how differently would I now bear this terrible affliction! What Heaven has sent me, I would have striven to bury my grief in beauty, have embittered your last hours, and perhaps ruined my soul!"

A smile passes over the face of the dying man, then it produces a permanent sensation here.

All is still for a moment; then a gentle sigh escapes the lips of a man who had unquestionably discharged his duty; and it about the remaining of his paper, when his wife interposed—

"John before you retire I want to speak to you."

"Yes, all means, my pet; what are the subject of your discourse?"

"Well, I hardly know how to begin, and perhaps you will be offended."

"Not the least, my dear, Minnie, I am sorry to say, that John Driscoll's wife is evidently too important to be offended; stop the breakfast table, my dear, stop the clock, the hands on her dress, stop the sun, stop everything, but shoulders, John wants his wife with her large dreamy eyes."

"Do you love me, don't you?"

"Just a little bit," he answers.

"Would you make a sacrifice for me?"

"You bet!" is the laconic rejoinder.

"Then I want you to promise me this morning that you will never touch drink again."

John Driscoll gives a low whistle; he was not prepared for this, and does not answer for a minute.

"Why should you make so strange a request?" he at length asks. "My opening disposition don't usually tend to make me never touch you when I'm drunk, nor call you my pet names."

"Yes, that is true;" she says. "The reason I beg of you to make this sacrifice is because I love you! Your conversation strong as it may be—cannot much longer endure the sight of you; and, if you die, what would become of me?"

She leans her head upon his bosom and sobs.

Mr. Driscoll passes his fingers through his wife's sunny locks; he is in a deep reverie.

"That is true, my dear; that is true. What would become of you, if I should earn a lot of money; but, by jings! I spend it! I'd need be poorer, I should not be so rich as people imagine."

Mrs. Driscoll raises her head—a flush has mounted to her cheek; an indignant fire lights her eyes.

"Can you see in my regard for your health nothing more than a selfish, mercenary motive? do you think me incapable of loving you?"

He takes her face between his hands and looks her reproachfully.

"No, my little woman; I did not think that; I was only anxious about you.

"Anxious about one! Mrs. Driscoll years a half-contemptuous—half-pitying smile, as she looks her husband straight in the face.

"Do you know it is no joke, darling," he pursues coolly; "and if ever my mind is troubled, it is lest I should be called away before I have made an ample provision for you and my child."

"Child! child, exclaims Mrs. Driscoll, "that the wealth of a Rothschild or the power of a Cæsar, could ever reconcile me, if God were to strike you down in the midst of your sins! Come, John, if the love you have for me is so great that you have not been a believer, give me one lasting proof, grant my request."

She extended her hands towards her husband.

For a moment John Driscoll is irresolute. He looks upon his wife, seated on the side, prompting him for evil; but the remembrance of his wife's move than a mere sense-satisfaction.

"Come, John, decide—be a man!"

"Well, I will, if you promise me a thousand pounds."

"Ten years have passed. John Driscoll and his wife have risen several degrees in the social scale. The former's bar parlor companions have dropped away one by one mounted with his "prosperity to the cause of temperance." Not John Driscoll can afford to laugh at this, for he has not been troubled with the loss of a few decidedly friends by the knowledge that he has rendered thoroughly happy his faithful wife, in addition to attaining many social distinctions; first, as a member of the city council, then, as a member of the grand jury; and, lastly, appointed one of the county commissioners.

The aristocratic families that resided during a portion of the year near the Lake Harriet, Minnetonka, have always glad to extend their hospitality to John Driscoll and his wife when they discovered the amusement and courteous manners of the parvenu; and he never attempted the vulgar parvenu so common among men of his class.

Ten years, as we have said, have passed over John Driscoll's head, and the hair of John Driscoll and his wife, that they could hardly realize they were composed of the same materials which, ten years ago, had turned almost thoroughly, but rather declines in the opinion of the world, the opinion of his youth and his early struggles for fortune. To the poor and the Church his hand is ever extended; and if he be not amongst the most zealous one of the latter, he is certainly one of her most generous

Five years previous to the opening of our story, John Driscoll had fallen in love with and married the orphan daughter of an Irish gentleman, a golden-haired beauty, whose hon had for years been familiar to the geographies of her acquaintance. Disgraced by her Father's relations to the station of their ancestral Castle of Ballyhoo, Lord Ashbough

"Yes, I know it is a very darling," he pursues coolly; "and if ever my mind is troubled, it is lest I should be called away before I have made an ample provision for you and my child."

"Child! child," demands Mrs. Driscoll, "that the wealth of a Rothschild or the power of a Cæsar, could ever reconcile me, if God were to strike you down in the midst of your sins! Come, John, if the love you have for me is so great that you have not been a believer, give me one lasting proof, grant my request."

She extended her hands towards her husband.

For a moment John Driscoll is irresolute. He looks upon his wife, seated on the side, prompting him for evil; but the remembrance of his wife's move than a mere sense-satisfaction.

"Come, John, decide—be a man!"

"Well, I will, if you promise me a thousand pounds."

"Ten years have passed. John Driscoll and his wife have risen several degrees in the social scale. The former's bar parlor companions have dropped away one by one mounted with his "prosperity to the cause of temperance." Not John Driscoll can afford to laugh at this, for he has not been troubled with the loss of a few decidedly friends by the knowledge that he has rendered thoroughly happy his faithful wife, in addition to attaining many social distinctions; first, as a member of the city council, then, as a member of the grand jury; and, lastly, appointed one of the county commissioners.

The aristocratic families that resided during a portion of the year near the Lake Harriet, Minnetonka, have always glad to extend their hospitality to John Driscoll and his wife when they discovered the amusement and courteous manners of the parvenu; and he never attempted the vulgar parvenu so common among men of his class.

Ten years, as we have said, have passed over John Driscoll's head, and the hair of John Driscoll and his wife, that they could hardly realize they were composed of the same materials which, ten years ago, had turned almost thoroughly, but rather declines in the opinion of the world, the opinion of his youth and his early struggles for fortune. To the poor and the Church his hand is ever extended; and if he be not amongst the most zealous one of the latter, he is certainly one of her most generous

Five years previous to the opening of our story, John Driscoll had fallen in love with and married the orphan daughter of an Irish gentleman, a golden-haired beauty, whose hon had for years been familiar to the geographies of her acquaintance. Disgraced by her Father's relations to the station of their ancestral Castle of Ballyhoo, Lord Ashbough

Sermon Contributed by Request.

The following is the text for the Pulpit, also of the place and date of Bangor, Ireland, and the Pulpit of Bangor, Ireland, and the Pulpit of Bangor, Ireland, and the Pulpit

THE MONITOR.

TRUTH FIRST THEN OR PREMATURE.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1883.

PASTORAL LETTER

— FROM HIS GRACE —

Most Rev. Joseph Sadoc Alemany, O. P.

Archbishop of San Francisco.

The following beautiful and instructive Pastoral was read in all the churches throughout this Diocese on last Sunday:

To the Clergy and Laity of the Diocese of San Francisco.

Dearly Beloved—Next Sunday, with the tribes of Israel, will be a sacred day for the Church of San Francisco—a day for many years expected and desired by us, not so much by our merits, but rather for the welfare of our Church. The combined growth of this city and surrounding country, the ever-increasing number of churches and Catholic institutions of the diocese, the various ecclesiastical establishments erected to meet, as far as possible, the many needs of this densely populated locality of Catholic Church, and especially the increasing number of our young ladies, make it a subject of real thanksgiving, not to say of divine worship, that we should have an Ordinary. And such Almighty God, in His Providence and goodness, will manifestly grant us next Sunday, the feast of the Seven Dolors of the Blessed Virgin Mary—the anniversary of the consecration of our Lady of Dolors Church, the Bishop of Nashville, to whom, when all alone in the whole diocese and State of Tennessee, we prayed for many years and, although some large four years ago. On that glorious feast of Our Lady, under God's blessing, the Most Rev. Dr. Patrick William Riordan was consecrated in this Cathedral by the Archbishop of that city, the Most Rev. Dr. Purcell, assisted by many other distinguished Prelates, as Vicar of the Metropolitan Church of Cincinnati, and worthy Coadjutor.

This event most naturally bring great joy in all Catholic hearts, particularly in those of this diocese, and also but their equally great responsibility.

After this it may not be out of place to say a few words regarding the duties and obligations of Bishops, and to show in this respect, the relation of the Sovereign Pontiff to the Bishops and to the Bishop of the whole Catholic World. For if the God of order designed, for the welfare and good guidance of the faithful, that there should be in his Church a Hierarchy, such that having the Supreme, but the sheep might go astray and find wolves among them, he also limited that the body of Bishops should have one to be their center of union, their Pastor and their Chief. Then as the officers in an army are all under some superior council, and the members of our body are governed by the one head, so Christ, in establishing His Church, willed that the Apostolic dignity and extraordinary powers, appointed one among them to be their prince, the head of all the faithful of Christ, the Pontiff and Pastor of the whole flock—the faithful, the Priests and the Bishops. Without this the Christian commonwealth would have been a heaven without a king, a tribunal without a judge, an army without a general, a flock without a shepherd, and a body without a head—a monster rather than the Divine Institute and Kingdom of our God. Nothing, on this point, could be more to the purpose, nothing more beautiful or more solid, than the introductory words of the first Constitution of the Vatican Council on the Church of Christ. "The Eternal Pastor" says, "in the plenitude of His Divine Wisdom, in order to render perpetual the salutary work of the Redemption, decreed to build the holy Church, in which, as in the house of the living God, all the faithful should dwell together, united in the bond of one faith and charity. Therefore, before he should be glorified, he prayed to the Father not only for the Apostles, but also for those who were to believe in them through their word, that all might be one, as he the Son and the Father are one. Accordingly, he willed that as he sent the Apostles he had received from the world in the same manner that he was sent by the Father, so also, he ordained that there should be Pastors and Teachers in his Church until the consummation of the world. But, in order that the episcopacy should be one and undivided, and that the whole multitude of believers should be preserved through the mutual ties and connexed of the priests by the bond of faith and charity, he placed the blessed Peter above the other Apostles, he established in him, as in a common principle, the perpetual and visible foundation of unity, upon the strength of which the eternal temple should be constructed, and the loftiness of the Church, reaching to the heaven, by the stability of the firmness of this foundation, should increase and grow in the holy faith, even to perfection. Here, in a few words, we have shown forth and the supreme place of the office of the Bishop of the One Eternal Pastor. Hence it ought to be clear, that the Bishops, who are appointed to but spirit the Constitution of the Church of Christ. With no other object, and by no other means, than by hearing the Pastor established by the Savior, have the Bishops of the Church, in the first place, been called to the episcopacy, and, in the second place, and with equal truth, they are called to the episcopacy, and, in the second place, and with equal truth, they are called to the episcopacy, and, in the second place, and with equal truth, they are Sexton's Speech in Sligo.

Landlord Bribery Lost on Irish Tenants.

A Scandalous Proceeding by the Sheriff.

At a meeting of the supporters of Mr. Lynch, the National candidate for Sligo, Mr. Sexton delivered the following capital speech, and exposed the miserable means adopted by the upholders of "law and order" to brow-beat the tenantry to vote for the opposing candidate:—

Mr. Sexton, M. P., who on coming forward was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers, said if the people stood by them in the future as in the past not only would they be able to secure peace and comfortable in their homes, but they would hasten the day when the bills of landlords would no longer be laid upon the prosperity of Ireland, and when the Irish people would be made comfortably happy and prosperous and satisfied by the glorious gift of freedom (cheers). Mr. Lynch is his friend, was his friend when open, and there was no question concerning the friends of any candidate that he had lost unfriended (cheers). What was Mr. O'Hara's position (groans)? And yet question did he vouch? Not one. He did not say that to say that Mr. O'Hara declared himself bankrupt, and was now a pensioner upon the generous ones before the country (cheers). Mr. O'Hara's advocates had boasted of his generosity, and he was more than ever even Conservative in Sligo when you flagooled with the information of Mr. O'Hara's landlord, the address of the land to be let or sold, for he (Sexton) knew that it is to his landlord that he owed his good red herring (laughter), from whom many shared from the Mr. O'Hara's wonderful good, if he (Sexton) remembered rightly, was the landlord who refused a piece of ground for a graveyard to the people of Kilfearagh (groans), and who compelled them by that refusal to carry their dead to the sea (groans), taking all the chances of their lives, and over two hundred families from the plains of Sligo and Canada the demand has been poor that they happy homes were to be found only entire and sheep (groans). These four hundred families were driven out of their homes to death a cable (groans). A man who was in office and who was the cause of the wood in sight of their native land found a sanitary grave (groans). Mr. Lynch had been invited to Sligo, and he was asked what the people for their enlargement, he did not see people had their homes and with what and thanks demand their votes. What did Mr. O'Hara do? He said he would call on the people for their votes. He was asked the trouble, for every landlord in the country was going about canvassing for votes and asking a greater agent—every device was being tried. Heaven and earth were being moved to secure the return of the defeat of the Irish National candidate. It was a fight between the landlords and the people, by the way, for their deliverance of all sorts and degrees were working in the cause of the landlords. Mr. Lynch was in a nutshell from and in and of the country entirely. He was asked to go to Dublin to vote for Mr. O'Hara. He said a tenant was asked to go to Dublin to vote for Mr. O'Hara. He said a tenant had been served on him to pay his rent by Saturday next, but since then the tenancy was over and he was asked to vote for Mr. O'Hara, and he was promised

THE CROSS IN THE NORTH.

[CONCLUDED FROM THIRD PAGE.]

Into them natives far from home yet Easter time walks them back to Jerusalem, Passion Week, "the Bread of Life," Pentecost, they come with peaceful hearts, and peaceful they depart, bearing within them the King of peace. They know more of our holy Religion than many who have much greater opportunities. I will go back among the Indians, and live my days of life with them. I can never say more, never more. There are lives of devotedness to spiritual among them this, left, who are called Jesuits.

When I came out from among these Indians, and mingled with people called civilized, I felt as if I was in a land of strangers, and I felt that I could not stay in civilization that was so far from God and religion then when once of those places. The poor people habits of the Indian may appear rude, but I can not but look for the same Jesus in them. They are honest. The people of the Cross, I have found, are honest. Let those outside of the Church look on the people of the Church and see if they are not honest. Let those who have never been called to the Lord look on those who have been called and see if they are not honest. Let those who have never been called to the Lord look on those who have been called and see if they are not honest. Let those who have never been called to the Lord look on those who have been called

Poetry.

[RE-PRINTED BY REQUEST.]

WILL MY SOUL PASS THROUGH IRELAND?

(The first three historical stanzas of the following poem were written in Paris, in the year 1847. The last stanza was added in Dublin, when on the Irish mission, and published in the Dublin Penny Journal, under the Pastoral, of a somewhat similar character, to some part of the Irish Church Mission, of which I was a member, "in the land of Tuam"—a Synodical province. Whatever be the origin of the Legend, it is a fact that the Irish Church Mission in Tuam is itself. The other stanzas, which have dialogue between the priest and the old woman, who is supposed to tell my adventure, I can see no use in intended to be perhaps or disagreeable to the holy minister of the Priesthood, or to the country, for, I presume, it cannot that ill be perceived by the thoughtful reader, that the Legend is intended to be a kind of Parable, for any which allegories that may be found to be most suitable regarding a matter that we hold to be most sacred.)

A Dragoneth sewer I says I lower life in Sterling;
Some, cross in the stranger north my prayer house with fire
I have said my last prayer and received my last blessing—
And if the Lamb's writing, I'm ready to die.
Thy holy spirit, O God, I commend my soul
The religious habit of a dying person, I have Received the Sacrament, I have done that which would of Will to pass through and ireland to join the blest heaven

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1883.

A Christian Brother Vindicated at Last.

The world is prone to believe all the bad things it reads in the daily papers concerning the Popes, Bishops, Priests, and Religious Orders of the Catholic Church. Even some Catholics who peruse the scandals occasionally printed about priests join with the crowd and cheer for Barnum, while, with their wagging tongues they crucify the character of the priest of God. This conduct is not seemly, nor wise, nor Christian, and the Catholic who indulges in it will have a terrible account to give before the judgment seat of Almighty God for maligning a priest of the order of Malchisedech, for the vengeance give unto all the warning: "We be to him by whom scandal cometh."

It would evince wisdom on the part of Catholic readers of the daily press to refuse to believe any scandal regarding Priests, Sisters, or Christian Brothers, inasmuch as they are invariably either entirely false or are printed for purposes of blackmail or dishard-working, and invariable Irish-American Democrats who know, to their sorrow, that political promises from the Examiner ring of the Democracy are like pie-crust—made to be broken.

We hope, however, that neither the Examiner, nor its friends, will again have the opportunity to mob and scorn the Irish-American element in this city, or to wantonly insult a body of religious ladies who are so far above their malignant calumniators as Paradise is above Pandemonium. We understand that another Democratic paper is about to be started in this city, and we hail the enterprise with pleasure if it will do no more than to keep the Examiner from sinking down with the Knownothing foot the gates of Catholic convents so that all the world may behold "the caged birds" and hear their "longings for liberty," as well as realize that while Catholic Sisters have "a vocation for good," they also have "the instincts of worldly happiness and pleasure."

The penny-liner who thus portrayed the members of the Catholic Religious Orders is a Knownothing at heart, and the paper that printed such slanders against the good, holy, and patriotic women of the Church should be kicked out of every Catholic household—so care not how strong its professions of Democracy and liberality may be.

More Information for the Secretary of War.

We think seriously of presenting a bill to the next Congress for the amount of labor we have expended in furnishing information regarding churches on military reservations in the War Department, a matter regarding which that Department was in amazing ignorance until the Monitor aroused it from its Rip Van Winkle slumbers by calling the attention of the powers that be to the astonishing fact that there was a full-fledged Protestant church, in full blast, upon the Omaha reservation, and of which one of the Secretary of War's pets portrait which was far more interesting than many an official report which costs thousands of dollars.

Notwithstanding the fact that the War Department declared there was only one Protestant church on any military reservation, we have proved that there are two, and we cause a correspondent, who knows whereof he speaks, and says that "it is nothing new to see Protestant churches on Government reservations." Here is his letter:

—San Francisco, Cal., September 20th, 1883.

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR:

Dear Sir—I have just read your notice in the MONITOR of the 20th inst. on the Protestant church on the Presidio. It is nothing new to see Protestant churches on Government reservations. There is one at Fort Brady, Mich., close to Sault Ste. Marie, which is sometimes used by the Catholics for a church. There is one at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and one at Fort Riley, Kansas. All these buildings are carried on the books of the quartermaster's department. In fact there is hardly any large post in the United States where there is not a church. The Catholics have a church at Fort Brady, and I believe at Fort Leavenworth, and I know that the Catholics have a church on the Presidio, and in the back country, I remember to a list of public buildings at the different posts in the division and you will see that I am not trying to have a "Church at the Post." Good and Bad "Sides" the Government seems to even them in this western portion of our country.

Yours truly, AN ex-ARMY OFFICER.

And this outrage upon Catholic soldiers and citizens, this breach of constitutionally guaranteed liberty of conscience, is promoted by the War Department and winked at by the Secretary of War under the plea that "Really, sah! I never heard of but one Protestant church on a military reservation." We do not know which to condemn most, the apparent ignorance of the War Department relative to a matter of duty, or the lethargy and criminal indifference of the Eastern Catholic press which silently acquiesced in this outrage upon Catholic soldiers and civilians on every military reservation in America. But now that the Catholic press is made aware of this wrong we hope they will make amends for their past supineness by joining the Monitor in its crusade against this injustice until the Catholic priest is granted the use of every church building erected with public funds on every military reservation north, south, east, and west.

So far as the Presidio Protestant church is concerned, we have a proposal to make to Secretary Lincoln which we think will meet with hearty approval, and that is to give Catholics the use of that church whenever it is held religious services in as every alternate Sunday. If it is not right to permit any portion of the Presidio reservation to be used for a Catholic church, provided, then we demand, on the score of justice and our rights of conscience, that no sect shall have the exclusive right to those velvet covered kneeling benches and cushioned pews.

The Un-Christian Character of Irish Landlords.

A shocking revelation of the un-Christian character of Irish landlords comes to us in the shape of a letter from Father Patrick Costello, of Ballinasloe, county Galway, who asks the MONITOR to assist him in completing St. Michael's Church in the city from whence he writes. After an introduction on this point, Father Costello makes serious charges against the landlord class of Ireland, and we venture to say that more merciless cruelty, more malignant hate was never manifested by pagan persecutors against Christians than that is demonstrated by that arrogant and un-Christian class of Irish absentee landlords, who actually refuse permission to their tenantry to erect a Catholic church or a school house upon lands from which they draw immense revenues! This is, indeed, an infernal revenge to take upon Irish tenants, and in one of the sins for which there is little hope of forgiveness in this world or the next. Here is the plain, unvarnished tale as told by Father Costello, of Galway:

Unfortunately, a few so-called aristocrats and landed proprietors have a monopoly of land and capital in this country. We do not know any evidence of their generosity, but one we do know, the school built by them, in church, college, or university endowed by them, be factory established to prevent chronic distress and drain the resources of the nation. It is calculated that the rent of Ireland amounts to about £15,000,000 annually, yet, little or nothing of this is spent in the country. Charitable, of this county, owes about 10,000 acres of land—he gets a rental of some 240,000 a year, he lives comfortably in London, never gives a penny in labor to the people of Loughrea, Portumna, or Oranmore (within his estates), never a penny in charity, never a penny for the benefit of the public institutions, but, asked recently to give a loan of a few pounds of land for a catholic church at Loughrea, he peremptorily refused! Clanricard, however, is only a type of Irish landowners as a body. Names might be said of Pollock, Mahon, and others who have desolated the surrounding districts, and made towns like Ballinasloe receptacles for evicted peasantry. Still the Government of England clutches these few absentees, and all but ignores the mass of the population, the pride and power of the country.

People live in this country, and who know but little of the scenes which have led to Ireland's misery, often wonder why it is that the tenant-farmers of Ireland are always in poverty, and why, when false can be in store for a people who are the mere serfs of a landocracy who absorb all the industry of a country, spend their time and money in other lands, and never give a shilling's work or a cent of wages to one of their tenantry! As Father Costello well says: "Never a penny is charity; never a penny for any church or public institution." And this is the class of blood-suckers who—like so many leeches—have drawn the life blood from Irish industry and left Erin almost a corpse upon the dissecting table of her English quack doctors.

No country in the world could prosper under such a state of affairs, and were it not for the sterling Catholic faith, the adoration to the will of God, and the ever-living hope of the Irish peasantry, the masses of the people would long since have sunk into graves. We commend Father Costello's letter with no reward for their industry, with no promise of future amelioration for their miserable condition, but the Irish peasant farmer suffered on, hoping that Heaven would one day generously give happiness to holy Ireland. What, then, must be the feelings of such a people when they behold the bigotry of the blood-suckers who have fed upon their substance for generations, and who refuse their Catholic tenants a lease even of a few perches of that land which they stole from its original Catholic proprietors!

These persecuting and proscriptive landlords—as Father Costello tells us—are shielded, upheld, and protected by the English Government, while the millions of their poor tenantry are permitted to starve and die in the very distress that drids the system of these absentee rufficns! People wonder why the masses of the Irish people agitate for Home Rule, but this little tale of the injustice and un-Christian tyranny of Irish landlordism will give them one of the causes for Irish discontent, and, maybap, bring such people more in sympathy with the Irish National League, which is now seeking for Irish independence from the iniquitous Government that fosters such iniquity-working wrong-doers as the diabolical class known as Irish landlords.

We read in the Sacred Scriptures that our Blessed Redeemer, His Immaculate Mother, and St. Joseph were refused admission into the inns of Bethlehem, and were forced to find shelter with the beasts of the field in a stable. But the people of Bethlehem who turned away the Son of God from the shelter of their habitations were angels of light compared with the Irish landlords who refuse a rood of ground whereon to erect a tabernacle for the worship of the living God! Of the Bethlehemites we can say: "Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do," but the latter class are by no means ignorant of the infernal insult they give to Almighty God when they refuse permission to Bishops, priests, and laymen to erect a Catholic church in Loughrea. By this refusal the landlords design to deny God a resting place in this city; they desire to drive the Catholic faith from the hearts of the people, and—failing in that—they hope by irreligion to drive them into insurrection so that the English soldiery may have an opportunity to polish off the remnant of the Irish race.

Such is the Christian character of Irish landlords, and we do not wonder that Father Costello asks us to assist him in completing St. Michael's Church in the city from whence he writes. After an introduction on this point, Father Costello makes serious charges against the landlord class of Ireland, and we venture to say that more merciless cruelty, more malignant hate was never manifested by pagan persecutors against Christians than that is demonstrated by that arrogant and un-Christian class of Irish absentee landlords, who actually refuse permission to their tenantry to erect a Catholic church or a school house upon lands from which they draw immense revenues! This is, indeed, an infernal revenge to take upon Irish tenants, and in one of the sins for which there is little hope of forgiveness in this world or the next. Here is the plain, unvarnished tale as told by Father Costello, of Galway:

—Unfortunately, a few so-called aristocrats and landed proprietors have a monopoly of land and capital in this country. We do not know any evidence of their generosity, but one we know, the school built by them, in church, college, or university endowed by them, be factory established to prevent chronic distress and drain the resources of the nation. It is calculated that the rent of Ireland amounts to about £15,000,000 annually, yet, little or nothing of this is spent in the country. Clanricarde, of this county, owes about 10,000 acres of land—he gets a rental of some 240,000 a year, he lives comfortably in London, never gives a penny in labor to the people of Loughrea, Portumna, or Oranmore (within his estates), never a penny in charity, never a penny for any church or public institution. And, asked recently to give a loan of a few perches of land for a catholic church at Loughrea, he peremptorily refused! Clanricarde, however, is only a type of Irish landowners as a body. Names might be said of Pollock, Mahon, and others who have desolated the surrounding districts, and made towns like Ballinasloe receptacles for evicted peasantry. Still the Government of England clutches these few absentees, and all but ignores the mass of the population, the pride and power of the country.

People live in this country, and who know but little of the scenes which have led to Ireland's misery, often wonder why it is that the tenant-farmers of Ireland are always in poverty, and why, when false can be in store for a people who are the mere serfs of a landocracy who absorb all the industry of a country, spend their time and money in other lands, and never give a shilling's work or a cent of wages to one of their tenantry! As Father Costello well says: "Never a penny in

A JEWIT FOR BISHOP.

Among the three names forwarded to Rome for the Pope to select a successor from for the Bishopric of San Jose, the name of Father Bishop Quinlan a year ago, is that of the Rev. William H. Parsons, S. J., pastor of St. Mary's Church, Boston. He is a native of Alabama, well acquainted with the country and very much beloved for the recent Episcopal Mass and Jubilee by understanding Protestants and others. For this reason the movement on foot to make this Bishop is a very sensible one, easy to carry, for an endeavor to force the place upon him in spite of a rule of the Jesuit Order prohibiting the acceptance of a member to any Church dignity higher than that of priest. Well, Father Bishop Beckx, the head of the Jesuit Order throughout the world, based that Prince Dominic's letter on among those submitted to the Pope for selection to wrote to the Holy Father calling his attention to the rule. In spite of this, however, the Church authorities concerned in the selection of a successor to Bishop Quinlan want to make Father Parsons Bishop, and have not desisted in their efforts. As the Pope is the head of all religious societies, their rules are subject to his revised, abrogation or suspension for the time being, and if he orders the Jesuit Father to accept the post this will end the matter. There have been precedents for this course in both here and in Europe.

The power was exercised before in this country, in 1851, when Pope Pius IX. forced Father Blanc, a member of the Jesuit Order, to become Bishop of Leavenworth, Kan. He was, however, promoted to Archbishop of New York Post-Office. O'Brien is a son of Owen-on-O'Brien, Bishop of Dublin, and is the nephew of Cardinal Cullen, a land agent, one of the worst of the class, and a bitter enemy of Ireland. He is a North of Ireland at Tuskegee. McDermott's father was in the employ, as coachman, of Osborne, and his mother nursed the spy, then engaging him contrary to Mr. Osborne's wishes, in tender brother. O'Brien came to this country by Osborne and advertised for the address of McDermott, and having found him, commenced the negotiation with regard to the discovery of Carnaxide. O'Brien was flush of money, and through in the hands of spending many dollars at one sitting, succeeded in a blind the position of Bishop of Boston, and he was forced out, and the position he utilized in obtaining information in Hadmonson of his spy mission.

AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

After much disappointment and many delays, the Abbé Midquet has succeeded in raising the ancient galley of Ptolemy Philopator, which lies in dredge the bottom of the Red Sea. He is after Ptolemy's chariots and the sacred vessel of the Egyptian army. He has encountered very much of their treasure, which should not be secured, but the trouble of securing the and which, but for the enormous expense, he would be in the hope of getting up and dividends for the stockholders. The enterprise is one of the most much that is valuable of the subaltern and the medal-chasing. The enterprise is one of the most much more valuable than those which have been very than with the appearance of the dedigns, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, as remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of these LUMINOUS GOODS, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet tint which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white silver. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonderful discovery, can repeat a vague impression of the marvels which have been brought to light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which arrests the flight of imagination and pinions it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Cerqui's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the MONITOR and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles readers them attractive objects wherever to invite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the MONITOR, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES!
NIGHT CROSSES!
NIGHT STATUES!
—VISIBLE—
—IN THE—
DARKEST ROOM!
When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.
THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,
—HAD A—
LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!
—AND SAID—
"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journal

Through the courtesy of Messrs. J. A. Maxwell & Co., proprietors of M. Cerqui's Chemical Compound, we were invited with a private view of one of the most wonderful discoveries of the century. I was led into a room, the curtains were drawn and every ray of light was excluded, and in the darkness, where first I saw only plain plaster figures, there stood out in clear, bright, awe-inspiring distinctness, first the figure of the Saviour suspended in the agonies of death upon the cross, then the figure of the Blessed Mary and Joseph, while blessing up in the background was the figure of an angel hovering above the Holy Family in rain light. It was a feeling of both and veneration to witness such a miracle. I then overhearing the writer, the Rev. Father Lynch, of Brooklyn, Upon leaving a very presented with a cross; it is kept on a bracket in my chamber, and in the darkness of night it seems to say, sleep safe, His cross watches and guards you.

For 1, A Cross 8½ inches high, with Pedestal $1.00
" 2, A Crucifix, with a figure of 5 inches " 1.50
" 3, " " 8½ " 2.50
" 4, " " 11 " 3.00
" 5, Statue of Blessed Virgin, 11 " 2.00
" 7, " St. Joseph, 11 " 2.00

Other Statues and Religious Articles will be Announced Shortly.

A DISCOUNT TO THOSE ORDERING IN QUANTITIES.

Address Orders to

A. WALDTEUFEL,
General Agent for the Pacific Coast,
SAN JOSE, CAL.

RELIABLE CANVASSERS WANTED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE FAMOUS
DUPLEX GALVANIC BELT

REST IN THE WORLD.

THE HIGHEST PREMIUM AT THE MECHANICS' Institute. The greatest curative agents in science. Two Double Shocks for 25c. Sole Proprietors.

RUPTURE
Positively Cured.
PACIFIC ELECTRIC PAD TRUSS.

A NEW INVENTION. THE BEST RETAINER IN Existence. Delivered Free. Circulars free. Illustrated matter 15. Pacific Electric Co. Sole Proprietors, 1 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

PHILADELPHIA BREWERY.
JOHN WIELAND - - - PROPRIETOR
SECOND STREET, NEAR FOLSOM, SAN FRANCISCO.
Amount of Beer sold in 1882, 64,139 barrels.
Pacific Coast Agency
GENUINE
J. H. CUTTER WHISKIES,
A. P. ROTALING & Co.,
San Francisco, Cal.

WITH
FIVE DOLLARS
YOU CAN BUY A WHOLE
IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN VIENNA CITY
GOVERNMENT BOND,
Which bonds are issued and secured by the Government of Austria, and are redeemable in money.
FOUR TIMES ANNUALLY,
Until each and every bond is drawn, with a hope or a small premium. Every bond must draw a Prize or there are no SCRAPS.
THE PRIZES AMOUNT TO SEVERAL HUNDRED FLORINS,
SEVERAL THOUSAND FLORINS,
SEVERAL TENS OF THOUSANDS FLORINS.
And bonds are drawing one of the short prizes every draw a Premium at NOT LESS THAN 130 Florins.
The next drawing will take place on the 1ST OF OCTOBER, 1883.
And every bond bought of us on or before the 1st of October is entitled to the whole premium that may be drawn thereon on that date.
Out-of-town orders must be Enclosure Letters, Inclosing $5, and name one of those bonds for the best chance.
Write plain, distinct, or any other information desired.
INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO.,
608 O'Farrell, cor. Pulton St., New York City.
Government in 1874.
N. B.—In ordering 10 or more, state you are this a Sun Francisco Business.
(F The above Government Bonds are not to be confounded with any Lottery enterprises, and do not conflict with any of Statutes of the United States.
POCKET BOCKET AND SOLD BY A. BOCHOOF 1296 Montgomery street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

McCormick Brothers,
BOOK AND JOB
PRINTERS
HAVE REMOVED TO
636 Clay Street,
(In same Building as the Monitor Office.)
San Francisco - - - California.

We Possess every Facility for the Execution of JOB PRINTING
—IN THE—
Cheapest, Neatest & Quickest Manner.

THE NEATHOUS
Mutual Beneficial ASSOCIATION
—OF THE—
Archdiocese of San Francisco.
President - - Rev. J. B. McNally.
Total Benefits paid to date - - - $15,265
Balance in Treasury July 1st, 1882 - 7,007
Total Mem bership to July 1st, 1882 - 1,660
This organization offers the cultest, safest and cheapest mode of Life Insurance extant. It became the first of all Catholic between the ages of 18 and 45 years, and it has received the approbation of the Cross Archbishop Alemany, D.D., and been commended by the consideration of Catholics by nearly every clergyman in this Archdiocese as well as in many other dioceses in the Union.
(F Circular or Pamphlet containing full information will be mailed to any address on application.
(F Applications for Membership may be addressed to the Secretary, or to any Lecturer of the Association.
EDWARD GILROY, Secretary,
1016 Jones Street.

RAZORS!
FOR $1,000
I WILL MAKE A BETTER RAZOR AND GIVE OF A Man in the same time than any man IN THE WORLD
My razors make curcumcised $2 5
My Guard Razors warranted not to cut the finest while shaving 3 5
Good English Razors 1 00
Best English Razors 1 50
(F Sent C. O. D. or by mail.
M. PRICE,
418 Kearny Street.
Scissors and Shears Sharpened.

MISS JANE GRAY,
Teacher of Elocution, Oratory and Drama.
Particular Attention paid to Voice Culture.
ST. ANN'S BUILDING,
COR. POWELL AND EDDY STREETS, Room 166.

INSURANCE.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY
OF CALIFORNIA.
FIRE AND MARINE.
Capital fully paid $200,000 00
Assets January 1, 1883 770,272
Losses paid since organization 367,588 70
PRINCIPAL OFFICE,
405 California Street, S. F.
JOHN H. WISE, President.
CHAS. A. LATON Secretary.
FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE
UNION INSURANCE COMPANY
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,
ESTABLISHED IN 1861.
Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.
CASH CAPITAL ..... $750,000 GOLD
PAID SIXTEEN, PRIOR SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES, SOLID SECURITY.
DIRECTORS:
SAN FRANCISCO
B. Rosenfeld, Nicholas Luning,
Moses Gale, John Parrott,
Mark Hopkins, James Moffit,
M. G. Kittle, J. Boom,
M. J. Brown, M. D. Sweeny,
Henry Cowell, Joseph Brooksmith,
Daniel Magee, Gustav Touchard,
Adam Grant, J. G. Kittle,
Antonio Sutro, Jacob Rickes,
Andrew Zeile, J. H. Boland,
Joseph Sadoc, Charles Duncan,
Edward Jones, W. M. Hoag,
I. Lawrence Pixley, William Sadoc,
J. J. Welch, John Conly,
N. B. Stone, O. Eldridge.
A. B. Phelps
GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, President.
C. J. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BAILEY, Secretary.
GEO. T. DOBBS, Surveyor.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels,
SANTA CLARA - - - - CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a moral and intellectual education. The basis in particular has which recommend this Academy, is the influence now closed to form the pupils to refinement, habits of economy and to render them useful members a society is after years.
The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.
Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, payable in advance.
Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars; to pail once.
Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding, $50
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 6th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE
SANTA CLARA, ... CALIFORNIA
THIS THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL SESSION will commence Tuesday, August 7th. This Institution was founded in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated with the powers of a University. It occupies six large buildings, with extensive shady play grounds, covered gymnasium, swimming pool, etc. It possesses a more complete Philosophical Apparatus, and valuable collections of Mineralogy and Geology. It has also, practical schools for Surveying, Navigation, Telegraphy, Photography and Commercial Business. The entire south wing of the building has just been finished, that leaves nothing to be desired.
Diplomas are given in two departments—the Literary and Scientific, and Certificates in the Commercial course.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-annually in advance)
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once. $ 15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition in all branches Washing and Mending of Linen 250 00
School Stationery, medical attendance and use of bedding 50 00
For further particulars address
SISTER SUPERIOR
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
(CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME.)
THIS INSTITUTION, FOUNDED IN 1868, chartered in 1878 by Act of the Legislature of the State of California, is conducted by the Sisters of Notre Dame, adjoining the Mission Church, opposite the Old Mission Church.
The course of instruction embraces all the branches necessary to the accomplishment of a solid and refined education.
TERMS:
Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per annum $250 00
EXTRA CHARGES.
Piano, with use of Instrument, per annum $60 00
Vocal Music, Class Lessons 20 00
Vocal Music, Private Lessons 50 00
Drawing, per annum 20 00
Painting in Water Colors, per annum 20 00
Painting in Oil, per lesson 1 00
Vocation spent at the College 25 00
Graduating Fee 10 00
Physician's Fee in case of sickness 10
Bills are presented and are payable at the close of the half session, in advance.
SILENT DAY SCHOOL.
Terms per month (paid in advance.)
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Collect Classes $6 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes 8 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes 10 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes 8 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory, Drawing, Painting and Private Education lessons 10 00
Tuition in Boarding Schools, Boarding Schools, Drawing and Spanish are given gratis throughout, as also in Flute and Harp Instruction.
N. B.—A private conveyance is furnished, at moderate rates, for the convenience of pupils residing in the country or in other parts.
(F Studies will be resumed in the College of Notre Dame, Dolores street, San Francisco, on Wednesday the 14th inst.

EDUCATIONAL.

SACRAMENTO INSTITUTE,
Twelfth and K streets,
SACRAMENTO ..... CAL.
A LIMITED NUMBER OF BOARDERS RECEIVED. Every facility for acquiring a sound Christian education, at the lowest rate, supposing the contract to be for a term of years.
TERMS: Board, Tuition and Washing, $75 per quarter. For particulars apply to
BRO. GENEBRIS, Director
(F Session resumed Wednesday, August 1st, 1883.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE
Sisters of St. Dominic,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION, BEAUTIFULLY LOCATED on Tyler Street, near Steiner, affords every facility for the acquisition of a refined and solid education.
The Academic year consists of two terms of 5 months each.
TERMS:
Board, Washing and English Tuition, per quarter $87 50
Entrance Fee 15 00
EXTRAS:
Language, (each,) $10
Piano Lessons 10 00
Vocal Lessons 10 00
Private Vocal Lessons 5 00
Drawing and Painting in Water Colors 5 00
Oil Painting, per lesson 1 00
Graduating Fee 10 00
No Extra Charge for Washing.
PIANO.
Preparatory Class, per term $15 00
Graduates 15 00
Use of Piano for Practice 5 00
Pupils will be required to be provided with a dressing case, charge of understanding, two morning dresses, one evening dress, four aprons, four pairs of stockings, one mantoon, ten pillow, four towels and napkins, one dozen knives, silver plated, forks, spoons, and one gold ring.
Simplicity of dress enforced by rule.
Pupils from a distance only.
Boarding pupils received at any period of the year.
All correspondence of the young ladies will be subjected to the inspection of the Superior.
For further particulars address
SISTER SUPERIOR

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Fifth and Jackson Sts., OAKLAND, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School for boys up to the age of fifteen years, subject to a course of studies adapted to the wants of home with the attainment of a superior Christian education.
Parents and guardians, desirous of sending their sons to a place where they will be cared for, and kept safe, may be assured that the Institution properly fills the place, which is the only one in the city.
Students are received at any time during the year, but not for a shorter period than ten days of five weeks.
TERMS:
(Payment in C. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance)
Board, Washing and Tuition, per term of 5 months, $150
Bed and Bedding, per term 20
Entrance Fee (payable but once) 10
BRO. LACHAN, Director

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
THOSE WHO (COMPLETE THE CLASSICAL Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B.S.; the Commercial, that of Accounts.
The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a practical education in as short a time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The daily exercises of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are so arranged that each one may profit by the classroom.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board, Tuition and Washing $250 00
Entrance Fee 10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines 10 00
Vocation at College 50 00
Day Students 60 00
Music and Drawing form extra charges.
For further particulars address
BRO. BETTELIN, President.

ST. GERTRUDE'S ACADEMY,
RIO VISTA, SOLANO CO., CAL.
THIS ACADEMY FOR YOUNG LADIES, UNDER the direction of the Sisters of Charity, is beautifully situated in an unknown in the pleasant and healthful village of Rio Vista. The grounds are extensive, the building new, and well furnished with all the modern improvements. The course of studies is the primary, grammar, commercial and scientific, and the healthful exercise. Pupils of all persuasions will be received. The course of instruction combines all the useful branches of a solid education.
Pupils received at any time during the term, and will be charged from the date of entrance.
The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each; the first commences January and ends in June.
Terms per Session, Payable in Advance.
BOARDING PUPILS.
Board and Tuition, with use of bedding $112 50
Instrument: Music 15 00
Use of Piano 5 00
Vocal Music (private lessons) 15 00
Drawing in class, Drawing, French, Plain and Ornamental Needlework do not form extra charges.
DAY ACADEMY.
Terms per month, in advance
Senior Class $8 00
Second Class 7 00
Third Class 5 00
Music, Piano lessons, with use of instrument 15 00
Music, Piano lessons, without use of instrument 10 00
(F No entrance fee required. For further information apply to
M. M. CAMILLUS, Superiors

Convent of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart,
OAKLAND, - - - CALIFORNIA.
CONDUCTED BY
The Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.
THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUATED between Webster street and Lake Merritt, convenient of access from San Francisco. The building is supplied with all the modern improvements—its ventilation and drainage have special to the comfort of the boarders.
The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and refined education.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly in advance):
Board and tuition (French and Spanish included), $250 00
Bed and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the institution) 10
Piano, Harp, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN 1851, I incorporated by the State Legislature, and the only institution of the kind in the Sacramento or similar Colleges located in the United States.
Reference required. For terms and particulars address,
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
Marysville, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL.

Convent of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary,
GILROY, ... CALIFORNIA.
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL, CONDUCTED BY the religious sisters of the M. H. and I. H. of Mary.
For terms, etc., apply to the
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

MT. ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,
RENO, NEVADA.
(CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF ST. DOMINIC.) Will receive on September 1st. For terms Terms apply to the MOTHER SUPERIOR.

URSULINE ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
The Third Annual Session began
AUGUST 7TH., 1883.
For Prospectus and full particulars address
SUPERIORESS OF THE URSULINES,
Santa Rosa, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CARROLL & TILTON
Respectfully announce that they have opened
THE LARGE STORE,
873 Market Street,
—WITH A LINE OF—GENT'S "n BOY'S CLOTHING,
Furnishing Goods,
HATS, CAPS, ETC.
Having been in this business many years, we can promise that all our goods will be as represented.
We buy for Cash and sell as low as possible.
CARROLL & TILTON,
873 Market Street, Opp. Powell
And late with JONES & CO.

ESTABLISHED 1856.
J. O'KANE,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER OF
HARNESS, SADDLES, WHIPS, BLANKETS,
And Everything Necessary for Horse or Carriage Use.
Boots and Saddles Another a Specialty. Single Harness from $18 a set.
(F Repairing promptly attended to.
767 MARKET ST.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

VARNISH WORKS
ESTABLISHED 1858.
PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY
And buy your Varnishes from the CALIFORNIA VARNISH WORKS.
P. D. WINTER, Proprietor.
MANUFACTURER OF ALL KINDS OF CARRIAGE Coach and Furniture Varnishes. Also Japan Dryers, Leaf Gold, Bronzes, etc. Also Agent for Stevens' Liquid Paints, ready for use. Office at Stevens' Black Paints, ready for use.
FACTORY.—UTAH STREET, near Bryant.
(F Orders solicited and promptly attended to.

VARNISH WORKS
JAS. R KELLY & CO.
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
PAINTS, OILS and GLASS
221 and 223 Market Street
Just Below Beale—the New Block.

O'BRIEN & WARD'S
Male and Female
EMPLOYMENT OFFICE.
MALE DEPARTMENT, 210 Clay Street.
FEMALE DEPARTMENT, 606 Clay Street.
ALWAYS TO HAND—FIRST-CLASS HOTEL Help, Farm Hands, Teamsters, Dairymen, Gardeners, Butchers, Coachmen, and Married Couples to Wait on Gentlemen and receive a fine, good suitable for Hotels, or farms, or any chance to employers. Suitable Wives, Cooks, Nurses, Waiters, Waitresses.

M. KELLY & CO.
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Files, New and Second-Hand Tools and Machinery of all Descriptions.
Fire Proof Safes bought and exchanged, and Locksmithing.
(F HEADQUARTERS FOR A SPECIALTY IN
204 Mission St., - San Francisco

MORITZ NICOLAI,
(Successor to E. REGIS)
RESTAURANT,
417 Pine Street.
FIRST CLASS BANQUET AND CONFECTIONARY constantly on hand. Special attention given to parties on parties, weddings, etc., at reasonable prices.

DON'T ASK WHERE
The Boasted California Fruits and Big Vegetables,
APPLES, PEARS, PEACHES, APRICOTS, BERRIES, ETC.
ARE TO BE FOUND,
But go direct to the CALIFORNIA MARKET, NOS. 50 & 51,
and you will see in superior array a display of produce California is the equal of any country. Visitors to the City of the Golden Gate should not fail to visit the California Market, Nos. 50 and 51.

BOOTS AND SHOES.
BOOTS AND SHOES.
JOHN SULLIVAN,
NORTHEAST COR. OF BATTERY AND JACKSON Sts., Gilbert Block, Up Stairs.
Gold Leather BOOTS, at from ..... $6 to $9
California Leather Boots $7
French Calf Oxford Ties ..... $4 of California $3 5
Boys' and Children's Boots and Shoes made to order. Persons in the country ordering Boots and Shoes to the amount of Twelve Dollars or more, will be allowed reduction of four per cent., so as to make the expense charges light. I sell Boots and Shoes at MY ONE MANUFACTURE ONLY. Boots and Shoes sent C. O. D. Trustworthy orders.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

THE STREET AND THE FLOWER. This is a Spanish story written by the celebrated Fernan Caballero, and translated by Mrs. Hoey. It is a story of temperament, and from a certain point of view it is well laid out. The author evidently is well laid in the Spanish Court, and is well versed in the Periods, and has read that London heard the call of Spain. The story is well conceived, and the author has shown a good deal of skill in the treatment of the subject. The author defended religion, as any intelligent person can realize when they see the Spanish Court, hence that part of the story is not impossibility contained. The book is nicely printed and bound and can be had at San Francisco News Co., 210 Post street, at $1.00.

THE OLD TIMES AND THE NEW.

This is a great country and this is undoubtedly a great administration. While Mr. Arthur is in the White House, at the Yellowstone Park, and every member of his cabinet is absent from the Capital, some of them are enjoying the cool breeze of Long Branch, the President's daughter, Nellie Arthur, the President's young and only daughter, is taking a trip along New England coast on the United States steamship, the starred from Governor's Island in New York harbor, the day before her sister and towards the setting sun. She is accompanied by Mrs. McElroy, the President's sister, her daughter, and by Miss Jennie Arthur, daughters of Major Arthur, the President's brother. The Dispatch will run the coast as far as Portland and Mount Hood and the length of the trip will be at the wishes of Miss Nellie and her companions. The cruise will be a most pleasant one, and the arrangement. When James Buchanan was President, one of his sons was undertaken to use a United States vessel for a pleasure trip, along with several of his friends, Washington to Fortress Monroe, and the cost was made a matter of Congressional inquiry, and it did not sit in very pleasant way. The cost of the President's son's pleasure trip was paid by the people, allowing them to be the people who paid the bill, and they paid it. He and then was called a hog by the opposition. The trip of Chester A. Arthur's daughter may now be in Congressional, and the have changed wonderfully since 1852 and accepted that conclusion.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

St. James P. O'Hare, rector of St. Patrick's Church, Rochester, New York, during a part of the time of this year cleared the cathedral of its debt, which was in April was over $6,000, only to an amount (last April) by Rt. Rev. Bishop Gilmour, particularly directed the members of the congregation, fifty-seven of whom gave $100 each, and the balance of $2,000 by the other members subscribing $100 each, to a total $62,000, the entire debt on the cathedral has consequently been paid off. The congregation within this year has promptly effected (in less than two years) improvements in the cathedral and in the rectory, and the cathedral parish divided into two distinct parishes, for each of which a sufficient number of collectors was appointed.—Cath. Review.

MONITOR REVISED.

The Pictures taken at the Imperial, 734½ Market.

W. Tucker & Co., fine watches and Watches and clocks repaired. Cutlery and Jewelry store.

J. Lynch, carpenter and builder, 433 Third street Silver. Store and office fitting and jobbing promptly attended to.

Pawnbroker, 661 Howard street. Money for any length of time, on Clothing, Jewelry, Building and all Household Goods.

F. H. Torrill has removed from 215 Sansome to 630 Sacramento street (corner Sansome) where he will be pleased to see his friends.

J. Maxwell.

Prepared to furnish sets of teeth in any advertised rate? Yes, $6 will fetch a single broken plate for $1 at T. Upton Field street.

Dr. Pierce, as Girard's, 339 Sutter St. Mary Josephine of Notre Dame says:

Gentlemen—I have used Wheeler's Pancea on first class stock of new and second-hand pianos, and have found it to be the best.

Those who desire to keep up with the times and style and hold for economic patronize Mrs. Maloney 28 Sixth street, who undertakes cut to order, a fine line of and ladies underwear, also all kinds of Ladies.

The Prescott House, corner of Kearny street and Bush street, under the proprietorship of J. W. Decker, continues to be one of the most comfortable hotels in the city. The rooms are well furnished and the table is well by the week. The accommodation for the public and country readers will find the cheap, central and commodious.

The Ladies Bazaar, on the hill behind the Palace, is the refreshing shower to the withered flowers, as the fresh, sparkling water to the thirsty, so to the dropping invalid, fever tossed and worn with pain, is Tutt Pomeroy's Hair Dressing with it rest and refreshment.

Persons intend to lay in a supply of superior Fuel during Winter it would be wise to Thomas Mitchell, 630 Geary street, who has a large stock of Coal of all kinds, the celebrated Wellington brand, and will be the best and most economical.

Persons who reside in any portion of the country from 500 Geary street, can Morton through telephone No. 2122.

"Velvet Jaya" cosmetic is a marvelous thing, if ever, found in other goods; is another creation of its ability for rapid and the grower's boast; it is what every lady wherever buys a package to distribute to her friends of it; it fade before it is used, and yet gives a most charming color to the cheeks of the wicked. You grocers, and manufacturers of Chicago 20 and 22 Front street.

WE KNOW IT!

Great Long; no one so taken to pay freight for goods; we understand that Ned Ward only charges 1 per cent. commission on purchases of any kind, and that he is prepared to buy closest with our customers; now he is in HIS OWN CASH STORE, 319 Pine St., and get it!

FLOUR.

Is as soft it will be to assume to come. But if you get the product now in market, now and then, and then, and then,

CONSECRATION CEREMONIES OF ARCHBISHOP RIORDAN.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

Kavanagh, Mahle, Hannan, McManus, Burke, Fagan, Lamoure, S. J.; Flanagan, O'Neil, S. J.; Walsh, Tighe, Horgan and Malvoisin. The order of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, occupied seats on the gallery, with two orders of the Sisters of Mercy, an order of the Sisters of St. Joseph, and of the Little Sisters of the Poor.

The choir under the direction of Prof. de Cosmo, rendered Haydn's "Third Mass" with a chorus of sixty voices, accompanied by an orchestra of twenty pieces. The soloists were: Miss F. Pauly, A. Holstadt, Isabella Lake, A. Kemble, Rpt. J. Ryan and Mayer. C. Gleason and A. P. Langlois. The musical portion of the programme concluded with Haydn's great Te Deum. Among prominent Catholics were present at the ceremonies, besides those who were Judges Moran and Dunn, W. J. Quinlan, Michael Reddy, William Dunn, Alex Sullivan, Prof. J. A. Lyons, Dr. Lilly, Mrs. Riordan, mother of Bishop Riordan, and Mrs. Dr. Lilly, the Bishop's sister.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

A touching incident followed the consecration. As soon as the ceremony was over, Bishop Riordan refreshed to one of the front pews, where and his mother whom tear-stained face showed the deepest of her emotion. Tenderly leaning his hand upon her he bent down and kissed her. The subject of the incident was the lady who had worked her fame to her hands. His grace stood for a moment irresolute, and then suddenly his lips turned away. Two other old ladies then received the same attention, and then the venerable old prelate, so lost, then in the halls of the church, whose head, through years of labor and through chief of the other a body, vigorous and strong, and yet, as he stood in the throes of his kindred, they had two of the best seats in the parish pews, and the people made them stand to be quietly seated and adorned with various jewels, diamonds. The gathering was most democratic, allow the services in the church. Many of the prominent the visiting bishops and priests of the province, the bishop's mother.

TESTIMONIALS FROM ARCHBISHOP RIORDAN'S FLOCK.

Congregatory Addresses and $5,000 in Coin.

In the crowding he Green Bishop Riordan, accompanied by his mother, left the church, followed by the visiting Vicars and the benediction of the Most Reverend Ireland of St. Paul, and St. Rev. Bishop Ireland of Little Rock, also Rev. Bishop Gilmore of Cleveland, who was by the Archbishop Ireland, Bishop Gilmore, Bishop Keane, Archbishop Feehan, and the clergymen of the city, and the Bishop of Sacramento, who the Chosen had during the day received a telegram from the Pope, who was in Rome to which he was held. The service was performed by Father Prendergast, who read a letter addressed to him attended the consecration, and the seals of the pontiff, which he had received from the direction of Prof. de Cosmo, rendered Haydn's "Third Mass" with a chorus of sixty voices, accompanied by an orchestra of twenty pieces. The soloists were: Miss F. Pauly, A. Holstadt, Isabella Lake, A. Kemble, Rpt. J. Ryan and Mayer. C. Gleason and A. P. Langlois. The musical portion of the programme concluded with Haydn's great Te Deum. Among prominent Catholics were present at the ceremonies, besides those who were Judges Moran and Dunn, W. J. Quinlan, Michael Reddy, William Dunn, Alex Sullivan, Prof. J. A. Lyons, Dr. Lilly, Mrs. Riordan, mother of Bishop Riordan, and Mrs. Dr. Lilly, the Bishop's sister.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

A touching incident followed the consecration. As soon as the ceremony was over, Bishop Riordan refreshed to one of the front pews, where and his mother whom tear-stained face showed the deepest of her emotion. Tenderly leaning his hand upon her he bent down and kissed her. The subject of the incident was the lady who had worked her fame to her hands. His grace stood for a moment irresolute, and then suddenly his lips turned away. Two other old ladies then received the same attention, and then the venerable old prelate, so lost, then in the halls of the church, whose head, through years of labor and through chief of the other a body, vigorous and strong, and yet, as he stood in the throes of his kindred, they had two of the best seats in the parish pews, and the people made them stand to be quietly seated and adorned with various jewels, diamonds. The gathering was most democratic, allow the services in the church. Many of the prominent the visiting bishops and priests of the province, the bishop's mother.

TESTIMONIALS FROM ARCHBISHOP RIORDAN'S FLOCK.

Congregatory Addresses and $5,000 in Coin.

[illegible] received a good many congratulations from dignitaries of the church from abroad, but had not nothing which so touched him as this exhibition of the feelings of his own people. Much alone had been manifested by other people that Catholics was growing, the greatest that his audience would not honor those other people by fearing that their views were spreading. He where he might, his parishioners would always remain the to his heart. He had shown his people during the last years of his life and devoted his energies to [illegible] which had made them, he hoped, the thought of them and the interest he had in them [illegible] he would tell them of at some future time when opportunity offered, as well as to thank them for the consolation he would say to them [illegible] not speak a few things for God." In conclusion he advised that they pray earnestly for his people therefore be turned to beauty and [illegible] and [illegible].

Others besides his grace were richly affected, for seldom left a parish a priest more loved than he was.

THE WEEK'S NEWS

—FROM—

IRELAND.

The Representation of Limerick.

Mr. Hastings, an attorney of Limerick, has issued a confidential address to the electors of Limerick county, in which he announces that he is a candidate for a seat in parliament. It is generally conceded that he has no chance of success against the Parnellite candidate, whoever he may be. The man most prominently mentioned for the candidate of the National party is Lim. [illegible] in Mr. Carey, a son of a popular landlord in King's county. His brother was buryoned as a convert to Protestant, a fact which tends to make the whole family favorites among the popular party.

Prendergast Killed in Mayo.

The effects of prendergast in Connemara, county Mayo has entirely subsiged. His Grace Most Rev. Dr. McEvilly, in his report of his Connemara tour through the district, says he was pleased to observe the signs of a return to tranquillity and the beneficial effects in the district of Clifden, and indeed all through Connemara. The crops of harvesters appear to have blighted all the efforts of prendergast. The potato crop remain. The death stroke of Connemara prendergast has been given by the erection of a numerous Catholic schools, that now dot the [illegible] district. These schools have grown up in by magic in every quarter, their neat exteriors and freshness strike a happy contrast with the [illegible] squalid hovels of the peasantry.

John Dillon for Mayo.

The patriotic people of Mayo are evidently determined to old themselves the disgrace of being represented in the parliament of the empire by an imperial vampire, John O'Connor Power. Mr. Dillon, son of the author of the famous letters and patriotic men that has ever honored the Irish parliamentary party, has which is known to be a man who knows what he was held. The service was performed by Father Prendergast who read a letter addressed to him attended the consecration, and the seals of the pontiff, which he had received from the direction of Prof. de Cosmo, rendered Haydn's "Third Mass" with a chorus of sixty voices, accompanied by an orchestra of twenty pieces. The soloists were: Miss F. Pauly, A. Holstadt, Isabella Lake, A. Kemble, Rpt. J. Ryan and Mayer. C. Gleason and A. P. Langlois. The musical portion of the programme concluded with Haydn's great Te Deum. Among prominent Catholics were present at the ceremonies, besides those who were Judges Moran and Dunn, W. J. Quinlan, Michael Reddy, William Dunn, Alex Sullivan, Prof. J. A. Lyons, Dr. Lilly, Mrs. Riordan, mother of Bishop Riordan, and Mrs. Dr. Lilly, the Bishop's sister.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

A touching incident followed the consecration. As soon as the ceremony was over, Bishop Riordan refreshed to one of the front pews, where and his mother whom tear-stained face showed the deepest of her emotion. Tenderly leaning his hand upon her he bent down and kissed her. The subject of the incident was the lady who had worked her fame to her hands. His grace stood for a moment irresolute, and then suddenly his lips turned away. Two other old ladies then received the same attention, and then the venerable old prelate, so lost, then in the halls of the church, whose head, through years of labor and through chief of the other a body, vigorous and strong, and yet, as he stood in the throes of his kindred, they had two of the best seats in the parish pews, and the people made them stand to be quietly seated and adorned with various jewels, diamonds. The gathering was most democratic, allow the services in the church. Many of the prominent the visiting bishops and priests of the province, the bishop's mother.

TESTIMONIALS FROM ARCHBISHOP RIORDAN'S FLOCK.

Congregatory Addresses and $5,000 in Coin.

In the crowding he Green Bishop Riordan, accompanied by his mother, left the church, followed by the visiting Vicars and the benediction of the Most Reverend Ireland of St. Paul, and St. Rev. Bishop Ireland of Little Rock, also Rev. Bishop Gilmore of Cleveland, who was by the Archbishop Ireland, Bishop Gilmore, Bishop Keane, Archbishop Feehan, and the clergymen of the city, and the Bishop of Sacramento, who the Chosen had during the day received a telegram from the Pope, who was in Rome to which

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

GOD IN HIS WORKS.

Translated from the Spanish of Ramon Uhe, by Harriet M. Skinner, Detroit.

Lord! never have I doubted Thy Illimitable power,
And I am around me reflects Thine image fair,
Then breathed in the zephyr that but stirs the fragile flower,
And Thy Voice is in the hurricane that rends the trembling air.

The people of deep that glisten with the sole sovereignty
Spread brightness, and the fish that sleep Upon the sweet crevice of the half unbalanced rock,
The foam that crests the rockbit with the wonders of sacred volume,
The fleecy clouds mentioned when the rolling and sound arise,
The nest beneath the palm branch by the crisis of the storm,
The rainbow-painted plumage of the swift-winged humming bird,
The cousins of the summer day, in royal raiment enlisted,
The little of wild-wood songsters in the early dawn-light hours,
The lark upon a wealthy gushing from the dread volcanic mountains,
The morning waves that gather as the wildly bounding sea,
The balmy breeze, the sweet of the softly shaded The heaven roar of this tempest as he roars, in savage glee.

The corse of the dead people who in their sheltered cribs sleeping,
Rebuke the mandate of Thy will benefactress,
Even the hopes of thy stones on the breast of air are intwined,
All these, Lord, have love for him as sweet poetry, Poem gardens render, now, a moment here.
Thy whole the connection of Thy Will, Will draw from you a tear, from heart a sigh.

Sighs! sigh! That dwelling cannot be replaced
In confidence and—Alas! in truth, a heart
The pitiable nature, and the sighing, a heart
Of sorrow and affection, thing not.

Yes, Death's commission agent, full Dissolution,
Is parcel of the wisdom, and favor
With choicest favor—Its image is appropriate
That in life's contest God had ever seen.

Thus pitiable flower had some consumed in the
When Death's forward's coverlet of fresh
Then stifled life's native tide, and gave the bosom
The bud that seemed to be the fairest.

But stop! Who does expose what Fate decreed
Or hold what Providence had bound in Reid?
Who, Lord, of the firmament now sees
Another brilliant star, the newest birth!
Sky! Jesus Edward Pinkstaffe.
San Francisco, July 18th, 1868.

ODES OF THE CARDINALS.

The oldest Cardinal is the feared College in Cardinal Bonaparte, Archbishop of Rome, and Cardinal Antonelli, Archbishop of Rome, and Cardinal Gaillard, Archbishop of Paris, Cardinal Bonaparte, Archbishop of Rome, and Cardinal Antonelli, Archbishop of Rome, and Cardinal Gaillard, Archbishop of Paris, and

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1883.

CIRCULAR FROM ARCHBISHOP ALEMANY, O. P.

Indulgences Granted for Reciting the Rosary.

The following Circular had been addressed by Archbishop Alemany, O. P., to all the Rev. Clergy of the Archdiocese:

San Jose Sev. Our Most Holy Father, Leo XIII., in order to encourage us to a greater devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary, and to implore her powerful intercession, particularly, in these times, when the enemies of the Church are using all their efforts to oppress her, has prescribed the following:

1. That the Feast of the Most Holy Rosary be celebrated this year with peculiar devotion and solemnity.

2. That from the first day of the month of October till the second of the following November, five decades, at least, of the Most Holy Rosary, with the Litanies of our Blessed Lady of Loretto, shall be recited in all Churches wherein the Holy Ministry is exercised.

Thus may shall this be observed in other Churches, or Oratories dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, in the manner in which their respective Ordinaries may deem most useful and expedient. But it is desirable that, wherever it can be conveniently done, the Litanies of Loretto, with the invocation of the Blessed Sacrament be repeated in the Christian Congregation. But, in order that these devotions be performed more willingly and with greater profit to the faithful, the Holy Father has granted a plenary indulgence and twenty thousand days of indulgence from the treasury of the Church.

3. A Plenary Indulgence to all those, who, on the feast of the Most Holy Rosary, or, where this cannot be done, on the Sunday within the octave of the Rosary, or, on the first day of each of the following octave, after Confession and Holy Communion, will have visited the Church, and there have offered fervent prayer to God for the necessities of the Church, according to the intention of St. Patrick.

4. An indulgence of seven years and as many quarantines, which shall be of the faithful may gain as often as they shall have devoutly performed the above-mentioned exercise of the Holy Rosary in any Church, parish or chapel belonging to the Dominican or Ex Regular Clergy. But His Holiness graciously grants to those who cannot under a disability proceeded to the church, that they may gain the same indulgence, provided they privately recite the prayer of the Rosary and the Litanies, according to the intention of His Holiness.

But, with regard to those who during that time, namely, between the first day of October and the second of November, will have received for the first time at the above-mentioned exercise of the Most Holy Rosary, the Sacrament of Confirmation, will have privately performed it, His Holiness grants another Plenary Indulgence to the same, if they duly confess and receive the Blessed Eucharist and pray as above, according to the intention of the Sovereign Pontiff, which indulgence may one time only, and in any convenient day within the above mentioned time.

Those, therefore, have the effects daily announced, celebrating the faithful under your charge in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, implore of our Mother of God, and to avail themselves of the proffered blessings granted by our Holy Father.

Yours truly in Christ,

✠ J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,

Archbishop of San Francisco.

San Francisco, Sept. 27, 1883.

Next Sunday will be a feast which has particular significance to all Catholics. We do it from that date not love the Mother of our Lord, loving her, who among the Blessed Men of the Blessed Virgin will not, on next Sunday, give due honor to that heavenly Mother who has given to the world the Saviour of supernatural love—the Lily-Bearer?

The feast, on the coming Sunday, will fall on precisely the same day as that upon which the Christians celebrated the great victory over the Turks at the battle of Lepanto, through the intercession of the ever Immaculate Queen of Heaven, and on this occasion—in order to limit the feast, in order to greater devotion, our Holy Mother the Church has promised spiritual reward to all her children who observe this beautiful and salutary feast with a worthy manner, and which are fully set forth in Archbishop Alemany's Circular.

We intended to present our readers with an engraving of St. Dominic's Church for this week's MONITOR, but the engraver was unable to complete it in time for publication, so we have to postpone the illustration until next week, when it will appear. We can only say that the engraving is the counterpart of the original, and is the most elegant and perfect specimen of the art of the country.

ALEMANY SEMINARY.

The beautiful and absolutely science and magnificent Alemany Seminary, which the Rev. Father Kenny, of the Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church, conceived in Old Gentleman Alemany, and which, in the midst of hundreds that were so fortunate as to be present, was so fortunate as to be present at the opening of the Seminary, and to be present at the opening event, and to be present at the Seminary, and to be present at the Seminary, and to be present at the Seminary

A WOMAN'S NERVE.

White Plains is the unfruitful name of a narrow court that runs down a hundred feet or more from the south side of Eighteenth-street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues. On the first floor of the last tenement lives back-driver Thomas Buckley. One night lately Mrs. Buckley sat in her front room until 11½ o'clock, reading a newspaper. Her two children were asleep in a bed in the adjoining room, the sliding doors standing open. Before preparing for bed she knelt down by the side of her chair to pray. While still on her knees she heard a quick step on the pavement of the court, and then in the hall. The door opened. As the step was like that of her husband she remained on her knees till her prayers were said, and then swung to her feet. Turning around she found that a stranger was in the room. The man was tall, had dark hair and light mustache, and was decently dressed. He had a pleasant face. Bowing, he said:

"I have been looking for you for fifteen years."

"Looking for me for fifteen years?" said Mrs. Buckley, in great surprise. "You have the advantage of me. I don't know you."

"Thinking he might be some friend or relative of her own family, she invited him to sit down. He took a chair by the table.

"Though you may not know me," he said, "I want to see you. You are the Goddess of prayer, are you not?"

The woman became frightened. Mrs. Buckley, into a faint, for she saw then that his eyes were unusually dull and his manner strangely indicating of the safety of her children, and knowing that if she screamed her husband would be likely to reach her quickly at that hour, she controlled herself with an effort and answered slowly:

"Yes, I am. Now, what do you want?"

"I will tell you what I want. I am a surgeon, a French surgeon, educated at the University of Paris. For thirty years I have devoted my life to the human body to learn its wonders. For twenty years I have devoted myself especially to the heart. Now I develop a live one to dissect, in order that I may see its phenomena. I have you would do here, and that your health demanded that your heart be taken out and dissected. That is why I come. Did you ever hear of dissecting the heart while it was alive?"

"Oh, yes," said Mrs. Buckley, "I know those doctors only cut a little ways from here who tried it, but they failed."

"Of course they did. I never fail."

"Do you never fail. I am sure of that."

"Do you, indeed? Well, I am brighter, big up.

"Thinking he would see the children, or that they would attract his attention, she changed her shoulders and looking round, said: "How cold it is. Don't you feel a draught? I think I'd better shut the door."

"I want that door open for my own," he said, "for your heart must be kept warm." As she sat down, the doctor saw, for a moment, a phosphorescent gleam in the dull eyes of the woman.

"Just the thing," he said, pointing to it. "I can tie you in the large arm-chair, perform experiments, return the heart and you will never know a pang. Just a little prick, and you will live for ever. See!"

He drew from his pocket a bright ball a dozen small knives and scalpels, each wrapped in cotton and fastened to the ball. He unfolded and fastened to her one at a time to show that such was a "absolute condition of painless work." Shuddering, and yet fascinated, she asked:

"But," he said, when she had looked at the knives, "what is the intention?"

"That you tie yourself to the chair, so that I may not be hindered by your struggles. I want the heart in your bosom. I want it well and the organ in its place."

"Then other doctors had a table when they cut me," said the woman, hoping to hold the woman down on it right. "I know where to find the heart, and I can do it quicker when it is situated about as I am. The live just two down down the street from this house, and if you will come with me I will show you, and in this house I promised on a bet that I would go up to the top floor and tie one fall and get out on our way. What do you think of it?"

"Is the woman raised the man readily assented. "It's cold out, isn't it?" she said, as she rose from her chair.

She said this to keep him from thinking she only wanted to get him out of the house. Her husband was a big man, and she could be kept warm. Throwing a shawl over her head and shoulders, she slipped through the hall to the court, hoping to get him down the street, two doors from the court, to a saloon that was open, and that had been frequented by her husband. They walked slowly up the court to the street the street, the doctor talking of nothing but to wrap herself in order to keep her heart warm. In passing the saloon she saw her husband, who was talking to the bartender, and the coldness of a man, but the usual was in the saloon. Mrs. Buckley had did but dare to take the risk of screaming. Just as she was passing the doorway the doctor asked her if her heart was still warm, and then Mrs. Buckley was shoved aside, and three men sprang from the doorway behind. They had sprung from the shadow of the doorway, and had heard everything. As the doctor was seized, the only sounds being the breathing of the men and their scuffle, and the clatter of the knives on the stone pavement of the court. After a time the doctor was secured with handcuffs on his wrists and ankles. He was not widely conquered then, but had to be carried to the end of the court. There, one of the men gave a whistle, and a close wagon, like an ambulance, drove up. He was lifted in, and then the others got in with him, and he was driven away.

It happened that the man who did during the fight, had him, Buckley to the reporter, "I didn't twist. After he was once down one of the men said something about his being an unusual man, and that I must not say anything about it."

Old Hard-Shell.

You probably think if you look very sharply at an old shoe when you throw it, you will know it again if it ever comes back to you. But that doesn't at all follow. One of these days you may broken your nose in a hole, or have your hair, or gray overnight, turn your hair with a hood, or grow a cast off patter while at your dinner. That is no reason why you should be taken for account by manufacturers in the following manner: They put up into very small pieces, and kept for a couple of days in chloride of sodium. The effect of this is to make the leather hard and brittle. Next the material is withdrawn from the action of the chloride of sodium, washed with water, and dried. When thoroughly dry it is ground to powder, and mixed with the chemical glue of gum, that comes it to adhere together. It is then pressed into moulds and shaped into bottoms, combs, hairfashion, etc.

—The great Mexican remedy, Damiana Bitters.

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of these Luminous Goods, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet that which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonderful discovery, conveys but a vague impression of the marvels which have been brought to light through the spirit of inquiry and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which arouse the flight of imagination and pinions it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Cerqui's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the Mormon and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherein to incite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the MONITOR, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at retail prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES!
NIGHT CROSSES!
NIGHT STATUES!
VISIBLE
—IN THE—
DARKEST ROOM!

When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.

THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,
—HAD A—
LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!
—AND SAID—
"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journal

Through the courtesy of Messrs. J. R. Maxwell & Co., proprietors of M. Cerqui's Chemical Compound, we were favored with a private view of one of the most wonderful discoveries of the nineteenth century, which, performed with a private view of one of the most wonderful discoveries of the nineteenth century, which, performed in the dark, shows forth every sort of figure we desire to see in the darkest room, where first I saw only plain pieces of cardboard, cut in the form of a cross, which, on manipulating, disappeared, but the figures of the Saviour suspended to them, shone out in clear, delicate, luminous outline, and, while looking up in the foreground was the figure of the Virgin Mary, with her mantle of blue and her face of the purest white, while in the background was the figure of St. Joseph leaning a crook that seemed to emit light. If ever a feeling of faith and veneration possessed a Catholic, it then overwhelmed the writer; the scene was so novel and reverential. Upon turning up the gas, everything was as before, but there was a bracket in our chamber, and in the darkness of night it seemed to me, I slept not. He cross watches and guards you.

No 1, A Cross 18 inches high, with Pedestal	$1 00.
2, A Crucifix, with a figure of 8 inches	2.00.
3, " " 10 "	2.50.
4, " " 14 "	3.00.
5, " " 18 "	3.00.
6, Statue of Blessed Virgin, 11 "	3.00.
7, " St. Joseph, 11 "	3.00.

Other Statues and Religious Articles will be Announced Shortly.

A DISCOUNT TO THOSE ORDERING IN QUANTITIES.

Address Orders to

A. WALDTEUFEL,
General Agent for the Pacific Coast,
SAN JOSE, CAL.

RELIABLE CANVASSERS WANTED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DUPLEX GALVANIC BELT

BEST IN THE WORLD.

THE HIGHEST PREMIUM AT THE MECHANICS' Fair, the greatest Positive agent known. The Pacific Electric Co., Sole Proprietors.

RUPTURE
Positively Cured.
PACIFIC ELECTRIC PAD TRUSS.

A NEW SENSATION. THE BEST INVENTION IN Electricity. Without Medicine or Cost to the Patient. Pacific Electric Co., Sole Proprietors, 203 Bush-street, San Francisco.

PHILADELPHIA BREWERY.
JOHN WIELAND - - - PROPRIETOR
SECOND STREET, NEAR FOLSOM.
Amount of Beer sold in 1882, 64,189 barrels.

Pacific Coast Agency
GENUINE
J. N. GUTTER WHISKIES,
A. P. STOTELING & CO.,
San Francisco, Cal.

WITH
FIVE DOLLARS
YOU CAN BUY A WORLD
DUDAL BRUNSWICK
GOVERNMENT BOND,
Which bonds are issued and secured by the above Government and are redeemable in coinage

THREE THOUSAND ANNUALLY.
Bonds each and every bond is drawn.
THE THREE HIGHEST PRIZES AMOUNT TO
100,000 Reichsmarks
50,000 " "
25,000 " "
And bonds not drawing one of the above prizes must share a Premium of not less than 40 Marks, at three are 70 Marks.
One Reichsmark equal to about 24 cents Gold.
The next drawing takes place on the 1st of November, 1883.
Country orders sent to Bremerhaven Lloyds, including 25 cents one of these bonds for the said drawing.
For circulars and other information address the
INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO.,
307 B'way, cor. Walker st., New York City.
Bremerhaven in 1874.
N. B.—In writing to us, please state that you saw this in the MONITOR.
Beware of the Bad Faith Bonds are not to be compared with any Lottery whatsoever, and do not conflict with any State laws of the United States.

RAZORS!
I WILL MAKE A BETTER RAZOR AND HONE OF THEM IN THE MORE THAN THEY ARE NOW IN THE WORLD
My razors are guaranteed $6 5
My Guard Razors warranted not to cut the face while shaving 5 5
Good English Razors 1 00
Best English Razors 1 50
Sent C. O. D. or by mail.
M. PRICE,
418 Kearny Street.
Grinding and Repairing.

MISS JANE GRAY,
Teacher of Elocution, Oratory and Drama.
Particular Attention paid to Voice Culture.
ST. ANN BUILDING,
COR POWELL AND EDDY STREETS, ROOM 100.

McCormick Brothers,
BOOK AND JOB
PRINTERS
HAVE REMOVED TO
636 Clay Street,
(In same Building as the Morning Office.)
San Francisco - - - California.
We Possess every Facility for the Execution of JOB PRINTING
—IN THE—
Cheapest, Neatest & Quickest Manner.

THE CATHOLIC
Mutual Beneficial
ASSOCIATION
—OF THE—
Archdiocese of San Francisco.
President - - Rev. J. B. McNally.
Total Benefits paid to date . . . $15,945
Balance in Treasury July 1st, 1883 . 7,097
Total Membership to July 1st, 1883 . 1,440
This organization offers the sanctuary, safest and cheapest mode of life insurance extant. It incorporates all of Catholic Ireland between the ages of 18 and 55 years, and is fully recognized and approved by the Most Archbishop Alemany, O. P., and from continued support to the Archdiocese as well as in many other dioceses in the Archdiocese as well as in many other dioceses in the United States.
Application for membership can be made to any member, or at the office of the association, No. 115 Montgomery street (under the Occidental Hotel) where the Secretary will be in attendance every evening (except Sundays), from 7½ to 9½ o'clock, and where information relative to the Association may be obtained. Circulars containing information relative to the Association, and copies of the Constitution and Rules, can be obtained on application.
EDWARD GILDEA, Secretary,
1219 Jones Street.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.
SANTA CLARA . . . . CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a moral and intellectual education. One feature in particular that should recommend this Academy, is the fullness and ease of the pupils to views and habits of economy and to render them useful members of society in after years.
The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.
Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, payable in advance.
Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.
Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding, $50
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 6th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE
SANTA CLARA, ... CALIFORNIA
THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL SESSION will commence Tuesday, August 7th. This institution was founded in 1851, and in 1852 was incorporated with the privileges of a University. It occupies 4 large buildings, with extensive shady play-grounds, covered gymnasium, swimming bath, and possesses a most complete Philosophical Apparatus, and valuable collections of Mineralogy and Geology. It has, also, practical schools of Assaying, Surveying, Telegraphy, Phonography, and Book-keeping. For the latter a new building 186x40 has just been finished, and leaves nothing to be desired.
Diplomas are given in two departments—the Classical and Scientific—and Certificates in the Commercial course.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-annually in advance)
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once, $15 00
Board, Washing, Tuition in all branches, Bedding and Washing of Linen, School Stationery, medical attendance and Medicine, Baths, etc., per session of ten months 250 00
For further particulars apply to the President of Santa Clara College, or P. O. Box 1, San Francisco, Cal. REV. R. E. KENNA, S. J., 1a3 President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Fifth and Jackson Sts., OAKLAND, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School for young ladies, and is under the care of the Sisters of Mercy. The course of instruction includes all the branches of a solid and refined education.
TERMS:
Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per session $250 00
EXTRA CHARGES
Piano, with use of Instrument, per session. $60 00
Vocal Music, Class Lessons 20 00
Vocal Music, Private Lessons 30 00
Drawing, per session 20 00
Painting in Water Colors, per session. 30 00
Painting in Oil, per session 40 00
Velvet Embroidery at the Stitch 20 00
Gymnastic Exercises 10 00
Physician's Fees (in case of sickness) 10 00
Bills are presented and are payable at the beginning of each half year.
SELECT DAY SCHOOL.
Terms per month (cash in advance.)
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Collegiate Classes $6 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Collegiate Classes. 5 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes. 4 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Intermediate Classes 3 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes. 2 50
Music (Piano or Instrumental), Drawing, Painting and Private Elocution lessons are extra charge, as in Boarding School. Pupils can come to French and Spanish classes, piano, music and drawing lessons, free of charge.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
THOSE WHO COMPLETE THE CLASSICAL Schools, R. R. Cal. the Commercial course, receive a diploma.
The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to secure a good practical education in a short as time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, one very important feature is given to Elocution. The daily practice of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric, is also attended to, and encouraged to the elocutionary.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board, Tuition and Washing $200 00
Entrance Fee 10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicine 10 00
Vacation at College 50 00
Use Bedding 10 00
Music and Drawing form extra charges.
For further particulars address
BRO. BETTELIN, President.
1a3

ST. GERTRUDE'S ACADEMY,
RIO VISTA, SOLANO CO., CAL.
THIS ACADEMY FOR YOUNG LADIES, UNDER the direction of the Sisters of Mercy, is beautifully situated in the thriving town of Rio Vista, the prettiest town of Rio Vista. The location is remarkably healthy, the building new, and well adapted to the comfort of the pupils. The Academy is furnished with all the modern improvements, and the course of instruction combined all the usual branches of a solid education.
Pupils received at any time during the term, and charged from date of entrance.
The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five and a half months each. Vacation of one month in July.
TERMS PER SESSION, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE.
BOARDING PUPILS.
Board and Tuition, with use of bedding $125 00
Instrumental Music 20 00
Use of Piano 10 00
Drawing and Painting 10 00
Washing in class, Drawing, French, Piano and Ornamental Embroidery are not from extra charge.
DAY SCHOLARS.
Terms per month, in advance
Senior Class $6 00
Intermediate Class 4 00
Junior Class 3 00
Music, Piano lessons, with use of instrument 8 00
Music, Piano lessons, without use of instrument 4 00
For entrance fee required. For further information address
M. M. CARILLON, Superior.
ad 15

Convent of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart,
OAKLAND, ... CALIFORNIA.
CONDUCTED BY
The Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.
THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUATED between Washington street and Lake Merritt, commanding an extensive frontage on the lake. The building is furnished with all the modern improvements, an ample playing field opened to provide for the comfort of the boarders.
The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, and ornamental education.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board and tuition (French and Parlors included), $300 00
Bed and bedding 10 00
Use of instruments 10 00
Use of Piano, Harp, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN 1851, I chartered by the State Legislature, and endowed with all the rights and privileges of other Colleges and Institutions in the United States.
Reference required. For terms and particulars address,
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
Marysville, Cal.

INSURANCE.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY
OF CALIFORNIA.
FIRE AND MARINE.
Capital fully paid $200,000 00
Assets January 1, 1883 278,979
Losses paid since organization 897,333 70
PRINCIPAL OFFICE,
405 California Street, S. F.
JOHN H. WISE, President.
CHAS. A. LATON, Secretary.
FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE

UNION INSURANCE COMPANY
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,
ESTABLISHED IN 1861.
Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.
CAS H CAPITAL ..... $750,000 GOLD
PAID BACK, PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES, SOLID SECURITY.
DIRECTORS:
SAN FRANCISCO
R. Ferrotte, Nicholas Luning,
E. S. Pierce, John Parrott,
Moses Heller, James Moffit,
S. G. Kinzie, J. Rosenberg,
M. J. Connor, M. D. Sweeny,
J. Stubhaus, Isaac Bernstein,
Daniel Meyer, Gustave Touchard,
Adam Grant, J. G. Kittle,
Antonio Rosa, Geo C. Hickox,
Charles Kohler, J. F. Bald,
Joseph Sailer, Charles Bean,
Bartlett Doe, W. H. Hong,
I. Lawrence Peel, William Schulte,
A. Wall, Jno. Rodgers,
H. B. Stone, J. O. Eldridge,
A. B. Philips,
GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, President.
F. J. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. RAILEY, Secretary.
GEO. H. BOHEN, Surveyor.

PILES Anakesis Pain and Itching Piles. Cure in 1 to 3 days. Cure 10 days. Cure 10 days. Cure 10

Protestant Falsehoods Refuted.

HISTORICAL ERRORS TO BE CORRECTED.

POPE LEO'S GREAT WORK.

LETTER

OF OUR MOST HOLY LORD, LEO XIII., BY DIVINE PROVIDENCE POPE, TO THEIR EMINENCIES CARDINALS APPOINTED TO LEO XIII.-CHANCELLOR OF THE HOLY ROMAN CHURCH, JOHN BAPTIST PITRA, LIBRARIAN OF THE HOLY ROMAN CHURCH, JOSEPH HERGENRÖTHER, PREFECT OF THE VATICAN ARCHIVES.

Holiness Sees—Health and the Apostolic Benediction.

The Church relied upon by those who wish to put themselves and others on the Church of the Redeemer, is the Church of which Jesus Christ is the Author, and which He has made to be the Guardian and Teacher of the Truth. Now, the Church which we, Pius IX. and Our predecessors, have established in the City of Rome, and which Our predecessors have established in other places, is the Church which Our Redeemer founded upon the rock, and which, by the promise of the Holy Ghost, is to be the Pillar and Ground of the Truth. Wherefore, the Church which we Protestant Falsehoods Refuted.

HISTORICAL ERRORS TO BE CORRECTED.

POPE LEO'S GREAT WORK.

LETTER

OF OUR MOST HOLY LORD, LEO XIII., BY DIVINE PROVIDENCE POPE, TO THEIR EMINENCES CARDINALS APOSTOLIC OF LEGAL VICE-CHANCELLOR OF THE HOLY ROMAN OFFICES, JOHN BAPTIST PITRA, LIBRARIAN OF THE HOLY ROMAN CHURCH, JOSEPH HOMEBONONIUS, PREFECT OF THE VATICAN ARCHIVES.

Social Sects—Masonic and the Apostolic Revolutions.

The spheres rolled upon by the princes who rule in the Church and the Pontiffs who, by Divine Providence, are the subject of their meditations and their care, have the subject of their thoughts and their cares. We have come to see clearly that the Church is connected with and in vigorous harmony with the history of Christianity, and of ancient and modern civilization, and that the Church and Pontiffs and their acts are related with all the events of this century, and they are connected with them in the full sense of the word. Pontiffs have, as well as of that which was to be, and of that which has been, been the Pontiffs who have been the chief of the Papacy than to love of truth, for a thing which is not without benefit to the human race. It is not difficult to see that this object is to favor the revolution in Italy by giving a false coloring to history. Therefore is so much as it is by no means defined not only what every other which the Church possesses, but also the very of the Apostolic Chair, and the Apostolic See, and those Pontiffs who have the truth which should be known, and the people of this be brought to see whence they have received such good in the past, and may hope to receive as much in time to come. We have determined to a number of our great consuls, to communicate the contents to you, Beloved Sons, and to entreat to our revelations the best of pointing them to the defense.

Whoever looks with a calm and unprejudiced mind at the undoubtedness records of the past, and at the monuments of history, will see that the Pontiffs have been the most ardent and the most diligent defenders of the Church and the Papacy. For the Pontiffs have always shown the true nature and the influence of Christian institutions; by the which the Church has been and has been the cause of civilization, and the Church makes divine energy and strength of the Church makes the Church and the Pontiffs have put in their power the light, and have not prematurely before in the Church, and the Pontiffs have put in their power the world of hope, and the will power of the Church, and the Pontiffs have put in their power the world of hope, and the will power of the Church, and the Pontiffs have put in their power the world of hope, and the will power of

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

THE CHARMS OF DELUTHE.

BY REV. P. A. TEACY.

"Nonquam minus solus quam cum solus."

Far from the busy haunts of men,
Far from their bustle, toil and strife,
Within my own dear shady glen,
I lead a quiet, careless life.
While heavie with soothing cares are rife,
I seem alone where few intrude,
Yet more than what about Delphy hale,
Break not upon my solitude.

My mind may roam over the past,
I slowly may scan the page,
Of history, or of history's sage,
The Sacred Page, by age by age.
Or about and in thoughtful musing
Within my cherished cell of solitude,
In solitude I am alone.

Alone with God, whose power divine,
I feel in thought His awful throne
Whose power mighty working plan,
No wonder that my thoughts bedine
More nobly fitted for solitude
And revel in the truths that shine
My soul upon to solitude.

Oxford, N. Y.

THE MASTERS QUESTION.

Have ye looked for sheep in the desert
For those who have strayed their way?
Have ye been in the hot, dry desert
Where the lost and wanderer stray?
Where the lost and darkness reveal?
Do you go to the desert and seek
The point of your fold.

Have ye looked for the Shepherd's name?
"He is called for the poor and needy,
Will ye standing, on home, so dreary?
The Son of Man is come to save
He had nowhere to lay His head.

Have ye invited the living water
To the parched and thirsty land?
Have ye told to the sick and weary?
"Christ is the Great Physician"
Have ye told my fainting children,
Of the strength of the Father's hand?
Have ye pointed the lingering footsteps
To the shore of the Golden Land?

Hope ye stand by the sick and weary,
To smooth the pillow of death?
To smooth the sunken pillow
And strengthen the feeble limbs?
And speak to him, when the glory
Has crowned through the open door
Of the Saviour, Redeemer, Master,
Thou hast the servant he?

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH.

A Protestant Minister's Opinion.

In a lecture on "The Roman Catholic Church, in the City of New York," delivered on the 4th inst., in the First Congregational Church, the Rev. R. H. Pease, D.D., pastor of the church, said:

"The Roman Catholic Church, in the sense in which it is now known, dates from the Council of Trent, in the 16th Century. It possesses a body of doctrines, and a system of discipline, which have resulted in the development of Christianity and the Church. The form of Christianity which we have in the Roman Catholic Church, is the result of the Council of Trent. It is the 4th Church, in all Christendom

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1883.

The Pope's Encyclical on the Rosary.

On the third page of the present issue we print a beautiful and pathetic appeal from the Vicar of Christ to all the faithful, exerting them to renewed fervor in the service of the ever Blessed and Immaculate Mother of God. The words of Leo Fifteenth should be treasured in the inmost heart of every Catholic, hence we hope this beautiful Encyclical will be perused by all our readers, not only for the profit which will accrue to every soul therefrom, but also that the true Christian pleasure which fills the heart of every client of Mary may be increased by the knowledge which they will glean therefrom of the power and glory of the Immaculate Mother of God.

Pope Leo and the Thunderer.

Commenting on the letter of the Holy Father, which we published last week, the London Times says: "History contains no precedent for the Pope's letter, that when the Roman Empire decayed the Papacy stood as a bulwark against the flood of barbarism and of barbarism. The Church saved up the fragments of Greek and Roman literature. It fostered art and refinement. It civilized the invaders of the Western Empire. It raised its voice on behalf of Christian unity and peace. It gave Europe a center. It preserved by the temporal power, but as it was, a large section of Italy has still reason to pay more reverence dominion. On the whole, the Papacy may challenge historical investigation to compare its good and its evil deeds without much fear of the result. If the object of Pope Leo is to be admitted a verdict that the Vatican has filled in the historical part a place which no other history can fill, we think the verdict will be in favor of the Pontiff."

Yet the Secretary of War either compels the removal of that Protestant church from the Presidio grounds altogether, or else allows the erection of a Catholic church for Catholic worship within the Government enclosure.

This right the Secretary of War cannot be a great value the statement of the claim of our forth by the Monitor, and we never mean to rest until we have wrung from the power that be the full acknowledgment that Catholics have equal rights in this land which the representatives of this republican Government are bound to respect, and treasure among these is the right to worship God with the same freedom enjoyed by their Protestant fellow-citizens. This is all the Monitor seeks to secure for the Catholic soldiers and civilians on military reservations, and this we mean to secure if truth is powerful and most prevail.

— We learn from the Germania that the May laws are certainly doomed, and that the majority of the Sovereign Pontiff in regard to placing the Government of Prussia in such a position that the Church cannot fall to triumph, long as this last contest has continued.

— The consecration of Rt. Rev. Jacques Fabre, C.S.C., recently appointed coadjutor bishop of Toronto, will take place in Rome this month.

How the Tel-tic-graph Treats Catholic Matters.

If we are to place even the smallest reliance upon a cablegram from Rome published in the daily press on Monday last, the Catholic Church is about to collapse. This long experience of the unreliable manner in which Roman news reaches this country, when it comes by cable, has long since compelled us to place no reliance whatever upon the report from Rome that reach us through that channel. As a sample of the perverted style in which even a brief address of the Pope to some Italian pilgrims and priests is made to read like nonsense, we append the cablegram in question:

"Rome, September 7th.—The Pope, in his allocution upon receiving a large number of Italian pilgrims in St. Peter's to-day, said he rejoiced to see the concert existing between the clergy and their flocks. The conspiracy of sects has reduced the Papacy to a condition unworthy of its rank. The historical remember of learned men proved that the Papacy is no enemy to Italy, but that it had always been retarded by foreign benevolence. True civilization derived from the Papacy increased vitality and strength. The real object of sectarians in depriving the Pope of temporal power was to strike a blow at the Church and rob Italy of the treasure of her faith. The recent Inquisition demonstration took the manifest. Blasphemous videos had been sent to the Pope. The conspiracy against Papacy of Catholicism is believed all patriotic and religious forces to unite and show themselves openly to Catholics, and to desire, above all things, to secure the Pope to their condition of liberty and independence which is his due.

"The Pope spoke for twenty minutes. He looked very pale, almost cadaverous. The audience numbered 10,000.

Catholics will appreciate the efforts of the cable manipulator who is smart enough or stupid enough to make Pope Leo XIII say that there is danger of the "destruction of Catholicism." Of course the Holy Father never even hinted at the remotest prospect of such a catastrophe, or he knows too well that such a fatality is utterly impossible so long as God reigns in Heaven, as He has promised to be with His Church even to the consummation of the world, and neither the cable-man nor any other manipulator of wires or words can alter or abbreviate the mandate of God.

The Holy Father, says the dispatch, "looked very pale," leading the uninitiated reader to understand that he was actually "wasted" at the situation of affairs, when the fact is that Pope Leo XIII. has always preserved a remarkably pale complexion, partaking somewhat of that "cadaverous" hue which generally denotes the ascetic life of a saint. Popes are not easily scared, and the sublimest will discover that beneath the pale countenance of the Pope there is an amount of faith in God's promises, hope in Heaven's help, and a celestial courage which is vouchsafed to none save and except the Vicar of Christ.

Freemasonry the Foe of Religion.

Already in those columns we have given unanswerable instances showing that Masonry was the foe of the Catholic Church. To those we have now to add another by that Rev. Anthony Kuhls, Pastor of St. Mary's Church, Wyandotte, Kan., written when from some reason he forgot for fresh vilest pay-out, and by this time he may have forged indictments from every Bishop on this count; but the description we have given of the Pope's encyclical, upon the criminal will, no doubt, protect the Rev. Clergy and the public in general from becoming victims to the wiles of this desperado—unless, indeed, the Rev. gentleman—is convinced by a woman whom he poses off for his sister, but the character of this man is fabulous evidence to prove the nature of the female partner of his travels.

That Protestant Church on the Presidio.

"The Monitor has been very properly roasted for the action of a Catholic chaplain in Virginia in the matter of the use of a Government property granted to a Protestant church. The Secretary of War has ordered the removal of the Presidio building. It is that he order the Catholic chaplain to give up every shingle for the religious use.

"The Catholic chaplain, it is said, has a right to protest, provided the Catholics are to be excluded from the use of the property, by getting the privilege to build a chapel of their own.

We think our excellent Democratic contemporary, the Sacramento Union, for the generosity in a cause for which the Monitor has had to struggle single-handed and alone against both prejudice and official influence. Even then our joy at the victory for the rights of conscience which we mean to achieve will be all the greater when it comes—even as it must—as we expect to be present at the dedication of a Catholic church on the Presidio inside of a year. As the American people and to stay on Fourth of July jubilee in degree of our patriotism—

"Our country is yet
And in God we will trust"

Until the Secretary of War either compels the removal of that Protestant church from the Presidio grounds altogether, or else allows the erection of a Catholic church for Catholic worship within the Government enclosure.

What Sort of Man was Martin Luther?

Rev. W. H. Anderdon, S.J., has written a timely pamphlet, which is published in London under the title: "What Sort of Man was Luther?" which contains the author answers by giving several extracts from the sayings of the notorious individual in question, whose fourth anniversary is about to be celebrated with great relat next month, when we shall doubtless hear a great deal about "the man that freed the intellect of Europe from the slavery of Popery," and other such nonsensical allusions to one whose work has proved a dire disaster to Christianity by its baneful influence upon the non-Catholic portion of the human family.

In his little work, Father Anderdon confines his extracts to Luther's own writings and extracts from the written opinions of a few of his contemporaries. But it must be borne in mind, by those not already familiar with the fact, that many of the sentiments expressed by this so-called Reformer are so vile in their language and so filthy in their meaning that no respectable journal would dare to let them diagram his columns. Only those who have read Luther's "Table Talk" are competent to form any idea of the grossness and vulgarity which ran riot in the debased mind of that miserable moneybank.

In order that our readers may form at least a faint idea of the man who led the Reformation revolution in their efforts to overturn the Church of Rome, we select a few extracts at random from Father Anderdon's pages, beginning with the author's sketch of the apostate who looked upon "women and wine" as the two great sources of consolation for all the pangs of conscience and the pains of the flesh to which fallen man is subject:

"Luther presents a marked contrast to Arnin in the other of his predecessors; in whom, in Luther, pride, not immorality, seems to have been their prominent characteristic. Not that they gained their position, kept it, and died in it free from the moral degradation which is raised above the average moral standard of their age. Luther, on the contrary, was continually a man of the flesh; and his utterances are the utterances of a man of nature. Perhaps nowhere those. The circumstances of the time make it impossible to put them forward.

Luther's greatest ambition was—not to serve God—but rather to serve the devil, by taking pains to make his contemporaries and posterity acknowledge that "endeavors" has discovered, if possible, a new sin greater in diabolical conformity than any crime known in the Decalogue.

Such a charge as this against one who is looked up to by millions of non-Catholics as the preserver and purifier of Christianity, would be attributed to Catholic prejudice against one of the founders of Protestantism, did we not have, in the writings of Luther himself, sufficient evidence of the truth of the charge. Here is the language of the Lucifer of the Reformation when writing to his boon companions:

"Poor Jerome Weller, you have temptations; truly, I know them well, for I have had them, and yet, in hatred of the Evil One, and to play him a trick, I say, 'I'm married, and I'm right, I'm right, and I'm right, I'm right, I'm right, Farm and Home.

Curiosities of Statistics.

Let us observe what our farms and farmers are annually producing for every man, woman and child of the country's population. The year 1880 produced for each person thirty bushels of corn, nine bushels of wheat, eight bushels of oats, one bushel of barley, two-fifths of a bushel of rye, one-tenth of a bale of cotton, three pounds of wool, two-thirds of a ton of hay, half a pound of hops, two pounds of rice, six pounds of tobacco, three and a half bushels of irish potatoes, and a half bushel of sweet potatoes.

Of animals there was one hog for every person, one head for every twenty-eight persons, one milch cow for every four persons, and two sheep for every three persons. There was also produced one and a half pounds of butter and a half pound of cheese made for each person, and the oven consumed sixty-two and a half pounds of bread, each for the year. Although our farm products seem immense in amount it is an astonishing fact that if every acre of Illinois was devoted to wheat for one year, and the average yield should be the moderate amount of twenty bushels to the acre, the crop would exceed in amount the entire wheat crop of the whole country for that year. If the State of Missouri was wholly devoted to corn, it would yield given a moderate yield of forty bushels to the acre, the aggregate would equal the entire corn crop of the country for the year 1880. The State of Kansas alone can raise best enough to feed the present population of the country. When we have ten times the present population, and have all our lands, are as well cultivated as the valley of the Nile, the aggregates of the farm products will be expressed in figures difficult to comprehend. Agriculture is becoming chemistry, and husbandry is becoming mechanics, so that one good man to-day can do as much work upon a farm as four men did fifty years ago.

Advice to Wives.

Wives often regret that their husbands do not talk to them. This is not the place to discuss the shortcomings of a man, but any one who has lived long enough to dig a reputation, frivolous details, the children, occasions of sympathy and sincerities with which men are familiar, and their husbands what they are over-burdened and anxious about their business, and that perhaps they seem man great tactfulness in their home. But is to a great deal. If a man is silent when with his wife and children. The husband and wife live so much of their time in a dull world would that a few "pleasant words" be a great help and pleasure to each of them. It is easy for a man to make a good talk, by telling him that he ought to talk, or telling him because he does not talk to us, to a pleasure for him to talk with you. Business good sense, good temper and tact in observing what is of interest to husband. Be patient under his moods of silence. Be observing the conversation of others, and the news of the world, of personal or independent details concerning friends and neighbors. Have conversation interesting or valuable to say. The story of your child's prattle may be full of interest to you, but if you tire your husband, the joy in the means you have wrapt may not be worth repeating. Cultivate good cheerfulness. Let your home be a place to rest from the bustle, complaining, etc. Make it a place to which your husband may come to relax and rest, to be at ease, to talk and think to be silent, or what outside his mouth with the world. Let your home be the law of kindness.

Girls Should Learn to Keep Houses.

No young lady can be too well instructed in everything that affects the comfort of a family. Wherever position in society she may occupy, she needs a practical knowledge of the duties of housekeeping. She may be placed in such circumstances that it will be a pecuniary benefit for her to perform many domestic labor; but on this account she needs no less knowledge that if she was expected to provide personally over the cooking stove and pantry. Indeed, I have often thought that a knowledge of the duties of a lady, and requires more experience, than to do the same work with our own hands.

Mothers are frequently so nice and particular in their arrangements, that they do not like to give up any part to their daughters. This is a great mistake, for they are often burdened with labor, and need relief. Children should be early taught to be useful—to contribute to their parents in every way in their power, and to consider it a privilege to do so.

Young people cannot realize the importance of a thorough knowledge of housekeeping, but those who have suffered the inconveniences and mortifications of ignorance. Children should be early inclined in their disposition to bake, and experiment in cooking in various ways. It is often but a trifle more, they should, still, is a great advantage to them.

I have a little girl, who, at nine years of age, made a loaf of bread every week in the family. She was taught how her mother wanted and flour to use, and she became an expert baker. Whenever she is disposed to bake, but when she has performed the duties, she is permitted to do so. She is thus, while amusing herself, learning an important lesson. Her mother calls her "her little housekeeper;" and she often permits her to get what is necessary for the table. She keeps the keys by her side, and very proud is their jingle in her ears. I think, before she is out of her teens, upon which she has not yet entered, she will have some idea how to cook.

Some mothers give their daughters the care of housekeeping, each week by turns. It seems to me a good arrangement, and a most useful part of education.

Domestic labor is by no means incompatible with the highest degree of refinement and mental culture. Some of the most elegant and accomplished women I have known, looked well to their household duties, and have honored themselves and their husbands by so doing.

Cleanliness of Stalls.

One of the most prolific causes of debilitated and offensive odors in kitchens and other out-offices in the presence of decaying grease. This comes from the emptying of bottles in which meat has been cooked, in the dish-water, and in the soap. The grease lodges in crevices and adheres at every obstruction. A remedy may be found in the use of a little alkaline instead of soap, equa ammonia in washing lawns and linen, and washing soda in cleaning dishes. These alkalies prevent a solid soap from forming in the sink and its pipes and neutralize all effects of decomposing fat.

—Our motto is "honorable dealing." We endeavor to fill our orders with first-class Illinois coal. Prices reduced delivered in all cities. Hunter & Co., 2161 California street, San Francisco.

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of those Luminous Glooms, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet that which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonderful discovery, conveys but a vague impression of the marvels which have been brought to light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which arrests the flight of imagination and pinions it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Cerqui's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the Monitor and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherein to incite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the Monitor, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. Waldteufel, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES!
NIGHT CROSSES!
NIGHT STATUES!
VISIBLE
—IN THE—
DARKEST ROOM!

When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.

THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,
—HAD A—
LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!
—AND SAID—
"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journal

Through the courtesy of Baron J. B. Shrevell & Co., proprietors of M. Cerqui's Chemical Compound, we was invited to a private view at one of the most wonderful exhibitions ever given and every ray of light was excluded, and in the darkness, where not I saw only plain plated objects, there stood out in clear, bright, awe-inspiring distinctness, first the figure of the Saviour in agonizing pain, as it were, then, on either side, the figures of Mary and Joseph. Then the Angelhood was upon, as it were, them, on either side, the figures of Mary and Joseph. Then the Angelhood was upon, as it were, them, on either side, the figures of Mary and Joseph. Then the Angelhood was upon, as it were, them, on either side, the figures of Mary and Joseph. It was a feeling of faith and reverence that possessed a Catholic. It was an inspiration to a heretic in our chamber, and in the darkness of night it seemed to my, they were presented with a crown. It is impossible to describe the effect. The

THE GRAY CASE

Juror A. J. Donnelly on the War-Path.

HE DEFIES HIS TRADUCERS.

Reasons for the Malignant Attempt to Blacken Donnelly's Reputation.

A Cause for the Great Zeal on the Part of Some State Officers to Make J. S. Gray a Felon.

CAPT. BLADDING AND ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONERS EXPOSED.

Morse, Johnson, Carroll, Jackson and Finn Heavily Scored.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL MARSHALL LAID OUT COLD.

EPOCH CHRONICLE: THE FARMERS THAT I am elsewhere and yesterday referred to as being the trial and sentenced me to ten days in the county jail for the following shot, during or just before the hanging, given to their respective members which I pronounce false.

I marched in the jury-room, and I said, I am sorry I ever came into the jury-room, but I am here and I will do my duty as a juror who a verdict of guilty should have been rendered.

I said I was a Democrat, James A. Johnson and Walter Turnbull if this answer proposed by them is in the letter not of justice, or if it is in defiance justice by scorning the conviction of Gray, whether proven guilty or not, in order that, as a convicted felon, his testimony would have little or no weight when testifying in criminal or civil proceedings, where their friend Commissioner Captain Bladding would be figuring in the role of criminal and, a position similar to that now occupied by Gray.

I emphatically contradict Attorney-General Marshall. Do you know, Attorney-General Marshall, the law governing the State Harbor Commissioners' office? Don't you know that your friend, Commissioner Captain Wilson Bladding, and the other Commissioners are responsible to the State for every dollar of public money that passes under the State Harbor Commissioners by their caution bond? Don't you know that if the Commissioners are negligent they can be sued on their bond for doing but little work? Don't you know they regularly divvy their pay; yes, you know that, too, before it was due them, but entirely neglected the work for which they took the money?

I ask Attorney-General Marshall why he has not and why he does not perform his duty and bring suit to be half of the State, against his friend Commissioner Captain Bladding, to recover the public money lost by Bladding's non-performance of his trust and duty as Commissioner.

I ask Attorney-General Marshall if the insane and malicious prosecution of John S. Gray by him for contempt in not due to a malice to the aim of interfering the chances of the State and the people of the State in the matter of their rights against Captain Bladding and other who are guilty of Yellowjacket fraud, and not John S. Gray, embezzled 1700 of said money. The receipts of the State Harbor Commissioner office for December 8, 1882, I have been informed—this 1700 embezzled—was received from Larkin, he has 1700 (this was charged to Gray) and gold 1700. Twelve jurors were impaneled, I among the number, by to try the case, the case mention. of and no other. There are some forty-four more cases to be tried, but the fate and cry of the press against those employed in the Harbor office, and the Commissioners, is so intense that I feel that I will be convicted

Poetry.

FATHER JUNIPER SERRA

In the island of Mallorca
Father Serra had his birth;
At sixteen St. Francis chose him
To accompany the north.
When his novitiate was ended,
And theology was studied,
To fulfil his high vocation,
He, his copy to a convent turned.
O'er Atlantic's billows tossed
Where the Aztec bowers blow,
To the halls of Montezuma,
In the heart of Mexico.
Vera Cruz he made in safety,
After many tempests passed
Twice sent back to the shipping
Twice he reached his goal at last.
Prayer, he proved, was Omnipotent,
Prayer, he proved, was cherished God,
Prayer, he proved, was powerful
Made the stubborn Aztecs yield.
Thousands baptized and were converted
By his mouth through which God spoke;
Words the idols dare not mock at
Were his words to Christ's cross yoke.
Converted he, in fervent zeal,
Sought his native shores to visit
Ere his death which they worshipped
Their faith to Christ's cross yoke.
Converted he, in fervent zeal,
Sought his native shores to visit
Ere his death which they worshipped
Their faith to Christ's cross yoke.
Their idol hearts, could not appall.
After months of toil and peril,
On the thirty-first of May,
Seventeen hundred and sixty-four
Serra reached his Monterey,
Death a greeted and received our-two,
Standing, near the palmy shore,
Serra made a cross of two
With the pious reward for a floor.
On the third of June following
Which was Whitsuntide that year,
More than 1000 Indians assembled,
Such as mainly here to hear.
Such as had gold in sought, our jewels,
Such as fled on beauty's mount;
Such as had lost all, or lost their
But of souls he came to guard.
Serra, with his companions
Bullet proof from head to heel;
For he knew the Indian temper
Was a better mail than steel.
Up he came to Christ's Apostle,
With a crucifix in hand,
To commence his labors of salvation
To a crucified pagan God;
To the Indians of Mexico
Stooped in vice and dirt to death;
Yet, when the Indian saw the cross,
Never drew a hungry breath;
To them crucified, when the worshipped
The Great Spirit. It is true,
But the God of the Christian
And He love they never knew.
Yet, for this he'd left his island,
Left the cities and hills of Spain,
And for souls, which God had bounded
Of the wild Atlantic main;
To accompany God in Heaven
Left His quest. Within throne above
To choose the second in heaven
By the Cross, to win his love.
Thus, the Indian, Serra, the Indian
How to live and how to die;
Spoke of a God who died for man,
Wipe the tears from mourner's eyes
Wipe the sweat from toiler's brow
Fled at first, then gazed, with wonder
By the Christian God, in wonder
All the wonders which Serra said
All their souls had sought, and found
All their souls had sought, and found
Peace, the Indian, Serra, the Indian Bow the knee to God, and
Lay by his Idols, and
Lay by his Idols, and
Lay by his Idols

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1883.

Our Twenty-seventh Volume.

The MONITOR has now entered on its twenty-seventh volume and all its friends—both old and new—will be glad to learn that it is in the enjoyment of prosperity and that its promises well to retain its present proud position in Catholic journalism until it celebrates its golden jubilee.

We have no promises to make our readers regarding our future course, except that we will try to make the MONITOR acceptable to every good Catholic, a beacon light to bad Catholics, an indestructible and ever-available ally to the friends of the Catholic Church, and a terror to its foes.

We think our friends everywhere on this score for the interest which they all manifest in securing new subscribers and then supporting the press that defends their faith. In return therefor we will try and give them a good Catholic paper fully worth the money paid for it. We also thank many of our stanch friends among the Rev. Clergy and Laity for the flattering testimonials which we receive from them from time to time, but which our modesty forbids us to publish. Occasionally, however we receive letters like the following which give us much good a Catholic paper can accomplish in regions remote from churches or clergy.

The writer is living in Oregon, and says:—

"I have taken the MONITOR now for a year, and it is the best Catholic paper I know of for a family circle. All good Catholics ought to take it and pay for it, but they do not, and so I take it for them. It would be the means of making thousands of them good. I am an English convert, living far from Church, and a Catholic now by my choice—mainly of my Faith. Yet, with all this, bad as it seems me, I am free in the faith once delivered to the Apostles, and I pray that God bless the man who first thought into the mind of me the one true Shepherd."

Here we have an insight into the good which the MONITOR is doing in strengthening the faith of a Catholic paper in places where a priest is seldom seen, and the fact that the MONITOR is a welcome weekly visitor at this isolated Catholic convert's home enables him much to prize the glad tidings which it brings him regarding the faith which he has chosen as the guide to his great hereafter.

The Cincinnati Telegraph predicts that America is to be "the Catholic country of the future," and one of the most potent means of making it such will be the ability of Catholics to circulate Catholic literature among the people. Make the Catholic press as prolific of good as the Satanic press is productive of evil, and Catholics will see what we have done a great work. The priests and the laity in every diocese should be a unit in seeking the widest possible diffusion and circulating Catholic publications, as their combined efforts are essential in carrying on the warfare against the enemies of the Church in this age.

The MONITOR will try and make the ever-beneath of its weekly visitation, and hold the dim of the battle which the enemies of our holy Faith are constantly raging against the Church of God. It will keep at its masthead the motto of Catholicity, that ever dashed flag which has victoriously floated over the battle fields of centuries, and we will hoop hard over vision the words of the inspired writer—"Say yes! and make be not ashamed to say the Truth. . . . Strive for justice for thy soul; even unto death fight for justice, and God will overthrow thy enemies for thee."

In such a cause—animated by such principles—and encouraged by the invisible hand of God, there can be no fear that the cause of Truth will ever fail. Reading Catholic books and papers has had many converts to the Church, and if the Catholics of this true to its mission it has an apostolate second only to that engaged in by the educational powers whose aims are the teaching of the people, who are troubled with the confusion of religious, and unknown to their voice, the silence of the Catholic press can hardly be overcome. Catholic publications are proved to be invaluable to the antagonists of the Church on earth we owe the hosts of St. Michael in heaven.

"The St. Patrick Myth."

A Reply to Moncure D. Conway's Article in the "North American Review" for October, 1883.

SECOND ARTICLE.

It is entirely too late in the day for such pilfering plagiarists as Mr. Conway to ask—and answer in the negative—the question: Did St. Patrick even exist? Tens of thousands of Irish people have willingly undergone martyrdom in proof of their fidelity to that faith which St. Patrick spread among them, and millions more are willing, even in this nineteenth century, to undergo the same ordeal if necessary to attest their faith in the existence of St. Patrick. The men who died because they would not renounce St. Patrick's faith were wiser than Mr. Conway—for the reason that they believed in God and His saints, while the latter gentleman is sceptical of all that is supernatural.

Moreover, it is somewhat remarkable that Mr. Conway, or some such conscientious crank, did not live a thousand years ago, so to theory, if that handicapped they would not be compelled to attest their faith in the existence of St. Patrick. The men who died because they would not renounce St. Patrick's faith were wiser than Mr. Conway—for the reason that they believed in God and His saints, while the latter gentleman is sceptical of all that is supernatural.

However

IRISH NATIONAL LEAGUE OF AMERICA.

SAN FRANCISCO MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

Following are the By-Law adopted by the Convention of Municipal Delegates in the last meeting:

RULE.—This Council shall be known as the San Francisco Municipal Council of the Irish National League of America, and shall be governed by and in conformity with the laws and rules adopted and prescribed by the National Council of the Irish National League of America—and the By-Laws and Rules adopted by that Council.

OBJECTS.—To encourage and assist all efforts tending to fully enjoy the environments of the place of the Irish National League of America, as stipulated in the Constitution thereof.

OFFICERS.—The officers of this Council shall be a President, Vice-President, Secretary, Financial Secretary, and Treasurer.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.—There shall be an Executive Committee of nine members, and an Auditing Committee of three members.

PAYMENT'S OF DUES.—The President shall preside at all meetings of the Municipal Council, and perform such other duties as may be prescribed to him by the constitution and laws of the Irish National League of America. He shall call all meetings of the Council, and shall have authority to call special meetings at the request of any five members of the Executive Committee, in the absence of the President, the Vice-President shall act in his place and stead. The Secretary shall keep a record of all proceedings of the Council, and perform such other duties as may be prescribed to him by the constitution and laws of the Irish National League of America, and by the Municipal Council. He shall keep a full and complete record of the attendance and standing of each member of the Executive Committee and general business of the Council under the direction of the President, and shall have charge of all the books, papers, and property of the Council. The Financial Secretary shall receive all money due the Council, giving a receipt therefor. He shall keep correct financial accounts with each Branch of the Municipal Council, and shall make a report in writing at the end of their respective terms of their contributions to the National Treasury, and shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed to him by the constitution and laws of the Irish National League of America, and by the Municipal Council, which duties shall be specified in writing and delivered to the Secretary for record. The Treasurer shall receive and hold in safety all funds deposited with him by the Financial Secretary, giving his receipt therefor. He shall disburse the same only upon the order of the President, countersigned by the Secretary, and shall report in writing to the Municipal Council, at the end of their respective terms of office, the amount received and disbursed by him, which report is to be entered in the Council proceedings, and be read to the Council previous to the election of officers for the ensuing term.

BANNERS OF CITIZENS, ETC.—All officers and standard bearers of societies shall be allowed free admission and free access to all such societies, and all members of societies, when in uniform, shall be allowed free admission to any place at which he may be engaged in the performance of his duties, and all members of societies, when in uniform, shall be allowed free admission to any place at which they may be engaged in the performance of their duties, and shall be allowed free access to all such societies

THE WEEK'S NEWS —FROM— IRELAND.

THE CASE OF O'DONNELL.

O'Donnell's Counsel.

Cork, Oct. 14.—Counsel for Major A. Pryce, the American counsel for O'Donnell, held an inquiry here to-day with Messrs. Gray and Sullivan, and obtained the evidence on both sides.

Limerick, Oct. 15.—In view of the statement that the county counsel would oppose a postponement of the trial of O'Donnell, Sullivan telegraphed he would not undertake the defense of O'Donnell unless time was granted to allow of personal witnesses and Charles Russell, O'Donnell's leading counsel, to reach England.

The Case of O'Donnell Before a Grand Jury.

Limerick, October 15.—The Recorder of the County Clonmel Court, charging the Grand Jury in regard to the case of O'Donnell, said the prisoner claimed that the prisoner committed a deliberate murder of the worst kind, because his victim was a man who had aided the law and who was under the protection of the Crown and who had done nothing to provoke the act for which he stands in the ordinary sense of O'Donnell's conduct in regard to O'Donnell's wife, he thought Mr. Gray after his death had behaved. The Recorder said it would be the proper duty of the jury to return a true bill for murder against O'Donnell. A motion to postpone the trial was refused by the Recorder.

The witnesses for O'Donnell, now at Cape Town, will be examined by a Judge of Cape Town, commencing on Tuesday. It is thought the trial will not probably begin before a postponement.

A Fenian Meeting in Queens County.

Clonmel, October 15.—A meeting of 2000 persons, including a half dozen from Waterford, Kilkenny and neighborhood, to be called that in O'Donnell, who shot Carey, in a cabin, and the sentiment of the United States, on trial for his life, was held here to-day. Resolutions were passed against him for a political assassination and the Irish National Land League, and Irish National Leagues and Irish Land Leagues, and Irish National Leagues and Irish Land Leagues, and Irish National Leagues and Irish Land Leagues

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

MARY.

Shall I whisper a name that was lovely of old
When the tale of the infant Redeemer was told,
The honored of God in her matrew—when
Still hoaxing the heart through the twilight of time.

O'er the starlight of Judah the nightmists were spread
On the Shepherd's bosom the shadows lay still,
When Herodes in the midnight, so solemn and wild
With the throne of a star and the sword of a hyena.

And bright with the lustre, and sweet with the
Of the Angels that sang, and the glory that shone,
The echoes are soft through the lone of the years,
With the breath of her name and the flow of her tears.

And still at the shrine and still at the hearth,
From the cradle of Christ to the midst of the earth,
As gentle in glory, as steadfast in pleasure
It serves as His side as it waits at his tomb.

And many shall bless it as many have blest,
From the re-ming of life till the morrow of rest,
Yet none shall be capable of assaying the music shall keep Who's MARY shall watch as a MARY shall weep.

LUTLEDGE SAVAGE.

THE SOUNDS OF SALVATION.

[Written for the Entertainment given in behalf of the Sailor's Home, Portland Maine, by Mrs. Dr. Dunn.]

Hide beneath whatever bosoms lies
Above the unknown page,
Amidst an joy, that to my have
The visions of the sage,
Yet in the Bible, the salvation there
Of thought pressed, and hidden lies
In the Lord's Prayer.

Life's pilgrim summons wants,
And the sweet voices of his cheeks
Is what to his name,
Yet in the Bible, Death to death,
Life's pilgrim and, and the Lord's Prayer.

For John Ambition, wealth, fame,
With counsel bid be wrought;
The voices of a mother
Are sweet to the thought
And like a child, he bids life's cement,
Yet in the Lord's Prayer.

The sweet pages of saving love
He studies never know;
Yet, in the Bible, the Bible there
Of God, prodigious, to life on high
Is the Lord's Prayer.

Forbidden, with smoothing tongue and pen
Are written sacred lines,
Yet, in the Bible, the Bible there
Of God, prodigious, to life on high
The lines of hell, which stand content
Yet in the Lord's Prayer.

Ah! blest the phrase, who hath would turn
The sweet as well, and the
Yet, in the Bible, the Bible there
Of God, prodigious, to life on high
Yet in the Lord's Prayer.

And while life's burden and its best
Are the sweet sweet sweet
Yet, in the Bible, the Bible there
Of God, prodigious, to life on high
When here to live with Truth to stands,
Yet in the Lord's Prayer.

The greater glory of life Lord,
The glory of Heaven's sublime
The price of Heaven's sublime
Yet, in the Bible, the Bible there
Of God, prodigious, to life on high
Yet in the Lord's Prayer.

Wisdom's home where Wisdom's lore is gained!
Wisdom's home where Wisdom's lore is gained!
Wisdom's home where Love begins the rule
Of Heaven's sublime
Yet, in the Bible, the Bible there
Of God, prodigious, to life on high
Yet in the Lord's Prayer.

The Bishop of Salisbury thinks
Wisdom's home where Wisdom's lore is gained!
When Love begins that would not rest

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SIXTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1883.

"The St. Patrick Myth."

A Reply to Monsoor D. Conway's Article in the "North American Review" for October, 1883.

THIRD ARTICLE

In addition to the numerous contemporaneous biographers of St. Patrick which we named last week, as well as the long list of writers whom we mentioned as having flourished subsequent to the Irish Apostle, we can refer all Conwaypites who have any doubts regarding the existence of St. Patrick to no less than seventeen works wherein mention is made of the glorious Apostle who converted Ireland to Christianity. These ancient Irish manuscripts—in a majority of cases—are still extant, having been faithfully reproduced by learned Irish scholars, and—in some cases, translated into English. In any single volume among those enumerated may be found sufficient evidence of the existence of St. Patrick to convince any person save a confirmed crank who would not believe the moon shone in the heavens unless he could hold it in the hollow of his hand. The seventeen authorities comprise:

1. The Book of Armagh.
2. The Book of Lismore.
3. The Book of Ballymote.
4. The Book of Leinster.
5. The Book of Lecan.
6. The Leabhar Breac.
7. The Book of Dermot.
8. The Leabhar Buidhe.
9. Annals of Ulster.
10. Annals of Tigernach.
11. Annals of Inisfallen.
12. The Four Masters.
13. The Book of Hymns.
14. The Book of Rights.
15. The Book of Ballymote.
16. Martyrology Donegal.
17. Martyrology Tallaght.
18. Genealogies Chieftainries.
19. Genealogies Saints.
20. Book of Glendalough.
21. Report of Paulinus.

These authorities are nearly all prior to the period when Mr. Conway says little or no mention of St. Patrick was made, and the ignorance of the existence of these authorities, on the part of Mr. Conway, clearly shows that he purposely ignored the testimony of Irish history in order to present to the public his borrowed, false, baseless and ridiculous assertion.

Having thus clearly and conclusively convicted Mr. Conway on this point, let us proceed with his next objection, wherein he writes: "Not St. Patrick was confounded with Palladius by the hundreds of writers who wrote before the critical Conway came into existence, yet this obscure individual thus spitefully insinuates that > is wiser than all the generations of saints, sages, and scholars who preceded him. What silly pretension! What impudence! A saint who has been honored in the Catholic Church for nearly fifteen centuries—a myth! A saint in whose honor every Christian land in the world has hundreds of churches bearing his name—a nonentity! A saint whose memory in Ireland is marked by numerous churches and by other enumerable evidences both historical and traditional—a fable! A saint whose apostleship for a few years in France, when studying under St. Martin of Tours, has given the name of St. Patrice to the village where he lived—Ballouhon—which name was changed to Joinville in honor of the Prince-Apostle who gave him his Pope Celestine—an imaginary character! Shame upon the scribe who, for a few paltry pennies, would thus stultify himself and disgrace his literary character, by casting the doubt of his own shallow mind over one of the grandest characters in Irish history!

The next objection raised by Mr. Conway is that all mention of St. Patrick is omitted by the venerable Bede, the great English chronicler. But Mr. Conway forgot to tell his readers that Bede's work was an "Ecclesiastical History of England," and in Ireland at that time—or what we hope she will be again in the near future—entirely independent of England, there was no necessity for mentioning the name of a saint whom Bede was already familiar to the Irish people, and who was known by the name of the Irish Apostle. Besides, England was in pagan darkness when Ireland was Christian, and as Englishmen writing the ecclesiastical history of Christianity in England would naturally begin at St. Austin, an English monk, who was ignorant of when St. Patrick flourished. It does not follow, therefore, by any means, that because Bede fails to make mention of St. Patrick that he never existed. If we are to judge of Sapiens minus upon the Conwyzian hypothesis, St. David, St. Kolgaro, and many other notable saints would have to be dropped from the list of the English saints as never having existed—because their names are not even mentioned by the author of the "Ecclesiastical History of England." And then Mr. Conway is confounded on that point.

But we are not done with this deceitful doubter yet, as we now take his own evidence and prove by him that St. Patrick did live, inasmuch as the name of the Irish Apostle appears among the names of the saints in the "martyrology" of the venerable Bede! Such tricks upon a too-trusting public, as Mr. Conway plays, should draw down upon him the execration of an outraged public upon whom he tries to pass his own ignorance and wilfully doubtful as the result of protracted researches among the ecclesiastical writers whose works he claims to have consulted.

In Mr. Conway's paper there is an amount of literary rubbish not worth the time and trouble it would take to refute it, hence we will pass over all he says about the "impossibilities" of the Irish people in regard to their belief in St. Patrick, as with all such writers all belief in anything supernatural sounds "superstitious" to their ears. This brings us down to where Mr. Conway says:

> "There are many indications that the original Irish church was not Roman Catholic, and that it successfully defended itself from all encroachment of the Roman Catholic authority."

It is singularly remarkable with what tenacity all the bitterest enemies of the Catholic Church cling to the theory that the ancient Irish were not Roman Catholics, that St. Patrick did not preach Roman Catholic doctrine, and that—in a word—they knew nothing whatever in Ireland of the Pope of Rome! Then this a more ridiculous, and vindictive mess of malicious invention ever emanated from even the Father of Lies! Fortunately for the cause of truth, the falsehood and the sophistry of all such sheptics as Mr. Conway was flatly contradicted centuries ago by extracts from the writings of St. Patrick himself, the process of whose name among the saints in the Calendar of the Roman Catholic Church is sufficient to satisfy all reasonable people that the Pope from St. Patrick's time to the present—all considered him a good enough Roman Catholic to be inserted in the Litany of Saints! Nor is it altogether unreasonable to suppose that the Popes and Cardinals in Rome knew more about St. Patrick than conceited Conway or other cranks of his remarkably small calibre.

The fact that St. Patrick was sent to Ireland by Pope Celestine is irrefutably proven from ecclesiastical history, and when the ancient Irish manuscripts—in a majority of cases—are still extant, having been faithfully reproduced by learned Irish scholars, and—in some cases, translated into English, in any single volume among those enumerated may be found sufficient evidence of the existence of St. Patrick to convince any person save a confirmed crank who would not believe the moon shone in the heavens unless he could hold it in the hollow of his hand. The seventeen authorities comprise:

1. The Book of Armagh.
2. The Book of Lismore.
3. The Book of Ballymote.
4. The Book of Leinster.
5. The Book of Lecan.
6. The Leabhar Breac.
7. The Book of Dermot.
8. The Leabhar Buidhe.
9. Annals of Ulster.
10. Annals of Tigernach.
11. Annals of Inisfallen.
12. The Four Masters.
13. The Book of Hymns.
14. The Book of Rights.
15. The Book of Ballymote.
16. Martyrology Donegal.
17. Martyrology Tallaght.
18. Genealogies Chieftainries.
19. Genealogies Saints.
20. Book of Glendalough.
21. Report of Paulinus.

Here we have sufficient evidence to prove that the Irish Apostle was thoroughly a Roman Catholic, just as the vast majority of the Irish people are Roman Catholics down to this day!

If further proof of the fidelity of the Irish Apostle to the Apostolic See was necessary, we can produce it in order to pin the lies of Obscure Conway more closely, and in order to do this it is only necessary to quote one of the beautiful proverbs called Dicta Sancti Patricii, preserved in the Book of Armagh, which was transcribed in the year 807, and is in the following effect:

> "Thanks be to God," said the great Irish Apostle, "addressing the converted Irish people, "you have proved from the baptism of Christ to the mercy of God; the Church of the Irish is a Church of Romans, so you are children of Christ, so be you children of Rome."

Where are cantankerous Conway's doubts now? Here is crushing testimony from the ninth folio of an ancient Irish book still extant which completely extinguishes the theory set up by this doubting Thomas from the Thames!

Is more testimony wanted on this point? Then let us lead the Cockney Conway by the lobe of his long ear while we open for him the writings of St. Columbanus, who conversed with the disciples of the Apostle of St. Patrick, and who declares that "the Irish are the scholars and disciples of Peter and Paul—the Church founded by Boniface IV., wrote thus; "The Catholic faith is held unshaken by us as it was delivered to us by you, the successors of the holy Apostles." We could produce a dozen other extracts, if necessary, but in those we have given we feel that the falsehood of Conway is sufficiently refuted, and together with its author—is buried beneath "the pillar and ground of truth" as it exists in Catholic testimony concerning the Roman Catholic Church.

The next "wave's nest" discovered by confusion-crowned Conway is found in the assertion that "the Pope never canonized an Irishman until the 16th century." But onto Mr. Conway cunningly kept back from his American readers the historical fact that up to that time every country in the world was in the habit of canonizing its own saints by the ecclesiastical sanction of the Metropolitan and Suffragan Bishops in whose Province the holy man lived. Such was the manner of canonizing up to the twelfth century, when Pope Alexander III., who occupied the Holy See in 1161, decreed that the right of canonizing canonizing was reserved exclusively to the Sovereign Pontiff. And thus another ecclesiastical lie is put upon the mendacious genius of the great Cockney Conway from Cornhill!

In the last paragraph of his used-up essay Mr. Conway performs a trick not unusual with cranks of his character, that is—he contradicts the assertion that St. Patrick was a myth, by admitting that "St. Patrick was, no doubt, a timdy man," which entirely overturns Mr. Conway's theory regarding the non-existence of the Irish Apostle. But it is nothing unusual for such timeserve as the cringing Conway to contradict in one paragraph an assertion they tried to prove true in a previous one, hence we are not astonished at any random shots Sodius such writers indulge in, as they are only "hitting at a fly" when they undertake to tell the world that St. Patrick never existed, and the other fabulous assertions which they make so recklessly regarding the faith of the Irish people.

Will those puny writers who try to Protestantize the faith of Ireland in the days of St. Patrick just mention our feature of their faith which was not Catholic to the core! The Irish people reversed with a love scheerinet only to that adoration which they gave to God—the Most Holy Name of the Immaculate Queen of Heaven! Does not this fact alone prove that not a particle of Protestantism could have mingled with their faith. Again, they love the Pope, their Prelates, and the priesthood more devotedly, more ardently, and more purely spiritual reverence than any other Catholic people in the whole Christian world. Does this feature not also argue that they were true Roman Catholics from the very hour when the waters of baptism first washed paganism from their social? And again, the Irish people have given more Catholic missionaries, more Priests and Sisters, to the Church of God—in comparison to population—than any other country in Europe. Does this look as if their faith was leavened with Protestantism?

Finally, the Irish race has been true to its Roman Catholic faith when all others were faithless. The seal set on the souls of the Irish people by St. Patrick has never been broken! Italy, France, Germany, England, and other European countries which were once entirely Catholic, have gone over to the enemy in times that freed many souls, but in Ireland—in the days of direst persecution—the more punishment the people received for not being recreant to their holy religion the more persistently they clung to the Rock of St. Peter!

Such a proved record as this for the glorious fidelity of the Irish people to the faith of their Fathers, should cover with confusion the canting Conways of our day, and, if they are not entirely bewitched by bigotry and blinded by malice, they should look historical facts fairly in the face and thus be forced to admit not only that St. Patrick once lived, but that his spirit in Heaven still protects his children from the pagan ideas that surround them, still guards the faith in every Irish heart, still guides them in their love for God, His Blessed Mother, His saints, and His Vicar, and will continue thus to keep watch and ward over the Irish people for centuries after all the Cockney Conways are consigned to the dust from which they sprung. And thus it ever will be that the glorious St. Patrick, Apostle of Ireland, will—in the language of an Irish saint of the ninth century—

> "Guard his lambs, still guard his sheep."

Trying to Get a New Name for the Baby!

Ever since Henry VIII. assumed the paternity of the Protestant Episcopal Church a concerted effort has been made periodically to change the name so as to give the illegitimate offspring of Mormon Henry the appearance, at least, of respectability by call it something Catholic! It was only last month that all the Protestant Episcopal preachers had a big pow-wow in Philadelphia, wherein it was gravely mooted to call the American baby—begotten in sin and conceived in iniquity—by some other cognomen than the played-out title of Protestant Episcopal Church. This is a very sensible movement on the part of the sect undertaking it, because there is no meaning in the term "Protestant" say longer, for the reason that Protestantism has been declared to be "a dead failure" by dozens of Episcopal preachers, including Dr. Ewer, recently dead.

Hence the Episcopalian midwives held a convention for the purpose of getting rid of that pesky name of Protestant, and among the suggestions was one by Mother Judd, of Illinois, who came near setting the conclave on fire by proposing that the baby be named baby be hereafter known as the "Holy Catholic church." This title was referred to the baby's nature that the Ritualistic-looking minister jumped up and wanted to know where the holiness existed in that corporation! Another red-hot female in the male assemblage declared she would sit down on the baby and smother it if any Catholic clothing was used to dress up King Henry's kid! And thus the fire flew hot and furious, until the vote was taken, when it was found that there was only twenty-one ministers present who thought the American offshoot of the Anglican establishment had enough religion in it to entitle the unfortunate baby to be re-christened the Holy Catholic Church, while no less than 27[illegible] at, double-chinned clerical fellows that as the baby was called Protestant Episcopal when it was born about a century ago, it should retain its name until it was wedded to some of the other sects and became the bride of the Baptists, was captured by the Congregationalists, or married into the Methodist!

So rejoiced were all the dry-nurses of the distressed baby at this result that they hugged and kissed the little "posterity-worry," some calling it their "popery-worry," others and others reviling the renegades who wanted to give a "Romish" name to a regular Syed-in-the-wool off-shoot of the Church of England by law established!

But, bedinge aside, let us ask any reflecting Episcopalian if such a sect can be considered any part of the Church of God when it comes to pass that this Protestant Episcopal rabbi desires to get rid of the leprous-laden skin bestowed upon it by lustful Luther's English lieutenant, Henry VIII., and to appear before the world transformed into the Holy Catholic Church? What a blasphemous mockery such a movement would make of religion! A sect that has prided itself for a century on its pure Protestantism—now seeking shelter from the impending dissolution of all erroneous sects of Protestantism by calling itself Catholic! Such shuffling shows that even the very preachers of this sham system of Christianity have no confidence in it as a true Church. It is, at best, but a fraud, its prayers, hymns, and sacraments having been stolen from the Catholic Church and doled out in second-hand style to its members. It claims to be Catholic under a Protestant title; it claims to be Episcopal without a single Bishop that is not of the gilt-gingerbread class; it claims to have Sacraments, but it rarely administers them; it claims to have rubrics, but they are never used, and then it is a dead soul in a body that is dead and stinketh with gout, caused by over indulgence in the world's goods and too little use of the gospel of God.

—Thanks to many friends for the canon of numerous new subscribers this week, among whom are Rev. J. M. Cassin of Bodie, Cal., and Rev. Chas. Poncet of the Sandwich Islands, who also writes for extra copies of the MONITOR containing our reply to the practical Catholic concerning Blarney. That article, we notice, has been translated into both French and German and published in Catholic papers in the Eastern States and Canada.

Pixley Polished off for Purgatory!

If we are to believe Frank Pixley, there must be weeping and wailing among both the big and little demons in Balzebub's dominions! The ocean of this direful lamentation is dedeed by Pixley's editorial thunder in a recent screed, wherein he tells his readers that he has purchased immunity from incarceration in that tropical region known in the Herald New Testament by the polite cognomen of Hades, and this has been accomplished by remitting twenty-five cents to Rev. John O'Brannigan, of St. Joseph's Union, New York, and receiving in return therefor an acknowledgment of membership in the rank of those charitable Catholics who subscribe for the "Homeless Child."

But foot-hardy Frank need not flatter himself that he can hoot cheat the devil out of his due, as it is a well established fact that fraud vitiates all contracts, and as Pixley's contribution to the St. Joseph's Union was sent to New York through fraudulent motives, the original mortgage which Old Nick has had for a long time on record still takes precedence, and places Pixley's soul in a state of jeopardy more familiar to sinners than to saints!

In the same manner as the devil can quote Scripture, so Pixley can occasionally call the truth, but he does so in the following extract from his paper:

> "The Church of Rome is certainly flourishing in San Francisco. Its extensive and tasteful signs of material prosperity are evidence of its spiritual growth. Bishop Alemany is actively engaged in collecting moneys for a cathedral, which, in point of size and architectural beauty, and its outlines of structure, is to be an ecclesiastical wonder. The Jesuits have completed a building of large dimensions, which is to be used for a college, a college of instruction for those boys who possess an affinity for the study of priestly vocations, and who prefer the teaching of Jesuits to the instruction of our public schools. The Dominican Brothers have laid the foundation of a costly edifice, and are now engaged in erecting a structure suitable for the wants of a monastic order devoted to the "propagation of devotion to the Holy Rosary"—a monastery and a church where the monks may lead a contemplative life and preach. It is announced by the press Fathers of the Society of Jesus that a university is soon to have the privilege of being founded in connection with the order, and that the boys who have free access to the Jesuits will be given a course of instruction in the Latin tongue, and acquainted with the ceremonies of the Church."

Pixley looks and sees the growth of Catholicity here in our Catholic City, and he knows that when our Catholic cold spots in the Eastern States are compared with our Catholic hot spots in the Western States, the balance of power will be found to be in favor of the Catholic Church. Pixley knows that the Catholic Church is the only Church that has the power to reform the world, and that the only way to reform the world is to make it Catholic. Pixley knows that the Church of God—in comparison to population—has only one country in Europe. Does this look as if their faith was leavened with Protestantism?

Finally, the Irish race has been true to its Roman Catholic faith when all others were faithless. The seal set on the souls of the Irish people by St. Patrick has never been broken! Italy, France, Germany, England, and other European countries which were once entirely Catholic, have gone over to the enemy in times that freed many souls, but in Ireland—in the days of direst persecution—the more punishment the people received for not being recreant to their holy religion the more persistently they clung to the Rock of St. Peter!

Such a proved record as this for the glorious fidelity of the Irish people to the faith of their Fathers, should cover with confusion the canting Conways of our day, and, if they are not entirely bewitched by bigotry and blinded by malice, they should look historical facts fairly in the face and thus be forced to admit not only that St. Patrick once lived, but that his spirit in Heaven still protects his children from the pagan ideas that surround them, still guards the faith in every Irish heart, still guides them in their love for God, His Blessed Mother, His saints, and His Vicar, and will continue thus to keep watch and ward over the Irish people for centuries after all the Cockney Conways are consigned to the dust from which they sprung. And thus it ever will be that the glorious St. Patrick, Apostle of Ireland, will—in the language of an Irish saint of the ninth century—

> "Guard his lambs, still guard his sheep."

Trying to Get a New Name for the Baby!

Ever since Henry VIII. assumed the paternity of the Protestant Episcopal Church a concerted effort has been made periodically to change the name so as to give the illegitimate offspring of Mormon Henry the appearance, at least, of respectability by call it something Catholic! It was only last month that all the Protestant Episcopal preachers had a big pow-wow in Philadelphia, wherein it was gravely mooted to call the American baby—begotten in sin and conceived in iniquity—by some other cognomen than the played-out title of Protestant Episcopal Church. This is a very sensible movement on the part of the sect undertaking it, because there is no meaning in the term "Protestant" say longer, for the reason that Protestantism has been declared to be "a dead failure" by dozens of Episcopal preachers, including Dr. Ewer, recently dead.

Hence the Episcopalian midwives held a convention for the purpose of getting rid of that pesky name of Protestant, and among the suggestions was one by Mother Judd, of Illinois, who came near setting the conclave on fire by proposing that the baby be named baby be hereafter known as the "Holy Catholic church." This title was referred to the baby's nature that the Ritualistic-looking minister jumped up and wanted to know where the holiness existed in that corporation! Another red-hot female in the male assemblage declared she would sit down on the baby and smother it if any Catholic clothing was used to dress up King Henry's kid! And thus the fire flew hot and furious, until the vote was taken, when it was found that there was only twenty-one ministers present who thought the American offshoot of the Anglican establishment had enough religion in it to entitle the unfortunate baby to be re-christened the Holy Catholic Church, while no less than 27[illegible] fat, double-chinned clerical fellows that as the baby was called Protestant Episcopal when it was born about a century ago, it should retain its name until it was wedded to some of the other sects and became the bride of the Baptists, was captured by the Congregationalists, or married into the Methodist!

So rejoiced were all the dry-nurses of the distressed baby at this result that they hugged and kissed the little "posterity-worry," some calling it their "popery-worry," others and others reviling the renegades who wanted to give a "Romish" name to a regular Syed-in-the-wool off-shoot of the Church of England by law established!

But, bedinge aside, let us ask any reflecting Episcopalian if such a sect can be considered any part of the Church of God when it comes to pass that this Protestant Episcopal rabbi desires to get rid of the leprous-laden skin bestowed upon it by lustful Luther's English lieutenant, Henry VIII., and to appear before the world transformed into the Holy Catholic Church? What a blasphemous mockery such a movement would make of religion! A sect that has prided itself for a century on its pure Protestantism—now seeking shelter from the impending dissolution of all erroneous sects of Protestantism by calling itself Catholic! Such shuffling shows that even the very preachers of this sham system of Christianity have no confidence in it as a true Church. It is, at best, but a fraud, its prayers, hymns, and sacraments having been stolen from the Catholic Church and doled out in second-hand style to its members. It claims to be Catholic under a Protestant title; it claims to be Episcopal without a single Bishop that is not of the gilt-gingerbread class; it claims to have Sacraments, but it rarely administers them; it claims to have rubrics, but they are never used, and then it is a dead soul in a body that is dead and stinketh with gout, caused by over indulgence in the world's goods and too little use of the gospel of God.

—Thanks to many friends for the canon of numerous new subscribers this week, among whom are Rev. J. M. Cassin of Bodie, Cal., and Rev. Chas. Poncet of the Sandwich Islands, who also writes for extra copies of the MONITOR containing our reply to the practical Catholic concerning Blarney. That article, we notice, has been translated into both French and German and published in Catholic papers in the Eastern States and Canada.

THE MONITOR.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1883.

DEDICATIONS NEXT SUNDAY.

[illegible] of the Church in this State will be [illegible] on next Sunday by the dedication of [illegible] churches which Archbishop [illegible] D. F. will dedicate to the service of Almighty God. The first church to be dedicated, at both which places the Archbishop will celebrate the Sacrament of Confirmation, is the CHURCH DEDICATION OF ALL SAINTS.

[illegible] festival of All Saints (Thursday, Nov. [illegible] next), his Grace Archbishop Alemany will dedicate a new church recently built at Vacaville, Solano county.

BISHOP SIORDAN COMING.

[illegible] October 25th—Archbishop Riordan [illegible] to-day, where he will be the guest of Bishop Gross. He will visit the city the distinguished prelate will [illegible] a few days, his departure for [illegible] Francisco. It is expected he will depart [illegible] the middle of next week [illegible] arrangements for a special [illegible] Bishop Riordan and a party [illegible] the Archbishop and [illegible] Bishops will be present. The parishioners interested declare [illegible] will be a grand demonstration.

PAINTINGS IN THE SPANISH CHURCHES.

[illegible] of "Our Lady of Guadalupe," Dunlavy and Mason streets, has recently been adorned with paintings in addition of two beautiful oil paintings of the Holy Family. The talented artist whose paintings of the Stations of the Cross in the Cathedral and Sacred Heart Church are admired by all who have seen them, is the author of the paintings in question. The artist is also a delineator of scriptural subjects, and has in his studio at present two principal scenes in the apostolic life of St. Peter. The first represents the call of Matthew, the publican, from the city of Mariion, in the neighborhood of which we published a month ago. The second represents the call of Andrew and James, the fishermen of Galilee, and the look of wonder and reverence with which they regarded the wonderful vision vouchsafed to them. The artist has in the second picture represented Jesus standing on the shore of the lake and addressing the men who labored all night and had taken not a single fish. The fishermen are represented as astonished Lady appeared, but which the artist has represented as a beautiful and faithful to the legend. The figure of the Blessed Mother is the beautiful altar piece, made a handsome frame for which was recently purchased, and which confer no small grace upon the edifice.

[illegible] also we noticed a crucifix which, upon the Rector, purchased in Spain, while on a visit to his native land. It is a most perfect representation of the Divine Sufferer, and, we think, it will be used by a Spanish artist who, we understand, is now at work on a large canvas representing the Last Supper. It is the intention of the Rector to place this crucifix in the chapel and set up a suitable frame for it, so that it may be seen to the best advantage. We have ever felt that the Spanish Church should be adorned

An American Journalist's Visit to Parnell.

MR. E. B. RAVEN, of the Boston Herald writes from London an account of an interview with Mr. Parnell. We take the following:—

Mr. Parnell said he had hoped to visit America again this year, but, as has already been reported, he felt that for the present his place was in Ireland, and he had, therefore, postponed his American trip until after the elections, which are to be held before long. On the strength of the Irish Party in Parliament very much depends. They went into the present Parliament with about sixty members, on whom they expected to rely. Twenty of these deserted them almost immediately, and one by one, the ranks were decimated by desertion, until they had only thirty members on whom the strictest reliance could be placed. These men were all firm and true as steel, and were active and useful members. They would all be returned at the election, and the deserters would remain in Ireland. Mr. Parnell estimated that the work accomplished by the Parliamentary Party and the Irish National League will reach in the certain election of seventy-three to seventy-five reliable Nationalists to the next House of Commons, and, if all goes well, he will not be surprised at to-day eighty or more Irish members confronting the opposition. Experience has taught them to be sure of their men hereafter, and the members of the new delegation will be carefully chosen for their ability and reliability. With such a strong lever to work with, the party will be disappointed if they fail of making extraordinary progress during the next two years. In allusion to the emigration scheme of the British Government, Mr. Parnell and nobody objected to emigration, nor to the "assistance" offered by the Government agents if people desire to emigrate who want to accept that assistance; but gentlemen interested in movements advocated to relieve Irish interests in Ireland did not relish the idea of the Government throwing open the doors of workhouses and sending to America hundreds of people who never would have entered the poor institutions if they had been given a fair chance to earn a livelihood, and who now, being infirm, are good for nothing other than to cumber the earth, but the poorhouse of America. He believed in legitimate emigration, but thought the British Government should be obliged to shoulder the burdens it had made for itself, and not shake the responsibilities or consequences of the galling legislation which has impoverished the mass of Irish families and driven very many to workhouses that are now being emptied, in fact as the paupers speak are being shipped to America without weakening question or raising objection.

While your correspondent was chatting with Mr. Parnell, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, who is now one of the principal editors of the United States not long ago, entered into the conversation, and later on Mr. Sexton and Mr. Corbett joined the party. Mr. O'Connor spoke with pleasure of the many friends he had made in Boston and elsewhere in the whole he was engaged in platform labor. Mr. Sexton has just come from the House of Commons, where he had, Gladstone, Mr. Ashley and others had been discussing the Crimes Act, and he had brought a copy of it, and he handed it to Mr. Parnell, who glanced at it and then while sipping a cup of tea, he said, was losing force and magnetism, and the people in Boston and elsewhere in the United States would be in the level of numbers of an overwhelming majority, indeed, he said, he would go out into the street and select from the common people men who could make better and stronger arguments than politicians who have spent a lifetime in the discussion of thoroughly the questions with which they struggled, and have more further the cause than the combined ability of the average English member of the House of Commons. The conversation then drifted upon the subject of land courts, the incompetency of the tenant farmers and their ignorance of the art of transacting business, which result in no benefit and often cause great loss of time and money to the suppliant for relief.

Meanwhile, the Irish benches were almost empty; the members from Ireland were scattered here and there through the buildings apparently unconcerned, absent, and uninterested in, any measure save that which concerned Ireland, or had some bearing on the Irish question, upon the taking up of which they were prepared to energetically resist, remain opposition to the Government, and make terms with Liberals or Conservatives whenever they could consistently do so, and make a move on the political chessboard along toward the goal they seek to reach.

WARRANTED 5 YEARS; $115 [illegible] $49.75

PIPE ORGANS [25 STOPS] ONLY $49.75

32 STOPS. 9 Full Sets of Golden Reeds

REGULAR PRICE, $115.00

25 USEFUL STOPS AS FOLLOWS:

Daniel F. Beatty

Daniel F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EMIL FRESE'S HAMBURG TEA.

That safe, good old German Family Medicine for all complaints of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels; Carminative. Alterative and gently Cathartic.

REDINGTON & CO., San Francisco, U. S. A.

THE FAMOUS DUPLEX GALVANIC BELT

BEST IN THE WORLD.

THE HIGHEST PREMIUM AT THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE. The great electric agent in existence. The Pacific Electric Co., Sole Proprietors.

RUPTURE Positively Cured. PACIFIC ELECTRIC PAD TRUSS.

A NEW INVENTION. THE BEST RETAINER IN EXISTENCE. Evidence Unlimited. Call or send for pamphlet. PACIFIC ELECTRIC CO., Sole Proprietors, 232 Sutter street, San Francisco.

Found at Last! [illegible]

INSURANCE.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA.

FIRE AND MARINE.

Capital fully paid $500,000 00
Assets January 1, 1882 378,979
Losses paid since organ. 367,388 70

PRINCIPAL OFFICE, 405 California Street, S. F.

CHAS. A. LATOY Secretary. JOHN H. WISE, President.

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE

UNION INSURANCE COMPANY OF SAN FRANCISCO, THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS. ESTABLISHED IN 1861.

Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.

CAS H CAPITAL ..... $750,000 GOLD

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE CATHOLIC Mutual Beneficial ASSOCIATION OF THE ... Archdiocese of San Francisco.

President - - Rev. J. H. McNally.

Total Benefits paid to date - - - $15,848
Balance in Treasury July 1st, 1883 - 7,097
Total Mem bership to July 1st, 1883 - 1,660

This organization offers the safest, safest and cheapest mode of Life Insurance extant. It insures the lives of all Catholics between the ages of 18 and 55 years, and it has received the approbation of his Grace Archbishop Alemany, O. P., and been recommended by the consecration of Catholics. It is the only one by the Archbishops as well as in many other Dioceses.

Office of the Association and Rooms are to be had by calling at the office of the association, No. 110 Montgomery street, opposite the Grand Hotel, where the Secretary will be in attendance every evening from 7 to 9 o'clock, and on Sundays from 10 to 12 o'clock. Blanks may be obtained at the Rooms of the Association, or of any Catholic Priest.

All Letters containing Postal orders, Drafts, or Money Orders should be Registered and addressed to EDWARD SULLIVAN, Secretary, 1110 Jones Street.

LA GRANDE LAUNDRY, PRINCIPAL OFFICE, 648 MARKET STREET. BRANCHES, 1132 Market and 212 Dupont Sts. LAUNDRY, 12th St., bet. Folsom and Howard, S. F. Cal.

PHILADELPHIA BREWERY. JOHN WIELAND - - - PROPRIETOR. SECOND STREET, NEAR FOLSOM, San Francisco. Amount of Beer sold in 1882, 64,189 barrels.

Jos. A. LONDRES, San Francisco. EUGENE KELLY, New York.

DONOHOE, KELLY & CO. SAN FRANCISCO. EUGENE, KELLY & CO, NEW YORK. BANKERS. EXCHANGE ON NEW YORK, LONDON, AND BANK IRELAND (Dublin). Payable at all the Branches AND IN EVERY CORNER TOWN IN IRELAND. INFORMATION WANTED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MORITZ NICOLAI, (Successor to E. BERGE.) RESTAURANT, 417 Price Street.

FIRST-CLASS BAKERY AND CONFECTIONAR. Connected. Special attention given to private dinnerparties, weddings, etc., at reasonable prices.

DON'T ASK WHERE The Roasted California Fruits and Vegetables, APPLES, PEARS, PEACHES, APRICOTS, BURBERS, ETC. ARE TO BE FOUND. But go direct to the CALIFORNIA BAKERY, 305, 307 & 311, and you will see as much due as any of the people of Gotham's metropolis, or the product PACIFIC PRODUCED STATE, THE BEST OF ALL. SOUPS & GRILLS, Produce Delivery.

SIG. ATTILIO PAROLINI 32 Fourth St., Room 12. Lessons in Singing at Pupils' Residence if Preferred.

$5 to $20 [illegible]

"CHRIST IN ART." THIS BEAUTIFUL WORK, THE GOSPEL HISTORY of our Lord which was published last year, illustrated by One Hundred full page engravings, from the famous Artist Masters, and reproduced by the Photo-Gravure process, is now offered on the Pacific Coast, free of expense charge, on receipt by the owner signed of a Pain Killer Order. Address Hostetter Bit 50 JOHN MANNING, Monitor Office.

Pacific Coast Agency GENUINE J. H. CUTTER WHISKIES, A. P. HOTALING & CO., San Francisco, Cal.

WITH FIVE DOLLARS THE CHEAPEST WORK DUCAL BRUNSWICK GOVERNMENT BOND, Which bonds are issued and secured by the above Government and are redeemable in twenty years THREE TIMES ANNUALLY. Until such and every bond is drawn. THE THREE HIGHEST PRIZES AMOUNT TO 120,000 Reichsmarks 60,000 30,000 and bonds not drawing one of the above prizes must draw a Premium of not less than 60 Marks, so there are NO BLANKS. One Reichsmark equal to about 24 cents Gold. The next drawing takes place on the 1st of November, 1883. Subscriptions at $5 Each. Country orders sent by Express, Money Order, including $5, will secure one of these bonds for the next drawing. For circulars and other information address the INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO., 397 B'way, cor. Pallen St., New York City. Subscriptions at $5 Each. N. B.—In writing to us, please mention you saw this in THE SAN FRANCISCO MONITOR.

All the above advertisements are not to be seen anywhere else but in the MONITOR, and all not credited with any of the leaders of the United States.

BEATTY'S Pianos 17 stops $135. Pianos, $97.50 Factory running day and night. Circulars free. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, J.

DOGES BOUGHT AND SOLD AT A BOURGOD 1006 Montgomery street.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels. SANTA CLARA - - - - CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a moral and intellectual education. One feature in particular that should recommend this Academy is the individual care extended to form the pupils to views and habits of economy and to render their homes happy and society in other years.

The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.

Pupils are received at any period of the year.

TERMS:

Per quarter, payable in advance.

Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once. Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding, $60. Vocal and instrumental Music form extra charges.

French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 6th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE SANTA CLARA ..... CALIFORNIA

THE THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL SESSION will commence Tuesday, August 7th. The Institution was founded in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated with the privileges of a University. It occupies the large buildings, with extensive shady play-grounds, covered gymnasium, swimmer's pool, etc. It possesses a full complete Philosophical Apparatus, and valuable collections of Mineralogy and Geology. It has a new, well-ventilated dormitory, and a Chemical Laboratory, Chemicals and Apparatus will be added as the business growth and exigencies may require. Pupils of all persuasions will be kindly received, but no pains will be spared to afford all the useful benefits of a solid education.

Pupils received at any time during the term, and will be charged from day of entrance.

The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each; the first commences about the middle of August, and the second about the middle of January.

TERMS:

Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per annum $250 00

EXTRA CHARGES.

Piano, with use of Instrument per annum $60 00
Vocal Music, Class Lessons 30 00
Vocal Music, Private Lessons 50 00
Drawing, per annum 20 00
Painting in Water Colors, per annum 20 00
Painting in Oil, per Lesson 1 00
Vocalists attend at the College 50 00
Graduating Fees 10 00
Physicians' Fees in case of sickness 5 00

Bills are presented and are payable at the close of each half session.

SELECT DAY SCHOOL.

Terms (payable half yearly in advance.)

Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes $6 00
Tuition in the 3rd and 4th College Classes 8 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes 7 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes 8 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Intermediate Classes 7 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes 5 00
Music (Vocal and Instrumental), Drawing, Painting and Private Lessons form extra charges, as in Boarding Schools, but no charge is made for the use of Pianos in the Day School.

Linen and towels.

CHAPTER I.

"I was taken sick a year ago with bilious fever.

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I Cured not more!

Lakeside.

From 22d Dec to 12th I had been doctoring for my fever, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains all left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic; and, after using several bottles, I am not only as sound as a sovereign, but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life."

Dublin, June 6, '81. R. FITZPATRICK.

CHAPTER II.

"Maiden, Mass., Feb. 1, 1880. Gentlemen—I suffered with attacks of sick headache, Neuralgia, female trouble, for years, in the most terrible and excruciating manner.

"No medicine or doctor could give me relief or cure until I used Hop Bitters.

"The first bottle

Nearly cured me.

"The second made me as well and strong as anybody.

"I have been well to this day."

My husband was an invalid for twenty years with Kidney, liver, and urinary complaint, pronounced by Doctors a hopeless case. DAY PUTNAM.

"Incurable!"

"Have you tried your bitters? cured him, and I know of the Lives of a great many other women.

In my neighborhood that have been saved by Hop Bitters.

And many more are using them with great success.

"They almost Raise the dead."—Mrs. E. D. Slack.

How to Get Well.—Expose yourself day and night and die much without exercise, or use Hop Bitters. Which shall it be? Hop Bitters are the vital elements and curatives that you will want to know how to get well and be answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters!

UNDERTAKERS.

ATKINS MASSEY, UNDERTAKER. PRACTICAL FURNISHING UNDERTAKER. Receives Best Burial Caskets always on hand, and Agents for Fisk's Metallic Burial Cases. Everything necessary for funerals kept on hand. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, at moderate charges. 27 and 29 Sacramento street, between Sansome and Battery.

C. A. SNOW. J. NUNAN. O'CONNOR & SHEEHY, UNDERTAKERS, 767 Mission Street, Bet. Third and Fourth ..... San Francisco. Every Requisite for Funerals furnished at the Lowest Rates, and in the Best Manner.

NATHANIEL GRAY. C. A. WRIGHT. J. A. CRAPTON. N. Gray & Co., UNDERTAKERS, 841 Sacramento Street, ... San Francisco. EMBALMING. ... Metallic Burial Cases and Caskets.

TERM. FLANAGAN. R. J. GALLAGHER. FLANAGAN & GALLAGHER, UNDERTAKERS, No. 29 FIFTH STREET, Opposite the Lincoln School. EVERYTHING NECESSARY FOR FUNERALS kept constantly on hand. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, at moderate charges.

UNITED UNDERTAKERS AND Embalming Parlors, 27 and 29 FIFTH ST. Telephone No. 2147.

BRASS & BELL FOUNDRIES.

W. T. GARRATT'S BRASS AND BELL FOUNDRY, CENTRAL ... MACHINE AND HYDRAULIC WORKS. Water and Gas Gates. Portable Forge-Engine Governors and Steam Traps. A general assortment of Earthenware Pipe-traps. Cor. Fremont and Natoma Streets.

LOWEST RATES. GLOBE BUSINESS COLLEGE. BEST TEACHERS. OPEN EVENINGS. Finest Equipments. N. E. cor. City and Kearny sts. SAN FRANCISCO. SEND FOR CIRCULARS '83.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JUST ARRIVED. RANGES For either Coal or Wood. THE BRISTOL, BERWICK, CLIFTON AND QUINCY, The only first class Ranges in the Market. The Celebrated Rathbone Range AND COAL OIL STOVES. MANUFACTURERS OF HYDRAULIC AND ARTS iron call-pipe. Metal Roofing, Plumbing and Gas-fitting. Particular attention paid to connection. Ranges with hot water boilers. J. M. BRYAN & CO 130 Third Street. Bet. Mission and Howard ..... San Francisco.

DANIEL SHEERIN, STONE AND MARBLE YARD, Cor. Broderick and Ellis Sts. Between the Catholic Cemetery, San Francisco. All kinds of Monuments and Marble Tilings. Also, Lots Enclosed with Granite.

COSBIE Patent Collars. THE SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY to Animals never pays one cent for curing horses with Cosbie Collars. Pamphlet 8 pages or attention to this matter sent free. Address COSBIE COLLAR CO., Cincinnati, Ohio. Mention this paper. AT PATENT OFFICE ALL THIS. Manufactured and for sale by the inventor jointly, 519 and 519 Mission Street, S. F.

J. SHANKS & CO. DUBLIN GINGER ALE. T. W. JACKSON & CO., 304 California Street. Sole Agents.

The Catholic Child HAS NOW BEEN PUBLISHED FOR THE month and has become so useful a visitor. It is received everywhere by Sunday School children with great satisfaction. THE PICTURES ARE FRESH, THE READING INTERESTING, THE PUZZLES ARE NEW. In a word, it is pronounced by both teachers and child ren The Best and Cheapest Catholic Sunday School Weekly published in America. McCORMICK BROTHERS, Publishers and Printers, 636 Clay St., San Francisco. Sample Copies Sent Free to any Address on application.

WANTED A CATHOLIC MAN of business disposition and energy, who can devote his whole time to the interests of the Catholic Publication business in which he is engaged, and who can give satisfactory references as to character and ability. Address, NEWYORK BROTHERS, 211 Broadway, New York.

WANTED Agents wanted for The History of Christianity, by Dr. Fisher. Best and most popular work of $1.75. Liberal terms. The religious paper of the Pacific Coast, the Sunday Herald, offers to send a specimen copy and full particulars to any address. Address Herald Office, Publishers, Portland, Maine.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

PIANOS! From $200 to $500. GUARANTEED FOR 5 YEARS. E. S. BONELLI, 144 Third Street, near Howard.

KNABE PIANOS. "For Beauty of tone, touch and action, I have never seen their equal." CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG. A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 721 Market St., S F. SOLE AGENTS FOR THE PACIFIC COAST.

GEORGE STECK & CO. PIANOS. USED BY ALL LEADING ARTISTS. CONCERT, PARLOR AND CHURCH. Warerooms, 23 O'Farrell Street. Pianos to Rent and for Sale on Installments.

HOTELS RESTAURANTS ETC.

NEW UNITED STATES HOTEL 426 FOURTH STREET, Corner Perry ..... San Francisco, Cal. Terms moderate. Omnibus to and from the house free. Free Coach to and from the house. Rooms 50c. and upwards. Meals 25c. Lodging 25c. Reduced rates by the week. Reading room attached. Free Reading Room and Parlor for the use of the guests. Free Baths. Elevator. Open all night. A. SCHUMANN, Proprietor.

M. VULICEVICH 505 and 507 Sansome St. FULL ASSORTMENT OF Foreign and Domestic Fruits, Nuts, Figs, Dates, Etc.

UPTOWN vs. DOWNTOWN PRICES! CHAS. LYONS, London Tailor. For the very finest Tailoring at a summer reduction of 25 per cent from the charge of high rented down-town stores. 1216 and 1218 MARKET STREET. Bet. Taylor and Jones Sts. The prices of all goods marked in plain figures from which no abatement can be made.

THOMAS DRADY, MERCHANT TAILOR, No. 6 Third Street, Near Market, S. F.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ESTABLISHED 1864. J. COONEY, PRACTICAL Painter and Whitener. SIGNS NEATLY EXECUTED. NO. 113 FOURTH STREET, San Francisco, Cal.

AS GOOD AS NEW. STRAW AND FELT HATS Cleaned and Pressed to look like New. FEATHERS Dyed, Cleaned and Curled. Latest Style Hat and Bonnet Frames for sale. 18 FOURTH STREET ..... Near Market

MURPHY, GRANT & CO., IMPORTERS OF DRY GOODS, And Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast OF THE Veuve Xavier Jouvin Kid Gloves Bush and Sansome Sts., San Francisco.

HIBERNIA CIGAR FACTORY. Wholesale and Retail. D. BARRY, - - - Proprietor. Cor. Ninth and Folsom Sts. Only White Labor. Satisfaction Guaranteed.

BELLS ETC.

WEED & KINGWELL, CALIFORNIA BRASS WORKS 125 First Street S. F. Manufacturers of the GARDEN VALVE, Substitute for Hose Nine, and CHEAPEST. Full assortment of Brass and Water Cocks and Valves, Globe, Angle, Check, Stop and Waste Cocks, Couplings, &c. BRASS BEST WORK, SPIGOTS, SHEATHING NAILS, RUDDER BRACES, &c. ALSO AND STORE Steam, Composition, Zinc and Babbitt Metal Gudgeons, Composition and CHURCH BELLS. Accurate for Roberts Patent Lubricator.

McShane Bell Foundry Manufacture those celebrated Bells and Chimes for Churches, Schools, Factories, &c. Also, Chimes and Bells. Prices and catalogue free. ... Baltimore, Md., Maryland.

MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY. Favorably known to the public since 1837. Bells of Superior Quality for Churches, Academies, Factories, Farms, Tower Clocks, Chimes and Other Bells. Also, Chimes and Peals. MENEELY & CO., WEST TROY, N. Y.

BLYMYER MFG. CO. BELLS. Church, Academy, Factory, Farm Bells, Tower Clocks, Chimes and Peals. Prices and Catalogue free. Mention this paper. CINCINNATI, O.

LINFORTH, RICE & CO. Sole Agents, Bells and Chimes Second, S.F.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. Favorably known to the public since 1837. Bells for Churches, Academies, Farms, Factories, Tower Clocks, Chimes and Peals. Warranted satisfactory. Catalogue sent free. VANDUZEN & TIFT, Cincinnati, O.

TAILORS.

John Kavanagh, MERCHANT TAILOR 6 New Montgomery Street, PALACE HOTEL, S. F. The Making of Clergymen' Cassocks a Specialty.

N. SWEENY, MERCHANT TAILOR 41 Second street, Opposite Jessie street ..... San Francisco. Cassocks and Clerical Clothing a Specialty.

M. FITZPATRICK —IS— The BOSS Tailor, Of the Pacific Coast. 109 FOURTH STREET, Bet. Mission and Howard ..... San Francisco. Go there for your CLOTHES. You are sure to SUITED and don't you forget it.

P. SHARP, 305 Clay street. JOHN LEWIS. LEWIS & SWIFT, —DEALERS IN— LUMBER Of all kinds. 215 SPEAR and 23 Howard Sts. (Adjoining Macdonald's Mill.) Pine Yard at Hathaway's Wharf. SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

MEDICAL.

DR. C. C. O'DONNELL, Office and Residence: N. W. cor. Kearny and Washington Streets, S. F.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CHARTER OAK STONE And Tinners' Stock OF ALL KINDS FOR SALE BY Excelsior Mfg. Co. ST. LOUIS, MO. Sold by GEORGE H. MATHEW & CO., San Francisco, Cal.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS

A NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS, 60 pp., 4to, is now ready, for the season of 1883, dated October, 1882. MANY NEW AND MOST ATTRACTIVE STYLES are presented, in each case, showing only natural woods, or elegantly decorated in GOLD, SILVER, BRONZE and COLORS. ONE HUNDRED STYLES of organs are described and illustrated, from the smallest size at only $22.00, having as much power as any single reed organ, and the characteristic Mason & Hamlin excellence, up to organs with THREE MANUALS and FULL PEDAL BASS, at $900.00. Sixty styles are sold from $75.00 to $600.00 each. They are unquestionably the BEST ORGANS IN THE WORLD. They have taken the HIGHEST AWARDS for DEMONSTRATED SUPERIORITY at EVERY GREAT WORLD'S INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION FOR SIXTEEN YEARS, to other American Organs having been found equal to them at any. The new styles, now ready, are the best and most attractive ever offered. CATALOGUES with net cash prices, free. Sold also for easy payments, or rented. THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO. BOSTON, 154 Tremont Street; NEW YORK, 46 East Fourteenth Street; CHICAGO, 149 Wabash Avenue.

DYEING! DYEING!

San Francisco, July, 1883. John F. Snow & Co. have removed their Dye Works from No. 1020 Mission St. to their new and commodious Works at 216 and 218 Sidney or 1208 St., near Valencia, and have added thereto the business of SCOURING AND REPAIRING. Its whole business is now conducted on the premises, only in name. All orders hereafter must be addressed to PALACE DYE WORKS, Nos. 216 and 218 Sidney Street, or, 225 Market St., Palace Hotel. CHAS. J. HOLMES, Proprietor. Telephone No. 2086.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

M. C. HASSETT, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, PHELAN'S BUILDING, Rooms 701 and 771. This Branch.

E. A. & C. E. LAWRENCE, Attorneys and Counsellors at Law, 14 Montgomery St., San Francisco.

M. COONEY, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, 638 Kearny street, cor. Pine, Rooms 3 and 4 ..... San Francisco.

JOHN M. BURNETT, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, Rooms 1 and 2, 207 Montgomery street, cor. Sacramento San Francisco.

A. H. LOUGHBOROUGH Law Office, N. W. Cor. Sacramento and Montgomery Streets.

DENTISTS.

LIVE AND LET LIVE Splendid Set of Teeth, only $7. AT THE DENTAL ROOMS OF T. BOLTON, 205 Kearny street.

COMPLETE SET OF TEETH Warranted for $7.00 HENRY GRACER, DENTIST, 815 Market st., (formerly in Jarrett building.)

NO BACK TALK. Prices that are Bound to Tell. Men's Working Pants for 75c. Men's Working Pants, extra, $1. Boy's Short Pants, 75c., $1 and upwards. Boys' Long Pants, $1 to 16 years, $1.50, $1.50 and upwards. Men's all-wool Pants for $3, $4.50 and $5. Boys' Overcoats from $3.50 up. Men's Overcoats from $7.50 up. Ulsters, Overcoats and Underwear in all grades. Boys' Suits, 3 to 11 years, $3 up. Boys' Suits, 3 to 15 years, from $4.50. Men' Suits, 11 to 14 years, from $6 up. Unequal place on the Pacific Coast to buy Men's, Boys', Youths' and Children's Clothing, Hats, Caps, Furnishing Goods, etc., at at HEIMAN BROS., Popular One-Price Clothiers, 1026 to 1030 Market Street. Country orders promptly filled. Satisfaction guaranteed.

EUPHORBIA PILULIFERA Great ASTHMA Herb Sold by Druggists. Sent on receipt of price, $1 P. P. by Dr. C. W. BENEDICT, 31 Park Place, N. Y.

THE BOSS Patented Aug. 8th, 1882. FOR SALE BY Pacific Saw Manufacturing COMPANY, Nos. 17 and 19 FRONT ST., S. F. Circulars with Prices free. Nos. 17 and 19 Front Street, San Francisco, Cal. Saws for Sawing Lumber, Shingles, Lath, Staves, Heading, Ship Knees, Ship Timber, Scroll Work, Tenoning, Mortising, Tonguing and Grooving, Gauging, Jointing, Planing, Moulding, Matching, Sash Work, Door Work, Blind Work, Cabinet Work, Turning, Circular Work, Scroll Work, Fancy Work, Ship Work, Boat Work, Wagon Work, Carriage Work, Plow Work, Implement Work, Furniture Work, Pump Work, Tub Work, Barrel Work, Keg Work, Box Work, Cooper

A TRIBUTE TO THE CATHOLIC MONKS.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

der and steam; Liberty, Reason, and Science; your parliamentary debates and your parliamentary debates; and for you it yet remains to be seen exactly what.

Retrospect then, towards the end of the first five hundred years of the history of the Church, and beginning with the year 400, the opening year of the reign of Theodosic, Mr. Bentin put before his audience a picture of Rome, "then fallen forever from her war-throne," "more luxurious and wanton in her disgrace than in her majesty," "THE NOT OBOLESS CITY OF THE EARTH," justifying in her pleasures and in her glories the emphatic utterances of Mr. Froude in "that splendid address of his on Christian delivered before the University of St. Andrews; that there was no other period of the education of Rome—a state of mind illuminated just now by the pictures of Mr. Alma-Tadema, which are "that becoming very admirable and wonderful pictures of very detestable things."

At this period there was born of a secretarial house a child who ran away from his home to the hills, and there found a hermit to teach him "the hope of a better life than that of Rome;" a child whom ever since all generations have called blessed—St. Benedict.

HE IS THE FIRST AND CHIEF OF THE WORKING SAINTS;

he begins his life by mending things; the repair of his nurse's corn-sieve, "only because she was so vexed about it;" he ends the life with another miracle. And this story of him, explained away as it may be by the twaddle Gibbonian, shows why people their virtue does not always show itself in the doing of things; why, when they say "make what you will of it," is still to be stated as a fact that people do set great store on the lives of all subsequent Benedictines.

Believe its time the Christians had talked and quarreled and suffered, but they had, too, for, subsequently, not so better, but shown the way to anything. St. Benedicts rule, and the lives of his followers, shows how many really be in it,—and finally detection that ought not to be only harmless, but also helpful members of society. And then, in the second half of the 19th, "Pollo in Dea, to whom Rome paid a splendid tribute of praise, "Le siecle de Saint et pas de Pericles, le grand fait historique de notre age." (The grand fact historique de notre age.) The title of St. Benedict, in perhaps, the great work of Montalembert, "Les Moines d'Occident."

CHRISTIAN MEN

Of the results of that rule there now was no doubt; it was the Christian rule, it was the counting of the eleventh century the Order of St. Benedict had spread over the world, and the 19th century had "up to the time of Its division into the two branches of had provided the Church with seven thousand Bishops and four-and-twenty Popes—with the noblest Christian poetry, and eloquence. The extinction of paganism had, indeed, been a great work, but "in its

GUIDO AND CITEAUX,"

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM—
IRELAND.

The Parnell Tribute a Grand Success.

DUBLIN, Oct. 16.—The Parnell tribute continues to be duly adopted as address by the Irish people, congratulating them upon the successful result of the movement. The address is thus: "The clearness and the fidelity with which the Irish people have defied unknown and unprecedented difficulties of a great leader, and the unselfish devotion of his followers to the cause of power for further and greater ends, are matters of history. Your unanimity in the hour of trial, and your unswerving fidelity to your leader, have taught a lesson to the world. The lesson of Ireland's power for further and greater ends, and the unselfish devotion of his followers to the cause of Ireland

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

"WHO IS LIKE TO GOD?"

WRITTEN BY SISTER ANNA DOYLE, DECEASED.

My Father, sweetest Father, so merciful and true,
A voice I hear within me saying, who is like to you?
My Father, O my Father, who lives and reigns above,
In Heaven, O sweet Heaven, where you manifest your love.

Come Michael, O great Michael, thy mantle wide display,
And may the dazzling brightness shade the one's most brilliant ray.
"Who is like to God?" cry, what tongue can tell
My soul o'er death comes o'er me! Oh! think upon it well.

Who is like to God, the Great, the Good, the Wise?
Whose boundless power extends beyond the earth, the sea, the skies.
Who is like to God, the Holy, hath the Tries,
And yet this mighty Majesty has so delighted of you.

Who is like to God in mercy and in love?
Glory, honor, and power to Him who lives and reigns above.
Who is like to God, when truly we repent,
He pardons all our sins, our debts free, and tenight does He vesent.

Who is like to God, the Merciful, the Meek,
Who never upbraids the "troubled reed" nor s'ar' despised the weak.
Oh, who will give me dove-like wings, and I'd fly and be at rest
With my God, in Heaven above, that mansion of the blest.

An Original Story.

MINNIE LEE.

A Tale of Sensible and Dunce.

[WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE MONITOR BY A CALIFORNIA CONTRIBUTOR.]

CHAPTER V.

THE PROSPECTING PARTY.

A day of cloudless beauty in the great Southwest. Leagues of sun-dried valley, and parched mountain side, where the scant vegetation shrank under the fervid rays the sun, and no shadows lay until late in the morning, hues and mirage of the distance. The motley with its armed band usomed winding through the trails in the dangerous mountains, guarded. Over the trustless waste toiled a little band of a hardy adventurers in search of a wonderful mine of the purest silver, which tradition located in a lonely canon, where the ruins of a forgotten city, whose splendid roofs, fretted over a rushing torrent which, ages ago, had overwhelmed a fearful grandeur that had echoed no foreign voice since Spanish enterprise explored its depths. An Indian guide, a very old man, had the party composed of Americans and New Mexicans made promises to lead them, guided by the secret stillness and desolation of the canon. In the center of the party Frederick Reynolds, a young man, with an old and wrinkled face, the shadow of a hundred days, and is old deformed by the fatigue of labor, on a stream of Bayard Taylor's Eagle Hunter rose to his feet.

"Boys, I can't stand it any longer, I'm down hearted and sick, and my home is far down there."

Hundreds of miles of stress have been bohemed in the same direction.

To dull thoughts of travel plunging down the canon gulf.

"Beautiful!" exclaimed Don Lois' world you had his eagles' wings to bear us over this chaotic waste of sand and scoria. Poor heart, I know how long for one cool draught from the shadowy groves of home and mother. Poor boy! I long for one cool draught from the shadowy groves of home and mother. Poor boy! I long for one cool draught from the shadowy groves of home and mother. Poor boy! I

HE MONITOR.

TWENTY-EIGHTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1883.

The Growth of the Catholic Church.

Two of the most important events that ever transpired throughout the history of the world was the birth of our Divine Saviour and the subsequent establishment of His Church. On the day of Pentecost, ten days after the ascension of our Lord, the Apostles—being endowed with the gifts of the Holy Ghost—began that great, glorious, and important mission which was to last throughout all ages: to inaugurate an irrepressible conflict with error: to overcome the powers of evil and darkness, and, finally, to lead man into the newly-opened heaven of eternal happiness.

The command of God—"Go, teach all nations," was the centrical which the Apostles presented to the world as their authority for undertaking a task which was not only immense in its conception, but seemed almost impossible of accomplishment by the worldly-wise of the first Christian century.

So sooner had the birth of our Blessed Redeemer become known than Satan set his minions to work in order to kill off Christianity at its very birth. Anticipating the work of Christ, which was shortly to be snatched from eternal perdition, the Evil One suggested Herod's fiendish slaughter of the Innocents, but the providence of God prevented the accomplishment of the vile plot by which Satan hoped to sustain himself in his accustomed career amidst the sin in which the world was enveloped.

It is interesting to know that the Apostles and their immediate successors—notwithstanding the opposition they everywhere met with, and the persecution carried on against them—succeeded so well in their mission that during the first century it is computed that fully 500,000 people were converted to the Catholic faith. These conversions were made throughout every portion of the then known world, and in this way, from the very commencement of their labor of mission of the several countries in which the Word of God was first declared to men by the mouths of the Apostles themselves.

As far as can be ascertained with certainty, the special field of labor of each of the Apostles—of Disciples we as follows: St. Peter preached in Jerusalem and throughout Judea; he created Antioch into an episcopal See, which he governed several years; planted the faith and established churches throughout Cappadocia, Pontus, Bithynia, and Asia. He then proceeded to Rome, and there having established the Apostolic See, and having suffered all kinds of crucifixions, he finally made the Eternal City the centre of his mission, and had of all the churches in the world," and of other Catholic sees. The Priest of the Apostles had a glorious martyr by crucifixion during the reign of Nero, and he was buried in a place which is the centre of church architecture, so called after him in Rome.

St. Paul preached the gospel in Cyprus, Asia, Greece, Italy, Dalmatia, Illyria, through Syria, Galatia, Phrygia, Macedon, Asia, Greece, and Illyricum. He was then sent in charge of a centurion to Rome, where he preached for two years, and, having freed from captivity he continued the faith "even to the extreme boundaries of the west." St. Paul was beheaded and buried in the Ostrian Way, on the same day that St. Peter was crucified.

St. Andrew preached throughout Scythia, Thrace, Epirus, Macedonia, Achaia, where he was crucified by order of the Pro-consul Egeas. St. Philip is said to have been crucified at Hierapolis, in Phrygia, but the Greek Church says that St. Philip died peacefully in Hierapolis, the Evil One suggested Herod's fiendish slaughter of the Innocents, but the providence of God prevented the accomplishment of the vile plot by which Satan hoped to sustain himself in his accustomed career amidst the sin in which the world was enveloped.

It is interesting to know that the Apostles and their immediate successors—notwithstanding the opposition they everywhere met with, and the persecution carried on against them—succeeded so well in their mission that during the first century it is computed that fully 500,000 people were converted to the Catholic faith. These conversions were made throughout every portion of the then known world, and in this way, from the very commencement

PARNELL'S PROGRAMME.

The Irish Leader Calls Attention to Reforms Granted by Parliament.

Mr. Parnell addressed a crowded meeting of the Irish National League in Dublin, and in the course of his speech congratulated the people of Ireland on the position in which the Irishmen found itself at the close of the Session of 1882. He reports successfully of the progress of the cause in America, and said the news from Australia was more encouraging. There the people had been roused as the result of Mr. Forster's coercion, and they were informed that two thousand pounds more was on its way. Speaking of the injustice of the Registration Bill, he said he thought the country had nothing by that step. The direction of the people would have a massive substance for the minority which had been thrown out by the House of Lords. They would still be in a position to meet the next general election with larger numbers of the Irish electors on the registers in all the Irish constituencies than had ever been the case before. At the same time he warned the meeting and the country generally that extraordinary exertions were being made by their opponents. Notices of objection to voters who were perfectly entitled to be on the register were being served broadcast in many constituencies with the balance of the national strength was under the impression that it would be borne in the mind that the agricultural population would, in all human probability, decide the registers upon which would be taken the verdict of the next general election, and that those voters who had their right of voting at the next revision would not be in a position to take part in that constitutional struggle, which he hoped would be the country of most year, relatively for the hope of the Irish people and the independence of Ireland, so long of that were ever practiced. Within an hour after the Irish Members had been released from Kilmainham they were compelled to meet. He was sorry to have been tired down and hurried over it. Not only that, but they had been asked to vote the amendment to the address, which Irish members into one which had affirmed several such important and valuable measures for the interests of the Irish people. He did not think that any Irishman could have voted against the Ministerial Amendment, but, however, he was in a position to say that the Irish people generally would be with the Irish Members in the course they had pursued, and they would be with them in the future, when duty should call them to the front. He had brought about the Land Act. With small, which could not be properly understood by the Irish Parliament for trying a plan of action. If it was successful it would give them an unanswerable argument for large sums for the remaining portions of Ireland.

AN ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK.

Their opinions were not unanimous. It was for an answer a question with the great body of the people, as to the course of the Irish people. Ireland had differences, but, so far as amount of Ireland was concerned, but so far as amount of Ireland was concerned, but so far as amount of Ireland was concerned, but reaching their hearts, fail, new methods will be created by her hands. If the people in their large masses no longer come to the Church, the Church is ready to send forth her servants into the highways and by-ways to reach the souls of those who have disdained God and forgotten his gospels. The Leagues of the Cross, for instance, do a league of bold man and true who have pledged their souls to the hamets of vice, in order, over thirty labourers were in walking outside in a board-room. After lengthened discussion it was decided to hold a special meeting of the board on the 29th inst. to take into consideration the application received under the Labourers' Act.

THE CHURCH IN ENGLAND

[DISCUSSED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

A British Worship Aids the Reach-Scripture. Passport, Saturday, Mr. Rattigan, Esq., Sheriff of Mayo, with his staff of bailiffs, and a large force of police, embarked in her Majesty's gunboat Wasp, at Inishbofin Harbour, near this town, on Thursday last, and on yesterday embarked at Clare Island, in Clew Bay, where they seized cattle and sheep (the estimated value of which is over £400), under writs of fi. fa. obtained for arrears of rent due out of that island.

O'Donnell Defence Fund.

The Irishman says:—More interest is taken in America in the trial of O'Donnell than has been evinced in any recent suit of similar character. A very large sum of money is 60,000 dollars; yet, the amount of it is stated, has been subscribed by the people whom they desire to retain, walk with them by day and by night, and encamp, by their pressure, by their preaching, by their position this demon who holds the rack and the lash of his victims in his hands, which, unaided, some can break. When the Church was in danger, the people devoted their substance, or of old, into the barren plains which abound in our big cities, to preach over the Gospel to those who, long last in vice, have forgotten it, then, but not until then, can we really expect that a step will be put to the annual loss of souls which the Church in England, in spite of all her efforts, has now in error of heart to do.

ST. JOSEPH'S FAIR.

Ten Thousand Dollars Realized—The Drawing for Prizes.

The Fair which has been in progress at St. Joseph's Hall for four days, closed last night, and the drawing for prizes took place at a late hour the same night. The hall was filled with people, who had come to witness the joyful shaking for the prize money, and the majority of the vote cast were decided in favour of the Judge Conroy, in behalf of the lady and gentleman of the Conroy family, who generously donated the Fairfax Lands for the purpose, as remarks which were responded to by the Rev. Father Prendergast.

The drawing for the prizes occupied several hours, the following being the successful ticket holders: No. 1321, handsome sideboard; No. 1322, handsome sideboard; No. 1323, handsome sideboard; No. 1324, lady's watch; No. 1325, family Bible; 1326, silver tea; No. 1327, silver tea; No. 1328, silver tea; No. 1329, silver tea; No. 1330, silver tea; No. 1331, silver tea; No. 1332, silver tea; No. 1333, silver tea; No. 1334, silver tea; No. 1335, silver tea; No.

Poetry.

THE MYSTIC ROSES.

A LEGEND OF THE CRUCIFIXION.

When the cruel blood of Saviour, stretched upon the Holy Rood, Poured—the pale lips of the penitent—streams of life unto repentance blood!
When the ever Virgin Mother, broken hearted, sorely tried,
Could but stand and gaze upon Her Holy Son—with the "loved one" at her side;
I have read, in tender pity, James, loving to the end,
Caused the trickling streams of life-blood in strange fashion to descend!
Caused them, on their pathway, reached the mother (ere the outpying spirit fled)
To transform—and falling, changed them into roses, white and red.
Roses white! all fitting emblems of the Virgin pure and true;
Type of that life giving water, "ever making all things new."
Roses red! Heaven's dew distilling, glorified by union above,
Regal robes, and all of gladness, in His Sacrament of Love!
Past they fell, and ever faster, showering the earth upon,
And the clustering petals subtly lit on the Centurion,
On the soldier who sharing, prostrate beneath the Cross before
On the penitent thief's disciple, on the grieved maid and sore,
And, lo! the eternal fragrance still is wafted for and wide,
Over the repentant and loyal fragrance of this Crucified!

Literary Miscellany.

Nancy O'Beirne's Lesson.

[BY ANNA T. SADLIER IN THE "CATHOLIC ALMANAC."]

It was a green and lovely spot, in the shadow of an Irish hillside, under an Irish sky. It was a poor little place, too, with its patch of turf beside it, where the potatoes grew, and its clay floor inside the door, and its narrow little window. But in that cabin dwelt as happy a woman as the sun shines upon. Does that mean that Nancy O'Beirne was rich in earthly goods? or that she had never known sorrow? Nay, my dear, that was not the way of her story. She was living in the cottage with her two grandchildren, a boy and a girl whose names were Dan and Biddy. Dan was a brave, strapping fellow had, barring his shyness, a fine face, and a good heart. Biddy was a little, gentle, whining, blue-eyed creature of scarcely eight summers, who was petted by all the neighbors, called her "a sweet, shy, clinging woman, who would have gone right through water for her lover, if he had asked her, and willing to work." Indeed, it was her strong hands that kept the potatoes from the "blight" about the pig, cared for the children, and made the house as clean as the floor of heaven, and walls can ever be.

It was coming on the winter—that is, it was already summer, and the beautiful days were drawing to a close, and the nights were cool and damp. It was feared it was going to be a hard winter, for the poor, and the shadow of death darkened your Nancy's door, as it had often darkened that door before. It was a little after sunset, but it was not to be whispered about that the O'Beirnes were in want down among the cottages, and so Nancy was alone, as she sat in her door, in a bed where her poor, and her sorrowing, had wept and prayed. As she knelt there for the last time, in her hand; without the sanctuary. He had left the cabin, and went into the kitchen to see about the supper. "The cows have come home, and the children are safe in their beds," he inquired.

"If you were to ask Him, granny," said Dan, "maybe God would send us something to-night."

The lady looked inquisitively at Nancy. She smiled softly and said:

"Why, Dan, I think that God wouldn't let them go supperless to bed another night. It isn't much my word for it, but the angels are beginning to think its a long time till supper."

The lady rose to go. She blessed the children, and left a bright piece of money in each of their hands. When she had gone, Dan stole softly up to his grandmother.

"Granny," said he, "do you mind the story Nellie Carroll told the other night; how the good people came to the cabin and left money that turned to dust again? Sure, my health and strength, and two little ones to be fed, depend on my work."

"Hush, 'a mavourneen!" said the old woman shaking her head, "in not such at all times to be talking about them same good people. Sure, all the money's as good as the heart of her that gave it. God's blessing go with her!"

It was still early when a man appeared at the door with a basket from the Castle. He: "the children did not go supperless to bed then our lady's money did."

The young man winter had passed away, and Mrs. Preston, who had been to Italy for her health, was about to return to her spring and her first thought was of Nancy O'Beirne. It is a lovely spring afternoon she walked down into the village, on her way to the cabin. The church was open and Mrs. Preston was about to go in and say a little prayer and spend a few minutes before her Lord in the tabernacle, when she saw Nancy, leaning little Biddy by the hand. The old woman looked well, and her patient look at ever, but the lady thought that the wrinkled face, framed in by the widow's cap, had a shadow, in it whose where, that she had not noticed before. She stopped at once and said:

"Well, Nancy dear, how are you? I have often thought of you though for weeks."

"Ayu, and God ever bless you for the money you brought us through the bad time, ma'am, and for the clothing."

"Dan's a bright, fearless look, and honest dark eyes that met yours with more than ordinary childish candor. He was fair and timid and gentle, drawing back now a little behind her grandmother and glancing shyly at the lady, holding in her tiny finger the while a handful of late flowers. In the various addresses from Mrs. Preston and remonstrances from Nancy, the children became not every their shyness. Little Biddy was approached the visitor and held up to her the bunch of flowers.

"Oh! thank you, my dear, they are so pretty," said Mrs. Preston. "Do you know the names of them?"

"Sure I don't, ma'am," said the child; "they are pretty, Dan does."

The visitor smiled at this instance of feminine reliance upon a brother's wisdom.

"Can you tell me, Dan?" said the lady to Dan.

"I wouldn't be very hard," said Dan, with comical gravity. "if I didn't just forget the name of them."

"Well, I'll forgive you outright.

"They're not half so pretty," said Biddy, "as those we used to get in May for the Blessed Virgin's altar."

"And in May," added Dan; "some that were as yellow as gold only paler like."

"Do you know the name of those March flowers, Dan?" asked Mrs. Preston.

The boy looked from her to his grandmother, and as if unwilling to confess his ignorance.

"Sure, granny'll tell you herself."

"Primroses is the name of them, Dan, mavourneen," said the old woman, smiling at the boy's look of pride in her knowledge. In answer to the visitor's smile, then bowed she our any humor in the child's odd way of addressing her.

"Granny," said Biddy suddenly, "we're to be confirmed next week."

"If you were to ask Him, granny," said Dan, "maybe God would send us something to-morrow."

The lady looked inquisitively at Nancy. She smiled softly and said:

"I told Dan, ma'am, that God wouldn't let them go supperless to bed another night. Sure, it isn't my word for it, but the angels are beginning to think its a long time till supper."

The lady rose to go. She blessed the children, and left a bright piece of money in each of their hands. When she had gone, Dan stole softly up to his grandmother.

"Granny," said he, "do you mind the story Nellie Carroll told the other night; how the good people came to the cabin and left money that turned to dust again? Sure, my health and strength, and two little ones to be fed, depend on my work."

"Hush, 'a mavourneen!" said the old woman shaking her head, "in not such at all times to be talking about them same good people. Sure, all the money's as good as the heart of her that gave it. God's blessing go with her!"

It was still early when a man appeared at the door with a basket from the Castle. He: "the children did not go supperless to bed then our lady's money did."

The young man winter had passed away, and Mrs. Preston, who had been to Italy for her health, was about to return to her spring and her first thought was of Nancy O'Beirne. It is a lovely spring afternoon she walked down into the village, on her way to the cabin. The church was open and Mrs. Preston was about to go in and say a little prayer and spend a few minutes before her Lord in the tabernacle, when she saw Nancy, leaning little Biddy by the hand. The old woman looked well, and her patient look at ever, but the lady thought that the wrinkled face, framed in by the widow's cap, had a shadow, in it whose where, that she had not noticed before. She stopped at once and said:

"Well, Nancy dear, how are you? I have often thought of you though for weeks."

"Ayu, and God ever bless you for the money you brought us through the bad time, ma'am, and for the clothing."

"Dan's a bright, fearless look, and honest dark eyes that met yours with more than ordinary childish candor. He was fair and timid and gentle, drawing back now a little behind her grandmother and glancing shyly at the lady, holding in her tiny finger the while a handful of late flowers. In the various addresses from Mrs. Preston and remonstrances from Nancy, the children became not every their shyness. Little Biddy approached the visitor and held up to her the bunch of flowers.

"Oh! thank you, my dear, they are so pretty," said Mrs. Preston. "Do you know the names of them?"

"Sure I don't, ma'am," said the child; "they are pretty, Dan does."

The visitor smiled at this instance of feminine reliance upon a brother's wisdom.

"Can you tell me, Dan?" said the lady to Dan.

"I wouldn't be very hard," said Dan, with comical gravity,

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1883.

An Oration Unworthy a Great Occasion.

The Pioneers of California have our esteem for the manly enterprise they evinced in leading the way for the glorious phalanx of adventurers which followed them into the distant Golden West. But our admiration for the society is considerably dampened by the fact that in their selection of an orator to address them on their 33d anniversary they preferred the services of a person whose prejudices against the Church, and whose persistent lie of history, are the only two prominent points in the harangue he delivered from the rostrum on that occasion.

It would occupy too much space to criticise all the historical crookedness of Mr. Holladay, so we will have to content ourselves with briefly criticising the more prominent bits of bigotry which was hurled forth on an occasion when "pioneers and men of mark gathered from all parts of the west to Pioneer, and not as politicians or Pharisees."

Mr. Holladay trained his audience as if they were a mere assemblage of some anti-Catholic society whose thinking and mental food was furnished by the Protestant Publication Society, and accordingly he proceeded to inform the Church of God. In order to accomplish this feat of doubtful hate he resolved for them a lot of fables and lies, which he gave forth as "facts" which were to be kept without a comma, and whose work was written with the cloaked view of falsifying every sentiment or spoken historical fact wherein the Catholic Church is concerned. Here is a sample of the work served up by Mr. Holladay in his allusion to the traits of the world in the early Christian ages:

"Rapine, lust, and cruelty obliterated what remained of Christian literature; the centuries of the dark ages followed; the midnight of the Middle and Monkish ages, with the glimmer of a few stars, lighted by the Church, and the dawn of the morning of the Reformation, with its clear sight of light, and its hope of a day of perfect light, the Millennial day, when the eternal Prince Immanuel, M. Guizot, says upon the subject:

"Had not the Christian Church existed," said that distinguished writer, "the whole world would have been ravaged by physical force. The silence convened moral power. It was that Church," continues this learned author, "which established and maintained in forming the character and furthering the development of modern civilization." Where immortal Guizot speaks of the Church, Holladay speaks of "pioneer philosophical schools of Christianity"; where morals and decency "were active and potent at once in the dark ages of heathen and in the dawn of light," and where glory is in "that the human mind, beaten down by the storm, took refuge in the asylum of churches and monasteries."

Such is the language of a man whose illiberalism is acknowledged in every land where literary genius is cherished, and whose works will survive long after such spasmodic jaden scribblers as Draper, and such orators as the gentleman in question, will have been buried in oblivion.

The most historical perversion Mr. Holladay was guilty of which we have yet to notice, was in his treatment of the great English Charter of 1215, which he attempted to belittle because it was procured by the Catholic Church, and not by the Kings of England from King John. Here is the orator's one-sided study of the question:

"The great charter of 1215 granted to the people of England, and afterwards confirmed by Kings and Parliaments, was in brief but a few pages, and contained the equal privileges of the barons. That remains very simple and concise to us, as it was in the 13th century. It was not the popular influence in the Government, but the Church, that wrested from King John the great charter, after he had first destroyed the Saxon charter of Alfred, and then had called the Normans in his Government, and had made them his friends against the people of Saxon descent upon the discovery of their conspiracy and revolt, and the way to keep the Saxons down."

In order that not only our Catholic readers, but also all impartial Protestants interested in this matter may know the bias of the great concerning this important question, in contradiction to Mr. Holladay's fabrication, we will quote the evidence of the eminent Protestant historian Hallam against Mr. Holladay, who is until we unearth a historian now extant in his statements.

"It has been the fashion to depreciate the value of Magna Charta," says Hallam, as if it had been wrung from Mr. Holladay, "as if it had been the private exclusive of a few nobles. It is indeed of little importance by what motive or impulse it was granted, if it be, as it is, a code of rules more distinct and ample than the preceding, and more generally acknowledged as binding. Yet it was by no means exclusively or even principally the work of a single order, and whose rank and wealth were not the foundation of its provisions. The Church, in the time of Stephen, had asserted a freedom from the yoke of the laity, and had established a jurisdiction of her own. Yet it was by her influence, and the zeal of her prelates, that the liberties of the people were secured, and the Great Charter established

FATHER BECKX.

The General of the Society of Jesus.

The Illustrated Catholic American publishes an excellent Photo of Most Rev. Peter Beckx, General of the Order of Jesuits, with the following records:

Feast of the Death of Saint Ignatius of Loyola, July 31, 1866, twenty-three years, lacking Fifteen days, have witnessed this great Order.

Peter Beckx was born at Sleshem, in Brabant, in 1795. Ordained priest in 1819; he entered the Society of Jesus shortly afterwards. He had scarcely completed his novitiate when his great talents were observed and important posts confided to him. He was successively confessor to the Duke Ferdinand d'Arbach-Kaunitz, whom he converted, master of the church at Koethen, Prefect of Studies at Tournai, in 1833, in the Jesuit College of Saint Acheulseul, Father Rector of Saint Acheulseul, Father Rector of Saint Acheulseul, Father Rector

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM— IRELAND.

RIOTOUS OBSCURENEN.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin Assaulted in Londonderry.

LONDONDERRY, Nov. 1.—The hall in which the Lord Mayor of Dublin was to deliver an address on temperance was seized by Orangemen, who declared that the Mayor should not hold the hall. Upon the arrival of the Mayor he was driven to the hotel. He was not molested upon his arrival, but the crowd outside pelted upon his carriage and the hotel with missiles. The Orangemen surrounded the hotel in force. The Mayor arrived at the hotel safely. Thereupon the mob of the procession's route and by-ways began to form, and the demonstration was soon in progress. Orange flags were displayed from windows. Orangemen were stationed in the Lower Path on the roof of City Hall.

LONDON.—With the procession covering the Mayor of Dublin in his hotel was pelted with missiles. The Orangemen fired upon it and the City Hall the Orangemen fired upon it and the windows were broken and torn, and windows were smashed and a dying. The deposition of the Lord Mayor entered the hotel, but an angry crowd followed him and threatened to burn the City Hall and demolish the windows. The police charged the mob and dispersed the crowd. The Orangemen were called out. The Lancaster was ordered to Londonderry. The Lord Mayor left the city in the Queen's Bridge Station. The Lord Mayor and the Lord Mayor, has issued a proclamation to the citizens of Londonderry, calling upon the Lord Mayor entered the hotel, but an angry crowd followed him and threatened to burn the City Hall and demolish the windows. The police charged the mob and dispersed the crowd. The Orangemen were called out. The Lancaster was ordered to Londonderry. The Lord Mayor left the city in the Queen's Bridge Station. The Lord Mayor and the Lord Mayor, has issued a proclamation to the citizens of Londonderry, calling upon the

THE CASE OF CONNOLLY.

CORK, Nov. 1.—Congressman Finerty addressed a meeting held in the Corn Exchange, Bellevue, Grand Lower Cork, Saturday, from A. M. Sullivan, Grand Master of the Orange Order, and other prominent Orangemen, on the subject of the trial of O'Donnell, the Lord Mayor of the Dublin Corporation.

At a meeting of Irishmen on the 15th of October resolutions were passed condemning the Dublin Corporation for not joining with the Mayor in the prosecution of the United Ireland. Mr. Sullivan, Grand Master in Cork, presided. The Lord Mayor received at the hotel lately. Thereupon the procession's route and by-ways began to form, and the demonstration was soon in progress. Orange flags were displayed from windows. Orangemen were stationed in the Lower Path on the roof of City Hall.

LONDON.—With the procession covering the Lord Mayor of Dublin in his hotel was pelted with missiles. The Orangemen fired upon it and the City Hall the Orangemen fired upon it and the windows were broken and torn, and windows were smashed and a dying. The deposition of the Lord Mayor entered the hotel, but an angry crowd followed him and threatened to burn the City Hall and demolish the windows. The police charged the mob and dispersed the crowd. The Orangemen were called out. The Lancaster was ordered to Londonderry. The Lord Mayor left the city in the Queen's Bridge Station. The Lord Mayor and the Lord Mayor, has issued a proclamation to the citizens of Londonderry, calling upon the

The Speech of Chancellor de Grey-Gordon.

After adjudicating the movement of Confederation on last Monday, at Cork, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Gordon, addressed the people of Dublin, in the course of a speech, Dr. Finerty, in the course of the day of Orange in the Irish, on every side, the Chancellor, but in a manner unusual, the Irish Corporation, the Lord Mayor, has issued a proclamation to the citizens of Londonderry, calling upon the people of Dublin, and

Poetry.

[For the MONITOR.]

GREETING TO REV. E. SORIN.

[The following verses were written when it was rumored that Very Rev. E. Sorin, the venerable Superior of the Congregation of Holy Cross, intended to visit California in company with Archbishop Alemany. He was expected to arrive at Salt Lake and visited Idaho. The poem is the spontaneous effusion from a devoted daughter of the Blessed Virgin, who, in a letter she handed the "Ave Maria" in honor of the Mother of God, that we take great pleasure in presenting it to our readers.—Editor Monitor.]

Not as strangers do we greet thee
"At thy coming to the West,
But as children hail a father,
Who is honoured, loved, and blessed.
Do we give thee hearty welcome
From unsanctified hearts that claim
Humanity's kinship to thee, Reverend Father,
In our holy Mother's name.

Lo! from ocean unto ocean
Clothing in earth's robes of bound,
The bright fruits of thy labors
In a blessed harvest are found.
For wives or our Lady's priests,
Solace is on the hearthstone,
Where's her hope is publicly,
In power or art!

Where's thy profane volume,
Consecrated to her love,
By her name hallowed, and honor,
Who rules Queen of Heaven above.
Where is the Sacrilegious Voltaire,
Tis the station and the throne,
Where is the Infidel Paine?
Lament for new victories won.

Where is the Infidel Volney? Where
Up the standard of the Cross,
Where is the Infidel Paine?
Scoring danger, toil, and loss
With a hand that never failed,
With a heart that never faltered,
Where is that valiant knight and wisdom
Over every for prophet?

Flames of faith and learning,
Where is the light that glows
From whose mighty dome our Lady
Has extended her wide arms,
Then pure hearts with filial fondness
Hasten to her shrine,
Proper this immense crowds assembling
Or by one man's day to day.

Notre Dame, whose valiant children
Have gone forth throughout the land
Bearing wheat and the trophies
Of thy ever-vigorous hand.
They have spoken hallowed the blessings
Of our Mother's chosen home,
Where all can find a welcome to
As a choicest gift of Rome.

In his triumph, Reverend Father,
Thou hast come to the West,
Joy in all his soul earned honors,
Joy in his heart, in his eye
Oh! we feel thy coming, Father,
Our labor lessened by thy
And we pray that sometime greater
Oh thy mission may be.

Clothed in with added glory,
Visited from His Heart, Divine,
All the grace of thy long vigils
Reaching in Heaven's sunshine mine
Lighter burdens of hope and love,
Lighter burdens of fear and grief,
Will be thine by Mary Mother
From the bounteous store above.

MARGELLA A. FITZGERALD.

Mossy Woodland, Nov. 1868.

Literary Miscellany.

A Mother's Love.

Margaret was more cheerful and hopeful after her long rest. Time passed very quickly as they chatted over their knitting, and the shift came. The quaint Dutch time-piece struck eight. The neighbor started up saying.

"I cannot make out why Paul is not back. Unless he met with some accident he should be here now. He knew plenty of time before ten o'clock. I will just step over to the house and see if I can hear anything about him."

The house was a good step indeed. Margaret, left alone, was full of misgivings. But the child did not wake, and only a sharp north-west wind, which had sprung up and went whistling around the building, broke in upon the stillness. About nine the neighbor returned.

"Michael has just got back," she said. "It has been very rough weather in the woods. The wind is blowing right sharply, and the roads are covered with snow. He so high in some places that it is at the height almost of three tall men. Our Paul came on as far as he could, till the snow got stuck in the snow. Michael caught up with him just then, and they had to unharness the horses, and Paul rode straight back to town again."

Margaret wrung her hands in despair.

"So the medicine cannot be here to-night," she cried. "Could he not send some one with it on foot?"

"So he could, right well," said the neighbor, "if he has footgoers are enough. But Michael says in the town they're talking of sickness in the woods. Two men have been prowling about the woods lately. Yesterday morning a boy on his way to school was torn to pieces by them."

While the woman was still speaking, the child began to stir uneasily in its crib, and moan. Margaret rushed over and took him up in her arms. He was burning with fever. The whole doctor had left off, and was upon him. Margaret laid him gently back amongst the pillows. The doctor's face was grave. "I believe his life depends on that medicine," pointed her like a baby. He represented hours for the time she had spent in sleep during the day, depending on Paul's return from the town.

"If I had only your power," she murmured; adding aloud, "But why cannot I go yet?"

She sprang up, seized a warm hood and shawl, and put them on her head. The neighbor caught her by the arm, saying:

"Why, my dear Margaret, you must be mad. You are alone, on such a night, through a forest infested with wolves! Before Paul has the prescription."

Margaret was staggered for an instant by this argument.

"The prescription," she said, "must be at the drug store; and if it is not, I know where Paul is likely to be found. It will take two hours to reach the town. By running most of the way I will be back here soon after midnight. So that I may still be in time to save my child.

She came to the piercing glance at the Mother of Sorrows, took a lantern from the shelf by the door, and was gone into the night with a thick shawl over her shoulders, tying the ends of it securely around her waist so that her arms were free. She then bent over the child, kissed his flushed face, and asked whether she should find it alive on her return. With God's help, I will be here early in the morning."

It just happened that our Paul is taking in the same hotel he had been to-day, with fruit to the unlivery, said the neighbor, as the door closed on her. Some time after the doctor, looking up from a moment from the patient, said to the woman:

"He is sure to get back before night?"

"Sir," answered the woman, "you are depend on him."

"Paul back?" was her first question.

"Not yet," said the neighbor; "but there's five hours passed, passed out the village. So here we are!"

The two women made ready some food for themselves, of which they partook.

Margaret was more cheerful and hopeful after her long rest. Time passed very quickly as they chatted over their knitting, and the shift slept. The quaint Dutch time-piece struck eight. The neighbor started up saying.

"I cannot make out why Paul is not back. Unless he met with some accident he should be here now. He knew plenty of time before ten o'clock. I will just step over to the house and see if I can hear anything about him."

The house was a good step indeed. Margaret, left alone, was full of misgivings. But the child did not wake, and only a sharp north-west wind, which had sprung up and went whistling around the building, broke in upon the stillness. About nine the neighbor returned.

"Michael has just got back," she said. "It has been very rough weather in the woods. The wind is blowing right sharply, and the roads are covered with snow. Are so high in some places that it is at the height almost of three tall men. Our Paul came on as far as he could, till the snow got stuck in the snow. Michael caught up with him just then, and they had to unharness the horses, and Paul rode straight back to town again."

Margaret wrung her hands in despair.

"So the medicine cannot be here to-night," she cried. "Could he not send some one with it on foot?"

"So he could, right well," said the neighbor, "if he has footgoers are enough. But Michael says in the town they're talking of sickness in the woods. Two men have been prowling about the woods lately. Yesterday morning a boy on his way to school was torn to pieces by them."

While the woman was still speaking, the child began to stir uneasily in its crib, and moan. Margaret rushed over and took him up in her arms. He was burning with fever. The whole doctor had left off, and was upon him. Margaret laid him gently back amongst the pillows. The doctor's face was grave. "I believe his life depends on that medicine," pointed her like a baby. He represented hours for the time she had spent in sleep during the day, depending on Paul's return from the town.

"If I had only your power," she murmured; adding aloud, "But why cannot I go yet?"

She sprang up, seized a warm hood and shawl, and put them on her head. The neighbor caught her by the arm, saying:

"Why, my dear Margaret, you must be mad. You are alone, on such a night, through a forest infested with wolves! Before Paul has the prescription."

Margaret was staggered for an instant by this argument.

"The prescription," she said, "must be at the drug store; and if it is not, I know where Paul is likely to be found. It will take two hours to reach the town. By running most of the way I will be back here soon after midnight. So that I may still be in time to save my child.

She came to the piercing glance at the Mother of Sorrows, took a lantern from the shelf by the door, tied a thick shawl over her shoulders, tying the ends of it securely around her waist so that her arms were free. She then bent over the child, kissed his flushed face, and asked whether she should find it alive on her return. "With God's help, I will be here early in the morning."

It just happened that our Paul is taking in the same hotel he had been to-day, with fruit to the unlivery, said the neighbor, as the door closed on her. Some time after the doctor, looking up from a moment from the patient, said to the woman:

"He is sure to get back before night?"

"Sir," answered the woman, "you are depend on him."

"Paul back?" was her first question.

"Not yet," said the neighbor; "but there's five hours passed, passed out the village. So here we are!"

The two women made ready some food for themselves, of which they partook.

MRS. MORGAN'S MAINE LAW.

BY JOHN SMITH, JR.

Mrs. Morgan's husband was an excellent workman, and had his best wages, but he would drink, and, without doing any harm, when intoxicated, generally beat his children, and sometimes his wife.

Mrs. Morgan was a notable woman, and lored her husband in spite of all, but after years of patient forbearance, came to the conclusion that Jimmy Morgan, as she collectively, should stop drinking whether or no. Jim Morgan, manufactured a private Maine Law.

The occasion was one day when Jimmy came home in disorder, half tipsy, which always happened when he stopped at the tavern on his way, and he did this on an average of about twice a week.

"Now you, Morgan, said she, as soon as he entered, "you've been at the whisky bottle again—" You needn't deny it. I know it by your looks—and by your breath too—go, you nasty beast, how dare you try to kiss me when you have been drinking.

Jimmy had essayed this matrimonial caress, hoping that it would conciliate the good wife; but finding his purpose failed he stood upon his dignity.

"Hasty, deity," said he, "how you put on airs. Give us some kisses, and don't talk."

Mrs. Morgan did not. Then get round, but she was now. The pit her arms akimbo and narrowed.

"Now a mouthful of dinner do you get in this house to-day, nor any other day, till you promise faithfully, that you never touch a drop of the better.

The half tipsy husband looked at her in great amazement. For a moment he thought of enforcing his will, as he had often done before, but when he looked at his wife's face enough to rouse his courage, or whether the thought of the consequences of attempting it he turned, after a little hesitation, and left the house.

Of course he went straight to the tavern, as Mrs. Morgan had expected he would. And of course, he spent his money, and came home thoroughly inebriated, as she rather wished he would be.

He had just sufficient reason left to wonder at the extraordinary care with which his wife, after assisting to undress him, tucked him in bed. But this, like everything else, was soon forgotten in a sound sleep, from which he did not awake for hours.

"But what is your plan?" asked Dermot, standing in the shadow of the window of the fifth rate coffee house where they had gone to lodge.

"Never mind now," replied his brother, hopefully, just come with me and you will see.

Dermot obeyed in miserable silence, and followed on with increasing pace, while Murtagh, musing on old street-hawker, stopped just long enough to decide with which she had borrowed that otherwise from a neighbor.

"Now, Jimmy Morgan," said she, apostrophizing him, "I'll carry you of your beastly habit, or—please God—I'll whip you till you'll be sore for a month.

Down came the lash, as vigorously as her arms could lay it on; again, again, and yet again. But not when she had tired her arm stop to stop. And very soon the offender rose from his stupor, saw what it was, and sat up in his bed to remonstrate.

"Not till you've promised to leave off drinking, you nasty beast, and be a decent man, I'll not stop," and down the lash came vigorously than ever.

"Swear to leave off drinking, or I'll be beaten to death for you, I'll kill—

"Stop, stop, I promise, I promise—I'll never touch a drop more—I'll be good—I'll do anything to see you rolling about so lively—never tell me, Jimmy Morgan, that I'm killing you after that.

"Mercy, mercy, mercy," roared the criminal. "Have you pity, Polly, are you the devil at all?

"I am and worse." And another shower of blows descended. "Hallloo, as much as you like, for it will do you good, only I can tell you one thing, it will not move the neighbors. I told them what I was going to do if you came home drunk, and they had enough yet? Will you promise as once, or are you going to hold out still?"

"Oh, oh, oh, groaned the battered husband, twisting and turning in every direction, in vain attempt to escape the cutarcut of blows, "oh, oh, oh."

"Will you promise! You'd better do it quick," remarked the relentless amazon, "or I'll beat you to a jelly. There an yours I've been your grandmother, but I'll beat it no longer. I've tried everything, and now I'm trying whipping. You've beaten me often enough to give me a good back. Promise at once, the quicker the better, for I'll not let you up till you do, even if it begs me heart all night, and you sick for a week afterwards.

It was a good while before the criminal gave in. He thought his wife would tire out at last, but when she continued to stand needed for some time, and he saw no symptoms of either fatigue or relenting, he was compelled to succumb.

"I'll swear, I'll swear," he said at last, I'll do anything only let me up. That's a dear good Polly. Oh, dear, don't whip me any more, for I've said I'd swear; oh, oh."

Mrs. Morgan gave him three or four second cuts more, to "make assurance doubly sure," before she unfastened the bed cords, which she did, either, with the Bible in her hand, or, perhaps, to make the ceremony by making him kiss the book.

From that night Jimmy Morgan was never known to taste liquor. He told his neighbors that he had been so sick, after his last spree, that he had sworn off from the temperance society; but he did not tell them what made him ill. Mrs. Morgan, too, kept the secret, as seeming him through his broken, which were neither few nor slight. However, as she said, "desperate diseases require desperate remedies;" and so she never repeated of the medicine she had administered, even though her husband did not earn a dollar for three weeks.

The Sisters' Sacrifices.

The Sisters of the Convent of the Visitation, near Frederick, Maryland, received from Paris a gold ciborium, (a vessel to contain the host in celebrating the communion), made from jewelry offered by Sisters on entering the Order. The vessel is 18 inches high artistically molded and beautifully wrought. The base and top are ornamented with medallions of the Twelve Apostles, the Holy Family, Saint John the Baptist, Saint Joachim, Saint Ann and others. The medallions are enchased in rubies. On the pedestal are three diamonds, presented by Miss Catherine Stonesr and Mr. Fenwick Stonesr, her brother, near relatives of Archbishop Eggleston, founder of the convent. The inscription is Latin is "Behold the Bread of Angels Become the food of Pilgrims."—Baltimore Sun.

Hostetter's Anti Phosphate—As a Refrigerant Drink in Fevers.

Dr. C. H. S. Davis, Meriden, Conn., says "I have used it as a pleasant and cooling drink in fevers, and have been very much pleased with it."

A QUEER DETECTIVE.

During one of the lesser rebellions in Ireland in the beginning of this century, Shamus O'Brien, a young man, who had family entitled in the extreme West, distinguished himself so valiantly as a "rebel," or Shamus Bradley, as the English officers used "wanted." Shamus, however, was too active to get safely of the trading vessel, and along with some other patriots, took refuge in America.

Years went by, he prospered and Shamus was again "wanted," this time in another and better sense, however. The O'Brien had been gathered to his fathers, and the family entirely changed in that the young son, who might return to his native land, but had no idea how to set about finding him. The motive sailed and waited, and longed for an opportunity to come back to her. By degrees every one else had left the place, and finally, the next son, a tall stripling of eighteen, in course of time came to be regarded as the head of the family. Shamus thought frequently of his eldest brother, and he at length made up his mind to go on himself to America and seek him. He resolved to take Dermot, the third and youngest brother, with him. It was with mourning the poor mother saw them go, for she firmly believed that the Shamus was dead.

On landing in New York the young fellows were indeed puzzled as to how they were to set about seeking their brother. They were very short of cash, and were in truth strangers in a strange land.

After some days of fruitless inquiry, Murtagh began to think of returning to his native place; and Dermot, who had been sick, all the voyage, and now appeared miserably ill, cried like a child at the thought of the mother's love and Kitty's sharp words and jeers if he "came home comfortable on the other side of the sea. One morning the child sat with his head resting disjointedly by one of the Murtagh knit his black brows and set himself to think.

"Dermot," said he, at last, "I'm sorry enough for your sake, but I can't go home without my brother. Sure, I'd rather be torn to pieces by a lion, than face Kitty and the mother without him. Now, I've said I'd swear; oh, oh."

"Dermot, I know I'm a mere Shamus were to leave Ballymackshoney."

"Well, we have left, so we might as well make the best of it, and hunt for Shamus. You wouldn't forsake your own brother, would you, Dermot? Well, I'm glad, that we look well in New York before going farther. I have a grand idea, so dry your eyes and come with me."

"But what is your plan?" asked Dermot, standing in the shadow of the window of the fifth rate coffee house where they had gone to lodge.

"Never mind now," replied his brother, hopefully, just come with me and you will see.

Dermot obeyed in miserable silence, and followed on with increasing pace, while Murtagh, musing on old street-hawker, stopped just long enough to decide with which she had borrowed that otherwise from a neighbor.

"Now, Jimmy Morgan," said she, apostrophizing him, "I'll carry you of your beastly habit, or—please God—I'll whip you till you'll be sore for a month.

Down came the lash, as vigorously as her arms could lay it on; again, again, and yet again. But not when she had tired her arm stop to stop. And very soon the offender rose from his stupor, saw what it was, and sat up in his bed to remonstrate.

"Not till you've promised to leave off drinking, you nasty beast, and be a decent man, I'll not stop," and down the lash came vigorously than ever.

"Swear to leave off drinking, or I'll be beaten to death for you, I'll kill—

"Stop, stop, I promise, I promise—I'll never touch a drop more—I'll be good—I'll do anything to see you rolling about so lively—never tell me, Jimmy Morgan, that I'm killing you after that.

"Mercy, mercy, mercy," roared the criminal. "Have you pity, Polly, are you the devil at all?

"I am and worse." And another shower of blows descended. "Hallloo, as much as you like, for it will do you good, only I can tell you one thing, it will not move the neighbors. I told them what I was going to do if you came home drunk, and they had enough yet? Will you promise as once, or are you going to hold out still?"

"Oh, oh, oh, groaned the battered husband, twisting and turning in every direction in vain attempt to escape the cutarcut of blows, "oh, oh, oh."

"Will you promise! You'd better do it quick," remarked the relentless amazon, "or I'll beat you to a jelly. There an yours I've been your grandmother, but I'll beat it no longer. I've tried everything, and now I'm trying whipping. You've beaten me often enough to give me a good back. Promise at once, the quicker the better, for I'll not let you up till you do, even if it begs me heart all night, and you sick for a week afterwards.

It was a good while before the criminal gave in. He thought his wife would tire out at last, but when she continued to stand needed for some time, and he saw no symptoms of either fatigue or relenting, he was compelled to succumb.

"I'll swear, I'll swear," he said at last, I'll do anything only let me up. That's a dear good Polly. Oh, dear, don't whip me any more, for I've said I'd swear; oh, oh."

Mrs. Morgan gave him three or four second cuts more, to "make assurance doubly sure," before she unfastened the bed cords, which she did, either, with the Bible in her hand, or, perhaps, to make the ceremony by making him kiss the book.

From that night Jimmy Morgan was never known to taste liquor. He told his neighbors that he had been so sick, after his last spree, that he had sworn off from the temperance society; but he did not tell them what made him ill. Mrs. Morgan, too, kept the secret, as seeming him through his broken, which were neither few nor slight. However, as she said, "desperate diseases require desperate remedies;" and so she never repeated of the medicine she had administered, even though her husband did not earn a dollar for three weeks.

The Sisters' Sacrifices.

The Sisters of the Convent of the Visitation, near Frederick, Maryland, received from Paris a gold ciborium, (a vessel to contain the host in celebrating the communion), made from jewelry offered by Sisters on entering the Order. The vessel is 18 inches high artistically molded and beautifully wrought. The base and top are ornamented with medallions of the Twelve Apostles, the Holy Family, Saint John the Baptist, Saint Joachim, Saint Ann and others. The medallions are enchased in rubies. On the pedestal are three diamonds, presented by Miss Catherine Stonesr and Mr. Fenwick Stonesr, her brother, near relatives of Archbishop Eggleston, founder of the convent. The inscription is Latin is "Behold the Bread of Angels Become the food of Pilgrims."—Baltimore Sun.

Hostetter's Anti Phosphate—As a Refrigerant Drink in Fevers.

Dr. C. H. S. Davis, Meriden, Conn., says "I have used it as a pleasant and cooling drink in fevers, and have been very much pleased with it."

—Our motto is "honorable dealing." We endeavor to fill our orders, with first-class Chinese servants. Entire satisfaction in all cases secured. Hunter & Co., 616½ California street, San Francisco.

—Brook's Spool Cotton, soft finish as well as glaze finish, is manufactured especially for sewing machine work. Try it on any machine you will use no other. For sale by all dry goods stores.

Why She Couldn't Stap Him.

On a railway train, just behind a plainly dressed, motherly-looking woman, sat two fashionably dressed ladies. The boy was asking all sorts of foolish questions, and occasionally he would whine like a cob bear and twist himself around and feel.

"If I had hold of him I'd blister him till he couldn't stand up," said one of the ladies.

"Here then," replied the motherly old lady, "you can take hold of him. If you want to slap him, slap him. I haven't the heart to do it."

Excuse me, faltered the annoyed lady, "I did not think that you would hear my remark."

"Oh, no harm done, for I know that he is enough to annoy anyone, and it may seem strange to you that I do not slap him, but I can't. Once I had a little boy that I slapped. Every time he'd ask foolish questions or whine, I'd slap him. I was determined to bring him up rightly, so that he would please everybody. He was the idol of my life, and I did so much want to see him respected. Everybody said that I was a model mother, and that my son would be a great man, and I was so flattered by these remarks that I was more strict than ever with him. One night, just after I put him to bed, company came, and while we were talking the little fellow awoke and began to cry. I told him to hush, and he cried. That had he did not intend to obey me, I went to the bed and spanked him. That's what I call discipline, one of the company remarked, "and I assure you that he might regret in after years the strict measures you have adopted."

The next morning my little boy was sick to get up, and did not leave his bed. At night I sent for a physician, but before morning he was dead. I don't think I ever was a more miserable woman in the world. I took his little boy—same boy you see—and I spanked I had whipped him for getting muddy, and I put them on my bureau. I could not bear to look at them. Some weeks after both my husband and my little boy died, and I moved away from the place where walking along a lonely street, I saw a little boy—a very small boy—standing some one tall would. I asked the boy where he lived, and he plucked a blossom and held it out to me. I asked him where was his mother and father, and he replied with curious intelligence that some big man took them away in boxes. I saw then he was a waif and took him home with me. In the morning he cried and I got up and sat with him by the fire and rocked him. He was very delicate but he was a light that shone my way without cant. This is the child, and he's wearing the little boots I put on the bureau. You may slap him, but I can't."

Special Ways To Retreat.

He is not a safe general who does not know how to execute a retreat before an overwhelming enemy. On record there are retreats of armies which have covered the commanders thereof with glory.

Everybody has heard the story of the drummer boy who was taken prisoner and carried before Napoleon. The Emperor proposed to doubt his non-combative office, and to compel him to fight, by ordering the lads the drum to beat "to arms." The boy kept the roll in a manner bespeaking the soldier, and the boy was asking all sorts of foolish questions, and occasionally he would whine like a cob bear and twist himself around and feel.

"If I had hold of him I'd blister him till he couldn't stand up," said one of the ladies.

"Here then," replied the motherly old lady, "you can take hold of him. If you want to slap him, slap him. I haven't the heart to do it."

"Excuse me, faltered the annoyed lady, "I did not think that you would hear my remark."

"Oh, no harm done, for I know that he is enough to annoy anyone, and it may seem strange to you that I do not slap him, but I can't. Once I had a little boy that I slapped. Every time he'd ask foolish questions or whine, I'd slap him. I was determined to bring him up rightly, so that he would please everybody. He was the idol of my life, and I did so much want to see him respected. Everybody said that I was a model mother, and that my son would be a great man, and I was so flattered by these remarks that I was more strict than ever with him. One night, just after I put him to bed, company came, and while we were talking the little fellow awoke and began to cry. I told him to hush, and he cried. That had he did not intend to obey me, I went to the bed and spanked him. That's what I call discipline, one of the company remarked, "and I assure you that he might regret in after years the strict measures you have adopted."

The next morning my little boy was sick to get up, and did not leave his bed. At night I sent for a physician, but before morning he was dead. I don't think I ever was a more miserable woman in the world. I took his little boots—same boots you see—and I whipped him for getting muddy, and I put them on my bureau. I could not bear to look at them. Some weeks after both my husband and my little boy died, and I moved away from the place where walking along a lonely street, I saw a little boy—a very small boy—standing some one tall would. I asked the boy where he lived, and he plucked a blossom and held it out to me. I asked him where was his mother and father, and he replied with curious intelligence that some big man took them away in boxes. I saw then he was a waif and took him home with me. In the morning he cried and I got up and sat with him by the fire and rocked him. He was very delicate but he was a light that shone my way without cant. This is the child, and he's wearing the little boots I put on the bureau. You may slap him, but I can't."

Special Ways To Retreat.

He is not a safe general who does not know how to execute a retreat before an overwhelming enemy. On record there are retreats of armies which have covered the commanders thereof with glory.

Everybody has heard the story of the drummer boy who was taken prisoner and carried before Napoleon. The Emperor proposed to doubt his non-combative office, and to compel him to fight, by ordering the lads the drum to beat "to arms." The boy kept the roll in a manner bespeaking

THIRTY YEARS' TEST!

A Firm which can point back with pride and satisfaction at its commercial career in this city for

More than Thirty Years, is sure to satisfy all who patronize them for the reason that the experience which they have gained in the management of their business—and the increase of their trade—have given them facilities for giving

The Most Favorable Terms to their Customers, not possessed by more less persistent firms in the trade. Such is the case in the instance of

SBARBORO & CO.,

The Leading and Popular Firm of

FAMILY GROCERS,

531 Washington St., San Francisco

(Between Montgomery and Sansome.)

who have discovered the secret of success to be in Buying Cheap and Selling Cheap, thereby giving their Customers the benefit of the large cash capital and their unsurpassed facilities for purchasing from First hands—so that if you require

Fresh Groceries,
Cheap Groceries,
Pure Groceries,

Full in Quantity and Good in Quality

Read the following

Price List of SBARBORO & CO.

And call or send your orders to

531 WASHINGTON STREET

The Greatest Fall Yet

Ten pounds White Sugar,
12 lbs. Light-brown Sugar
20 pounds Table Rice,
20 pounds Tapioca,
10 pounds Green Coffee,
Star, Roasted or Ground Coffee, 15c. per Fine Tea, (No Humbug) 50c
Family Mixed Tea, 25c
Family Flour, $5 per bbl
3-gallon can water-white Coal Oil,

WINES AND LIQUORS.

Claret, Zinfandel, ¾ gallon ... Claret, French, ¾ gallon
Sherry, Cal., ¾ gallon
Port, Cal., ¾ gallon
Old Tom Bourbon, ¾ gallon
Good Duck Bourbon ¾ gallon
Brandy, Hennessy, ¾ gallon
Rum Jim, ¾ gallon
Jamaica Rum, ¾ gallon

All other goods sold at wholesale prices in quantities to suit.

The Manager of our house having had

THIRTY YEARS' EXPERIENCE

in the

GROCERY BUSINESS

In this city, and being an Expert in buying

Large Stocks of Goods is a guarantee that under his management we are able to sell FIRST-CLASS

GROCERIES

CHEAPER

Than any other house on this Coast.

EXAMINE

OUR GOODS

AND PRICES

before Purchasing your Supplies

And judge for yourselves

Economy is the result of trading with Us.

Wealth is the result of Economy.

All orders promptly and fully filled and delivered to any part of the city, Oakland or Alameda free of cost.

Country orders solicited and made a duty and shipped free of charge.

Country Produce Exchanged!

SEND FOR OUR PRICE LIST

SBARBORO & CO.

R. SBARBORO, Manager.

A BIT OF SECRET HISTORY.

The Trial of Ossipoff, the Pole, at Andersonville Prison.

The Rev. William John Hamilton, rector of Cathedral at Mobile, Ala., who was one of the four priests admitted to the stockade at Andersonville prison to minister to dying soldiers, is in Louisville visiting Bishop McCloskey. Father Hamilton was one of Wirz's witnesses during the trial in November, 1866, and he related some of the secret history of that trial that had never before been heard. Father Hamilton, who is benevolent-looking man of 50, was constantly at Andersonville, after the carnival of death had commenced, and while he administered the consolations of the Redemptorist, who, he says was the most humane keeper of a prison he ever met, and was constantly assisting in acts of charity which would have sent him to the front if discovered by his superiors.

"It is true," said Father Hamilton, "that the sufferings among prisoners were terrible, but Wirz, poor fellow, was no more responsible than I, and so when he was arraigned in June, 1865, I went up to Washington to do what I could in his behalf. During the trial Captain Wirz was suffering from various diseases and wounds and he was carried to and from the court room upon by four marines. A medical commission had been appointed to examine Wirz, and this examination resulted in the conclusion that he could not possibly live long. Wirz was in a single room on the first floor. Information I obtained through a friend, and I felt it my duty to impart it to Wirz that he might prepare himself for the worst. This was about two weeks before the end of the trial. Wirz received the information calmly, and then made a request of me which I shall never forget. He said he wished that his conviction and condemnation to death was a foregone conclusion, and that he preferred death to a mock trial. I agreed with him that on account of the prejudice against Wirz he would not be entirely be condemned to death. He then requested me to call upon Secretary Stanton and say that he was willing to die, provided that in fixing the place of execution the commission would not care for the hanging far enough in the future to afford him an opportunity of preparing himself for death and of his probably dying a natural death before the day fixed.

I called upon Secretary Stanton and laid Wirz's proposition before him, and made a personal request myself that the request. Mr. Stanton replied quickly and firmly, "Tell Wirz that I will grant his request." I saw Wirz and told him that I had succeeded in my mission, and he seemed very much pleased. I saw him on the morning of the execution, and he was as cheerful as he could be under the circumstances. The scenery at the Cascades is very grand. The river is compressed into a narrow strip of land, and the mountains rise on either side, lined shores being added the striking feature of the scenery and towering rapids. I saw the foot of the Cascades rapids. I saw the steamer that had carried us up from Portland, and a very pretty little craft it was, on a narrow-gauge portage road, built on the Washington territory side of the river. The track of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company passes down the Oregon or Southern side. The Columbia River, named for the ship of Captain Gray, who first explored the mouth of the Columbia, is Lewiston, Idaho, supply the Northwestern Territories, and Northern Idaho with direct water communication with Portland and San Francisco. It is said to be very navigable, and it is charged that rock-management has brought the project into disrepute. The Columbia River is rapid with the belief when I met President Johnson, and I was then in the prime of life. Wirz's proposition to Stanton and asked him, for my own satisfaction, why the Cabinet had not forwarded it as did Secretary Stanton. Mr. Johnson's reply was most startling and impressive. He said, "Why, sir, I Stanton in favor of the proposition?" and he seemed greatly astonished. "Why, sir, Stanton is the man who is most opposed to it. The rest of the Cabinet agreed to it and even when he heard that Stanton threatened to resign if the proposition was entertained for a moment. Mr. Stanton was not unable to carry his point with, and rather than have him resign we let the fellow hang, sir."

"Did your interest in Wirz's case end with your request of Father Hamilton.

"Not my interest, but my purse did. The times were troublous, and the barrors were not, and I was obliged to be silent, silent, mysterious, lathomless. To this I attribute the success of my mission. Information obtained through a friend, and I felt it my duty to impart it to Wirz that he might prepare himself for the worst. This was about two weeks before the end of the trial. Information calmly, and then made a request of me which I shall never forget. He said he wished that his conviction and condemnation to death was a foregone conclusion, and that he preferred death to a mock trial. I agreed with him that on account of the prejudice against Wirz he would not probably

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1883.

The "Advocate" on Archbishop Alemany's Pastoral.

After six weeks of a Rip Van Winkle sleep, the Christian Advocate has discovered that Archbishop Alemany wrote a Pastoral Letter, which appeared in the Monitor on the 19th of last September! Wake up, Brother Crary! Such sleepiness on the part of sectarian critics will never do, or it is because you believe that Protestantism is not worth sustaining that you thus permit Popish truth to pet a gentle round the earth while you snore for six weeks in your easy chair? But then, our readers must remember that Brother Crary has an awful big brain, and when an idea once gets in there it takes about six weeks to feed it and to get it out again!

Note is the result of six weeks incubation in the talented hatching house of the lady gentleman who edits the Advocate:

"The Archbishop gives his reasons therefor—1st, that Peter is Pontiff from St. Peter to St. Pius IX., the Pontiff who presides over the Church, ordained by the constituent Son of God, who is the Pontiff of Pontiffs, and who is ordained to Himself by an indissoluble bond, and who is not subject to any other man or death.

"It is not worth while to say much of this. Half of it is pretty good, and then, what there is of it is pretty poor, and what is bad is bad. The poor Archbishop quotes scripture: 'One of the numerous proofs of his inspiration is that he quotes the Bible as part of his proof of his infallibility.' Which is good, by the regular rule of contraries.

Here's evangelical erudition for you! Here's profound reasoning adorned with redundant rhetoric! Verily, Protestantism must have come to a pretty pass when the urbane Methodist preacher sitt ve kain order to hash out such highfalutin' fog for an a criticism upon a Pastoral Letter! "It is not worth while to say much of this," says Brother Crary so he takes from his forty dogs's dose, and rake his mass to find a reason for saying even that much! If the "unchangeable order" of a "Satan," why don't Brother Crary fire away at it, and give the Monitor a chance to make his redoubtable and stilike his Methodist Merlinus! Ah! Brother Crary,

"Where ignorance is bliss
'Tis folly to be wise."

And we cannot pour extension in hiding from your readers the fact that the "Satan" of the Archbishop is a mountain of truth compared to the sawdust stuffing in a crop of Methodist Muldoons! As our venerable Pontiff well says, the ever-living promise of God has a perpetual indwelling in the Catholic Church which neither time, treason, or torture can destroy. The God who made the Church promised to be with her for all ages, and His promise will endure forever. Her seed the world "shall" at the last of time, and the Antichrist, "the man of sin" and "son of perdition" will be destroyed by the brightness of His coming. Oracle gives the 22d of October, 1456, as the date of Luther's birth, and others say that nothing happened one or two years earlier, so that there is no absolute certainty about the matter, and the Anniversaries are just as likely to be wrong as right.

We abominate idolatry, hence we propose to say before our readers a few irrefutable facts taken from Audin's life of Luther, and fully corroborated by him to their entire satisfaction. The tale we will unfold may prove beneficial towards opening the eyes of both Catholics and Protestants to the monstrous immorality, the diabolical violence, and the general depravity of one before whom centre in Germany was passed with bare-headed reverence on bare feet. If reverence, beneficence, meekness, drunkenness, revilings, fornication, and gluttony are the seven virtues that should adorn the life of one called from Heaven to preach a new gospel to man, then, indeed, is Martin Luther entitled to the highest pedestal in the Protestant pagoda! Our Blessed Redeemer imposes on His followers humility, poverty, chastity, obedience, and patience under tribulation, as the most useful virtues; but the Protestant saint was proud as Lucifer, he was drunk as a public hard, and—as his biographers admit—was a lecherous, foul-mouthed man whose latter days were spent swilling beer in his favorite haunt—an alehouse! Yet this is the idol sectarian worship. This the deity they adored and adored in a religious term but Saturday! What a sad commentary upon Christianity it appears coming under the gaze of that which the non-Catholic world has cast around it!

We desire, without fear of successful contradiction, that there is not a single Protestant in the world to-day who has the hardihood to proclaim himself a believer in Luther's doctrine or an imitator of his life. The former would not agree with the Protestantism of our day in many important particulars, as the world-to-two follower of Father Martin would have to start another new sect in order to carry out Luther's views. The latter are so disreputable that no man would be considered decent who adopted it. Hence the only lignters that black Luther to the Protestantism of our day is the fact that he hated the Catholic Church, and the Protestants of the present share in his iniquity. Then it comes about that the corner-stone of sectarianism is unholy hate, and a religious system based upon such a satanic principle must necessarily be a satanic one! Such is the idol worshiped by a dozen sectarian ink-slinger of the Province, who in his half-conscious nightmare of a mind blasphemously attempt to gratify his love for falsehood. We have dozens of extracts from the writings of the saints, popes and scholars whom we have mentioned with which we could paralyze our Methodist friend, but in as much as they were all "Romishers" we will omit their evidence and use the more modern weapon of Protestant writers therewith to smash the chapiston out of this sectarian scribe. Dr. Crary evidently never read the Theological works of Dr. Isaac Barrow, Dr. Cave, Whitaker, or Bishop Pearson—all of whom assert—upon the authority of the Fathers and early writers—that the fact of St. Peter's presence in Rome cannot be successfully contradicted! Here is the slap that the Protestant Bishop Pearson gives to all blab-sided sleepy sectarians who deny the fact advanced by Archbishop Alemany:

"That St. Peter was at Rome is proved from Ignatius, Dionysius, Dionysius of Corinth, Irenæus, Caius, Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, Origen, Cyprian, Lactantius, Eusebius, Epiphanius, Hilarius, Ambrose, Jerome, Augustine, Palladius. Therefore it is wonderful that those can be found who deny that Peter ever was at Rome.

"It is wonderful," says this wall read and distinguished Professor of Protestant Divinity in Cambridge College, "that there can be found who deny that Peter was at Rome," but then this learned Protestant Bishop never heard of the religious Rip Van Winkle who one drowsy morning we have just smashed into smithereens!

If Bro. Crary has the courage to contest his convictions (if he has any) on this point, we will be most happy to accommodate him by defending our side of the question, and prove to the satisfaction of any sane man—not a prejudiced preacher on a blind bigot—that Brother Crary has an awful big brain, and when an idea once gets in there it takes about six weeks to feed it and to get it out again!

Note is the result of six weeks incubation in the talented hatching house of the lady gentleman who edits the Advocate:

"The Archbishop gives his reasons therefor—1st, that Peter is Pontiff from St. Peter to St. Pius IX., the Pontiff who presides over the Church, ordained by the constituent Son of God, who is the Pontiff of Pontiffs, and who is ordained to Himself by an indissoluble bond, and who is not subject to any other man or death.

"It is not worth while to say much of this. Half of it is pretty good, and then, what there is of it is pretty poor, and what is bad is bad. The poor Archbishop quotes scripture: 'One of the numerous proofs of his inspiration is that he quotes the Bible as part of his proof of his infallibility.' Which is good, by the regular rule of contraries.

Here's evangelical erudition for you! Here's profound reasoning adorned with redundant rhetoric! Verily, Protestantism must have come to a pretty pass when the urbane Methodist preacher sitt ve kain order to hash out such highfalutin' fog for an a criticism upon a Pastoral Letter! "It is not worth while to say much of this," says Brother Crary so he takes from his forty dogs's dose, and rake his mass to find a reason for saying even that much! If the "unchangeable order" of a "Satan," why don't Brother Crary fire away at it, and give the Monitor a chance to make his redoubtable and stilike his Methodist Merlinus! Ah! Brother Crary,

"Where ignorance is bliss
'Tis folly to be wise."

And we cannot pour extension in hiding from your readers the fact that the "Satan" of the Archbishop is a mountain of truth compared to the sawdust stuffing in a crop of Methodist Muldoons! As our venerable Pontiff well says, the ever-living promise of God has a perpetual indwelling in the Catholic Church which neither time, treason, or torture can destroy. The God who made the Church promised to be with her for all ages, and His promise will endure forever. Her seed the world "shall" at the last of time, and the Antichrist, "the man of sin" and "son of perdition" will be destroyed by the brightness of His coming. Oracle gives the 22d of October, 1456, as the date of Luther's birth, and others say that nothing happened one or two years earlier, so that there is no absolute certainty about the matter, and the Anniversaries are just as likely to be wrong as right.

We abominate idolatry, hence we propose to say before our readers a few irrefutable facts taken from Audin's life of Luther, and fully corroborated by him to their entire satisfaction. The tale we will unfold may prove beneficial towards opening the eyes of both Catholics and Protestants to the monstrous immorality, the diabolical violence, and the general depravity of one before whom centre in Germany was passed with bare-headed reverence on bare feet. If reverence, beneficence, meekness, drunkenness, revilings, fornication, and gluttony are the seven virtues that should adorn the life of one called from Heaven to preach a new gospel to man, then, indeed, is Martin Luther entitled to the highest pedestal in the Protestant pagoda! Our Blessed Redeemer imposes on His followers humility, poverty, chastity, obedience, and patience under tribulation, as the most useful virtues; but the Protestant saint was proud as Lucifer, he was drunk as a public hard, and—as his biographers admit—was a lecherous, foul-mouthed man whose latter days were spent swilling beer in his favorite haunt—an alehouse! Yet this is the idol sectarian worship. This the deity they adored and adored in a religious term but Saturday! What a sad commentary upon Christianity it appears coming under the gaze of that which the non-Catholic world has cast around it!

We desire, without fear of successful contradiction, that there is not a single Protestant in the world to-day who has the hardihood to proclaim himself a believer in Luther's doctrine or an imitator of his life. The former would not agree with the Protestantism of our day in many important particulars, as the world-to-two follower of Father Martin would have to start another new sect in order to carry out Luther's views. The latter are so disreputable that no man would be considered decent who adopted it. Hence the only lignters that black Luther to the Protestantism of our day is the fact that he hated the Catholic Church, and the Protestants of the present share in his iniquity. Then it comes about that the corner-stone of sectarianism is unholy hate, and a religious system based upon such a satanic principle must necessarily be a satanic one! Such is the idol worshiped by a dozen sectarian ink-slinger of the Province, who in his half-conscious nightmare of a mind blasphemously attempt to gratify his love for falsehood. We have dozens of extracts from the writings of the saints, popes and scholars whom we have mentioned with which we could paralyze our Methodist friend, but in as much as they were all "Romishers" we will omit their evidence and use the more modern weapon of Protestant writers therewith to smash the chapiston out of this sectarian scribe. Dr. Crary evidently never read the Theological works of Dr. Isaac Barrow, Dr. Cave, Whitaker, or Bishop Pearson—all of whom assert—upon the authority of the Fathers and early writers—that the fact of St. Peter's presence in Rome cannot be successfully contradicted! Here is the slap that the Protestant Bishop Pearson gives to all

An Idol of Sectarianism Badly Smashed!

FIRST ARTICLE.

Last Saturday was a gala day for the pagal sharps of sectarianism. Martin Luther, the member idol of the Protestant world, was born on November 10th, about the years 1483-5-6, but there is no certainty regarding it. Melanchton, quoted by Audin, frequently calls Luther's mother in what year her son Martin was born, and she always replied that she recollected perfectly the day and hour of his birth, but had forgotten the year. Hence, those enthusiastic lovers of Luther who made such a display on Saturday last may have been "out of their reckoning" and celebrated their idol's birthday in the wrong year. Oracle gives the 22d of October, 1456, as the date of Luther's birth, and others say that nothing happened one or two years earlier, so that there is no absolute certainty about the matter, and the Anniversaries are just as likely to be wrong as right.

We abominate idolatry, hence we propose to say before our readers a few irrefutable facts taken from Audin's life of Luther, and fully corroborated by him to their entire satisfaction. The tale we will unfold may prove beneficial towards opening the eyes of both Catholics and Protestants to the monstrous immorality, the diabolical violence, and the general depravity of one before whom centre in Germany was passed with bare-headed reverence on bare feet. If reverence, beneficence, meekness, drunkenness, revilings, fornication, and gluttony are the seven virtues that should adorn the life of one called from Heaven to preach a new gospel to man, then, indeed, is Martin Luther entitled to the highest pedestal in the Protestant pagoda! Our Blessed Redeemer imposes on His followers humility, poverty, chastity, obedience, and patience under tribulation, as the most useful virtues; but the Protestant saint was proud as Lucifer, he was drunk as a public hard, and—as his biographers admit—was a lecherous, foul-mouthed man whose latter days were spent swilling beer in his favorite haunt—an alehouse! Yet this is the idol sectarian worship. This the deity they adored and adored in a religious term but Saturday! What a sad commentary upon Christianity it appears coming under the gaze of that which the non-Catholic world has cast around it!

We desire, without fear of successful contradiction, that there is not a single Protestant in the world to-day who has the hardihood to proclaim himself a believer in Luther's doctrine or an imitator of his life. The former would not agree with the Protestantism of our day in many important particulars, as the world-to-two follower of Father Martin would have to start another new sect in order to carry out Luther's views. The latter are so disreputable that no man would be considered decent who adopted it. Hence the only lignters that black Luther to the Protestantism of our day is the fact that he hated the Catholic Church, and the Protestants of the present share in his iniquity. Then it comes about that the corner-stone of sectarianism is unholy hate, and a religious system based upon such a satanic principle must necessarily be a satanic one! Such is the idol worshiped by a dozen sectarian ink-slinger of the Province, who in his half-conscious nightmare of a mind blasphemously attempt to gratify his love for falsehood. We have dozens of extracts from the writings of the saints, popes and scholars whom we have mentioned with which we could paralyze our Methodist friend, but in as much as they were all "Romishers" we will omit their evidence and use the more modern weapon of Protestant writers therewith to smash the chapiston out of this sectarian scribe. Dr. Crary evidently never read the Theological works of Dr. Isaac Barrow, Dr. Cave, Whitaker, or Bishop Pearson—all of whom assert—upon the authority of the Fathers and early writers—that the fact of St. Peter's presence in Rome cannot be successfully contradicted! Here is the slap that the Protestant Bishop Pearson gives to all

"Now dark and sad the condition of the world four hundred years ago. The masses were grossly ignorant and superstitious. The rulers, with few exceptions, were vicious, cruel, and tyrannical. Book monsters of impurity as Roderigo and Cesare Borgia filled the Papal throne. Indulgences were hawked about in fairs and public places. The privilege of committing almost any crime could be purchased for a few dollars. Religious houses, and even some of convents, were a Gehenna."

And this is "history" as seen through sectarian spectacles! Let us see what a far more eminent Protestant authority than the Occident writer says concerning the "dark and condition of the world four hundred years ago. The learned Roscoe, in his Life of Leo X., dividing up the period of the world which saw Luther come to life, says:

"In fact, the Church was, at this period, in the practical and moral condition, in the general character of the Pontiff stood high throughout all Europe. He was surrounded at home, and represented abroad, by men of the greatest eminence. The revenues of Christendom vied with each other in manifesting their obedience to the Holy See; even Luther himself had written to the Pope, in the most respectful terms, transmitting to him, under the title of Resolutions, a full explanation of his propositions, submitting not only his writings, but his life to his disposal, and declaring that he would regard whatever proceeded from him as delivered by Christ Himself."

So the world was not such a dark valley of death, after all, as this Calvinist portrays it, while "the monsters of impurity" whom he pitchforks into the Chair of Peter are simply "inspirers" of his own monstrous imagination! Cesar Borgia never "filled the Papal throne," as the most of his life was spent on different battle-fields, where he finally perished. But what care such malevolent manufacturers of "history" as the Occident writer whether they libelously slander the dead? Being entirely reckless in their religious opinions, we need not expect them to be less reckless when writing about their object of their terrible hatred—the Church of God.

Perhaps more falsehoods have been told by Protestant writers regarding "indulgences" than about any other doctrine of the Church. The Protestant idea among Protestants is that "indulgences" are licensed to commit sin: that they are bought and paid for at regular stipulated rates, and that a Catholic has to do is to go to his priest and take his choice as to the enormity of the crime he contemplates committing! Inasmuch, therefore, as the Monitor is read by very many intelligent non-Catholics, it may not be unprofitable if we give a very brief and concise account of the meaning of an "indulgence," so as to disabuse the minds of well-meaning people who may have been prejudiced by reading just such putrid lies as those told by this Presbyterian parrot of truth. The Catholic belief regarding indulgences is, that when a sinner has obtained from God, through the Sacrament of Penance, the remission of the eternal punishment which he had justly to be still obliged to satisfy God's justice by suffering a temporal punishment. Then when King Lud repented of his sins in the Lamiada and adultery, and confessed to the Prophet, those sins were forgiven, so regarded their eternal guilt; but a temporal punishment was inflicted on him, in the death of his newly-born child, as related in the Sacred Scriptures.

"And David said to Nathan: I have sinned against the Lord. And Nathan said to David: The Lord also hath taken away thy sin; thou shalt not die. Nevertheless, because thou hast given occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme, for this thing the child that is born to thee shall not live." (2 Sam. xii. v. 13-14.)

This text aptly illustrates the difference between the eternal and the temporal punishment due to sin which we wish to impress upon our non-Catholic readers. An indulgence being not a remission of sin, but merely a remission of the temporal punishment due to sin, after its guilt and its eternal punishment have been remitted in the manner stated. We hope to see the candid reader—regardless entirely of religion—as one so at a glance how absurd is the assertion made by the Occident regarding "indulgences being just a remission of sin, the writer therein has so much knowledge as Pilate's mule possessed of the Milky Way!

"Bolton," yells our veritable inventor of falsehood, "abounded, and were a source of great profit." But if this relic-hating reader would possess himself of the big pig out of Martin Luther's sow, he would find in the shape of gallons of beer—how devoutly he would have quaffed the purchase hundred years ago!

WHY WORKINGMEN ARE POOR.

What Liquor and Tobacco Costs—Edited Exposition.

Senators Blair, Cull and Pugh listened Monday to the testimony of Mr. Joseph Medill, proprietor of the Chicago Tribune. Mr. Medill said he had been connected with newspaper since 1848. He believed the chief cause of the impecunious condition of the vast mass in this country was due to their own improvidence. Too many were trying to get along without work and a large proportion spent their money in drink and cigars. Money, he thought, could be saved in small earnings. In Mr. Medill's experience very few that smoked or drank saved any money. Those who had studied the question found that the workingmen spent nearly $600,000,000 for liquor. To this must be added about $24,000,000 for cigars and tobacco. The money thrown away on liquor during the past year would have furnished every one in this country with a comfortable home. Mr. Medill had little faith in legislation for these evils. The number of graduates, however, should be reduced. Mr. Medill then spoke of the beneficial home evil of the larger cities. It was a problem that that in New York the Tribune recorded the births by 10,000 yearly. If capitalists did not improve the condition of tenements, it would become the duty of philanthropists to do so. He believed the people of the United States labored too many hours. By reducing the time of a day's work wages would be forced up. Capital was timid, and was seeking, by forcing wages down, to compete with those world in foreign countries. The demand for labor would be quickly swamped, and the supply would be greatly forced down. In speaking of co-operation, Mr. Medill said there was a time when co-operation was considered to clear away all the difference between capital and labor. But now, after experience had taught him the folly of this, he was a believer of the labor question, Mr. Medill said that the colleges and high schools of the country did not aim American youth to habits of industry. Appointments did not teach him how to right double the value of his labor. Colleges were capable of fixed hours, and had high mathematics. This was well enough for rich young men, but it did not meet the wants of the masses. The parent should impart all ideas of the youths to earn their living, and not be crowding the youthful mind of society with useless young men. The mechanical arts were neglected in colleges, and the other hand in generality of a similar bent, with yellow ones to match. When he was a boy, he was fed on a fried chick, white, or some pale hindred diet, and a little pleah mpoce, covered in days of hopping from tree, to when ever it was hatched wanted, are adopted and with these accomplishments the infant weaver may be said to have reached the zenith of juvenile state. The case, however, attaching to its toilet arrangements are by no means the same when years and experience awaken in and to the possibilities of life. Then, especially if it be replaced by the feminine prowess the, the routine of suits, plaids and hues are so complex, so full of the ever a familiar where promenity of intelligence is monopolized by the girls rather than the boys, second-hand garments once worn by parents or guardian, some to palmer and in the one large lots of emotion, but never on the Indian. The result is, that the most charming of fashions have been invented to set off the adolescent beauties of the youthful misses of our day.

GAVARNE OF THE BLADDER

Diseases following, hitherto, all Kidney and Urinary Complaints, cured by "Buchupaiba." $1.

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of them LUMINOUS CROSS, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet tint which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,

SAN JOSE, CAL.

Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonderful discovery, conveys but a vague impression of the marvels which have been brought to light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which serves the flight of imagination and pinions it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Cerqui's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the Marina and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherein to incite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the MONITOR, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. Satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES!
NIGHT CROSSES!
NIGHT STATUES!

—VISIBLE—

—IN THE—

DARKEST ROOM!

When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy,

THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,

—HAD A—

LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!

—AND SAID—

"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journal

Through the courtesy of Messrs. J. R. Maxwell & Co., Carpet (Chemical Compound), we have received with a private view of one of the most wonderful discoveries of the century. I was led into a room, the curtains pure dark and every ray of light was excluded, and in the darkness, where and I saw only plain planes appear, there stood not in clear, bright, rays imparting distinctness, first the figure of the Saviour suspended in agony, as he was, then, on either side, the figure of Mary and Joseph. It is impossible to describe the effect of the figures of an angel hovering a-every that seemed to be into light

THE WEEK'S NEWS FROM IRELAND.

O'DONNELL'S APPROACHING TRIAL.

What then, Fenian Sayst

LONDON, November 1.—General Fenny says he has not replied to take part in O'Donnell's defence and does not propose to make such a application. He is aware of the rule controlling any ... English barristers from the British Court and does not imagine it will be relaxed in his behalf. General Fenny states that O'Donnell is already provided with counsel, in whom fellow-Irishmen have implicit confidence.

It is reported that all the witnesses for O'Donnell will reach England before November 22d the day the trial begins.

IRISHMEN DEPORTED TOWARDS O'DONNELL.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Every possible embarrassment is being thrown in the way of O'Donnell's defense. Yesterday a subpoena was received by O'Donnell's solicitor in London from Donald Currie, of the Castle Steamship Line, making a summons, dating up $1,000 each, for the representatives of McCarty, one of the witnesses, who was then on employ of the company. There are five witnesses coming from Cape Town, and the bill of expenses for transportation for four of them has been agreed upon and amounts to ... The witnesses are under the bonds prescribed by the act of 1848, and the bonds are in the hands of the solicitor of the company. O'Donnell's counsel, in conference, yesterday have asked a retard to pay the sum demanded. The case is already complicated by the illness of the chief ... of the Irish Government, of public sentiment against the prosecution, and of the fact that it is now believed O'Donnell is innocent.

Dublin, November 7.—The Irish National Leagues claim that it is unfair to compel the Crown to pay to the Government's promise to inquire into the case of Michael Davitt, who is the cousin of Lord Mayor Dawson's visit there.

TRIPPING UP THE WITNESSES.

At a meeting of the Irish National Leagues Michael Davitt denounced the prosecution as a conspiracy to convict Dr. Kenny, the Fenian prisoner, who was sent to Australia for life for complicity in the Phoenix Park assassination. He said the Government was anxious to have Dr. Kenny convicted in order to prejudice the minds of the jurors against O'Donnell. Davitt said that the Government had tried to trip up the witnesses for the prosecution in the Kenny case, but failed. He

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM— IRELAND.

O'DONNELL'S APPROACHING TRIAL.

What Gen. Pryor Says!

LONDON, November 7.—General Pryor says he has not applied to take part in O'Donnell's defense and does not propose to make such an application. He is aware of the rule prohibiting aliens from practicing before the British Courts, but does not imagine it would be applied against Pryor. Pryor states that O'Donnell is the victim of a conspiracy, of whose fidelity his friends have implicit confidence.

It is expected that all the witnesses for O'Donnell will reach England before November 23d, the day the trial begins.

Dr. Sheehan Interrogates Towards O'Donnell.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Every possible embarrassment is being thrown in the way of O'Donnell's defense. Dr. Sheehan's subpœna was received by O'Donnell's solicitors in London from Donald Currie, of the Currie Steamship Line, making a peremptory demand for $1,500 cash, for the transportation of McCarty, one of the witnesses, who is also an employe of the company. There are five witnesses coming from Cape Town, and as the bill of expenses for transportation for two of them has been agreed upon and amounts to only $1,000, the charge of $1,500 for the transportation of the other is regarded by O'Donnell's counsel as exorbitant, and they have cabled a refusal to pay the sum demanded. The case is already considered practically lost, because of the irritated condition of public sentiment against the Irishmen, of whom it is now believed O'Donnell is one.

He Put it to the Government.

DUBLIN, November 7.—The Irish National League declares that no confidence should be put in the Government's promise to inquire into the riots at Londonderry on the occasion of Lord Mayor Dawson's visit there.

Tyrianne Commission Commanded.

At a meeting of the Irish National League Michael Davitt denounced the proposed system of deportation and urged the League to organize vigilance committees to protect it and its land delegates to the United States and Canada in Germany. A motion to that effect was adopted.

A Plot Against Mayor Dawson.

A plot has been discovered to tar and feather the Lord Mayor on Thursday while he is attending the opening of the University Philosophical Society at Trinity College.

Not a Opposition Party.

DUBLIN, Nov. 5.—In consequence of the Parnell campaign in Ulster it is proposed to form a constitutional opposition party. The idea is that the Catholics and Protestants in the support of law and the prosecution of loyalty, and oppose the disintegration of home rule and homogeneity.

The Court of Queen's Bench has ordered one Kelly, a tenant, whose property was sold to redeem upon the news of the killing of Cuby by Clinton, to jail.

A TALK WITH O'DONNELL'S WIFE.

He told Her Least Spring He was Going to Africa—Their Life Apart.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Friends of O'Donnell, the man who killed Cuby, have set to work to raise a fund to defray the expense of a trip to London for one of his relatives to attend his trial. Yesterday, the day found Mrs. O'Donnell, the prisoner's wife, O'Donnell and his wife have not lived together for a long time. She is a strong believer in the Catholic religion, and, while she does not believe that Mr. O'Donnell, his prisoner, is a good man, she does not believe in cold blood he is responsible for the death of her husband. Last spring, when she decided that it would be better for her to remain in Philadelphia, he told her that he was going to Africa. He left her without a word of explanation, and they have lived apart since. Mrs. O'Donnell, in conversation with a Times reporter, said:

"I have not been living with Patrick for six years and over, and since then I have seen him dropped and the continued.

"I do not think I never be able to see him again. I have no complaint to make about him. He is a good husband, and I know he is about him was that he was such a rover. He left me last spring, and I did not know he was out, which I did, and have been doing for very little. I will say help from him. Not he is a good man.

"The time he came to Philadelphia I never knew what he was out, but I was not ready for he thought very dearly of me, only he was such a restless man. When he was out I did not remember he said to me:

"If I go out of my way I will never set eyes on me

"He said he was going to Ireland, to Dublin, maybe for a little while, and from there to Africa. He did not tell me what he was going to do, but he often said he would go to the diamond country and make our fortunes. I did not know he said: 'I am going to Africa,' and yet they say he got on the same steamer that his informer was there.

"I am not the only one to whom he said that he was going to try his fortune in Africa. I know he was going to Africa, I must in day's journey. When he was angry he said that he was going to Africa, or Australia, or anywhere else. He was the only person to whom I confided, I told only when he was greatly provoked. I thought it but for us both that he would have another life with him, and not take up with him after he was back. I took his advice at my friends, and they know all about it. We never had any quarrels, but he has been so much away from me that I feel as if we were strangers, except now that he is in trouble I have a kind feeling toward him. But I don't see what I can do.

"I was asked yesterday by one of O'Donnell's best friends that several affidavits, much stronger than that contained the statement of Mrs. O'Donnell, would be forwarded in a few days to Gen. Pryor. Gen. Pryor, O'Donnell's associate counsel in London, with whom the friends in the city are arranging the matter, and who is a strong partisan. In these affidavits testimony will be adduced to show that O'Donnell often gave no intelligible signs of mental aberration, proving that he was unaccountable for his actions. Affidavits to this effect are now being taken.

"I know, and I am a prominent Irish nationalist, "that Dunphy, Kelly, and the other prominent people in your O'Donnell, and will constitute a powerful defense."

CONVENT SCHOOLS IN IRELAND.

The Dublin correspondent of the Weekly Sun writes in that paper of the long time the old bats been attracted by the number of very cheap convent schools in Ireland. It is a very good thing. It is difficult to imagine how the sum of twenty pounds a year can be made to serve the requests of the board and education of a girl, and yet this is the modest pension demanded for a pupil by the good sisters of several educational establishments conducted by the nuns. We hate to be the prosperity of one of these inexpensive schools and find that the course of instruction comprises the English, Latin, French and Italian languages, a full course of music, including the piano, violin, guitar, philosophy, geometry, drawing, painting, and the use of the globes, besides the Catechism, Church, and Scripture history. Dancing, singing, instrumental and vocal music are extra, and the charge for the use of domestic training if required. There are intermediate classes for those who desire to pick them, and one convent announces that sixty-one pupils of the school were taken from the intermediate examinations. We visit the school and see the girls looking healthy and happy—evidently there is no start of wholesome food, and the sisters are better than it is hardly lessened by discovering that the good energetic nun cultivates a large farm around the walls which produces an ample supply of the best milk and butter, and vegetables and fruit are not to suppose, however, that all, or even the majority of convent schools in Ireland are cheap. Those which rank highest are at least as expensive as English schools of the same class.

SEALY OF BERKINGTON

Mr. Healy, M. P., addressing a meeting in Longford recently, said: Longford enjoyed the distinction conferred on it by the selection of one of the best [Justin M'Carthy] and one of the worst (Errington) members from all Ireland. One represented them faithfully at Westminster, the other misrepresented them at Rome. On the one hand they had the able, distinguished, faithful Justin M'Carthy; on the other hand, they had that pride-breaker Errington (groans) who behind the scenes at the Vatican represented the Irish as a people covered with blood and stained with crime, and who was himself the embodiment of all that was loathsome to decent men. Mr. Errington had the unfortunate distinction of being the author of the slanders of the people of Ireland had at any time been of proposed outrages, upon whose head did most of the blame lie? (cries of "upon the Government, the English government and Buckshot.") He charged upon the men who had been false to Ireland in the past, and who were false to Ireland in the present—from the days of Castlereagh and Sadlier to the days of William Shaw and George Errington—the direct and indirect responsibility for the outrages that unfortunately had visited this land, for if the people could have obtained redress in constitutional ways by their grievances being represented in parliament, their rights could have been obtained and their wrongs remedied.

SEXTON ON PARNELL.

A Splendid Oratorical Tribute.

We take the following from an exceedingly good speech made before the Irish convention at Leeds by Thomas Sexton, M. P.: "Gratitude, no doubt, was in his place in 1772, but when William Pitt commemorated the memorable and successful crime of the Act of the Union the name of Grattan's Bill was gone. When Mr Bright and Mr Gladstone, in 1869, disestablished the Protestant Church of Ireland, it did not occur to the Parliament, and he was uttering rapidly in the Irish Mass, while Irishmen in the month of 1874 came to its real test in the House of Commons; when the question was whether the Irish party would be content with than parole days, or whether they would rise high; when the moment came to test the strength of Isaac Butt's brain, he was already half dead in his case, and was sinking into the valley of the shadow of death. The Irish party never have now a different leader to face. That leader, young as he is, by the extraordinary combination of perception of his intellect, by the unequaled courage, and by the fortune which he has had which has gathered to him the affections of his race, and made the heart of every man worthy of his own; that leader, young as he is, has shown that he is the man who is the fit and proper man for the Irish people. Then we have been sobered in living memory. He has faced their parliament, he has defied their power, he has survived their calumnies, he has endured their prison, and, after all, that leader is the man over the unfortunate Irish people yet. He is entitled to no new, I may say, with the gratitude of his friends yet before him. He is retained in his own in the perfect spring of his intellect, in the ripe excellency of his physical strength and vigor. Yes, wanderers, kin and faithful sons of the Irish people, you will cling to that people and follow that leader, and, standing under the banner that, next to the banner of your religion, you are able to feel is sacred, and following the leader whom with undoubting hearts you are able to trust, I tell you that you will win, in spite of all the forces of prejudice and brutality—the heavy, the cruel, the unfortunate—yet will win the cause of the people from whom you spread and the country that you love."

THE POPE AND THE JESUITS.

The Rome correspondent of the Liverpool Catholic Times says:—A silly report has been circulating to the effect that the Holy Father has allowed the Yankees of the Society of Jesus to remove certain documents from the Archives of the Vatican. The rumor adds that the documents refer to the historical disposition of the society by Clement XIV. A private letter from Cardinal Pitra to a friend in Paris, thoroughly explains the origin of the statement. The Pope lately announced to his learned secretary, interested in the study of ancient manuscripts, that he was willing to allow the Jesuits, who have shown to be the most, if not the most, faithful body of historical correctness might be selected with the work of arranging the Jesuits, and was represented to the Holy Father that some of the documents in the Archives of the Vatican which will probably notice the Jesuits, and which have to be placed in chronological history backwards, and which will have to be placed in chronological order, and adamantine characters as Edward VI., Charles I., and Oliver Cromwell. In any case the Society of Jesus, with the long list of saints and holy martyrs, has nothing to fear.

A MINISTER'S LAMENT.

I happens that just at the time when Mgr. Capel is making his aggressive Catholic campaign in America, one of the clergymen of Protestantism in America is uttering a most despondent wail. Rev. Dr. Crosby, of New York, says: "The great bulk of the Protestant Church is identified with the world. It has a name to live while it is dead. It has turned its doctrine into rationalism, and its life into a life of worldliness. The old landmarks are gone. Family prayer is given up. Prayer meetings are flagged, worldly partnerships are formed, social rites are contained at and even crowned, the pastor makes a stage on which to strut and pose before a gaping world, and religion is made one of the instruments of fashion." Surely, a more despairing cry has never been uttered by a Protestant minister of the Gospel. It comes, too, in the year of the Luther quarter-centenary.

A GOOD RESULT.

It is somewhat that already the results of the late Provincial Council of the Catholic hierarchy in New York have shown in the number of publications of the banns of marriages. On last Sunday at St. Stephen's Church the banns of eight different couples were published during the high Mass, while heretofore it has been a rare thing for any to be published, owing to the reluctance with which dispensations have been granted. Under the rules that have now been adopted the banns must be published on three principal services on three different Sundays.

IN MEMORIAM.

ROSE TULLY OF SAN JOSE, CAL.

TULLY.—Died near San Jose, Oct. 9, 1883, of measles, Rose Tully, aged about 11 years.

Let the bell toll—the time has come
Let the bell toll—the time has come
Let the bell toll—the time has come
Beyond the bright autumnal sky,
And after long days of bliss,
Where our mutual eyes repose,
Where our mutual eyes repose.
Waiting to welcome us home.

Dear Lord, I know you are carrying Into Christend's joys now carrying Into Christend's happy home.
Yet, Lord, we miss our bright hope
Of a Flower from our home.
Lord, bless us, and we will be happy
Lord bless us—and we will be happy
Lord bless us—and we will be happy
Lord bless us—

Poetry.

THE CHURCH.

BY ROSENNE.

Softly open the blue portal!
Tread, with awe, the hallowed floor!
Hush! meet reverently and slowly,
Your thee low its shrine before.

Need we ask why there awaits us?
Who within the presence dwells?
Something is its very stillness,
Mutely, whispery bills.

Jesus—He is there the Master
Blessed where myriad angels throng.
All is breathing of His presence
Move thou reverently along.

See that faithful lamp burning
In vigil lone and lone!
How its gentle ray invites us
To this scene of peace and rest.

Resting through the hours of day-time,
Till its softer light has fown,
Ever with unwinded radiance,
Through the night hours—still shine.

Shadow, "and the tabernacle
All its labors, tendrest plan,
Like a rose fervent heart intending,
Finding Heaven on earth below.

Anthem and I does could depose thee?
Art thou in sorrow and even in death?
Or where yonder been shall guide thee,
Let us know where to meet.

Year thou, from their crystal vases,
Flowers that never shall fade or fear,
Breathing of a clime where frost cease blow,
Till their freshness all has fled.

Flowers of a world of sin and sorrow,
Of a clime with a love divine—
Fair as earth's fairest flowers,
Should I wish this heart of mine.

Like the flowers, sweet incense breathing
Of a holier, purer, clime,
Loving, trusting, looking near Him,
Gladly would I be on them.

Literary Miscellany.

The Priest's Old Cassock.

FROM THE FRENCH—ST. E. A. POE.

In the miserable villages of Auvergne there lived some years ago the poorest priest that ever had charge of souls. Indeed the living of his mean benefice scarcely sufficed to keep him from starvation. He was indeed so poor that he was obliged at by the very poverty of the inhabitants who lived in the hollows of a little church of gray stone scarcely by an iron door, and would have scarcely been known from the rest of those places but perhaps one finds for up in the Alps remarkable for the height of its steeple. The children on which this church stood the spy every year were a spreading valley, both in the remote distance by a stream that ran like a silver thread, and nearer by the ruins of a castle, the ancient estate the immense dogs rain somewhat abruptly, sometimes distances from each other had the appearance of a little amphitheatre, sometimes of a little alley. From this point the view was along a line of mountains, the eye ranging from the Cantal to the Puy de Dome, and whether shadow to that in the foreground, the expression of the dwelling and the people of Father John, the derived the spirit of Auvergne, the derived the spiritual requirements of the people in the place.

Father John looked a man over, rather old, and bearing signs of age, but, however, not with a countenance in which benevolence and good humor were the predominant characteristics. The expression of his face in no way decided the blemish of his nature, yet did the austerity of his eyes the diminish the indulgence he was ever ready to extend to the faithful of his flock. Indeed, he was beloved by them; his zeal for the welfare of his flock was only measured by his physical strength. Indeed his devotion to their interests had taken to consumption sermon. Never was the priest slight to relax his desire to be labouring once trouble too binding, or the drifts too deep; never was the flock, or even the poorest of them, to draw his from carrying the comforts of religion to the sick and dying. Yet all this was done without the least air of vanity or complacency. A smile of beaming good-nature that seemed to shine from the depths of a self-satisfaction was over on his features.

He was the kind and generous of heart as he was, he had an ambition. The object, modest and humble as it is, was cherished beyond his power to attain. For many years the good priest nourished in secret a strong desire to be elevated to the rank of a pope cardinal. It was no doubtful that the Cardinal was more than satisfied of the man his many virtues, and that he was ever ready to give him a cardinal's hat, if he had the means to enable him to do so. Indeed, it had required but long and tedious journeys, and a little money, to accomplish this overpower, and with this the best year was in the habit of charging pence, but he was prevented by want, by hail, and by more; it had been contrary to his nature to have been in the wind. Under the notion of the divine element, the primitive color of the dwelling, the spirit of Auvergne. After musing, by any gratulation, from thence to lower and from brown to brick, from red, it is but reasonable that he should unfolded has that result that busy vanities honest in his chief aspire in estimation. It may be said that, in common with that age, there was in the mind of the peasantry, in the mind of the spectator instantly became gloomy and sombre. Nevertheless, the priest, in musing, looked at the first strain to fall from the shoulder of Father John, he was indeed. Indeed it is probable that a partial separation would have been effected long before in order to one the contrast between the skill and indefatigable industry of Margaret, a young peasant girl, who, after passing the canonical age, had taken service with Father John, if the capacity of housekeeper. Before constantly recurring danger this good woman used to have taken for her motto the words, "I shall repair it," and in fulfilment of this generous resolve, her needle daily accomplished wonders in causing all over the venerable sustaine counting and indefatigable, and, in the opinion of some, about that the separation, always imminent, was postponed further than it would have been, if the dignity of Father John coffer too deeply from the prolonged association. However, it was not but be thought that the humble pastor was without a sense of what was due to his spiritual rank and to the dignity of his office. Under his more than modest exterior was hidden an innate love for neatness. He was very far removed from those hypocritical men who make a crime of every thing which but the appearance of a concession to prejudice or opinion; and still less was he one of those haughty gentlemen who pride themselves upon dressing in rags

He felt his poverty and bore it courageous ly, always ready, when it was necessary in the interests of others, to renounce his rank desire—the acquisition of a new soutane.

How often had this dream, this rain hope, failed of realization! Good Father John had never taken into account the weight of his own heart. In the midst of a poverty-stricken population the rocks upon which his resolution split came in his path at every step and in every form. How should he not the preserve temptation to give, when his hand encountered in his pocket two crowns, jingling against each other if asking to allowed to take their flight! But alas! in their flight they carried with them the hope and the means of becoming the possessor of a new soutane. What was even worse, the little treasure left in the hands of the unfortunate applicant for charity, generally represented the pence amount Father John was able to lay his hands on. In the presence of the misery of others the good man always found that he had enough, and to spare.

But such transactions did not always present themselves in the same light to Margaret and the difference of opinion sometimes brought to her tips reflections and observations on the conduct of her master, which had in them more truth than respect.

Amidst these alternate periods of hope and discouragement the years slipped away. The great festivals came and went in their order and order; but or did the disappointments, Father John was not the man to relinquish that was indelibility, "I will have my new cassock for such Easter," "I will have it for Pentecost," or some other holiday of the Christian year. For ten years the total stock of seasons was thus exhausted, and as yet his hopes were vain. Again and again they came and went, and anything regularly, having with their return a more sensible trace of their passage on the unlucky soutane. One summer evening Father John having finished reading his breviary, and having taken a slow dow overlooking the village. The weather was stormy and having a long time elapsed from a long, long round of parochial visits, he breathed with hearty pleasure, the refreshing breeze which was gently fanning his petitioned the room. Margaret arranged on the cabaret where the dishes on which the master's frugal supper had been served. In addition to this piece of furniture the room contained a dining table, at which Father John continually disputed with Margaret the sacred rights of a dominion of drughts in the long winter evenings. Opposite the table was a valiant chair, and on the side of the chimney, a large number of furniture of almost patriarchal simplicity. Indeed it was a pale place, or hamlet, and, of black wood, and on the wall above it an ivory Christ was flaunting on the cross with its pale, as noble body. In one of the angles formed by the inroad of a wide chimney, a Cash fowl, and a little chest piece of furniture, not unlike the one of an Egyptian mummy, in the upper end of which stood the feet of a village clock, flanked above—between shelf of homely make—by two saints, the Saints of the apartment. Old Margaret's chamber at the opposite side of the passage, was of a mountain, and not comfortable than that of her master.

Father John though nominally master of the house, was in most things subject to the will of Margaret, who was in reality by the force of her character, mistress. Little by little he had surrendered in her favor every token of administrative authority. But it was only in the exercise of this authority in the form of a little of that authority in the form of a little of that authority in the form of a little of that

THE MONITOR.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY. PRICE $1 PER ANNUM.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1883.

CIRCULAR FROM ARCHBISHOP ALEMANY, O. P.

To the Clergy and Laity of the Diocese of San Francisco.

DEARLY BELOVED:—It is needless to remind you that this venerable Revelator Pontiff, our Holy Father, Pope Leo XIII., depends for his support upon the never failing generosity of his children scattered throughout the Catholic world. A worthy hole in all things to his Holiness—an honorable mark of honor, not for him, but for him, been robbed of a patrimony made sacred by the possession of over a thousand years and sanctioned by all the traditions and rights of civilized nations. Then deprived of his just inheritance, were it not for the love and fidelity of his children, he would stand before the world in the attitude of a beggar; but in the fruitful child does not princess that we also which he gives to an aged and needy parent, but only a slight return of gratitude for a debt he can never pay, so, we who enjoy the spiritual goods of our Holy Father, unfruitful of all we owe him of obedience and love and reverence, rejoice at an opportunity of manifesting our loyalty.

It is therefore unnecessary to remind you that the demands made upon him from all parts of the world—demands that cannot be disregarded—and the expense necessary to maintain the various legations, require more than his special support of the Church, do but increase the obligation of the Church, do but increase the obligation of the Church continues to pour of even his conventional income.

All this is well known to both priest and people; and, guided by the experience of the past year, I hereby, by your leave, anticipate, and I feel assured that the collection this year will be commensurate with the wants of the Holy Father and the means of the people who have made a faithful and grateful children.

Accordingly, I request that a collection be made in all the Missions and Vespers next Sunday that the annual collection for the Holy Father will be made the Sunday following.

Your benefactor and friend in Christ,

P. J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,

Archbishop of San Francisco.

San Francisco, Nov. 21, 1883.

An Idol of Sanctimonious Bigotry Crushed!

SECOND ARTICLE.

According to promises made last week we continue the sketch of the character of the Protestant idol—Martin Luther—in order that mankind may be enlightened in order that he may be saved. If Almighty God conceived the idea that the mantle and the religious promises of the Cathedral of the Holy Spirit, raised in ancient times, and which would never have rebelled a scandal-giver and a not for such a high and holy mission, was the mantle of Elias then he would devote one of his worldly who possessed the apostolic qualities of patriarch to so great a degree as Luther possessed the prominent vices of a demon like Satan. This Satan would imagine he sufficient to convince any candid-minded man—no matter what his religious principles—that Luther's mission on earth was prompted by the spirit of malice, and was ended in its progress by the spirit of evil. But, unfortunately, there are some who have history have so deceived the world by the pride of greatness and goodness which they have cast around their idol, that it is only within recent years that the world has been permitted to get a glimpse of this grotesque fraud in all his naked deformity.

Between the Protestant idol and the Mission is a Catholic paper, therefore it will print any untruth regarding Luther. On the contrary, we are very careful never to be being a slander that we cannot prove, and in the present case all the friends of the evil must have to do is to consult the authorities we quote and satisfy themselves that our phrase is not a libel on the good idol of Protestantism is true to the life.

The Chicago Times is not by any means known, but when he had at night, as he himself confesses in the book before us, but the contest is so grossly vulgar that we dare not print it.

Next to the devil the favorite theme Luther loved to dilate upon was his hatred of the Pope, but in all his imprecations he only proved himself a false prophet, for the reason that the Pope still lives, while—in all likelihood—Luther and Lucifer have formed a partnership in the fire-blazing business which will endure forever! So puffed up with pride was the Protestant idol that he thought the sun would cease to shine upon the day he was doomed to die; in his pride he predicted the end of the world during his life; he prophesied in 1522 (falsely, however,) that in two years hence "there will be no more popes, bishops, cardinals, priests, nuns, bells, steeples, nor anything left of the cloaction of Papal origin," and this agitational drunkard not went so far as to write the following disgraced as the epitaph to be placed on his tombstone:

"Is life, O pope, I was to thee a pest,
And it my death I will give to thee the rest."

But the same of the foolishness of this rival—not unchained the Bible and let the light of true Christianity shine upon the world, while the truth is that the whole logical system of Luther was born in the beer-laden brain of a bonified and bibulous drunkard.

Just as in our days men who commit crimes are compelled to fly to the demon of intoxication in order to stifle their contrition, so Luther was compelled to make a beer-house of himself in order that his conscience might be quiet in a series of drunken orgies so that he would drown his demon-haunted mind by debauch—and then he oblivious to the awful crime of apostacy, blasphemy, and blasphemy which he had committed.

So fully persuaded was Luther that he was the successor of Elias that he devotes several chapters to his description of the different shapes which the devil assumed in his nocturnal visits to his earthly vicegerent. Luther's conceit in the matter of apostacy had so inflated to convince any candid-minded man—no matter what his religious principles—that Luther's mission on earth was prompted by the spirit of malice, and was ended in its progress by the spirit of evil. But, unfortunately, there are some who have history have so deceived the world by the pride of greatness and goodness which they have cast around their idol, that it is only within recent years that the world has been permitted to get a glimpse of this grotesque fraud in all his naked deformity.

Between the Protestant idol and the Mission is a Catholic paper, therefore it will print any untruth regarding Luther. On the contrary, we are very careful never to be being a slander that we cannot prove, and in the present case all the friends of the evil must have to do is to consult the authorities we quote and satisfy themselves that our phrase is not a libel on the good idol of Protestantism is true to the life.

The Chicago Times is not by any means known, but when he had at night, as he himself confesses in the book before us, but the contest is so grossly vulgar that we dare not print it.

Next to the devil the favorite theme Luther loved to dilate upon was his hatred of the Pope, but in all his imprecations he only proved himself a false prophet, for the reason that the Pope still lives, while—in all likelihood—Luther and Lucifer have formed a partnership in the fire-blazing business which will endure forever! So puffed up with pride was the Protestant idol that he thought the sun would cease to shine upon the day he was doomed to die; in his pride he predicted the end of the world during his life; he prophesied in 1522 (falsely, however,) that in two years hence "there will be no more popes, bishops, cardinals, priests, nuns, bells, steeples, nor anything left of the cloaction of Papal origin," and this agitational drunkard not went so far as to write the following disgraced as the epitaph to be placed on his tombstone:

"Is life, O pope, I was to thee a pest,
And it my death I will give to thee the rest."

But the same of the foolishness of this rival—not unchained the Bible and let the light of true Christianity shine upon the world, while the truth is that the whole logical system of Luther was born in the beer-laden brain of a bonified and bibulous drunkard.

Just as in our days men who commit crimes are compelled to fly to the demon of intoxication in order to stifle their contrition, so Luther was compelled to make a beer-house of himself in order that his conscience might be quiet in a series of drunken orgies so that he would drown his demon-haunted mind by debauch—and then he oblivious to the awful crime of apostacy, blasphemy, and blasphemy which he had committed.

So fully persuaded was Luther that he was the successor of Elias that he devotes several chapters to his description of the different shapes which the devil assumed in his nocturnal visits to his earthly vicegerent. Luther's conceit in the matter of apostacy had so inflated

A Libelous Lutheran Lunatic on Pope Leo X.

We thank an Oregon subscriber for forwarding to us the Oregonian containing miscellaneous Martin's address on Luther, in which we find nothing worth noticing save his reference regarding Pope Leo X., the other portfolio of his eulogy being borrowed for the occasion from some book of nasty sermons preached years ago by some long-forgotten Methodist parson—who doubtless imagined there was more theology in Luther's beer than there was in in St. Paul's epistle to the Thessalonians!

Marvin is a smart, a regular Ouseley, and he has gone into the pulpit and a down was the circumstance, probably stories or pulpit. Leo X. was the Chair of Peter and he was just as good as his predecessors, he was born Vi[illegible] of the venerable [illegible] they may [illegible] dicious religious [illegible] called "reformation" [illegible] Pontiff. Leo X. had also the misfortune to rouse the ire of some Catholic writers who flourished in the sixteenth century, and who have given some stories, the substance invented by the innocent enemies of the Papacy, but—on the other hand—recent research has brought before the reading world sufficient evidence to prove that if Leo X. did not possess that peerless sanctity which deservedly gained canonization for other Popes, he was at least a good man who had at least to be ranked among the benefactors of mankind in consequence of the paternal care which he exercised over the arts, the encouragement which he gave to eminent scholars, and the patronage which he bestowed on every honor likely to advance Christian civilization.

The declared dim of Luther and the other contemporaneous of the Church in the sixteenth century may be boiled down the Papacy, hence Leo X. was the target for every tradition she became perverted to the errors of Protestantism. When a Catholic quotes lines from his religion he thinks his first duty to mankind is to calumniate the Pontiff who rules over the Church of Christ, and I would rather die by the hand of the Pope than by that of the emperor; I should at least be by the hand of a Christian. The pen, the tongue, the hand, the blind, and the dumb are powerful to do evil. The physician, who treat them by rules of art, know nothing of the matter.

These extracts should satisfy any impartial Protestant Christian that Luther was possessed by an evil spirit which haunted and harassed him during not only his waking hours, but when he lad at night, as he himself confesses in the book before us, but the contest is so grossly vulgar that we dare not print it.

Next to the devil the favorite theme Luther loved to dilate upon was his hatred of the Pope, but in all his imprecations he only proved himself a false prophet, for the reason that the Pope still lives, while—in all likelihood—Luther and Lucifer have formed a partnership in the fire-blazing business which will endure forever! So puffed up with pride was the Protestant idol that he thought the sun would cease to shine upon the day he was doomed to die; in his pride he predicted the end of the world during his life; he prophesied in 1522 (falsely, however,) that in two years hence "there will be no more popes, bishops, cardinals, priests, nuns, bells, steeples, nor anything left of the cloaction of Papal origin," and this agitational drunkard not went so far as to write the following disgraced as the epitaph to be placed on his tombstone:

"Is life, O pope, I was to thee a pest,
And it my death I will give to thee the rest."

But the same of the foolishness of this rival—not unchained the Bible and let the light of true Christianity shine upon the world, while the truth is that the whole logical system of Luther was born in the beer-laden brain of a bonified and bibulous drunkard.

Just as in our days men who commit crimes are compelled to fly to the demon of intoxication in order to stifle their contrition, so Luther was compelled to make a beer-house of himself in order that his conscience might be quiet in a series of drunken orgies so that he would drown his demon-haunted mind by debauch—and then he oblivious to the awful crime of apostacy, blasphemy, and blasphemy which he had committed.

So fully persuaded was Luther that he was the successor of Elias that he devotes several chapters to his description of the different shapes which the devil assumed in his nocturnal visits to his earthly vicegerent. Luther's conceit in the matter of apostacy had so inflated

THE MONITOR.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1883.

A BLACK SPOT IN OUR CITY'S CHARACTER.

It has come to be an acknowledged fact that no every day more apparent that one of the blackest spots upon the character of San Francisco is the crime-breeding pestilence of saloons. We had an idea of the fearful number of these abominable places until we heard Father Montgomery's statistics during his sermon at the Cathedral on Tuesday last, when he preached on behalf of St. Joseph's Calton. From figures Father Montgomery had specially prepared for the occasion by a city official, it appears that there are no less than four thousand places where liquor is sold in the city of San Francisco; there are two thousand five hundred places regularly licensed, and it is computed that there are at least fifteen hundred other dens of drunkenness and vice where liquor is regularly sold and drank on the premises without any license being paid. These figures are enough to appall the heart of any reflecting Catholic when he considers the fearful amount of crime that must be perpetrated in a city which has a saloon for every forty-three of its inhabitants! But—think lord—not all the people who drink are drunkards, and not all drunkards are guilty of crime. Suppose, however, that one-third of the population of this city are habitual drunkards, and we have an average of 21 persons for each saloon, or 84,000 men and women, boys and girls—who drink! It may be argued that the habitual drunkard is the only one who is in the habit of drinking to excess, but we have to deal with the world as it is, and not as it should be, and we know that the majority of those heavily interested in our minors hand, and hence we have to contend with an evil which has laid the harvest ripen fair, and which has reached the point where it will put statistics to the blush. Suppose, then, that only one-third of the population of this city are habitual drunkards, and that only one-third of the habitual drunkards are guilty of crime, we have still a fearful number of crimes to be attributed to the influence of the saloon. What have we then? We have now 10 regular customers for each bar room, beer hall and dive, and 41,000 persons of all ages to drink!

What is the remedy for all this? Let Father Montgomery answer the question in his own words in the Monitor to listen to him:

My Dear Brethren, it were endless to attempt the enumeration of all the crimes and misery and woe and wickedness which are the direct result of such a state of things, and the terrible effects which it produces on the moral and religious state of our city. Suppose, then, that a Catholic preacher would tell him that he made both! Again: how does the Orchestra know that God made the Bible, or that my compilation of writings is the Word of God? May listen to him! Suppose that Protestants receive the Bible as God's word because they find in it a comprehensive and consistent system of religious duties, and a sublime and beautiful ideal of the Divine Being, and a sublime and beautiful ideal of the Divine Being, and a sublime and beautiful ideal of the Divine Being

THE ARCHBISHOPS IN UTAH.

Addresses Presented on their Visit to Salt Lake City

Last week we gave an account of the splendid reception accorded our Prelate, Archbishop Riordan, by the priests and people at Salt Lake, Utah. Following are the addresses presented by the Priests of Utah on the occasion.

Most Reverend Archbishop Riordan.

We, Catholic Missionary Priests, visit and warmly welcome you to Utah. We feel deeply honored in your presence; we feel encouraged forward in our work; we feel consoled and strengthened in our difficulties; we feel happy at being the first to meet you on our mission, and yet, as we meet heartily do, a sincere and cordial welcome.

Although in the past the pleasure and honor of your personal acquaintance have been denied to most of us, yet we all have heard of your labors and of your noble qualities of mind and heart, and have derived therefrom no little edification. We have read with pleasure the report of the order you issued, a year prior to your visit, but we have felt disappointed, if not pained, at the delay that has made us feel that we were not yet to be favored with your presence. We have been partially acquainted with the personal, and have admired a beloved pastor of St. Joseph's, Chicago.

Like your Divine Master, who has been the ideal of your life, your works have gone before you, and have led to more fervently think wonderful and what wind you are. We have heard and beautiful church which you have created and which would be an ornament to any city in the world; the schools, charitable and benevolent institutions which you and your predecessor have your guidance and fostering care; these noble works, so eminently brought to completion by none the most commendable, stand forth as enduring monuments of your zeal, energy and unremitting care, will perpetuate your memory and be a permanent proof of your paternal care for the faithful.

The hope we have desired this edifice informed you immediately from the present and by the blessing of God, we trust and by you, hitherto, we have found their natural expectations realized. Our people, who, in the past, have had to go to work for their food, when the necessary work ceased, in the meantime, they have had to turn their labored power, their time and their means to their spiritual welfare, and have been in their very wisdom, helped them in their temporal, and spiritual advancement, and in their sufferings. These expressions of sorrow, sorrow, sorrow of our people, who have been long, yet we, as confident for us and for our people, we feel, we feel, we feel

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM— IRELAND.

THE LIMERICK ELECTION.

Deputation to the Most Rev. Dr. Butler.

A deputation, consisting of Mr. Edward McMahon, Mr. Sexton, M. P.; Mr. E. J. Synan, Mr. Charles Boland, Mr. Lane, M. P., and the Right Rev. Dr. Butler, at Carlisle, to such effect, that the Most Rev. Dr. McEvoy's candidacy. The deputation enthusiastically visited the camp in the city and the election, and has begun to end the unanimous sympathy was expressed, and enthusiasm kindled by his appeal.

His Lordship assured Mr. McMahon that he had his sympathy and approval, and would also have the active approval of his clergy. The Bishop informed the deputation that Mr. Spaight had visited him yesterday. Mr. Spaight said he wished to pay his lordship the compliment of coming to tell him he was a candidate for the vacancy in the city, and that he was not over the constant force of nature, but as a product force of nature. Mr. Spaight was a Nationalist and could not be a Nationalist, representative of the Nationalist party, and he was a Nationalist between England and Ireland. He had spoken in favor of Home Rule, and was a member of the Irish parliamentary party. He was a Nationalist, and he would never rest until he had obtained for Ireland the rights of a free parliament. He hoped that his lordship would not be offended at his coming to ask for the Catholic Bishop of Limerick, as he was not a Catholic, but he was a Nationalist, and representative of the people, and further that he was not the first Nationalist. Mr. Spaight thought he was the only man who could, and would, plunge the city into turmoil, merely to make a point and express his views, which he was ready to and he party associated. Mr. Spaight intended to do his duty, that, to her as Queen Victoria, was concerned, he was no Tory. There were no Tories here. He was a Liberal and a Nationalist. The Bishop asked if Mr. Spaight were returned would he be ready to be a supporter of the Gladstone Ministry? Mr. Spaight replied that he would be a supporter of Mr. Gladstone, and he intended to benefit Ireland. His Lordship, in conclusion, said that he was delighted to have had the deputation, and he was sorry that he could not vote with but have his sympathy.

A National Testimonial to Lamazou.

Lamazou, Nov. 16.—The election for a vacancy in the Chamber of Deputies (Lot-et-Garonne) has taken place, and the Nationalist candidate, Jules Lamazou, has been elected by 322 votes to 1,000 for his Conservative opponent.

Memorial of the Bishop of Limerick.

We regret to learn that his Lordship the Most Rev. Dr. Butler, Bishop of Limerick, is suffering from a carbuncle and severe attack of illness at the Bishop's residence, Carlisle, and that he has left for Dublin in the early part of the week. We have been informed that his Lordship's illness is not dangerous, but that he has been confined to his room.

The Death of Mr. J. J. Gormican, Dublin.

The death of Mr. John Joseph Gormican, the grandson of the Dominic Gormican, the celebrated Irish sculptor, in Dublin, on Friday, the anniversary event occurred at Wexford, in the 80th year of his age, and the 50th year of his residence in Dublin. The deceased was the son of a Dublin merchant, and was for many years a member of the Dublin Corporation, in which he filled the office of Sheriff.

Father Dominic Discovered.

On Saturday last the whereabouts of the monk was unknown, but it appears that he was in Dublin, and was discovered by a Dublin gentleman, who, on being asked if he was Father Dominic, replied that he was not, but he was a Dominican. Father Dominic was discovered in the Dublin Mountains.

The Dublin Corporation and Mr. Joseph Chamberlain.

The Dublin Corporation

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

A LOUP-GAROU.

BY HERMON C. DONNELLY.

(The old Indian legend of the "Loup-garou," or Were-wolf, is reproduced here, about "half-way" between the two extremes of opinion, that the latter of the two whom disinterested disputes have the kind of two brains combined.)

I drink by day, or I drink by night,
The draught that worketh this loathsome change!
I burn with fever, I freeze with fright,
Yet I yield to the passion stronger!
And soul I go from the many rooms,
From the hearts so tender, the friends so true,
The moonlit glades and the forest-glooms,
To wander—a Loup-garou!

Over the river, and past the moon,
Thro' the city's cobbled streets,
Where the lamps are dim, cool, and pale,
Where the sidewalk is hot
Of a Dog-Day night,
Oh, I am at the Blind Tiger!
By a dim brown panel with eyes of blue,
Red noses—make way for the howling beast!
Make way for the Loup-garou!

O white-robed girl! in your garden alone,
With your rose-vessel's hate, and your eyes of ice
Kneel in the dusk, by the wall of stone,
And only for your lover be alight!
O God in Heaven! counter her prayer,
And bring him home howling from her (my) lair!
From the Lost Gehenna of their despair,
Deliver the Loup-garou!

THE DOGS FOR OLD LADIES.

In medieval age the abbot and the abbess shared the world with the crew of the poor, and in monasteries and convents the hospitality and benevolency appeared, the cottages of the poor, the infirm and the old, well-nourished by the abbot, lay age and were freedom for the stagnant blood of the poor. The abbot, the abbess, and the priest of a deanery but with his own, the reprieve and the poor, the sick, the old, the infirm, the hungry, and the abbess, could say, with all the abbess and the priest, "Take, take out with the sick and the poor, the old, the infirm, the weak, the weary, the hungry, the poor." Now, the monasteries selected for the purpose of the poor, the sick, the old, the infirm, the hungry, the poor, the poor, the poor

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1893.

An Idol of Sectarianism Badly Smashed!

THIRD ARTICLE.

When a man is judged by his own life, his habits, and his writings, his friends should not complain if he is proved therefrom to be a bad man. Such is the case with regards Luther by, and by this test we have already proved him to be a most depraved, filthy, immoral, and irreligious man—

Steeped to the lips
In mortal sin.

Woman and wine were the rocks upon which Luther was shipwrecked, as he tells us himself that—like another Sampson he had pulled down the Papacy by means of its two pillars—"the Mass and a virginal existence." In order to get a wife he made his boon companion hem-root for runaway nuns. The flock of flying pallets from which Luther selected an element for his harem, ran away from their vows and their virtue, to the great annoyance of the Pope, who complained loudly of the proceeding—Good Friday, 1523! What a day one for both the mortal sin monk and Catherine his concubine!

That day of wrath, that dreadful day,
When Catherine fled—
And vent to rent with Luther.

The Hebrew Scriptures Catherine and her gay Lothario continued for two years, until at last—as public had the scandal become—that, as Melanchthon tells us, in order to pay and make amorous Martin more decent, they were soldered together in sin on June 13th, 1525. The very urgent necessity for the marriage was that Luther was away from her convent to the monk who had broken his vows is thus told by the beer-drinking bridegroom himself:

"I have just betrothed myself—at my dear Father's desire—and, on account of evil tongues that will not be stopped, I have now, will all haste, adjusted the matter."

The "matter" which needed "adjusting" with such "haste," manifested itself in the shape of the first fruits of Protestantism—a burning baby born fourteen days after the nuptial alliance! Then to the gods, O Protestantism! And there are the male and female "reformers" whose mission it was to root out "Superstition" from the Catholic Church! Truly those people who worship this Protestant idol can have but little conception of the base material from which their idol is manufactured, else they would never bow down before such a begotten, dirty, and degraded wretch as Martin Luther.

Now that we have told our readers how Luther lived, the method of his matrimonial alliance, and his diabolical life in general, let us tell them how he died—and the death-bed behaviour of this self-ordained Protestant, and proves to them how true it is that "as you live so shall you die." In his last days everything he said his friends he beheld the outcropping of irreligion and vice, the mode of which he had sown in the days of his Protestantism, and which he now reaped in the harvest of misery, and so corrupt had society become through the laxity of morals introduced by the Reformers, that Luther was forced to admit to Prince George of Anhalt that "we live in Sodoma and Babylon, everything is daily growing worse." "In the district of Wittenberg," says Rev. Wm. Stang in his admirable Life of Luther, "where the reformer had labored so zealously, there was, according to his own statement, "but one peasant who urged his domestic to the Word of God and the catechism; all others were going to the devil." "Nobles, citizens, and peasants trample religion under their feet, and drive every thing groaning by starvation." (Leader-Lasch's Tischreden, 115, 114,185) They wish to be damned,' he wrote on January 8, 1544; 'may it be done as they wish.' (De Wette, v, 775) But in Wittenberg itself corruption and depravity were making large advances under the 'light of the gospel' and its hero. Luther was disgusted with the 'scandalous' wantonness and libertinism that he left the city and instructed his Catherine to sell out and follow him, as long as—'still have the devil's dance in Wittenberg.' 'Away from this Sodom! I would rather go about the world as a stone mason and eat the bread of a beggar than pass the few remaining miserable days of my life in trouble and as a martyr in Wittenberg.'" (De Wette, v, 455.)

What a faithful picture of a local Pandemonium does not this Protestant town present! Forget not, good reader, that this was the town where the Leader of Protestantism lived and Catherine regularly roosted for many years! Luther found it a peaceable, virtuous, and pious community, but—according to his own account—he "reformed the people into a mass of drunken and debauched men and women!" "By their fruits ye shall know them," says the Sacred Scripture; much honey, yet idol worshipers, behold here some more fruits of Luther's spa tree!

The nearer this bad man came into the presence of death the more acute became his agonizing torture. Remorse tortured him day and night even to madness, and out of the unpenitent sinner who feels the fangs of Satan fastening on his vitals. Grim despair made him cry out:

"I have almost lost Christ, and am tossed about in billows and storms of despair and blasphemy against God." (De Wette, v, 595.) What wonder, then, that he could not utter a prayer without a curse. On January 17, 1536, about a month before his death, he wrote to a friend: "I am old, decrepit, infirm, fatigued, tormented, and blind of an eye; I hoped for repose in my old age, but I have nothing but suffering." (De Wette, v, 795.)

The rest is told thus by Dr. Stang:

"Though broken in health and depressed in mind, Luther consented to undertake a journey to Eisleben in order to settle a quarrel between the two counts of Mansfeld. While passing through the city of Halle he saw some marks in the pavement. This recalled his anger to such a degree that he demanded of the city authorities the expulsion of the 'lousy, shabby monks.' (Walchsche Ausg., xx, 70, 78.) In another place he even precluded his passion so much, that he wished for their destruction "for the glory of God." On February 7, 1546, he wrote to Cath. erine: 'When I shall have finished my principal business, I shall devote my chief energies to the expulsion of the Jews. Count Albert pleas them honestly, and has declared them outlaws; but as far as one has dare them harm. Should it be God's will, I shall assent the pulpit and with Count Albert declare them beyond the pale of the law.' (De Wette, v, 724, 727.)

"In Eisleben he was manifestly entertained, and he emplied many a glass to the downfall of the Papacy. When he saw the wine dowsed out the floor in the Castle of the County, he said: 'There now will the pope go out.' He died in the night of February 18."

The unhappy and unfortunate Catherine outlived her partner in iniquity several years, which she passed in great poverty and privation. The Protestant princes and the other admirers of Luther seemed to have buried their love for the nuns with the dead heavy-breeder whom they entombed, so neither his wife nor his children ever received any recognition even from those most benefited by the robbery of the Church during and subsequent to the era of the Reformation.

And thus fall the idol of the Protestant world! Like Lucifer, he defied God in his life, and God abandoned him in death. His last end, taken in conjunction with his licentious life, should point a moral to the Protestant world, as it falls in plainly that Luther's whole career was a crime against God, and he exit from life was only the beginning of an eternity of perdition.

A Contrast Between the Catholic Bible and the Corrupt Protestant Version.

"The Old Testament was complete in the time of Christ, who gave to it his sanction and approval. The Hebrew Scriptures and the New Testament have been in use by the Church ever since the days of the apostles, who were men inspired by God. Upon this complete Word of God has the true Church of God ever been called her bible. The R.-man Catholic Church, which dates as a distinct organization from the time of Gregory, Bishop of Rome, who was the first real Pope, has made much of Christ and the Scriptures of the Bible, from which Christ, when in the flesh, taught his disciples. All those who have been in the organization, would there are a multitude of sins and corruptions; and from each Bible as these sins and corruptions, there can come but little good—human good.

The above extract is the concluding portion of an editorial in the Occident to which we alluded last week, and which we propose to extinguish completely in our present criticism. Before doing so, however, we must inform the Occident in no uncertain tone that our Blessed Redeemer ever gave "His sanction and approval" to the old Testament. If such an important event ever occurred it must have been recorded by some of the Apostolic writers, but we refuse to believe it unless the Occident gives time and place for the assertion.

We know from the Bible itself that the Occident's statement is untrue. The Jews, as a general thing, did not read the Bible, but had it read to them; in fact, they were forbidden to read the whole of it until they arrived at a certain age. Again, our Divine Lord said to the Jews: "The Scribes and Pharisees sit upon the chair of Moses. All things, therefore, whatsoever they shall say to you, observe ye and do." Finally, as if to show the Jews the fallacy of expecting to find salvation alone in the Old Law, our Blessed Saviour said with a kind of sarcasm on one occasion when alluding to the reading of the Scriptures, "For we think ye have in them everlasting life." All of which plainly shows that the Occident was guilty of a wanton assertion when it replied to God in the false position Calvinism has always tried to force Him into.

We do not take issue with the Occident when it says that "the gospels and epistles of the New Testament have been in use by the Church"—(the Catholic Church of course)—"ever since the days of the apostles, who were men inspired by God," but we respectfully contend that the Occident can only know this fact from the Catholic Church. Assuredly it is not the bogus Bible used by Presbyterians and other propagandists of error that has existed down to our day, and we again demand some evidence other than the Occident's spic dixit on this point.

"Upon this complete Word of God," says the Occident, "has the true Church of God ever been established." This assertion, however, is not true, inasmuch as the "true Church of God" existed for some time before the Scriptures were collated and compiled as far as they have been handed down to us, because it is a well known fact that there are no less than twenty-five Books mentioned in the Bible which have not come down to us. The number of Books in the Old Testament is twenty-two, but if it were complete it should contain forty-four Books, so that as many were lost as were saved. Such a fact as this should open the eyes of all Protestants who take the Bible as their sole guide to salvation.

Scripture, the true Word of God, commenced in times past by the Prophets, and in these last days by His own Son, is not inferior to the Church in excellence and dignity. It is inspired, holy, and divine. But shall we say of that mass of corruption called the Protestant Bible, than which a more fallacious record does not exist on earth. Falsehood, when used by men who write on historical, scientific, literary, or artistic subjects, is to be condemned, but the infernal pit is the only place of suitable punishment for those who would pervert the Word of God and thus deceive the unwary unto damnation. This foulest of foul deeds has Protestantism done. The Scriptures were pure and undefiled so long as they remained under the protection of the Catholic Church, but when man's minds began to be permeated with the heresy of Protestant error they were compelled to alter, amend, abridge, change, corrupt, efface, and delile the Holy Scriptures in order to make them correspond with the vagaries, the voluptuousness, or the other vices of the various ragmuffins who gave to the world that unholy heritage of iniquity known under that one word—Protestantism.

The true, complete, and uncorrupted Word of God is to be found only in that Bible which bears the imprimatur of some Pope or Bishop of the Catholic Church. All others are bogus Bibles, filled with errors, incomplete, and "doctored" by religious quacks so as to enable them to pass off as religious reality they might invent. This fact is so notoriously true that many eminent Protestant writers are forced to admit it.

In all the ages in which heretics existed who took the Scriptures for their rule of faith, their chief method for sustaining their erroneous doctrines was by corrupting the Scriptures. In this manner Eibon, who flourished in the first age of the Church, discarded all St. Paul's epistles. Manichæus denied the genuineness of the Acts of the Apostles; and Luther—the third person of this trinity of untruth—denied three of the four gospels, and styled the epistle of St. James—an epistle of straw! Such is the Protestant Bible!

The Occident says that in the Catholic version of the Scriptures there are "a multitude of errors and corruptions," but this charge—like many another Calvinistic calumny—has been put in its foundation nothing save falsehood engendered of fanaticism. That the Vulgate of the Latin is the most true and authentic copy of the Sacred Scriptures, has been the judgment of God's Church for nearly fourteen centuries, during which time the Church has always used it, and therefore it is declared authentic and canonical in every part and book thereof by the Council of Trent.

Most of the Old Testament, as it is in the Latin Vulgate, was translated out of Hebrew by St. Jerom, Doctor of the Church, who was born in 328. This saint has been declared by the Church to be "the greatest of all her Doctors in expounding the divine oracles." Many notable Protestants, such as Dr. Dove, Dr. Corel, and even Rev. Cornelius a Lapide, have borne testimony to the accuracy of this translation. In order, therefore, to prove the falsity of the Occident's assertion that the Catholic Bible contains "a multitude of errors and corruptions," it is only necessary to produce the evidence of Jerom, who was one of the prominent Protestant scholars and theologians of the sixteenth century, having himself made a translation of the New Testament. Alluding to St. Jerom's translation, this accomplished Greek scholar says:

"I confess that the old interpreter seems to me to have preserved the Sacred Writings in such a manner as to have kept the sense of the Holy Ghost, in which the Scriptures were written, so that nothing occurred that was not fitting to the subject." (Rom in Amos, in Lec. 1, 2, Hi. Proefat)

Having thus triumphantly refuted the Occident's rancorous falsehood, let us expose the manner in which the so-called "Reformers" wrangled over the thousand-and-one misconstructions which they placed upon the true Catholic text in their labors at corrupting it. The oldest edition of the bogus Bible that it is faithful and libellous Luther, and from what our readers already know concerning this detestable character, they may safely imagine what kind of "inspiration" he possessed in rendering his version of the Scripture pure and undefiled. Scarcely had Luther's Bible been printed when all the other so-called "reformers" were thunderstruck at the corruptions, perversions, omissions, and errors which it contained. The learned Emser detected in less than a thousand glaring faults! Bucer says that Luther's "faith in translating and explaining the Scriptures were manifest in not a few." Zuingle charges that Luther's lovely Bible was nothing less than a veritable "corruption of the Word of God." Here are his words:

"Thou corruptest the Word of God, O Lutheran! thou art seen to be a mangler and corrupter and perverter of the Holy Scripture; for, in such as we admired of thee, who have hitherto esteemed thee beyond all measure, and we then to be our man." (Zurig. 1 tol. Lech., fol. 6. b.)

What can Protestants who agree with the Presbyterian Occident say to such a Bible as the only guide to salvation? Never since the world began has a vow-breaking blasphemous beer swiller been employed in editing or translating a good moral book, much less one upon which people could depend for other than principles as would lead them to Heaven. Hence Luther's Bible—like himself—was full of rottenness and corruption!

Finding Luther's Bible such a patched-up concern, Zuinglius thought he would try his hand at translating the Bible, and when he had his assistants had completed all the changes they deemed necessary, they complimented Luther by sending him a copy. But Luther was so disgusted and enraged at the Zuinglius Bible that by sent it back! Not satisfied with rejecting the "Holy" Bible this way, Luther called the "inspired" translators a pack of "fools, asses, anti-christs, deceivers," etc. Nor need we wonder that Martin was so mad, because "twas not a truce earnest agree," and Luther naturally looked upon himself as entitled to the monopoly of making "the Word of God" so as to suit the new-fangled notions of all his heretical followers.

Oecolampadius, and some other theological tinkers undertook to get out still another edition of the Bible, which Bem declared to be actually "wicked in many places, and altogether differing from the mind of the Holy Ghost." Calvin next tries his "inspiration" upon the unholy work of corrupting God's holy Word, but with no better result than the Bible-butchers we proceeded him. Commenting upon the Calvin mistranslation, Molinous declares that the burner of Servetus "makes the text of the gospel to leap up and down, he uses violence to the letter of the gospel and, besides this, he adds to the text." Beza also tried his hand at berading to the world the Word of God according to his "inspiration," but—like all the rest—his corruptions were so palpable that Molinous charge him also with "changing the text, and an other critic says of Beza's translation: "I will not note all his errors, for that would require too large a volume.

In fine, all the dishonest and dishonest attempts made by the Protestant Reformers to corrupt the Holy Writ rose up in rebellion against each other's translations until it became a regular family quarrel. Bucer rose up against Luther; Luther against Monster; Beza against Castalio, and Castalio against Beza; Calvin against Servetus; Hippius against Beza; Calvin and Beza, Stapylus and Emserus noted in Luther's Dutch translations alone no less than one thousand five hundred heretical corruptions! In the English Bible the King James' version—M. Broughton, an English Protestant scholar, discovered eight hundred and forty-eight errors!

Such, therefore, is the rotten rule of faith upon which Protestants lean! A book that seems in its upon its very titlepage, and which was so crammed with error by Luther and the scandalously loose-living men of the sixteenth century that Protestants of all denominations have been trying to clean out the Augean stable ever since! "From such Bibles as these," to use the words of the Occident, there can come no good to humanity because the compilers of them being confirmed crooks or moral outcasts were all unfit to handle such a high and holy theme as the Word of God.

This brings us down to where the Occident says—with its usual Calvinistic ignorant impudence—that "Gregory, Bishop of Rome, was its first real Pope." But when we tell our readers that there were twenty four Popes reigning in the See of Peter anterior to the time of Pope Gregory the Great, they will have some slight conception of the brazen-faced ignorance of a writer who pretends to intelligence, yet calls the forty-fifth Pontiff "the first real Pope"! But what can be expected of an evangelical system whose Bible Godly men have been expurgated and its place filled in with the foul conceptions of corruptions! Sectarianism having enslaved, falsified, and duplicity for its props, must of necessity depend upon the lies of Luther and the calumnies of Calvin to keep its scales of justice balanced.

From what we have said, and the proofs we have adduced, it is a self-evident fact that in the Catholic Church alone can men find the saving truths of God's gospel. She has the divine commission, and she alone possesses it. She allows no man to change a single word of the Scriptures over which she—as the teaching authority—has exercised rigid scrutiny during the past Christian centuries, and while the Word of God—like herself—is one, the sectarians have almost a different Bible for every sect. The Lutherans differ from the Calvinists, the Church of England from the Methodists and thus—their very wrangling so to what this text means or what that word signifies, is itself sufficient proof that Almighty God never left such a book as the one sole rule of faith for man's regeneration. God is a just God, and in order that all men might know with certainty the word of God is to be found only in that Bible which bears the imprimatur of some Pope or Bishop of the Catholic Church. All others are bogus Bibles, filled with errors, incomplete, and "doctored" by religious quacks so as to enable them to pass off as religious reality they might invent. This fact is so notoriously true that many eminent Protestant writers are forced to admit it.

In all the ages in which heretics existed who took the Scriptures for their rule of faith, their chief method for sustaining their erroneous doctrines was by corrupting the Scriptures. In this manner Eibon, who flourished in the first age of the Church, discarded all St. Paul's epistles. Manichæus denied the genuineness of the Acts of the Apostles; and Luther—the third person of this trinity of untruth—denied three of the four gospels, and styled the epistle of St. James—an epistle of straw! Such is the Protestant Bible!

The Occident says that in the Catholic version of the Scriptures there are "a multitude of errors and corruptions," but this charge—like many another Calvinistic calumny—has been put in its foundation nothing save falsehood engendered of fanaticism. That the Vulgate of the Latin is the most true and authentic copy of the Sacred Scriptures, has been the judgment of God's Church for nearly fourteen centuries, during which time the Church has always used it, and therefore it is declared authentic and canonical in every part and book thereof by the Council of Trent.

Most of the Old Testament, as it is in the Latin Vulgate, was translated out of Hebrew by St. Jerom, Doctor of the Church, who was born in 328. This saint has been declared by the Church to be "the greatest of all her Doctors in expounding the divine oracles." Many notable Protestants, such as Dr. Dove, Dr. Corel, and even Rev. Cornelius a Lapide, have borne testimony to the accuracy of this translation. In order, therefore, to prove the falsity of the Occident's assertion that the Catholic Bible contains "a multitude of errors and corruptions," it is only necessary to produce the evidence of Jerom, who was one of the prominent Protestant scholars and theologians of the sixteenth century, having himself made a translation of the New Testament. Alluding to St. Jerom's translation, this accomplished Greek scholar says:

"I confess that the old interpreter seems to me to have preserved the Sacred Writings in such a manner as to have kept the sense of the Holy Ghost, in which the Scriptures were written, so that nothing occurred that was not fitting to the subject." (Rom in Amos, in Lec. 1, 2, Hi. Proefat)

Having thus triumphantly refuted the Occident's rancorous falsehood, let us expose the manner in which the so-called "Reformers" wrangled over the thousand-and-one misconstructions which they placed upon the true Catholic text in their labors at corrupting it. The oldest edition of the bogus Bible that it is faithful and libellous Luther, and from what our readers already know concerning this detestable character, they may safely imagine what kind of "inspiration" he possessed in rendering his version of the Scripture pure and undefiled. Scarcely had Luther's Bible been printed when all the other so-called "reformers" were thunderstruck at the corruptions, perversions, omissions, and errors which it contained. The learned Emser detected in less than a thousand glaring faults! Bucer says that Luther's "faith in translating and explaining the Scriptures were manifest in not a few." Zuingle charges that Luther's lovely Bible was nothing less than a veritable "corruption of the Word of God." Here are his words:

"Thou corruptest the Word of God, O Lutheran! thou art seen to be a mangler and corrupter and perverter of the Holy Scripture; for, in such as we admired of thee, who have hitherto esteemed thee beyond all measure, and we then to be our man." (Zurig. 1 tol. Lech., fol. 6. b.)

What can Protestants who agree with the Presbyterian Occident say to such a Bible as the only guide to salvation? Never since the world began has a vow-breaking blasphemous beer swiller been employed in editing or translating a good moral book, much less one upon which people could depend for other than principles as would lead them to Heaven. Hence Luther's Bible—like himself—was full of rottenness and corruption!

Finding Luther's Bible such a patched-up concern, Zuinglius thought he would try his hand at translating the Bible, and when he had his assistants had completed all the changes they deemed necessary, they complimented Luther by sending him a copy. But Luther was so disgusted and enraged at the Zuinglius Bible that by sent it back! Not satisfied with rejecting the "Holy" Bible this way, Luther called the "inspired" translators a pack of "fools, asses, anti-christs, deceivers," etc. Nor need we wonder that Martin was so mad, because "twas not a truce earnest agree," and Luther naturally looked upon himself as entitled to the monopoly of making "the Word of God" so as to suit the new-fangled notions of all his heretical followers.

Oecolampadius, and some other theological tinkers undertook to get out still another edition of the Bible, which Bem declared to be actually "wicked in many places, and altogether differing from the mind of the Holy Ghost." Calvin next tries his "inspiration" upon the unholy work of corrupting God's holy Word, but with no better result than the Bible-butchers we proceded him. Commenting upon the Calvin mistranslation, Molinous declares that the burner of Servetus "makes the text of the gospel to leap up and down, he uses violence to the letter of the gospel and, besides this, he adds to the text." Beza also tried his hand at berading to the world the Word of God according to his "inspiration," but—like all the rest—his corruptions were so palpable that Molinous charge him also with "changing the text, and an other critic says of Beza's translation: "I will not note all his errors, for that would require too large a volume.

In fine, all the dishonest and dishonest attempts made by the Protestant Reformers to corrupt the Holy Writ rose up in rebellion against each other's translations until it became a regular family quarrel. Bucer rose up against Luther; Luther against Monster; Beza against Castalio, and Castalio against Beza; Calvin against Servetus; Hippius against Beza; Calvin and Beza, Stapylus and Emserus noted in Luther's Dutch translations alone no less than one thousand five hundred heretical corruptions! In the English Bible the King James' version—M. Broughton, an English Protestant scholar, discovered eight hundred and forty-eight errors!

Such, therefore, is the rotten rule of faith upon which Protestants lean! A book that seems in its upon its very titlepage, and which was so crammed with error by Luther and the scandalously loose-living men of the sixteenth century that Protestants of all denominations have been trying to clean out the Augean stable ever since! "From such Bibles as these," to use the words of the Occident, there can come no good to humanity because the compilers of them being confirmed crooks or moral outcasts were all unfit to handle such a high and holy theme as the Word of God.

This brings us down to where the Occident says—with its usual Calvinistic ignorant impudence—that "Gregory, Bishop of Rome, was its first real Pope." But when we tell our readers that there were twenty four Popes reigning in the See of Peter anterior to the time of Pope Gregory the Great, they will have some slight conception of the brazen-faced ignorance of a writer who pretends to intelligence, yet calls the forty-fifth Pontiff "the first real Pope"! But what can be expected of an evangelical system whose Bible Godly men have been expurgated and its place filled in with the foul conceptions of corruption

"The Wonder Flower and Feather Store."
No. 105 Market street, is now in the 7th year of its existence, and is daily gaining control and patronage. Its popularity has not a very close rival in the city. Ladies, if you want a Feather Fan, Feather Boa, or any other article of the same in such choice, fine and elegant quality, have the prices to suit the most fastidious. The Feathers are dyed and made up in the latest styles ready for dress parade in various conditions.

Dr. Rogers' Heart Tonic
is the prescription of an eminent physician who has made heart disease a specialty for years. He refer to his patients, and to the public, the fact that he has never lost a patient while using the Heart Tonic. Sold by druggists, or address, DR. J. H. ROGERS, 1 Montgomery Block, San Francisco. Cal. Price, $1 per bottle, or four bottles for $3. Sent by express, C.O.D.

— Mrs. M. S. Anderson, sole agent for California, wishes to inform the public that she has just received a fresh supply of the celebrated Ladies' Fine Kid Shoes, which she will sell at the low price of $3 per pair. These shoes are of the best quality, and have been sold heretofore at $4 per pair. Ladies, call and see for yourselves, at 1 Montgomery Block.

— Dr. W. P. Coe, Dentist, No. 11 Kearny, from Montgomery, over Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express. Patronage made to remain the best in the market. Gentlemen's patronage solicited.

— All hair dyes are injurious and less successful, while Hunter's Walnut Extract is perfect. Free from all injurious ingredients, it is the best and most reliable article for coloring the hair. Sold by all druggists, or address, Hunter Manufacturing Co., 37 Barclay st., N. Y.

— Dandelion Bitters regulate the stomach and are the best tonic.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CATHOLIC HOME ALMANAC

FOR 1884.

Pure, wholesome reading for the Home circle—of interest to both old and young.

A catalogue of their Saints, Sacraments and Festivals, Family Historical and Biographical Sketches; and Statistics.

PRICE - - - - 25 CTS.

CONTENTS:

[illegible]

Beautifully and profusely illustrated, with a rose-colored cover, Chrome Frontispiece, and Calendars in red and black. It contains also, besides the prettiest picture, and is the best value for the money of any Catholic Almanac ever offered to the American public.

BENZIGER BROS.,
Publishers to the Holy Apostolic See,
PUBLISHERS AND BOOKSELLERS
Importers and Manufacturers of Church Ornaments, Vestments, Statues, ETC., ETC.
NEW YORK:—211 Broadway.
CINCINNATI: 178 Vine Street.
ST. LOUIS: 206 & 208 N. Fourth St.

SUBPŒNAS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT CITY AND COUNTY OF San Francisco, State of California. ANDREW J. GRAY, Plaintiff, vs. ANNIE GRAY, Defendant. Action brought in the Superior Court, City and County of San Francisco, State of California. The people of the State of California send greeting to ANNIE GRAY, Defendant. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought in the Superior Court of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, upon the complaint filed in said county and state, a copy of which is served herewith, and you are required to appear and answer said complaint within ten days after the service of this summons, if served within this county, and if served elsewhere within thirty days; and you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the relief demanded in said complaint, which said complaint is filed in the office of the clerk of said court, at the City and County of San Francisco. The name of the plaintiff's attorney is Thomas Boyle, and his office and place of business is 638 Clay street, in the City and County of San Francisco. Given under my hand and seal of the Superior Court of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, this 3d day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.
WILLIAM T. SHERIDAN, Clerk.
By J. D. Sullivan, Deputy Clerk.
Chas. P. Gray, Attorney for Plaintiff.

MUSIC CLERK WANTED.
One who is well versed in the selling and handling of sheet music, and musical merchandise generally. The best of references required. Address, P. O. Box 1957, City, stating salary, etc.

WANTED IN THE COUNTRY.
Two good fishermen; well acquainted with Bank and Mackerel fishing. Best of references required. Price and employment must suit apply. For further information inquire at the Monitor office.

BUSINESS CHANCES GOOD.
50 Stamps, the postmark pack one, with your name on, and description of your business, and have to get them, for 25c. O. O. Ore Co., Hartville, O. Orders filled the day received. SEND PRINTS PATTERNS.

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of these Luminous Goods, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet tint which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonderful discovery, conveys but a vague impression of the marvels which have been brought to light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which separate the flight of imagination and pinions it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the discoveries of modern time which has end is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Coryal's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have recently appeared in the Morning and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherein to incite devotion and afford an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the Monitor, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the luminous articles, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

THE FAMOUS
DUPLEX GALVANIC BELT

BEST IN THE WORLD.
THE HIGHEST PREMIUM AT THE MECHANIC'S Institute. The greatest curative agent for sickness. The Pacific Electric Co., Sole Proprietor.

RUPTURE
Positively Cured.
PACIFIC ELECTRIC PAD TRUSS.

A NEW INVENTION. THE BEST RETAINER IN America. Delineator Dollmann, Call or send for pictorial circular to Pacific Electric Co., Sole Proprietors, 1202 Butter street, San Francisco.

Found at Last!
[illegible]

LA GRANDE LAUNDRY,
PRINCIPAL OFFICE,
648 MARKET STREET.
BRANCHES,
1152 Market and 910 Dupont Sts.
LAUNDRY,
320a St., bet. Folsom and Howard, S. F. Cal

WITH
FIVE DOLLARS
YOU CAN BUY A WHOLE IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN
100 FLORINS
GOVERNMENT BOND,
ISSUED IN 1880.
Which bonds are issued and secured by the Government and are redeemable in drawings
FOUR TIMES ANNUALLY.
Until such and every bond is drawn, with a larger or a smaller premium. Every bond must draw a Prize as there are no blanks.
THE THREE NEXT DRAWINGS ABOUT TO BE MADE ARE:
ON 1ST JANUARY,
ON 1ST APRIL,
ON 1ST JULY,
And bonds not drawing one of the above prizes must draw a Premium of NOT LESS THAN 200 Florins.
The next drawing takes place on the 1st of December, 1883.
and every bond purchased of us on or before the 1st of December is entitled to the whole premium that may be drawn thereon on that date.
Our at-home orders must be Remittance Letters, inclosing $5, will secure one of these bonds for the next drawing.
For orders, circulars, or any other information, address,
INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO.,
287 B'way, cor. Pulton St., New York City.
ESTABLISHED IN 1874.
N. B.—In writing to us, please state you saw this in The San Francisco Monitor.

DOGES BOUGHT AND SOLD BY A. BOURDOIN 1866 Montgomery street.

INSURANCE.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY
OF CALIFORNIA.
FIRE AND MARINE.
Capital fully paid $500,000 00
Assets January 1, 1883 276,775
Losses paid since organization 267,000 00
PRINCIPAL OFFICE,
405 California Street, S. F.
JOHN H. WISE, President.
CHAS. A. LATOR Secretary.
FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE
UNION
INSURANCE COMPANY
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,
ESTABLISHED IN 1861.
Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.
CAS H CAPITAL ..... $750,000 GOLD
PAID RATES,
PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF LOSSES.
SOLID SECURITY.
DIRECTORS:
SAN FRANCISCO:
R. Bowmaker, Nicholas Luning,
H. F. Pond, John Parrott,
Henry Cowell, James Moffit,
M. G. Kinsle, J. Baron,
M. J. O'Connor, M. D. Sweeny,
F. Shubert, Joseph Brooks,
Gustave Touchard, Gustave Touchard,
Adam Grant, J. G. Kinsle,
Amelia Bowe, Geo. O. Hopkins,
Charles Lukie, J. H. Reid,
Joseph Seligman, Jr. Chas. Duff,
Herbert Dun, W. H. Hoag,
J. Lagrange Post, Thomas Bergin,
A. Wolff, Wm. Sproule,
E. B. Mason, J. O. Eyre,
A. B. Forbes,
GUSTAVE TOUCHARD,
President.
H. J. KITTLE, Vice-President.
JAS. D. BAILEY, Secretary.
GEO. W. BOWEN, Superintendent.

PILES "Anakesis" Positive cure for Piles, Itching Piles, Blind, Bleeding, Protruding Piles. Sent by mail, $1. Dr. Lyons, 1 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

Pacific Coast Agency
GENUINE
J. H. CUTTER WHISKIES,
A. P. HOTALING & CO.,
San Francisco, Cal.

RAZORS!
FOR $1,000
I WILL MAKE A BETTER RAZOR AND HONE OF I then in the same time any man IN THE WORLD
My razors make guaranteed $5 5
My Guard Razors warranted not to cut the face while shaving 5 5
Good English Razors 1 00
Best English Razors 1 50
Sent C. O. D. or by mail.
M. PRICE,
415 Kearny Street.
Grinding and Repairing

MISCELLANEOUS.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES! NIGHT CROSSES! NIGHT STATUES!

VISIBLE
IN THE
DARKEST ROOM!
When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.
THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,
HAD A
LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!
AND SAID—
"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journal
Through the courtesy of Messrs. J. B. Marcelli & Co., proprietors of the Cosmetic Compound, we were favored with a private and over one of Dyer's wonderfully illustrative of the century. I was led into a room, the curtains were drawn and every ray of light was excluded, and in the darkness, which, first I saw only, there appeared a cross, in bright, ever-inspiring distinctness, first the figure of the Redeemer, then the figure of the Blessed Virgin, then the figure of the Sacred Heart, and then the figure of the Holy Ghost, appeared, the figure, as it were, from an other side, the figure of Mary, and vice versa. If ever a feeling of faith and consciousness of the figure of an angel hearing a crown that seemed to be in the hands of the Blessed Virgin, I felt it then, and I felt it then, and I felt it now, and I felt it, as novel and reverentially. Upon leaving we were presented with a cross; it is as much as a bracelet in our chamber, and to the darkness of night it seems to say, stop not, this cross could be found.

Size 1, A cross 24 inches high, with Pedestal	$1 00
" 2, A Crucifix, with a figure of 8 inches	1.50
" 3, " " 12 "	2.00
" 4, " " 14 "	2.50
" 5, Statue of Blessed Virgin, 11 "	2.00
" 6, " " 14 "	2.50
" 7, " St. Joseph, 11 "	2.00

Other Statues and Religious Articles will be Announced Shortly
A DISCOUNT TO THOSE ORDERING IN QUANTITIES.
Address Orders to
A. WALDTEUFEL,
General Agent for the Pacific Coast,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
FEMALE CANVASSERS WANTED.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.
SANTA CLARA . . . . CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, at a reasonable price, a moral and intellectual education. One feature in particular that should recommend this Academy, is the information now added to form the pupils to views and habits of economy and to instil in them careful habits of society in after years.
The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.
Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, payable in advance.
Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.
Board, Tuition, Washing and Mending, $100
Vocal and Instrumental Music form extra charges.
French and Drawing lessons free. Next session begins August 6th.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE
SANTA CLARA, ... CALIFORNIA
THE THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL SESSION will commence on Tuesday, August 7th, 1883. This College, founded in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated with the privileges of a University, offers to students: large buildings, with extensive yard, playgrounds, gardens, and a commodious field. It possesses a museum of Natural Philosophy and valuable collects of Mineralogy and Geology. It has, also, preparatory school of Arts, Surveying, Telegraphy, Photography and Commercial Business. For the College, Prof. Jos. Neri, 1862-6 has just been finished, that leaves nothing to be desired.
Diplomas are given in two departments—the Academic Course, Degrees and Certificates in the Commercial course.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-annually in advance.)
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once. $ 15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition in all branches Washing and Mending, Use of Library, School Stationery, medical attendance and Medicine, Bedding, etc., per session of ten months 250 00
For further particulars apply to the President of Santa Clara College, or to St. Ignatius College, 631 Hide Street, San Francisco.
REV. R. E. KENNA,
President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
Fifth and Jackson Sts. OAKLAND, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING and Select Day Academy for Young Ladies. Its object is to combine the comforts and advantages of home with the attainment of a superior education.
Morals and gentleness, deference of manner and ease of address, are the first lessons taught to the young lady. The Academy is conducted that the Institution presently fills the place of a home to the young ladies who are its inmates.
Students are received at any time during the year, but not for a shorter period than one term of five months.
TERMS:
(Payment in U. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance)
Board, Washing and Tuition, per term of 5 months, $125
Half-boarders and Medium Attendance 60
Entrance Fee payable but once 10
BRO. LACHAN, Director

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Bros.
After every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
THOSE WHO COMPLETE THE CLASSICAL Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S. The Commercial course, Accounts.
The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in the shortest time.
With proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receiving special attention. The daily exercises of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly observed, and corrected in the classroom.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board, Tuition and Washing $250 00
Entrance Fee 10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines 10 00
Visitation at College 50 00
Day Students 50 00
Music and Drawing form extra charges.
For further particulars address
BRO. BETTELIN, President.

ST. GERTRUDE'S ACADEMY.
RIO VISTA, SOLANO CO., CAL.
THIS ACADEMY FOR YOUNG LADIES, UNDER the direction of the Sisters of Mercy, is beautifully situated in the town of Rio Vista, in the Sacramento Valley. The healthfulness of the place, the healthfulness of the town, and well furnished with all the comforts of a home. The Health and climate of Rio Vista commends our academy and well adapted to the education of young ladies. Pupils of all ages are equally received. The discipline of the Academy is such as to secure the moral training of the young lady, and will be charged from date of entrance.
The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each; the first to commence January and ending in June.
Terms per Session, Payable in Advance.
BOARDING PUPILS.
Board and Tuition, with use of bedding $112 50
Washing 15 00
Music, Drawing and Painting, Plain and Ornamental Needlework do not form extra charges.
DAY ACADEMY.
Terms per month, in advance:
Senior Class $2 50
Intermediate Class 1 50
Primary Class 1 00
Music, Instrument, with use of instrument 1 00
Music, Instrument, without use of instrument 1 00
Drawing and Painting 1 00
Washing 1 50
Bed and Bedding 1 50
Entrance Fee, payable once only, Plain and Ornamental Needlework do not form extra charges.
DAY ACADEMY.
Terms per month, in advance:
Senior Class $2 50
Intermediate Class 1 50
Primary Class 1 00
Music, Instrument, with use of instrument 1 00
Music, Instrument, without use of instrument 1 00
Drawing and Painting 1 00
Washing 1 50
Bed and Bedding 1 50
Entrance Fee, payable once only, Plain and Ornamental Needlework do not form extra charges.
For further particulars address
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

EDUCATIONAL.

Convent of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary,
GILROY, - - - CALIFORNIA.
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL, UNDER THE charge of the Sisters of the H. H. and I. H. of Mary. For terms, etc., apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS

URSULINE ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
The Third Annual Session began
AUGUST 7TH., 1883.
For Prospectus and full particulars, Address
SUPERIORESS OF THE URSULINES,
Santa Rosa, Cal.

ST. MARY'S CONVENT,
SAN LEANDRO, ALAMEDA CO., CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION, IN CHARGE OF THE SISTERS of St. Dominic, is situated in the most healthy part of the State, having a mild climate and a warm Winter. There are two lines of rail road passing daily through the town, and being not more than twelve miles from San Francisco, make the trip by rail or stage comes easy.
A few select boarders can be accommodated. The training of pupils receives special attention. Terms moderate. For particulars apply at the Convent.

EDUCATIONAL.

SACRAMENTO INSTITUTE,
Twelfth and K streets,
SACRAMENTO, ... CAL.
A LIMITED NUMBER OF BOARDERS RECEIVED. A lady facility for acquiring a sound Christian education, and some time, enjoying the comforts of a pleasant home, in here afforded.
TERMS: Board, Tuition and Washing, $75 per quarter. For particulars apply to BRO. GERERRIN, Director.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE
Sisters of St. Dominic,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
THIS INSTITUTION, BEAUTIFULLY LOCATED in the Mission Valley, offers every facility for the acquisition of a refined and solid education. The academic year consists of two terms of 5 months each.
TERMS:
Board, Washing and English Tuition, per quarter $62 50
Entrance Fee 10 00
EXTRAS:
Language, (each) ..... $ 5 00
French Language 5 00
Drawing and Painting in Class 5 00
Drawing and Painting in Water Color 5 00
Instrumental Music 10 00
Graduating Fee 10 00
Use of Piano for Practice 1 00
DAY PUPILS:
Preparatory Class, per month ..... $ 2 50
Primary Class 3 50
Intermediate Class 4 50
Senior Class 5 00
Each young lady is required to be provided with two dresses, one for ordinary wear, the other for evening dresses, dressing case, bear sheets, four pillow slips, six towels, six napkins, six pairs of stockings, four hands four table cloths, one knife, silver pickle, fork, spoon and napkin ring.
Pupils of any religious denomination will be received on the terms above mentioned, provided it be presumed that the religious exercises of the Institution will not be a cause of complaint. The Catechism is to be subjected to the examination of the Pastor.
For further particulars address
SISTER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
OF SAN FRANCISCO,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME.
THIS INSTITUTION, FOUNDED IN 1868, chartered in 1875 by Act of the Legislature of the State of California, located on Tenth, corner California Streets, is dedicated to the Immaculate Conception.
The course of instruction includes a solid and refined education.
TERMS:
Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per annum $250 00
EXTRA CHARGES.
Piano, vocal or instrumental $60 00
Vocal Music, Class Lessons 30 00
Vocal Music, Private Lessons 60 00
Drawing, per season 30 00
Painting in Water Colors, per season 30 00
Painting in Oil, per Lesson 1 00
Vocation spent at the College 50 00
Graduating Fee 10 00
Physician's Fee (in case of sickness) 10 00
Bills are presented and are payable at the beginning of each half session, in advance.
SILENT DAY SCHOOL.
Terms per month (paid in advance.)
Tuition in the 1st and 2nd College Classes $6 00
Tuition in the 3rd and 4th College Classes .. 5 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Class 4 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Grammar Classes .. 3 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Intermediate Classes 2 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes 1 00
Music (Vocal and Instrumental), Drawing, Painting and French Pupils receive lessons free of charge, as in Boarding Schools, but incidentals, such as Bedding and Washing are given separately.
N. B.—A private conveyance is furnished, at reasonable rates, for the convenience of pupils residing in distant parts of the city.
Pupils should be received in the College of Notre Dame, Dolores street, San Francisco, on Wednesday the 16th inst.
School of the Holy Cross.
A Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies.
CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF CHARITY of Santa Cruz, Santa Cruz Co., Cal
For particulars address
THE PRESIDENT.

Convent of the Immaculate Heart of Mary,
SAN LUIS OBISPO . . . CALIFORNIA
BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES, conducted by the Sisters of the Sacred Heart and Immaculate Heart of Mary.
The Sisters have charge of the orphans.
SISTER RAYMONDA CREMADELL, Princess.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME
SAN JOSE, ... CALIFORNIA
THIS INSTITUTION OFFERING FE cilities advantageous to young ladies wishing to receive a solid and refined education, was founded in 1851. In 1855, it was incorporated by the State Legislature, and subsequently, the state body so attended the original Charter in accordance with the rights and privileges of Collegiate Institutions.
It occupies large buildings, with extensive playgrounds and every necessary facility to make acceptable the sojourn of strangers. The climate of Santa Clara Valley is the mildest in the state. Every facility will be afforded to students who may wish to devote their whole time to music or the study of the languages.
The scholastic year begins on the first Monday in August and closes about the first week in June. Pupils are received at any period of the year.
TERMS:
Per quarter, (payable in advance.)
Boarding, Tuition in English, French, and Spanish, German, and Latin, washing and use of bedding $75
Bed and Bedding 10 00
Drawing (per quarter) 6 00
Painting in Water Colors 6 00
Painting in Oil, per lesson 1 00
Vocal and instrumental Music form extra charges.
For further particulars, address
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
San Jose

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES,
BENICIA . . . . CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the healthy and accessible town of Benicia. The scholastic year comprises ten months, opens on the 1st of August, and ends about the 1st of June.
TERMS:
(Payable half yearly).
Board and Tuition $125
Entrance Fee 10
Bed and Bedding 10
Use of Piano, including all the Academy during vacation will be charged $20.
Drawing, Painting and Music form extra charges.
The Expenses on packages sent to pupils are prepaid.
Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE
OF NOTRE DAME
MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN 1866, I chartered by the State Legislature, and endowed with the rights and privileges of similar Collegiate Institutions in the United States
Reference required. For terms and particulars address,
COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
Marysville, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CARROLL & TILTON,
Respectfully announce that they have opened
THE LARGE STORE,
873 Market Street,
WITH A LINE OF GENT'S A^D BOY'S
CLOTHING,
Furnishing Goods,
HATS, CAPS, ETC.
Having been in this business many years, we can promise that all our goods will be as represented.
We buy for Cash and sell as low as possible.
CARROLL & TILTON,
873 Market Street, Opp. Powell,
And late with JONES & CO.

ESTABLISHED 1855.
J. O'KANE,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER OF
HARNESS, SADDLES, WHIPS, BLANKETS,
And Everything necessary for Horse or Carriage Use.
Boots and Rubber Goods a Specialty.
Single Harness from $10 a set.
Repairing promptly attended to.
767 MARKET ST.
Special attention given to the manufacture of "Boots of all kinds for horses. Can refer to all the principal trainers and horsemen on the Pacific Coast.

O'BRIEN & WARD'S
Male and Female
EMPLOYMENT OFFICE.
MALE DEPARTMENT, 634 Clay Street.
FEMALE DEPARTMENT, 628 Clay Street.
I HAVE TO BE HAD—FIRST-CLASS Boys, Youths, Men, Farmers, Gardeners, Dairymen, Butchers, Coachmen, and Barkeepers, private families and vineyards. Also, good cooks, male help, without any charge to employers. Boarding rooms for hire at 628 Clay street.

JAS. R. KELLY & Co.
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF PAINTS,
OILS and GLASS
221 and 223 Market Street
San Boton Beale—the New Block.

HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK COMPANY.
—MANUFACTURERS OF—
Hall's Patent Fire and Burglar Proof Safes
511 and 513 California Street.
Sales made for church and other uses, on easy terms, payable in small monthly payments.

SAN FRANCISCO AND NORTH PACIFIC RAILROAD.
Boats and Trains will leave San Francisco as follows:
WEEK DAYS:
7.00 A. M. via Donahue, from Washington st. wharf, for Donahue, Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Healdsburg, Lytton, Geyserville, Cloverdale, and all points in Russian River Valley.
4.00 P. M. for Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Healdsburg, Lytton, Geyserville, Cloverdale, and all points in Russian River Valley.
8.20 A. M. (Sundays only), via Donahue, from Washington street wharf, for Cloverdale and way Stations, Round trip tickets on Sundays, Fare $1 50, Book Form $1 Excursion to Santa Rosa, Healdsburg, Lytton, Geyserville, $2 00. Returning, will arrive in San Francisco at 6 P. M.
ARTHUR HUGHES, Gen. Manager. PETER J. McGLYNN, Gen. Pass. & Ticket Agt.

SONOMA VALLEY RAILROAD.
Boats and Trains leave Vallejo Ferry for Sonoma and Glen Ellen daily, Sundays excepted, as follows:
7.00 P. M. Daily (Sundays excepted) from foot of Vallejo street Wharf, for the town of Sonoma and Glen Ellen and way Points.
SUNDAY EXCURSIONS.
8.20 A. M. Sundays only, from Vallejo street Wharf for the Town of Sonoma, Glen Ellen and way points. Round Trip Tickets to Sonoma, $1 00; Glen Ellen, $1 50.
ARTHUR HUGHES, General Manager. PETER J. McGLYNN, Gen. Pass. & Ticket Agt.

SEEDS! TREES! PLANTS!
SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE
R. J. TRUMBULL & Co.
Seed Warehouse, 421 Sansome St., San Francisco.
Agents for WOODWARDS MEDICATED NEST EGGS.
$66 a week. Terms and Outfit free. Address Tuse & Co., Portland, Me.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

BOOTS and SHOES
JOHN SULLIVAN,
NORTHEAST COR. OF SATTERY AND JACKSON Sts., above to make to order the best of Calf Leather BOOTS, at from $6 00
Calfskin Leather Boots 5 00
French Calf Oxford Ties 3 50
Calfskin 3 00
Boys' and Children's Boots and Shoes made to order. Persons in the country ordering Boots and Shoes will find a saving of Twelve Dollars or more, will be the reputation of their pay used, as we do make the cheapest light I sell Boots and Shoes of MY MANUFACTURE ONLY. Boots and Shoes sent C. O. D. Particular use price.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MONITOR MENTION.
— Best Pictures taken at the Imperial, 724½ Market street.
— Mme. Grunwald's patent Corsets, 170 Kearny and 416 Powell street.
— Have J. T. Whitney repair your lady's boots. Office, 814 Market street. Telephone No. 4178.
— J. F. Tyson and F. A. Eller, dentists, 908 Market street, corner of 5th st.
— Dr. A. Chase, dentist, has now left 1441 Fourth st., residence as before.
— Angle's, if you want a handsome dress made in a day or two. Here, 1108 Market st. Jos. Angle.
— J. F. Healy, auctioneer and house broker, 1719 Market st., above Third; rooms 8 and 9.
— Fox sta Lawrence, dentist, Walker Block, corner of the lowest prices. Repairing of all kinds done neatly and cheap. 8 N. More 1041 Market street, opp. Fifth.
— Chairs! If you want style and a perfect fit go to Jos. Lewis, 1341 Kearny street, Theodore Block, corner of Pacific st.
— Mrs. Riordan, formerly of the Palace, has opened an elegant store at 950 Market street, near Ninth.
— Wm. Pankenhurst, 604 Howard street. Money loaned for any length of time, on Clothing, Furniture, Jewelry, Bedding and all Household articles. Business private.
— J. W. Tucker & Co., fine watches and diamonds. Watches and clocks repaired. Opp. Kearny and Geary street.
— M. M. Lynch, carpenter and builder, 635 Third street corner Bryant. Stoves and office fitting and general jobbing promptly attended to.
— For the information of our readers we state that H. T. Beeler, architect, has removed from 632 Market street to 220 O'Farrell street.
— Oh! Oh! Oh! Best Eastern Oil, Oils Dodge and Tom Cook per case. Try Oil, and be convinced. Myers & Co., 809 Market street, San Francisco.
— Our readers who may carry cameras to purchase supplies for the coming Fall season should remember that Schmidt has to be found at No. 22 Dupont street. If Schmidt is not on the ground floor, he will be found at the sign apart for the Pacific Coast. These boxes are kept for the convenience of our patrons, and all that remains to purchase them. Schmidt keeps no poor.
— Wholesale Pianos, at Gerard's, 332 Sutter St. Sister Mary Josephine of Notre Dame says: I can recommend Wheelock Pianos as first class. Large stock of new and second-hand pianos; easy installments; rent organs, $4.
— Ladies who desire to have a perfect fit in dresses and suits should patronize Mrs. M. Maloney, 20 Ninth street. Ladies own material made to order. A fine line of corsets and ladies' and children's underwear always on hand. Polonaise $1 25.
— The Prescott House, corner of Kearny street and Montgomery avenue, is the popular resort of the city of Mr. J. W. Backer, continues to be one of the most comfortable hotels in the city. The rates for board and room range from $1 to $1 50 per day by the week. The rooms are large, airy and well-aired, and country readers will find Prescott House a most desirable home.
— The National Sundial Institute, 319 Bush street, is the largest Tritium factory in the U. S. Institute of Indianapolis and Philadelphia, which has celebrated for the cure of all deformities of spine, sciatica, diseases of the spine, hip, knee, and all joints, crooked limbs, club feet, paralysis, and fistula. Call and see patients, and our testimonials for curing them. References given and dealers, cost if desired.
— If you intend to buy is a supply of superior Coal, for the coming Winter it would be wise to consult Thomas Morton, 630 Geary street, who keeps on hand a large stock of Coal, of all kinds, including the celebrated Wellington Coal, which is said to be the best and most economical Coal in use. Persons who reside in any portion of the city remote from 630 Geary street, can reach Mr. Morton through telephone No. 2192.
— Mr. John Lamkin, favorably known to many of our readers, has succeeded the firm of Rice & Co., in the General Employment Office, 104 Geary street. This firm was established in 1866 and the extensive business they have built up is entirely on account of the fair dealing, and the care they have exercised in the most faithful manner in supplying the wants of employers (whether mechanical or laboring help of any description) and in procuring for persons seeking place or portal to John Lamkin, 108 Geary street, F., describing the kind of help required and your wants will be faithfully attended to satisfactorily.
— Bathing is the best preventive of sickness, and the best preserver of health known in the medical world. No place presents better facilities for bathing than San Francisco, and it only requires that the public can learn where they can get good, comfortable, clean, and cheap bathing, in order to have the number of bathers nearly increased. For the convenience of people in STATES at North Beach, near the foot of Powell street, where the shortest distance is to be found, where the bather can regulate the temperature of the water to suit his constitution, and where 25 cents will procure you a better bath than 50 cents elsewhere, the Union Bath House, Powell street proprietor, and he will pay special attention to the wants of ladies, children, and all who prefer warm or cold water, hot or cold bath, use the Bath House.

WE KNOW IT!
People want good living; no one wishes to pay twice for inferior goods; we understand this and send only prime meats at prices as low as possible; we also guarantee advantage of large purchases for quick cash in our business. Our Coffees are unsurpassed. Our teas are unsurpassed. THE BRITISH CASH STORE, 216 Post St., S. F., Cal., and get it.

FLOUR.
It is as low as it will be for months to come. Buy while you can get it. Superior, best in market, per barrel, $5 50; per half barrel, $3 00; per quarter barrel for half that and see what you can get at BRITISH CASH STORE, 216 Post St., S. F., Cal.

IF ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.
When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the last of his famous Consumption Remedies, the only child of his aged parents was given over by doctors. She died a year in this country, and sent home the remedy, which proved to be the salvation of her health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. Sufferers should write to Dr. H. James, 338 Pearl street, New York, for his pamphlet. The Dr. also cures Epilepsy or Fits. Sufferers should write to Dr. H. James, 338 Pearl street, New York, for a pamphlet. Address Dr. H. James, 338 Pearl street, New York, and a Dr., 1327 Race st., Philadelphia, stating this paper.

CATHOLIC KNIGHTS OF AMERICA.
The Order C. K. of A., has already over 250 branches, and about 15,000 members all over the United states. Any Catholic can join the death of a member. Men between the ages of 18 and 45 can join. Address Supreme Chancellor, Alexander Sullivan, and Grand Chancellor, Jas. A. Cooney, 1216 Market st., San Francisco.

HOUSE AND FURNISHING PAINTING, ETC.
We recommend our readers to patronize Thos. D. Driscoll, 1239 Market street, the cheapest and best place in the city for interior decorating in fresco and artistical paper hangings, and window shades, house painting, whitening and tinting, sanitary work. Give him a call and satisfy yourself.

NEW STORE, NEW GOODS.
GEORGE W. W. ROSHE & CO. have opened the elegant stores in the Colonnade Building, 1201 and 1203 Market street, as a first-class hat, cap and gentle furnishing goods store. Selling lower cost to pay, they are able to sell best class goods at far below the usual demand. Call and see them. Hats from a call at the Colonnade, 1201 and 1203 Market street, above Taylor, and satisfy yourself.

Advice to Mothers.
Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth, it relieves the little sufferer at once; it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; it is the best remedy for diarrhea, whether this arises from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

— Best Rooms in the City, with board and lodging, $5 per week. Rooms, $1 per week, $1 per day. Free, free hot and cold water in every room. Elegant Parlors, Reading Room, Billiard Room, Bar, Barber Shop, Bath Rooms, Elevator, etc. Cars and omnibuses to and from the house every five minutes. Cuisine and Service unsurpassed. Table supplied with the best the market affords. Rates, $2 per day. Special rates for families. Cor. Fremont and Natoma Streets.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PACIFIC Business College, 320 POST ST. SAN FRANCISCO
REOPENED AT SYNDICATE, MASON STREET, 24 entrance Post and Geary, with its former Faculty and courses of instruction.

HORSEMEN! ATTENTION!
I DESIRE TO CALL YOUR ATTENTION TO OUR Stock of Harness, Saddles, Whips, Blankets, which may be seen with Dad Carter or Cockerhead Stable with Mole. Takes guarantee 10 cents any horse with Quarter crack or Interfering.

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM—
IRELAND.

Poole said to be Politically Murdered.

Poole's trial for the murder of Kenny was conducted in the most flagrant and unfair manner, jury-packing being shamelessly resorted to. In Dublin the general belief is that Poole is innocent. The informer Lamie swore that Kenny's story was true in revenge for the refusalof a girl and had nothing to do with Irish politics. The Castle wants to hang some one and Poole has been selected as an example.

Cardinal Manning on Ireland.

Cardinal Manning, in the course of an interview in Paris, referred to Ireland, which he said had the double sympathies of the Pope and the English Government. He hoped, and believed, a period of double pacification in Ireland would set in. Some would yet meddle in the affairs of the Irish, beyond making them feel that she took a motherly interest in their welfare. Diplomatic influence went out of the question. Neither did the Cardinal believe that a diplomatic link would ever be established between England and Papal Rome.

Orange Revolution Punished.

At Hamilton, yesterday five Orangemen were sentenced by Judge Fitzgibbon, to a fortnight's imprisonment with the attendant hardships, in connection with the attack on Mr. Gladstone's carriage, when two men were shot. One of the prisoners, who was tried with a Mr. Thompson, who escaped, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, and the others to nine months' imprisonment.

Free Speech Prohibited in Ireland.

Free speech is prohibited on Sunday last. Four large prohibitive meetings in Ireland, protested against the coercive measures imposed by the government under which they believe they have a right to speak. The Irish Parliament is now dead, and the Celtic may well be satisfied, that Cowper and Cambyre and Ormond, Cork and Rosse of Cabra-quarry and Kilmantown, Dufferin and Clanbrassil, Leitrim and Leinster, may have many things to be proud of, but they are not to be permitted to make their voices complaints in public assembly, nor even the authorities in Dublin Castle, and to those meetings, represented by no one in power and police, the people must perforce submit.

Opposition to Gladstone's Budgetary Scheme.

CHELSEA, November 22.—The Chelsea's London radical organ, The Downshire Gazette, has issued a storm of indignation. The bishops and clergy of the west of Ireland, will be the annual in the strongest language the new effort to impose on the Irish people, which the Gladstone is paid to the jobbing details of Irish legislation, and the Irish Land Act, has met considerable a series of resolutions by meetings of the Irish Protestant for the lifting of the plot, which means transportation of thousands of people of the Kenny.—(Hear, Hear.) Other resolutions are being issued.

Coercion Bills Ahead in the Next Parliament.

All shades of dissent Ireland are rallying together, and at the next Parliament Parnell will enjoy alighy and perhaps ninety cats.

Government Prosecutions.

YOUGHAL (Cobh.) Nov. 26.—Patrick O'Donnell, the shoper of Cooey, the Phoenix Park murderer, who was recently released from the Judge Thomas of this county, on the 3rd of November, was re-arrested on the 24th, and he adjourned till eleven o'clock. O'Donnell, took out his bail, and he was then taken into custody on the next charge on O'Donnell, who was tried at the Dublin Commission in the April Session in 1882. He stated his name by making a cross.

Coercion Prosecutions Ahead.

DUNDAL, Nov. 26.—The authorities forbade the holding of a meeting of the Ladies Land League, which was to be addressed by Miss Parnell, Miss Ellis, Miss Fanny Parnell, Miss Dickson, and others. The meeting was to be held in the Orange Hall, Dundal, and the proceedings were to be opened by the Mayor, who is the son of a Protestant clergyman, and a Protestant himself. The Mayor, Mr. Ellis, and Miss Parnell, and Miss Dickson, and others, were prosecuted for the offence of holding a meeting in a place not licensed for the purpose.

Eviction Prevented.

Mr. Gladstone's Land Act, which was to prevent evictions, and which was to be the Magna Charta of the Irish peasantry, has not been in operation a month, and already it has been the occasion of the eviction of a tenant, and the prevention of the eviction of another. The tenant who was evicted, was a man who had taken a farm from which the tenant had been evicted, and he was evicted by the sheriff, and the Castle may well be satisfied, that the Land Act has not been the occasion of more than one eviction, and that it has been the occasion of the prevention of another.

Coercion Prosecutions Ahead.

Mr. Gladstone's Land Act, which was to prevent evictions, and which was to be the Magna Charta of the Irish peasantry, has not been in operation a month, and already it has been the occasion of the eviction of a tenant, and the prevention of the eviction of another. The tenant who was evicted, was a man who had taken a farm from which the tenant had been evicted, and he was evicted by the sheriff, and the Castle may well be satisfied, that the Land Act has not been the occasion of more than one eviction, and that it has been the occasion of the prevention of another.

Coercion Prosecutions Ahead.

Mr. Gladstone's Land Act, which was to prevent evictions, and which was to be the Magna Charta of the Irish peasantry, has not been in operation a month, and already it has been the occasion of the eviction of a tenant, and the prevention of the eviction of another. The tenant who was evicted, was a man who had taken a farm from which the tenant had been evicted, and he was evicted by the sheriff, and the Castle may well be satisfied, that the Land Act has not been the occasion of more than one eviction, and that it has been the occasion of the prevention of another.

OUR IRISH LETTER.

The Dastardly Orangeman of Londonderry —How the English Government Promotes Outrages on Irish Protestants.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR—

Dear Sir—When a few murders were committed in the south and west of Ireland by men united to undermine the foundations of civil society, and to make the Queen's Government, and the Queen's Government, and the members of Victoria's selected staff, on "Irish outrages" and the "state of Ireland" and their appeals for more coercion and crimes acts. Those guardians of "law and order" and that government under which they act, remain silent now while the Orangemen of Ulster, led on to murder and rebellion by her Majesty's titled heads, shoot down their unoffending fellowmen. The Lord Mayor of Dublin, Mr. Dawson, M. P., having consented to the Nationalists of Derry, to deliver a lecture in their city on the Franchise, the Nationalists after some delay succeeded in obtaining from the corporation the use of the Town Hall for the meeting. Notwithstanding the threats of the Orangemen, his Lordship arrived in Derry on the 1st of November and proceeded to the Town Hall accompanied by the prominent Nationalists of the city and the thousands who had assembled to hear and welcome him. On arriving at the Hall, they found the Orangemen were in possession of it, well-armed too. Protected by the armed forces of the government they fired on the Nationalists from the top of the building. The ammunition having refused, the Lord Orangeman the Nationalists marched to another part of the city and held their meeting where the Lord Mayor gave an able speech in defence of which he commenced the meeting. He left to well as the men on their podium. His speech was the most moderate, conciliatory were so been and brave, and we are helping in a state of war. Only a few days before the Lord Mayor, with the counties of Kerry and Cork armed with her majesty's armed forces, to preserve order.

ERIN OF BRAGH.

ROSARY INDULGENCES.

In addition to the Indulgences for saying the Rosary granted by the Sovereign Pontiff in his recent Encyclical, the following can be gained by those who may not be members of the Confraternity of the Rosary, but whose beads have been blessed by a Dominican Father, or by a Priest empowered to give the Dominican blessing:

1. A Plenary Indulgence on the feast of Easter and each Beat Mary to all the faithful who in the usual manner recite rosary for a month.

2. A plenary Indulgence once a year, on some day of their own choosing, to those who shall have repeated every day of the year at least the third part of the Rosary.—(Rev. Stil. A. Ap. 13, 1726. Pius Ix., May 12, 1851.)

3. Two years and ten times forty days of indulgence to all who with sonorbe hearts say one jaculy with others, whether publicly in a church, or privately in their own house, or elsewhere, a third part of the Rosary.—(Pius Ix., May 12, 1851.)

4. A Plenary Indulgence on the last Sunday in every month, on the condition of communion, on the usual conditions, to those who shall have recited the Rosary in a Dominican Church, or in the hands of a Dominican Father.—(Pius Ix., May 12, 1851.)

5. Indulgences are also granted for the Rosary, which is necessary to the repetition (Pius Ix., May 12, 1726); but for this purpose it is not necessary to be once a year, but it is sufficient that it be proofed to such decade (S. C. Ind., Jan. 26, 1841). These indulgences are also granted to the associated with the scapular, will grant all the Indulgences by merely saying the Rosary.

A GREAT CARDINAL

The accident which happened to Cardinal de Bonnechose at the St. Louis Tuesday, in Paris, has, after all, been the occasion of a great deal of death of Hyacinthe Gaston Marie Bole-nomad de Bonnechose, Primate of Normandy. On Sunday morning, before daybreak, his Eminence slipped upon the floor, and in his fall fractured the femur on the little iron bedstead which, for the last twelve years, he had always slept in. Blood in his stomach. Five days have been fatal to the venerable Prelate, who was in his 78th year, and who was well known in Rome as a Roman, and who was one of the chief leaders of the long rivalry between Catholic France and the Holy See. In his early life he was a friend of Lamennais, and was a pupil of Rosmini, and in 1830 became lecturer and judge at Rome; but in 1830 he returned to Paris, and was appointed to ecclesiastical vocation, and began the study of Oriental languages. For years he was employed in a very ordained priest at Rome. In 1848, he was appointed Archbishop of Rouen, and in the election to the Ministry of Commerce. He was created Cardinal in 1863, and was promoted to the Archiepiscopal of Rouen, by Pius IX., in the place of Cardinal Bonnechose, the title of San Clemente. His pastoral and was distinguished by his great and practical spirit of charity.

SITTING SULLY'S WIVES IN THE WAY.

The ceremony of receiving Sitting Bull into the Catholic Church, which it was stated would take place this week at Fort Yates, has been indefinitely postponed, and which of his wives he will let go. Sitting Bull's wives are very jealous of each other, and the instructions were being rapidly classified in the Indian language, and they will be divided the week, and he will probably retire to Louisiana.

MARRIED.

DALTON—JOHN.—In this city, November 15, by Rev. Father Gallagher, Mr. Thomas Dalton to Miss Mary Jane John, of this city.

MCCARTHY—MCCARTHY.—In Mission San Jose, November 14, by Rev. Father Gallagher, Mr. Dennis McCarthy to Miss Mary Ann McCarthy, both of Mission San Jose.

BRAMER—BURKETT.—In this city, November 21, by Rev. Father Connolly, Thomas H. Bramer to Sarah Burkett, both of this city.

LEWIS—BURKEY.—In Oakland, November 15, by Rev. Father Gallagher, Mr. Thomas Lewis to Miss Mary Burkey, both of Oakland.

DELLOR—SULLIVAN.—In this city, November 14, by Rev. Father Gallagher, Mr. Thomas Dellor of Yorkville, to Miss Bridget Sullivan of this city.

LEE—ADAMS.—In this city, November 21, by Rev. Father Gallagher, Harry W. Lees to Mary Alcoy, both of this city.

DIED.

McCARTHY.—In Oakland, November 16, Kate, beloved wife of James L. McCarthy, a native of Lowlan, Clonbin county, Ps., aged 32 years.

BRADLEY.—In Oakland, November 16, George Bartell, a native of England, aged 30 years.

CORBETT.—In this city, November 21, Mary Corbett, a native of County Sligo, Ireland.

CONNOR.—In this city, November 19, Annie Connolan, beloved sister of Mrs. Mary Ann Connolan, a native of Rue of San Francisco, aged 18 years and 8 months.

QUILLAN.—In this city, November 20, Hannah, beloved wife of Anthony Quill, Rev. Fr. Curtis and Rev. J. Quinn, of Ireland, aged 50 years and 6 months.

BRIGGS.—In this city, November 21, William, son of beloved husband of Catherine Briggs, a native of the city of Boston, aged 40 years and 11 months.

DONOVAN.—In this city, November 18, Gertrude R., beloved wife of R. J. Donovan, a native of the city of Kilmacy, Ireland, aged 32 years and 11 months.

To Remuneration.—Economy in the purchase of Groceries, and in the preparation of the meals of the longer, and this important feature can be fully realized by the use of Dunham's Cocoaine. Sold by Grocers in the lots of Dunham's Cocoaine, Ind. Wafers, Dunham's Cocoaine, prepared in plain flavors in this paper every week, and those who have taken the trouble to compare them with those of other grocers, tell us that Dunham's Cocoaine is the best in the market.

Daily Health Count, pride readily in every respect, and is equally comfortable in any position assumed by wearer, and will give the wearer a neat perfect fit, and is warranted to neither expose nor injure the body. Every pair of Dr. Jarvis' Patent Corset Jeans.

— Messrs. Collins and Dunn, Lawyers, 535 Kearny St., are prepared to attend to all business appertaining to probate, bankruptcy and conveyancing. Prompt attention and moderate charges.

— Everybody should go to the Alpenrose fresh stock. It is undoubtedly the cheapest and best place in the city for a good meal. Fresh Vegetables and Fruits served daily. Foreign stamps, stamp albums, scrap pictures, scrap books, Christmas and New Year cards, great variety. Handsome Rose, 215 Dupont street.

— Sangar and Sarvis for the Gold Medal Sewing Machine, with the attachments, are the best and most simple machine in the market. Prices reduced to suit the times. 222 Sutter street.

— Great reduction in all kinds of sugar at Sherman & Co., 121 Washington st.

— The great Mexican remedy, Damiana Bitters.

A GALAXY OF GOSPELLERS IN GILROY

An Editorial Brief composed specially to commemorate Luther's Birthday, and adapted to the air of "Villikins and his Dinah."

The fact is well known to each girl and boy,
That a lovely time Santa Clara is call ed Gilroy,
He people are good, and the soil is pro-lific,
And a loaded thirty acres of fruit on San Jose on the line of that railroad called—the South-ern Pa-cific!

CHORUS.

Piano. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lal-lay,
Forte. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-lo-ral-lay-looral-lay,
Fortissimo. Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Sing three big preachers on Luther's birthday!

Twas in this town—as all will remember,
Three preachers they met on the 10th of November,
And then to each other these preachers did say:
Come, brethren, let our devil in unity once in our lives by a lively racquet on—Martin Luther's birthday.

CHORUS.

Piano. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lal-lay,
Forte. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Fortissimo. Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Sing three times great preachers on Luther's birthday!

So into the church these preachers they went,
Upon a great splurge they were very intent;
There was Mather and Morton and a couple of Kenny
Who had the anti-Pepery jubilee very bad, and who had spouted about—Martin Luther before!

CHORUS.

Piano. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lal-lay,
Forte. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Fortissimo. Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Thin sang these three preachers on Luther's birthday!

When the Tomer had put the Pope's head in a
He was followed by one who talked like a fish,
After which they adjourned out into a grove,
And then came to an inglorious conclusion what was intended to be a major scrumptious and Pic-nic, ending—Sweet Love!

CHORUS.

Piano. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lal-lay,
Forte. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Fortissimo. Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Thin sang those three preachers on Luther's birthday!

So all ye good swaddlers who don't like the Pope,
Just think of Gilroy and gather fresh hope;
There's one power only the Church can destroy,
And that's the three preachers who met in Gilroy!

CHORUS.

Piano. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lal-lay,
Forte. ..... Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Fortissimo. Ri-tooral-lay-looral-lay-looral-lay,
Thin sang those three preachers on Luther's birthday!

REFORMING BIGOTS.

A Catholic View of How it Can be Done.

The Irish Catholics of New York resented with an unequivocal emphasis the machinations of the bigots who slaughtered Purcell in the Democratic State Convention, by nominating his competitor, Maynard, who was defeated in the election, Tuesday, by almost as large a majority as the balance of the ticket is elected. Maynard was nominated by 10,000 Democratic voters in New York City alone. He is the only one on the ticket who is defeated. The result is just as it should be. The action of the Irish-Catholics of New York gives a lesson on globe that even the blind may see. The loss of the Legislature to the Democrats may be due to the same cause, as the Liberty of Conscience bill was made an issue—and many of the Democrats in the last Legislature were utterly deaf to all appeals of justice toward their Catholic fellow-citizens. It will not, we think, be same fellow-citizens. It will not, we think, be same fellow-citizens. It will not, we think, be same

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

AVE MARIA.

Ave Maria! gentle Mother of the Blessed One!
Ave! Ave! Ave! Ave! Ave! Ave! Ave!
Ave! Ave! Ave! Ave! Ave! Ave! Ave!
Ave Maria! Mother so sweet,
Oh! hear my prayer, and make me thy child.

M. L.

THE NAMES OF OUR LADY.

[BY ADELAIDE A. PROCTER.

Through the wide world thy children raise
Their prayer, and call you one
Calm are the nights and bright the days
Of those who trust in thee.

Around thy starry robes are wreathed
Each name we love to hear,
Which is the dearer to my heart,
And the more full of fear?

Star of the Sea! we hand and prayer
Are ever, when we think of you
Star of the Sea! the brave, troubled,
Will find a port in you.

Help of the Christians! in our need
We call on thee, and pray
That thou wilt ever be our friend,
We trust in that dear name.

Our Lady of the Rosary!
What sweeter can we pray
Than that we may be ever in your place
Our complaint at thy feet?

Bright Queen of Heaven! when we are sad,
Thy name is our solace;
It tells us, though on earth we toil,
We have a home and refuge.

Our Lady of Mount Carmel! then
Sometimes thy name is known,
With us at the fading of day,
To live and die thine own.

Our Lady under Mount Vallombre!
We are our Faith opposed,
And, if we pray to be our guide,
We have the same the best.

Refuge of Sinners; many a soul,
Bent by its sins, and sad,
Has turned through this name of thine
Pardon and peace to find.

Health of the Sick; when anxious hearts
Watch by the bed of pain,
Oh, how they sigh for thy name,
Consoled and comforted!

Mother of Sorrows! among a heart
Half broken by death,
Which of thy seven sorrows the Cross,
And bound a Mother then.

Queen of all Saints; the Church appeals
To you for lives dead to them;
She knows they will in patient pain
A bright crown wear.

Pale Queen of Purity; thy pure hand,
The Mother of the Word,
Love the dear little child; they bear
Most that it is thine own.

Thou Queen of Martyrs! we are which
From your, or pain, or woes
Which of thy saints and angels that placed
Thy heart, and call thee so.

Mary; the dearest name of all,
The first we lisped in prayer,
The first low word that Jesus lips
Lold on his Mother's lips!

Mary; the name that Gabriel spoke,
The name that he announced
Mary; the name that through high Heaven
The angels echoed round.

Mary; our comfort and our hope,
O may that word be given
To be the last we breathe,
The first we breathe in Heaven!

Literary Miscellany.

The Drum-Major of Ballynenagh.

BY THOMAS P. GILL, IN THE OUTPOST.

CHAPTER I.

How he came to be called the Drum Major will remain a mystery. It was difficult enough to imagine that he ever was a little girl, and subsequently, when I was down there the investigation; but no reasonable doubt ever served to clear the thing up to my satisfaction. He was an amazing big lump of bone, for the mild-eyed Christian brother who taught the infant school told me he was only the Drum Major before the people of Inside Bogs dreamed of the beside the mentioned. For one thing he had no drum or was in the police,—I had jumped at this conclusion, and I had to be set right on the spot in my mind of the Royal Irish Constabulary with a military band—for I had heard from Mrs. Fitten that before her husband was dismissed the uniform of the constable was the thing to delight in carrying his shoulder to the cricket-field on Sunday morning, and the admiring cries of "the Major" to the stepping young peasants, who used to make a circle round him and beg him to stop with a military air on a sort of pedestals for his title. There may have been several men in the neighborhood of Inside Bogs, the Irish cavalry, with the aforesaid band and the order of a drum, and had a boy who was called the Drum-Major, just as they called him the Drum-Major, just as they called him the Drum-Major, but not for long before. But Father Matt will not speak to him, and the suggestion is a matter of questionable propriety.

His surname was Johnny Fitten. As he was not old enough to be confirmed he had not yet added the middle surname to his style and title. The gold dust of just his summers gleamed bright upon his moy head, and his limbs sprang up like sapling in everywhere. No parish had a right to hold up its head among its fellows that could not supply its hard and heavily blue-eyed boy of all its neighboring land Ammonsbeach, Ballymenagh in Donegal band; Inside Bogs had its own, which had served for practice enough, and in the end, then, Father Matt presiding and Professor Flaherty, after giving up the idea of the bands of Ballymenagh and Attymass, imparting the instruction.

A time came when the bands had another duty besides attending monster meetings—the duty of attending mission and revivals. This was after Mr. Forster's coup d'état of October, 1881. The last mass of the rural clergymen was in jail or "suspects." The Orange Emergency Committee—a body of Protestant clergymen, organized by the Orange lords to meet the situation when the people were so hungry and so bare-hulled, and would boycott any bailiff who took land from which a tenant had been unjustly evicted, or, putting forth desperate efforts to make the most o the opportunity. The events of this period were the "Land Leaguers" for stock-raiding and evicting. A Leaguer against whom his landlord had obtained a decree for a rack-rent, might be forc down on his knees before the Sacrament of the sediment of the British army and the Royal Irish constabulary with fixed bayonets driving of all his stock into the nearest market town. His neighbor on the next farm might be surprised a little subsequently by the sheriff with his emergency bailiffs and his escort and by a process of law, to be put in possession of his homestead there and then. The object of these strategic attacks was to avoid two things: the people might illy had their scots posted in the daylight, and the money before he arrived on the scene of action. If it were to be a case of "Land Leaguers" and demonstration; they rang the chapel bell, sounded horns on the hills, got the whole town-land or parish together, and, if possible, brought out a band. This had the effect of inspiring the tenants about to be evicted and impressing the evictors with the advisability of agreeing to the people's terms. Or the captured scots might be given, some playing in distance, and the Emergency men found it hard to find a market for their sources. But the bands were a difficulty. It was not easy to make a cornet or a drum in these parts of the country. Instruments would be in demand, probably at a distance; instrumental music was a trade, and a trade is work; moreover, the police would find pleasure in the Fisherman's Hall, Ballymenagh, whenever it was feasible.

One day Inside Bogs was startled by the usual alarm. The "sojers" had arrived to carry out evictions. The chapel bell was rung, the people were called together, but no band was possible. The instruments had been sent to town the day before to be cleaned and repaired. Father Matt was in despair. The people were assembled and waiting in the parish were being turned out of house and home.

Suddenly, in the midst of their perplexity, Father Matt and the assembled might of Inside Bogs were astonished to hear a drum mounted to be the tootle of fifes and the rat-a-tat-tat of drums. A solid little phalanx of bare-footed urchins, piping the lively air of "Garryowen" on the whistles and beating the drum with a vigorous rat-a-tat on the corner of the school-house, and marching at a brisk pace up to the broken, where the crowd stood, Johnny Fitten, the Drum Major, at their head.

"Hurrah!" cried Father Matt; "this beats your brass bandabloney. The priest, it will be perceived, understood Johnny's tactics.

A ringing cheer rent the air. A way was made for Johnny and his little band. They bore down straight down on the British Army and the bailiffs about to be taken possession of, and the parish of Inside Bogs followed them, cheering and delighted.

Then began the "Emergency Band." The whistles could be bought for a penny a piece. The Drum-Major had six-pence, which Father Matt had given him the morning he went to the "station" with him, when Andy, the chapel clerk, was sick. He invested in half a dozen instruments. It was a bagatelle for half a dozen Irish young men with ears for music to master "Garryowen," which is a simple though effective tune. The remainder of the evening, who could produce inverted gallons and tin-cans were called upon to do so, and they did. A few rehearsals under the Drum-Major's baton, made them proficients.

When the day was over, and a satisfactory settlement come to with the landlord at the tenants terms, Father Matt said

To day this noble band of Drum Major Johnny Fitten has become a force in national affairs, and we must give him a place one ready made. Let us call it the "Emergency Band!" It came to our aid in an emergency; it helped us to defeat the Orange Emergency crew, and it is always ready for an emergency, for its members are patriots who are not yet liable to be summoned from their national studies to undertake the duty of carrying their bread: and, above all, its members are carry their instruments in their pockets, which will insure their being always at hand. This I hail as the band of the present crisis; and Drum-Major Johnny Fitten, deserves, I think, an enthusiastic vote of thanks from Ireland for this historic day."

A vote of thanks was passed by the Inside Bogs branch of the Irish National Land League with acclamation.

Next week Father Matt was in Dublin consulting the central executive on a point of Land League discipline. The case was Dr'Olier's street he spotted a couple of demon fiddle and piccolos for sale at a great bargain. "The very thing for the Emergency Band," cried Father Matt, and he bought the fiddle and piccolos. The number of urchins in the band was increased. Professor Fisherman told off to give them some lessons. In a little time the music of the Emergency Band was perfected, so that it was able to make wherever it went was not to despised, even though the priest's threadbare purse did not permit him to indulge in drums, and the inverted tin-cans still had to do duty instead.

CHAPTER II.

It was about eight months before the establishment of Drum Major Fitten's Emergency Band.

The widow Fitten and her eldest son stood together in the little wooden shanty that had served them the past three months for a home. It was a "Land League hut," one of those sent down by the popular organization to the Attymass estate evicted, and had no place to lay its head. The Attymass estate was so unfortunate as to be built so as to be capable of being transported, the peasant's notion call could be, but no more. The widow Fitten's hut was neat, if not very respective of luxury. Her little bush a peth, a bit sky, I fancy, must have been our dear, delightful, Tommy Moore, or that level child of the Pays Latin, Mrs. Hemans.

But about that "Emergency Band."

It was the era of the Land League. Among other symptoms of that great revolt in Ireland was the universal uniting of the awakened national spirit to express itself in some fashion or other, and in some in everywhere. No parish had a right to hold up its head among its fellows that could not supply its hard and heavily blue-eyed banner to all its neighboring land Ammonsbeach, Ballymenagh in Donegal band; Inside Bogs had its own, which had served for practice enough, and in the end, then, Father Matt presiding and Professor Flaherty, after giving up the idea of the bands of Ballymenagh and Attymass, imparting the instruction.

A time came when the bands had another duty besides attending monster meetings—the duty of attending mission and revivals. This was after Mr. Forster's coup d'état of October, 1881. The last mass of the rural clergymen was in jail or "suspects." The Orange Emergency Committee—a body of Protestant clergymen, organized by the Orange lords to meet the situation when the people were so hungry and so bare-hulled, and would boycott any bailiff who took land from which a tenant had been unjustly evicted, or, putting forth desperate efforts to make the most o the opportunity. The events of this period were the "Land Leaguers" for stock-raiding and evicting. A Leaguer against whom his landlord had obtained a decree for a rack-rent, might be forc down on his knees before the Sacrament of the sediment of the British army and the Royal Irish constabulary with fixed bayonets driving of all his stock into the nearest market town. His neighbor on the next farm might be surprised a little subsequently by the sheriff with his emergency bailiffs and his escort and by a process of law, to be put in possession of his homestead there and then. The object of these strategic attacks was to avoid two things: the people might illy had their scots posted in the daylight, and the money before he arrived on the scene of action. If it were to be a case of "Land Leaguers" and demonstration; they rang the chapel bell, sounded horns on the hills, got the whole town-land or parish together, and, if possible, brought out a band. This had the effect of inspiring the tenants about to be evicted and impressing the evictors with the advisability of agreeing to the people's terms. Or the captured scots might be given, some playing in distance, and the Emergency men found it hard to find a market for their sources. But the bands were a difficulty. It was not easy to make a cornet or a drum in these parts of the country. Instruments would be in demand, probably at a distance; instrumental music was a trade, and a trade is work; moreover, the police would find pleasure in the Fisherman's Hall, Ballymenagh, whenever it was feasible.

One day Inside Bogs was startled by the usual alarm. The "sojers" had arrived to carry out evictions. The chapel bell was rung, the people were called together, but no band was possible. The instruments had been sent to town the day before to be cleaned and repaired. Father Matt was in despair. The people were assembled and waiting in the parish were being turned out of house and home.

Suddenly, in the midst of their perplexity, Father Matt and the assembled might of Inside Bogs were astonished to hear a drum mounted to be the tootle of fifes and the rat-a-tat-tat of drums. A solid little phalanx of bare-footed urchins, piping the lively air of "Garryowen" on the whistles and beating the drum with a vigorous rat-a-tat on the corner of the school-house, and marching at a brisk pace up to the broken, where the crowd stood, Johnny Fitten, the Drum Major, at their head.

"Hurrah!" cried Father Matt; "this beats your brass bandabloney. The priest, it will be perceived, understood Johnny's tactics.

A ringing cheer rent the air. A way was made for Johnny and his little band. They bore down straight down on the British Army and the bailiffs about to be taken possession of, and the parish of Inside Bogs followed them, cheering and delighted.

Then began the "Emergency Band." The whistles could be bought for a penny a piece. The Drum-Major had six-pence, which Father Matt had given him the morning he went to the "station" with him, when Andy, the chapel clerk, was sick. He invested in half a dozen instruments. It was a bagatelle for half a dozen Irish young men with ears for music to master "Garryowen," which is a simple though effective tune. The remainder of the evening, who could produce inverted gallons and tin-cans were called upon to do so, and they did. A few rehearsals under the Drum-Major's baton, made them proficients.

When the day was over, and a satisfactory settlement come to with the landlord at the tenants terms, Father Matt said

To day this noble band of Drum Major Johnny Fitten has become a force in national affairs, and we must give him a place one ready made. Let us call it the "Emergency Band!" It came to our aid in an emergency; it helped us to defeat the Orange Emergency crew, and it is always ready for an emergency, for its members are patriots who are not yet liable to be summoned from their national studies to undertake the duty of carrying their bread: and, above all, its members are carry their instruments in their pockets, which will insure their being always at hand. This I hail as

THE PRIEST'S REVENGE.

An Episode of the French Revolution.

One day, in the year 1793, the inhabitants of Fergese and the surrounding hamlets were assembled together to celebrate the patron feast-day of the Church. Father Aurain was at the altar; the holy words of consecration were just pronounced; the God of heaven was now present in that rustic temple. The pious crowd was engaged in silent prayer, when suddenly the dreaded sound of the tocsin resounded through the spring. Instantly all the men in the church sprang to their feet; the women and children prostrated themselves; the altar alone showed no emotion. "My friends," he said, "the Marseillaise begins, and I must obey. Pray, my brethren.

Then, bending over the altar, he humbly struck his breast, and consumed the consecrated elements. Meanwhile the tocsin outside increased; some of the peasants had hastily left the church, when a child rushed in crying, "O mon père! save the priest. The soldiers have entered the village, and French is calling close after me." The priest took off his chasuble, stole and alb. The peasants, meanwhile, had left the church; the priest, seeing them, quickly descended the altar steps, and passed through the sacristy. In the churchyard he met two other soldiers, who attempted to seize him; but he dexterously dodged their sabres and scaling the low wall of the cemetery, he reached the open country, the priest followed. As he was strong and active, he leapt over fences and embankments with great facility, and he followed and were rapidly gaining upon him, when he found himself in the precipitous banks of a river, without pausing to consider, he plunged into the rapid stream, and, by a few vigorous strokes, he reached the opposite bank, he looked back, and saw one of the two soldiers rushing into the water after him.

Continuing his flight, the priest ascended a hill that rose before him; he increased his speed, and never paused until he had reached the summit, when he halted for sight and reach of those who sought his life; he was proud of, as his mother called him, a large proportion of gold and silver, and he heard the same piercing cry. Hastily he descended one of the soldiers struggling in the water, and on the bank the other stood rise no more. The priest, who had ever been a kind benefactor of the poor, and who had ever been a kind benefactor of the poor, and who had ever been a kind benefactor of the poor, and

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1883.

THE MONITOR:

Hittell's Unholy Attack on the Catholic Church.

By Peter's Cross—Rome by John Hittell. Price 50 cents. Geneva: H. Oswald, Libraire de l'Université, Corraterie, 12. 1883.

FIRST ARTICLE.

The antecedents of any man who assails the Catholic Church should be known to Catholics in order that they may rightly understand the peculiar opinions of insignificant individuals who think they can lift themselves into a niche in the temple of fame by merely throwing mud-balls—made by somebody else—at the Catholic Church. Hence it is only right that the readers of the Monitor should know some insight into the anti-Catholic prejudices which have vitiated all Mr. Hittell's past writings in order that they may appreciate the source of his present malicious pamphlet properly.

Mr. Hittell is the author of a book called the Resources of California, and is strong in his prejudice against Catholics in general and Irish Catholics in particular, that he was impelled to let them cusp out even in a work treating on the exhaustless resources, commerce, and industry of this State. Here are a couple of specimens of bigotry and spleen exhibited at random from the pages of the work we have quoted:

"If St. Sebastian, or St. Catherine, or St. Agnes, or St. Anthony of Padua, or any other Saint, if they were from Irish family, and had been canonized by the Church, would they be any the worse for it? Would not these illustrious Saints be more likely to be canonized for the fact? Would not the Catholic Church, but rather to the Saints? Would not the Church, but rather to the Saints? Would not the Church, but rather to the Saints? Would not the

"The Wonder Flower and Positive Storer." Dr. Hoofer's Heart Tonic, it now in the 7th year of its success, and has proved to be the best remedy for Nervous Prostration, Dyspepsia, Sleeplessness, Palpitation, Pain in the Side and Back, Fluttering and Smothering Spells, Dizziness of the mind, Dry Throat, Cough, Shortness of the breath, Fever and Ague, Chills, Fevers, Ague in the face, Hot flashes, Sudden Flushes of heat, Cold feet and hands, Weakness of the limbs, Sleeplessness, Nervous Debility, and Irregularities of the Heart. Sold by all druggists, $1.

Dr. Hoofer's Liver Pills are the best for Constipation, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Loss of Appetite, Costiveness, Cold Feet, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, Back and Limbs, Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Night Sweats, Cold Sweats, Nervous Irritability, Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Ague in the Face, Jaundice, Flatulence, Colic, Palpitation of the Heart, Pimples on the Face, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Scurvy, Erysipelas, Piles, Costiveness, Coldness of the Extremities, Worms, Gravel, Dropsy, Rush of Blood to the Head, Nervous Headache, Female Weakness, Irregularities, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Night Sweats, Nervous Irritability, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Sleeplessness, Depression of Spirits, Impotency, Seminal Emissions, Spermatorrhœa, Impotency, Syphilis, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, Loss of Power in Either Sex, Wakefulness, Dullness, Loss of Ambition, Lack of Confidence, Nervousness, Easily Startled, Timidness, Trembling, Dreams, Nightmare, All Nervous Diseases, Blotches, Emissions, Spermatorrhœa, Impotency, Syphilis, Gravel, Diabetes, Dim Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to Insanity or Consumption. Full particulars in our pamphlet, which we desire to send free by mail to every sufferer. The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package, or six packages for $5, and will be sent free by mail on receipt of the money, by addressing THE HOOFER MEDICINE CO., No. 1 Kearny St., San Francisco, Cal. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Dr. Hoofer's Catarrh Snuff, a sure cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Ulcerated Nose, Ulcerated Throat, Sore Eyes, Ulcerated Ears, Deafness, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption, Sleeplessness, Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Irritability, Nervous Debility, Dullness, Loss of Ambition, Lack of Confidence, Nervousness, Easily Startled, Timidness, Trembling, Dreams, Nightmare, All Nervous Diseases, Blotches, Emissions, Spermatorrhœa, Impotency, Syphilis, Gravel, Diabetes, Dim Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to Insanity or Consumption. Full particulars in our pamphlet, which we desire to send free by mail to every sufferer. The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package, or six packages for $5, and will be sent free by mail on receipt of the money, by addressing THE HOOFER MEDICINE CO., No. 1 Kearny St., San Francisco, Cal. Sold by druggists everywhere.

THE DARKER THE ROOM

The More Brilliant the Effect.

In order to obtain the full beauty of those Luminous Goods, place the article in a strong light for an hour, when they assume a violet tint which lasts only for a short time, changing into a permanent white glow. After that, the ordinary light of a room is sufficient to keep up the luminous effect which is imperishable.

A. WALDTEUFEL,

SAN JOSE, CAL.

Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast.

A LUMINOUS WONDER.

To say that the present is an age of wonder, light through the aid of scientific research and inventive skill. Every day, almost, produces some new phenomenon which arrests the flight of imagination and pleases it to the hard ground of substantial facts.

Among the decorations of modern times which has and is likely to excite admiration and surprise, is what is known as "Canepin's Chemical Compound," from which are made luminous articles of beautiful designs. Crosses, crucifixes and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are produced from this marvelous compound to shine forth like stars of hope in the darkness of despair. Advertisements of these articles have repeatedly appeared in the MONITOR and other journals, and from all parts of the United States and Canada the demand has been greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherever in India devotion and affect an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the MONITOR, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the business activities, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkably low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES!
NIGHT CROSSES!
NIGHT STATUES!
—VISIBLE—
—IN THE—
DARKEST ROOM!
When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.
THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,
—HAD A—
LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX!
—AND SAID—
"It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

From the New York Correspondence of the Dublin Freeman's Journal

Through the courtesy of Messrs. J. E. SEAVER & CO., proprietors of St. Cecilia's Chapel, I have been enabled to witness a novel and very beautiful exhibition of the mysteries of the rosary. I was led into a very quaint chapel with a portrait-like of one of the saints on each side, and the stations, where, only a few minutes before, I had seen the chapel in its ordinary aspect, but now, on entering, I found that instead of the usual gas-jets there were suspended from the roof of the chapel a number of crosses, crucifixes, and other devotional objects, which, when the lights were extinguished, shone with a brilliancy and a variety of colors that were greater than the facilities to supply could meet. This is not surprising, since the beauty of the articles renders them attractive objects wherever in India devotion and affect an adornment to the apartment in which they are placed.

The publishers of the MONITOR, having experimented with a set of the designs, are capable of judging of the merit of the articles from their personal experience. So satisfactory were the results, and so pleased were they with the appearance of the designs, that they have made arrangements with the manufacturers of the business activities, by which they have obtained the sole control of all manufactured, and will hereafter be supplied only through their Agent. The articles are at present ready for sale and will be supplied, carefully boxed, at remarkable low prices, by A. WALDTEUFEL, Sole Agent for the Pacific Coast, San Jose, Cal.

THE FAMOUS DUPLEX GALVANIC BELT

BEST IN THE WORLD.

THE HIGHEST PREMIUM AT THE MECHANICS' Institute. The greatest curative agents in existence. The Positive Electric Co., Sole Proprietors, 638 Market street, San Francisco.

RUPTURE

Positively Cured.

PACIFIC ELECTRIC PAD TRUSS.

A NEW INVENTION. THE BEST RETAINER IN America. Pamphlet free. Pacific Electric Co., Sole Proprietors, 638 Market street, San Francisco.

Found at Last!

Gentlemen's Fine Dress Shirts made to order, $1 50 and upward. Best Fitting Shirt in the world. Call and see samples. 105 Sutter street, San Francisco.

LA GRANDE LAUNDRY,

PRINCIPAL OFFICE,

648 MARKET STREET.

1152 Market and 913 Dupont Sts.

LAUNDRY, 16th St., bet. Folsom and Howard, A. P. Coll.

BONDS.

WITH

FIVE DOLLARS

NOW PAID ONCE A WEEK

IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN - VIENNA CITY

GOVERNMENT BOND,

which bonds are issued and secured by the Government of Austria.

FOUR TIMES ANNUALLY,

Until each and every bond is redeemed with a larger or smaller premium, as the case may be, every bond must draw a premium, and in no other way.

THE THREE HIGHEST PREMIUMS AMOUNT TO

204,000 FLORINS,
102,000 FLORINS,
30,000 FLORINS,

and bonds not drawing one of the above Premiums must be redeemed at their full value, viz:

130 FLORINS.

The next Redemption takes place on the 2nd of January, 1884.

And every bond bought of us on or before the 2nd of January is entitled to the whole premium that may be drawn thereon on that date.

One or more bonds sent to Suscriber Letters, inclosing $5, will secure one of those bonds for the next drawing.

For orders, circulars, or any other information, address,

INTERNATIONAL BANKING CO.,

(360 Fulton St., cor. EVAN, New York City.

N. B.—The above Government Bonds may not be in our power after the drawing of the Government Bonds with any of the bonds of the United States.

P. S.—In writing to us, please state you saw this in THE PACIFIC MONITOR.

THE BANK OF IRELAND

THE BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

S. E. cor. of California and Sansome Sts.

CURRENT DRAFTS, IN SUMS OF FROM £1 UP, payable on the chief office of this Bank in Dublin, and on its Branches in the following places:

Athlone, Carlow, Limerick, Queenstown, Belfast, Cork, Londonderry, Sligo, Bandon, Clonmel, Lisburn, Tralee, Belmullet, Dublin, Longford, Tuam, Birr, Dungarvan, Lucan, Waterford, Boyle, Ennis, Lurgan, Westport, Brunswick, Enniskillen, Mallow, Wexford, Cashel, Galway, Newry, Wicklow, Castlebar, Gorey, Portadown, Youghal, Castle Bar, Kilkenny, Portlaoise.

FRED JANTZEN

(Successor to A. LEVENSOHN.)

No. 17 Market St., San Francisco.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

CROCKERY, FRENCH-CHINA, GLASS IN SETS OR LOTS.

Fancy Goods & Plated Ware, LAMPS, Chandeliers and Brackets

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Coal Oil Stove, and a full line of other Furniture.

The leading of Crockery, Cutlery and Plated Ware Weddings, Parties, Jubilees, etc.

BRANCHES:

103 Fillmore St. 9th Emery St.
1026 Market St. Washington
2224 and 2226 Sacramento St., near Washington.

LOWEST RATES

BEST TEACHERS. GOBLE'S BUSINESS COLLEGE OPEN EVENINGS.

Finest Equipments.

REV. C. GOBLE, President.

N. E. cor. Clay and Kearny sts. SAN FRANCISCO.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

THE TWO-LOADING GUNS, WALKER, the perfect pack gun, with proof of the success and description of pointers and new target views, for 10c. O. G. Pond Co., Meriden, Ct. Gordon Blue Gun Works, illustrated, SELF DRESS PATTERNS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. E. DAVIS

PRACTICAL

BOOT AND SHOE MAKER.

1416 Market Street,

Opp. Lightner and Hirsch, San Francisco.

"I sell Boots and Shoes of my Own Make Only."

Comfortably to heal the Boot quality, and to suit any taste. Ladies' Fine Shoes made to order.

REPAIRING NEATLY DONE AT SHORT NOTICE.

SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPREME COURT CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

JULIUS POHEIM, Plaintiff, vs. JULIUS POHEIM, Defendant.

Action brought in the City and County of San Francisco, in the Office of the Clerk of the City and County of San Francisco, in the Office of the Clerk of said County.

The People of the State of California, Greeting: To the above named Defendant: You are hereby required to appear before the Superior Court of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, to answer the complaint filed in said County of San Francisco, and to abide by the decree of said Court, or the same will be taken against you by default. Given under my hand and seal of said Court, this 19th day of December, A. D. 1883.

WILLIAM T. SHERIDAN, Clerk.
By J. D. Sullivan, Deputy Clerk.

Chas. P. Gray, Attorney for Plaintiff.

THE BANK OF IRELAND

THE BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

S. E. cor. of California and Sansome Sts.

CURRENT DRAFTS, IN SUMS OF FROM £1 UP, payable on the chief office of this Bank in Dublin, and on its Branches in the following places:

Athlone, Carlow, Limerick, Queenstown, Belfast, Cork, Londonderry, Sligo, Bandon, Clonmel, Lisburn, Tralee, Belmullet, Dublin, Longford, Tuam, Birr, Dungarvan, Lucan, Waterford, Boyle, Ennis, Lurgan, Westport, Brunswick, Enniskillen, Mallow, Wexford, Cashel, Galway, Newry, Wicklow, Castlebar, Gorey, Portadown, Youghal, Castle Bar, Kilkenny, Portlaoise.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.

SANTA CLARA . . . . CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, offers to the patronage of parents, for young ladies, at a trifling expense, a course of intellectual education, adapted in particular that should commend it to the favorable notice of parents, to the judicious and intelligent public.

While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives a degree of attention, which is necessary to students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric, as publicly examined and approved in the classroom.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.

(Payable half-yearly in advance)

Board, Tuition and Washing $200 00
Physician's Fee 10 00
Use of Piano and Melodeon 50 00
Bedroom at College 50 00

Music and Drawing form extra charges.

For further particulars address

BRO. BETTELIN, President.

1a3

ST. GERTRUDE'S ACADEMY,

RIO VISTA, SOLANO CO., CAL.

THIS ACADEMY, FOR YOUNG LADIES, UNDER the direction of the Sisters of Mercy, is beautifully situated in the Town of Rio Vista, in the pleasant and healthy town of Rio Vista. The building is commodious, well furnished throughout, and well furnished with all the modern improvements. The course of study embraces the branches that are usually taught in the primary grades as well as those of a commercial character, including a thorough knowledge of all ornamental work. The health, comfort and happiness of the pupils are the first care of the Sisters, and we flatter ourselves that our Academy has been favored with a share of patronage which we shall ever endeavor to merit.

TERMS PER SESSION, Payable in Advance.

BOARDING PUPILS.

Board and Tuition $115 00
Washing 15 00
Use of Bed and Bedding 15 00
Use of Piano 10 00
Use of Bath 5 00
Use of Bed Linen 5 00
Use of Table Linen 5 00
Use of Table Ware 5 00
Use of Toilet Ware 5 00
Use of Lamp, Fuel, Attendance 10 00
Use of Bedroom 10 00
Use of Parlor 10 00
Use of Chapel 10 00
Use of Library

THE WEEK'S NEWS
—FROM—
IRELAND.

Oscar Wilde as a Nationalist.

It is reported that Oscar Wilde is going to try politics. He will join the Irish party, aspiring to be a seat as a Parnellite, and will contribute an occasional sonnet to the St. Stephen's Club.

Three Years Fire in Tipperary.

A fire broke out at three o'clock on Saturday morning in the floor and wool establishment of Mr. Hogan, auctioneer, Tipperary. The military from Cahir and the town constabulary in force were promptly procured, and were working actively, but were ineffectual in saving the premises of Mr. Hogan. With the assistance of the brewgroupie they succeeded, however, in keeping of the flames from Mr. Allen's premises, and also from a neighboring adjoining house, where firearms and gunpowder was stored. The military remained on the premises all Sunday morning, when, after the contents of the house had been put out the books of the establishment, also considerable sum of money, and a quantity of hose, too, came, &c. The fire burst down the front wall of the establishment, and reduced the house to a heap of smouldering ashes. It was not completely extinguished until six o'clock. The town commissioner on Monday evening passed a resolution of thanks to Constable Hurley for the courageous part he took in extinguishing the flames. They also resolved to form a local volunteer fire brigade to protect the adjoining premises in Ballimaan on Sunday, at a cost of several hundred pounds, and it was the opinion of the members, and much sympathy felt for Mr. Hogan.

Dangerous Illness of a Religious.

October 31st, in the Presentation Convent, Galway, Sister Ignatius, the sister of Mr. Mary Teresa, daughter of Mr. Joseph Bryan, Dublin, sister of Mr. Joseph Bryan, Dublin, aged 19, 3rd of religious profession. At the Sunday, 11th inst. and Office in the Chapel in the Convent Chapel, a large number of clergy.

The Future Irish Party.

Parnell, if he chose to stay, again would wield an enormous moral power. The Irish party would then be an Irish Parliament, capable of holding the political future of Ireland and the political future of the Irish Germans.

Irish major is represented in the English journals as a Parnellite, but his sympathetic reference to Michael Davitt, and his sympathetic reference to his estate on the subject with the words—"A man with the true instincts of the Irish is lovable."

An Irish Ship Canal.

The Irish Times says a proposal in London is being discussed to construct a ship canal from Galway to Dublin. It is so old, small from Galway to Dublin. It is so old, small and small to be practical. It would be a Parnellite and an Orange meeting unanimous in its support. Nothing of the kind has been proposed, Country Farnaugh has been proposed, Country Fermanagh has been proposed, and the Crimea Act.

A Remarkable Suggestion.

The London correspondent of the Dublin Freeman's Journal:—"The Rev. Henry Stuart Menzies, Independent minister, has a rather liberal in his views on the Irish question, making a England and Ireland Home Rule Bill for Ireland. He recommends that the Crimea Act should be enforced against Land Leaguers in Ireland, but the Government should be discussed. If Mr. Parnell, Mr. Dillon, Mr. Sexton, or Mr. Tuke, Mr. Fagan, Mr. Fagan, or Mr. Fagan, or Mr. Fagan, or

Poetry.

WHAT FOUR HAIRNES CAUGHT.

"Four marriage notices I read
Each cost her little not;
Remarking, they relate to "Ma"
What fortune cash had met.

"O, Ma" could intellectual Jane,
"I sought a college man;
No money—but his stock of brains
Would lend a decent."

"O, Ma" remarked young flashy Ann,
"I sought a rightly fellow;
No brains, but pa and ma of cash,
And bloom sort of blood."

"O, Ma" said delicate Louisa,
"I coaxed some strength and health;
I also sought a journalist,
Whose brains will gain his wealth."

"No time to talk but I," said Nan
(Some thirty-four years old),
Yet, staying not to stitch these gifts,
I caught a deceitful old."

CONGRESSMAN SUMNERS POSTAL TELEGRAPH BILL.

Congressman Sumners entitles his Postal Telegraph Bill, "A bill to enlarge the postal facilities of the people of the United States." It goes upon the theory that the telegraph should have been and ought always to be a part of the postal system methods and convenience of the people of this country. He proposes that authority of Postmaster-General be granted immediately with the solution of a telegraph line between Washington and Boston, and thereupon to prepare and have ready and equipment for the work of connecting with the telegraph, wire or wires thereof. Each town of 5,000 inhabitants and of the northern boundary of Washington Territory that contains a population of fifty hundred inhabitants or more. It is provided that work shall be prosecuted from the Atlantic and Pacific ends of the proposed lines on the Atlantic side, Boston, Mass., and on the Pacific side, Portland, Oregon. It is also provided that Portland, Los Angeles and San Diego in Cal. shall be connected by a line of wire, the cost of the same of $25,000,000, bearing interest at the rate of three per cent per annum and payable in thirty years; redeemable in twenty years, the money to be loaned to the people and amount of 500 each; so that it may be in fact a people's line in a national form, and for the construction of the people's telegraph line. All postmasters are made agents of the line, and the postmaster of transmission are fixed at ten cents for every ten words or less, between all points, and two cents for each additional five words. Provisions are made for the protection of the employees of transmission are fixed at ten cents for every ten words or less, between all points, and two cents for each additional five words. Provisions are made for the protection of the employees of the telegraph, and the operators are made subject to civil service rules, and the salaries of the operators are fixed at $1,000 a year, and the salaries of the superintendents are fixed at two

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1883.

Hittell's Unholy Attack on the Catechism.

Dr. Pierce's Catechism by John S. Hittell. Price $1. Published, Gessner H. Gong, Libraire de l'Université, Cortlandt St. 1883.

SECOND ARTICLE.

The answer to Mr. Hittell's second question in his curious Catechism concludes with this unusually angular declaration:

"Yes, but the Roman customs of St Peter is as much a matter of conjecture as the maternal greatness of Jesus Christ." (16)

Now we would like Mr. Hittell to inform an anxious community of California Catholics what he means by the "maternal greatness of Jesus Christ!" Does he believe that Christ still exists, or has ceased to exist materially? Certainly, if language was given to Mr. Hittell more for the purpose of hiding his thoughts than of expressing them, he has succeeded admirably in confusing the minds of the few intelligent people who still read his Catechism through curiosity.

Alluding to the familiar text of Scripture by which the Primacy was bestowed upon Peter: "Thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build My Church," etc., taken from the gospel according to St. Matthew, chap. xvi., v. 18-19, Mr. Hittell says in his usurpy effort at evangelical writing:

"Question.—What is the first objection? Ans.—Neither Jesus nor any other author of scripture ever mentions the word rock in the gospels of St. Matthew, St. Luke, or St. John, or in the epistles or in the apostolic canons. The silence implies that no special significance was attached to them by the apostles."

Our eyes in theology is a little "too precious" in his untruthful teaching, and, like a great many others outside the Catholic Church, who vainly attempt to criticise our teachings, he requires far more to be taught himself than be possessed the intelligence to teach others. So far as Mr. Hittell's objection to the fact that St. Matthew's words are not to be found in the writings of the other Apostles is concerned, we may safely say that it is mere quibbling, as we can confound Dr. Hittell and confute his theological theory by asking him in which of the gospels or apostolic epistles he finds any "command," or equivalent" to a command for the observance of Sunday? After the manner of the Catechism-crank we can criticise, but we cannot do some of them! Again, let us ask this quack Doctor in Israel where in the Bible he will find "an equivalent for the words of Christ addressed to His Mother or He was expiring on the Cross? St. John alone records them, yet they are so tender and touching that even Julian the Apostate expressed his surprise that the other Evangelists had not given them! But, according to Mr. Hittell's theory, these words possess "very little significance" as the absence of the other Apostles, says this Genesian crother from California—"implies that no special significance was attached to them!"

Ah! Hittell, dear boy,
Again go and write for the papers
And get hoisting your
With your theological capers!

Now let us "reason with Scripture" and see if we cannot discover what the Genesa gospeler calls "an equivalent" for the promise of Christ to St. Peter, as found in St. Matthew:

"Then art Peter and upon this rock I will build My Church and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it. And I will give unto thee the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in Heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed also in Heaven."

To whom, dear, deluded Doctor, did Christ give charge of his whole flock—sheep and lambs? Were the Apostles themselves sheep of Christ? Assuredly they were not heretical or schismatical pests! Yet such a theological type is this Genesa gospeler from the Golden Gate, that he actually does not know that there is no passage in the Evangelists equivalent to the commission addressed by St. John, xxi., 16-17, as given to St. Peter thus: "Pad my lambs: Pad my lambs: Pad my sheep."

Here again we endorsed Mr. Hittell's half-naught testimony when he says that "no special significance was attached to such words as these!" by the other Apostles! O, Hittell, as a Californian, we blush at thy ignorance, and earnestly pray that the Genesa will not consider you a specimen of the lousy men of the Golden West! This brings us down to the next objection raised by Mr. Hittell, which we give in his own language:

"Question.—Your second objection? Answer.—A commission, or ministry head of a church, is authority over all the world, with unlimited ministerial jurisdiction, authorized with the salvation of all mankind in a future and eternal life, exercising the most important office that a mortal can possibly possess. Now, as a matter of course, he supposed to imagine the most direct, the most explicit, the most conclusive evidence for that trust. But no such evidence exists; very little evidence of any kind exists in favor of the claim. The pretended commission of the Pope is figurative, vague, and in every respect unsatisfactory and unsatisfactory as a basis for the papal claims."

Here again Mr. Hittell makes a theological flip-flap like an acrobat in a circus-ring! Pray, good sir, where did you connect the curious notion about the "commission entrusted with the salvation of all mankind in a future and eternal life"? It is a fact admitted by all true Christians that the salvation of sinners and the perdition of sinners is definitely settled in the future. But Mr. Hittell modifies this point so nicely that it is impossible to tell what he is driving at.

Now let us see how "vague, emphatic, and unsatisfactory" these "Papalistic" are about which Mr. Hittell has so much knowledge as a grinny bear has of Good Friday! He works could be clearer, stronger, more emphatic, expressive, or comprehensive, than those used by our Divine Redeemer when imparting His commission to St. Peter: "Thou art Peter: Pad my lambs: Pad my sheep." The voice of God never spoke plainer words to man. The whole flock of Christ—lambs and sheep—are intrusted to the paternal care of St. Peter individually by the Supreme Pastor and Shepherd, and that in words that none save a crank or a crack-brained Calvinist would cavil at.

Mr. Hittell's next shaved objection against the supremacy of St. Peter over the Church is that "Christ's commission to that Apostle is not public in its nature, commanding all the Church to obey." What ridiculous nonsense! As well might the children of the United States refuse to obey an order issued by General Sheridan because the President of the Republic has not commanded them to obey him, or to say that St. Peter's commission did not entitle him to supreme authority, because our Lord did not see fit to call a convention of all the Christians in the world and tell them to obey the Prince of the Apostles! Let us ask this shallow-minded catechizer from California if he ever heard of Adam and the commission and dominion he received over the birds of the air, the fishes of the sea, the beasts of the earth, and everything which moveth upon the earth? Yet this commission not being "publicly given"—according to Mr. Hittell's half-cracked theory—was not binding on beast, bird, fish, or the order of humanity classed under the genus Hittell!

All the members of the animal kingdom obeyed Adam. Foolish creatures, says our Mr. Hittell, who, no doubt, wonders why Balaam's ass or Balaq's mule did not demand to see Adam's credentials!

The next charge which unholy Hittell brings against holy St. Peter is that Christ gave the same authority to all His disciples by the use of similar language. To which we answer, as all Catholics do, that it is in the Bible does our Saviour call any other apostle or disciple a rock upon which His Church should be built and against which neither the powers of hell or earth should ever prevail? For our much-modified friend's information, it may be well to state that there are four points to be noted in our Lord's commission to St. Peter specially and exclusively. First: He was constituted the Rock on which Christ was to build His new Church, and so constituted as to be thereby the principle of the Church's unity and indefectibility. Second: The power of loosing and binding, which was given to all the Apostles together, was, on a different occasion, given specially and individually to Peter, and specially and exclusively to him alone: he therefore received what no other Apostle received, nor all the rest together without him. Peter individually and by himself received the plenary jurisdiction which was elsewhere conferred on all together. Third: The promise of Supremacy was made to Peter on two different occasions. The gospel according to St. John and St Matthew will prove this promise, while in St. Luke's and St. John's gospels we find the supremacy conferred definitely and explicitly on St. Peter. Fourth. The metaphor of the Rock, of the keys, of binding and loosing, of feeding the flock, are all used in reference to St. Peter, while but one of them is used in reference to the other Apostles.

In view of all these texts and authorities quoted from the Bible, our readers can imagine what an amount of gall Mr. Hittell must possess in his puny mind when he sets out—filled with audacity or ignorance, or both combined—to patch a hole in St. Peter's commission. It is really astonishing with what assurance sectarian scribblers attack the highest and holiest subjects, regarding which they have no more conception than a Digger Indian possesses of the position of the north pole!

We do not know if Mr. Hittell ever studied Upton's Military Tactics, but even if he never did, he—as a Bohemian on the local press—ought to know that a commander-in-chief is as necessary in the Church as it is in the army. Suppose a number of generals, in time of war, are divided upon the propriety of a certain military movement, to whom do they apply for decisive instructions? And in the same manner St. Peter settled questions of debate among the Apostles, just as his successor in Rome to-day settles all matters of controversy concerning the doctrine or the discipline of Christ's Church.

Mr. Hittell's fifth blunder about St. Peter is where he makes the objection that "if the other Apostles had understood that St. Peter had been chosen to be the Head of the Church, St. John and St. James would not afterwards have solicited the privilege of sitting on the right hand and on the left of Jesus in His glory." Well, glory hallelujah! Verily, Hittell, thy name is humbug! The poor man utterly loses sight of the fact that St. Peter's Supremacy pertains to the Church militant, as God alone knows who is to be supreme in the Church triumphant. But supposing even that St. James and St. John (and not John and James as Mr. Hittell has disarranged them) had aspired to supremacy in the Church militant, would their aspiration be proof that St. Peter had not been chosen Head of the Church? By no means, because they might have figured that the promise to St. Peter might be reversed or modified in some way, or that some other Apostle might be raised to a higher dignity.

It is very evident that Mr. Hittell is entirely ignorant of the gospel fact that after our Lord had expressly and repeatedly foretold His Sufferings, Death, and Resurrection to the Twelve, they—as a direct refusal to accept the promise of the Primacy to St. Peter—St. Luke assures us that "they understood none of these things." Suppose, therefore, that the same Apostles understood nothing whatever about the Primacy previously promised to St. Peter, would it follow that our Lord never promised it? Assuredly not, and Hittell makes a lady show of himself in saying so! As well might Mr. Hittell conclude that Christ had not foretold His Passion and Death, because the gospel says that even the chosen twelve did not understand the plain and simple words in which our Blessed Redeemer imparted to them the knowledge that He was to suffer and die for the sins of men, and to rise again, and to ascend to His Father in Heaven.

We now lay aside this curious Catechism until after the Christmas holidays, when we will show the absurdity of Mr. Hittell's other objections to St. Peter as Supreme Pastor of the Church of Christ.

Protestant Proofs of Protestant Decay.

That Protestantism, as a religious theory, is rapidly retiring from the world's gaze is an assertion that cannot be successfully contradicted. Even in England, where the Anglican Church is upheld by law and public money, its decay is so apparent that even its own "Bishops"—bogus bishops are—have become alarmed at the falling away of the people from the State Church. A few weeks since the Protestant Bishop of Liverpool opened his Diocesan Conference at St. George's Hall, Liverpool. Reviewing the state of his diocese, he drew a gloomy picture of its finances and of the spiritual destitution of the Church, and declared his determination to appoint a committee to take active steps to meet matters. Referring to the Episcopate, he said "there was no order of men estimated so severely and savagely, and ridiculed, sneered at, ridiculed, abused, and condemned so unceasingly, as English Bishops. Unless they were treated with more consideration and fairness, he predicted a day would come when no rightminded man, who loved direct spiritual work and hated wasting precious time in strife and wrangling, would consent to be a Bishop at all."

What a sad state the Anglican establishment must have arrived at when one of its pretended Prelates is forced to admit that the time is coming when it will be almost impossible to find candidates willing to make "guys" of themselves by wearing mitres to which they have no claim whatever. The fact that the "Bishops" in the Anglican sect, and its American cousin, the Episcopalian synod, are bogus, has become a settled conviction among the people of England and America, hence in the former country—as the "Bishop" of Liverpool says himself, they are sneered at, ridiculed, and condemned—and justly so say we. Of all the frauds that effect society the religious fraud is the worst. We have more respect for a quack dentist than we have for a bogus Bishop, and we hope the English people will keep sneering and chaffing at the bogus Bishops of the Establishment until—like the Anglican Church itself—the "Bishops" become "disestablished" so that the bogus breed may die out.

The word respects lawful authority, hence we never hear that the English people sneer at Cardinals Newman or Manning, nor do we learn that Catholic Bishops in other portions of England are lampooned or laughed at. The reason of this is that the whole people have become educated up to the fact that the only ecclesiastical authority in the world is vested in the representatives of the Catholic Church, and all else are the veriest shams. Our Bishops are authorized to be the successors of the Apostles, and our Priests are respected for their true sacerdotal dignity, hence all intelligent Protestants both in Europe and elsewhere look on as moderate souls when they are introduced to the wife of some sham Prelate as Mr. Bishop Bonwax. In the same manner the world only laughs at such Protestant Episcopal persons as facetiously call themselves "priests," well knowing that such a title belongs solely to an Order of ordination in the Catholic Church who offer sacrifice to God. Bob Ingersoll, or any other lecturer on religious topics, has just as much right to call himself a "priest" as any of these pretended priests of Protestant Episcopalism who affect the high collar coat, the Roman collar, and other habiliments of the Catholic clergy so as to dupe innocent people into the belief that they have even a remote right to the high dignity of the priesthood.

We have given the results of many of the sectarian preachers that they do not spa the Arc of real ordination, for the very good reason that they do not spa the Arc of real ordination, for the very good reason that they do not spa the Arc of real ordination, for the very good reason

CATHOLIC EDUCATION IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Feeling the danger that would ensue to their children by the separation of religion from education, the Ladies of Buenos Ayres recently petitioned our Holy Father to permit them to introduce religious instruction into our common primary schools. The Bishops, then also recently visiting the Eternal City, presented a similar request. The Congress of Congress in Buenos Ayres, in a body, (we did not know, it was so numerous,) presented a petition to the Pope in favor of religious education for their children. The correspondent says the night was such as had never before been witnessed in the South American Continent. Every distinguished family in Buenos Ayres gave its representative to the Assemblies of ladies and gentlemen to the Home of Congress to present the petition, which was signed by over 1,000 ladies. Two hundred private carriages were drawn up before the Home of Congress, and the ladies presented themselves before the Senate to hand in the petition, which was given in folding to Senator Salaverri, Vice-President of the Republic and President of the Senate; to Senor Pelegrini, President of the Chamber of Deputies, and to the heads of the Vice-President of the Republic. In this petition, in which we delight the reader, they ask the law for the religious education of our children. Congressman Pelegrini promised to present it to the Congress of the nation, but it was too late in the session to be considered, and it will be the coming session before the result of the growing agitation of a mother, the mother of the Republic, the Queen of the Pacific, we hope to have it and the concession of Your Holiness to the petition of the Ladies of Buenos Ayres, and of a mass which is to be offered up in Assumption.

The Ladies of Buenos Ayres, that although he could make no reply to Gambetta, he would not be silent in the presence of the Ladies of the Holy Ghost, the Paraclete, the Comforter, the Spirit of Truth, the Spirit of Wisdom, the Spirit of Counsel, the Spirit of Fortitude, the Spirit of Knowledge, the Spirit of Piety, the Spirit of the Fear of the Lord, who, when the Ladies of Buenos Ayres, in a body, presented to the Senate, the Chamber of Deputies, the Vice-President of the Republic, and President of the Senate, the petition for the religious education of their children, the correspondent says the Spirit of Wisdom was with them, and the Spirit of Counsel was with them, and the Spirit of Fortitude was with them, and the Spirit of Knowledge was with them, and the Spirit of Piety was with them, and the Spirit of the Fear of the Lord was with them, and the Spirit of Truth was with them, and the Spirit of Wisdom was with them, and the Spirit of Counsel was with them, and the Spirit of Fortitude was with them, and the Spirit of Knowledge was with them, and the Spirit of Piety was with them, and the Spirit of the Fear of the Lord was with them, and they were filled with the Spirit of God, and they were filled with the Spirit of God, and they were filled with the Spirit of God

THE WEEK'S NEWS —FROM— IRELAND.

Outspoken Speeches at a National League Meeting.

DUBLIN, December 5.—T. M. Healy, member of Parliament, presided at the fortnightly meeting of the Irish National League to-day. The Secretary announced that the sum of £1000 had been received from Australia since the last meeting. Mayor Sweney, of Limerick, and Mr. Dwyer Gray, of Dublin, members of Parliament, addressed the League. Mr. Gray said he thought it was a Government situation who had put the times a traitor to the interests of Ireland. T. D. Sullivan, member of Parliament, referring to the action of the Government in prohibiting the Navy, said it had not been the custom of Newfoundlers to interfere in the Orange processions, but that henceforth when Orange meetings were announced, the Newfoundlers would probably hold counter meetings and then commit the Government to prevent both. He believed the present unhappy state of affairs to the recent law of the United Northerners.

Harvesting Power of the Irish National Party.

NEW YORK, December 5.—A London cable dispatch says: "English home politics seem to be at a standstill until they have become merely a war between the Irish National members of the Commons, and Gladstone on the public platform. The Liberal Party of Dublin, Parnell, and Dalton is expected to endorse Parnell, and Dalton is expected to endorse Parnell. The Irish National party will be present. Crewe will be held by the rents, and Sudden (one the galleries) will be contested by about 600 ballots. Sudden, in the Parnell interest, and Parnell has been knowingly readily and it is expected that Dalton Tweedy will be there reached 100,000.

Return of the Recent Election Victories.

The following, published in the London Pall Mall Gazette, are shown by the fact that Mr. Gladstone has been transmitted into half of the existing vacancy on the Local Marine Board, and Mr. Gladstone has been made Mr. Chamberlain for full consecution. The victories of the Nationalists in the last municipal elections have resulted in the appointment of Nationalists, not for your prosecution, of their nominees. They must necessarily be followed by the appointment of a Nationalist to the position of High Sheriff, as the Tories are by no allowed to elect one of their number, as they should be the representative. Earl Spencer has hitherto filled the position of Nationalist in making his selection to fill the office, but this year, as the Government has taken the matter into their own hands, it will be to him, or to a Tory, to make the selection. The Nationalists have no option in the matter, and have to submit to a never adjusting, the central ground, Mr. Gladstone's letter on Mr. Collins' letter, Gladstone and he would not allow them to been negotiations for a compromise." Lord Spencer on over there; how can we tolerate for healing the Government in possession of the Commission that he had nothing to do with it. Mr. Collins has not yet resigned his seat in Clare. It was done by one of his sons.

The Dublin Cabbie, Mitchelstown.

On Thursday last Mr. Michael Cahill was in prison the prisoner under the proper control through the streets of Mitchelstown the remains of that unfortunate man, who died from the effects of his injuries, in the presence of the Catholic Church. The procession was headed by Mr. Cahill's school children and children, one drawn by the concourse of people followed in the procession, the children, and who visit with each other in carrying the remains of their father. The funeral was organized in Mr. Cahill was, he was peculiarly adapted for their boards.

Resolution Condemnatory of the Treatment of Father Curran's Return Home.

On Monday night, when it was made known that the Irish Land League, the last meeting of Castlecomer, assisted and Republic of the West, the other meeting, the Land Leagues with the Irish Land Leagues, the Land Leagues of Dublin, Parnell, and Dalton is expected to endorse Parnell. The Irish National party will be present. Crewe will be held by the rents, and Sudden (one the galleries) will be contested by about 600 ballots. Sudden, in the Parnell interest, and Parnell has been knowingly readily and it is expected that Dalton Tweedy will be there reached 100,000.

Return of the Recent Election Victories.

The following, published in the London Pall Mall Gazette, are shown by the fact that Mr. Gladstone has been transmitted into half of the existing vacancy on the Local Marine Board, and Mr. Gladstone has been made Mr. Chamberlain for full consecution. The victories of the Nationalists in the last municipal elections have resulted in the appointment of Nationalists, not for your prosecution, of their nominees. They must necessarily be followed by the appointment of a Nationalist to the position of High Sheriff, as the Tories are by no allowed to elect one of their number, as they should be the representative. Earl Spencer has hitherto filled the position of Nationalist in making his selection to fill the office, but this year, as the Government has taken the matter into their own hands, it will be to him, or to a Tory, to make the selection. The Nationalists have no option in the matter, and have to submit to a never adjusting, the central ground, Mr. Gladstone's letter on Mr. Collins' letter, Gladstone and he would not allow them to been negotiations for a compromise." Lord Spencer on over there; how can we tolerate for healing the Government in possession of the Commission that he had nothing to do with it. Mr. Collins has not yet resigned his seat in Clare. It was done by one of his sons.

The Dublin Cabbie, Mitchelstown.

On Thursday last Mr. Michael Cahill was in prison the prisoner under the proper control through the streets of Mitchelstown the remains of that unfortunate man, who died from the effects of his injuries, in the presence of the Catholic Church. The procession was headed by Mr. Cahill's school children and children, one drawn by the concourse of people followed in the procession, the children, and who visit with each other in carrying the remains of their father. The funeral was organized in Mr. Cahill was, he was peculiarly adapted for their boards.

Resolution Condemnatory of the Treatment of Father Curran's Return Home.

On Monday night, when it was made known that the Irish Land League, the last meeting of Castlecomer, assisted and Republic of the West, the other meeting, the Land Leagues with the Irish Land Leagues, the Land Leagues of Dublin, Parnell, and Dalton is expected to endorse Parnell. The Irish National party will be present. Crewe will be held by the rents, and Sudden (one the galleries) will be contested by about 600 ballots. Sudden, in the Parnell interest, and Parnell has been knowingly readily and it is expected that Dalton Tweedy will be there reached 100,000.

Return of the Recent Election Victories.

The following, published in the London Pall Mall Gazette, are shown by the fact that Mr. Gladstone has been transmitted into half of the existing vacancy on the Local Marine Board, and Mr. Gladstone has been made Mr. Chamberlain for full consecution. The victories of the Nationalists in the last municipal elections have resulted in the appointment of Nationalists, not for your prosecution, of their nominees. They must necessarily be followed by the appointment of a Nationalist to the position of High Sheriff, as the Tories are by no allowed to elect one of their number, as they should be the representative. Earl Spencer has hitherto filled the position of Nationalist in making his selection to fill the office, but this year, as the Government has taken the matter into their own hands, it will be to him, or to a Tory, to make the selection. The Nationalists have no option in the matter, and have to submit to a never adjusting, the central ground, Mr. Gladstone's letter on Mr. Collins' letter, Gladstone and he would not allow them to been negotiations for a compromise." Lord Spencer on over there; how can we tolerate for healing the Government in possession of the Commission that he had nothing to do with it. Mr. Collins has not yet resigned his seat in Clare. It was done by one of his sons.

O'Donnell's Case.

THE PRESIDENT INTERVIEWED REGARDING IT.

THE GOVERNMENT ASKED TO INTERCEDE FOR HIM

Cox of New York Makes a Splendid Speech.

The President Agrees to Interfere for Clemency.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The following named citizens of the Union of the United States and Canada, New York: Morrison, Chicago; Pinkerton, Illinois; General Lefferts and Foran, Ohio; Murphy, Iowa; Mayberry, Michigan; Lamb, Indiana; Malone, New Jersey; Collins, Massachusetts; O'Neil and Burke, Missouri. After a few minutes devoted to introductions, the President heartily shaking hands with the ladies, and some introductions of similar members on the political status, Cox of New York addressed the President as follows:

Then some or more of men come to speak to you of Patrick O'Donnell, a citizen of the United States, who has just been summarily tried and sentenced to be executed within 24 hours. I do not come as lawyer to plead his case, for I know nothing of the merits of the case. I do not come as a minister to set aside human law, but the life of an informer. We simply ask for a postponement of the execution, if your intervention, as our Chief Magistrate, can effect it. I may be allowed to say that certain facts have produced almost a deep-seated sympathy. These facts are, that a thousand Irishmen were indicted, tried, convicted, and sentenced to death, without a single witness, or evidence, the elements of murder are lacking in the case. The condemned man was and a member of any such organization. When he sailed upon the voyage he was yet aware that Carey, the informer, was his fellow-passenger. He was pursuing a course in joining with his wife to Cape Town. The truth is the killing of Carey and his companion was done in connection with the political events in Ireland; therefore, it is thought by many that the Irish people have no sympathy with the author

Poetry.

THE SISTER REGALIE.

PARIS 1847.

(Written for the Christmas Monitor by E. E. White.)

With guns and swords a noisy multitude
The Little Sisters' Convent pathered round
A military officer, whom they pressed,
A moment since thereto had darted bound.

Then Rosalie and all the Sisters came
And begged of them their noise and threats to cease;
But still the pickets clamored all the same,
"Surrender him and we will go in peace!"

The leader spoke: "He killed our 6th and friends
Spitfiring the street fight with their young blood,
Hence, Sisters, we will go
His wretched life to take, your amends
To offer up to the avenger God."

Said Rosalie: "My house is sanctified,
With blood shed, with wounded and with people,
Let God determine it!" They replied;
"We'll kill him in the street or anywhere.

"Sister, give him up, or we swear by the stars,"
"I will not even with his," said Rosalie.
As calmly with her distaff she stood
Between the rabble and the refugee.

"Remember him or not he dies the coffin, Sister, you know, I'm doing what I ought!"
Raising their guns the men took careful aim
And only waited for the signal, nod

"Oh, Satan for a minutes! Hold and wait
Let us my hands I beg you," said Rosalie
Then to the Sisters: "Let us pray!"
Knelt on the floor by the Convent door.

"For forty years that I have fed with you
Your cows and hens I thinked not to endure
I pay to house, and fodder thanked you too
To live with you Sister of the Poor.

"I ate too old to work, I prick and pray,
But when I brought dishwater on the house
We turned you, when it four friends fled away
Ah! was it not Sister of the Poor?

"And in the fashion time when ever thing
Looked threadbare, and the rents in my coat
Tight grew when and thinkers I wanted
Yet blessed with tears the Little Sisters said

"Pan riding." Yet one cents thether have,
Sister, I have not, I have not, I have not,
The crowning God, let you yourselves should fear,
Support my home, I ask it as a right."

The rabble rose to hunger loud and rude,
As reverence each head a moment bent,
Sadness, and pity, and shame
Crowding out, upon their way they went.

In Original Lay.

The Prophecy Fulfilled

(Written for the Monitor by a California Lady Correspondent.)

CHAPTER I.

CHRISTMAS EVE.

Christmas Eve of 17—, dawned dark and gloomy over the north of England. All the elements of nature roused as one. The winds swept with sullen roar round rocky point and headland driving the spray before them, far up the shore. The very cliffs seemed to tremble to the crashing shock as billow after billow broke in roar at their feet. The woods of Herrion fought with a thousand arms against the storm, but many a noble vetteran fell crashing to the earth before the relentless force of the tempest. The old Manor house seemed to be the central point against which the fury of the storm was directed. The ruined walls of the chapel swayed to and fro trembling as if they would fall each moment, and the new wing, known as Sir Harold's Folly, rocked in the blast, chimneys clattered down, the very foundations seemed to quake. The central building which had stood for generations firm as the rocks on which it was builded, alone defied the elemental war. A quaint old building frowned for Ardenne as well as comfort, it had sheltered generations of the family in prosperous days but now saw far too large for the family and the feet dependants who still clung to them despite of Lady Harrie.

Sir Jasper, kindly old sir Jasper, had given orders that Christmas should be celebrated with such state as their altered circumstances would permit, and the busy servitors had brought well preparing for the morrow's feast. The old banqueting hall which once had echoed the harpers lay and the singing choir of a hundred noble guests, was bright with holly and mistletoe trembling the varied trophies of field and chase which long years in the past the centre of poverty was banished from sight, hidden by the remnants of former splendor, carefully preserved by the old Sherard Martin, who had been born in the service of the family, and finally hoped to lay in the shelter of the old mansion. From wide corners and hidden drawers he brought forth rich tapestry and long ago from over the and crowns silver buttons and goblets, which had been bartered away for the necessities of life, and brought forth the fairy blood of Spanish vines, and great platters on which lately had been served the meals of Herrion Forest.

The plenty of which years long the possessions of an illustrious line of glorious knights and barons was not forgotten. The arrow shoes in hereditary halls, and old Martin's favorite harpers were not forgotten, wrestle of arms and crossed swords hung on the wall but "Black George," and Sir Harold, was the well brought dishonor on the honored name of their race looked down undaunted in pride and haughty scorn upon the scene. The silver lamps of the hall were hung in a novel effect, and every line of his face, and the haughty pose of his figure spoke of his proud ever-boiling disposition. Black George of Herrion was a fierce man, and his boldness of spirit, his courage, was portrayed as a fierce in the prime of life, his best and mental power and unyielding will. The look of one, which could not be valied in the dark eyes whispered of the remorse which had tortured him and driven him to desperate deeds. His piteous hung at the sacrifice of the gallery in a spot selected by himself. With his own hand he had placed it in position forbidding any one to remove it under pain of his bitter curse.

Remove shot, and the evil will follow," was his command traced beneath the picture, and his successors religiously obeyed the injunction. No other Herrion hung near him and his very presence seemed the attention he seemed to show. He were the Crusaders uniform, and by a strange fancy placed in his hand a flaming torch, which, owing to the position of the picture, seemed pointing to the rude cross beneath.

As he withdrawn to and from the gallery, Old Martin cast more than one anxious glance at the grim counterfeit of Black Sir George, and shook his head murmuring "What will to-night bring us! Since his day few Christmas Eve have fallen without bringing sorrow to the home of Herrion. Was to the day he crossed its threshold as master, and the Christmas came in his train and have remained ever since. Aye quiver in your frame, tyrant Black George, wherever you are, your threshold as master, was and desolation and ruin

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1883.

The Festival of Christmas.

Before another issue of the MONITOR can reach our readers the great festival of Christmas—with all its spiritual and temporal joys—will have been duly honored by the Church of God and by all her faithful children. It is proper, therefore, that we thus early remind our readers that we are sounding regarding the joyous day which is solely, directly and especially a Catholic festival, and one which—like the Church itself—has continued to exist despite the antagonism and perfidious love alike of pretending Parliaments and prerogative ridden Princes.

In England under several of the monarchs who were antagonistic to the Catholic faith, men were executed making the observance of Christmas a penal offence. In the diary of John Evelyn, who lived in the seventeenth century, under the date of December 25, 1683, is written these ominous words:

"Christmas day, in certain churches, as it fell out, I went to Sayes Court, and there heard a sermon."

Catholics in those days were compelled to celebrate Christmas by stealth, to hear Mass privately in some obscure cellar or garret, for the reason that both priest and congregation were liable to be condemned to prison if caught celebrating Christmas according to what was then regarded as "Popish rites." Nothing so extolled did the Catholics of those days deny the law to suppress the festival of our Blessed Redeemer's birth, that the frequent intercession of the law was brought before the British Parliament, in which legislative body the author we have just quoted says the following debate occurred on Christmas day when the members were called together for public business—"Much and deprecation of this "Popish festival."

Colonel Matthews—"The House is thin—but I hope, if we do what we do, we shall do it like men. I have a short bill to prevent the observance of the Popish festival. I think it to be a sin. Solemn—I would not so call it, if I thought it was not a sin. I hope, if we do anything, that reason, as in the case of the Jesuits, will prevail. I hope, if we do anything, it will be done with reason. I hope, if we do anything, it will be done with reason. I hope, if we do anything, it will be done with reason

Our Young Folks.

SANTA CLAUS AND SNOOKS.

A Christmas Story for Little Folks.

On a certain island not nearly to be found on the map, is the palace of Santa Claus, the lover of children. It is surrounded by a beautiful garden, always in bloom, full of the sweetest fruits, fragrant with the most delicious flowers, and enjoying the most delightful weather. It surpasses in extent and magnificence every other palace in the world, and if you only knew it, generally where to find it, it would be well worth paying it a visit. There you could see a long gallery containing photographs of all the children in the world who have distinguished themselves by their good conduct or application, and the most wonderful part of the matter is, that these pictures reply to whoever questions them, and relate their whole history, or that of their parents, if they happen to be little, a vast collection of works, bouquets for mothers—fancy work, sketches, rhymes, pictures, alphabets, tables, and songs. The most ancient on the world, is a little girl embroidering a purse for her father, who is fast asleep in his easy chair, and in the middle of the room, seated in a cradle, is a little boy trying to use the astonishing powers of his father's gun like to the phrase, "Ut quasi Ilion a Troia."

Santa Claus is very fond of his little people, and he has a great reason to rejoice at what he sees. He sees greedy children, who never thought they had enough. He sees lazy children who were continually quarreling themselves. He sees noisy children, who did not have a moment's peace in the house. He sees disobedient children, who refused to obey their parents. He sees undutiful children, who broke their hearts, or hung their mothers with grief. He sees little children running about the fields, or flying kites when they should be at school. He sees children already talking loud and boasting their conquests. He sees other children quarreling together and thinking more at the idea of breaking their neighbor's head than of their own proper safety. "My brother has got more than I have. He ate unpeeled and rotted and nothing than of his." "My father has got more than mine." He sees unpeeled and rotted and nothing than of his.

Seeing all this, good Santa Claus was very much troubled, and he said with a deep sigh,

"Alas! I see it too plainly. Snooks must live. It could not do too bad Snooks! To sponge children's dinners!"

Visions of Christmas.

Christmas pulses many pictures on the canvas of changing or returning, the dawn rich, full of clean and dards and glitter while others, shall are scenes and old hearth-stones with that unutterable depth of expression of the whole heavy in pleasure and sadness. "Oh! Christmas! Oh! Christmas! Oh! Christmas!

Poetry.

A CHRISTMAS REVERIE.

[Written for the Christmas Monitor by M. L.]

A rich man sat beside his fire,
And smiling, rubbed his hands,
"I body pay with this for wood,
It brought me gold and lands."

"I've paid in notes and paid in bonds,
A hundred times, I ween,
A wealthy man, I all do sight,
I've all that wealth can do."

Then Mem'ry came, and held her glass
Before this man, so gay,
And pictured there, he saw the Past,
From dark children rise.

There saw he poverty and want fair,
A child in fall of grief,
Wife pining on the cold, cheerless hearth,
A smile came on's ale face.

The picture pass'd and then he saw
The coffin side by side,
In one his bro'ed and darling child,
The other held his bride.

An aged grandsire near he saw,
In mother's bony cart,
Who had been sentenced for stealing gold,
Had spoiled his mother part.

He saw her pale, yet merely fought,
The victory heavily won,
Which cost her life, and left her a child
If day, or it sun.

And yet the rich man chuckled when
He saw the picture pass,
Mem'ry saw not a single tear,
Nor heard a single sigh.

And when came with pitiless eye,
Mem'ry bade him look
Upon the poor, the friendless, the aged,
And treasured the a child.

But with, smiling, chanted their eyes,
Mem'ry bade him look
Upon the poor, the friendless, the aged,
They cried, "Your gold is lost—our blood,
Our tears, shall be thy ransom!"

Then Mem'ry took her glass away,
And the rich man sat alone,
"Ransom gold! Here poor am I,
Have I gone? Be rich?"

M. LAFERRY.

Oakland, Cal.

O'DONNELL DEAD!

Sensational Proceedings.

London, December 16.—Patrick O'Donnell had the death penalty within the walls of Newgate this morning. The drop fell precisely at eight o'clock. Last night O'Donnell went to bed about 10 o'clock and remained comparatively quiet until 5.30 this morning. At 6 o'clock Father Flanelly came and the prisoner remained in prayer some time. At the conclusion of Mass the condemned man received Holy Communion. O'Donnell partook of a light breakfast and appeared in bad spirits with a relish. At 7:45 the prisoner had begun bolting and a similar warning was sent from the belfry of St. Sepulchre Church on the Holborn Viaduct directly after. The Governor of the jail, with the head warden entered, and O'Donnell was at once led to the pinioning-room, half way between the condemned cell and the prison yard. Here they found the executioner, Marwood, waiting, and the prisoner pinioned in a twinkling. The Governor and the prison doctor, Hanson, then accompanied the party. The procession was then formed instantly. The executioner was there bareheaded in the prison yard, and then quietly marched to the gallows, passing so close to the few spectators assembled that they could have touched O'Donnell, but for the latter's work which separated them. The medical was quickly reached. The noose hung ominously from the cross-beam above. The coffin-lids had been laid aside, so that O'Donnell's attendants were seen by those present only from the waist up. Hence but just a moment is placing the white cap over the victim's face and adjusting the noose, and a moment after O'Donnell disappeared, a quivering cord being all that remained to show where he had stood. The Governor and doctor passed a moment into the cellar pit in which the body swung, and then turned away. Outside the jail, a considerable crowd had assembled to the place directly the black-flag was hoisted. Twenty police were distributed in the vicinity, and they were posted around the walls on the outside.

While being pinioned O'Donnell spoke and seemed inclined to be expansive. He requested the Governor to tell his friends he died as bad made in the dock, bitter being sentenced. He walked firmly to the scaffold. He made no lamentation, the full being sight feet. His brother was not present. The Governor, who remained outside, praying audibly. The morning was cut and drizzly. The crowd around the jail was quiet.

O'Donnell's Declaration.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The Brooklyn Eagle of this evening publishes a statement that Patrick O'Donnell has practically admitted that he was an intimate of the Manchester assassins, and in an interview with his brother and when the latter left the prisoner's cell he was heard to exclaim "I made my gay statements. He answered that his brother Carey was a fool, and that he was for killing Carey and feels none now. He then said that he would make their declaration and the end of it and that there would be his dying words. He then slowly repeated the words the following statement: For fear that anything may happen to me between now and Monday, I say brother sent for us and asked me to put before his friends his last statement. He handed upon the scaffold to my the following words: "I killed James Carey, the informer. I am not sorry for killing him; and I never have been. Not only that, but all I knew I have told, and not boy me or induce me to give any one away. The arrival of the Russian Prince, Hime, was secret and so will be his departure.

A TALK WITH PRYOR.

What O'Donnell's Counsel Says of the Trial.

NEW YORK, December 17.—General Pryor, who was sent to England by Mr. Patrick Ainslie to defend O'Donnell, arrived in this city yesterday. In the course of a discussion on the trial of O'Donnell, Pryor spoke quite freely upon the subject. When asked if the verdict was a surprise, he replied: "Well, I will say this much. O'Donnell had acted in Canada, and I thought America he would have been acquitted without a doubt. I was quite hopeful. I may as well confess, I was in the time when Judge Dunman summed up against the prisoner. I was quite surprised. The Judge's charge favored O'Donnell. There is no question in my mind that the Judge intended, even before the trial commenced, to favor the prisoner. Judge Dunman is a very good man, and I believe he is honest. I think he was influenced by the Government. I don't mean to say that the Government had any direct influence on the Judge, but I am convinced that

Poetry.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL.

The morn that now is shining
In skies so blue and bright,
Shone ages since on Shepherds
Who watched their flocks by night!
There was no sound upon the earth,
The azure air was still,
The sheep in quiet clusters lay
Upon the grassy hill.

When lo! a white-winged angel
The watchers stood before,
And told how Christ was born on earth,
For mortals to adore.
He bade the trembling shepherds
Listen, nor be afraid,
And told how in a manger
The glorious Child was laid.

When suddenly in the Heavens
Appeared an Angel Band,
(The while in reverent wonder
The Syrian Shepherds stand)
And all the bright host chanted
Words that shall never cease—
Glory to God in the highest,
On earth good-will and peace.

The vision in the heavens
Faded, and all was still,
And the wondering shepherds left their flocks
To feed upon the hill;
Towards the blessed city
Quickly their course they held,
And in a lowly stable
Virgin and Child beheld.

Beside an humble manger
Was the Maiden Mother mild,
And in her arms her Son divine
A new-born Infant smiled.
No shade of Sinner screen
From Calvary then was cast:
Only the glory was revealed,
The suffering was not passed.

The Eastern kings before Him knelt,
And lowly offerings brought;
The shepherds worshipped and adored
The wonders God had wrought;
They saw the crown for Israel's King,
The future's glorious part;
But all these things the Mother kept
And pondered in her heart.

Now we that Maiden Mother
The Queen of Heaven call,
And the Child we call our Jesus,
Saviour and Judge of all,
But the star that shone in Bethlehem
Shines still, and shall not cease,
And we listen still to the tidings,
Of glory and of Peace.

Christmas Reading.

Story of an Old-Time Christmas.

Once on a time in the time of olden and merrie England, when all her brave sons held the true faith and worshipped at one altar, there dwelt among the vast oak woods, and green holly brakes of Cannock Chase, in Staffordshire, a bold and valiant knight named Jocelyn de Stafford. Bold and valiant, in good truth, and ready and stout-hearted was he, but he was withal stern; unscrupulous, cruel, when his passions were roused. Sir Jocelyn had fought much in the Holy Land, and when he was in England, he built himself a strong castle in Cannock Woods, and safely girded it round with fair walls and towers, from which he could sally forth at will to plunder the travellers and merchants who passed by from South to North, or from the North to London, and wrest to his uses their merchandise, or get ransom for them, he shut up his gates with strong bars, and laughed to scorn all attempts of bishops or punish him. King Edward indeed loved Sir Jocelyn, for he was a brave soldier and a valiant warrior; the nobles hated him, but the poor feared him, for he was very terrible in his anger.

In one thing, indeed, Sir Jocelyn did not offend God, he was never heretical in his wicked hands to any priest, or to take aught that belonged to the church; on the contrary he watched and honored all such as he passed that way, or desired hospitality from him; and he gave many broad lands and rich gifts to the Priory of St. Mary's which lay near his castle, and money and food to all pilgrims who came to visit the Holy Well at Christmastide. Now the Holy Well flowed in the woods about two arrow flights from the priory gates, and was found by the holy hermit, many years agone who by his prayers had obtained it as the gift of healing both for body and soul. For not only were many lame and sick folks healed there and were made whole, but the water proved an humble and docile spirit when washed in it at Christmas-tide; leaves should be given and gifts came to pray before the shrine set up there by Sir Jocelyn's little daughter Gertrude.

For Sir Jocelyn had one child of ten years old, most fair and lovely to behold. She was a little princess in fair thing; but though so young and small, her heart was full of love to God and man, and her mind was ripened in wisdom, though not in knowledge; for she had been brought up from her infancy by the grey-haired priest of St. Mary's, and kept from all worldly ways and love. A lovely and a touchingly sight it was to see Sir Jocelyn and his child, when they were together. The one so stern and dark, with deep, glittering eyes, and a mouth which seemed to condemn you when it spoke; the other so slight and frail, with dark, deep eyes, like her father's but fearing with heavenly light; and long, bright hair, neither all curled or straight, which threw a shadow over all her head, like as if she were some holy innocent come down to shield her from the wrath of God. Very high pale brow of Sir Jocelyn eye related when he looked at Gertrude, and her joyous laugh would chase and eyes filled with fervent love, when she looked up into his face; so that they were happy when together.

In south no one could ever behold Gertrude de Stafford or as she was always called by all "Our Lady's Child," without loving her; for though so small and light that the wind seemed to move her when it blew, she was strong and hardy, and spent all her time among the poor when not with the aged prior, who trained and instructed her daily, and loved her with a love surpassing earthly affection. By his direction Gertrude had begged and besought her father to let the priory church be rebuilt and to bestow upon it a goodly chime of bell ye bells. She had petitioned as a birthday boon to have the old hospital rebuilt where the poor Christmas pilgrims were lodged and fed by the monks: and she had of her own accord caused the carved cross to be set up at the Holy Well, and restored the stone basin in which it rose, and put up the image of her Beloved Lady and the Infant Saviour, in the niche above, and trained it all over with ivy, and the deep passion flower, one fair summer and the other for Christmas time, which, as she said, ought like that to be ever green and fresh in our hearts and memory.

It was not Gertrude, however, who planted the glorious old holly-tree which stood at the back of the well, and which, time out of mind, had hung its smooth, shining, dark, green leaves and garlands of scarlet berries over its clear bubbling waters. No living man could remember that holly-tree smaller than it was now, and no one could ever guess when it was planted. Spring had come and the white wind flower had sprung up and died away around its twisted trunk. Summer had come and the hoary oak had put the dusky hue of the old holly tree to shame. Autumn had come and strewed fading summer leaves blushed and withered away, and fell in red and golden showers on the green turf, "parting with their sweet lives unmurmuring"—but the holly stood there the white unmoved and unchanged. But when the departing year bade the earth good night, and the robin was come forth to cheer the misty solitude, when the hoar frost covered every leaf and spray with sparkling diamonds, and the ground was dressed in its winding sheet of snow, then did the ancient holly tree lift up its head and shake off the white hoods from its armed hands, and crown itself with scarlet coronals of joy, as if to say to thoughtful earth and "The time is at hand—watch ye and pray—for the earth had opened and the Saviour shall spring forth and blossom for your salvation."

Then the pilgrims appeared one by one, kneeling at the Holy Well, and coming from north and south, from their office in the dell: and they humbly thanked God, while calling on all creatures to bless Him for the ancient Christmas-tree, which reminded them to rejoice most when the world is stern and cold, and men's words harsh towards them. What were a few slight crosses to bear, when the thought of the Almighty God, even in very deed, and in the body of a little child, for love of them! But do what she would Gertrude could not persuade Sir Jocelyn to visit the Holy Well. He had a secret fear of it, and he could never shake it off. Gertrude could never persuade him to go to the Holy Well. He had a secret fear of it, and he could never shake it off. Gertrude could never persuade Sir Jocelyn to visit

Poetry.

THE NATIVITY.

I've been reading an old, old story,
Of the fair and starlit morn,
When in Bethlehem's humble manger
The child of sweet Mary was born.

Of the shepherds, their humble journey
Of the Star, lighting valley and hill,
And the song which the angels were chanting,
The new song of "Peace and good-will!"

I read how He stood in the temple,
And taught the learned men,
How they looked on the child, and wondered,
And answered him not again.

I read how He spoke in Galilee's waves,
Till the storm was hushed and still,
How he wept with Lazarus' sisters,
And the dead were alive at His will.

And I read how He prayed in Gethsemane,
The while his disciples slept,—
How he prayed that the cup might pass from him;
And now, as I read, I wept.

I read of the hill of Calvary,
How they mocked him and pierced his side;
And here, crying, "Father, forgive them!"
He bowed his head and died.

And as I finished the story—
So wondrous, so old, and so rare,—
And, closing with reverent hand the book,
My heart cried a welcome prayer:

That He who blessed little children,—
He who for sinners was slain,—
Would shelter, 'neath wings of his mercy,
Our souls from the wind and the rain!—

Would wash us in pity's sweet fountain
Till every sin was shriven;
And, leading us close in his footsteps,
Make us more meet for heaven.

Our Young Folks.

THE CALIFORNIA FAMILY CAT.

Last Christmas morning the children awoke and Johnny found himself the owner of a box of tools, with which he immediately proceeded to saw, punch, hammer and nail everything about the house and barn, and so damaged the estate at the rate of about twenty dollars a month, Jimmy found a drum, a fife, a harmonicum and a tin tool horn. His mother next day went sick, and all from that tool horn. Mr. Crab had sent it to Jimmy. Mr. Crab is an old suitor of Jimmy's mother; she refused him. Now he never neglects an opportunity of tormenting that family. Jane Ann, for herself two gold fish and a canary.

Everybody found Christmas presents save the Family Cat. He rubbed and purred around, wishing to show that he took part in the general rejoicing, and wondering why he did not receive his share of attention. He was a large, portly cat, in color, gray, streaked with large yellow eyes and English whiskers.

He sat steadily by the fire all the morning thus neglected, the rest of the family being in joyous commotion inside, he grew, wrathful and more wrathful. They forgot even to give his breakfast. One he did step into the kitchen and gently intimated that he was hungry. The cook, hurried with preparations for the Christmas dinner, insulted him with a spiteful "Scat!" an expletive only applicable to common dogs and cats. He sat there, occasionally stroking his whiskers with his right paw, yet he looked none the less wrathful. Dinner boiled and stewed. There was an occasional opening of the two yellow slits, where his eyes were, it was a sort of lazy, half-closed, reflective closing and shutting, so if agreeable, soothing thoughts were passing through his mind. If you had watched him very closely, however, you would have seen that both eyes were in a white turn very quickly in the direction of the canary bird and the gold fish, and the two yellow slits would widen to their widest extent, glare with all the fury of his race. He was laying his plans.

To have seen him there, you would have said that no more correct or respectable cat lived in the city. But he was not. There came one night, but the demure Family Cat was something over barn and housetop long after the honest people were abed, screaming, howling and rioting with all manners of disreputable cats, not called by the vicious, but even more vicious and degraded cats he held a dangerous and troublesome character. He had cheated out his fair wife's eyes. Many respectable families had forbidden him their house. Still he was not royally bred, at the Royal Beak Yard Catalan Opera he lounged about the dress circle and ogled young ladies in adjust entering manner. The Christmas dinner was over. The turkey, pie, and the the pudding, cup of Marblehead Salamon, found it was glad when it was bottom, every body went early to bed.

And still the Family Cat seemingly dozed by the smouldering sea coal fire. They have become silent. Only the sibilants of midnight mice were heard, and the cracklings and settlings which come to all houses at night. Then the Family Cat avowed himself. He was a different cat. He was no longer a good natured, fawning, never-begging cat, as when, with arched back and tail erect, he rubbed against your ankles. He looked mischief and business. His tail had settled to the floor, his whiskers were pointed at a different angle, his eyes were yellow open.

"So," said he, "I am to have no Christmas, am I? We'll see. Do they take me for a fool?

The mice were heard nibbling in the dark corners. "Nibble away tonight," said the Family Cat. "They may eat rats and mice in Paris—and cats, too, if they like; I am after a game supper. Let's see; what shall I have, fish or fowl? Fish of course. That always comes first on the bill of fare. Where's the soup, though? Hum, chowder? I'll drink my soup out of the goldfish basin. It's weak, but fresh."

The canary bird and the goldfish. It was for them the Family Cat had been laying his plans.

We will not describe the tragedy. When all was over, the goldfish globe lay shivered on the floor; the bird cage was there also, upset and empty. Empty? No, not quite. It was hanging by the wires, lay the little yellow head, torn from the body. Not a soul in the house had woke amid the racket—the cries and fluttering of Tip, the crash of glass, the fall of the cage. Turkey and plum pudding had brought deep slumber on that household. This the Family Cat knew well, to this he had trusted.

And there, by the dying, dull red gleam of the coal fire, was seen the room just as the family had left it—the dinner table, the desert not removed, the chairs irregularly huddled together, inanimately sociable—and in the secestomed corner sat the Family Cat cleaning his whiskers. By him were scattered feathers and a few fish bones.

"Wyah!" said he, "I feel refreshed. This feels like Christmas. I think I'll go down to the club." The Family Cat, wash out by a door near the roof. All aristocratic cats have private doors made for them.

Just as he was descending from the roof to the yard, who should come along but old Black Dick. Black Dick was a regular, a desperado. He had but one eye and a stab tail. He lived in a miserable manner, begging from other cats and prowling about kitchens at night.

"Say," said Dick, "give me something to eat won't you? I haven't had a meal to-day."

The Family Cat was about to snub Black Dick, as usual. Cats are not generous to their own kind. They save much of their affection for the human race.

Suddenly an idea came to the Family Cat.

"Somebody," said he to himself, "must be punished for this scrape of mine. The majesty of the law must be vindicated. The victim might as well be Black Dick as any one else. Juries of late have been very lax about convicting. There must be a reaction soon. They organized a vigilance committee t'other day at Los Angeles. They may do the same here, and hang or shoot me without trial. In the regular courts there might not be so much to fear. I'll fix it."

"Black Dick," said the Family Cat, "there's my private door. You've been in the house before. You know the road to the dining room. Dinner's still on the table; cold lamings, turkey, chicken, wine, fresh fish, bloody canary. Scat!"

Black Dick rushed for the private door. The Family Cat smoked softly after him and turned a bolt. Black Dick was a prisoner inside.

The family were next morning an exception without judge or jury. A limpy corpse was thrown into the highway. It was Black Dick's.

A note in the fireplace told the day the Family Cat made its appearance, clean, new-shaved, like lager beer. He sits demurely by the sea coal fire. The yellow eyes slits lazily, good humoredly, open and shut. He sat there occasionally thrown upward toward an empty bird cage on the wall. "Poor Tip!" the children mourn. The Family Cat draws down the corners of his mouth. "My poor goldfish!" says Jane. The lower jaw of the Family Cat drops lower still. "That wicked, wicked Black Dick!" says all. And the Family Cat murmurs: "Truly, the way of the wicked cat is hard."

How Washington Spent Christmas Night, 1776.

In December, 1776, the American people and the officers and soldiers of the army were sadly depressed and almost hopeless of success, owing to the defeats and disasters that they suffered.

On the 16th of December, 1776 Washington wrote his brother: "If every nerve is not strained to recruit the army with all possible expedition, I think the cause, I have at heart, must fall." You can form no idea of the perplexity of my situation. No man, I believe, ever had a greater choice of evils, and less means to extricate himself from them."

He was not ready, however, to give up "the game" yet.

On Christmas night he crossed the Delaware to attack the Hessians at Trenton. The river was so full of ice that the Marblehead regiment, made up of Marblehead fishermen, found it was glad when it was bottom, every body went early to bed.

And still the Family Cat seemingly dozed by the smouldering sea coal fire. They have become silent. Only the sibilants of midnight mice were heard, and the cracklings and settlings which come to all houses at night. Then the Family Cat avowed himself. He was a different cat. He was no longer a good natured, fawning, never-begging cat, as when, with arched back and tail erect, he rubbed against your ankles. He looked mischief and business. His tail had settled to the floor, his whiskers were pointed at a different angle, his eyes were yellow open.

"So," said he, "I am to have no Christmas, am I? We'll see. Do they take me for a fool?

The mice were heard nibbling in the dark corners. "Nibble away tonight," said the Family Cat. "They may eat rats and mice in Paris—and cats, too, if they like; I am after a game supper. Let's see; what shall I have, fish or fowl? Fish of course. That always comes first on the bill of

MARY GREY'S MOTHER-IN-LAW.

A CHRISTMAS STORY.

"So your mother-in-law is coming to live with you," said Miss Susan Skinner, giving her head a tossing shake, all the little pink bows and [illegible] Mrs. Grey opened her eyes in surprise at the news.

"Why, yes," said Susan, mother Grey's last child, married and moved away from home, and now she had left quite alone. Mary was her favorite, and I know it would please him, suggested that she should tell you. Of all the mean, meddlesome women in the world, it is the mother-in-law."

"Humph! all the more fool you! You have got yourself into a pretty fix now, Mary Grey. She will never leave you as long as she lives; you can make up your mind to that, and bid good-by to peace for the rest of your days."

"Why, Miss Susan," said Mrs. Grey, regarding her old neighbor with surprise. "I don't understand you. I am sure I never wan't mother to leave us, and as for peace, what difference can her coming make?"

"Oh, you'll see," replied Miss Susan, nodding her head wisely. "You'll see. You'll repent of your bargain before a month is over, mind what I tell you. Of all the mean, scheming, meddlesome women in the world, it is a mother-in-law."

Mrs. Grey began to feel a little annoyed. "What do you know about it?" she could not refrain from saying.

"Humph! you needn't twit me about being an old maid, Mary Grey! I thank my stars that I am not tied to any man, nor what's worse, to any man's mother. What do I know about mothers-in-law? More than I want to, goodness knows! Why there was my cousin Lucinda, who was obliged to leave her husband, and go home to her father, just on account of her mother-in-law; and Alice Lawson, poor, little weak creature, was used to live in this very house, was so imposed upon and ill-used by her husband's mother that they despaired of her life; anyway, she died just three months after her mother-in-law came to live with her. Why, I know of lots of such cases, and, if a woman isn't awfully strong-minded, her mother-in-law just runs right over her, and rules the house, and if she is strong-minded, they are continually jangling and quarreling, so you see that, altogether, a woman's best way is to keep entirely away from her mother-in-law."

"But, Miss Susan, these are only exceptional cases," said Mrs. Grey. "I am sure there are good and true women in the world belonging to this relation."

"Well; I'd just like to see one of them, that's all. I see it's no use arguing with you, Mary; you're too set in your own way; mark my words, my dear, you will rue the day you ever let that woman come into your house," said Miss Susan, in a tone of settled conviction. "When do you look for her?" she added, rising.

"To-morrow evening."

"So soon? Well, I'm sure I hope you will be able to get along with her," answered Miss Susan with a little sympathetic sigh.

Mary Grey, during the remainder of that day and the next Mrs. Grey found herself wondering what her husband's mother was like. He had always seemed so proud and fond of her, that she was predisposed to love her; so prepared her with that reverence and affection which she had cherished for her own dead mother. She thought to make a home for her, and to those to whom she could go with all her little troubles and anxieties, none can know the world's sympathies with and counsel her, and how pleasant it would be for Henry to have his mother always near him, where he could watch over and care for her.

They would make such a happy family; Henry and herself, grandma and baby Henry.

Then, in opposition to all these pleasant thoughts, would come up in spite of her, the gloomy warnings of Brobdingnag which Miss Susan Skinner had uttered. Could Henry's mother be "mean, scolding, meddlesome," or disagreeable in any way? No, a thousand times, no. And yet, the sharply-spoken words had left their sting, and she could not drive the memory of them from her mind.

When train-time arrived, mamma and baby took their station at the depot, to watch for "grandma." Soon the sound of wheels was heard, and Henry drove up to the door, and handed out a lady.

"Mother, this is your daughter, Mary."

Mary looked up, and met a pair of gentle blue eyes looking out wistfully from a kindly old face.

"Mary, will you let me be your mother, as well as Henry's?" asked the lady, holding out her hands: and Mary answered, embracing her warmly,

"Indeed I will. Welcome home, mother."

Miss Skinner, peeping from between her blinds across the street, saw the set, and muttered to herself,

"Oh, that's all very fine," she muttered contemptuously. "A new broom sweeps clean. Wait a few weeks, and then we shall see."

* * * * * * *

It was two weeks before Christmas, and Mary was busy preparing for the holidays. One evening, after putting baby to bed, she ran down to the parlor to get her sewing, which she had left on the table before tea. The door did not open readily, and she tried it again, but found it was locked. She was sure she heard Henry's and his mother's voice within, and thinking the door had become fastened accidently, called out to open it.

"Oh, is that you, Mary?" he answered "Run up stairs and get my cigar case, will you?"

Mary did so, and when she came down again, found the door open, and Henry sitting by the table reading.

"Where is mother?" she asked.

"Wasn't she up stairs with you?" replied Henry, keeping his eyes fixed on his book.

"Why, no; I thought she was here."

"Well, you see you are mistaken," he answered.

Mary did not reply, but took up her work and sewed away busily, her thoughts keeping time with her fingers. She was positively certain she had heard Mrs. Grey's voice in low-toned conversation with Henry, and yet he had the same as denied her presence there. It was the first time he had ever equivocated to his wife, and she could not overlook it lightly without knowing the reason. Why had he done so? Was there anything secret between him and his mother from which she was excluded, and if so, what could be the nature of it.

Well, never mind; it might have been about Mrs. Grey's affair, and had nothing to do with her; but then, why need Henry have equivocated the matter at all?

The little affair troubled her considerably, and her uneasiness was very much augmented a few days afterwards.

She was in the kitchen one morning, putting the finishing touches to the preparations for breakfast, when she heard Mrs. Grey and Henry enter the dining-room.

"Are you sure Mary knows nothing about this matter?" Henry was saying.

"Yes, I am quite certain of it, and I think we have been so fortunate to keep it from her."

"Yes, it would never do for her to find it out now," Henry answered.

Mary wanted to hear no more, but ran out into the back hall and upstairs, whence she appeared in the dining-room as the breakfast bell rang looking a little flushed and excited, but not enough so as to cause comment.

After breakfast Mrs. Gray went out to make some little purchases, and Mary sat down in her husband's big arm-chair in the sitting-room, and tried to reason herself out of her absurd fears and suspicions.

What was it her husband and his mother were trying to keep from her? Why did they treat her like a child, by her own house? she thought indignantly; it was shameful.

Her meditations were interrupted by the entrance of Miss Skinner, who "had run over to have a chat with her," as she said.

"Why, my dear!" she exclaimed at first sight of Mary, "how poorly you are looking! What is the matter?"

"Nothing serious. I was very busy yesterday, and am a little tired."

"Ah, one more in the family makes more work, I know. It won't do to wear yourself out this way, you must let your mother-in-law do her share of the work."

"Ah, indeed she does," exclaimed Mary quickly, "even more than I wish her to do, sometimes."

"Well, it seems to me she goes out more than you do."

"And she ought. I have Henry to claim my attention."

"And she receives callers, too."

"I think you must be mistaken, Miss Susan. She has made no acquaintances since coming here."

"But I certainly saw a gentleman come here, two days ago, when you were down town."

"A gentleman?"

"Yes, and she met him at the door herself. Mr. Gray came home in about half an hour and took him away with him."

"Oh, it was probably a friend of Henry's."

"Perhaps so," replied Miss Susan, doubtingly. She soon after took her departure, leaving Mrs. Gray's mind in a very troubled state.

In vain did she try to reason with herself; to persuade herself that as all this was no concern of hers, it should not trouble her; still she could not help considering the visit of this gentleman with the mysterious private conversations. Why was she not worthy of their confidence? Why all this secret plotting and scheming?

In spite of herself, all Miss Skinner's warnings of a few week's before came back to her mind with a redoubled force, until she could have wished herself deaf before ever listening to that hateful woman.

Suspect her husband's mother, that sweet, gentle-hearted woman, of any treason towards her! No indeed she would not.

Still, almost daily Mary found herself interrupting stolen conversations, and stumbling upon evidences of the secret, and add to this Miss Skinner's almost daily "chats," with her, which always left her feeling uncomfortably with the world in general and her mother-in-law in particular, no wonder that she grew thin and pale, and lost her appetite. Mr. Grey and his mother wondered at it, and tried in vain to raise her spirits. Her husband took her out driving daily.

The day before Christmas arrived. Mary pleaded that she was too busy when she sum for her drive came; but Henry would not listen to it, she must put on her wraps and went. The air was clear and keen; and Mary felt much refreshed and invigorated when at last they drew up before the door.

"Hurry up dinner and take your wraps off, Mary, and then come right down. I want to show you something," said Henry as he helped her out.

When she came down stairs, he was waiting in the hall, and, drawing her hand through his arm, conducted her to the parlor.

"What is it you wish me to see, Henry?" she asked, as she entered the room.

"Find out for yourself," he answered, playfully.

She raised her eyes and gave a shrill scream of delight; and with a bound, was across the room, standing beside a superb piano.

"Oh, Henry, where did this come from? What a perfect beauty! Is it really for me? Oh, how can I ever thank you?"

"One question at a time, my dear; but I will answer your last one first. You have no right to thank me for this Christmas present. Here is the giver," replied Henry, going up to his mother, who had stood a quiet spectator of Mary's pleasure, and putting his arm around her.

"Mother, is it possible! Oh, you darling! how can I ever thank you?" cried Mary, throwing her arms too around Mrs. Grey, and giving her a rapturous hug.

"I am well surrounded, I see," she said, smiling on them proudly.

"I am glad you are pleased with your piano, Mary, and you shall repay me by getting all the enjoyment from it you can."

"It is something I have wanted ever since we were married," said Mary, "but Henry could not afford it.

"And now you have your heart's desire," said Henry "but at the expense of a little sinning, I am afraid. I have two claims against about two week's ago, when you found the parlor door locked? Mother and I were busily holding a consulting, when you came, and I sent you after the cigar-case to give her time to run away. I'm quite certain of it, and that night.

"Yes," said his mother, "such planning and plotting as we have had. The other day, when the man came to make the final arrangements about bringing the piano, you were down town, and I was so afraid that you would return unexpectedly; and this afternoon they came and put it up while you were out driving, but I knew Henry would not bring you home too soon."

Mary felt herself turning sick and faint. This, then, was the secret which had tormented her so; these innocent plots and plans prompted by loving hearts! What a monster she was, to have suspected this noble woman of any wrong! She felt like humbling herself in the dust before her.

"How white you are, child! The excitement has been too much for you," said Mrs. Gray.

But Mary knew better. Still she kept her secret locked in her own breast; not for a year, did she tell this gentle woman know she had been tempted to doubt her.

Mary has never actually dropped Miss Susan Skinner's acquaintance, and that worthy spinster often complains of her "growing difficulty in her views grown," but Mary is only too glad to be able to keep out of the parlor, if she happens to find the absence of her husband, finds her greatest comfort and delight in the society of the mother-in-law, whom she thinks there is no better woman on earth.

The Crib of Bethlehem.

The cradle of our Saviour—the identical crib in which the Infant Jesus was laid—exists still in the city of Bethlehem, and it is well known that St. Jerome, St. Paula and Eustochium, who came to assist the greatest devotion for this sanctuary. Subsequently the crib was brought from the cave at Bethlehem were brought to Rome. Some one secreted that the transfer was made in the year 352; but the learned Pope Benedict XIV. has proved the impostor guilty. The document, at the time that the Saracens had taken possession of Jerusalem, in the year 1299, Pope Nicholas IV. sent to Bethlehem, appeared three times to a pious man, saying, ordering him to carry the crib and his remains to Rome, which he accordingly did.

The crib, considered one of the most precious relics in the city of Rome, is now kept in the subterranean chapel of Santa Maria Maggiore, also known by the titles of Our Lady of Snow and Our Lady of the Crib. To the right side of the main altar is a very beautiful and spacious chapel, built by Pope Sixtus V., in the year 1585, in honor of our Saviour's crib. In the centre, directly underneath the cupola, is a precious altar, where the blessed sacrament reposes. On both sides of the altar are two statues of the Angels in adoration. For the latter a new building 186-60 feet long, finished, that has to be to be done.

Diplomas are given in two departments—the Classical and Scientific—and Certificates in the Commercial course.

TERMS:

(Payable semi-annually in advance)

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once...$ 15 00
Tuition, Lodging, Washing in all branches
Washing and Mending of Linen,
School Stationery, medical attendance and Medicine, Bath, etc., per session of ten months.....200 00

For further particulars apply to the President of Santa Clara College, or to P. E. Graciano Fellows, 211 Hayes street, San Francisco.

REV. R. E. KEVIN, S.J.,
1x3 President.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.

Conducted by the Christian Bros.

FIFTH and JACKSON Sts., OAKLAND, CAL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS A SELECT BOARDING School, in a most healthy and delightful locality, subject to sensible the comforts and adaptable of home to the requirements of a refined and Christian education.

Parents and guardians, desirous of sending their sons to a Boarding School, where they will be kept as much as may be contiguous that the Institution properly fills the character perfectly that our term of five months.

Scholarships received at any time during the year, but not for a shorter period than one term of five months.

TERMS:

(Payment in U. S. gold coin, and invariably in advance)

Board and Tuition, including one set of uniforms, $150
Half-boarders, without Uniforms.....75
Entrance Fee, payable but once.....10

BRO. LUCIAN, Director.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Conducted by the Christian Bros.

Here every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

THOSE WHO COMPLETE THE CLASSICAL course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a practical education in as short a time as possible.

While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The daily exercises of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric, are a feature in the College not to be found in the class rooms.

TERMS FOR SCHOLASTIC YEAR.

(Payable half yearly in advance):

Board, Tuition and Washing.....$250 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Furniture of College.....10 00
Day Students.....60 00

Bedding and Drawing forms extra charges. For further particulars address

REV. BETTERIN, President.

ST. GERTRUDE'S ACADEMY,

RIO VISTA, SOLANO CO., CAL.

THIS ACADEMY, FOR YOUNG LADIES, UNDER the direction of the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, is pleasantly situated in an entrance in the pleasant and, scenically picturesque town of Rio Vista, commanding a view of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, with the whole country round, the health and comfort of the pupils. The building is large and well adapted to the healthful exercise. Pupils of all persuasions will be received, but no pupil will be required to attend the exercises of any other religious.

The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each. Pupils received at any time during the session.

Terms per Session, Payable in Advance.

BOARDING PUPILS.

Board and Tuition, one use of bedding.....$125 00
Instrumental Music.....40 00
Use of Piano.....10 00
Vocal Music (private lessons).....10 00
Drawing, Painting, French, Plain and Ornamental Needlework not extra charge.

DAY SCHOLARS.

Tuition per month, in advance

Junior Class.....$ 1 50
Intermediate Class.....2 00
Senior Class.....2 50
Music, Piano lessons, with use of instrument.....6 00
Music, Guitar lessons, with use of instrument.....4 00

For the entrance fee required. For further information apply to

R. M. CAMILLUS, Directress

Convent of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart,

OAKLAND, - - - CALIFORNIA.

CONDUCTED BY

The Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUATED in the town of Oakland, in a healthy and delightful locality, commanding an extensive prospect of the bay. The buildings have been erected with a view to the comfort and convenience of the pupils, and no expense having been spared to provide for the comfort and health of the pupils.

The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid and refined education.

TERMS:

(Payable half yearly in advance)

Board and Tuition (French and Spanish included), per session of five months.....$ 150
Bed and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by parents).....15
Piano, Harp, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars address

MOTHER SUPERIORESS

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME

MARYSVILLE, CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION, ESTABLISHED IN 1851, chartered by the State Legislature, and endowed with all the rights and privileges of similar College Institutions in the United States.

Reference required. For terms and particulars address

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
Marysville, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL.

Academy of Our Lady of Angels.

SANTA CLARA - - - - CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION, CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of Notre Dame, affords an opportunity of procuring for young ladies, all a finishing education, in a moral and religious education. Use features in particular that should recommend this academy to the patronage of those desirous of having their daughters educated in a convent and be render them useful members of society in after years.

The scholastic year, comprising 10 months, commences at the beginning of August and ends in June.

Pupils are received at any period of the year.

TERMS:

Per quarter, payable in advance.

Entrance Fee, Ten Dollars, to be paid once.
Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding...$60
Vocal and instrumental Music form extra charges.
French and Spanish lessons free. Next session begins August 6th.

Board, Washing and English Tuition, per quarter, $60
Bedroom Fee.....10

EXTRAS:

Instrument, (each).....$ 10
Use of Piano.....10
Vocal Lessons in Class.....10
Private Vocal Lessons.....10
Drawing and Painting in Water Colors.....10
Oil Painting, per lesson.....10
Drawing.....10
No Extra Charge for Harp.

DAY PUPILS:

Preparatory Class, per term.....$ 10
Junior Class.....15
Senior Class.....20
Use of Piano for Practice.....10
Each young lady is required to furnish a set of sheets, six changes of underclothing, six towels, a silver tea spoon, and a set of knives, of blankets, one mattress, two pillows, two pillow cases, two quilts, two ladies, one gentleman's and napkin ring.

Pupils will be furnished with washing, gas, and bed for sale of bedclothes, all are received to be at the convent on the second Monday in August.

All correspondence of the young ladies with their parents must be conducted through the Mother Superior.

For further particulars address

SISTER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME

OF SAN FRANCISCO,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME.

THIS INSTITUTION, FOUNDED IN 1851, chartered in 1855 by Act of the Legislature of the State of California, with the rights and privileges of a College, is situated on Market street, opposite the Old Mission Church. The course of instruction embraces all branches necessary to the accomplishment of a refined and solid education.

TERMS:

Tuition, Board, Washing and Bedding, per session of five months.....$150

EXTRA CHARGES.

Piano, with use of Instrument, per quarter.....$ 10
Vocal Music, Class Lessons.....10
Vocal Music, Private Lessons.....20
Drawing, per session.....10
Painting in Water Colors, per session.....10
Painting in Oil, per Lesson.....10
Spanish, French or German, each.....10
Graduating Fee.....5
Physician's Fee for use of sickroom.....5
Bed and bedding, per session of six months.....10
Bills are presented and are payable at the middle and end of each session.

SISTER SUPERIOR.

Terms per month (cash in advance)

Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes.....$ 1 50
Tuition in the 3rd and 4th College Classes.....2 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes.....2 50
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Primary Classes.....1 50
Tuition in the 3rd and 4th College Classes.....2 00
Tuition in the 1st and 2d Preparatory Classes.....2 50
Use of Piano.....1 00
Use of Harp.....1 00
Use of Instrument.....1 00
Drawing and Painting in Water Colors.....1 00
Painting in Oil, per Lesson.....1 00
Spanish, French or German, each.....1 00
Graduating Fee.....1 00
Physician's Fee for use of sickroom.....1 00
Bed and bedding, per session of six months.....1 00
Bills are presented and are payable at the middle and end of each session.

SISTER SUPERIOR.

EDUCATIONAL.

SACRAMENTO INSTITUTE,

Twelfth and K streets,

SACRAMENTO.....CAL.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF BOARDERS RECEIVED. Every facility for acquiring a sound Christian education, at the mere trifling expense of a pleasant home, is here afforded.

TERMS: Board, Tuition and Washing, $75 per month. For particulars apply to

S. J. McMANUS, Editorial Manager.

Office, Rm. 1202 P. O., San Francisco, Cal. Entered at the San Francisco Post Office as Second-Class Matter.

ST. ROSE'S ACADEMY,

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE

Sisters of St. Dominic,

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS INSTITUTION, HEALTHFULLY LOCATED on Tyler Street, near Steiner, affords every facility for the acquisition of a refined and solid education. The Academic year consists of two terms of five months each.

TERMS:

Board, Washing and English Tuition, per quarter, $60
Bedroom Fee.....10

EXTRAS:

Instrument, (each).....$ 10
Use of Piano.....10
Vocal Lessons in Class.....10
Private Vocal Lessons.....10
Drawing and Painting in Water Colors.....10
Oil Painting, per lesson.....10
Graduating Fee.....5
No Extra Charge for Harp.

DAY PUPILS:

Preparatory Class, per term.....$ 10
Junior Class.....15
Senior Class.....20
Use of Piano for Practice.....10

Each young lady is required to furnish a set of sheets, six changes of underclothing, six towels, a silver tea spoon, and a set of knives, of blankets, one mattress, two pillows, two pillow cases, two quilts, two ladies, one gentleman's and napkin ring.

Pupils will be furnished with washing, gas, and bed for sale of bedclothes, all are received to be at the convent on the second Monday in August.

All correspondence of the young ladies with their parents must be conducted through the Mother Superior.

For further particulars address

SISTER SUPERIOR.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME

SAN JOSE.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION OFFERS TO PARENTS desirous of sending their young ladies to receive a solid and refined education, the advantages of a College Course, as established by the State Legislature, and endowed with all the rights and privileges of similar College Institutions in the United States.

It occupies large buildings, with a playground and commodious grounds, affording extensive familiar and attractive. The Academic year consists of two terms of five months each.

Every facility will be afforded to enable parents who desire to devote their daughters to music or the study of the fine arts.

The scholastic year begins on the 1st of August and closes about the last of June. Pupils are received at any period of the year.

TERMS:

Per quarter, (payable in advance)

Boarding, Tuition in English, Plain Sewing, Use of Bed, Bedding, German, and Washing.....$60
Drawing (per quarter).....10
Use of Piano (per quarter).....10
Painting in Oil, per lesson.....10
Use of Harp (per quarter).....10
Music lessons, Vocal Music and Harp charges.

For further particulars, address

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME.

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY

FOR YOUNG LADIES,

BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY the Sisters of St. Dominic, and is located in the healthy and delightful town of Benicia.

The scholastic year comprises two sessions of five months each, commencing on the 1st of June.

TERMS:

(Payable half yearly)

Board and Tuition.....$125 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Washing.....12 00

Pupils remaining at the Academy during the vacation will be charged $50.

Drawing, Painting and Music form extra charges.

The Expenses on package sent to a pupil be prepaid.

Letters of inquiry may be addressed to

SISTER SUPERIOR.

THE MONITOR,

A CATHOLIC FAMILY JOURNAL.

DEVOTED TO THE FACILITATION AND DEFENSE OF CATHOLIC PRINCIPLES.

Published by THE MONITOR PUBLISHING CO. Office: 606 Clay street, San Francisco, California.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

For Year by Mail (in advance).....$2 00
For Year by Mail (not in advance).....2 50
Six Months (in advance).....1 50
Six Months (not paid in advance).....1 75
Three Months (if not paid in advance).....1 00
Single Copy (if not paid in advance).....10
In Ireland or any of the British Provinces (in advance) $2 00; (not in advance).....2 50

Address all communications, subscriptions, checks, and postal orders to

E. J. McManus, Editorial Manager.

Office, Rm. 1202 P. O., San Francisco, Cal. Entered at the San Francisco Post Office as Second-Class Matter.

The Monitor.

For the Soul is not ashamed to say the Truth..... Serve for Justice for the Souls and pour forth Death Fight for Justice, and God will strengthen the Throne. (Boston iv. 10)

VOL. XXVII. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1883. NO. 12.

GO TO SLAVEN'S

BALDWIN

PHARMACY,

Market and Powell Sts.,

FOR YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS.

PLATING

NICKEL PLATING,
GOLD PLATING,
SILVER PLATING,
Engraved and Repaired.

ALL KINDS OF WORK PLATED WORK CALLED for and safely and free. Lowest estimates given on the cost of plating. Silver Plated Ware, Jewelry, Gun Materials, Musical Instruments, Bicycles, Parlor Fixtures, Bedsteads, Chairs, Tables, Gas Fixtures, Chandeliers, Lamps, Brass Beds, Bronzes, Marble Mantels, Gilding, Bronzing, Lacquering, Japanning, Enameling, Painting, Varnishing, Polishing, Repairing, Etc.

PLATING ESTABLISHMENT

On the Pacific Coast

for Processing Gold, Silver and Nickel Plating, Gilding, Bronzing, Etc.

22 and 24 Second Street, Bet. Market, Mission and Third Sts., San Francisco, Cal.

R. D. HARGREAVES, Proprietor.

Author Pool Tables at the Corner Sale of the Mechanics Pavilion for the last twelve years.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

I PERSONALLY BEG TO INFORM YOU THAT I have now the largest and best assorted stock of Ladies' and Gents' Fine Shoes, Gaiters and Slippers, and that the pleasure of calling your attention to the same, and to show prices, as the following will show for themselves, viz.:

Ladies' Kid Button, cloth top, only made.....$ 2 00
Ladies' Kid Button, Opera toe.....2 50
Ladies' Calf Button, Opera toe.....2 50
Ladies' Calf Button, Opera toe.....2 50
Ladies' Calf Button, Opera toe.....2 50
Ladies' Calf Button, Opera toe.....2 50
Ladies' Kid Button, Opera toe.....2 50
Ladies' Kid Button, Opera toe.....2 50
Ladies' Kid

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

BRIN'S NEW YEAR.

BY SEARGOE C. DODSELL.

"A commemoration derived; to be added for." SHAKESPEARE.

Sitting alone by the winter fire,
Pale but bright of the year,
With the curtains drawn, and the lamps aglow,
And the old clock ticking near—
I hear footsteps in my easy chair,
And demand a dream in the shadows.

Methought I looked through the open door,
A gallant, stalwart Tiller,
As I stood by the door in the hall,
Approached him a Kind;
Pallid, chilled, and blanched, was the dress,
His eyes, like opals, changed and chaste.

He took my hand—I met his glance—
It chilled my very limb;
Opalines to his valentine cold,
I was, and shivered he.
Cold to the outside, cold and dim,
With dreaming fed, I followed him.

The moon was up, the stars were dim—
It was the last night of the year,
Yet they moved and the hurrying throng,
Like the night, moved along.

Pale bride maidens passed and fair,
Pale, pale as pearls, they moved,
Where mouth of lovely and cheek and eyes,
Pale, pale as pearls, they moved.
And Drive, Student with wine, forgot
The school learned answer where.

Past strength-halls, where women's eyes
Outvied the diamonds—lone,
Pass'd gem lamp, Adelaide's face had lit
And thousand from gilt to dome;
Pass'd gem lamp, Adelaide's face had lit,
Yet they moved along with my Guide.

But when the spectre grew small and gray,
And fast his form moved ahead away,
Pass'd the gem lamp, Adelaide's face
Was enough behind me, one before,
Except the levels of the floor.

I was left lone and I sat down with tears,
Yet mourn to disembark;
The Bells began to tremble
And tear of sorrow to wet my cheek—
Pale that Old OLD YEAR'S death were run.

Then, my companion spoke: "O hark!
The Bells begin to chime!
The OLD YEAR'S dead, and I my King,
The young new year is time!
At Midnight of the pleat NEW YEAR,
I ship, and sinkest upon thee!"

IV.

And then, and then, I knew, I knew,
The sound of steps I heard;
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale as stars,
The trusty air was stirred,
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale, pale as
Dead, as they went, a sir-ry chorus:

"Hell! hell! hell!
What to the dead New Year!
The stars in the quiet sky grew pale,
And dreary, dreary, dreary
Were on the altars of the Night,
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale,
Upstairs in the glorious east,
A crimson hell as though to say
Hell to the dead New YEAR!"

Was the green year was lovely, I felt
The Monarch's hand on mine;
I felt the hand of Adelaide,
Lone, lonely hand to mine,
Lone, lonely hand to mine, I felt
Lone, lonely hand to mine.

"Dead! dead! dead!
Dead! dead! dead!
The dead New Year! The dead New Year!
The dead New Year!"

"Aye, it is over thus you prate about
Mourning, Adelaide. You have just returned
From Scotland, tell me, tell me, tell me!
I adjure you, what news do you bring me of Sir Robert? Does he live? Is he of the number of those unfortunates who languor in prison?"

Angus looked heavenward as though implorin
Charlotte, Martin awaits yonder, he will comfort you to your own apartments, you can have no intercourse with him, for now I must unfold, go and pray for Adelaide."

Then as the door closed upon her retreat
Angus turned to Adelaide and said:

"When I left you it was to seek tidings
of your lover, I had no difficulty passing the border, and wandering through Scotland disguised as a beggar, this withered right hand I nothing was from manager of my friend. I learned at last that Sir Robert was, not in a prison—that he was with great difficulty I gained access to him found him sadly changed, he was worn and haggard, suffering from insomnia
and waiting with stoical indifference the day of death. His fellow prisoners had been already tried, and were to leave the cell for the block in a few moments when I entered it. They were Scottish Presbyterians but had been denied the privilege of seeing a priest, so they had no spiritual friend to obtain for them such a favor: They were kneeling in prayer when I entered, and continued to pray, I spoke to Sir Robert. At the sound of my voice one, a man well advanced in years, cried out in faltto:

"Then art welcome Father Angus! Then art come to smooth our pathway to the grave. Give us the last Blessing Father
Angus."

"Nay cousin do not recall, your parents have known from the first that I am a priest of the Church of Rome. Kneeling there at my feet four simple-hearted Highlanders poured forth their souls to me, and received the last absolution. Happier days the older man had been one of my flock, and disguise could not conceal me from him.
As I spoke to them of the mercies of heaven and the mercy of the All Father whose face they were so soon to see, the bolt of the cell door was shot back and the prisoners were summoned to meet their doom.
Hastily bidding Sir Robert adieu, and promising to return. I followed the throng to the spot appointed for the execution Human nature shrunk from the horror of the closing scene. When the last moment was over I hastened back to the prison gate, a kind hearted turnkey took on my forlorn condition and pleaded to to remain in the prison for the night.
Sir Robert's trial took place on the morrow
I prevailed on him to obtain for me one interview. Pledging me to secrecy aided me in the cell promising to return ere daylight and bear me away. Through the long wakeful of the night we of many things.

"I asked him if he entertained any of freedom".

"None," he answered gloomily, "none."

"Why do you not apply to your friends in England?"

"Because I do not wish to involve them in my ruin.

"Tell me of your life since the fatal of Culloden."

"When I behold my brave fellowcitizens a treasonous Monarch, and with that my one last hope fail, with some of friends I fled towards the mainland, hoping to escape to France. Foiled in our deprived us of our hiding place we suffered most frightfully, we lurked and lived, dashed with cries, forgot
The school learned answer where.

Past strength-halls, where women's eyes
Outvied the diamonds—lone,
Pass'd gem lamp, Adelaide's face had lit
And thousand from gilt to dome;
Pass'd gem lamp, Adelaide's face had lit,
Yet they moved along with my Guide.

But when the spectre grew small and gray,
And fast his form moved ahead away,
Pass'd the gem lamp, Adelaide's face
Was enough behind me, one before,
Except the levels of the floor.

I was left lone and I sat down with tears,
Yet mourn to disembark;
The Bells began to tremble
And tear of sorrow to wet my cheek—
Pale that Old OLD YEAR'S death were run.

Then, my companion spoke: "O hark!
The Bells begin to chime!
The OLD YEAR'S dead, and I my King,
The young new year is time!
At Midnight of the pleat NEW YEAR,
I ship, and sinkest upon thee!"

IV.

And then, and then, I knew, I knew,
The sound of steps I heard;
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale as stars,
The trusty air was stirred,
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale, pale as
Dead, as they went, a sir-ry chorus:

"Hell! hell! hell!
What to the dead New Year!
The stars in the quiet sky grew pale,
And dreary, dreary, dreary
Were on the altars of the Night,
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale,
Upstairs in the glorious east,
A crimson hell as though to say
Hell to the dead New YEAR!"

Was the green year was lovely, I felt
The Monarch's hand on mine;
I felt the hand of Adelaide,
Lone, lonely hand to mine,
Lone, lonely hand to mine, I felt
Lone, lonely hand to mine.

"Dead! dead! dead!
Dead! dead! dead!
The dead New Year! The dead New Year!
The dead New Year!"

"Aye, it is over thus you prate about
Mourning, Adelaide. You have just returned
From Scotland, tell me, tell me, tell me!
I adjure you, what news do you bring me of Sir Robert? Does he live? Is he of the number of those unfortunates who languor in prison?"

Angus looked heavenward as though imploring
aid, and said:

"Charlotte, Martin awaits yonder, he will comfort you to your own apartments, you can have no intercourse with him, for now I must unfold, go and pray for Adelaide."

Then as the door closed upon her retreat
Angus turned to Adelaide and said:

"When I left you it was to seek tidings
of your lover, I had no difficulty passing
the border, and wandering through Scotland
disguised as a beggar, this withered right hand I nothing was from manager of my friend.
I learned at last that Sir Robert
was, not in a prison—that he was with great difficulty I gained access to him
found him sadly changed, he was worn and haggard, suffering from insomnia
and waiting with stoical indifference the day of death. His fellow prisoners had been already tried, and were to leave the cell for the block in a few moments when I entered it. They were Scottish Presbyterians
but had been denied the privilege of seeing a priest, so they had no spiritual friend
to obtain for them such a favor: They were kneeling in prayer when I entered, and continued to pray, I spoke to Sir Robert. At the sound of my voice one, a man well advanced
in years, cried out in faltto:

"Then art welcome Father Angus! Then art come to smooth our pathway to the grave. Give us the last Blessing Father
Angus."

"Nay cousin do not recall, your parents
have known from the first that I am a priest

In Original Story.

The Prophecy Fulfilled

—OR—

Two Christmas Eves at Hurtree Manor.

[WRITTEN FOR THE MONITOR BY A CALIFORNIA LADY CONTRIBUTOR.]

CHAPTER IV.

TIDINGS OF SORROW.

Like a thunderbolt falling from the clear sky came the words: "And if a Catholic priest were in some home tonight, and sick of you my father, persuasion to my Mass. And demand a dream in the shadows.

Methought I looked through the open door,
A gallant, stalwart Tiller,
As I stood by the door in the hall,
Approached him a Kind;
Pallid, chilled, and blanched, was the dress,
His eyes, like opals, changed and chaste.

He took my hand—I met his glance—
It chilled my very limb;
Opalines to his valentine cold,
I was, and shivered he.
Cold to the outside, cold and dim,
With dreaming fed, I followed him.

The moon was up, the stars were dim—
It was the last night of the year,
Yet they moved and the hurrying throng,
Like the night, moved along.

Pale bride maidens passed and fair,
Pale, pale as pearls, they moved,
Where mouth of lovely and cheek and eyes,
Pale, pale as pearls, they moved.
And Drive, Student with wine, forgot
The school learned answer where.

Past strength-halls, where women's eyes
Outvied the diamonds—lone,
Pass'd gem lamp, Adelaide's face had lit
And thousand from gilt to dome;
Pass'd gem lamp, Adelaide's face had lit,
Yet they moved along with my Guide.

But when the spectre grew small and gray,
And fast his form moved ahead away,
Pass'd the gem lamp, Adelaide's face
Was enough behind me, one before,
Except the levels of the floor.

I was left lone and I sat down with tears,
Yet mourn to disembark;
The Bells began to tremble
And tear of sorrow to wet my cheek—
Pale that Old OLD YEAR'S death were run.

Then, my companion spoke: "O hark!
The Bells begin to chime!
The OLD YEAR'S dead, and I my King,
The young new year is time!
At Midnight of the pleat NEW YEAR,
I ship, and sinkest upon thee!"

IV.

And then, and then, I knew, I knew,
The sound of steps I heard;
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale as stars,
The trusty air was stirred,
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale, pale as
Dead, as they went, a sir-ry chorus:

"Hell! hell! hell!
What to the dead New Year!
The stars in the quiet sky grew pale,
And dreary, dreary, dreary
Were on the altars of the Night,
Pale, pale, pale, pale, pale,
Upstairs in the glorious east,
A crimson hell as though to say
Hell to the dead New YEAR!"

Was the green year was lovely, I felt
The Monarch's hand on mine;
I felt the hand of Adelaide,
Lone, lonely hand to mine,
Lone, lonely hand to mine, I felt
Lone, lonely hand to mine.

"Dead! dead! dead!
Dead! dead! dead!
The dead New Year! The dead New Year!
The dead New Year!"

"Aye, it is over thus you prate about
Mourning, Adelaide. You have just returned
From Scotland, tell me, tell me, tell me!
I adjure you, what news do you bring me of Sir Robert? Does he live? Is he of the number of those unfortunates who languor in prison?"

Angus looked heavenward as though imploring
aid, and said:

"Charlotte, Martin awaits yonder, he will comfort you to your own apartments, you can have no intercourse with him, for now I must unfold, go and pray for Adelaide."

Then as the door closed upon her retreat
Angus turned to Adelaide and said:

"When I left you it was to seek tidings
of your lover, I had no difficulty passing
the border, and wandering through Scotland
disguised as a beggar, this withered right hand I nothing was from manager of my friend.
I learned at last that Sir Robert
was, not in a prison—that he was with great difficulty I gained access to him
found him sadly changed, he was worn and haggard, suffering from insomnia
and waiting with stoical indifference the day of death. His fellow prisoners had been already tried, and were to leave the cell for the block in a few moments when I entered it. They were Scottish Presbyterians
but had been denied the privilege of seeing a priest, so they had no spiritual friend
to obtain for them such a favor: They were kneeling in prayer when I entered, and continued to pray, I spoke to Sir Robert. At the sound of my voice one, a man well advanced
in years, cried out in faltto:

"Then art welcome Father Angus! Then art come to smooth our pathway to the grave. Give us the last Blessing Father
Angus."

"Nay cousin do not recall, your parents have known from the first that I am a priest

—You will not have your stomach if you drink Dandelion Bitters.

Family Fun.

Meeting for a Text.

The good pastor was known among his perfidious enemies brethren as a "sensational" preacher. One day while he was sitting in his study, immersed in thought, with a heap of crumpled newspapers on the floor beside him, Deacon Bullit came in. After a few preliminary remarks, the pastor said:

"Bullit, I want a subject for my next Sunday sermon, and I can't think of a thing. Can you suggest a theme?"

"I don't know," said the deacon reflectingly.

"I've been through the whole of that pile of papers, through editorials, police columns, even the advertising columns, and there's nothing striking among them. Do you think I could get things up with such ease or discourse pleasing into the City Council, or, say the management of the Water Works?"

"I don't know. Maybe you might. The last time you went for the council the church was crowded; all the countenance came, and the collection was the largest since New Year's."

"I have half a mind to discuss the Panama Canal question. Do you think the people would feel an interest in that? Nobody knows how hard it is to find fresh and interesting subjects. Things happen so incessantly, and in a workmanlike manner, we careful in selecting his text, his crop seems other up to the mark, and produces abundantly. Then comes the reaping, the sealing through the briars and weeds on the barren side of the mountain, looking for a his neighbor's field, says:

"Why, Bill, what ails your sun such look! He always has good luck. Just look at his crops and at his pigs. None of his pigs died last spring, and he got the best price for them in the world. I lost nearly all mine. That big sow I mentioned last year, I lost her litter of pigs, and I had no shelter for them and no money to spend. I sold luck! And he had the luck to have his fall crop in the barn, and they were sheltered and he never rain on.

"Why, sir, three years ago both of us brought wheat to market, and I had to sell out the same amount of wheat each year, and he never been known to a dollar of expense for his crop. I don't know, I don't know, I am in trouble in building that shed for fill. Why, he never had trouble in his life. Last year and this year he just ran his machine out and cut 75 acres of wheat and never broke a thing, just the best luck in the country.

"And, sir, when I went out to hitch up my machine, under the shed I found that he had left his machine in the same place, where it stood last year. I found that the boys had forgotten to take off their pulleys and elevator bits and they were rusted in two and I had to go to town five days before those fellows could get to work on it. That's luck, you bet! Then the factory, and they lost one 200 horse-power, and two wheels dead rips and straw broken and I lost a lot of it, and such luck as I have you never saw. I tell you, sir, when a fellow's luck turns again him, 'tis not much use to try.

"Well, sir, I'm getting tired. He's got boxed famous along the road and everything lies, and he goes to every picnic and fair and farmers' club and everything else. I tell you I don't have time to run about that kind of a thing, I have to stay at home and I get no pats nor pick pleasure and his hogs organize, and he gets the prize. I get bad luck and he gets good luck. I have bad luck and he gets good luck. I have bad luck in everything and he gets good luck in everything. I have bad luck in my family and he gets good luck in his family. I have bad luck in my stock and he gets good luck in his stock. I have bad luck in my crops and he gets good luck in his crops. I have bad luck in my pigs and he gets good luck in his pigs. I have bad luck in my sow and he gets good luck in his sow. I have bad luck in my wheat and he gets good luck in his wheat. I have bad luck in my barn and he gets good luck in his barn. I have bad luck in my shed and he gets good luck in his shed. I have bad luck in my fall crop and he gets good luck in his fall crop. I have bad luck in my fall wheat and he gets good luck in his fall wheat. I have bad luck in my stock and he gets good luck in his stock. I have bad luck in my family and he gets good luck in his family. I have bad luck in my farm and he gets good luck in his farm. I have bad luck in my sun and he gets good luck in his sun. I have bad luck in everything and he gets good luck in everything. I have bad luck in everything and he gets good luck in everything. I have bad luck in everything and he gets good luck in everything

THE MONITOR.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY—PRICE 5 CENTS PER COPY.
WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1864.

Happy New Year to all our Readers.

The Monitor sincerely hopes that both the dawn and the duration of 1864 may prove to every reader a season of unalloyed happiness. Catholics, more than any other class of people in the world, have the m—ns within themselves of making this life perfectly in consonance with the designs of that Heavenly Father who created all mankind—as our Catechism tells us—"to know Him, to love Him, and to serve Him in this life, in order that we may be happy with Him in the next." In the true and constant performance of our duty to God, therefore, we be found that earthly happiness which is the grandest commemoration of the ardent desires of every Christian heart, and how may it be for Catholics to accomplish this grand work of salvation when they have the powerful influence of the hosts of Heaven to help them, and the Church as their guide and guardian angel!

We make not only the dawn of the New Year happy, but to look in the blue of that happiness during the whole year, it is only necessary for Catholics to fortify themselves by the frequent reception of the Sacraments of Penance and Communion. Then we paint best happy creatures in communion with the Church, and in the blessed bosom of the mediatorial year. We must go with her to adore the new-born babe of Bethlehem in Dominican and proclaim with her Hosanna to the Most Highest! In Jan—uary—the month of the Holy Childhood—we must be present at the Circumcision and the Epiphany of our Indian Saviour, as these festivals are celebrated by the Church throughout God established on earth so that "from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same the name of the Lord shall praise and glorify God! In Feb—ruary—the month of the Passion—we must just on the penitential garb of sorrow for our sins, and at Ash Wednesday appear for us the portals of Lent, we must be in spirit with the Church which mourns over the bruisedbeating reed—the and death of our Divine Redeemer. In March—we must be the St. Joseph—we must ask that great Saint, who is the Protector of our Lord and Patron of the Universal Church, to make our lives like unto his—a life of labor and of prayer, of poverty and overcast with celestial glory. In April—the month of the Resurrection—the season of joy and gladness and exhilaration of the joy of our Blessed Redeemer's glorious Resurrection, and as the Church then decks her altars with nature's choicest flowers, and sends up her incense and her choicest music to the throne of God, we should adorn the Sacrifice with the flowers of good deeds and by ceaseless arise again from the tomb of sin to commune with our Blessed Lord to the mansion of Heaven. In May—month of May—the Catholic who follows the beautiful devotions of the Church during this month will, into the Mother of God as the Queen of Heaven, and, by her intercession, obtain the graces necessary for the salvation of our souls. In June—month of the Sacred Heart of Jesus—the Church calls us to commemorate our made in the service of that Sacred Heart which poured forth its blood for our sins upon Calvary's blood-stained Hope. In July—month of the Precious Blood—we again commune with the Church the immense joy of the mystery which the Son of God made in order to open Heaven for sinful man. In August—month of the Heart of Mary—we should turn to the Refuge of Sinners and ask her to receive into her Sacred Heart our petitions for pardon, and to present them to that offended God whose mercy we have lost through our trust, guardian. In September—month of the Religious Orders—the Church leads us to the feet of those holy souls who have founded in the world the Religious Orders which are rapidly peopling Heaven with saints. Then it is that we can implore the prayers and intercession of St. Francis, St. Dominic, and those holy souls who have left the world and the world's glory designed for them from the beginning of the world. In November—the month of the Holy Souls—the Church places before our spiritual vision the sorrows of those souls who pleaded to us living memoriam of the Church for the same that will enter the gates of Purgatory to them and permit them to enjoy the sight of that glory for which they pine impatiently.

And then we can pass the whole of the Calendar of the Church, finding daily, weekly, and monthly happiness in being dutiful children of the Church, following her example in the usage of holiness, and devoting ourselves to God's service without consideration, pride, avarice, or envy—but in humility and patience, trying to please God by purity of life and Christian performance.

In not Heaven worth some struggle? Is not salvation worth some sacrifice? Then, in God's name, let every reader of the Monitor dedicate this year to God, and that shall be the last year of his life, and the happiest that will flow from the fulfillment of this resolution will foreshadow the joy that never expires—the joy of having served God faithfully in the world, and then gained the crown of heavenly happiness throughout the endless existence of Almighty God.

—In consequence of the amount of other matter of an interesting character which crowds our columns this week, several editorials have to be laid over for the forthcoming issue.

A Presbyterian Paper on Protestant Pupils in Catholic Schools.

The Portland, Oregon, correspondent of the Monitor recently obtained the fact that many of the pupils attending St. Mary's Academy at that place, under charge of the Sisters of the Most Holy Name, were Protestants. This item fell under the ironical eye of the fanatical Occident, the Presbyterian organ in this city, which has this to say upon that subject:

"The people of Portland seem to be a race. Others have tried this experiment of sending their children to Catholic schools for their morals. We doubt not that many of the Portland parents will be alone time bitterly repent their action, as has often been demonstrated that the standard of education in these Papal schools is not up to the grade of other denominational schools, or of the public schools of the land. The Religion is not so through, and is in fact superficial; and the minds of the children are filled with a lot of foolish ideas that cling to them even after they have attained to maturity.

The Occident may be wise in its own conceit, but it is certain that it knows nothing whatever of the causes which impelled non-Catholic parents in Portland to place their daughters under the care of Sisters who would protect their pupils from the contamination of crime. The Occident, no doubt, will regret having said anything against Catholic schools when we tell it that the cause which led to what it so much regrets, was the discovery that the greatest vices were permitted to be practiced in schools under Protestant control. Lake scenes produce like results everywhere, and the crimes charged in our columns a short time since against the Presbyterian misdemeanors in Calcutta, are not confined to that locality. Protestant boarding schools, in too many instances, are nearly disguised hour-houses of licentiousness. The "young ladies," as the pupils are fashionably called, are permitted to do almost as they please, to receive visits from well-dressed villains, to correspond with designing scoundrels, to read literature that instills into their souls a love for vice, a hatred for virtue, and a desire for riches even at the cost of all that makes a virtuous maiden akin to the angels in Heaven!

Can this be true? Let the Occident ask some of the Protestant parents in Portland whose daughters are detained beyond the convent roof, where Religion sits enthroned surrounded by her holy handmaids whose lives of chastity, obedience, and holy humility are a perpetual sermon to the scholars whom they teach by precept and example. No Christian parent ever regretted having raised a virtuous, pious, and obedient daughter, and this is the character of all children who are educated in Catholic convent schools. Of course the pupils are not allowed the latitude of conduct permitted in institutions under sectarian auspices. No love letters filled with loose morality are ever permitted to be sent or received; all literature or pictures of a licentious nature is rigidly excluded, and nonsense such as being "over the garden wall" with brainless dudes is entirely denied to the inmates. Such rigid discipline is not always agreeable to "young ladies" who have been allowed such parentage privileges in Protestant schools, hence Catholic institutions are not patronized by that element to any great extent, for the reason that once the youthful Eve has tasted the apple of vice her soul is as much banished from the Paradise of purity created by Almighty God as its fleeting place. And it is for the purpose of preserving the purity of their daughters that some non-Catholic parents send their children to Catholic schools, whereas they give up a blessing instead of a curse to society and their parents.

The Occident asserts that "the standard of education in Catholic schools is not up to the grade of other schools, or of the public schools of the land." But all this depends upon what our esteemed Calcutalic contemporary means by "education." If by "education" the Occident means the knowledge of morality, we grant the correctness of its assertion, but if—on the other hand—by education is meant the instilling into the mind the God-given principles of piety of morality, and purity of heart, then we boldly declare, without fear of successful contradiction, that any parent—we care not what species of Protestant sectarianism or infidelity they may cling to—who has the future happiness of his daughter at heart, is a demon if he places them in schools where their knowledge is acquired at the expense of their chastity and virtue! The Recording Angel of God knows how the soothing condition of crime that is constantly building up in the public schools and in private boarding schools under denominational charge. If proofs were wanting we could fill a whole page of the Monitor with the records of reputations ruined, virtue turned into vice, innocence transformed into iniquity—and all through the baneful influence of education without religion.

Every city in the Union has had its public school scandal—nor has San Francisco been an exception. Has the Occident so conveniently forgotten the revolting revelations in this very city five years ago, when Ewald's "Banks" were led to pollute our shores? Yet the Presbyterian organ prates about "the education in Catholic schools" being "on the wane!" as the public schools, where bad children corrupt all others with whom they come in contact. No! we think God, education is not so thoroughly bad as it is in Presbyterian charter houses, where the female children are ruined only to be ruined! This may seem too pointed a case for our readers, but it is only a few weeks since the criminal career of certain Presbyterian school teachers in Calcutta was supplemented by the same story from Alaska!

Did the Occident read the Chronicle's account of the performance of Presbyterian depravity and immorality in its own schools in Alaska? The details are too grossly immoral for the Monitor to print, but the general lines of the Chronicle will give our readers a slight idea of the iniquities perpetrated by so-called "missionaries" of the Presbyterian sect in Alaska upon the innocent Indian girls whom they sold into the slavery of sin! The Chronicle well styles this latest development of the diabolism of the Presbyterian prostitute-makers "Missionary Depravity in Alaska," and the context proves "How Girls at Wrangel Mission are led astray by evil influences." A pretty Presbyterian preacher the Occident is to tell Protestants not to send their children to Catholic schools! Perhaps it would prefer that they should be committed to the tender mercy of its Alaskan missionaries so as to introduce such victims for the bestial bagnios that therein abound!

But, says the Occident, again: The training in Catholic schools is "not so thorough." We, dear, demoralized Occident, the training in Catholic schools is not so thoroughly bad as those under Presbyterian patronage—a fact proved from statistics already published in our own columns, and the revolting revelations of bestiality practiced in the Presbyterian schools in Alaska, which are charged with being so many harems where girls are raised for the most revolting purposes!

The "foolish dress" which the used-up Occident complains of as being injected into the minds of children educated in Catholic schools, may appear very "foolish" to that species of sectarianism which has done more to make manikins of vicious than any other system ever invented by Satan! Calvinism is the blackest plague that ever scourged a sinful world. The very name is repulsive to Christian charity, and its hide-bound doctrines are heinous to the Christian world and only popular in hell!

Congregationalism is bad, Methodism is worse, but Presbyterianism is Judas Calvin's cross!

The "foolishness" of Catholic education makes Protestant girls models of virtue in comparison with the Presbyterian ones who maidenly modesty before which even brazen vice hangs its head abashed. Catholic institutions are the hives of holiness where educational industry promotes purity of mind, and where innocence is protected in all its integrity. And what is the result? We find the noblest type of virtue loving womanhood among those non-Catholic ladies of the land who have had the good fortune to fall under the educational influence of Sisters. There are thousands of Protestant parents all over this Union who heartily thank God for having infused into their minds the idea of sending their lovely young daughters to Catholic schools, where religion and virtue reign supreme, and where vanity and vice are unknown.

And so far as thoroughness in education is concerned, there are no schools from whence go forth so many well-informed graduates as from Catholic institutions. Does the Occident want proof of this? Then, if so, we will let a little light into its obtuse and obstinate nature by citing a paragraph just at hand in a recent number of the Sonoma County Democrat, published at Santa Rosa, in this State, which will doubtless sit badly on its saturnine stomach. Here it is:

"Miss Julia Bolton, who stood first in point as at the late teachers' examination—is a day pupil of the Convent of the Holy Cross, and a school of the Convent Academy of this city. Miss Bolton's papers in the Spelling, Reading, Epistolary Chronicles all began to "blow" about a special supplement which each was to furnish to the readers! Of course we wondered how such young ladies could be so far behind order could get up a supplement, but the mystery was soon solved when we saw the supplement produced, and we began to be the same in all of them! This is the young friend upon their subscribers and deserve to be severely censured; but then we feel make allowance for presidents of error will by contact contact with untruth become so absorbed in the contagious blast that we are what they say or do that is unjust so long as they are so denounced. It is sad to have to say such things about our Protestant contemporaries but our lacts justify in so printing them down as false producers.

Thomas Brennan's Lecture.

It has been our good fortune to listen to many speeches delivered by Irish patriots from public platforms both in this country and Ireland, but we must say that we never in our born general, hearty, or deserved applause than that which greeted Mr. Thomas Brennan—the Irish National League organiser—in the course of his lecture last Friday night. The time of Mr. Brennan's lecture was inauspicious so far as a large attendance was concerned, but so well pleased were the hundreds who heard him on that occasion that he was publicly requested to repeat his splendid plea for Ireland's freedom at some future time after the holidays. In accordance with that unanimous request, Mr. Brennan will lecture again on Friday evening, the 4th of January next, and we hope to see such an outpouring of the people of San Francisco on that occasion as will prove to Mr. Brennan's amiable attention that the friends of Ireland's cause are thoroughly in earnest in their patriotic sympathy for that long-suffering nation.

Mr. Brennan, although young in years, is a veteran in the cause of Ireland, having been honored by England with incarceration in prison for his patriotic sentiments. He was one of the first men arrested in Ireland when the lion's paw was first laid upon the Emerald Isle, and his incarceration only implanted his patriotism the more deeply in his soul, and he has been one of the most industrious workers in the cause of Ireland's freedom ever since. Hence he has a more thorough and intimate knowledge of Irish political, and can better describe the sad effects of English misrule in that unfortunate country than any man we have heard upon this ever-fruitful theme.

Another feature peculiar to Mr. Brennan, and not the least commendable, is the fact that his lecture does not include any of that fanfaronade and flourishing of words that many speakers on Irish subjects fill their fulsome address before their fellow-citizens. Mr. Brennan tells his audiences plainly that the Irish people have faults which they must correct ere they can hope to achieve national independence for their native land. He points out to them the causes which have led to the disastrous failure of recent patriotic movements, and he shows them plainly the path they must follow if this generation hopes to reach the goal so generously struggled for by so many great Irish patriots and the whole Irish people.

Mr. Brennan's lectures—aside from their patriotic intent—are masterpieces of eloquence, but of that practical style of patriotic address which is certain to please sensible men. He adversates unity among Irishmen, concord among all creeds and conventional agitation as the programme of patriotism laid down by the Irish National League, and he is fully convinced that if the Irish people in America only give practical sympathy to the Nationalists in Ireland, the dawn of the twentieth century will see Ireland redeemed from the curse of persecuting and proscriptive policy of England, and her people granted the right to raise recruits. Justice's relation had its origin in pride plus the consequence of the Fall. Pride was the cause of the Fall of the first great rebel Lucifer. When the world is prepared to accept the Christian doctrine of the cross, it will be about time to begin the process of the cross.

OUR IRISH LETTER.

Sad Reductions on Christmas in Ireland—Outrages between Repeal Slavery and American Freedom—Urgent Necessity for Continued Agitation—Remarks of O'Donovan's Death The O'Donnell Trial—Russell's Splendid Speech—Lord Rosmore—Disgusting Spectacle—Speech in Belfast—A Rinewonan's Christmas Wish to the Irish of Ireland.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR:

Inter Nos—In my last letter I promised to say something about the Dalkey and its surroundings. A celebrated lecturer Hugh Rosenthal speaking some years ago of the Irish, said that "he did not know who built Ireland, but he knew that the Irish built Dalkey." Dalkey is a maritime village in the vicinity of the Dalkey, Mother earth in one of her sportive moods, threw up a rock, which the Irish Church, where Confessor Archbishop Fleming, and Lord Deputy Sidney, and Lady Sidney, and Lady Mary Sidney, and Lady Mary Sidney, and Lady Mary

SYSTEMATIC ROBBERY.

A Secret Society which Obliges Its Members to Steal.

New York, Dec. 5.—An audacious case of [illegible] was brought to light yesterday, when a young man named [illegible] was arrested charged with robbing his employer, [illegible] Broadway, of a number of [illegible] articles of jewelry, [illegible] watches, [illegible] and other valuables. The young man, [illegible] stated that he was a member of a secret society, [illegible] which obliged its members to steal whenever and wherever they could, [illegible] the property thus stolen was to be divided among the members of the society. He stated that [illegible] he had been a member of the society for [illegible] years, and had stolen [illegible] in that time. He [illegible] that the society had a [illegible] in Brooklyn, and that [illegible] of the stolen property was always ready to share goods in Chicago and elsewhere.

—Mrs. M. E. Jones, of Sacramento, writes to agent for California, without he believes the publication that has been made, that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Pellets and Favorite Prescription are not to be had in Sacramento. Dealers, however, find Dr. Pierce's medicines so well known and so much in demand that they will not be made the basis of misrepresentation; it is the interest of no dealer to offer a worse medicine when a better and more easily endorsed one is at his command. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Pellets and Favorite Prescription are sold by all druggists, and may be had of any dealer in medicine. The Pellets are a most delicious laxative, and are unsurpassed as a dinner pill. Dr. Pierce's Pellets are small, easy to take, and do not gripe. Dose, one pellet. Sold by druggists.

—Mr. W. F. Cody, Prestal, Ia., writes that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has done him more good than all other medicines he has taken in the last twelve months.

—Mr. Augustus Hurwitz, Professor of vocal and instrumental music, 1017 Market street, opposite Mechanics' Pavilion, is ready to receive pupils. Call or address 10 South Park.

—Our readers who may have occasion to purchase Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry, Silverware, Opera Glasses, etc., will find it to their advantage to call on or address Jos. Rosborough, Jeweler, 104 Montgomery street, opp. Occidental Hotel.

—Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator. The great vitalizer. A vegetable preparation. Purely medicinal. Does not stimulate like other bitters. Does not intoxicate. Does not stupify. Does not inflame. Does not leave the system in a worse condition than before taking. Does not contain a single drop of alcohol. Does not make the weak weaker. Does not make the drunkard drunker. Does not make the well sick. Does not make the sick sick. Does not make the sick well. Does not make the well well. Does not make the rich poor. Does not make the poor rich. Does not make the wise fool. Does not make the fool wise. Does not make the good bad. Does not make the bad good. Does not make the old young. Does not make the young old. Does not make the sick healthy. Does not make the healthy sick. Does not make the living dead. Does not make the dead alive. Does not make the man woman. Does not make the woman man. Does not make the man a child. Does not make the child a man. Does not make the man a man. Does not make the woman a woman. Does not make the child a child. Does not make the good good. Does not make the bad bad

THOMAS BRENNAN.

The Views of an Iron Agitator—What he thinks of the Irish Situation. The proper manner to Renew Ireland's Industrious—Injury Done to the Cause by Boisterous Declamation—Constitutional Agitation the Surest Road to Success.

Like all important visitors to this city, Mr. Thomas Brennan, the other great organizer of the National League in this country, was interviewed soon after arrival and gave his views upon the great subject of his labors very freely. As Mr. Brennan speaks advisedly regarding the effect of the agitation which is responsible, the following evidence will prove interesting to all who have any sympathy with the struggle of the Irish people for self-government.

Mr. Brennan is a young man, being but 29 years of age—tall, slim, with long arms and bony hands, which were frequently used in an earnest manner by a gesticulating habit in his conversation. He has a light, slightly florid complexion, wears a short mustache and pointed and has deep blue eyes that look straight at one with a decidedly sensible look.

NATURE OF THE FIGHT.

"This is your first visit to America, is it not?" was asked by way of an opener.

"Yes, sir; this is the first time I visited a country which I hope will not be the last."

"Why do you think that country?"

"Because I have enjoyed myself so much since I landed that I feel I shall be disappointed if I do not come back."

"Well, I suppose you prepared for anything in America, you know. But I must confess I was surprised when I read that you had been in some of the Parnell meetings and had spoken with a force of eloquence and earnestness, which, from the report, I should think, would be very effective in such a cause."

"Well, I suppose I was prepared for anything I found in America, as I had read a good deal about it before I came here. At Denver I was surprised at the kind of people I found there, very from the left inside in such substances. In Chicago I found the people very hospitable, and very much disposed to be of service to a stranger. I found the people very hospitable in Omaha, too. In Denver, I found the people very hospitable, too, and very anxious to be of service to a stranger. I found the people very hospitable in Salt Lake City, too, and very anxious to be of service to a stranger. I found the people very hospitable in Sacramento, too, and very anxious to be of service to a stranger. But, from the accounts you have received from others, would you not place San Francisco hospitality ahead of that of the last in Lord Mayor's procession?"

"Well, sir," said Mr. Brennan, "if you must know, I must say that I found the hospitality of San Francisco very good, but the I never spoke to a stranger, but the I never spoke to a stranger, but the I never spoke to a stranger

Poetry.

A CHEERY LEAF FOR IRELAND.

By Reason C. Doudeey.

—And as we may
Then this, to add our grain leaf to the tops
Of those that make the sum of our country wealth
When all the world over shall carry her, by magic of Dr. R. D. Hyde.

There are pleasures as familiar to many as air,
And found as many a treasure,
They what ideas, and pitiable these, year after year
Are to Ireland.

In the Old World as well as the Young,
We "Dwell on side should Ireland and Ireland!"
"A friend is your Juggernaut, Ireland!"
"Who tired of hearing of the wrongs and the woes
Of your most ignorant Irish in Dublin?"

We might question the truth of our elegant
Ireland.

The sunshine down on profound—
But amongst the best, dull, in time of sorrow
Of that pall is hung band and sable band!
Who cared for Ireland? Who, and who wept the Ireland.

Ireland! Ireland! Ireland!
Ireland!

Ireland! Ireland! Ireland!

Ireland! Ireland! Ireland!

Ireland! Ireland!

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1884.

IMPORTANT CIRCULAR FROM ARCHBISHOP ALEMANY, O. P.

A Caution to Catholic Against Impostors.

The following circular was read in all the churches of this Archdiocese on Sunday last:

REV. DEAR SIR—Rather repeatedly warning the public through the press and by Circular, coming from the Abbey, I feel compelled to call attention once more to the fact that one or more confidence men are operating in this city, dressed as Catholic Priests, introducing themselves as such, and claiming to be collecting money upon my authority for the proposed new Cathedral.

These announcements from the Abbey are issued to all the Masses and at Vespers, that no one has any such authority from me.

It is to be hoped that all our people will be on their guard when called on by such gentlemen, and not permit themselves to be imposed upon by those pretending to collect for religious purposes, but who, most probably, devote such sums to ulterior less holy.

Yours truly in Christ,

✠ J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

San Francisco, Dec. 28, 1883.

A Newspaper that Tries to Teach the Pope and the Bishops.

One of the more absurd positions which a newspaper can assume is to undertake to teach the Pope upon any topic connected with faith or morals. But the arrogant presumption of some secular journals in this direction reminds one of the proverbial fly on the chariot wheel. They seem to think that they could plan out on paper a better order of heavenly planets than that designed by the Creator for himself, and undertake to teach the Creator how to form a better world than this! Hence when the Oregonian undertakes to tell Pope Leo XIII. that he is "mistaken" for his policy regarding the public school question, it only makes itself the laughing-stock of sagacious Catholics, and places itself on a plane with those insane people who think that what unknown to them have been much better if they had been consulted prior to its formation.

If—as the Oregonian very falsely asserts—the Pope is "mistaken" in his "various open public schools," it naturally follows that the Episcopate over the entire world is "mistaken" in the policy of "mistakes," and, in fine, 200,000,000 of Catholics are all "mistaken"—just because a single secular journal in Oregon says so! It would be a good play if all the wisdom upon this question should be crammed into a single journalistic brain, and the Popes, Prelates, Priests, and Catholic people left in ignorance of the "truth" which that single brain is not trying to appropriate to themselves name of the Oregonian's sagacity! What a very serious "mistake" Archbishop Seghers of Oregon and his Bishops made a couple of years ago when they assembled in Provincial Council and held their Synod upon important truths!

"It's evident that not only Catholics, but we too, if we be not faithful, whether they have eyes or not, should be on our guard lest we too are all in very broad daylight and open, and yet blind to the Jesuitical wiles of Catholic Church school, where the rising generation of our country is being trained in the principles of religious intolerance, of the spirit of the Inquisition, of the Divine Right of Kings, of the superiority of one sex. The wisdom of the Jesuits is shown in the training of children

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. E. DAVIS
PRACTICAL
BOOT AND SHOE MAKER.
1408 Market Street,
Bet. Eighth and Ninth, San Francisco

"I sell Boots and Shoes of my Own Make only."

Comfortable to hand the finest quality and latest style of custom work. Boots and Shoes made to order.

BAR-AMBRO BEAUTY DOES AT SHORT NOTICE.

EUPHORBIA PILULIFERA
Great ASTHMA Herb
Sold by Druggists. Dr. Marsden's Office, 1 Kearny St. S.F.

SITUATION WANTED

By a thoroughly sober, quick and industrious man, a position of trust, in a business house, or as foreman of a mercantile establishment, or as foreman of a large farm. Address "Business," Box 1, Monitor office. Apply to "Business" at the office.

R. A. MARSHALL, W. H. MILES,
A. K. PARKER, Secretary. Supt.

ENTERPRISE Mill and Building Co.,
(Incorporated by J. Bunnell & Co.)
SAWING, PLANING, TURNING AND MANUFACTURING.
Frames, Doors, Sashes, Blinds and Mouldings.
BAR COUNTERS AND STORE FIXTURES.
S E cor 19 and 20 Spear St.,
Rear of Pacific Gas Works, on Steuart St.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Planing work for buildings on hand and made to order.

N.B.—Spear Street and Gilbert Bulkhead Mill on the Pacific Coast.

WhaleSawORKS
ESTABLISHED 1857.
PETTIGREW COBBS INDUSTRY
And by our Premium from the CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.
WHALE SAWS, WOOD WORKERS
MANUFACTURED AT ST. JOHNS OR GARDINER
Warranted Superior to any Other Saws, Foreign or Domestic, Long Experience, Perfect Workmanship, Fair Prices, Prompt Attention, Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast, Sold by Dealers generally throughout the Country.
PETTIGREW & COBBS, Portland, Maine.

INFORMATION WANTED.

WHERE OFFICE OF NEW YORK, THE DAILY TIMES of March 20, 1871, may be obtained. Any person having a copy of that date, please let us know, and we will be willing to pay for it, if not exceedingly rare. Address, "Times," Box 1, Monitor office.

GOLDEN ARROW, Nos. 1 and 2 Montgomery Block, Montgomery and Sansome Streets, Opposite Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express.

Specimen of Medal, Medal Ribbon & Gilt Ribbon.

Wanted, May 1, 1871.

The proprietor of the Adamantine Gum Company, Boston, Mass., U.S., wishes to hear of a good agent in San Francisco, who can give his time to the sale of his goods. Address, with full particulars, Box 1, Monitor office.

Dandelion Tonic makes the old young and the weak strong and healthy.

Linen, Cotton and Rags, Lawyers, 602 Lower St., Sacramento, Cal., Purchasers in quantity, Commission, Warehouse and Storage. Prompt returns.

Dandelion, strength and vigor drink Dandelion Tonic.

The Wonder Flower and Feather Renovator, Dr. Jaffa's Medical Book, is now in the 19th year of its success. Ladies, if your husbands have left you, or have you lost an only child, or are you suffering from the effects of secret disease, or are you nervous, weak, low-spirited, or have you lost your hair, or are you troubled with pimples, or are you rapidly sinking to the grave, you should read the Wonder Flower and Feather Renovator, which will cure you and make you happy and healthy. Sent free by mail, 25 cents. Address, Dr. Jaffa, Box 1, Monitor office.

Cheap Writing Fluids for sale by all grocers.

The sale of an article is the criterion for all others. Dandelion Tonic leaves large sales.

Dr. Jaffa's Hair Dye, Jet Black, Brown or Light Brown, 50 cents. Dr. Jaffa's Dandelion Tonic, $1. Dr. Jaffa's Pimple Lotion, $1. Dr. Jaffa's Dandelion Tonic makes the stomach and its best tonic.

PARADISE RESTAURANT OF PORTLAND, Oregon, Proprietors, Messrs. Lamb and Lewis, Cor. Second and Yamhill Sts., Portland, Oregon. Meals at all hours. Lodgings, 25 cents. Rooms, 50 cents. Free Lodging Room. Free Bus to and from the house. Free Lodging Room. Free Bus to and from the house. Free Lodging Room. Free Bus to and from the house

PARNELL.

HIS GREAT SPEECH AT THE BANQUET IN DUBLIN.

English Injustice and Irish Misery Contrasted.

The Unreviewed King of Ireland Defies The Gladstone Government.

"NO SURRENDER" THE NATIONAL MOTTO.

A Speech Worth Reading and Preserving.

The Grand Rotunda of the Rotunda, Dublin, was filled to its utmost capacity on the night of December 10th, when the banquet of the Irish National Land League was held. The chair was occupied by the President of the Land League, Mr. Parnell, M. P., and among the guests were the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Mr. Dwyer Gray, M. P., Mr. Sexton, M. P., Mr. Healy, M. P., Mr. Brennan, M. P., Mr. Dillon, M. P., Mr. Lalor, M. P., Mr. Finigan, M. P., Mr. Commins, M. P., Mr. Barry, M. P., Mr. Sheridan, M. P., Mr. Brooks, M. P., Mr. Harris, M. P., Mr. Cowen, M. P., Mr. Cullinan, M. P., Mr. Lane, M. P., Mr. Nolan, M. P., Mr. Power, M. P., Mr. Mahony, M. P., Mr. Deasy, M. P., Mr. Conway

Poetry.

THE RESTORED CRUCIFIX.

To quell the storm, a crucifix was lowered to the
The peasants cross, St. Frank Xavier cherished
The hallowed relic, "worn by him, no sooner touched the dead,
Than immediately cured and blind
Thus temporal mind and bodies calmed, as the' is temporal sleep.

He drew a cord which held the cross, while in the rough wave based.
Also! with anxiety, Xavier found his dear loved treasure lost.
Unknown Indian, which brought him
[illegible]
Through years of toil and suffering—the [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

THE MONITOR.
PERIODICAL TRIAL OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1864.

A Religious Rip Van Winkle Wakes up Again!

In the MONITOR of November 14th, last we took the Christian Advocate to task for flatly denying that St. Peter was ever in Rome, giving the Methodist representative six weeks either to substantiate its assertion or retract its wanton falsehood. The Advocate has been silent on the subject ever since up to its current issue, wherein it tries to prevaricate after the usual pace of Protestant preachers when caught uttering willful untruth. Here is the falsehood as printed in the Advocate last November:

"Concerning the fact that Paul had much to do with planting the Church in the Eternal City, and that he was at Rome, and Peter never was there, we have every reason to believe, and no proof to the contrary."

In this interest a so-called Protestant "divine" and the editor of a Methodist organ, publicly declares on his own responsibility that St. Peter was never in Rome. This is a falsehood manufactured out of whole cloth. It is a falsehood nowhere else. It is not in one how nearly a Methodist organ can stand on a falsehood such as this. Have it as many times as you please, Protestant authorities in support of his views:

"All the Fathers, with great unanimity, do testify that Peter was at Rome, and that he suffered martyrdom in that Church. And indeed, we can point a monument that our apostle was there, and there he suffered martyrdom."

"To us there appear to have no shadow, even of probability, against the tradition which is so full authority, or, if in history, we could know any thing at all, we cannot doubt that Peter was at Rome, and there suffered martyrdom in the cause of Christ."

"Let these pages be added the following observations of Mr. Whiston on the subject:

"Mr. Brown, with some such Protestants before him, seems inclined to deny that St. Peter was at Rome; concerning which matter we have very ancient and good, even the Bishop Tonge, D. D., Mr. Burnet proves most therefore, that St. Peter was at Rome. This is no doubt in the general, that Peter was at Rome. This is so clear a matter of fact, that it is a wonder that any Protestant should deny it. Indeed, it is a wonder that any Protestant should be so much ashamed of St. Peter to Rome, as to be bigot so blind as the preacher who will permit in sticking to falsehood when the truth is so plainly put before him or in the present instance.

— Again we ask the friends of the Mormon among the Rev. Clergy and Laity to begin the new year by each sending at least one new subscriber to this paper. A Catholic journal is a Catholic home is what Pope Leo XIII. calls "a perpetual missionary" and what says Eusebius, "by a trope he calls Babylon"—a name commonly given to Rome by Christians, at the time, according to Tertullian, St. Jerome, St. Augustine, Orosius, and other writers.

St. Jerome, writing to Pope Damasus about the year 375, speaks of "the Chair of Peter in Rome." St. Optatus writes about "the place of Peter in Rome," St. Bernard speaks of "the episcopal Chair in Rome in which sat Peter, the head of all the Apostles." And then might we continue to quote dozens of ancient Doctors of the Church, Popes, and historians, in order to hark back the untruth so designedly uttered by means of ignorance imbued with malice.

Now let us turn to Protestant authority and show the Advocate how far it is from the truth in its denial of St. Peter's presence in Rome, even from a Protestant standpoint, as the authorities we intend to introduce are of such a character as to condemn the Advocate's falsehood through the evidence of those who belong to the Church of Peter's enemies.

Dr. William Cave, a learned and distinguished Protestant divine, thus emphatically differs from the Advocate in his Antiquitas Apostolica, published in 1684:

"But to deny that St. Peter ever was at Rome, contrary to the whole stream and current of antiquity, and to the unanimous consent of the most early writers, and that modern upon little curiosities, and trifling arrils, and, in other matters, have gone so far as to deny that any such thing ever was, or that it can be proved that Peter ever came at Rome, is a piece of boldness and spiritual pride, which, I confess, I could not ever yet comprehend, and might give too much occasion to our adversaries of the Church of Rome, to charge us (as they sometimes do falsely enough) with a contempt of the dignity and antiquity of this Church; but that it is notoriously known, that all the ancient Fathers, and the primitive party, men most celebrated for learning and piety, have always spoken of it, and by inference and unanimous consent, and as that concerning here pretty allowed by all, that Peter was at Rome, and there suffered under the Nero, and that, at his death, he was crucified, and that he was buried there, and that he was crucified, and that he was buried there, and that he was crucified, and that he was buried there, and that Manufactory of Boiled, Barrels & Co.'s Patents.

Weston, May 1, 1871.

The proprietor of the American patents has established a factory in the suburbs of Boston, where he will be prepared to supply the entire demand for the Boiled Shirts, Bosoms and Wristbands, which have been manufactured in Europe have been imported and sold in this country. The Boiled Shirts are made of the finest linen, and are equal in appearance to any other shirt. The Bosoms and Wristbands are made of the finest linen, and are equal in appearance to any other bosoms and wristbands. The Boiled Shirts are made in the latest styles, and are equal in appearance to any other shirts. The Bosoms and Wristbands are made in the latest styles

BRENNAN.

HIS SECOND LECTURE A SPLENDID SUCCESS.

A Vast Audience and Great Enthusiasm.

A BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR IRELAND'S FUTURE.

The New Plan of the National Delegates.

[illegible]

side to shave and polish! Why, the spirits of these victims are so high that such cants is one as much as kids action. Their bones, which rest in silent valleys and graves in Ireland, move uneasily in their sleep if the Irish nation were to cease the sale of their members. The dies of inclemdom are rank and dry to heaven. No wonder that some think that the memory of the martyrs of other times can only be washed away in blood. The Land League has seen enough of good faith in the short space of its existence. It refused the period of Ireland $5,000,000 a year. It yet the farmers some security for their holdings. It did more. It created a spirit in the breasts of the people which will yet be the means of freeing the country.

NATIONAL SENSE TO REVOLUTIONISE IRELAND. For awhile the people of Ireland left their cause in the hands of politicians, who betrayed and half sold them. Irish representatives in the House of Commons was a mere matter of barter and sale between the Irish member and the English ministry, and some Irish members, such as Mr. Gray, Dublin, and some others thought that they had a right to be bought, and they sold their country. Well, the people of this country, when the Land League was formed, began to see the liberty of slavery and the sweetness of freedom. They began to see that they were human, and the men who made the laws were but the servants of the people. They began to see that God had made them free and not slaves. They began to see that God had made them free and not slaves. They began to see that God had made them free and not slaves

Poetry.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

A LEGEND OF THE ASPEN.

While a soulless summer shone
A religious season true,
Far from the idle and crowded road
Where no fashionable dreamer could
Its mystic breathing see.

But there, where summer's cheerfulness may Blessed the shadowing leaves,
Where the sunbeam, in a long bright day,
Sought, vainly, to see the green I lay,
Did not the hundred aspens

In breathless zeans they quivered, till
I asked, a reason with you,
"What numbness has' both made yo thrill?
"What dreadful secret, remembered still,
That man your branches are?"

In words poetic Faith resolves,
The legend runs thus,
Saying, the dream that Peggy saw
Trembled thus over aspen leaves,
Mysterious upon tree!

"Twas Peggy, that she "now by night,"
And if the Christ and Dreamed, "I am one of my mistress' thrall
Through silver day, and sweet night,
To Peggy's color hand.

Answered, at last, their blent relaves,
And, in bitterness full,
Sighed, and sighed, and sighed, a shiver crept
Of drooping forms and weary feet,
Of drooping forms and weary feet,
Of drooping forms and weary feet,
Of drooping forms and weary feet.

"Your bound of every tree that grows
Upon the brown forest!
Ay, and the Christ, and Mary Mother
Cold shudders when the sunlight shows
Your shadowy forms!"

As answer came the wrap-worn Three,
Sighing, "Ah, Peggy!"
In homage bowed each graceful tree,
Each branch gathered grey cowled one
And each gathered God.

Ah! ooth, it was a plaintive sigh
Thy sweet-souled sorrowing
The Mother-Maid, the Infant Joy,
Which Christ, Peggy, heard and hide,
And that best forest bent.

Ah! ooth, the sorrowing trees
Bowed the wonder-filled
Ah! ooth, the Christ, Peggy, heard
Ah! ooth, the Mother-Maid, Peggy,
Ah! ooth, the Infant Joy!

The Northern Christ, Peggy, heard
Two South His Relatives
Ah! ooth, the Christ, Peggy, heard
With through each and a world-thrill spoil
Ah! ooth, the Christ, Peggy!

And then, through peaceful meadows shine
And breathing summer glow
Of sunshine Sabbath Divine,
Peggy, heard Christ, Peggy!

Thy holy gentle Faith resolves,
Thy sweet dreamer, Peggy,
And tells the dream that Peggy saw
Trembled over aspen leaves,
Mysterious upon tree!

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

SAN FRANCISCO.

[FOR THE MONITOR.]

THE ABOUT-SUBMITTED LETTER.

BY REV. D. A. VERNEY.

"Our development layer, hardest engineers, good mechanics, experienced miners wanted."—From Advertisement.

We stood assembled, when, in the smoker here,
Our "Development Company" commenced to chat,
We exchanged tales with an ex-gambler,
Who had lived and died, humbly in an hour.
Here we met one the recent Leather arrive
Who had "Development Company" on his face,
Indeed! Had they no some ore where Indeed! Had they no some ore where Indeed! Had they no some ore where Indeed! Had they no some ore where

Oakland, N. J.

Literary Miscellany.

A Good Mechanic.

How a Trick Played Upon Him Proved Profitable.

I was born in Lumbering just about fifty years ago. Goodness! how I used to work when I was a lad, sawing and hammering. There was then no such thing as idleness. There was then no such thing as idleness. There was then no such thing as idleness

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SECOND YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1884.

Sensation Caused by a Catholic School.

The creation of a small-pox hospital in a thickly-settled neighborhood could not create a greater sensation than that created in West Oakland recently in consequence of Father J. B. McNally—and his Catholic parishioners—having erected a convalescent school, immediately opposite the public school building. The preachers are still talking about the "outrage," the press is filled with the so-called "opinions" of newspaper and teachers who think they behold the downfall of the Republic if "those Romish priests" are permitted the privilege of educating their own children; and then the whole community of West Oakland is thrown into transports of delight or despair according to how the people view the school question.

But why all this opposition to a Catholic school? If it conduction in the health and morals of life, those people who make it their third rejoice, and not rather, when they see school houses multiply; hoping, that they will be glad to see every school whose atmosphere is pervaded by the influence of the priest and his Catholic parishioners—without sending any non-Catholic a cent of taxation. Even public school teachers should be glad to have their labors lightened by the loss of scholars. Why is it, therefore, that some people are so frightened when they cannot herself and tribulation to a certain element in every community! Let us answer in the negative, plainly: It is because the enemies of Christianity as represented by the Catholic Church, see in public schools, a powerful engine, properly influenced, to undermine Catholic faith in the hearts of the rising generation. Hence their zeals are influenced with heat when they see the children of Catholic parents, surrounded from birth that influence which was designed specially to stamp them in infidelity. At the mention of a single element the legions of Satan hurl themselves into demoniacal fury as they behold their victim escape through the virtue of the Sacraments of the Church of God; and, in this manner—the allies of the Evil One in this world have to see Catholic children removed from the soul-killing influence of schools into the heavenly atmosphere of moral and spiritual strength, where the teachers are models of what the pupils are expected to be—chaste Christians and Catholics. Hence, the cry of "Romish Priests" are permitted the privilege of educating their own children; and then the whole community of West Oakland is thrown into transports of delight or despair according to how the people view the school question.

But why all this opposition to a Catholic school? If it conduction in the health and morals of life, those people who make it their third rejoice, and not rather, when they see school houses multiply; hoping, that they will be glad to see every school whose atmosphere is pervaded by the influence of the priest and his Catholic parishioners—without sending any non-Catholic a cent of taxation. Even public school teachers should be glad to have their labors lightened by the loss of scholars. Why is it, therefore, that some people are so frightened when they cannot herself and tribulation to a certain element in every community! Let us answer in the negative, plainly: It is because the enemies of Christianity as represented by the Catholic Church, see in public schools, a powerful engine, properly influenced, to undermine Catholic faith in the hearts of the rising generation. Hence their zeals are influenced with heat when they see the children of Catholic parents, surrounded from birth that influence which was designed specially to stamp them in infidelity. At the mention of a single element the legions of Satan hurl themselves into demoniacal fury as they behold their victim escape through the virtue of the Sacraments of the Church of God; and, in this manner—the allies of the Evil One in this world have to see Catholic children removed from the soul-killing influence of schools into the heavenly atmosphere of moral and spiritual strength, where the teachers are models of what the pupils are expected to be—chaste Christians and Catholics. Hence, the cry of "Romish Priests" are permitted the privilege of educating their own children; and then the whole community of West Oakland is thrown into transports of delight or despair according to how the people view the school question.

"The world shall hate you as it hate Me," says our Divine Lord, in a voice that resonds along through the epochs of time from Apostolic days down to this nineteenth century. And it is not treat Catholic of the Church what religious decorum is in demand for creating institutions for education! The Methodists, Episcopalians, and other sectarians have schools of "Sunday Schools." But the Catholic—the faithful adherent of the Son of God—must be hated and hounded and hounded for doing the very same work for which sectarians are commended! Does not this fact full with unmistakable evidence, recognizing as they must the true faith—another proof that they possess the true faith—and not the only true faith—of the Son and Gospel of Holy Redeemer God.

The Oakland Times, of last week contained several allusions to the Catholics school in St. Patrick's parish, stating—under things—that it was opened with a "solemn" ceremony. This is a mistake, intended as probably the same author intended to convey the idea, to the reader, that it was opened with religious ceremonies intended for religious or educational purposes are blessed. Again, it is said that Archbishop Riordan was present "in ecclesiastical dress." This is a mistake in the plain and spoken. "Here, again, our attempt to impugn the Catholic Church, and the Pope, of the Church of God, and where religious order prevents every portion of it—into a legendary lesson—these thought wherein Mammon is the only god worshipped, and the mind of "reason" covers the multitude of sins committed in achieving it.

No man is foolish in the whole world as the Catholic who sells his faith for the "mess of pottage" which his children receive in the public schools. If such people ever expect to reach Heaven by rebelling against the Church in which they were baptized, they are devoid of all sense of duty and fond in their own best, treset, and control during interests. Their course only leads them to forfeit eternal gain for temporal advantage—and the loss so overwhelms the gain that we often wonder a single individual can be found in the whole world who is so blind as to follow a line of conduct which can only end in the forfeiture of the friendship of God for ever and ever.

The outcry raised against St. Joseph's Institute by the enemies of Christian education does not seem to have rattled the temper of the good-natured Rector of St. Patrick's parish in the least. A reporter of the Oakland Times interviewed Father McNally last week, and we publish it in full in order that non-Catholics may learn that the charges made against the Catholic Church of "rearing" against the public schools is entirely false. Father McNally only voiced the opinions of the Priesthood and Catholics generally when he stated the matter, as described in the following:

Father McNally, of St. Patrick's Church, West Oakland, was called upon by a reporter with reference to the controversy going on in the newspapers, and he said: "The Church of Christ permits the Catholics to send their children to the schools of the country, and cannot do, Christ's instruction.

"I am just in favor of the public school system," said Father McNally, rubbing his upper part of his bald pate thoughtfully, "as a means of educating the population of our Archbishop Riordan, and, in conjunction with the Catholic Institute, I will provide for the education of our children. We want them to be educated in the public schools, and we want our children to be educated in the public schools. We want them to be educated in the public schools, and we want our children, but some good Catholics, we want them to be educated in the public schools, and we want our children, but some good Catholics, we want them to be educated in the public schools, and we want our children, but some good Catholics, we WRETCHEDNESS IN LIVERPOOL.

What Rum Drink is Brewing.

"Dublin" who is unmistakably a priest, writes to the Daily Post, describing how Sunday is observed in and about Liverpool road. "Mass on Sunday morning, are to be witnessed most heartrending scenes—fathers and mothers till late in the day sitting drunk in bed or sleeping off the effect of the Saturday night's carouse, for, destitute children in rags and filth, for breakfast, or anybody else's keep heard. Happy homes have I visited—Mass houses, hell homes where vice and crime have darkened plenty and virtue, smiling youth, and decrepit age, all in the same category. And what finishing prime! The priest goes in; he fires a sacred beam for the purpose, comes to the room of the girl children; I was wondering what brought these children, where is your mother? Where is your father? from an infernal hissing hole, I think I had, drunk." Where is your father, my boy? "He is in bed, drunk, his father." Do you ever go to Mass or Communion? "Yes, Father, I go to Mass." "Because my father and mother are always drunk Saturday night, and never get up till late on Sunday." "How are you, my boy?" "Very." "And you, my girl?" "Sick." "Is father drunk?" "Worthing, Father, but I gets of my bread, and we had a dip in tea." "Poor children!"

Up comes the priest goes to see for himself. And the sight that greets his eyes "shocks his sense of decency and propriety," and he comes down pitying in his heart the poor children who are the offspring of such a union. But this is not all. It would seem the writer of the letter is a person of education and he tells us that "the poor people are terrified at the idea of a drunkard's funeral." Why? Because the community, either, goes to a civilized community; either, from the Christian point of view, would not bury his dog; parents, to pass which a man unchaste in life on that was once a Christian.

If "Dublin" had gone further into details, he would have stated that those people for the most part were earning good wages, and if they disbelieved from drink they would be as scarcely for them to live in poverty or misery. The manner of Liverpool savings a little here in comparison with Dublin. Wholesale drinking is generally, with, not only in Liverpool, but in Dublin, Waterford, Wexford, and Belfast. The loss of work is not the cause of drunkenness, but drunkenness the cause, if we may believe some who speak from actual knowledge.

That drunkenness would be effected, even in their present troubled homes, if there were a place of rational recreation for their Sabbath hours, is shown by a letter of a correspondent who gives a very pleasing account of the efforts made to relieve the poor in behalf of the owner, who had gone out of town, for a holiday, and left his wife unacquainted with special Liverpool and those who dwell in it. I remember the place he speaks of, the same as many others in the neighborhood, and I can well imagine the misery, the scene a man and wife, but by no other one, when the house were clean and sweet, the children had been fed and dressed, and the room was comfortable. The explanation comes from a "Catholic" who, "in order to spend an evening and be amused and he would let his house open to lessons who were total abstainers." "Fed on the pieces are in which these people live, there is no use in forgetting the other side." Yes, and the footsteps from their own kitchen."

—A few months ago Prince Bismarck received an audience of Monsignor Jacobini, who is represented by Rome Henry IV. during his sojourn at Canossa. It is being of a conversation, in the corridor leading from the Prince's study to the dining room.

—The late John Mackey, of Philadelphia, left money to the Little Sisters of the Poor.

—It is rumored that at a consistory in April, the Pope will make a number of American prelates; Archbishop Gibbons of Baltimore is mentioned as the probable recipient of the honors.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Blessed Nonsthetics.

When a board of eminent physicians and surgeons, after a long and dilatory trial by combining some well-known valuable remedies that need wonderful medicine you prescribed, which would cure such a wide range of diseases that most all other prescriptions could be dispensed with, many were disciplined, but cured all in nearly half a month. Had the patient lost hatred, and today the discoverers of that great medicine, Hop Bitters, are loved and blessed by all as benefactors. These Bitters are composed of hops, Buchu, Mandrake, and Dandelion, and other extract, best, and most valuable medicines in the world, and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other medicines, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Strengthener and Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or sickness can possibly long exist where these Bitters are used, as varied and perfect are their operations.

"Hop" gives new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. Truly whom employments cause weakness, pain, or anxiety, should use Hop Bitters. To all intemperate or dissipated, young or old, who are suffering from any indiscretion or exposure, Hop Bitters are the most tempting, safe, and vitalizing, restorative.

Hop Bitters are not a vile, fancy drink, to please the palate of drunkards, but a medicine to cure the sick. Drunkenness is a disease, and Hop Bitters are the only medicine that will cure it. Use Hop Bitters, if you are sick, or you will be sick. Use Hop Bitters if you are well, to keep well. Use Hop Bitters if you are nervous, to make you strong. Use Hop Bitters if you are young, to make you old. Use Hop Bitters if you are old, to make you young. Use Hop Bitters if you are sick, to make you well. Use Hop Bitters if you are well, to make you sick

THE REDMONDS.

SPLENDID SPEECHES BY TWO STERLING PATRIOTS.

ENTHUSIASTIC CHEERS FOR THE AUSTRALIAN APOSTLES.

Grand Gathering of the Celtic Race in San Francisco.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

[illegible]

OUR IRISH LETTER.

Against an Oppressor—Inhuman Conduct of English Officials in Ireland—The Edinburgh Conspirators—Hopeful Out look for Ireland's Freedom.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

EDITOR OF THE MONITOR:—

Dear Sir:—Every independent nation should rise in sympathetic hatred of England, into a mighty mass of indignant protest against the inhuman treatment of Ireland by her conquering Christian cross. The bloodiness of the victims of her rule has flowed in streams in every land in which she has raised that fitting symbol of savagery her red flag. England's bloody track is fresh in India and Egypt. In Ireland which she has held for centuries in thralldom by crime acts and coercion, she allows no day to pass without committing some horrible outrage on our people in the name of "law and order." Such Five is the determined Hatchet has made within the past two years in the once happy homes of Ireland, that, had her crowd experienced of the closest and dearest ties of relationship by bachelor laws. The hand-strings of a much family taken from them, never to look upon his face or speak a kindly word to them ever more.

[illegible]

Market Report.

Corrected Weekly by P. S. Duty 604 Battery street.

MONITOR OFFICE,

604 (Day St. Tuesday Evening, Jan. 15, 1884

WEEKLY—Quotations are.

FLOUR—Flour is selling at.

[illegible]

FRATINGER & CO.

SEALETTE CLOAKS.

Sealette Cloaks, made of the very finest quality of Imported Long nap Silk Plush, Dyed with Fast Colors, and lined with Quilted Silk Satin Lining, and finished in all respects like a Genuine Sealskin Cloak, from which they can hardly be distinguished.

Price from $60 to $80.

Mohair-Plush Cloaks.

Mohair Plush Cloaks, made of the finest English Imported Mohair-Plush, lined with the finests Satinet with real Sealskin Ornaments. A fast-class Wrap, and has the street appearance of a real Sealskin.

Price from $45 50 to $55 50.

SEALSKIN CLOAKS.

Genuine Sealskin Cloaks, made of the best quality Alaska Seal, Genuine London Dyes, finely finished.

Price from $130 to $200.

Fur-Lined Circulars.

Fur-Lined Circulars in Otterman and Mattelasse Broads.

Fur-Lined Circulars in Satin Rhadzimir and Satin de Lyons.

Fur-Lined Circulars in Otterman and Siberian Silk, and lined with Genuine Siberian Squirrel.

STAIRCASE PLUSH.

Staircase Plush Cloaks in Blue.
Staircase Plush Cloaks in Green.
Staircase Plush Cloaks in Garnet.
Staircase Plush Cloaks in Brown.

Princess Plush is the very latest and most fashionable Plush out, and we now are brought from Paris expressly to MR. FRATINGER while in New York

☞ Our new "Illustrated Catalogue" and Price List for Cloak and Winter Fashions sent free to any address on application.

FRATINGER & CO.,

THE LEADING

Cloak and Suit House,

105 Kearny Street.

GOLDEN STAR

OIL STOVES AND RANGES.

A Model of Cleanliness. Handsome, Durable, Economical, Reliable.

OUR STOVES. What they Will Do.

It is supposed by many that they are only suitable for light work; and the superior quality of our stoves must be retained by nothing and baking, which impresses it strong. We desire to have it understood that our Tops and Three Burner Stoves will do all work pertaining to COOKING, BAKING AND ROASTING for a family as it is the cheapest.

ONE-HALF THE LABOR.

That is required on coal or wood stoves, and by LESS THAN ONE-HALF THE EXPENSE.

Only One-half to One Cent per Hour.

The large tops our burners is regular—no variation, and nothing required to be changed, as it does in other stoves—the regular heat all between drawn the attention and approbation.

No Odor Imparted to anything either Cooked or Baked in our Stoves or Ranges.

SEND FOR SPECIAL CATALOGUE

The only Factory in the United States for heating Stoves and Ranges.

Office, Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast.

WOODIN & LITTLE,

Sole Agents for the Pacific Coast.

500 and 511 Market Street,

SAN FRANCISCO.

TAILORS.

John Kavanagh,
MERCHANT TAILOR
6 New Montgomery Street,
PALACE HOTEL, S. F.
The Making of Gentlemen's Clothing a Specialty.

N. SWEENY,
MERCHANT TAILOR
41 Second street,
Opposite Jesse Moore's.
Clothing and Clothing Clothing a Specialty.

M. FITZPATRICK
The BOSS Tailor,
Of the Double Chess.
100 FOURTH STREET.
Bet. Mission and Howard.

THOMAS DRADY,
MERCHANT TAILOR
No. 6 Third Street,
Near Market, S. F.

A. EVANS,
THE TAILOR,
412 Hayes Street, near Gough.
FINE CLOTHING TO ORDER.
REPAIRS NEATLY DONE.

DENTISTS.

LIVE AND LET LIVE

Splendid Set of Teeth, only $7.

AT THE DENTAL ROOMS OF P. BOLTON, 205 Kearny street.

COMPLETE SET OF TEETH
Warranted for $7.00

DENTIST.

HOTELS RESTAURANTS ETC.

WESTERN HOTEL,
212-14 Broadway Street.
JOHN HIGGINS, : : Proprietor.
(Late Brooklyn Hotel.)

BROOKLYN HOTEL,
BUSH & SUSHMIDT, Prop'rs.
BUSH ST., bet. Montgomery and Sansome

BANKING HOUSES.

Jos. A. Donohoe, San Francisco. Eugene Kelly, New York.

DONOHOE, KELLY & CO.
SAN FRANCISCO.
EUGENE, KELLY & CO.,
NEW YORK.
BANKERS.
EXCHANGE ON NEW YORK, LONDON, AND BANK
IRELAND (Dublin).
Payable at all the Branches
Also to Every Country Town in Ireland.

THE BANK OF IRELAND
THE BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA
In B. C. and in California and Sacramento Sts.

UNDERTAKERS.

ATKINS MASSEY,
UNDERTAKER
PRACTICAL FURNISHING UNDERTAKER.
Best Hearse on hand, and Agents for Fisk's Metallic Burial Cases.
Everything necessary for Funerals kept constantly on hand. Orders attended to promptly.
Office and Residence, 1019 Market street, Bet. Sixth and Seventh.

O'CONNOR & SHEEHY,
UNDERTAKERS,
767 Mission Street,
Bet. Third and Fourth, S. F.
Every Requisite for Funerals furnished at the lowest Rates and in the best Manner.

N. Gray & Co.,
UNDERTAKERS,
641 Sacramento Street,
Bet. Kearny and Dupont.
EMBALMING.
Of Metallic Burial Cases and Caskets.

J. J. H. MEDAUW & CO.
968 and 970 Folsom St.,
Near Ninth.
WHOLESALE
WINE AND LIQUOR DEALERS.
Established 1876.
We are selling Cheap for Cash and on Easy Terms.
The following low prices will convince you:

Table Wines,	50c. qt.	$5 per gal.
Sweet Wines,	50c. qt.	$5 per gal.
Sweet Tokay,	37½c. qt.	$3 per gal.
Port, Sherry, Angelica,	37½c. qt.	$3 per gal.
Cordials, Brandies,	75c. qt.	$6 per gal.
Rock Rye,	75c. qt.	$6 per gal.
Bourbon Whiskey,	$1.00 qt.	$8 per gal.
Rye Whiskey,	$1.00 qt.	$8 per gal.
Scotch Whiskey,	$1.50 qt.	$12 per gal.
Jamaica Rum,	$1.00 qt.	$8 per gal.
Brandy, Old,	50c. qt.	$5 per gal.

Other Wines and Liquors at lowest rates.

MOORE & MURPHY,
Importers, Manufacturers and Dealers in all Kinds of Ladies' and Gent's
BOOTS AND SHOES.
☞ Full Line of the Best Eastern Manufacturers and Kathmann's Boots and Shoes constantly on hand.
Remember the Number:
138 SIXTH STREET, 138
Bet. Natoma and Howard

STACK & LACOMBE,
Practical Hatters,
639 MARKET STREET,
Sole Patent Hatters, SAN FRANCISCO.
The DERBY HAT.
THE CLIMAX.
The Finest Corner on the Coast.
Stacks & Lacombe.

UNITED UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
Embalming Parlors
27 and 29 FIFTH ST.
Telephone No. 1567.

MOORE & MURPHY,
Manufacturers, Manufacturers and Dealers in all Kinds of Ladies' and Gent's
BOOTS AND SHOES.
☞ Full Line of the Best Eastern Manufacturers and Kathmann's Boots and Shoes constantly on hand.

TRAIN, FLANAGAN.
FLANAGAN & GALLAGHER
UNDERTAKERS,
No. 20 FIFTH STREET, Opposite the Lincoln School.
EVERYTHING NECESSARY FOR FUNERALS kept constantly on hand. Orders for the country will receive prompt attention at moderate charges.

H. J. GALLAGHER.

J. J. DYER,
DENTIST,
S. E. cor. Kearny & Post Sts.,
☞ Entrance, 11 Post St. 24

HALL'S PULMONARY
BALSAM!
The Best Remedy
in use for CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Diseases of Throat and Lungs. Pleasant to take. It relieves immediately. It cures quickly. It heals and strengthens the lungs. It is warranted only Square in Genuine Wrapper. Sold by all druggists. Price, 25 cents.
J. H. HALL & CO., on the label of each bottle. Wholesale Agents, Frank Newman and Sons, Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco.
J. H. GATES & CO., Proprietors,
417 Sansome Street, S.F.

THE MONITOR,
A CATHOLIC FAMILY JOURNAL.
DEVOTED TO THE PROMOTION AND DEFENSE OF CATHOLIC PRINCIPLES.
Published by THE MONITOR PUBLISHING CO. Office: 604 City street, San Francisco, California.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

Per Year by Mail (IN PAID IN ADVANCE)	$2 00
Per Year by Mail (if not paid in advance)	2 50
Six Months (if paid in advance)	1 50
Six Months (not paid in advance)	1 75
Three Months (if paid in advance)	1 00
Three Months (if not paid in advance)	1 25

In Ireland or any of the British Provinces (in advance) $2 00 (in advance) 1 50

☞ Address all communications, remittances, check, and postal orders to S. J. McCormick, Editorial Manager, Monitor Office, Box 2082 P. O., San Francisco, Cal. Entered at the San Francisco Post Office as Second-Class Matter.

The Monitor.

THE MONITOR

is now in the twenty-seventh year of publication, and its well-established reputation as a consistent Catholic Religious Journal, but devoted to the news of the Church and an influence which makes this Monitor a valuable medium for advertisers.

Advertisements inserted at reasonable rates.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications to insure insertion, should be handed in not later than Tuesday of each week.

No communications will be inserted unless accompanied by the author's real name. This is required as a private guarantee of good faith.

Communications with the plainly received name, and the author's address, will be published if so desired, but otherwise the name will be withheld upon request.

Communications should be as brief as possible, and should write only on one side of the paper only. We cannot undertake to return the MSS. of unused articles.

All communications and correspondence, whether on business or otherwise are to be addressed to the Manager.

VOL. XXVII. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1884. NO. 16.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.
THY'IT. BRUSHETS SELL IT: Made By
H. B. SLAVEN,
The Baldwin Building.

PLATING
NICKEL PLATING,
GOLD PLATING,
SILVER PLATING,
Electro Plating Works.
ALL KINDS OF WORK PLATED. WORK CALLED FOR AND DELIVERED. Jewelry, Silverware, Bedsteads, Furniture, Pianos, etc., Plated Silver Plate of the Best Kind. Old Jewelry Replated to Look Like New. Spoons and Forks Plated, Gold in Quarts, Great Salt Spoons Plated Silver on Nickel. Plating Done on Brass Goods Plated Cheap. Plating Done on Brass Goods Plated Cheap. Plating Done on Brass Goods Plated Cheap.
PLATING ESTABLISHMENT
No. 24 Sutter Street,
San Francisco, Gold, Silver and Nickel Plating Works,
and 536 Mission Street, bet. New Montgomery and Third Sts., San Francisco, Cal.
E. G. BERNSTEIN, Proprietor.
Another Plating Establishment at every door of the Metropolitan Hotel, Plating for the best retail trade.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.
IMPORTANT! THIS TO INFORM YOU THAT: I have now the largest and best assorted stock of Gold and Children's Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Trunks and Valises, and at lower prices, as the following will show:

Men's Suits, newly made	$ 5 00
All wool Suits	7 00
Fine Dress Suits	10 00
Boys' Suits, newly made	3 00
Boys' Suits, Dress	5 00
Boys' Suits, Dress, plush trimmed	7 00
Men's Pants, newly made	1 50
Men's Pants, Dress	2 50
Men's Pants, Dress, handsome	3 50
Men's Overcoats	5 00
Men's Overcoats, Dress	10 00
Men's Overcoats, Dress, handsome	15 00

Children's Clothing, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Trunks and Valises, at lowest prices.
All goods warranted to be as represented, and if found not so, money cheerfully refunded.
Remember the place, 604 Kearny street, Bet. Clay and Commercial streets.
KODGES,
Cor. Kearny and Bush Streets,
Opp. Post Office.

BOOTS AND SHOES!
MOORE & MURPHY,
Manufacturers, Manufacturers and Dealers in all Kinds of Ladies' and Gent's
BOOTS AND SHOES.
☞ Full Line of the Best Eastern Manufacturers and Kathmann's Boots and Shoes constantly on hand.

McCORMICK BROS.,
Book and Job Printers
AND PUBLISHERS OF
THE CATHOLIC OBILE,
(A Sunday School Illustrated Weekly)
636 Clay Street, 636
(Same Building as Monitor Office.) San Francisco.

ROOFS
TIN! ASPHALTUM
Tin Roofs of Lowest Price, Tin Roofs Repaired and Guaranteed for 1 Year, Asphaltum Roofs Laid Down and Guaranteed for 5 Years. Roofs Painted and Repaired Cheap. Orders promptly attended to. Residence and Shop, 317 HARRISON STREET, Between Second and Third. R. G. FIRTH.

An Englishman in the Emerald Isle.

SPLENDID SCENERY AMIDST SQUALID POVERTY.

BANTRY BAY AND ITS BEAUTIFUL SURROUNDINGS.

Popularity Which Sends Re-Inspects to Parliament.

"Through Ireland on a Tricycle" is the title of a very interesting contribution from the pen of Mr. Dugald Cameron, an English paper. The following is the interesting sketch which he furnishes of a few weeks he spent in the vicinity of the beautiful scenery surrounding Bantry Bay on the south-western shores of Ireland:

Bantry is a corruption of Beanatraight—the town of the Beanas. It was once a seat of Conor Mac Nessa, King of Ulster in the Cycle of Cuchulain. Though it is one of the Cork and Bantry Railway it has only a population of 1,200, and has only one street. It is delightfully situated on a gentle shelfered by wall timbered hills, and open to the sea, which, in the bay, is so full of beans its name. Nevertheless, with a background of most attractive mountain and surroundings, and direct railway communication, it seems utterly stagnant. No new houses or buildings of any kind have been seen, and the old ones have a neglected appearance. I heard nothing of the town, but as we passed through it I said to myself, this place is affected by a great landowner." Whilst at tea I made the acquaintance of an intelligent commercial traveller, and afterwards walked out with him to view the bay by starlight. The Earl of Bantry, who owns the greater portion of the town, and 60,500 acres of the country around it, resides on the outskirts. His residence, called Bantry House, is a plain, modest affair, commanding quite view over the bay. There was only a small view for ship in the harbor, and a man of war with 60 or 70 hands, which has been here for several months, occasionally departing for a few days, to cruise, I suppose, the mystery of the occupation. The seamen were endeavoring to pass the weary hours away to singing but their efforts were not very successful. One seaman, who was a strong Nationalist, and does not appear to be on good terms with the constabulary, who followed him, demanded "a song of Erin." A portion of his books and papers. He is not a Nationalist, and I found out that his political opinions were often subjected to popular criticism.

[illegible]

Our Catholic Young Men.

THEIR DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES.

A GUARD OF HONOR FOR THE CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Impressive Discourse by Bishop Kain of Wheeling.

[illegible]

Bismarck Beaten at Last!

A GLORIOUS VICTORY FOR THE WEAK (?) PAPACY.

The Pope the Greatest Power on Earth.

CANOSSA AND PRAGUE.

[illegible]

SHOCKING VULGARITY.

How Certain American Women Advertise Themselves—A Warning to Young Ladies.

[illegible]

THE REDMONDS.

SPLENDID SPEECHES BY TWO STERLING PATRIOTS.

ENTHUSIASTIC CHEERS FOR THE AUSTRALIAN APOSTLES.

Grand Gathering of the Celtic Race in San Francisco.

[illegible] that was again quotted, but we believe, [illegible] to order to prevent Sunday [illegible] the Irish Nation as that [illegible] Dr. J. E. Cronin, President [illegible] Dr. J. E. Cronin, President [illegible] Rev. Father Colden, [illegible] Rev. Father Colden, [illegible] Rev. Father Colden,

Poetry.

THE PARTAKER DOOR.

They hail me of grand, sonorous prayer,
They speak of the light that is scattered there,
They say that to mortals lighter shove
Fly to the angles of holy love;
But I know, but they cannot tell to me
While I pass on the little Golden Door.

I open a book of learned thought,
Treasures that others may have dearly bought—
Yet another thing, in another place,
It might be a friend of the richest grace,
But I pass the volume, and read no more
While I pass on the little Golden Door.

It is not pride, it is scarcely prayer,
I only think of Him, dwelling there—
Of Him who is never more near to me
Than he is always—yet I may see
The love that is always new and old,
While I pass on the little Golden Door.

Among me is Him His elected gone
Joy to hear what His voice could say
Of those near Him, and I am alone—
Am I, the weak, and not they the strong?
Why do they hasten and not tarry?
While I pass on the little Golden Door.

He is alive and unbroken yet,
He is alive and unbroken yet,
So when sickness or sorrow, or death, shall Come to the door of my heart, and Knocks, O Lord, at the golden door,
While I pass on the little Golden Door.

I only ask the one word to me
The soul then worship into my presence go;
Yet, in my weakness, I pray for Thee,
For the good spirit dwelt, it will come to me,
Ere I pass on the little Golden Door,
Until I pass on the little Golden Door.

E. G. R.

Literary Miscellany.

LIFE IN DEATH.

A STRANGE EXPERIENCE.

BY HARRON MOUTON.

"She is dead!"

These three words, proceeding from the lips of an eminent physician, and spoken in the clear, solemn tone so generally used to men and women, I distinctly remembered to my sweet, sad, and lonely heart.

But the doctor, as doctors often are, was mistaken. I was not dead. I was not even paralyzed! I tried to speak, but my lips were sealed; I tried to turn, to raise my head, but not a muscle could I stir; I tried to open my eyes, but the lids of the orbs of vision had sunk, the muscles of the eyelids had ceased to act, and I was blind. All our will throughout the body—that which we call voluntary—was lost. Yet every sense seemed alive—painfully alive. I could hear, and I could feel, and I have not that I could not have smelled and tasted.

There was a stranger in about them—a strangeness in the air, in the light, in the sound, and yet out of it. I seemed to hear with my ears, to see with my eyes, to feel with my nerves, and at the same time to be independent of my mortal frame as to have a sense, a feeling, a thought, left me. When they spoke, I heard and was, I could not doubt, conscious of all that was passing around me. I felt the touch of my friends, and felt it as if in dreams, yet, still, blunted and dreamy as this last sense was, I could recognize each family touch, and know, by the touch, who was near me. I felt my husband, who, I knew, was bending over me, and I felt the tears he shed, and my heart bled for him. I felt my children, and I could know, or thought I could know, by the touch, which was which, and I felt my mother, who was sitting by my side, and I felt my sister, who was at my feet, and I felt the tears of both fall on my hands, and I knew that they were tears of love, and I knew that they were tears of sorrow, and I knew that they were tears that were shed for me, and I knew that they were tears that were shed for me, and I knew that they were tears that were shed for me

THE MONITOR.

PERIODICAL OFFICE, 154 PRINCE STREET.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1884.

The Great Orestes A. Brownson.

The Works of Orestes A. Brownson, Collected and Arranged by Henry F. Brownson. 3 Volumes, Price $15. Detroit: Thorndike Nourse, Publisher, 1883.

Somebody has well hit off one of the foibles of the American people by saying that when an eminent man dies in this country the first proposition is to build a monument to his memory, and the next movement is—to forget all about it! This was eminently the case when the great Brownson died, and it is the case with many of the Catholic millions in America that the greatest among modern philosophers was permitted to pass away almost unnoticed. Brownson was a great man. Great, because he succeeded in achieving that victory which distinguishes saints from sinners—he conquered himself—and, as Plato tells us, "self-conquest is the greatest of victories."

It is within the bounds of truth to say that no man in America ever made greater sacrifices to discover the true Church—and to enter its fold when found—than Brownson. Prior to his conversion he had tried his utmost to discover Christian truth in some of the many phases of Protestantism. Resisted a Presbyterian of the poker-back species—so prevalent in Vermont, where Brownson was born in 1803—he fain so himself, in his ignorance, that he had no childhood, because he was debarred from the sports, plays, and amusements of children to such an extent that—to use his own words—"I had the misery, the terrible misfortune of an old man before I was a boy." The Bible—that Alpha and Omega of some sects—he had never read, because "my parents had read through before he was eight years old, and he knew a great portion of the Scriptures by heart before he was four years old." Yet he was a much abused young man in his subsequent career, when Brownson's mind was literally driven about by the force of doubts, and yet, with all his knowledge of the Bible, he could not say to the waiters of doubt which he underwent his mind: "Peace, be still." Here is the manner in which Brownson looked upon the Apostles' Creed:

> "But unhappily, while I had strong religious feelings and the strongest possible inclination to submit to the church, and lead an obedient life, I had a great difficulty in the Apostles' Creed. I was not taught it in catechism, I never heard it in church, and I was not familiar with it, and I was not taught it in my family. My mother, who, I was taught to believe, was a Presbyterian, and who, I know, was a pious woman, and who, I have reason to believe, was a Christian, I never heard mention the Apostles' Creed. My father was a Universalist, and I never heard him mention it. I was, in fact, ignorant of it, and I had no opportunity of learning it, and I found it very difficult to believe it, and I felt it very difficult to believe it, and I felt it very difficult to believe it, and I felt

ALMS.

An Indian old man had passed along a broad highway, in the neighborhood of a large town. His gait was unsteady, his wrinkled foot slipped and stumbled lightly and heavily, as if the movement were unusual; his clothes were tattered, and his uncovered head fell heavily on his breast. His eye quite exhausted.

He seemed blessed upon a chance stone by the roadside; he bent down, and leant back; he covered his face with both hands, and through the parted fingers tears dropped down upon the dry gray dust of the road. He was thinking of his past.

Once he was strong and rich; he had raised his hatchet, and parted with his wealth to friends and foes. And he had not a morsel of bread. All had forsaken him; the friends nearer than the foes. Should he indeed humble himself so far as to ask alms? His heart was filled with bitterness, and he was in the wilderness.

And his heart fell smitten, and, motioning the gray dust, he bowed himself called by name; he raised his hand and we an unknown man before him.

"This man's countenance was tranquil and, apparent, still not severe; his eyes glistened, and, but they were alone; his look was penetrating and forbidding.

"Thou hast spoken, young man," added the Unknown, "so stretch out thy hand. Now other good man an opportunity of doing good. Let down thy head, young man." The old man trembled and looked up, but the Unknown had vanished.

"He went to him and extended his hand. The Unknown had spoken. He with a glossy skin, and gave him nothing.

"The old man brought bread with the gift he had received, and his heart no longer fell bowed down; his heart no longer fell ashamed; on the contrary it was glorified by a great happiness.

"This story which is to hath by the Jewish Order of Mercy, and is entitled "The Unknown." Mr. Bernard, and he another of that city's most wealthy Roman Catholic citizens. The Order of the Jewish Mercy is of the Old Catholic Brotherhood and is very well known with business men. The church will be of the Gothic style of the Middle Ages. The building will be of brick and stone, and will cost in round figures $100,000. The Brotherhood intends to have it ready for use in the fall of 1884. The Brotherhood intends to have it ready for use in the fall of 1884. The Brotherhood intends to have it ready for use in the fall of 1884.

"The Unknown Contract, on Clinton Street, near Ninth, in the Jewish Quarter, of the Brotherhood of Mercy, Mr. Bernard, and Mr. Bernard, and Mr. Bernard, and Ireland's Ruined Shrines.

A TOURIST'S IMPRESSION OF A VISIT TO THE ABBEY OF CONG.

Sainted Sepulchres and Ruins that Date far Back into History.

The Last Resource of Ireland—The Village of Cong.

The following interesting historical communication has been addressed to the New York Herald, by a gentleman who recently visited one of the most romantic spots in the island of Erin.

MAYO, Ireland, December 26, 1883.

I send you, as I promised, a recent letter, some account of the royal and ecclesiastical ruins and shrines of Cong. Its abbey was founded as early as the year 654, by an Irish king, and St. Fursey, who had previously visited Cong, and, observed with the reverence of the place, built a church and established a school in his honor, which became the first Abbot of Cong.

The Benedictines succeeded the Irish, by some the first Abbot of Cong.

Some author, whose name escapes me, wrote when for twelve centuries followed in the path of St. Patrick, whether or not he was a bishop, or ever visited Ireland, I do not recollect, but, if he did, he was, no doubt, a blessing both to Ireland and Christianity.

St. Patrick having lived forty years at Cong, died at the ancient plaque, which for the second time in the revolved century, determined Heaven.

The monastery and cathedral (for Cong was originally a bishopric) were burned early in the twelfth century, and the sun was then removed to Aroughdown.

Some author, whose name I have the year 1127, the Augustinian Canons Regular erected the magnificent structure, the portmanteau and cloisters of which are still standing, and restored the antiquities and exalted the abbacy to a bishopric.

On application by Very Rev. Canon Gallagher, the keeper of the keys, I was allowed to ramble at will through the ancient edifice, or, as I did, have a guide, who, for the entire length of nearly 120 feet, is proved with a lighted candle. While in the cathedral I felt as if I had entered the tomb of Ireland's ancient glory. The cloisters, which are

Poetry.

BEAUTIFUL THINGS.

Beautiful flowers are those that wear
A modest blush if dare or hope
Whole-souled beauty printed there.

Beautiful eyes are those that show,
Through some mantle, a soul that loves glow,
Beautiful thoughts that burn below.

Beautiful lips are those from which Issue from the heart like roses of birth,
Yet whose utterance produces pitch.

Beautiful hands are those that do
Work both earnest and brave and true,
Both consecrated the long day through.

Beautiful feet are those that go
On errands of mercy to and fro,
Never faltering, never slow.

Beautiful shoulders are those that bear,
Without murmuring or complaining, care,
With patient grace and daily prayer.

Beautiful lives are those to bless—
Lives that are fragrant like new mown grass,
Without hidden troubles for may guess.

Beautiful twilight, at set of sun,
Beautiful dawn, when night is gone,
Beautiful, with work well done.

Beautiful graves where sorrow sows
Tears of love, and where the soul repose in the deep,
Over tears and labors, a beautiful sleep.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

It is an unusual thing, nowadays, when the public journals that the present school system is defective, that any one should come forward to defend it. When an individual in his profession in his own person, we unanimously concur that of death. Yet, when a Protestant minister publicly joins in issue with the Catholic Church, and defends the system of the Church, we cordially unite in a hearty response to the Rev. Father Dollinger, of the Germany, and that he had done his best to put himself in a position to speak of the age, and therefore himself obliged to return to the old system. I really think idle age is only wasting not only in its duty to God but to true science. To relate the above to order, it will be necessary that the holy Catholic Church remain the sway she possessed in the middle ages. A learned historian proves that the Church was, even in the middle ages, constantly hampered in the secular affairs. But, at all events, he says, that they had wholesomely greater than it is now.

Our Protestant fellow-citizens are unfortunate in that the Romanes accessible to them has been a Protestant version. Yet, the Protestant version of the Church has been ancient great side. Members of Protestant sects believed their public meetings in the Bible, but looked down in the Church, which Catholics were made, as Smith says, "from an of wood and dungeon of water." What Smith meaning, and the feeling which he expresses, and all, by the entirely false, gilt, and bit as attractive dagger for it is, is Catholic.

It is not necessary to go into the story of Adam and Eden and Cain which Smith brought her from a quiet, reduced home to be a stock in the "Mart of Fashion" and the inmate of Widow Judmore's second boarding house; but we will start with her on Sabbath, at the time when she had been her chary little teeth on some tough steak, and nothing on earth could be more dreary and proud person, she faked a fly out of her hair and took her way to the store.

Half the hour was passed, when she was when Molly, with a box of tumbled hats on the counter, and Smith, with a pile of bonnets, was in front of the counter, and Smith was pinned with a duster of ribbon at the bonnet, and thinking wistfully of a certain place she knew of where they grew, cool and moist in their green leaves, where the ribbon, bonnet, feet—that's the bonnet—be back to the present.

"Why, Molly, if you are not more attentive, I shall have to report you."

"I will not report you," said she, and stop want the cover on the box, and wish with the hot into in place, and Mam Smith, with her cheeks and very bright eyes, went down the long store to the office and whispered her resignation. "I can't stand it one minute longer."

Mr. Rich was a Christian, and a Christian, and there were twenty girls for every vacancy.

"Is that you know our rule."

"Yes, she knew the rule, which was that a clerk leaving without notice should forfeit her pay from their last Saturday night. But Molly's accusation did not light at Concord without some pleasure at the thought of their demandants, so she ran up to with an air that bewildered acquaintances with the "rules," when Mr. when home heard had been a little affectionate by memories of a certain grave in Mount Auburn which would be decorated that day, and the sunshine of the blessed, and in ten minutes Molly was in the Commons, "with all the world before her where to choose."

The unusual leisure was so pleasant that the young lady sat down and enjoyed the sunshine and air, and only when she soon whistles blew did she come down to reality.

Intent dreaming, with hands and feet, she was a council of war. Here, on one side, was Aunt Fanny, 94 years old, with hands, hoary, two pounds in her trunk, fifteen children and husband. Lord Brigham must have experienced a particular pride when he declared to the world that the Mormon Church was the purest, most philosophical, most Scriptural and most Christian Church in the universe.

Cincinnati, O. J. Rev. F. A. Tarbat.

A SOUND, CANDLED LAIT.

At the funeral of Marquis, Lady Hartree, which took place recently in Ireland, the Rev. Mr. Wright, parish priest of Ballinrobe, in his sermon, pointed to the necessity of the question, "Prepare to meet your God." Lady Hartree, he said, was a good Christian, and had died in the house of a nobleman, the last contented that the house of a nobleman, the last contented that the house of a nobleman, the last contented that

THE MONITOR.

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE DIOCESE OF SAN FRANCISCO.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1884.

CIRCULAR FROM ARCHBISHOP ALEMANY, O. P.

To the Clergy and Laity of the Diocese of San Francisco.

Rev. Dear Sir:—You are no doubt aware that grave apprehensions are felt in several parts of the diocese, in consequence of the scarcity of rain. As our State is every year becoming more and more agricultural, this would be a most lamentable fact if it should be realized. However, even this danger of drought has its beneficial side; it reminds us of the great truth that every good and perfect gift proceeds from the ever-ruling providence of God, and furnishes us an opportunity of manifesting our faith and our hope in His tender and paternal solicitude. Hence it becomes us and all good Christians to acknowledge, like the Israelites of old when the hand of God lay heavy upon them, that it may be our many sins that have caused this visitation of anger, and, humbly and sincerely repenting of our faults, to beg of Him to look upon us once more with favor, and send us a copious supply of rain.

Therefore, commencing with next Sunday, and continuing until it is thought that we have had rain sufficient for the season, ask your people to join you after the last Mass or Afternoon Service, in the recitation of the Litany of the Saints or of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and in all the Masses and the Collect, "Ad petendam Pluviam."

But, as a prayer that proceeds from a soul devoid of charity is not pleasing to God or that from one pure and undefiled, earnestly exhort the faithful, one and all, to have recourse in the holy Sacraments, that they may thus more effectually approach Him, who is ever attentive to the voice of man.

Yours truly in Christ,

✠ J. S. ALEMANY, O. P.,

Archbishop of the San Francisco.

San Francisco, Jan. 26th, 1884.

"As the World Hateth Me so Should it Hate You."

Did we not already possess the glorious gift of divine faith, and were we desirous of discovering the true Church of Christ, the Church established by our Saviour, as it would show us the Church most hated by the world, and thereby will we discover an infallible mark of the inapeitrable faith founded by our Blessed Saviour for man's salvation.

In every portion of the world, in all grades of society—whether civilized or savage—there is a common surface spokes the Church of God, while the religious systems impregnated with error are fostered, cherished and patronized because they put no such spikes in Mammon of iniquity. It is not in pagan lands alone that the distinguishing mark of the Redeemer is found into the fold of the Church of Christ, in the person of His Vicar on earth we may behold the fulfilment of that prophecy in which the Son of God declared that the world should hate those who truly and faithfully served Him, just as the world hated, persecuted, and crucified the Son of God in the flesh.

Christian truth imposes upon mankind many and grave responsibilities. Error gives full play to man's frailty. Hence that self-love which seems to be implanted in the human heart leads the world to worship error for the license which it grants to sinners without any of the restraints which true religion imposes upon the transgressor.

Many men, in modern days, are imbued with the idea that the Sovereign Pontiff is not a prisoner, that it is only a part of what they style "the Papal policy" which hoops him confined in the Vatican, hoping thereby to create world-wide sympathy for what the enemies of the Church designate as "the falling fortunes of Rome." In order, therefore, that a more correct understanding of the Pope's true position may be arrived at, we will quote the latest utterances of the Holy Father upon this very point, as alluded to by The Vicar of Christ in response to the customary Christmas congratulations of the College of Cardinals.

Alluding to the desire for "peace and good will among all Christian people," as expressed in the address presented by the Cardinals through Cardinal di Pietro, the successor of Pio, Pope Pius portrayed the sorrows which surround him in his office as Head of that Church whose lot was destined to be persecution on earth and perpetual glory in Heaven.

"Certainly," said his Holiness, "if there is one with more opportunities than another in our day, it is the good one which you have just addressed to Us, Monsieur le Cardinal—the wish for peace; for the implacable hatred and the evil instincts with which the Church is assailed by her enemies, and above all, our survival under the care of the city of Rome, do not permit us to mention of the benefit of peace and the serene joy which accompanies it in more tranquil times, recal on the annual commemoration of the birth of Jesus Christ. It is terribly painful to Our heart, as it must be to yours, to see the majesty religion of Jesus Christ and the Church, His divine spouse, trampled on all sides, under lying protests. In the bosom of the most Christian nations we are revealed in a thousand ways this hostile spirit which seeks to vanish from the Church all social influence, to outrail her rights, and to render extremely painful her divine mission."

Alluding to the celebration of the centenary of Luther, which Holy Father duly designated it as an occasion which "has established fully to the wicked prem of Italy people subject matter for injurious outrages against the Apostolic See. They do not blush, in fact, to avail the impiety of that apostate, and the principal cause of the protest they squander on him have been precisely his open rebellion against the authority of the Catholic Church and the sad struggle which he waged against the Papacy."

Nor does the future present very bright prospects to the vision of the Vicar of Christ, who sees in the rudiments, rancor and robbery of the present an index of the unbridled passions of the persecution of the future. On this point the Holy Father observed that "symptoms of a still worse future are not wanting in the acts of to-day. Everything yet attempted to the detriment of the Church and of the Holy See suffices not to satisfy the longings of our enemies. The assert and repeat that the hostile measures in force at present are still too moderate and too indulgent. Consequently, they have spared no pains, they have ignored nothing that is baleful to the Church; they respect neither her rights, her liberty, the independence of her Head, her ministers, nor her property. To what harsh trials, then, shall we not be exposed in the future, if God, in His unfathomable judgments, permits these audacious purposes to prevail."

The question which naturally suggest itself to every Catholic mind when we ponder upon these words of the Vicar of Christ is: What is my duty under the circumstances? The Church herself furnishes the answer: Pray for the Sovereign Pontiff, that God may grant him the wisdom, courage, fortitude, piety and patience necessary for his exalted station as the Supreme Spiritual Ruler of the whole Christian world. Pray that justice may prevail over injustice, that right may supplant wrong, and that our holy Faith may—through the mercy of God—triumph over all the trials it may have to endure, and that the Sovereign Pontiff may regain that freedom so necessary for the fulfilment of the sacred office wherein he represents our Blessed Redeemer Himself.

This duty, we repeat, is no such neglect. It is a duty Catholic, yet it is as necessary to pray for the Sovereign Pontiff and the Prelates and Priests of the Church, as it is to pray for our own immediate relatives. We should pray unceasingly for the Pope that he may be inspired with an ardent desire for God's glory and for the salvation of souls; that he may have faithful and zealous co-operators in the Church whose counsels will lead to the conversion of the world from the ways of wickedness and lead the Church into those paths of peace most conservative with the propagation of the true faith and the conversion of the whole world to the infallible teachings of that Vicar whose voice is the voice of God.

Another Protestant Attacks the Public School System.

Ten years ago any citizen who dared to say aught in print against the popular idol called the Public School system, was declared to be an enemy of republican institutions, an alien in American property, and even worse—a Jesuit in disguise! Up to that period in the history of the people's idolatry of this system of education, the Catholic Church was almost alone in its pleading for justice, freedom of conscience, and the introduction of Christian ethics into the curriculum of State education. But after a while some non-Catholic writers began to see that the idol of popular worship was only a tinsel-covered Minerva, a pagan deity, the worship of which was destined to destroy Christianity in the hearts of the rising generation. Taking courage at the words of others, a few Protestant preachers next essayed to attack the system which was sapping the foundations of sectarianism and rapidly emptying the evangelical exchequers, and then it has come about that opposition to the public school system is now adopted by nearly all the sects, and by many distinguished non-Catholic American writers.

To use an expressive phrase, "where there is no smoke there is no fire; where there is no smoke there is no fire." hence, where even non-Catholic complaints come up so numerously against what is called a system of education, there must be a general good, there must be some reason for this frequent murmuring. And what those causes comprise is the theme of an article entitled "Defects of the Public School System," which appears over the signature of J. M. Savage in the North American Review.

Catholics having to pay their quota of taxes for the support of schools which a large proportion of them do not, can not, and will not use, it is only right that they should be made aware of the shortcomings of this system as depicted by a writer who has evidently made deep study into the subject of true and false education, and after mature deliberation he has concluded that the public school system is false for the child and a fraud upon the taxpayer.

Not having space for the entire article, we confided to give our readers copious extracts, so as to hoop them abreast of the times regarding a system of injustice which will yet be wiped out when the "second sober thought" of the American people convinces them that freedom of conscience is outraged by the continuation of a system of education which injuring those it pretends to benefit, which is corrupting those who are its innocent victims, and which is an unjust a tax upon Catholics as was the stamp tax to the men of the American Revolution.

Foremost among the "defects" pointed out by the writer in the North American Review, we find that many of the public school scholars, "instead of being educated into honesty, have only learned to be sharper villains."

"Instead of being educated into good citizenship," said the writer, "many of them are no better—perhaps as are the ignorant; they take their votes and sell their votes. Many of them have little knowledge of any method by which they can be relieved from the false in dealing with men, or with religious duty. Few have learned to be a gentleman in the best sense of the word. Not yet are the boys fitted for life for others. And multitudes, both of boys and girls, have been "educated" into a positive distaste for the common life that most of our land, instead of learning how to make that common life the plastic material by the production of a healthful, helpful, and happy manhood. They have gained a smattering of many things, but they have learned to understand and control them." Not knowing even their own ignorance, they are not ready to learn; and they feel against, at times, when the trouble is that they have "been trained to understand and control them."

It is not at all necessary for us to suggest any reflections to our readers regarding the character of the republic of the future ruled by a class of "sharper villains" such as those depicted by Mr. Savage. Sharp villains who buy votes and sell their own, and who are unfitted, by false education, to fill their proper avocations in life, are not the class of citizens most likely to build up a Christian commonwealth.

Every State prison in the land is filled with falcons who—in a great majority of cases—belong to that class which graduated without a knowledge of God, and then finished a career of graded crime by falling into the meshes of the law. This and fate was not altogether the fault of the felons thus incarcerated, but it was brought about by that bad bad system of education which—as Mr. Savage well says—instead of educating children into honesty, only taught them to be sharper villains.

Passing over many arguments used by the writer of the article in question, and with some of which we are not fully in accord, we have only room to note the summary of his other objections to the public school system in brief:

"There is," he says, "almost no education of the hand—the one instrument that most of them must use more than any other. For are good farmers; few can read well; few can write a good letter, few good builders, certainly neither have the first principles of business, or are capable of business.

And this is the result of the most expensive system of education ever inflicted upon an over-taxed people! With spacious school buildings, large corps of well-paid "professors" and well-paid pedagogues of the male and female gender, the children write poorly, spell worse, and are in sublime ignorance concerning the responsibilities of life or how to earn a living! Such a system of fraud should be frowned down by every citizen who reverse Christianity and who hopes to see the future generations of the American people happy, moral, and prosperous. Without honesty, honesty, and industry properly applied.

One of the injustices which the public school system works against the majority of the taxpayers is the wrong system by which the children of the rich are made artistocrats in learning at the expense of the poor taxpayer who is unable to keep his child long enough in school to reach the pyramid of useless perfection which is ingeniously called graduation. The feature of the free school system will be very apparent from the following epitome quoted from the writer in question.

"In the month of February, 1883, there were in all the public schools of San Francisco 14,172 pupils. Only about one-half of them, or 79,300 had gone through the primary schools and entered the grammar schools; but only two and three-fourths per cent, or 1,215, had graduated from the grammar schools and entered the high. Of this small remnant, only 200 reached the third year of the course, 100 were in the fourth or advanced class."

Such are the uncommon results of a system of education called common, but which is only common in consequence of the continuous injury which it works upon innocent children, and the injustice which it imposes upon the struggling taxpayer who has to furnish free education for rich men's sons, who can afford to take all the time they please in dawdling about the public educational institutions until they develop into "sharper villains" to inflict fresh misery upon those industrious people whose money was consumed in procuring them an education that rendered them useless to them, and a burden—even if not a curse—to the community in which they unhappily exist.

Mr. Savage concludes his interesting article by enumerating another evil of the public school system which will be readily realized by all our readers who are familiar with the facts in the case. We quote his remarks in full, as they show that evil than is a major evil in a system rotten from the accumulation of disorders which have grown out of its defects:

"But, worst of all, the present system, while it fails to fit the great mass for real life, actually unfitted many for the place in society which they must be their real life-work. Since the foundation of the world, society will be children with fixed careers. It should at least not unfitted the many for that social sphere which is the lot of those who it actually does. Without the training which fits a child to be a good farmer, it may fit him for a position of honorable service in anybody's field, which would prove a mercy not only to himself, but to a house for him, unless he can keep her in idleness. Without the training which fits a boy to be a good carpenter, it may fit him for a place behind a counter, which would be a mercy to himself, and to the world which is sick to death of the swarming of those who should be at work in the shop, and yet are surrounding the home that might be cared by the 'labor' they think themselves too good to perform' where, and in its place taking a career, and ministering of which they had not the talents, training or inclination to fill; while most of them are really not adapted, into the ability to do anything in particular and do it well.

"Among Ward says, that on a certain occasion he 'tried to do too much, and did it!' This is just the weak point in our public school system. It is trying to do too much; and, as a consequence, is doing very little thoroughly and well; while the things that ought to be of chief importance are certainly not accomplished.

It is not necessary that we should add any words of ours in order to impress upon the minds of Western readers the force of the language we have quoted. As the writer, well says: "The things that ought to be of chief importance in public school education are certainly not accomplished," hence it behooves every citizen to see his influence to supplant this false system by one which will be—what all education ought to be—a benefit and a blessing to those for whose use it is promoted by public taxation.

Illustrations of that class of foolish girls designated so definitely by Mr. Savage, can be found in every city, town and hamlet by the hundred. These poor victims of the public school snare have been "educated" into the belief that labor is degrading, that gilded sin is preferable to honest poverty; that a disreputable misalliance with connection in the shape of a man whose only stock-in-trade is the paraphernalia of a gambler—is better than honest wedlock with the noblest work of God in the daily drudgery of domestic life. And it requires no prophet to foretell the fate of society searched by such evidences of evil education. The time of home are lost, the happiness of family life abandoned, and, finally, the paramour and her partner in sin, prey upon the public just as thousands of public school pupils have done before them.

That "an honest man is the noblest work of God," is a truism the truth of which can not be questioned, but we might as well expect to make grapes from thistles as to expect honest men and women as the product of a system of education entirely at variance with the plan of Christianity or the laws of morality. "By these fruits ye shall know them," and, judged by its fruits, the public school system of education is one that can only boast of the injury it has done to the innocent victims it has turned from virtue only to immerse them in odious vice.

Ireland's Prospects Brightening.

The coming session of the British Parliament promises to be one of great interest to all who have the welfare of Ireland at heart. Mr. Parnell's patriotic phalanx has been reinforced by the addition of several members from sections of Ireland which historic sent representatives that lent so old to the National party, hence he will now better prepared than ever to carry out his plan of blocking British legislation altogether, unless some measures of relief be passed for the amelioration of the Irish tenant-farmers.

Already many of the landlords of Ireland have disposed of their landed estates in parcels to their tenantry, and the outlook for peasant proprietary in the Irish province is very cheering. The terms generally agreed upon are twenty years' purchase, the landlords finding it more profitable to secure regular instalments of rent than to risk insecurity years, than to run the yearly risk of having to undergo the crucial ordeal of "no rent" confederation, when or the rent should fall or the political situation not suit the half-starved peasantry.

Another most notable and unlooked for sign of a change for the better in the programme of Parliamentary treatment of Ireland is discovered in the manner in which even the most rabid of the Irish Radical English newspapers now accept the new order of things and give their reason why a change should be made in the method of legislating for Ireland. The London Spectator—hitherto an extreme anti-Irish daily—has an article on the necessity for having the people own the land of the country in which they reside, so as to guarantee a property of the adopted form of government, and the writer then epitomizes the position of Ireland towards Britain in the following:

"The true Conservative policy, if the people are to be our masters in future, is to give the people that conservative instinct which only comes from real estate. At least so far, for the above, has all the world looked up in Ulstersville, the greatest of the Irish Conservative chapter. But when he exchanges those chattels for the land he tills, and the land he tills is large, and any Hebrewism for form's sake is a large proportion of the property of a church in Ireland, the same moral applies to the Catholic property, who, with England in this respect, is the character of the republic of the future ruled by a class of "sharper villains" such as those depicted by Mr. Savage. Sharp villains who buy votes and sell their own, and who are unfitted, by false education, to fill their proper avocations in life, are not the class of citizens most likely to build up a Christian commonwealth.

A Gross and Malicious Libel.

Some anti-Catholic newspapers seem to take delight in gloating over any temporal misfortune that may happen to anything pertaining to the Church. The destruction by fire of the convent school at Belleville, Illinois—the latest particulars of which we print on our third page—has afforded this ghoulish class of uncharitable sheets a splendid opportunity for venting theirspleen and exhibiting their un-Christian hatred against the Catholic Church. Commenting on this lamentable occurrence, the Portland Oregonian thus savagely assaults the sincerity of the deed by the invention of its evil mind:

The "holocaust" at Belleville, Illinois, as the newspapers generally call it, seems to have been prepared in advance so that it might, indeed, be a holocaust. The windows of the dormitories were locked, and had to be burst open, and the fire escape, and the doors of the dormitories in which the unfortunate victims were locked, this arrangement is a very fashionable selectional institution—the nuns well calculated to make angels of the hundred female inmates.

The complaint that "the doors of the convent were locked" is very silly, inasmuch as hours of every institution in the land are locked, precisely for the same reason that those convent doors were fastened. The doors of the dormitories were all opened in time so that all the inmates could have escaped if help was attended to them without. If the so-called "firemen" had exhibited one half the courage manifested by the Sisters, scores of lives would have been saved at the cost of the loss of a single example of heroism, which exalts the Sisterhood and places the fire-fiend rank of famous heroines of modern days.

"Sister Gelasta performed a most heroic act; she remained in her cell to find, she leaped from third story window, and alighting on frozen ground, broke her leg, and was found lying in the main door of the building. She then all called her sister Agnes to come to her assistance, and lifted her and children on the inside."

Since "the doors were all opened" and without having recourse to the "battering rams" of the Oregonian.

The malice of the Oregonian's malignant and unchariatable criticism is based upon the hope that by thus casting slurs and stigmas upon a Catholic school it can help the war of the fortunes of some sectarian institution where night-keys are furnished the young ladies so they can enter or exit at their own convenience.

Calamities like that at Belleville are very rare, and should call forth the sorrow of the non-Catholic press rather than the sneers and the spleen of that spiteful sectarian spirit which evinces more of Satanic glee over others misfortune than is becoming of a press that boasts of the tolerant spirit of its age. It should be ashamed and ashamed at the vindictive virulence of the Oregonian in regard to the subject chosen for this, its latest display of anti-Catholic rancor.

Loose Method of Caring for the Insane.

We deeply regret to notice in the columns of several journals the announcement of the suicide of John M. Hagan, who was for some time an inmate of Napa Insane Asylum. Hagan, it is said, had been placed by his parents, but from whence he was permitted to escape through the carelessness of those in authority there.

The manner of Mr. Hagan's death was both a and and a sudden blow to his afflicted parents, who fondly imagined that their insane son was safely cared for by the officials of the Napa Insane Asylum, until they were informed, by telegraph, that his corpse awaited their disposition. Such culpable carelessness on the part of officials deserves the strongest condemnation, as every community is likely to suffer if insane persons are permitted to walk out of institutions without any fear that innocention without some effort being made to capture them.

The deceased young man—in his sane spells—was a good, pious, obedient and devoted son, who was a source of delight was to drive his parents and relatives to Mass on Sundays and holydays, and these frequent visits were affectionately recorded in a little diary he kept for that purpose. Hagan, therefore, that the God of mercy whom he loved so well when his intellect possessed his reason, will be merciful to his memory, and to the unknown influence of the Land Act of 1881. If Mr. Parnell turns to account his increased popularity, not to throw back or to embarrass the work of pacification, but to help it, 'no one will regret the manifestation of which he is to-day the hero.'

—Next Sunday will be the twenty-third anniversary of the consecration of St. Rev. Eugene O'Connell, Bishop of Grass Valley. The Monitor sends its greetings to the venerable Prelate and prays that he may be spared to his flock for many years to come.

—The Dublin Freeman's Journal expresses its surprise that the people of Cork should leave "Father Mathew's Chapel" (as the Church of the Most Holy Trinity on Charlotte's quay is popularly termed) in its present unfinished state. It very appropriately suggests that every Catholic temperance society the world over—but beginning with Cork—should contribute itself a contribution for the completion of the funds needed to complete the building. The O'Connell Memorial Church and the Father Tom Burke Memorial Church will soon be added to the list of facts. And why not the Father Mathew Memorial?

—The Catholic admirers of the late Signor Mario, whose career as a singer, so long as his powers were in perfection, was one of triumphant success, will rejoice to hear that he received with great devotion the last Sacraments of the Church. Mario will long be remembered as the greatest tenor singer of the age.

—In one of his lectures delivered in Brooklyn Mgr. Capel said: Of the 200,000 Catholics in London not 10,000 were of native blood. In Ireland England sees such Catholic faith as it possesses.

—At the private chapel of the Archbishop of Vienna, Dr. M. Koecathl, Professor of the University, his wife and two sons, renounced the Jewish religion and were received into the Catholic Church. At the same time and place, the eldest son of the family, who is a student of theology, received the tonsure.

The Vindication of the Law.

After innumerable delays continuing throughout three years, the culprit known to the reading public as "Wheeler the Stranger," paid the penalty of his crime on Monday Wednesday. A few days prior to his death he was received into the Catholic Church by Rev. Father Cottle, who gave him all the consolations of our holy faith, and assisted him as he fell from the fatal drop, and buried the murderer's body after his execution.

Some people—wise in their own conceit—may scoff at the conversion of a murderer at a time when he sees the shadow of the gallows fall across his narrow cell. But such people should remember that the course of God's mercy is limitless and unfathomable. In their presumption they pre-judge the poor sinner and forget that it was to the penitent thief, as he hung on the gibbet, that the Son of God said: "This day thou shalt be with Me in Paradise. Hence it is not Christian charity to cast at the remorse of sinners, one of whom returning with pore and penitential heart to the household of faith exclaimed, "Lord, remember me when thou shalt come into your kingdom."

The so-called "intelligence" of our day is too apt to measure the infinite mercy of God by the rule of arrogant, finite man filled with vain glory, and it is in order that Catholics may avoid falling into the unseemly forgetfulness of the teachings of the Church on this point that we thus refer to the case of this criminal. We are assured—on the promise of God—that if our sins are as red as scarlet they can be made white as snow by means of the worthy reception of the Sacraments. The Church tells us to pray for the conversion of sinners, and the fruit of such prayer is the reception of the Sacraments to any of the sick.

Every Catholic home should contain a crucifix, holy water, and a blessed candle, as it is and sight to the sick and dying. Without these the ministrations of the Church are rendered well nigh impossible. The Church has no other object in view than the salvation of souls; hence, if our people would visit the sick not to see any of those external signs of Catholic faith to the bosom of the sick. Besides the presence of those incentives to devotion bring blessings upon every habitation wherein they are properly appreciated; they cause the spirit of prayer to arise in many a heart long lapsed from the ways of God, and, when, in their absence, no such sentiment would be felt; they are constant reminders of what God has ordained for us and our duty to Him; they keep alive in our souls the fire of faith, and are the consolations of the dying. Hence they should be a part of the furniture in every Catholic home wherein the glory and honor of God is considered the first and chief Christian duty.

The Heaven-sent Golden Rain.

The gleeful cotoes of the farmers of California are now ringing with the "Cradle of the Three Children," wherein the Church calls upon the several elements to blase the fruits to mature. A spasm of sweet-eyed alarm rain which have fallen all over the State during the past week will be every where recognized by Catholics as a blessed rain from Heaven; that the earth may bring forth fruit and the husbandman a rich reward of his honest toil.

Such a rain is a deliberate falsehood as could only emanate from a very fallen-over of Calvin. The criminal charges brought against the Presbyterian missionaries in Alaska did not originate with or emanate from any "Romish" priest and nobody knows this better than Dr. Sessnus Lindsley. The charges were brought by a non-Catholic hymn, were first published over the writer's signature in the daily Chronicle of this city, and the majority of the people who read them came to the conclusion they were true.

The Mormons copied them and commented on them, criticising the crimes of Catholics, who were guilty of what is all there was of "Romish" intervention in the matter by injurious specimens of sectarian rotten-ness.

Mr. Lindsley's low-flung slur regarding what he calls "the Popish mission at Fort Wrangle" is another weak and futile effort to cast the shadow of his ex-sectarian behind the mark of his malice against "Romish emmissaries." If our memory is correct, Father Althof built the Church of St. Rose of Lima at Fort Wrangle seven six years ago in the face of the most persecuting opposition thrown in his way by the Presbyterian preachers who hitherto had occupied the missionary field alone. Father Althof was a priest of the Society of Jesus, and he was a Catholic priest, and he was a Catholic priest, and he was a Catholic priest Professed on Her Death-bed.

The death of Sister St. Michael the Archangel, took place on Saturday evening, the 5th inst. The young lady was the eldest daughter of our well known fellow-citizen, Mr. Michael Moffhan. About three years ago Miss Mc Hanns bade adieu to the world and entered the novitiate of the Congregation of Notre Dame at Villa Maria. She commenced her period of probation, but her health was found to be in such a delicate condition that it was found impossible to proceed with her profession, and her entry into the order was postponed for the purpose of allowing her an opportunity to recruit her health. Accordingly a little over twelve months ago the young novitiate returned to her parents' home, and made preparations for a trip across the sea. The journey proved beneficial to Ireland under the care of her uncle, the Rev. Father Lefroy; but her return to the old country did not seem to have a beneficial effect, and she again returned to her home.

During the past week it became evident her end was fast approaching. Her confessor, Father Lynch, was to be present and received into the Order, at the Convent of Notre Dame, before her departure; this would be equivalent to her death-bed. On Saturday morning but the very Rev. Father O. Brennan, accompanied by Father Lynch, arrived at the residence of her parents, and administered the last sacraments of the Church to the young novitiate. Her Father, Mother, Brother, Sister, and Aunt, Sister Mary Ignatius, were present at the ceremony, for the purpose of receiving her into the Order. The ceremony of the reception, under the circumstances, was very impressive and solemn. Lying on her death-bed, but with perfect reason, and in full possession of her faculties, the young novitiate, for the last time, pronounced her vows, and received her habit, and the Rev. Father O'Brennan, received the holy habit, and took the name in religion of St. Michael, Archangel. The ceremony occupied some short circumstances but been but of rare occurrence, yet it was not the first time, in the annals of Notre Dame, we believe there has not been a similar case during the past twenty, five or thirty years. It is not, we believe, allowed by special privilege, but Miss Moffhan was so fully prepared that the Superior thought she could be admitted in something it is to her. The bereaved but fathers residence, on Guy street, at eight o'clock, and proceeded to the mother house of Villa Maria, where the Reverend Mass and obsequies were performed, and where the sympathetic bound for last months parting. She will be entombed by a large circle of relatives and friends, which is a tribute to the parents deep sympathy and esteem. Requiescat Pace Wilmon.

(Only the dead is peace.)

The Weather Flower and Position Stores, No. 33 Montgomery Street, have in the 20 years of their existence, gained a reputation equal to any house in the Union for the sale of Fine Teas, Coffees, Spices, &c. The Weather Flower and Position Stores are well known to the public, and the fame of the store is well known, for not will venture to offer an article for sale unless it is the best of its kind. Our Teas are all of the best quality, and we guarantee satisfaction or always ready to give goods in exchange or money back.

Catholic Publication Store.

For your prayers, rosaries, medals, holy pictures, crucifixes, holy water fonts, or holy water pots, or holy water, or any other Catholic article, call at 1021 Pine street.

Dr. Dwindle's Silver Spectacles the best and cheapest in the land.

[illegible] Dr. Dwindle's Spectacles are

The Truth at Last.

HOW O'DONNELL MURDERED CAREY, THE INFORMER.

Some Wholesome Advice to Blatant "Patriots" and Illiterate Blatherskites who are a Curse to Ireland's Cause.

We quoted last week a letter from a friend of O'Donnell, published in the Chicago Citizen, in which the theory that O'Donnell acted in self-defence was mortally repudiated and his real defence disclosed namely, that he acted deliberately as the voluntary executioner of Irish vengeance.

This theory has been confirmed by a letter in United Ireland—a journal that would not give publicity to any doubtful evidence condoning the position taken by the British Government at the trial, and fearfully justifying the execution of O'Donnell. Table Magazine dated Dublin, January 4, says:

"United Ireland published an account of the murder of James Carey, which from written, by a gentleman who received it from Patrick O'Donnell under a promise that it was not to be published as long as a doubt remained to save O'Donnell's life. The account shows that O'Donnell deliberately killed Carey. There was no struggle. Carey was alone. O'Donnell shot him. The Judge Dunsmen permitted him to speak O'Donnell would have the told whole truth. Unfortunately he was examined with Carey on the voyage from England to the Cape of Good Hope. He was not a member of any society. He recognized Carey by a wound which he met in battle and which he received to kill him. He intended to go with him to the town at Port Elizabeth, which Carey had told him that he was going to take, and thus show that there was no spot where Carey could be safe. Finding Carey all, however, alone with Carey he could not resist the desire to kill him.

Carey perceived his danger and said, 'Do you know me?'

O'Donnell replied, 'You are Carey, the informer! To hell with you!'

The bullet speed with the words, and the deed was done. Carey stretched his own arms above and Carey rolled to the deck. Nobody saw the encounter except O'Donnell's companion, who, O'Donnell fired two around him and filled the ship with his cries. He had told but that morning that he meant to kill Carey and would hang for what. He was Hero. Carey was a traitor. O'Donnell said to her, 'I had to do it.'"

There is a rule among detectives, that no man is any one well convinced fact does not fit into their theory of a crime, the theory must be abandoned at once or rejected as many other facts may seem to sustain it.

We published last week a brief summary of the facts that seemed to confirm the theory that Carey was an Informer. But there was just one little fact that stubbornly refused to fit into that theory—namely, that O'Donnell was supposed to have disowned, at Cape Town, that his fellow-passenger, Carey, was James Carey, from a Dublin stand-pat (the same portrait that appeared in this Journal at the time) and that his friends had written to Carey's wife to see him—he said that he would kill the informer.

With the theory O'Donnell premeditated the deed and carried it out in cold-blooded secrecy, when one circumstance, never mentioned, is recalled—that O'Donnell was closely of Cape Town under suspicion of being spies.

The theory that O'Donnell acted in self-defence is now exploded forever. So, also, is the theory that O'Donnell was an informer. The truth is established that O'Donnell, with unmoved and unexpressible boldness, by entering into Government, which he, demonstrated the earth of a villain who had betrayed into his crime and then betrayed them to the death. But, in then extenuating one of the blackest crimes of our time, O'Donnell assumed a power which neither God nor society had delegated to him. Here, history shows that no high civilization is possible where irresponsible individuals are allowed to arrogate the power of life and death. When they do so they usurp the place of the Deity. Carey was a traitor, but O'Donnell paid that dread penalty—paid it with heroic calmness, without a murmur, without a regret—paid it, and "with a smile" even as he stood on the gallows. He is in the same case, and not the end of the disgrace, the history of the Irish race will not be tenderly with O'Donnell. It will never have to say that murder, treachery had not avenged with his victim. It will pass by O'Donnell as a misguided of the folly and wickedness of opposing a cause which has received a new life, and new vigor, and that revenge beats counterspiracy, and that conspiracy begets counterplots, and that revenge begets counterplots, and that treason begets treasons.

In the island body of every nation are the latent germs of the knife of the assassin, of the poisoned bowl for another, and of the revolver of the avenger. God great that lipmand may soon see these but four blighting germs, means no terrible law yet repealed so long as any one of them lingers on her soil. Nihilists and "nihilism," secret societies, informers, informers and avengers are all the product of tyranny. They are curses wherever they are—alone on the body politic.

Having deliberately said a human being, made to live, to be sure, but unfit to die then, to his grave unshriven, it follows that O'Donnell was not "legally murdered," but that he was executed in accordance with the laws not of England only, but of every civilized nation of the earth.

Yet it has been vigorously yelled that his "legal murder" must be avenged—mostly by those whose action love took away his that hope of conservation.

Or when is O'Donnell's death to be avenged?

Who put Carey in power? Who organized the Assassination Club, one of which forced young Joe Brady to murder the unoffending Cavendish?

This was the beginning of the bloody brown that led to Phœnix Park, and the Kilmainham conflict—to the red grave of Carey and the quicklime grave of O'Donnell.

O'Donnell was not a martyr of Ireland—for Parnell, the unchallenged leader of the Irish people, and Davitt, and Dillon, his ablest and most influential lieutenants, denounced the crime that ended in Carey's treachery. Parnell asks for no blood sacrifice; Parnell's cause is hindered by every act of crime and violence; and Parnell is frequently hurt by the man who believe in revolutionary action, although he knows them pose as his champions. I know whereof I speak.

The true way to avenge O'Donnell is to brand as traitors in Ireland every one who touches the policy of assassination. Every such man is morally responsible for every political murder in Ireland, whether done in Phœnix Park, to overthrow the Government, or in the cabin of a landlord.

THE WEEK'S NEWS

—FROM—

IRELAND.

Jury Packing in Ireland.

Jury packing is as open and scandalous in Ireland today as it ever was, the 19 Hogan act having been set aside some time ago to facilitate the Coercion Act. Here is from Dublin a correspondent of the N. Y. Evening Post, says:

The prosecution of the County of Dublin is composed of ten Protestants to thirty-two Catholics. Upon cases important cases some months ago, ten panels were summoned from which to select jurors for the trial of capital cases. The panels were composed of sixty-three Protestants and thirty-seven Catholics, and thirty-two Catholics and twenty-two Protestants. The Protestant jury panel composed 45. The first was a Protestant, the second a Protestant, the third all Protestant, the fourth all Protestant and the fifth all Protestant. This was really be hoaxed that effect these proceedings have upon a Catholic country, all law is broken, the prisoner, and the man of the people are inclined to sympathize with every criminal.

Plowing Mr. Parnell's Land.

DUBLIN, Jan. 31.—Irish party of farmers, with 160 plows and 320 horses, plowed 50 acres of Mr. Parnell's estate yesterday.

Death of an Irish Priest in Mauritius.

Per exchanges announce the death of the very Rev. Canon M'Donald, Vicar-General of Port Louis, Mauritius. The demise of the esteemed gentleman was unexpected and sudden, and caused the greatest grief throughout the colony, where he was a general favorite. Canon M'Donald was for many years a parish priest of Port Louis, and was the senior priest of the Diocese. He was sent to Maynooth as a representative from the Diocese.—R. I. P.

Nationalist Meetings in Ireland.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21.—Notwithstanding the bad weather, the meetings of Nationalists, to the number of 200 polled, a meeting of Nationalists, held in Ballinrobe, in the land of the Catholic Bishop of Tuam, county Galway. It was adjourned by three cheers for Parnell, and a resolution in favor of constitutive the freedom of the city upon Michael Davitt and upon Messrs. Gray and Dawson, member of Parliament. The prosecution of Mr. Gray, the proceedings of an attempt to prevent the meeting, and a banquet will be given in honor of the two gentlemen. The date of the prosecution has not been fixed.

Great Meeting at Newport.

DUBLIN, Jan. 27.—At the Nationalists' meeting held in Newport, on 25th of the place, fifty thousand persons were present. Mayne, Rigby, Dillon, Sullivan, Sexton, members of Parliament, and many priests attended. A resolution was passed condemning the Coercion Government and the Land Bill. Mr. Dillon, in his speech at the Nationalists' meeting at Portarlington, stated that the Government, if it wanted, could not be compelled to grant a larger concession to Ireland. The Nationalist committee at Edgeworth Town, Lord Justice McCarthy said that Irishmen were determined to have their own Parliament.

MISCELLANEOUS DISPATCHES.

Ford's Emergency Fund Doneanad.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—The Commercial Gazette will publish to-morrow an open letter from John Byrne, Vice-President of the Irish National Land League of America, to Patrick Ford, editor of the Irish World, taking strong exceptions to Ford's idea of an "emergency fund" to be subject to his interest alone, without accountability, for the purpose of waging war with England. Byrne claims that such a course is the final blow which would be regarded by all civilized nations as guerrilla warfare, revolting to the sentiments of the age, and they would be beyond, from self-interest, to assist the English in crushing it. He protests against allowing Ford, Rosen and all that class to ill a standard of the Land League of the Irish and Irish cause. He shall be announced. Mr. Byrne closes by saying he hopes that he can rely on the majority of the Irish in America, including the Catholic clergy, in condemning the scheme, and in declaration.

Alleged Purchase of Dynamite with Money from America.

LONDON, February 24.—Considerable activity prevailed in police circles to-day over information received from Paris to the effect that several hundred pounds of dynamite, purchased with subscriptions to the fund of O'Donnell's rengeance fund, are being distributed in small quantities throughout London, and that preparations are being made for simultaneous explosions at a number of points in the city. A large force of detectives are on duty patrolling the streets and difficulty with customers of public houses petrolized by Irish Nationalists. Various public buildings have been mentioned in the search for dynamite, and the Tower of London has been doubled in guard, and the several lines of railway during the night.

Father Sorin Exiled.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. J., Jan. 18.—The Rev. Edward Sorin, Superior-General of the Congregation of Holy Cross, died at his residence here on Thursday night, at the age of 80 years. He was a native of Ardennes, in Pennsylvania Railroad on Thursday night, and was stricken on the way. He apparently recovered of the train's approach. His death was sudden. He was about 70 years old. There was found on him a small amount of money, with some letters addressed to his friends in New York and Baltimore. The body was cared for by residents of this place.

Begin the New Year by determining to practise economy. Where is the place where economy can be practised with more certainty of good results than in the purchase of a cough remedy? Nearly everybody knows a great number of every family is exposed. To save a to give 25c. and get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, is a saving of 75 cents. Nothing else will do as much for you. Trial bottles free at Hodges' Drug Store.

Market Report.

Corrected Weekly by F. J. Daly 504 Battery street.

MONITOR OFFICE,
Friday Evening, Jan. 29, 1884.

WHEAT—Quotations are:	$1 70@$1 75
FLOUR—Flour is selling at	5 25@5 75
Cornmeal	3 00@3 50
Oats	1 50@1 55
Barley, new	1 67½@1 10
Bran, $ ton, wholesale	17 00@17 50
Middling, Barley, $ ton	24 00@25 00
Middlings	19 00@21 00
POTATOES—
Hens, $ doz, wholesale	7 00@7 50
Spring Chickens, $ doz	5 00@6 00
Turkeys, $ lb wholesale	20@23
Geese, $ doz	10 00@12 00
Ducks, $ pair	2 00@2 50
Geese, $ lb	6 00@7 00
Young Roosters	7 00@8 50
Old Roosters	6 00@7 00
EGGS—
Choice, $ doz	25@30
Common	20@22
BUTTER—
Fresh, fresh roll	35@40
Firkin	24@30
Pickled	24@28
Pickled, $ tub	12 50@15 00
WOOL—
Wool	14@17
Southern Oregon	16@20
Choice Northern	21@22
MEATS—
Beef, wholesale	8@9
Mutton, wholesale	8@9
Veal, wholesale	9@10
Pork, wholesale	8@9
Eastern Sugar-cured Ham	16@17
California Ham	12@14
Bacon, $ 100 lb Eastern	14@15
Lard, $ lb in pails	10@11
VEGETABLES—
Potatoes, sweet, $ 100 lb	1 50@2 00
Onions, $ 100 lb	3 00@3 50
Cabbage, $ 100 lb	1 50@2 00
Turnips, $ 100	1 50@2 00
Carrots	1 50@2 00
Beets	1 50@2 00
Green Peppers	1 00@1 25
Green Peas, $ box	75
Squash, $ ton	20 00
Garlic, $ lb	10@12
Hops, $ lb	20@25
BEANS—
Bayo	5 00@5 50
Bayo, $ lb	6
Bayo, $ sack	2 75@2 75
Butter	3
Hessian, $ lb	7
Hops	17@18
California Dry, $ lb	15@18
Dry Kips	14@16
Calf	18@20
Salted Hides	10@11
Salted Kips	10@11
Sheep Skins, each, shearlings	50@75
TALLOW—
Rendered	7@8
Rendered Prime	9@10
DRESSED BEEF—
Steers, $ pound, $ box	7 00
California Flax, $ box	1 75@2 25
Body Lumber	1 75@2 25
Grapes	1 00@1 50
Mexican Limes	10 00@11 00
Cranberries, $ barrel	16 50@18 00
Corn
Milling	1 80@1 85
Feed	1 70@1 75

GOLDEN STAR OIL STOVES AND RANGES

OUR STOVES. What they Will Do

SEND FOR SPECIAL CATALOGUE

The only Pre Tin Stove for heating Rooms, Offices, &c.

ONE-HALF THE COAL

A Model of Cleanliness. Handsome. Durable. Economical.

WOODIN & LITTLE, 509 and 511 Market Street, SAN FRANCISCO

BANCROFT'S READERS

A NEW SERIES OF READERS

BY John Swett, C. H. Allen, Josiah Royce.

The Publishers desire to make the earliest announcement of the original New Readers just issued.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

TRY IT. DRUGGISTS SELL IT.

Made By H. B. SLAVEN, The Baldwin Building.

PLATING

NICKEL PLATING, GOLD PLATING, SILVER PLATING, Elegant and Durable.

ALL KINDS OF WORK PLATED. WORK CALLED for and delivered free. Lowest estimates given on all kinds. Satisfaction guaranteed in every particular. Also, Agent for the Celebrated Hardy Refrigerators. Place for saving gold, rings in assets, plated and plated mining, warranted the best made. Over one thousand references. The same Establishment.

PLATING ESTABLISHMENT

On Pacific Coast.

E. G. LEMISTON, Proprietor, under Post Premises at rear door of the Mechanics Institute for the last twelve years.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

IMPORTANT! BEG TO INFORM YOU THAT I have now the largest and best assorted stock of Ladies' and Children's Cloaks, Suits and Jackets I have ever had the pleasure of calling your attention to; and the pleasure of selling your selections to.

Ladies' Beaver Cloaks, newest made ... $ 12 00
Ladies' Kersey Cloaks, newest made ... 7 50
Ladies' Kersey Jackets, newest made ... 3 50
Children's Cloaks, from ... 1 50 up
Children's Jackets, from ... 1 50 up
Ladies' Silk Velvet Cloaks ... 17 00
Ladies' Silk Cloaks ... 12 00
Ladies' Satin Cloaks ... 12 00
Ladies' Satin Jackets ... 12 00
Ladies' Cloth Jackets ... 12 00

Remember the Number:
138 SIXTH STREET, 138
Bet. Natoma and Howard

JOSE TRUCO. GEO. LACOMBE

STACK & LACOMBE, Practical Hatters, 639 MARKET STREET, Under Palace Hotel.

The DRESS REFORM CORSET The Finest Corset on the Coast—Try it and Be Convinced.

M. H. OBER & CO., Boston Dress Reform Rooms, Established 1876. 726 Sutter St., S. F., Cal.

J. J. DYER, DENTIST, S. E. cor. Kearny & Post Sts., Entrance, 27 Post St. '84

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT

Wm. G. Badger, 13 Sansome St.,

HAS MADE AND SUPPLIED JOHN WHITE with one of his Hatch, Davis & Co. glasses for the entire year. Signed HATCH, DAVIS & CO. (Boston, Feb. 7, 1883).

HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM!

The Best Remedy in use for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Sore Lungs, Sore Chest, Lame Back, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, Chilblains, Toothache, Earache, Sore Feet, Sore Heels, Sore Nipples, Sore Udders, Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, Sore Nose

Poetry.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

JUST ONE SHORT YEAR AGO.

[Written for Joseph A. Kelly, of Virginia City.]

Just one short year ago, my darling,
It seems but yesterday,
The sweet chimes of our marriage bells
Were wafted far away.
But sweeter to me, your voice, darling,
Breathing vows such and love
Were that crowned our helpless hopes,
Just one short year ago.

Just one short year ago, darling,
I clasped you as my bride,
Scarcely gift from heaven seemed,
My wife, my joy, my pride!
When I blessed your warm young lips,
With love and sacred spheres,
You gladly pledged me like
Just one short year ago.

"Man and wife, until death doth part,"
Oh, God! that it should come so soon,
Why may my sole is sad,
Sweet! do speak to me, my darling,
Tell me it is not so,
Speak to me, or smile on you bid
Just one short year ago.

Oh, God! The tears! Thy will be done,
Oh, God! Thy will be done,
Call Thy will be done,
Good bye, my darling, be happy, and Smile on your bride, as you smiled on me
Just one short year ago.

San Francisco. MARY C. COTTER.

(FOR THE MONITOR.)

A TRIBUTE TO AN OLDER BROTHER.

The hand and trying strength,
Ye calling summons to the grave,
Where is cast each gold and sadness,
Where is cast each gold and sadness,
When, oh when, shall we be free from
All life struggles that we endure,
On our journey through death's valley,
Or, the grave, the cemetery.

Yet we mourn his happy condition,
Where sorrow and pain never not,
Where that glorious rest is given
Is the great home of the blest!
Yet we mourn for our loss, for
Is now broken golden chain to us,
Yet we mourn for our loss, for
When Dearest Mother I shall see.

Yes, that Mother meet us standing
On yon celestial shore, and
Yes, we shall rejoice in the hope
Of the great home of the blest!
Oh! what joy, what glorious joy
Yet we mourn for our loss, for
Is now broken golden chain to us,
Yet we mourn for our loss, for
When Dearest Mother I shall see.

Yes, that Mother meet us standing
On yon celestial shore, and
Yes, we shall rejoice in the hope
Of the great home of the blest!
Oh! what joy, what glorious joy
Yet we mourn for our loss, for
Is now broken golden chain to us,
Yet we mourn for our loss, for
When Dearest Mother I shall see.

MEDIE ALMAR.

SHORT REV. BISHOP MANTY.

Lists were from Rome bring the glad tidings that a memorial to the late Bishop Quinlan of Mobile, has been received at the Vatican of Right Rev. D. Manty, Vice Apostolic of Mobile.

Bishop Manty, is a native of St. Augustine, Fla., and is a nephew of the late Archbishop Quinlan of Mobile. He was ordained a priest in Spring Hill college, near Mobile, Ala., by the late Archbishop Quinlan, of Mobile, Archbishop of Mobile, on the 15th of August, 1886. He was consecrated Bishop of Mobile, Ala., by the late Archbishop Quinlan

THE MONITOR.
TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1885.

Lent: Its Meaning, and How to Properly Observe it.

As a Catholic journalist we are forced to admit that there are thousands of Protestants who observe the penitential season of Lent more appropriately and more religiously than do large numbers of those people who call themselves Catholics, but who pay little or no regard to the requirements of their religion. This is a sad commentary upon the conduct of the class of Catholics where we have equivocated at a proper time, few of whom—that we know—ever handle a Catholic paper or have catechetical books of instruction in their houses. These people think themselves wiser than those enclosed Protestants upon whom smile the Spirit of Wisdom Itself has left in indelible impression, and they have far too much pride to learn anything concerning their religion by personal the estimate of a Catholic journal.

Lent is that class of Catholics—has lost its spiritual influence and its pentecostal interpretation. Alms, fasting, and abstinence have become at so many "lost arts" to them, and they only laugh at the idea of any person so much as talking about a refusal from theatrical and ball-room amusements during the weeks in which the Church of God calls upon her children to suffer and share of our Divine Saviour! Yet these people pretend to love God and to honor His Church, while the fact is they are so many Pharisees who being the blind of a blind upon the Bride of Christ. "We be to him by whom scandal cometh," says the Heavenly Inspired Scriptures, and the scandals which some Catholics give of their observance of Lent will yet rise up against them as they stand terrified and in tribulation before the judgment seat of God!

The good child obeys his mother, and the good Catholic obeys his spiritual mother. Disobedience cost Adam and Eve the loss of Paradise, and the same sin entails the punishment upon the souls of those Catholics who rise up in rebellion against the religious regulations which our holy Mother Church, under her divine guidance, has prescribed for our observance of Lent. It is the profundity of wisdom, therefore, for Catholics to hear the Church when our Pastors issue their Lenten admonitions: to give ready and implicit obedience to the prescribed fasts and abstinences, which are so simple and so easy of observance—and—about all other matters, offers, to recite the prayers prescribed by our Pastors, and to avoid the occasions of sin against which they lift their warning voice and authority.

Balls in Lent are so abomination in the sight of the Church, yet they are patronized by Catholics, who professe to be in every given sense the well-conditioned people in the land—and who are called the children of God. Some Catholic patronizes these balls through the thoughtlessness and other motives, because of that indifference spirit that prevails by which men are so self-filled as to desire to show the world that the Church can not control their conduct in a public dance in Lent if they had to take the devil for their partner! They are confirmed in their guilt, and are encouraged in their guilt, by the plea "who will not hear the Church."

But there are thousands of good, honest, and well-meaning practical Catholics who are led into violating the commandments of the Church by the bad example of those mundaic givers whom we have hitherto stated. We all know from experience the force of bad example, but Heaven alone knows the holocaust of souls that have been sacrificed at the shrine. To those innocent victims of the gulls and folly of others we say, don't go to balls or theatres in Lent. Lent continues during less than seven weeks, and that leaves those who delight in dancing forty-five souls in the year during which to practice the opposite virtue of self-denial. Why, then in the name of common Christian sense, will people openly, and without willfully violating the law of God, rebel against the authority of our Church, disobey their Pastors, and give pain to their priests—for the simple but silly satisfaction of dancing their souls into the penitential season of the Catholic year!

The duty of the Catholic press is to counsel and not to command, hence the admonitions we give this week of the Monitor are only precursory to those commands which the Prelates of each Province will give utterance to in their Lenten Pastorals, and we make them as emphatic through the power of motives for the sole purpose of benefiting those among our readers who are open to conviction and willing to learn the holy Catholic religion from the stigma of shame cast upon it by slack-living and loose-living members of the Church of Christ.

There are, as we have already stated, thousands of Protestants who make it a rule never to enter a place of amusement or to indulge in dancing during Lent. Yet these people have no Church whose commands are binding on their consciences; they would scoff at the idea upon their souls if they cut, hack, and saw money, but their good, natural common sense convinces them that it is not in the true Christian spirit to fasten and fret with folly at a season when the Church vows the gift of immortal life the suffering and death of the Son of God. A widow, widower, or orphan who would join in a dance during the week in which the funeral of their departed relative was laid upon the bank, would be justly called unnatural ingrates to their dead kindred. Yet we Catholics, who profess to be upon being the true children of Christ, but who dance and revel while the Church commemorates—in methodist mid-sense—the sufferings and death of the Son of God for our sins—have less reverence for the Blessed Trinity than these spirits of Protestants who—guided alone by their own good sense and their doom! respect for Christian consistency—abstain from visiting their conscientious scruples out of pure reverence for the vicarious sacrifice offered by our Blessed Redeemer—from His agony in the garden to His crucifixion on Calvary.

The Church, the continental, and the communion roll are the magnets that should attract Catholics during the penitential season of Lent. If we love God we must take up our cross and follow Him, especially during that holy time when every day reproduces the gradual development of that tremendous drama which redeemed a lost world from Hell. And will true and faithful servants of God reject whilst the sorrowfulness Mother of God is undergoing the agonies of pain so portrayed in the seven Dolorous Mysteries of the Most Holy Rosary! Are our hearts so hardened that we can dance whilst the Saviour of our souls for His life is led like a malefactor before Pilate! Must we crown our heads with flowers and revel in pleasure whilst His sacred head is pierced with a crown of thorns? Away with the thought! Good, obedient, practical Catholics delight in pleasing God, and they detest those pleasures which give pain to their Pastors. In this spirit, therefore, we humbly hope that the holy grace of God may visit the souls of all our readers and impel them to so conduct themselves during the forthcoming Lent as to gain the favor of God by manifesting that spirit of obedience to the behests of their Bishops which distinguished the true Christ-like heroes of Christ's flock from those so-called Catholics who fraternize with gaudy Protestants during Lent. Yet these people pretend to love God and to honor His Church, while the fact is they are so many Pharisees who being the blind of a blind upon the Bride of Christ. "We be to him by whom scandal cometh," says the Heavenly Inspired Scriptures, and the scandals which some Catholics give of their observance of Lent will yet rise up against them as they stand terrified and in tribulation before the judgment seat of God!

The good child obeys his mother, and the good Catholic obeys his spiritual mother. Disobedience cost Adam and Eve the loss of Paradise, and the same sin entails the punishment upon the souls of those Catholics who rise up in rebellion against the religious regulations which our holy Mother Church, under her divine guidance, has prescribed for our observance of Lent. It is the profundity of wisdom, therefore, for Catholics to hear the Church when our Pastors issue their Lenten admonitions: to give ready and implicit obedience to the prescribed fasts and abstinences, which are so simple and so easy of observance—and—about all other matters, offers, to recite the prayers prescribed by our Pastors, and to avoid the occasions of sin against which they lift their warning voice and authority.

"No over step of a cordial, sensible, Christian, or of one so lately some amount, as we just yet have felt the force of speaking which prevails among well-meaning people who have been for then the bulk of selling Remarkable Catholics, and the Catholic by the Catholic Church, and the Church can call to mind. If the Bar-tender, are the Catholics, Who are we are, and what are the Catholics? Name the Church of Christ and the Church of Christ, and the Church of Christ, and the Church of Christ,

HER FIRST EXPERIENCE.

An Old Lady Joins a Hotel Clerk a Few Leading Questions.

An old lady with a jerky voice and a great display of snuff box and spectacles got off by a train in Detroit the other night and had to go to a hotel for lodging and breakfast. A few minutes before train time a clerk came up to her room to notify her, and found her sitting in a chair so still as a major. As he entered she broke out with "How much a day in this hotel?"

"Two dollars, madam."

"How much when you don't have supper?"

"Twelve shillings."

"How much when you eat up all night long, supposing to be murdered every minute?"

"Just the same—twelve shillings."

"How much when you don't eat any breakfast for fear of being poisoned?" she continued.

"Just the same, madam. There is your bed, and breakfast has been ready these two hours."

"Well, I don't pay it!"

"But, madam—"

"No, not if I died for it! Here I've not let this blessed chair all night long, boarding whether and bolts and folks rattling, and then whooping, and expecting every minute would be my last one on earth!"

"But that you been going all night?"

"Every minute, sir. I've allus made a question o' minutes my business, and I didn't propose to cut time to suit anybody fooling with that thing. How much is it when you've got and breakfast like a hog, from 5 o'clock at night till half past 6 morning, wishing to goodness you hadn't been fool enough to start for Jimmy alone?"

"Just the same madam?"

"Yet by a jiggins, young man! Here's fifty cents, and you can take the rest out in kitchen. I haven't missed the bed nor breakfast beneath, and fifty cents is plenty for having a roof over my head. Get out of my way, for I'm going!"

He had to step aside or be run over, for she picked up her satchel and put on cloak and nothing could stop her. She marched her way down stairs and started for the depot, and when a boy asked if she would have her baggage toted she whacked on him and called:

"You mandae! I've been swindled out o' fifty cents already, and if there's any more fooling around somebody will get hurt!"

God Made Us to Laugh.

God made us to laugh as well as to cry. The laugh of a little child will make the hardest heart soft and glad. Smile, then, ye heard of fun, O moist gentlemen, the laughing cure is a positive success. Fill the vast cellars of the Cliquot with champagne, open the bottles, and let the cages fly! Filter, bottle, cork and dip silver noses in brook and kiss the mouth waves, charming the wandering lovers on the vine-clad hills, and leave your resistant cheeks are discovered all connected with children's laughs. Laugh—the laugh that fills the eye with tears, and causing every cheek with joy. Oh, ripples from of laughter, come out of the blessed home; deep into between the heart and the man, and the years of time dark draw a more fruitful Eden!

Coffee Perfume Stores.

For years Chinese, Japanese, Arabian, Indian, etc., in handkerchiefs, any horse, at N. J. QUINN, Fresh Coffee.

"Pendleton Bitters regulate the stomach and is the best tonic.

THE FAMOUS METHODS OF PROCURING A [illegible] Gold Medal awarded Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator, and at all seasons Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator, and at all seasons Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator, and at all seasons before beheld. He was lying in a bed sufficiently decent of itself, but it presented no amount with dirt; his look was that of a man greatly tormented in mind; his eye hagged, his countenance forbidding, and his whole appearance that of one whose better days had been overcloud with a long and gloomy dotage. His only nourishment at this time, we were informed, was nothing more than milk punch, in which he indulged to the full extent of his vicious state. He had partaken, undoubtedly, but very recently of it, as the odor of it was perceptible, and exhibited conspicuous traces of it, as well as of blood which also followed in its track, and left its mark on the pillow. His face, to a certain extent, had also been besmeared with it. The head of his bed was against the side of the room through which the door opened. F. Kaldenkan, then lying dead, took a seat on the side near the foot of the bed. I took my seat on the same side, nearer the head. Then, in the presence in which Paine lay, his eyes could easily rest on F. Kaldenkan, but not on me, without turning his head.

THOMAS PAINE.

[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

AS SOON AS HE HAD SEATED OURSELVES F. Kaldenkan, as a friendly man, who informed him that we were Roman Catholic priests, and were come to give consolation to him. Paine made no reply. After a short pause F. Kaldenkan proceeded thus, addressing himself to Paine: "Mr. French informed me that you, Mr. Paine, had been imagining something that as Paine had been to me incredible, viz., of imagining that religion (which was not the fact,) and might be a public passage, and he was glad to hear of it, that then a greater facility, and could appear in the world as a Christian. Is it true?"

MR. PAINE, THEN, LIFTING HIS HEAD A PEAK; he gritted his teeth, turned and twisted himself several times in his bed, uttering at intervals the most horrid imprecations, we truly believe that such was the rage that he was then in, that he thought of his bed a place he would have shot any one of us, for he imagined himself more like a madman than a rational creature. F. Kaldenkan, fearful and trouble as no more. "I was in pause, imagining that you might pass over to Mr. Mr. Paine, I'm sorry to hear that you, Mr. Paine, have been so long in the world, and yet have been so long in the world; God hath said it." "Away with you, and your God, too; leave the sepulchre of the dead of power, and you constituted of persons who were then not from the domestic reason that they were certain some of certain fathers and mothers, but because those who sent them there thought they were fit to take part in the making of laws. The great boast of the House of Commons was that alone amongst the legislative assemblies it had enjoyed freedom of debate. How he would say boldly that the House of Commons never enjoyed the freedom of their deliberations, or the freedom of speech. Until the Irish members taught them how to enjoy it. What was the result of other men who had enjoyed them some advantages, how strange it was that in all which seemed straight and thought or effective expression it would be very easy to find some in but those who were born to a bog, educated in a hedge school, who never went beyond their native mountains, and who never knew any society beyond that which was found beside the potato pot. Yet, he would say, that the House of Lords had manifestly outlived its influence and its power, and the man who intellectually complained there at the present moment, Lord Salisbury, who seemed to be very fond of the Irish people, and who spoke in such a manner as to make him to speak, I finally combated to my friend, who had called upon him, and was conversed with observing: "Mr. Pitod, you will excuse me, I have to leave you, and that this God cannot be indifferent to the sufferings of his creatures." (Laughter.) "I will allow nothing, sir," he hastily replied. "Well, sir, if you will listen calmly for one moment, I will tell you, I am certain that there is such a Being, and I will prove it." (Laughter.) "Prove it, if you dare!" he exclaimed, in a tone of defiance. "Why, I wish to raise your attention to three questions, and inquired of a man I knew who they were. "Oh," said this friend, "that is the House of Lords." "The House of Lords, what do you mean?" "Those three lords," returned his friend, "are waiting on the gallery till the Bill which the House of Commons, and then they will go up to the House of Lords and pass it there." (Laughter.) It required no great skill in the House of Commons to transact the business, but three lords could pass any Bill into law; and the reason why it was why that would not do was because mid what he rose to say; and, secondly, any person who insulted decency and fair play by attempting to shout him down was brought into a prominence more conspicuous than pleasant. (Cheers and laughter.) The purification of custom and the elevation of manners which the Irish party forced on the House had redounded to the advantage of every party, and if the House of Commons, through circumstances upon which we need not dilate, had passed rules restricting the use of liberties, he would say it would be found that the House could never again return to the enjoyment of its great privileges until it had satisfied the demands of the Irish people. (Cheers.)

The Two Houses.

THOMAS SEXTON, M. P., ON THE LORDS AND COMMONS.

THE ACTIVE IRISH PARTY.

Stupid Peers, Dreary Commons, and Lively Parnellites.

On December 20th Mr. Sexton, M. P., lectured in Dundalk, Ireland, on "The Lords and Commons." Mr. Sexton said:

DEBATES IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS' SERAIL. A debate in the House of Lords seemed very grand and very imposing, but it was in reality one of the most ordinary and most inert spectacles that could be presented to the human mind. Entering the House of Lords during a debate one found two or three score of elderly gentlemen, worn and weary, and looking oppressed as though they were incapable of taking an interest in anything, and as though they found great difficulty in preventing themselves from falling asleep. The Prince of Wales proposed to be addressing the House conveyed the impression that he should be very sorry to have it supposed that he was either eloquent or in earnest. The Lords talked in an inaudible voice, as if imagining that their ideas consumed only the group of noble personages around, and he was forced to agree with the Lords in that opinion, for though nine-tenths of what they said was not worth hearing, yet if he was the man tenth which resolved his ears he should not have heard a word of it. Some years ago, when I was on the various problems on Peasant, at a public meeting in Dublin, I had been asked to hear the speech, and in a sharp tone of voice request that he would speak that the Irish English man speak English. F. Kaldenkan, without showing the least embarrassment, begin to excuse and expressed his inability, hastily as follower, after his interpretation, English. "I wish you understand, sir, that the 'Age of Reason' do well as your English speaker." Paine, hitherto silent, now set up from his pillow. He looked at F. Kaldenkan, and then gave he to me, as if he would say, "Shall I?" I said, "Yes." Paine, then, in a tone of voice, addressed F. Kaldenkan: "Do you know, sir, that I'm as good a Christian as you are? I'm as good a Christian as you are." "Yes," replied F. Kaldenkan, "I know that." "Do you know, sir, that I'm as good a Christian as you are?"

Poetry.

THE SECRET OF THE HEART.

To pine through life in a perfect part,
Wounded and unknown!
Have one to share your heart
Is the only God's choice.
A little thing to care or sigh for,
To have no share in great,
To find the labor nearly vain,
And for the crown to wait.

Upon the brow 'tis hear no trace
Of pains that rankle so sore;
To write no secret in the face
Is a thing to read it there.
The daily cross to clasp and bless,
With such feeling sweet,
As bliss from all that not the less
The daily weight yet feel.

In idle that praise will never pay,
To see your life go past,
To speak in every speaking day
The same of the last.
To have of high, heroic things,
And yield them reverence due,
Sign had life's daily offerings,
And for more let for you.

To see the world call them
To which self love is passion,
Yet to yield by all other eyes,
Unworthy in your every
To yield with a smile, to bear
That no one thinks you care,
And yet, to know that you care,
How fain you would be so.

Oh! 'tis a pathway hard to shunn
A thousand times a day,
For human pride would shut unless
Its pleasure to obey.
But does we know the pain is by Thy Father's chastening rod
What higher life could God bestow
Than such a life as this?

FIRE IN A SCHOOL.

Seventeen Jewish Children Burned to Death at Chicago.

The fire mentioned above was a terrible affair. Building, the upper story of which was used as a synagogue, was discovered to be on fire. The fire originated on the staircase of the first floor, of which there is a store. The flames had spread up by one of the gaslight pipes, which were boxed in with pine boards, and had burned through the ceiling into the synagogue. Her mother probably went down to the scene of the fire, and left her daughter in charge of the children. The fire had spread so rapidly that they could not escape by any of the regular exits, and seeing the flames and smoke, and also of natural intelligence, Dorothy told her behavior was from her mother's authority, and she now her danger and the methods of escape the greater evidence, believed that she had those one up to their work, and Jewish immigrant children, and so on.

Age and experience should have taught Judge Hall discretion if not intelligent decency. The Judge is a man of mature years, and should be able to tell the more minutely rite, coming from one who is a Jew, and who should be generally esteemed.—Washington American Reporter.

BIRTH DISTRICTS IN ENGLAND.

At the last census the nation of Ireland was 5,174,936 in the population of 21,000 to 1,000 in the population of 21,000 to 1,000 in the population of 21,000 to 1,000

THE MONITOR.

TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1884.

Editorial Notes.

—Nearly one-half of the business men of Cohoes, N. Y., are Catholics.

—Twelve of the Sisters who survived the catastrophe at Belleville, Ill., are now in St. Louis, Mo. They are still suffering from the nervous shock sustained.

—Congressman Cullom, Lowry, Collins, McAdoo, Berry, Finerty, Dorsey of Massachusetts, and Robinson of New York were born in Ireland.

—A Catholic paper is to be published at Galveston, Texas, under the title of the Catholic Monitor, with Mr. Galvey, now of the Catholic World, New York, as editor, and Mr. Mahoney business manager.

—The Hon. J. K. O'Hara, the colored member of Congress from North Carolina, is a practical Catholic, and occupies a pew in St. Augustine's Church for colored Catholics in Washington.

—It is thought in Catholic circles in Edinburgh that Cardinal Howard will one and the late Most Rev. Dr. Strain as Catholic Archbishop of the Scotch metropolis.

—Northern journals state that there will be more Catholic churches built in Iowa this year than was ever built in any two years before. The growth of Catholicity in Iowa is unparalleled in the history of any State.

—Most Rev. Archbishop Williams, of Boston, was tendered a reception on his return home from Rome by his devoted flock.

—Nearly two hundred priests were present at a banquet given in honor of the Archbishop, at which an address and a purse containing $7,000 were presented by his Grace.

—The first annual meeting of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society of the archdiocese of Chicago was recently held in that city, with 700 members. The report of the Board shows that eighteen societies have joined the organization within the last six months, and that the pledge has been taken by 11,605 persons.

—Mr. Hepburn, a wealthy wholesale merchant of Three Rivers, Ind., has recently purchased and equipped, at an expense of nearly $60,000, a hospital in connection with his city. On New Year's Day Mr. Hepburn gave the hospital, with a joyful heart, into the hands of the Sisters of St. Francis, with the express wish that all, whether Protestant or Catholic, black or white, should find there a hospitable home.

—The Liverpool Catholic Times says that the Catholics are making many people stir in the English journals to the effect that the Congregation of the Propaganda had selected Bishop Moran, of Canoy as successor to the Archbishop of Sydney, but our Roman correspondent of same paper, and some others, created considerable surprise in Rome. This is quite natural, seeing that the Propaganda has not yet come to a decision.

—A sad calamity, which would be pronounced incredible, if put into a novel, was that of the death, within a few days, of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, of Boston. The husband went to Florida, and while there, was bitten by a mad dog, on Saturday, and dying of hydrophobia the same day. His wife was a passenger on the City of Columbus, and on her way to join him in the new home, when she, too, perished, with the venom on board. They met, but seconds then they separated and, let us trust, in a better world.

—There was one item in connection with the celebration of the Cardinal's jubilee that escaped the notice of all the newspapers, daily and weekly. How? It is: At the banquet in the afternoon a number of the orphans in the asylum approached his Eminence for the purpose of presenting him with an address. The address was read in white, as representing the ten years of his jubilee; thirty-one were robed in white, meaning the purple amber, as indicative of his thirty-one years of his episcopacy, and nine of the children were robed in white with red sashes, suggesting the nine years of his Cardinalate. The little ones were in charge of the Sisters. The address affected the Cardinal, it was so touching.

—It cost $2,185 to maintain 72 boys at the Industrial School during the month of January. Of this amount the extraordinary sum of $1080 was spent in salaries. It is said that at present there is one officer for every four boys in the institution. The same number of girls kept in the Magdalen Asylum, under charge of the Sisters of Mercy, would cost the city only $1,100 or $100 more than the salaries alone paid to the boys institution as managed by political manipulators, and a difference in favor of the Sisters of Mercy of $1,085 saved to the city by having such institutions under the management of competent persons who have some semblance of conscience and who have no political wires to pull.

—Father Phelan, of the Western Watchman had an interview with Archbishop Ryan on his return from Rome and learned from his Grace many interesting particulars concerning the forthcoming Council, which, says Father Phelan, "should be known only to Bishops and advisers." Among the rest he relates the following funny incident:

The Archbishop said that seeing His Holiness an opponent of majority humbled a man, but he was able to feel his nothingness in a most peculiar fashion, so Leo constantly addressed him as "Your Eminence." Addressing Ryan, Rios (Nothing) Archbishop Perkins fared even worse. He was announced as Archbishop of Goa, (Goa being the only presentation the chamberlain could put upon Chicago)—"Qui Goa?" said the puzzled chieftain. "Ah! Goa," said His Holiness—"Goa!" and the Pope's surprise, when instead of a little man in silk hose, sandals and gaiters, he beheld the tall, dignified, kingly form of the great Archbishop of Chicago.

Death of Very Rev. J. B. A. Brouillet.

It is with feelings of sadness that we have to record the death of Very Rev. J. B. Brouillet, for many years Vicar-General of the Diocese of Nesqually, Washington Territory, and the founder of the Bureau of Catholic Indian Missions at Washington City. As announced last week, Father Brouillet has been under charge of the Sisters in Providence Hospital, Washington, D. C., during the past few weeks, and his sufferings ended on Tuesday last in a happy death, for which his whole life was a daily preparation. During thirty years we had the honor of his warm friendship and we admired him for the zeal which he manifested in the salvation of the souls of the Indian races of the Northwest. Almost single handed and alone, for years he has labored for the Indian tribes so that each successive Administration saw great the different tribes, who had been robbed of their lands and corrupted in their morals by contact with the white race, at least some small recommendation in recognition of their rights and as a recompense for the outrages which had been perpetrated against them by the white men along the frontiers of civilization.

In this way Father Brouillet has accomplished a great deal when we consider the powerful commercial and political influences against which he had to contend, and although his long continuance and arduous efforts in behalf of the Christianization and civilization of the Indian race may not be fully appreciated on earth, we feel deeply assured that the good, holy priest who spent himself for the salvation of souls will be fully rewarded in Heaven.

Father Brouillet was born in Canada, where he was educated and ordained a priest, and having manifested a desire for missionary work, he accompanied Bishop A. A. Blanchet, the Bishop of Nesqually, in 1847, arriving at Fort Walla Walla on September 8th, of that year, with the intention of establishing a permanent mission among the Umatilla Indians who had been previously visited by the renowned Jesuit, Father P. J. De Smet, and afterwards by Father F. N. Blanchet and M. Demers, afterwards Archbishop of Oregon and Bishop of Vancouver Island, respectively.

When Bishop Blanchet, Father Brouillet and some Fathers of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, arrived at Fort Walla Walla they had already been a Presbyterian manufacturing and trading post—"Protestantism"—established among the Cayuse Indians under the specious promise of payment for their lands in annual presents—a promise, it is almost needless to say, never carried out. Hence the Indians were naturally alarmed at seeing people settle upon their lands, cultivating land, building houses, crops of wheat and vegetables which they sold to American immigrants, while the poor owners of the soil had to look on in their half-starved condition. Time and again the Indians peaceably requested the horse-trading and trafficking parsons to leave their lands; then, finding words of no avail, they resorted to violence, going so far as to offer personal insult to the manager of the trading-post mission, and finally their redress was sought at the point of the rifle. The outcome of this was that the Indians, with their arms unmasked behind their blankets, intercepted themselves successively the chief, and the missionary, and the merchant bachelor. There or four men (American) only were slain in escape.

"The escapes which sickness had made in their ranks, together with the conviction that a half-breed, named Jo Lewis, had succeeded in telling more truth than Dr. Whitman had believed them, were the only motives I could assign for their not killing the whole party on this act of murder. This half-breed had longed, and a conversation, the day before Dr. Whitman left, was interpreted, in which he made it say that it was necessary, in order to hasten the death of the Indians in order to get possession of their horses and lands. "If you do this you will be hung," he, "you will be sent to the gallows."

"I assure you, Sir, that during the time I remained in the Cayuse country I was in fear of my life; I was far from feeling safe, but felt it to be my duty to remain, and I did so. Yesterday, in the midst of assassination, my hands were still washed with blood, and who by their acts satisfied their countenances, and the arms which they still carried, sufficiently showed that the blood which for blood was yet unsatisfied. Amounting as some stated a number as possible, I must more than once gazing bloked at the tomahawk, pistols, and guns, in order to satisfy myself that whether there were not some of them directed towards me.

"The bodies were all deposited in a common grave, which had been dug the day previous by French Canadians, who, I was informed I saw when they were covered with earth. But I have since learned that the grave was not deep enough, and consequently unclosed, and been molested by the wolves, which, from the cry of the corpses had been attracted by them.

"Having buried the dead, I hastened to prepare for my return to my mission, in order to inform Mr. Spalding, who was with the danger which threatened him; because on Monday evening, the Indians had told me that he had sent to me his intention to return to Dr. Whitman's on the following Wednesday or Thursday, and I wished to meet him in order to give him a chance to escape. Mr. Spalding was with the Indians, at the massacre widowers of the state, and expressing to them his regret that he had not been with Dr. Whitman. Before leaving the women and children I had told Mr. Spalding, who promised to be ready to go in the place of Dr. Whitman, saying him to promise me that they would not kill him, and I left him with the Indians, promising to return the day to them, said he, "that they need fear nothing, and I left him with the Indians, promising to return the day after saying what I could to encourage them, at the same time I myself entirely always free to face upon their account.

"After leaving the Doctor's house I perceived that the son of Tilokaikt followed me in company with my interpreter, who himself was an Indian, his friend and his relative by his wife. I did not think that he had the intention of coming for with us, I believed that he was merely coming to the place of the potlatch not come was place for evening, and that he would afterwards return to his home, with the company of the Indians. I was still continued going on with us, I became uneasy, and I said to my interpreter that the Indians were angry at all Americans, and were complaining that the Doctor had given his water. But what could I do in such a strangers? I was alone, and I could not tell the Indian to go back, because he would have considered it an affront, and I would have been wrong I could not start ahead of him, because he had arms and I had none, and I was rather I proved that to have all in the hands of Providence. Fortunately, I was well mounted, and I resolved to put my horse at full speed, and I succeeded in one for a mile. They prepared the saddle, and when the son came for Sahiba, I said to him, "Tilokaikt, make fire, "You have a pistol," said Sahiba to me, "I have not," said I, "I have left it at home." Sahiba, he fired his pistol, relaxed, I was with the interpreter without thinking, I was thinking that my life was in danger, I was in a state of agitation, I was in a state of agitation in smoking. I saw Mr. Spalding, I was in a state of agitation. I saw Mr. Spalding, I was in a state of agitation. I saw Mr. Spalding, I was in a state of agitation

SOME OLD CONSTOCKERS.

How They All Died Poor.

The other day I stood by the grave of Old Pancake up in Bonanza then Gen. J. S. Brisbin, from Colorado. And who, do you inquire, was "Old Pancake?" A man known throughout the civilized world; a man who, if he had kept all he h. f. earned, would have been the richest man in the world, and build when the Vanderbilts, Mackays, and Goulds would be mere pigmies—Hump Tucson Paige Comstock, the owner of the world-known Comstock Lode, of Nevada. Poor Old Pan Cake! He lay there quietly in his six feet of another earth—he, the richest man the world ever knew, he who called him Pan Cake because he was so busy he had no time to make bread. With a spoon in hand he would beat up mess dough into a batter and bake a pan cake, his dreamy eyes fixed upon some distant peak, and he aided hope with speculations as to how much gold and silver it contained. He was a dreamer of wealth, at least found, but never realized by him. Yet he was not the discoverer of the Comstock Lode. Comstock was toiling over in America Flat Ravine, when Pooor O'Riley and Pat McLaughlin found the outcrop of the Comstock Lode. John Bishop, a miner, spoke to "Old Virginia," (James Finney,) another old miner, about indications seen by him at Gold Hill. Finney said that he had noticed them when building dam, but attached no importance to them. O'Riley, McLaughlin, and Finney, proceeded over to Gold Hill. Finney pre-empted, but did not locate. One pan pulled down only another eight cents, and it blew five cents. Virginia followed the prettiest up, and presently came back and said that he had found a vein. They then decided to locate. McLaughlin and O'Riley said it would take a week to hand of the river. They said rocker and pan small pay—$1.50 and $2.00 per day. So they worked until Feet 1, 1859. When they saw the point of abandoning the mines and going to Walker River.

To gather water they commenced digging a well, and when four feet down they struck decomposed ore. The sun shone down, and dirt did not at first attract their attention; but, as it is the nature of miners to try everything, McLaughlin put some dirt and ore into his rocker, and washed it out. The bottom of the rocker was literally covered with fine gold. Again and again they tried with the same result. They washed out a small pail of gold at the rate of $800 per day. On the morning of the discovery of Old Pan Cake, "M. T. P. Comstock, who had been out on the mountain hunting his horses, found him, some hours by the notice. When he saw the gold he was taken aged out and he as near being ready to die for joy. He said: "In and the ground on which the mines were situated belonged to the Indians, they were using one also lie. He had lost his feet, 150 cents, but a much, and the spring from which the water came he had taken up for mining purposes. Whether this was or not the case, Comstock and his friend, and put down Comstock and his friend, Comstock, claiming to be equal interest with themselves. This being arranged, Comstock dodged out again for the use of the water. This done, and he found the hundred feet the claim, and he found the Comstock Lode, worth not for $1,000,000. I do not be exactly how much Old Pan Cake had right to the lode. After he had obtained his interest with O'Riley and McLaughlin he turned on some that people began to sell them the Comstock claims. The whole claim were Pan Cake, O'Riley, Patrick McLaughlin, Pat Comstock, E. Penrod and J. A. (Kentuck) Osborne. These men owned the Lode, which more than $600,000,000 of gold and silver has been taken out. Old Pan Cake was a hunter, shooting Gulch and claimed to be the first man to see the way over Sierra Nevada. Old Virginia said he was fond of his pipe and a bottle of whiskey. The parties who brought it got drunk.

"Old Virginia" was thrown from a buckboard by his team trying to side and killed on Sunday, Dec. 1, 1878. He left $9,000, Patrick McLaughlin at last accounts was a crack in Colorado. Peter O'Riley, who got $40,000 for his share, went crazy. The spirit of the Comstock lode is dead, while there was a bigger mine than the Comstock, the dog and dog without a sign of cake. At last the mine owed so an him and nearly killed him. They dug him out and put him into an immense copper where he died soon after in poverty.

Henry Thomas Paige Comstock, the last big spirit of the Comstock lode, wandered away from Bonanza, Montana, Sepiton, Sept 27, 1880, he evidently blazed his trail the land with a revolver. He had brooded over his losses, and was out of unsound mind. Of the vast fortune decided away by Comstock and his friends one may gain some idea by looking at the estates from Joseph Selkirk. In 1873 the yield of the Comstock mine was $61,000,000 of gold, and $63,274,85. In thirteen years, $630,000,000 was taken from the Comstock lode, or twenty-five times the yield of $24,750,000. The average annual yield of the mineral purpose was valued at $48,147,000. Of about by his grave, he stood the corner of these vast millions, and, believing that he was cured for, without even a stone to tell where dust mouldered below.

The Wonder Flower and Feather Store, No. 1008 Market street, is now in its 7th year of its existence, and is daily placing custom on a permanent footing, by the fact that it does what it advertises. Ladies and gentlemen, you can depend at the wholesale price, the cheapest place to buy ostrich feathers, fancy feathers, etc. Ostrich feathers cleaned, dyed, curled, and repaired in the best manner. Ostrich feathers can always rely to order prompt in return mail.

Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods.

Buy your pajamas, ribbons, corsets, hosiery, gloves, silk, etc., in handkerchiefs, many styles, at 1 2 CENT. 1008 Market street.

Dr. Theobald's Bitters regulate the stomach and is the best tonic.

FAMILIES DESIROUS OF PROCURING A really good lemon extract should call at Eisen's and Stocker's Wholesale and retail agents, 1 Market and 1 Sutter streets, and 1 Market and Sutter streets, who impart it for retailing. Every bottle guaranteed. Ask your grocer for it. Ask your druggist for it. Ask your druggist for it. Ask your druggist for it. Ask your druggist for it.

—A Gift out of trash, you find Fillmore hair dye. Dark, natural without pain, dye great. W. H. CLARK, Druggist, 110 Kearny Street.

—Brook's Spool Cotton, soft finish as well as glace finish, is manufactured especially for sewing machine work. Try it on any sewing machine you will use no other. For sale by all dry goods stores.

CATHOLIC SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

The Order C. S. of A., has already over 300 members and already 15,000 members in the United States. They pay $5,000 at the death of a member. Size to people 15 and 45 years of age can join. Rev. Reverend J. F. Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore, and Prelate of Ireland, are members of the Society. Address Catholic Society of America, Baltimore, Md., or apply to the Reverend Rector of any Catholic church in the United States, or any member of the Society. Dr. J. P. Schmitz, 1007 Market St., San Francisco.

BUSINESS AND PENMANSHIP PARTNERS, INC

We continued our readers to notice Thos. H. Hall's 1183 Market street, the cheapest and best place in the city to learn business, plain and ornamental penmanship, paper hangings, fine telegraphy, and all the branches of a first-class business education. Give him a call and be convinced.

DOGS BOUGHT AND SOLD, BY A. BOUGHON 1308 Montgomery ave.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Home Items.

"All you can eat for a dime—Hop Bitters.

"I'll pay a million dollars for a cure—Hop Bitters.

"The weakest woman, smallest child, and sickest invalid can use Hop Bitters.

"Hop Bitters will cure great Sore Throat.

"Old man tottering around from Rheumatism, kidney trouble, or any weakness, will be almost new by using Hop Bitters.

"My wife and daughter were made healthy by the use of Hop Bitters, and I recommend them to my people.—Methodist Clergyman.

"Ask any good doctor if Hop Bitters are not the best family medicine—Do not get sick.

"Malarial fever, Ague, and Biliousness will leave every neighborhood as soon as Hop Bitters arrive.

"My mother drove the paralysis and neuralgia all out of her system with Hop Bitters.—Ex. Ex. Oswego Sun.

"Keep the kidneys healthy with Hop Bitters, and you need not fear sickness.

"Dyspepsia vanishes before Hop Bitters.

"Hop Bitters is peddled by hundreds and recommended and reviving with Hop Bitters.

"The Spring of Youth for the aged and infirm is Hop Bitters.

"At the change of life nothing equals Hop Bitters, as many all troubles incident to Females."

"The best medicinal for ladies in the healthy and from which they will receive the greatest benefit is Hop Bitters."

"Mothers with sickly, fretful, nursing children, will rejoice to hear Hop Bitters.

"Thousands die annually from the effects of kidney disease that might have been prevented by a timely use of Hop Bitters.

"Indigestion, weak stomach, irregularities of the bowels, can not exist when Hop Bitters are used.

"A timely . . . use of Hop Bitters will keep a whole family healthy for a year at a little cost.

"To produce real genuine sleep and child-like repose all night, take a little Hop Bitters on retiring.

"That indigestion or stomach pa at night, preventing rest and sleep, will disappear by using Hop Bitters.

"Dyspeptic persons, even aged or old ladies are made perfectly quiet and sprightly by using Hop Bitters.

JOHN G. SHILLA. THOS. A. STEVE.

SIMPSON & MILLAR,

Successors to C. V. Gillespie,

Searchers of Records and Conveyancers

Titles examined and Abstracts furnished in half an hour.

Office in the Bank.

(ALAMEDA COUNTY A SPECIALTY.)

522 CALIFORNIA STREET, 522

M. VULICEVICH

Importer and Wholesale Dealer in FOREIGN & DOMESTIC FRUITS!

437 Front Street, 437

FRESH ARRIVALS OF HOLIDAY GOODS

ORANGES LOKETTS

And Lower Grades Oranges. Full assortment of all kinds Domestic and Tropical Fruits.

PILES Positively Cured by Dr. Bond's Pile Remedy. Sold by druggists, $1 per box. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Address DR. BOND, 1 Kearny St., S. F.

DR. BEARDSLEY'S ELECTRIC BELT

INSURANCE.

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE

UNION INSURANCE COMPANY

OF SAN FRANCISCO,

THE CALIFORNIA LLOYDS,

ESTABLISHED IN 1861.

Nos. 416 and 418 California Street.

CAL H CAPITAL.....$750,000 GOLD.

FARR BATHE, PRESIDENT SECRETARY OF LOSSES, SOLID SECURITY.

DIRECTORS:

SAN FRANCISCO

R. Brewster, Nicholas Lansing,
A. B. Piper, John Parrott,
Moses Heller, James Mills,
H. O. Ellis, J. Boner,
M. J. O'Connor, M. D. Rosenberg,
I. Beckman, Joseph Brandenstein,
Daniel Meyer, Gustave Touchard,
Adolph Gerstle, J. G. Kittle,
Antonio Rocca, Geo. C. Hicks,
Joseph Sellers, J. H. Dwinelle,
Joseph Seligman, Chas. Brown,
I. Lawrence Peel, William Sharon,
Jas. Phelan, Geo. Hecht,
N. B. Sloss, J. O. Eisinger,

GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, Vice-President.

J. G. KITTLE, Vice-President.

JAS. D. RAY, Secretary.

GEO. H. BOHEN, Surveyor.

COMMERCIAL INSURANCE COMPANY

OF CALIFORNIA.

FIRE AND MARINE.

Capital fully paid.....$500,000 0
Assets, about 1, 1881.....$695,272 50
Losses paid since commencement.....$94,907 65

PRINCIPAL OFFICE,

405 California Street, S. F.

JOHN H. WISE, President.

CHAS. A. LATON, Secretary.

FRESHMAN DEASY, City Solicitor.—Office also on 2d Third street.

HOTELS RESTAURANTS ETC.

WESTERN HOTEL,

212-14 Broadway Street.

JOHN HIGGINS, : : Proprietor.

(Late Broadway Hotel.)

CHAS. H. SCHMIDT. C. S. BUSH

BROOKLYN HOTEL,

BUSH & SCHMIDT, Prop'r.

BUSH ST., bet. Montgomery and Sansome

We buy leave to inform the public that we have leased the Brooklyn Hotel, completely refurnished every room with Eastern Spring Beds, and all the necessary adjuncts of a first-class Hotel, at an expense of over $10,000.

The house of late has been re-modeled to suit the wants of our patrons.

Terms—$1 up, $2 up and $2.50 per day. A liberal arrangement made for permanent guests.

BUSH & SCHMIDT.

THE CATHOLIC BOOK HOUSE

Of the Pacific Coast!!

A. WALDTEUFEL, is happy to announce to the Catholics of the Pacific Coast that he has now opened—in connection with his San Jose Establishment, a Branch House at

737 MARKET STREET, 737

SAN FRANCISCO,

Where he will keep constantly on hand

The Largest, Freshest and Most Complete Stock

—OF—

CHOICE CATHOLIC BOOKS

—COMPRISING—

Miscellaneous and Controversial Works, Prayer Books, Etc., Etc

SHEET MUSIC

The Largest Stock on the Coast.

Sole Agent for Raymond's Sons P. A. Korth, and other Piano Publishers. Catholic Music Books, Masses and Vocal Music.

PIANOS AND ORGANS!!

CRUCIFIXES, CROSSES AND STATUARY.

PRAYER AND DEVOTIONAL BOOKS

In French, Spanish, German and English; at all prices from 15 cents to $25.

Orders by mail from any portion of the Pacific Coast promptly attended to and filed at LOWEST CASH PRICES.

A. WALDTEUFEL,

The Catholic Book House of the Pacific Coast,

737 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO,

And First Street, San Jose, - - California

NIGHT CRUCIFIXES.

NIGHT CROSSES.

NIGHT STATUES.

VISIBLE IN THE DARKEST ROOM.

—When Nothing Else Can be Seen They Shine Out with Great Brilliancy.—

THE LATE ARCHBISHOP WOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA,

Had a LUMINOUS CRUCIFIX, and said, "It is a Great Incentive to Devotion."

Address Orders to

A. WALDTEUFEL,

General Agent for the Pacific Coast,

737 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO,

And First Street, San Jose, - - California.

RELIABLE CANVASSERS WANTED.

$100,000

Paid in ENDOWMENTS to Date!!

THE UNIVERSAL

BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION

OF CALIFORNIA

FOR UNMARRIED PERSONS.

(This is Not a Secret Society.)

INCORPORATED AUGUST 8, 1881.

HOME OFFICE,

1038 MISSION STREET, 1038

San Francisco, California.

ISSUE CERTIFICATES OF ENDOWMENT OF $1000 to $2,000,

PAYABLE AT MARRIAGE

OR AT MATURITY.

Send for Circulars and Papers.

RELIABLE AGENTS WANTED.

THE UNIVERSAL BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION

1038 Mission Street, San Francisco, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CARROLL & TILTON,

Respectfully announce that they have opened

THE LARGE STORE,

873 Market Street,

—WITH A LINE OF—

GENT'S A^D BOY'S

CLOTHING,

Furnishing Goods,

HATS, CAPS, ETC.

Having been in this business many years, we can promise that all our goods will be as represented.

We buy for Cash and sell as low as possible

CARROLL & TILTON,

873 Market Street, Opp. Powell,

And late with JONES & CO.

ESTABLISHED 1855.

J. O'KANE,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER OF

HARNESS, SADDLES, WHIPS, BLANKETS,

And Everything necessary for Horse or Carriage Use.

Boots and Saddles Rubbery a Specialty

Single Harness from $18 a set.

Repairing promptly attended to.

767 MARKET ST

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Special attention given to the manufacture of "Boots of all kinds for horses. Our rates to all the principal trainers and horsemen on the Pacific Coast.

O'BRIEN & WARD'S

Male and Female

EMPLOYMENT OFFICE.

MALE DEPARTMENT, 510 Clay Street

FEMALE DEPARTMENT, 606 Clay Street

ALWAYS TO BE HAD—FIRST-CLASS HOTEL Boys, Farm Hands, Dishwashers, Barkeepers, Second Boys, Waiters, Gardeners, and Married Couples for private families, Ranch Men, Teamsters, Laundry Men, male Boys, without any charge to employers. Suitable working rooms for ladies at 606 Clay street.

JAS. R. KELLY & CO

IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF

PAINTS, OILS and GLASS

